"The Herald got an American missionary out of jail in Salonica and caused the King of Greece to go in person to Salonica to apologize to him. My son and I were the first Americans to make an aeroplane trip over Constantinople. I twice had long interviews with the Sultan of Turkey at Yildiz Palace. I travelled through Bible lands, from Mt. Sinai to the Island of Patmos. We went swimming in the Sea of Galilee; were in Jerusalem at an acute period of the Zionist question; and we crossed Turkey in a box car. It was an altogether meaty expedition.

Bottling Up an American Correspondent

"There are more important matters to talk about than my detention in Cairo. That was but an incident of the day's work. It was my good fortune to be the only American correspondent on the spot when a history-changing insurrection bloomed ripe in Egypt. My presence nullified the official censorship, which sought to keep the magnitude of the really national outbreak from the British public. There happened to be representing our country in Cairo three of the sort of Anglophile Americans who find it more congenial to toady to the British than to stand up for the simplest American rights and principles. They were the sort who have scratched the Fourth of July from their calendar.

"Naturally, these men were putty in the hands of British officialdom. The State Department has to rely upon its local agents—and as I was held up for three weeks in Cairo before I could proceed to Palestine, Syria and Constantinople.

"This unfortunate experience has not altered my confidence in the British people; nor my belief that, despite official imperialism, the heart of Great Britain and the heart of America beat more nearly in unison than the pulse of any other two nations on the map. We must, however, still remain America, unafraid to tell unwelcome truth to our big brother, and insistent that she must everywhere play the game according to the rules to which she as well as we have subscribed.

Poisoning the Springs of News

"My experience with the censorship possibly justifies me in calling the attention of American newspapermen to the peril of poison at the springs of foreign news. Not all editors realize that only by evading the censorship may the real news and the whole news come out of Turkey, Greece, Egypt, Syria, Palestine, Persia and India. In the case of Constantinople, the censorship is three-fold—British, French and Italian. Imagine the chance that real political news has under those conditions!

"Allied to the censorship is the propaganda bureau. Not only are facts suppressed or distorted, but the most flagrant mis-statements are boldly put out as true. I have often wondered how a man can retain the consciousness of 'an officer and a gentleman' and still be a professional liar. The shamelessness of these 'intelligence' departments is almost beyond belief.

"As American, our special concern is that news affecting America's duty is not allowed free course. In the face of a nation-wide movement for an American mandate for all of Turkey, does a line of it all get printed in the Constantinople papers, or cabled to this country? Not so far as one can discover. We want to know the facts about Palestine, about Armenia, about Constantinople, about Southern Russia, especially in particulars touching America's interest. Instead, we only get such information as the British and French censors deem good for us!

"Remember, this censorship is political, and not military. The war is over. Everybody assents to the need for a measure of censorship during hostilities. But we deny the right of our friends or our enemies to keep from the American people the essential facts upon which the decisions of a democracy, in a grave international emergency, are to be based.

Thimble-Rigging the League

"If ever we get a real League of Nations, free from all thimble-rigging, it must stipulate the complete abolition of political censorship, freedom of travel and investigation, and absolute equality of opportunity for trade.

"Does that sound like A, B, C?

"Well, all I can say is that any editor who thinks so would better try to send a correspondent, as I myself have done, signs his stuff, to Egypt or India or Persia. The American public really has no greater need today than full, free, fair and fearless reports directly from the Near East. The press associations should have first-class men at Athens, Constantinople, Jerusalem, Cairo, Bagdad, Bombay and Teheran.

"News from European capitals concerning Near Eastern matters is likely to have hidden in it the poisonous snake of propaganda. Home correspondents at Paris and London, having no first-hand knowledge of Oriental conditions, are often misled by the interested agents whose principal business it is to mislead the press.

"Over and over again, by heaped-up incident and detail, we in this country need to have told the story of the amazing place that America today holds in the affection of the peoples of the Near East. The ideals for which our soldiers fought have fired the hearts of millions who hitherto have never known anything but oppression. The torch of the Goddess of Liberty today flings its rays into the center of darkest Asia."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

New York, Aug. 14.

To Editor & Publisher:

In the United States Senate, last week, Senator Thomas, referring to an editorial published in the New York Times, entitled "The Brotherhood Demands," said:

"The editorial, which I consider, for the most part, is very temperate, independent, thoughtful and just criticism, in my opinion, of what we have known as the brotherhood demands, the formulation of which appeared day before yesterday in the newspapers of the country, and which were to some extent elaborated this morning.

"It was struck also by the fact that in one respects this editorial was unique in that it assumed to consider the situations from the standpoint of the public interest and upon their merits. There was a time when America had an independent press, one which carefully and constantly and fearlessly discussed public and sometimes private questions, thereby informing and educating the public, and controlling, in a large degree, the general direction of governmental affairs.

"It is only now and then, however, that we are favored with that class of editorial discussion, and largely because the commercial spirit has served its pernicious influence as well over the editorial columns of the American press as over other activities, and it is the advertiser who now directs the impulses of journalism, and chops before they are published their editorial policies and expressions of opinion. I say this in sorrow, Mr. President, much more than in anger, because a very salutary and essential influence in public affairs has thus been greatly minimized, and I fear it may be ultimately extinguished."

I have been a reader of The New York Times for many years and believe that Senator Thomas should have stated without qualification that the editorial referred to considered the situation from the standpoint of the public interest. The editorial policy of The Times, I have found through many years' familiarity with its columns, is in line with that which is to-day best interests of the public and our country at large.

Senator Thomas cannot be thoroughly informed when he asserts that the commercial spirit now largely controls and directs the editorial policy of American journals. The press of the United States is more independent in its views and policies than ever before in the history of American journalism, and its utterances, as a rule, are based upon an impartial study of the facts and first-hand knowledge of the trend of public sentiment. Practically all editors of American newspapers are men who appreciate their responsibility to the public and resent any attempt of advertisers to control their expressions of opinion. American newspaper proprietors, with almost no exception, are men of the same type.

FRANK W. HABOLD.

News Service for Foreign Language Papers

MINNEAPOLIS TIDENDE,
Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 20, 1919.

To Editor & Publisher:

In the issue of July 5 Editor and Publisher contained an editorial entitled "Americanization through the Press," in which it says:

"It would be impossible, at the earliest moment, for the foreign language newspapers of the United States to receive the news service of one of the big press associations. The Associated Press, the United Press and the International News Service treat news in the American way. They are impartial, independent, progressive. By using such a news service, without alteration by translation, a foreign language newspaper would become, inevitably, a real force for Americanization, developing the American viewpoint and attitude toward events."

In this connection it may interest you to know that the Minneapolis Tidende has been using the United Press service since before the war.

Aside from this, we desire to say that the Minneapolis Tidende is and always has been an American Newspaper, printed in the Norwegian-Danish language for the benefit of those of our readers who know that language better than English. It has always stood for what it believed to be the best interests of this country and its citizens.

JOHN BJORKINS,
Bus. Manager

—promiscuous advertising kicked an indiscriminate advertiser: Quoting a leading advertising agency—"A firm advertising a food product in a United States weekly with a circulation of more than 100,000 in Canada showed a may of the United States to emphasize a statement made in the advertising copy, i. e., that their product was made in the United States for use in the United States. The Manager of one of the largest and best grocery stores in Toronto gave orders on the day this advertisement was called to his attention that no more of the product advertised was to be bought."

As Canada differs from the United States, so our individual states, even cities within the same state, differ from each other.

Salesmen know this and accordingly localize their arguments.

Then, why, Mr. Manufacturer, why isn't it just as essential for you to localize the appeals of your printed salesmen, your advertising?

Through the daily newspapers localize your copy; avoid back-fires from indiscriminate appeals.

Invest in Newspaper Advertising

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency
Established 1888
Publishers' Representatives

New York — Kansas City
Chicago — San Francisco

from PRINTERS' INK, issue of May 22, 1919.

Digitized by Google

Lieutenant Colonel Roosevelt on America and the War, a Series Beginning in Sunday's Herald

TODAY'S WEATHER

THE NEW YORK HERALD.

HERALD CABLES

PART TWO — NEW YORK, SATURDAY, AUGUST 16, 1919 — PRICE TWO CENTS

SU… " MEN THREATEN STRIKE TOMORROW;
S… NAS BOTH HEDLEY AND LABOR CHIEFS;
'DS OF MEAT ARE SEIZED IN ONE RAID

…DS ON WAREHOUSES IN SEVERAL
…IES YIELD VAST FOOD STORES
GOVERNMENT WAR ON HOARDERS

INTERBOROUGH HAS UNTIL THIS AFTERNOON TO GRANT DEMANDS;
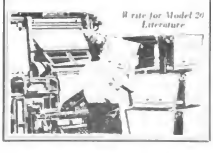
MOVE IN 'CONSPIRACY' CHARGE

WANTS ITS … MANAGERS BEER

Mr. Smith was Right!

MORE THAN 20,000 IN USE

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK



THE MACHINE THAT LASTS

One Model 20
Produces over 85% of the Display Composition in
The New York Herald

With the Model 20 Display Composition becomes Linotype straight matter set direct from the Linotype Keyboard—saving:

1 Floor Space
2 Typecasting
3 Type Distribution
4 Type Storage
5 Investment in Type
6 Investment in Metal
7 Investment in Storage Cabinets

These Economies justify your prompt attention.

Write for Model 20 Literature

The Model 20 does "Forever Silence the Eternal Cry for Sorts"

The New York Herald's Model 20 was one of the first Display Linotypes installed. Soon after it was in operation Frank J. Smith, superintendent of the composing room wrote us:

"Your Model 20 Display Linotype is a great success. Indeed, it is more than that; it is a mechanical triumph that forever silences the eternal cry for sorts.

"It will accomplish for ad display what the first Linotype achieved for news composition. By this I mean it will put display work on a 'non-hand set' basis."

Time has proven the accuracy of Mr. Smith's prophesy.

The economy of setting display direct from the Linotype Keyboard with straight-matter speed has been demonstrated under a wide variety of working conditions and the proof that publishers recognize the importance of this saving lies in the rapidly increasing number of Model 20 users.

Send us a copy of your paper for analysis. Without any obligation whatever we will show you just what a Model 20 can accomplish in your composing room

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE CO.
New York, U. S. A.

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS
Canadian Linotype Ltd., Toronto

Digitized by Google

JUDD M. LEWIS JOINS HOUSTON CHRONICLE

Writer of "Tampering with Trifles" Was "Discovered" 20 Years Ago When a Stereotyper by Marcellus E. Foster, President of That Newspaper

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 27.—Judd Mortimer Lewis, once a stereotyper, now poet and humorist of national fame, and for 20 years writer of the "Tampering with Trifles" column of the Houston Post, hereafter will write that column for the Houston Chronicle.

In making the change, he is reunited to the man who "discovered" him—Marcellus E. Foster—now president of the Chronicle, who was managing editor of the Post when Lewis first began work there.

Lewis told about this at a luncheon the other day at the Kiwanis Club, where friends were toasting him. He said:

It Actually Was Printed!

"I don't think I have ever told you folks just how I began writing poetry and alleged humor. About 20 years ago I was a stereotyper. I was working at hard day labor in a little shop on San Jacinto street. Across the way was a newspaper building. I had often had thoughts I wanted to put in writing, rhymes seemed to ring in my head; so one day I sat down and wrote something and mailed it to that paper. I didn't sign my name because I was afraid it would not be published.

"Much to my delight, as well as astonishment, the poem appeared in print. A day or two later I sent another, also anonymously, and it likewise appeared, being well displayed on the editorial page.

"I was so encouraged that I sent my third poem and signed my name in full —Judd Mortimer Lewis. It was given even better position and better display, and I received a letter from a young man who was managing editor of the paper, who told me that I should by all means continue writing; that my poems had impressed him very much. He even went to the extent of saying that they were as good as anything that Eugene Field or James Whitcomb Riley had ever written.

"That letter put sunshine into my life and ambition into my soul, and was really the thing that started me on my writing career. A few weeks later he called me into his office and suggested that I write poems and 'trifling stuff' for the paper three times a week and I could have a column all my own and could sign everything I wrote. I was elated, for he actually began paying me for my work.

Is "Going Back"

"We thought long and hard to find a suitable title, and finally we decided upon 'Tampering with Trifles'.

"That young editor who gave me my start, who wrote me such beautiful words of commendation, was Marcellus E. Foster, the then managing editor of the Post, and for the last 18 years president of the Houston Chronicle. So now it is most gratifying to me to be able to announce to you good folks and to the people of Houston generally that I am going back to the man who really discovered me.

"Beginning Sunday, August 24, I will be on the staff of the Houston Chronicle. I will continue 'Tampering with Trifles'; I will continue telling about the doings of Patsy Kildare, the girl outlaw, and I am going to do my very best to write things that may throw some good cheer into the hearts of the people, that may occasionally give them a flash of humor, and I want to say that I am glad I am going to be connected with that great and enterprising Texas daily—the Chronicle."

Katherine Richardson Weds Capt. Edward Mc E. Lewis

Mayor Kiel Attends Reception to Woman Page Editor of St. Louis Star and City Hall Reporter

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 26.—Miss Katherine Richardson, editor of the woman's page of the St. Louis Star, and Edward Mc E. Lewis, city hall reporter for that paper, were recently married here.

A reception at the home of the bride's mother was attended by many writers and Mayor Kiel. Miss Richardson came to St. Louis about five years ago from the Kansas City Star. She was a reporter, a re write "man," and dramatic critic, until several months ago, when she took charge of the woman's page.

Lewis has been on the Star's staff for several years. For two years, during and after the war, he was a captain on the staff of Major-General Leonard Wood at Camp Funston.

The bride will continue her newspaper work.

FLY PAPER EVEN IN WINTER

New Airplane Publication Is All That Its Name Implies

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 27.—The New Bedford Standard has received official notification to the effect of the awarding of the printing of the Fly Paper, Chatham Air Station's official newspaper, being sold throughout the camp and cape.

Howard E. Gamble, general secretary of the Knights of Columbus War Activities of 208 Mt. Pleasant street, was recently appointed editor of this paper, being the first secretary to serve on any official staff.

The composition will be brought to this city by Mr. Gamble, by seaplane, each week.

Fortune in Aviation Prizes

To be added to more than $1,000,000 in cash prizes put up by England, France, Italy, Portugal, Brazil, and the United States, to encourage commercial air flights flying throughout the world. the Echo de Paris has given $60,000 for prizes for a 2,500-mile circuit race, and the L'Avenir has offered $20,000 for cross-country contests.

New Paper for Davenport

DAVENPORT, Ia., Aug. 27.—Davenport is to have another newspaper, the Weekly Tribune, which will be the mouthpiece of the socialist party. It has been incorporated at $50,000, with shares of a par value of $5 each. C. L. Barewald, defeated candidate for mayor on the socialist ticket, at the last election, is one of the directors.

William G. McMurchey, Washington correspondent of the St. Paul Daily News, is spending several weeks in St. Paul.

Supply of Ground Wood Pulp Fell Off in July

Mills Also Report Decreased Stocks of Some Grades of Sulphite—Reserves Equal About 42 Days' Output

In the review of Wood Pulp for July the Federal Trade Commission figures show that 158 mills had on hand at the end of the month a total of 184,328 tons of ground wood pulp, as compared with 200,688 tons in stock on the first of July. Sulphite, news grade, decreased from 26,133 tons to 23,749 tons in the same period, while bleached and easy bleaching sulphite both recorded slight losses.

Total stocks of all grades of pulp in the mills on July 31 amounted to 242,272 tons. Stocks of other than wood pulp and Mitscherlich sulphite increased slightly during the month. There was an increase during the month in the stocks of all other grades.

Comparing the stocks on hand at the domestic pulp mills at the end of the month with their average daily production based on the 9-months' period ended April 30, 1919, the figures show that:

Ground wood mill stocks equal slightly more than 42 days' average output.

News Grade Sulphite mill stocks equal slightly more than 10 days' average output.

Bleached sulphite mill stocks equal slightly more than 10 days' average output.

Easy bleaching sulphite mill stocks equal slightly less than 8 days' average output.

Mitscherlich sulphite mill stocks equal slightly less than 5 days' average output.

Sulphate Mill stocks equal slightly less than 15 days' average output.

Soda pulp mill stocks equal slightly less than 7 days' average output.

Mill stocks of "other than wood pulp" equal slightly more than 11 days' average output.

Total mill stocks of all grades equal slightly more than 23 days' average output.

Refunds Excess Postage

The Miami (Okla.) District Daily Times recently sent a folder to newspaper publishers boosting Miami, and was told by local post-office employees that copies could be sent sealed under two-cent postage. After mailing several hundred, the Times was informed they had been stamped "postage due two cents," so the Times has sent each recipient two cents to refund the excess postage.

William Moon has left the St. Paul Pioneer Press to serve on the city staff of the Daily News.

Rainproof Circulation

The only circulation really worth while is the kind you can depend upon 365 days in the year.

Newsboy circulation won't do! News-stand circulation won't do! When it rains, they fail. When it snows, they fail. When it is too hot or too cold, they fail. When holidays keep folks at home, they fail.

The Kansas City Star prides itself on the fact that its circulation does not depend on newsboy or news-stand sales. The newsboy and news-stand sales of The Kansas City Star are less than 8% of the city circulation and less than 5% of the total circulation.

Everybody in Kansas City takes The Star at his home, delivered there twice a day by The Star's own exclusive carriers.

Kansas City Star circulation is home circulation—rain proof, snow proof, heat proof, cold proof, holiday proof—100% thorough every day of the year.

THE KANSAS CITY STAR

Morning	Evening	Sunday
215,000	215,000	215,000

CHICAGO OFFICE
1418 Century Bldg.

NEW YORK OFFICE
2 Rector Street

Digitized by Google

A GREAT TIMELY NEWS FEATURE

The intimate, personal story of General Pershing for release just as he is returning in triumph from France.

"PERSHING" By HAROLD F. WHEELER

For release in 30 daily installments of 1800 words each, six days a week. FIRST RELEASE SEPTEMBER 8. Each installment will be illustrated with rare photographs loaned from the albums of General Pershing's closest friends and relatives or taken by the author at the places General Pershing lived.

A large number of papers wired for option immediately it was learned THE WHEELER SYNDICATE, INC., had this great story, and before any general announcement was made. Already large territory has been closed and all territory is closing rapidly. A few of the papers in which this story will appear follow:

NEW YORK EVENING SUN
PITTSBURGH POST
DETROIT FREE PRESS
SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN
BOSTON POST
ST. LOUIS TIMES
BUFFALO TIMES
ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

The release date of this story, September 8, is set for about a week in advance of General Pershing's return from France. During the entire period this feature will run, General Pershing's name will be in the news reports of all papers daily. He will be welcomed at New York by the President, he will parade at the head of the famous Third Division up Fifth Avenue, he will be feted and feasted in every town he visits.

Each day some hitherto untold incident of General Pershing's remarkable career is told in this gripping story.

It tells for the first time the REAL and WHOLE story of the life of the man whom Congress has decided alone shall bear the full title of General. It is thrilling, and full of intense human interest.

It puts General Pershing in an entirely different light before the people. It shows him a warm-hearted, rather than a stern military chief. It pictures him as a boy, a cadet, a teacher, and, finally as a dominating military man in Cuba, the Philippines—all leading up to his service and leadership in France, which have made him the hero of the nation.

In gathering his material the author visited all places in the country where General Pershing had lived and had been known, obtaining at large expense a mass of remarkable detail which will make this one of the most remarkable descriptions of the life of a great man ever printed.

IF YOUR TERRITORY IS STILL OPEN

WIRE FOR TERMS AND OPTION

The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc., 373 Fourth Avenue, New York City

Digitized by Google

EXCHANGE WRITERS WITH CANADA

It Would Promote Friendship with U. S., Victoria Editor Says

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 26.—Why not put into an effect an exchange of newspapermen by the leading papers of Canada and the United States, now that the subject of such an interchange between England and the United States has been broached, asks Charles Swayne, editor of the Victoria Colonist.

Mr. Swayne declared recently at a meeting of newspapermen that such an exchange would aid greatly in strengthening the bonds of friendship between the two peoples.

BRITISH AND FRENCH PLAN TO ADVERTISE HERE

(Continued from Page 11.)

through Oxford and decided to remain in England. With typical American virility and spirit, attuned to the British temperamental record, he is making a fine success as a London general agent. He is manager of the London office of the Osborne-Peacock Advertising Agency.

Better Times Soon

"A conservative view would seem to be that matters will settle down after October. By that time also, British business interests will be able to get more of their representatives out into other countries.

"France, we had practically no opportunity to size up with any finality. The moratorium is still effective, and the national financial policy still in status quo. There are few surplus products aside from wines, and not enough surplus food yet to warrant an invasion of tourists. Besides, a tourist would be insane to go to either England or France just now, merely as a tourist. Travel is very difficult. Vises of passports are very slow and exasperating.

"Police registration continues in both countries. One has to have police consent to leave London for over night, again to stop where he goes, and again permission to return and stop in London. A dozen passport photos are required and the same red tape has to be followed with the police there that one has to pass through with Washington and the consulates in New York.

"In the end, the British and French will actively work for trade here as far as exchange rates will permit, but these as at present will seriously restrict American exports in that direction beyond the limits of absolute necessity. In the end, it seems to me, the United States may have to regulate the exchange basis arbitrarily, if exchange does not readjust itself in the natural course of events."

Government Will Aid

According to Mr. Cornell:

"The British manufacturer—particularly the manufacturer of 'proprietaries' or trade-mark products—is a real advertising prospect. Already big concerns like Lever Bros. are adding to established lines. The 200-year-old Pears' trade-mark, for instance, will soon be noted here on practically every toilet article in common use.

"No doubt every governmental aid will be extended to British manufacturers with a view to trade expansion and particularly American trade invasion."

"I care nothing for the criticisms of journalists; they never think of anything but stunts."—Sir Edward Carson.

Mrs. Mayes Would Make Pensacola Centennial City

Southern newspaper publishers and editors have been breaking quite a number of precedents during the last year, and a woman—Mrs. Lois K. Mayes—is partly to blame.

MRS. LOIS K. MAYES

Her blame rests in her success as head of the Pensacola, Fla., Journal since the death of her husband, Col. Frank L. Mayes, in February, 1915. The Journal, which issues daily, weekly and Sunday, is one of the leading papers of Florida and early this year celebrated its twentieth birthday anniversary, every one of which has marked progress. Under Mrs. Mayes' direction the Journal has forged steadily ahead.

Mrs. Mayes is the only woman member of the executive board of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association, having been unanimously elected during the recent convention at Asheville, a thing that broke all precedents. She is also executive secretary of the Florida State Press Association and president of the West Florida Press Association, positions men formerly held.

Mrs. Mayes only has one hobby right now, and it is also the hobby of the Journal, that is to make Pensacola the centennial city for the celebration of the cession of Florida by Spain to the United States Government. It was in this city that these formalities took place, and it was here that the first provisional government was established under Andrew Jackson, later president of the United States.

Correction

In the issue of August 14 there was published a supplemental list of newspapers showing advertising gains for the first six months of 1919 over the same period last year, together with some of the comparative gains for July. The figures of the Washington Star for July were inadvertently listed as for the six months' period. The Star's figures for the first six months of 1919 are 6,639,754 lines, a gain of 1,569,615 lines over the corresponding months of 1918.

When Fleet Street Laughs

One of the best jokes recently heard in Fleet street is that gyp-proof of reputations—the Weekly Dispatch. A recently "demobbed" editor was noticed gazing moodily at the Roll of Honor in the entrance to Carmelite House, and on being asked whether he had received bad news of a friend, retorted, "No, I am looking at the list of past editors of the Weekly Dispatch, and I'm the latest to be added to the list."—Circulation Manager, London.

Gleason Returns from English Trip

Joseph T. Gleason, American manager of the Amalgamated Press, London, returned to New York this week after having spent two months at the home offices of Lord Northcliffe's great organizations in and in visiting various sections of England and Ireland.

Robert Speed, recently with the Fresno (Cal.) Herald, has bought the South San Francisco Enterprise from D. E. Corley.

WANTS 1920 CONVENTION

Indianapolis Booster Asks Support of His City

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 27.—The Advertising Club of St. Louis resumed its regular weekly luncheon meetings yesterday after suspension for the vacation period.

The speakers were Jesse Blythe, a special writer for the St. Louis Republic, who spoke on "Profit Sharing—Its Advertising Value," giving the results of his study of the plans of many manufacturers, and Charles A. Bookwalter, of the Indianapolis Advertising Club, who urged the claims of Indianapolis for the 1920 convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

ENGLISH PAPERS AID GOVERNMENT

(Continued from Page 10.)

one who sought my advice on the subject a few days ago, there will be some disillusionment among those trans-Atlantic business men who adopt American methods of propaganda and persuasion. English people still rather resent the aggressive style of attack of the American.

On the other hand, for those who will adapt American methods to the British mind, there will unquestionably be a harvest in the fullness of time.

Most prominent among the invaders of Fleet street is Sir Charles Starmer, the proprietor of the "Big Four" in provincial newspapers, the Northern Echo, Sheffield Independent, Birmingham Gazette, and Nottingham Journal.

He is erecting in the centre of the newspaper lane a fine two-building frontage as the London home of his journals, and styling it "The Newspaper House." The ground floor is not quite completed, but the carved stonework above the front indicates that the building will be a conspicuous and dignified landmark in the Street of Ink.

British Publishers Poor Advertisers

British publishers as a whole are not good advertisers. In essence they should be tremendous advocates of advertising, and although they represent the one greatest channel of publicity they neither represent their own individual claims upon advertisers in a fitting or worthy fashion nor create new advertisers.

There are a round dozen of publishers who may be excepted from this charge; they do not even include all the newspaper magnates of London. Those that do so, advertise on the majestic scale; they carry the entire honor of both advertising themselves and advertising newspaper advertising. The others do not advertise at all.

In the course of a year I receive circular-letters, leaflets and so-called promotion matter from newspaper publishers all over the country. Ninety-five per cent of it is not worth reading. The other five per cent comes from the round dozen publishers above mentioned.

Newspaper publishers here seem to have little idea of the possibilities of advertising for themselves.

It is surprising, in view of that, that British commercial advertising should have advanced as it has done. But it would have advanced tenfold, in quality and in volume, and there would be a greater increase in newly created advertising, and consequently more for newspapers generally, if publishers realized their position and the power they could wield.

We Will Pay $5,000.00 For a Detective Story

THE DETECTIVE STORY MAGAZINE is going to conduct a $10,000.00 prize-story contest. It will give $5,000.00 to the person who submits the best 70,000 to 80,000 word detective story, $3,000.00 for the second best, and $2,000.00 for the third.

ALSO, the DETECTIVE STORY MAGAZINE will gladly negotiate for any of the stories that are considered available.

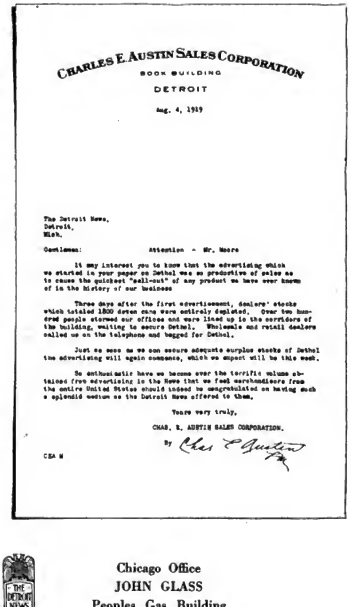
SHOULD any author submit a story which does not take the first prize he may withdraw it from the contest, if he so desires.

THE decision as to the rating of the stories will be rendered by three judges. These judges will be the two distinguished authors, Arthur B. Reeve and Albert Payson Terhune, and the editor of the DETECTIVE STORY MAGAZINE.

IN order to be considered in this contest all stories must be received by January 1, 1920.

REALIZE that you do not need to be a writer of detective stories to have a winning story in this contest, nor do you have to be an "author" at all, for that matter. Do you know that one of the best writers of detective stories to-day had never written a story of any kind till, on a dare, she wrote a story which was one of the most successful of the year?

ALL stories should be sent to the DETECTIVE STORY MAGAZINE, Prize-Story Contest, Street & Smith Corporation, publishers, 79 Seventh Avenue, New York, N. Y., who will be very glad to furnish any further particulars.



A Street & Smith Publication

Digitized by Google

Just One Example Of Detroit News Value

THE enthusiastic letter reprinted here is just an example of the many spontaneous tributes given The Detroit News for its effectiveness as an advertising medium. Read this letter. It contains valuable information concerning the wonderful opportunity offered advertisers in the prosperous Detroit field through the complete and exclusive coverage of The Detroit News.

Put the power of concentrated circulation behind your Detroit advertising. In Detroit The News circulation is practically 100% greater than its nearest week-day competitor and on Sunday 50% greater than its only Sunday competitor. Its circulation, daily and Sunday, is the largest in Michigan and is constantly increasing. Scruitinize your A. B. C. statements of Detroit papers and note the supremacy of The News.

CHARLES E. AUSTIN SALES CORPORATION
BOOK BUILDING
DETROIT

Aug. 4, 1919

The Detroit News,
Detroit,
Mich.

Gentlemen: Attention - Mr. Moore

It may interest you to know that the advertising which we started in your paper on Bethel was so productive of sales as to cause the quickest "sell-out" of any product we have ever known of in the history of our business.

Three days after the first advertisement, dealers' stocks which totaled 1800 dozen cans were entirely depleted. Over two hundred people stormed our offices and were lined up in the corridors of the building, waiting to secure Bethel. Wholesale and retail dealers called us on the telephone and begged for Bethel.

Just as soon as we can secure adequate surplus stocks of Bethel the advertising will again commence, which we expect will be this week.

So enthusiastic have we become over the terrific volume obtained from advertising in the News that we feed merchandisers from the entire United States should indeed be congratulated on having such a splendid medium as the Detroit News offered to them.

Yours very truly,

CHAS. E. AUSTIN SALES CORPORATION.

By Chas E Austin

CEA M

New York Office
I. A. KLEIN
Metropolitan Tower

Chicago Office
JOHN GLASS
Peoples Gas Building

The Detroit News

The Advertiser's Exceptional Opportunity

First in America in Paid Advertising

Digitized by Google

British Newspapers See Necessity of Standardizing Their Sizes

With Abolition of Censorship on British-Controlled Cables and Wireless, Codes Are Again Permitted

By H. C. RIDOUT, London Editor, Editor & Publisher

THE multitudinous sizes of British newspapers, their varying lengths and widths of pages, columns and margins have always been a source of inconvenience generally. Many efforts have been made to obtain some form of standardization but without success.

The result is, of course, immense waste of time, money, and labor on all sides, and a serious loss of advertising revenue in many cases by reason of the fact that advertisers, rather than make various sizes of blocks from various shapes in drawings, have frequently cancelled from their lists papers which did not conform to the most popular scale.

Thus in three leading London papers we have the Times with six columns, 2½ x 2¼ inches, the Daily Mail with seven columns, 22 x 2¼ inches, and the Daily Telegraph with seven columns, 25 x 2¼ inches.

Now the Newspaper Society has taken the matter in hand and has formed a Standardization Committee charged with investigating the possibilities of uniformity. Already British paper mills have been requested to state the widths their machines can make and with a comparison between this return and the schedules being furnished by publishers, the committee will shortly be in a position to make recommendations as to the most convenient size for general adoption. It is a badly needed reform.

Restrictions on Wires Removed

The British Postmaster General announces that with the abolition of the censorship on British controlled cables and wireless, the use of cable codes is again permissible for practically all countries other than Japan, and French, Italian and Portuguese possessions. Abbreviations in signatures are now permitted and the registration of telegraph and cable addresses is again unrestricted.

It is added that in some European countries, France, Italy, Norway, Portugal, Switzerland and Sweden, censorship restrictions have not yet been removed, the regulations hitherto in force in connection with telegrams for those countries prohibiting all but plain language and registered addresses must be maintained.

This brings a sigh of relief to many newspaper owners who jealously regard the principles of secrecy in the communication of "scoops," and will permit a greater advance of trade relations overseas and provide an impetus to international commerce.

Newspapers Favor Slogans

There is growning in steady favor here a use of descriptive slogans by newspapers. Some of them tend to be rhyming style—others are frankly plain. One of the oldest was "The Weekly Dispatch—the best of the batch," while the Daily Mail adopted two, one of them simply "Daily Mail —Million Sale," the other adding the words "Order to-day—S. V. P."—the latter when expressed in full furnishing the rhyme. Then there was "The Daily Express—the paper that gets the Scoops" two Odhams publications featuring respectively. "If you see it in John Bull, it is so!" and "The Passing Show makes smiles grow." Recent passenger cards have introduced new ones in the shape of "Sunday's Best—the Sunday Express" and "The best by far is the 12-page Star." Then there is "The Big Four" of Sir Charles Starmer's group of newspapers, London opinion as "The Worthy Weekly," and others of varying degrees of excellence and appeal, but all striving to convey in crystallized form some advertisable feature or characteristic of the paper represented.

With rare exceptions these slogans are restricted to London newspapers, county papers showing little enterprise in this particular direction.

Americans in London

I had the pleasure of meeting here in London this week Mr. Gleason, the American representative of the Amalgamated Press (Lord Northcliff's chain of weekly periodicals over which Sir George Sutton presides), and Mr. Robert H. Cornell and Mr. George H. Larke of the New York World. Mr. Gleason's impressions of the British publishing business, and particularly that with which he is associated, are that these publications have suffered surprisingly little from the war. At the request of his Chief, Mr. Gleason has been spending some weeks in Ireland studying the conditions there.

Messrs. Cornell and Larke tell me they believe that their merchandising service associated with the New York World will have a practical interest for British manufacturers seeking to cultivate the American market, and they will, con amore, demonstrate how New York can be primarily exploited and developed as a first step in a natioual U. S. A. campaign.

Although at the time of our interview they had only been in London a few hours, they were already forming their plans for an investigation of conditions and were greatly interested in the brief sketch of the present trade situation I was able to outline for them, and in a discussion of the methods that would gain for them the ear of British manufacturers. They will appoint a British representative to take care of their advertising interests here.

University Courses in Journalism

An Innovation that has surprised many conservative minds in Great Britain is the institution by the University of London of courses for a Diploma of Journalism, a departure recognised as conferring a dignity upon journalism that raises it to a level commensurate with its influence and universality. It was always felt that such a course was desirable, not, of course, as an elevating factor, but as a practical means of developing hidden genius.

The thorough character of the courses is sufficient in itself to ensure at least a fullness of knowledge in subjects that form the basis of every real newspaper man's curriculum, and the fact that Professor Sir Sidney Lee, one of our soundest literary men has been appointed Chairman of the Journalism Committee argues for the high standard which will be called for.

These University courses will cover two consecutive sessions, and are designed to promote the efficiency of those intending to pursue the profession of Journalism by offering them a comprehensive and co-ordinated curriculum of modern or current knowledge, together with instruction and practice in writing for the Press. The main aim is a sound intellectual training which is likely to prove of service to professional work.

The courses will commence in October, this year, and are divided into two sections, of which one is compulsory and the other offers a wide choice of subjects. The compulsory courses are:

English composition, including essay writing and practice in writing for the press.

Two of the following three courses (one during each University session): General History and Development of Science, History of Political Ideas, Principles of Criticism of Literature or Art, with practice in both practices.

Every student will also take approved courses in three branches of knowledge to be selected out of the following branches:

Committee in Charge

English Literature and Criticism, History and Modern Languages, to be chosen from French, German, Spanish, Italian or Russian, Political Science, Economics, Biological Science, Physico-Chemical Science, Philosophy and Psychology.

The course will be pursued at one or more of the Colleges of the University, University College, King's College, East London College, Bedford College, and London School of Economics. The courses are under the general supervision of the Journalism Committee of the University.

The Composition Fee for the course for the Diploma for Journalism is twenty-one Guineas per Session, inclusive of the Fee for the Students' Union of the College, to full membership of which the student is admitted.

It is made a condition that all students should before or during their first session make themselves proficient in shorthand and typewriting, as the University courses do not include instruction in these subjects.

Union Aids Scheme

It is interesting to learn, as showing the strength and influence of the British National Union of Journalists, that Mr. F. J. Marrott and Mr. E. J. Foster of the National Executive have been appointed to represent the Union on the special committee of the University Senate dealing with the course of Journalism. In addition the union is considering for itself the formation of an independent education scheme.

(Continued on Page 24.)

"THEM WAS THE HAPPY DAYS!"

MIDDLE-AGED or older men who have passed most of their working days in a newspaper office and who are wont to recall with enjoyment "the things that used to happen here," may find a few paragraphs from "The Clambake Bulletin" suggestive of their own experiences.

"The Clambake Bulletin" is a little four-page special edition just issued by the employes of all departments of the Westerdelen (N. Y.) Recorder in honor of their annual shore (Mohawk river shore) dinner. The clams were so good that someone on the paper and at the feast was inspired to write the following column of reminiscences, headed:

"Them Was the Happy Days!"

When Gomm's beer garden was right next door and had a rear entrance.

When all type was set by hand and the "devil" would pi a galley just as press time.

When we had 16 pages every Friday and an 8-page press, and had to print 2 8-page sections and put the paper together by hand.

When Mr. Child would edit the telegraph, and after the paper had gone to press we would find about 3 columns of live matter which he had carefully put away in a drawer in his desk.

When, besides the Democrat office, the places of business on Railroad street consisted of 4 saloons, a hotel, a barber shop and Gallup's second hand book store, right across the way.

Telegraph "By Train"

When the Albany Evening Journal would fail to arrive on the afternoon train, and as a result The Daily Democrat would contain no "telegraph" news that night.

When William P. Belden was on the paper and could give from memory the majorities of every candidate elected since George Washington, and the record of every race house that ever ran.

When it was considered a great victory if we didn't miss the 5 o'clock West Shore train more than twice a week.

When the Democrat office was on the third floor of the Miller block on Main street, and the Pioneer mill, from which we got the power to run the press, would shut down, and the press would have to be turned over by hand.

The Pneumatic Proof Pump

When the editorial room was on the third floor and all copy and proofs had to be pumped through a pneumatic tube to the composing room.

When Saturday would come 'round, and collections were poor, and the men would be asked to take part of their pay in "orders" on some store that advertised.

When the business office and the press room were both in the space now occupied by the editorial rooms, and the stereotyping was done in the cellar, and Eldredge beat in the mats on the 4th floor and lowered them down a chute on a string.

When the insurance collector would call to see Eldredge in the composing room on the fourth floor, and Link, warned of his coming by the grapevine telegraph from the ground floor, wouldn't be "in"—in sight.

Digitized by Google

"GREATER FRANCE"

NUMBER OF

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

WILL BE ISSUED ON THANKSGIVING DAY, November 27, 1919

IN cooperation with M. Henri-Martin Barzun, head of the French Press Bureau in America, and former editor of Premier Clemenceau's newspaper, L'Homme Libre, EDITOR & PUBLISHER will issue, on November 27, a notable SPECIAL NUMBER devoted to the cultivation of closer press and commercial relations between the peoples of the great French and American Republics.

This effort will be on the same scale of completeness and impressiveness which characterized the recent Victory-International Number of EDITOR & PUBLISHER—an issue which has attracted world-wide attention and interest.

The "GREATER FRANCE" Number will present authoritative reviews of the French Press, not only in the homeland itself, but in European countries of French language—Belgium, Luxembourg, Switzerland and French North Africa—as well as in French Dominions and Protectorates throughout the world and also in Latin Europe,—countries of French interests and culture, such as Italy, Spain, Portugal, Roumania, Greece, Egypt, Asia Minor, South America, Mexico, Canada and the United States. The publications issued in the French language total more than six thousand.

The "GREATER FRANCE" Number will have for its chief purposes the strengthening of the immemorial ties of friendship which bind together in common ideals and aims the two peoples—comrades in war and cooperators in peace; the establishment of mutual understanding and amity between the newspapers and newspaper men of the world's greatest Republics; the promotion of closer trade relations through the presentation of essential information about market opportunities in "Greater France" now awaiting American manufacturers.

American business men, seeking trade expansion, will find in this "GREATER FRANCE" Number the fullest information as to how to win their places in the French markets—facts as to ways and means of developing these markets and the planning of advertising campaigns in connection therewith.

THE "GREATER FRANCE" NUMBER WILL SET A NEW MARK OF ACCOMPLISHMENT IN CONSTRUCTIVE TRADE JOURNALISM

It will commemorate fittingly the first Thanksgiving Day after the signing of Peace, and will link more closely than ever before the cultural and commercial interests of the two great nations that have best typified, for more than a century, the ideals of freedom and liberty—of "Government of, by and for the people."

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America

SUITE 1116, WORLD BUILDING NEW YORK CITY, U. S. A.

Digitized by Google

BRIEFS

HARRY DANIEL, formerly sports editor of the old Chicago Inter Ocean, who established Fashion Art, a Chicago women's periodical several years ago, has resigned as its editor, and Mary O'Connor Newell, formerly of the editorial department of the old Chicago Herald, has resigned as associate editor.

J. A. GARY, FOR THREE YEARS STATE editor of the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Press, has resigned to become editor of The Furniture Record of Grand Rapids. He is succeeded on the Press by Edward Runnells of the Flint (Mich.) Journal.

PORTLAND, ORE., PRINTERS HAVE PRESented a gold locket and pin respectively, to Mr. and Mrs. George E. Moore on their departure to Fresno, Cal. Both gifts bore gold stars in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Moore's son, Gale, who died of gas poisoning in France. Mr. Moore had been a compositor in Portland for ten years.

THE STAFF OF THE NEW YORK COMmercial held a dinner at Mouquin's restaurant in honor of Russell R. Whitman's second anniversary as owner. Telegrams of congratulations were received from prominent newspaper men and from Cabinet officials.

REX LAMPMAN, FORMERLY A REPORTER on the Oregon Journal, and since then on St. Paul papers, has returned to Oregon from service in Europe, where he was on the staff of the Stars and Stripes. He expects to resume newspaper work in St. Paul.

THE LEWISTON (IDAHO) TRIBUNE IS constructing a one-story and basement addition which more than doubles its present building.

MONTHLY MAGAZINE DEVOTED TO THE interests of community clubs will soon be established at Winnipeg by V. C. Irons.

SECOND ANNUAL GARDEN SHOW OF THE employes of the Winnipeg Free Press will be held August 30 in the editorial rooms.

MASTER PRINTERS FROM ALL OVER Texas assembled in Houston have made plans for organizing a State Printers' Association later at a meeting in Dallas.

HOUSTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HAS named delegates, including many newspaper men, to attend various conventions in other cities, and has instructed them to use every means of advertising Houston for conventions during next year.

AMSTERDAM (N. Y.) EVENING RECorder and Daily Democrat have just celebrated their fortieth anniversary.

E. C. TORREY, WHO HAS BEEN IN NEWSpaper work in Minneapolis for 23 years, has resigned from the Minneapolis Journal to engage in publicity work for the extension division of the State Agricultural College.

"I SPENT FIVE DAYS AT CHATEAU Thierry and five months in the hospital," was all Captain J. H. Platt, formerly with the Newspaper Enterprise Association of Cleveland, would say of his service abroad when he returned home recently. He wears the D. S. C.

PERRY BELDEN, FORMER SYRACUSE, N. Y., newspaper writer, and until recently charge d'affaires at Bogota, Columbia, has been assigned to the United States Embassy at Tokio, Japan, by Secretary of State Lansing.

G. V. DANIELS, A RETIRED NEWSPAPER proprietor of Oakland, Cal., has been named by Governor Stephens a director of the State Board of Agriculture.

A. W. SLEDGE, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER of the Baflinger (Texas) Daily Ledger, has been appointed director of the census for the Seventeenth Congressional District in Texas.

TOM M. ARNOLD, FORMER NEWSPAPER man of Fort Worth and Dallas, Texas, who for the last ten months has been serving as assistant adjutant at an embarkation camp in France, has returned and will work for the Dallas Evening Journal.

H. G. SPAULDING, FORMERLY PUBLISHER of the Ardmore (Okla.) Ardmorite, who recently purchased the plant of the Shawnee (Okla.) Morning News from Otis B. Weaver, has erected a modern newspaper building and is issuing the paper from it.

H. C. CONNALLY HAS PURCHASED THE Polk County Enterprise of Livingston, Texas, from W. L. Weir and will assume charge as publisher.

SERGEANT THEODORE BERG, FORMERLY advertising manager of Bloomingdale Bros. New York Department Store, who has been with the A. E. F. in France for eighteen months, has returned and been discharged from the army.

ASSOCIATION NEWS

MISS DUMONT GRANT, PRESIDENT OF the Cleveland Women's Advertising Club, announced a membership campaign for the club during the fall when it is planned to enroll practically all the advertising women of the city.

AT THE ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE Montana Press Association to be held in Great Falls the entertainment committee will be composed of O. S. Warren, of the Great Falls Tribune, chairman; Frank M. Tenney and E. H. Cooney, of the Leader; P. B. Snelson, of the Tribune, and W. W. Cheely and H. P. Raban, of the association.

AN ADVERTISING CLUB HAS BEEN ORGANized at San Antonio with a charter membership of 53, R. P. Schermerhorn being president.

MRS. W. A. FITZGERALD, FIRST VICEpresident of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, and wife of a well-known Fresno newspaper man, has been appointed editor of the Clubwoman, the official organ of the Federation.

THE PASSAIC COUNTY (N. J.) PUBlishers' Association will meet monthly hereafter instead of annually.

Would Join American Legion

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26.—Application for a charter in the American Legion has been made by Cleveland newspaper writers who were in war service abroad during the war. John Markham was elected temporary secretary of the newspaper men's gathering at a meeting in the City Club's headquarters at the Hollenden Hotel.

ENDS 25 YEARS' SERVICE

Thomas E. Griffin Resigns His Position with Pittsburgh Dispatch

After serving the Pittsburgh Dispatch in various capacities since 1894, the last 23 years as superintendent of its composing room, Thomas E. Griffin retires from his post there this month.

THOMAS E. GRIFFIN

Mr. Griffin will retain his position as secretary and treasurer of the Index Publishing Company, which issues the Index, a society weekly of Pittsburgh. He is also identified with the Iron City Printing Company, having been chosen its secretary and treasurer.

Owned and Occupied by the Daily Argus

The only A.B.C. newspaper in Westchester County, N. Y. is

The Daily Argus

MOUNT VERNON

Facts of Vital Importance

Westchester County Is the fourth richest county in the State of New York. Westchester County has a Population of Over 400,000 People

Of the 34 newspapers in this county, the Argus leads all, and invites the attention and confidence of the advertiser, with its position as the only paper in this great section submitting its circulation to A. B. C. audit.

Experience has already convinced many advertisers that the only way to reach Mount Vernon people is through The Daily Argus.

Established 1892

STILES & MERRIAM, PROPS.

Foreign Representative: Geo. B. David & Co., 171 Madison Ave., New York

Digitized by Google

The best in Buffalo is the best anywhere

The new

ROTOGRAVURE SECTION

of

BUFFALO THE ILLUSTRATED EXPRESS

First Issue

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 7

Will be the Best in Buffalo

The Buffalo Sunday Express was the first in America and for more than thirty years has published the finest halftone section in America. This prestige will continue in the new Rotogravure Section. Its circulation will reach the utmost of the buying constituency of Western New York,—the constant liberal buyers.

Advertising rates based upon 70,000 to 80,000 net paid circulation: 40c per line; 1,000 lines, 35c; 2,000 lines, 30c; 5,000 lines or more, 25c.

Last form closes 15 days in advance.

In the National Field space may be contracted through

FRALICK & BATES, Inc.
Tribune Bldg., New York; Heyworth Bldg., Chicago

GRAPHIC NEWSPAPERS, Inc.
450 Fourth Ave., New York
Hartford Bldg., Chicago

Digitized by Google

Long Island Papers Unite for Better Ad Rates

Plan to Penalise Members Who Accept Orders for Less Than New Standards to Be Established

The Long Island Press Association is planning a combination of every reputable newspaper within its territory to obtain increased advertising rates by establishing standards. Local advertising will not be affected, but any member who takes outside advertising at lower than the fixed rates will be penalized.

At a conference at Long Beach, L. I., W. Courtland Smith, president of the American Press Association, said that the only salvation of the publishers of local papers in attempting to obtain just rates would be the formation of a "100 per cent perfect and equally efficient organization of all publishers." A motion was passed to have the officers and executive committee of the association arrange the details.

J. Fred Flugrath, editor of the Babylon South Side Signal, made several recommendations for the improvement of newspaper conditions. He said that government advertising should be paid for, the size of papers standardized, preferred positions for advertising abolished and that "for sale" and "redemption" notices should be published in the town where the property was located.

The officers who served during the past year were re-elected. They are: D. W. Murray, president; Francis Hoag, vice-president; Frank Marlow, second vice-president; James E. Stiles, secretary, and William McCarthy, treasurer.

MANY VETERANS' PAPERS

The Imperial Veteran Will Appear Soon for British Fighters at Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Aug. 27.—Papers and magazines for returned soldiers are springing up like green bay trees in Western Canada. Winnipeg has two already, and others are appearing in other western cities.

The Manitoba Veteran, a weekly edited by C. V. Combe, is the official organ of the Great War Veterans' Association of Manitoba. It has been running for three months and is doing well.

The veterans of the British army who reside in Winnipeg and district have an association of their own known as the Imperial Veterans of Canada and they have just announced that they will publish a monthly magazine, The Imperial Veteran, devoted to their interests. It will begin as a twenty-page magazine and the first issue will appear on Sept. 1. It will be in charge of a committee composed of J. C. Berg, F. Knowles, A. Hornby, R. Manserigh and W. Jones.

Veteran Writer Retires

CLEVELAND, Aug. 27.—W. S. Parr, after serving the Cleveland Plain Dealer for more than 27 years as a writer of news, has retired from active work. For many years he was market editor, having an extensive acquaintance among the commission men of Cleveland. Rheumatism has incapacitated him for active service for several months.

The "P. D." will not drop Mr. Parr from its payroll, however.

William Maw has bought an interest in the Sedro-Woolley (Wash.) Courier. He will act as manager, leaving Frank S. Evans free to devote his time to the editorial work.

French Newspapers Copy Our Style, Says Capt. Graham

Capt. Herbert Graham is now back in his own home town. He was born in Frankfort, Ky., in 1895, and after graduating from the local high school and showing a keen interest in journalism, he went to Lexington, where he graduated from the University of Kentucky. Having already had three years' experience in newspaper work on the Lexington Leader and Lexington Herald, he was not permitted to leave his alma mater, but was immediately elected an instructor in the Department of Journalism.

HERBERT GRAHAM.

He attended the first training camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison and in 1917 was assigned to the 84th Division, 336th Infantry. He was regimental intelligence officer with the rank of captain and was in France from September, 1918, to June, 1919.

During a part of his stay in France, Capt. Graham was an instructor in the College of Journalism of the A. E. F. University.

With Waldo Arnold, of the Milwaukee Journal, he helped pass away his time while in France by submitting a questionnaire to all the leading newspapers of that country in order to get the French viewpoint on all phases of journalism. In speaking of the experiment, he said:

"The French editors, I found, were rather keen to discuss the methods of the American journals and compare them with their own.

"Beginning in Paris they have copied much from our papers in the last few years, adopting the summary head, and gradually working into a 'lead' that tells the story, also using a lot of illustrations."

Now, Capt. Graham has become interested in the Frankfort State Journal, and is also an active member of the staff.

BETTER LATE THAN—

Washington Dispatch of Aug. 21 Appeared Here July 17

Dispatches to a number of newspapers from Washington, D. C., under date of August 21, reported the fact that the hearings on the appeal of the Attorney General over the price of newsprint paper had been set for October 6 at New York City and quoted a letter from the acting Attorney General to the Circuit Court Judges in behalf of the newspaper publishers.

All of which information was printed in the issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER of July 17.

Seem Joins A. P.

Guy W. Seem, bureau manager of the United Press at Pittsburgh, has resigned to join the staff of the Associated Press in New York, after nearly two years' service with the United Press, having been its bureau manager at Atlanta, Ga., and a member of its New York staff prior to the Pittsburgh assignment.

W. B. BYRANT, PUBLISHER OF THE Paterson (N. J.) Press Guardian, has been elected president of the Passaic County Publishers' Association.

E. INDIES PUBLISHERS COMPLAIN

Say Some Americans Refuse to Pay for Advertising

Under the head of "Far Eastern Trade Notes" the United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce on August 19 makes the following report on advertising conditions in the Dutch East Indies with reference to American agencies:

Publishers of local newspapers in the Dutch East Indies state that American advertising agencies which place advertisements in the Dutch East Indies often refuse to pay when specifications with which the paper can not comply and which they have not understood because written in English are not filled to the letter. As the papers influence public opinion, the situation is most unfortunate, and it is important that those who place advertisements should make sure that there is complete understanding of the terms, and that misunderstandings are treated liberally.

BRITISH PAPERS TO STANDARDIZE

(Continued from Page 20.)

There are two opposing factions in British journalism—the National Union of Journalism and the Institute of Journalists. The N. U. J. has the larger membership and is restricted to working journalists. The Institute includes among its members proprietors, managing directors, and managing editors.

The N. U. J. has recently become affiliated with the Printing and Kindred Trades Federation, and the Newspaper Society proposed that the N. U. J. and the Institute of Journalists should jointly be concerned in a proposed Joint Industrial Council for the newspaper industry.

But the N. U. J. and the Printing Federation are averse to the inclusion of the Institute in such a council, on the ground that the latter's membership is partly proprietorial and therefore cannot claim to represent the workers' side.

No solution was found and the present position is a deadlock. The N. U. J. declare that they have nothing to fear as their membership is sufficiently strong in itself to carry weight. In the August number of the N. U. J. organ, the Journalist, it is announced that the Executive Committee of the Union is taking steps to prepare another wage scheme, as it is felt only right that journalists "be put on a more satisfactory" level with other wage-earners, considering the character of their work and their social and domestic needs." Incidentally, it is remarked that journalistic activities generally here are increasing and widening.

Morris A. Selle, eopy editor of the St. Paul Daily News, has become special correspondent for the Daily Garment News of New York City.

CIRCULATION NOTES

The next meeting of the New England Association Circulation Managers will be in Springfield, Mass., at the Hotel Kimball, October 15. There will be an informal gathering there the preceding evening.

Five hundred Seattle newsboys were guests of the Seattle Union Record on Sunday, August 24, at a double-header Pacific Coast league game between Seattle and Oakland.

Charles F. Hosley, formerly circulation manager of the New Haven (Conn.) Register, has returned from service and is now in charge of circulation on the Post, Hartford, Conn.

Ensign Warren M. Toomey, U. S. N. has returned to his position as assistant to the city circulation manager of The Courant, Hartford, Conn., after twenty-seven months in service, during which time he made ten trips to the other side.

C. J. Jensen and W. J. Latimer have joined the circulation office force of the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press, after being on the road several years in the service of those papers.

Madrid, one of the most old-fashioned capitals of Europe, will open its first subway system October 1.

Dr. M. P. E. Groszmann,

Founder of the National Association for the Study and Education of Exceptional Children, and the greatest living authority on Child Development, is writing

"What You Should Know About Children"

An instructive feature of the keenest interest to every father and mother.

Three times a week, about 500 words each.

Released by

Thompson Feature Service

No. 443 Fourth Ave., NEW YORK

ADVERTISING SECURED

Advertising for Special Issues of Daily Papers and Magazines. Souvenir Programs of big events. Publicity campaigns conducted. If you have a legitimate reason for producing something special I have the men and means to do it.

J. L. Le BERTHON

2 RECTOR STREET NEW YORK CITY

Digitized by Google

What The Plain Dealer Said To The Constitution

Newspapers that are using Goodrich "ONE-SET" Rollers

Akron Evening Times
Asheville Times
Atlanta Constitution
Atlanta Journal
Baltimore American
Boston Post
Buffalo Courier
Buffalo Evening Times
Buffalo Times
Canton Repository
Chicago Tribune
Clarksburg Exponent
Cleveland News
Cleveland Plain Dealer
Cleveland Press
Columbus Dispatch
Dennison Daily Paragraph Denver Post
Detroit News
Elkins Inter-Mountain
Erie Times
Fairmont Times
Houston Chronicle
Huntington Advertiser
Indianapolis News
Jamestown Post
Kansas City Star
Muskogee Daily Phoenix
Newark Advertiser
New York Tribune
Parkersburg Sentinel
Philadelphia Evening Bulletin
Philadelphia Inquirer
Philadelphia Press
Philadelphia Public Ledger
Pittsburg Leader
Reading Sentinel
Rochester Times-Union and Advertiser
Sioux City Journal
Springfield News
Wheeling Intelligencer
Wheeling Register
York Gazette

and the list is continually growing

We told the Constitution that Goodrich had developed a new ink-distributing roller unaffected by heat or cold—a roller for feed and distributive services that outwore others two, three and four to one.

As proof, we told them how the Plain Dealer had used one set for over a year. It was hard to believe—the Constitution checked up, and this is what the Plain Dealer told them:

> "We have been using the rollers made by the B. F. Goodrich Co. for the past year and a half and have found them very satisfactory, indeed. The original cost is somewhat greater than for composition rollers but the life of the roller seems to be indefinite—those originally placed on our machines are still in use and apparently as good today as when installed."

Goodrich "ONE-SET" Rollers are unaffected by heat or cold. You never need to change in the middle of a run—you can even use the same set winter and summer.

Their distribution of ink is perfect; they are unaffected by water; they will not melt at highest speed in hottest weather. You don't even need to stop to wash them.

The best proof of their superiority is the calibre of newspapers which have adopted them.

In asking for prices, specify core diameter, finished diameter, and length of cover face.

THE B. F. GOODRICH RUBBER COMPANY
The City of Goodrich—AKRON, OHIO

TRADE MARK

GOODRICH "ONE-SET" ROLLERS

Digitized by Google

TIPS TO AD MANAGERS

J. W. Barbea Advertising Agency, 338 Washington street, Boston. Placing 42-1. 6-1. with some farm papers for A. J. Tower.

Barton, Durstine Company, Buffalo. Making 10,000-1. contracts mostly in the eastern states for General Baking Company. Will place the advertising for Wildroot Chemical Company, Incorporated.

George Batten Company, 381 Fourth avenue, New York. Making 1,000-1. contracts with newspapers for George E. Keith Company.

Berrien Company, 19 West 44th street, New York. Will place the advertising for Nemours Trading Corporation.

Cecil, Barreto & Cecil, Mutual Bldg., Richmond, Va. Sending out copy for Haynes Chemical Company.

Critchfield & Co., Brooks Bldg., Chicago. Sending 2-in. 34-t. to middle west newspapers for Black Silk Stove Works.

J. H. Cross Company, 214 South 12th street, Philadelphia. Again sending out new contracts for United Medicine Company.

Richard A. Foley Advertising Agency, Terminal Bldg., Philadelphia. Sending out 3,136 additional lines to newspapers for Feis & Co.

Gardner Advertising Company, 1627 Locust street, St. Louis. Sending out 5,000-1. for one year for Tennessee Beverage Company.

F. A. Gray Advertising Company, 14th and Oak streets, Kansas City. Sending out 5,000-1. 1 year to a large list of newspapers for Barbo Manufacturing Company.

John M. Lamay, 41 Park row, New York. Placing copy with New York City newspapers for La Salle Extension Institute.

MacLay & Mullally, 198 Broadway, New York. Placing copy with newspapers in most of the large cities east of Pittsburgh, including Pittsburgh, for National Motor Bus Corp.

Scheck Advertising Agency, 9 Clinton street, Newark. Sending out orders to New England States for Charms Company.

Tracy-Parry Company, Lafayette Bldg., Philadelphia. Placing advertising for F. O. B. Combination Auto Lock.

Ruthrauff & Ryan, 404 Fourth avenue, New York. Will place advertising for Physical Culture Magazine.

MOON AGENCY GROWS

Moves to New Quarters and New Men Join Staff

Troy, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Because of an increase in business and additions to the staff, the Byron G. Moon Company, selling and advertising service, have enlarged their quarters in the new Proctor Building.

J. E. Woodruff, who has been with the Moon Company for some time, has been placed at the head of the Promotion Department, and E. C. Goekeler, formerly associated with the N. W. Ayer Co., of Philadelphia, has been appointed manager of the Mechanical Production Department. William W. Brelin, who recently returned from service in France, has resumed his duties as a director and the secretary of the Moon Company.

Warner Joins Miami Metropolis

Miama, Fla., Aug. 26.—Lon A. Warner has been made advertising manager of the Miami Metropolis. He served as reporter on daily papers in Knoxville.

Newspaper Files Should Last at Least 100 Years

Wood Pulp Not So Perishable as Experts Contend, Says Supt. Quaife of Wisconsin Historical Society

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 27.—Dr. M. M. Quaife, of Madison, Wis., superintendent of the Wisconsin Historical Society, does not subscribe to the idea that the wood pulp paper now used by newspaper publishers is of such perishable quality as experts hold. In a letter to John Talman, newspaper librarian of the Minnesota Historical Society, who, in an article in the Winnipeg Free Press, quoted approvingly the familiar fifty-year term fixed by these experts, says:

"I should like to take issue with you on one point. There is, as I believe, an all too prevalent conception that our newspaper files are going to dissolve into dust much sooner than the facts justify.

From Time of Cromwell

"If you are interested in this matter you might look in public libraries for November, 1918, for my remarks on a statement similar to your own made by Mr. Lydenberg, of the New York Public Library.

"The matter is too long to go into here, but suffice it to say that we have in our library newspapers running all the way down from Oliver Cromwell to August, 1919. If they were subject to any such rapid decay as Mr. Lydenberg states (and as you seem to believe), we would necessarily have the visible evidence of it in our collection.

Harm in Exaggeration

"While newspaper stock is poor enough, and while I would gladly see it bettered, f think only harm can come from disseminating an exaggerated idea as to the, frailty of newspaper files and the rapidity with which they may be supposed to go to pieces.

"For myself, given reasonable handling, I do not believe even our modern newspaper is likely to go to pieces inside of a hundred years. If it outlasts this period, it may for all practical purposes be said to be permanent—at least permanent in the same sense that books are regarded as being."

TO ADVERTISE SHREVEPORT

Ad Club Will Distribute Handsome Booklet at New Orleans Convention

Shreveport, La., Aug. 27. — The Shreveport Ad Club will print and distribute at the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs at New Orleans a de luxe edition of community advertising.

The stock will be cameo plate india paper, with the text printed in sepia. There will be 80 or more pictures of Shreveport industries, public buildings and churches.

Bridgeport Press Club Elects

Leo M. Pasquin, rewrite man on the Bridgeport Post, is new president of the Bridgeport Press Club, succeeding George J. Finley, resigned. Finley stepped down when made managing editor of the Bridgeport Sunday Herald, under the rules of the club prohibiting newspaper executives from holding office.

New Cisco, Texas, Paper

Cisco, Texas, August 27.—A morning newspaper will begin publication here, Oct. 10, to be known as the Cisco Morning News, by a $40,000 stock company.

Prominent New Jersey Cities And Their Newspapers

Asbury Park The pleasure ground of many thousands, not only in summer, but all the year round.
The Asbury Park Press is published here daily—circulation 7,242 (Sunday circulation 3,650).

Atlantic City America's greatest summer resort, attracting more people annually than almost all other resorts combined.
The Atlantic City Press is its big morning paper—circulation 14,793.

Elizabeth One of the great industrial centers of the state, growing rapidly and very much alive.
The Elizabeth Daily Journal, strong in this section, is published every evening except Sunday—circulation 17,517.

Hackensack A delightful residence town of the higher class. People with money to spend.
The Hackensack Record, published daily except Sundays, covers not only Hackensack, but a goodly portion of Bergen County—circulation 4,879.

Hoboken The New York seaport section where great ocean liners discharge passengers and freight—a busy, growing section.
The Hudson Observer, a splendid paper covering Hoboken and all of Hudson County, is published here every evening except Sunday—circulation 42,900.

Passaic A thriving industrial community with many pretty residential sections. Growing by leaps and bounds.
Its two fine papers are the Passaic Herald— irculation 8,733—and the Passaic News—circulation 8,511. Both papers are published daily, except Sundays.

Paterson The silk center of America—a city of over 150.000 population and growing rapidly—a city of workers and the home of many wealthy peop!:.
Paterson boasts of a very fine evening paper—the Paterson Press-Guardian, with a circulation of 12,050.

Perth Amboy One of the most promising industrial sections of New Jersey—a city of workers.
The Perth Amboy Evening News is published daily except Sundays—a well gotten-up paper. Circulation 8,723.

Plainfield A delightful residential town of the higher class—with just enough industrial activity to give it vigor.
The Plainfield Courier-News is a clean-cut, well printed evening paper. Circulation 7,706.

These daily newspapers of New Jersey can do you an awful lot of good in reaching the people you want for customers.

	Circulation	Rate 5,000 lines
Asbury Park Press (E)	7,122	.0225
Atlantic City Press (M) Union (E)	14,871	.035
Elizabeth Journal (E) (A. B. C.)	17,656	.04143
Hackensack Record	4,879	.01781
Hudson Observer (Hoboken)	43,000	.08
Passaic Herald (E)	8,535	.025
Passaic News (E)	8,427	.025
Paterson Press-Guardian (E)	12,686	.05
Perth Amboy Evening News (E)	*8,723	.025
Plainfield Courier-News (E)	7,908	.0214

Government Statement, April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. Report, April 1st, 1919.

Digitized by Google

OHIO FIRST

Ohio People

Ohio people taken by and large and averaged with people occupying other parts of the United States line up "from choice to prime."

Six million people in all—five per cent of the population of the United States.

85.1% are native born whites.
(The average for the United States is 74.4%.)
12.6% are foreign born.
(The average for the United States is 14.9%)
2.3% are negroes.
(The average for the country is 10.7%.)

This shows what kind of people you have to deal with in Ohio.

Ohio Agriculturally

Few states compare with Ohio agriculturally. They grow practically everything in Ohio and grow plenty of it.

About one-half the people of Ohio are farmers and, farmer or "city fellow," they all read daily newspapers.

Cultivate this great state and use the daily newspapers produced in Ohio to get to the people—localizing your advertising.

Ohio is a mighty good state to sell good goods in.

Ohio Manufacturing

Ohio stands fifth among the states in the annual output of manufactured goods.

Ohio produces more pottery than any other state in the Union.

Ohio produces more automobile tires than any other state in the Union.

Ohio's steel and iron mills turn out products used everywhere.

Ohio soap is used everywhere (except on small boys' necks and arms).

A list of the nationally trade marked articles produced in Ohio is astonishing.

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Akron Beacon-Journal (E)	31,110	.05	.05
*Akron Times (E)	20,454	.03	.03
Bellaire Daily Leader (E)	3,646	.02	.0125
*Cambridge Daily Jeffersonian (E)	8,117	.0179	.0179
Chillicothe News-Advertiser (E)	3,055	.00714	.00857
Cincinnati Inquirer, Sc. (M&S)	62,911	.12	.12
Cleveland Plain Dealer (M)	168,440	.24	.24
Cleveland Plain Dealer (S)	200,02.	.27	.27
Columbus Dispatch (E)	75,402	.115	.105
Columbus Dispatch (S)	71,117	.115	.105
Columbus (O.) State Journal (M)	53,155	.10	.09
Columbus (O.) State Journal (S)	27,147	.10	.09
*Dayton News (E)	36,225	.065	.065
*Dayton News (S)	36,225	.045	.045
East Liverpool Tribune (M)	6,138	.015	.015
Lima Daily News (E&S)	12,549	.0286	.0214
Lima Republican Gazette (M&S)	10,008	.02	.02
Middletown Journal (E)	4,174	.0115	.0115
Newark American-Tribune (E)	6,217	.0179	.0179
New Philadelphia Daily Times (E)	4,413	.0129	.0129
Piqua Daily Call (E)	4,019	.0114	.0114
*Springfield News (E&S)	12,395	.025	.025
Toledo Blade (E)	82,973	.17	.15
Warren Daily Chronicle (E)	5,200	.02	.02
Youngstown Telegram (E)	21,601	.05	.05
Youngstown Vindicator (E)	24,558	.05	.05
Youngstown Vindicator (S)	22,222	.05	.05
Zanesville Signal (E)	10,704	.025	.025

Government Statements, April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. Report, April 1st, 1919.

Digitized by Google

EDITORIAL

THE NEWSPRINT SUPPLY

THE Federal Trade Commission's review of the domestic newsprint market for July shows a small gain in mill stocks during the month, amounting to 2,110 tons above the surplus on hand at the end of June. The total reserve supplies of 76 American mills amounted, on July 31, to 28,225 tons, less than seven days' normal production for these mills.

The first seven months of 1918 were war months. The mills were restricted in production through limitation of labor and of freight facilities. The newspapers were curtailing reading matter, and advertising was comparatively light. Yet in that period, in spite of the war conditions, 67 American mills produced 743,377 tons. During the same period of 1919, ending July 31—the war over, the supply of labor more plentiful and freight conditions greatly improved—76 American mills, in the face of a greatly increased consumer-demand, produced but 785,070 tons, an increase of but 41,707 tons over the same period of the previous year.

Reserve stocks in the hands of publishers decreased 5,158 tons during July, 1919. At the end of the month there were 146,460 tons held in reserve by 748 of the most important newspaper publishing concerns and associations, including 92,982 tons held by the farm papers. Seventy-five per cent. of this tonnage was held by sixty-five publishing concerns.

To understand the situation as to reserve stocks of publishers, the states of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio may be considered. In these states 148 newspapers had on hand July 1, 1919, 42,574 tons of newsprint. They received shipments during the month amounting to 29,013 tons. They consumed during the month 32,848 tons. They had on hand at the end of the month 38,745 tons, with 10,591 tons in transit. At the end of July, therefore, these 148 newspapers had on hand a total of 49,336 tons more than they had used in July—or a little more than a month's supply. This would average a trifle more than 261 tons to a paper—but, as the Trade Commission's review shows that 65 per cent. of the tonnage held about half of the surplus stock, it may be inferred that some of the smaller dailies have little or no surplus on hand.

The figures, however, if we may assume that this reserve in the hands of publishers is at all generally distributed, are illuminating. Under normal market conditions it has always been considered that a newspaper must carry in reserve a month's supply, to guard against delays in shipments and other contingencies. That the totals for four States now show, approximately, that margin of safety is rather significant. Of course, in the face of doubtful reserve stocks at the mills and an assured big fall and winter demand, it would be reassuring if the publishers could show much larger stocks in hand. Yet with sound policies of conservation it would seem that a serious shortage may be averted.

IN Jason Rogers' second article on "Newspaper making," in EDITOR & PUBLISHER of August 21, he reveals his highly effective system for keeping his finger on the pulse of his business every day—through his little "dope book," which is described and illustrated. In commenting upon this article Mr. Rogers said: "I wonder if anybody else would be foolish enough to give away to everybody an idea of such value as this?" EDITOR & PUBLISHER cannot concede that this impulse of service, always impelling with Jason Rogers, is "foolishness." If it is, by all means let us have more of the same from other men who may be hugging to their breasts little trade secrets of great value!

THERE will be a greater number of localized national advertising campaigns carried through the newspapers this Fall than ever before. The publisher who can offer first-line service in his field should impress national advertisers with that fact right away.

IF a publisher does not believe that he can sell advertising more effectively by means of advertising it than otherwise, how can he urge other business men to use it?

WHAT IS THE NEWS VALUE OF BASEBALL?

IN urging upon editors and publishers the need for restricting the space generally accorded to baseball, EDITOR & PUBLISHER has not sought to minimize the essential news value attaching to this most popular of American sports.

When, as at present, it becomes obvious that conservation of white paper must be practiced if a serious fall and winter shortage is to be averted, curtailment of text matter is always suggested as a part of any effective program of saving. And, naturally, when an editor appraises the relative value of the text matter in his paper, with a view to cutting out that which is of least value, he will encounter the problem of baseball. And, usually, he must concede that this topic is overplayed.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER has asked some representative editors for their views as to what is a reasonable space allowance for baseball news. Victor F. Lawson, editor and publisher of the Chicago Daily News, whose judgment as to factors of value in a newspaper is rated above par by most other publishers, in a telegram to EDITOR & PUBLISHER expresses himself as a firm believer in the strong news appeal of the national game. He suggests that, in cities like Chicago and New York—each supporting two major league teams—three to four columns of baseball news daily in the season and from three quarters to one column a day out of season would be a reasonable allotment of space. This estimate does not apply to Sunday issues.

As an example of how this allotment is exceeded, the New York Sun of Monday morning, August 25, may be cited—a fairly typical illustration. The Sun in that issue carried seven columns and thirteen inches of baseball news and matter. The copy was snappy and interesting—much of it spot baseball news. But the question persists: Is baseball, as a news topic, worth nearly a page of space in a Monday morning issue of a metropolitan paper? Does this represent a reasonable balance of news values, when considered in relation to other news and feature matter?

It is safe to say that a majority of metropolitan papers give to baseball twice the space which Mr. Lawson suggests as a fair average. And the same condition will hold good when the newspapers in smaller cities are considered. Hon. Frank P. Glass, editor of the Birmingham News, tells EDITOR & PUBLISHER that he finds the News has been running three columns daily on professional baseball and one column of amateur ball, and about twelve columns in all on Sundays. He plans to gradually reduce this space allotment until it has been cut in half.

If it is true of a majority of the newspapers of the country that they are giving to baseball twice the space which its news value justifies, what an opportunity is here presented for space conservation!

August 28, 1919. Volume 52, No. 13.
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
Published weekly by
THE EDITOR & PUBLISHER CO.
1117 World Building, 63 Park Row, New York.
W. D. Sumner, editor; John F. Redmond, managing editor; Dan F. Miller, News; Ben Mellon, Features.
James Wright Brown, publisher.
J. W. Ferguson, advertising; Fenton Dowling, circulation.
London: Herbert C. Rideout, 43 Kimberly Gardens, N. 4.
Paris: F. B. Grundy.
Toronto: W. A. Craick.
Chicago: D. F. Cease.
San Francisco: H. L. Bernstein.
Boston: M. J. Staples.
Washington: Robert T. Barry.
10 cents a copy; $3 a year; foreign postage, $1.00; Canadian, 50c.

"FULL PUBLICITY"

THE President and Senator Lodge had agreed that the conference at the White House should have full publicity. The average American construed this to mean that accredited correspondents of newspapers and press associations should be present. This was a mistaken conclusion. The newspapers were represented by a commercial stenographer, who sold to them transcripts of the discussions.

This conference was one of tremendous, world wide interest. It had to do with the making of history—with the shaping of events which will touch at some point and in some way the lives of all the people of the earth. It was called in order that a free and open discussion of America's relations to world problems might be had—a discussion between our Chief Executive, whose vision and leadership were potent factors in saving a war-torn world from "chaos and old night," and the senatorial committee in whose hands is placed the check reins controlling executive power under our form of democracy.

The people, seeking the fullest light on the far-reaching obligations to which the League Covenant would bind us, welcomed the assurance that this conference should be fully reported. The letter of that promise was kept—the spirit of it was violated. So far as stenographic reports go, we know what was said to and by the President.

But we were deprived of a pen picture of this meeting of men who were engaged in a battle scarcely less momentous than that waged by American troops in the Argonne forest. Instead of a human, interpretative story of the conference we were given, in effect, an "official communique."

If such an incident had happened in the old Germany, or in the Russia of the Czars, it would have merely been considered in keeping with well established policies of press control. It happened in the most progressive country in the world, whose free press is the mightiest force for good in the life of its people. And it has happened because our press has permitted it to happen—and, through failure to fittingly resent it, has allowed it to become still another precedent.

In EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S Washington correspondence of last week it was told how a solution to the conference for a limited number of correspondents was requested by the chairman of their standing committee. Mr. Karger's letter, it is stated, was not answered. Pressed for answer by telephone, Secretary Tumulty is reported to have said that he had taken the matter up with the President and that there was "nothing doing." Nobody will attribute any malice to the President. It should be true that Mr. Tumulty took upon himself the responsibility of thus snubbing the American people through their newspaper representatives, the fact should be given "full publicity."

THE verdict for nominal damages against the Chicago Tribune in Henry Ford's suit for a million dollars is hailed as a victory by both parties. Practically every newspaper in America has carried the story of this celebrated case, day by day or week by week for four months. Perhaps no other newspaper has ever figured continuously for that period of time so conspicuously in the news columns of its contemporaries as has the Tribune. If there is any reader of a newspaper on the continent who does not now know a good deal about this great Chicago paper, its courage in standing by its editors and its independence, that reader has missed a worth-while opportunity. The case has emphasized anew the fact, too, that Henry Ford is the most widely discussed private citizen of the United States.

THE advertiser is now about the only man who can buy a commodity at a bargain price. Generally speaking, advertising rates have increased but slightly because of mounting costs of publishing.

TRUTHFUL advertising will sell any honest product—and other kinds of products should not be made, advertised or sold at all.

Digitized by Google

PERSONALS

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOM

Emil M. Scholz, formerly of the New York Evening Post, who has been spending several months in the Orient, is due to arrive in San Francisco early in September.

M. E. O'Neill, editor and publisher of the 'Frisco (Tex.) Journal, and Miss Alta Reynolds were married last week.

F. A. Miller, editor of the South Bend Tribune, has been on a trip in Ohio and Michigan investigating machinery for the Tribune's new plant. Mr. Miller, accompanied by Mrs. Miller, is now at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel, Atlantic City, N. J., for a short vacation.

D. G. Boyd, former telegraph editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, has returned from overseas war service.

Sergeant Alois J. Gnenther, a Pittsburgh, Pa., newspaper writer, who was in the Fiftieth Engineers in France, has been awarded the French Croix de Guerre for rescuing a wounded comrade under heavy fire.

George McQuaid, formerly editor of the Galveston Daily News, but more recently in charge of the oil column of the Dallas Morning News, has resigned to become director of publicity of the Hamon & Kell Railway, now being built in the West Texas oil fields.

Lieutenant W. R. Christian has received his army discharge and will return to the news desk of the Waco (Tex.) Morning News.

Will S. Henson, Dallas newspaperman, has been appointed to direct publicity for the American Legion.

Merle MacAlister, of Burnham, Me., well known in New England as a political writer, has returned from service as a sergeant with the Marines and will resume newspaper work this fall.

After a year's service as ensign on a submarine chaser, Wallace C. Eakin has returned to take up his duties as editor of the Baker (Ore.) Herald.

James D. Olson, city hall reporter for the Portland Oregonian, has been elected secretary of the Oregon State Elks' Association.

W. F. Payne, veteran news editor of the Manitoba Press, of Winnipeg, has been spending a month's holiday in Eastern Canada. He has been with the Free Press for 35 years.

T. Bowers McDermott, publicity representative for the Winnipeg and Pantages theatres and former Winnipeg and St. Paul newspaperman, is in Mayo Brothers hospital at Rochester, Minn., suffering from stomach trouble.

Robert E. Hicks, city editor of the San Antonio Express, has been appointed publicity secretary of the Agricultural and Mechanical College at College Station, Tex.

Royal Dixon, author, naturalist and lecturer, who got his start as a reporter on the Houston Chronicle, is the guest of Houston relatives, following his return from a Y. M. C. A. lecture tour in Europe.

Richard C. Bush, formerly city editor of the Waco (Tex.) Times-Herald, is now telegraph editor of the Austin American.

Sammy Miller, former sporting editor of the New York Morning Telegraph, is touring the Southwest with his bride. They were married June 29.

Ben Hill, city hall man for the San Antonio Evening News, has taken a position as leading man with the San Antonio Pictures Corporation and will be seen in the filmed version of Irvin Cobb's "Mr. Potter of Texas."

Robert D. Skinner is covering police news for the San Antonio Express. He was formerly on the Houston Post and Beaumont Enterprise and was one of the Texas Food Administration's publicity men.

Louis Aubry DeBord, formerly with the Kansas City Star and the Associated Press at Kansas City, has resigned as telegraph editor of the Austin (Tex.) American and is now doing special work for the San Antonio Express.

Elliott L. Thurston has resigned from the Providence (R. I.) Journal to take a position on the New York Sun.

Arthur H. Crowell, a reporter for the Providence Journal for the past two and a half years, has become assistant managing editor of the Woonsocket Call.

Major Charles S. Coulter, formerly a Providence (R. I.) Journal reporter, has left France for this country. He was shot six times and badly gassed. He received the French Croix de Guerre.

H. T. Sampson, who has just returned from overseas service, has become a reporter for the Providence (R. I.) Journal.

Herbert Corey is with the Prince of Wales' party on its Canadian tour, and is sending "close-up" matter to the Associated Newspapers. His dispatches are written in the human-interest vein and afford intimate glimpses of the spirit in which the young Prince is receiving the homage of his loyal Canadian kinfolk.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

William Wolfe, formerly of the Newark Star-Eagle, has been appointed business manager of the Hartford Post.

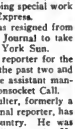
Ben F. Lawrence, business manager of the Indianapolis, Muncie and Terre Haute Stars, is visiting his parents at his old home in Coquille, Ore. Mr. Lawrence will return via Denver to visit at the home of Jess Willard, head of the Shaffer league of newspapers.

F. W. Meyers, formerly of Denison, Ia., has bought a half interest in the Martinez (Ia.) Enterprise and with W. D. Junkin is publisher, and will be actively connected with the newspaper.

Captain W. E. Haskel, Jr., of the New York Tribune, left last Saturday on an automobile tour of the mid-West, Syracuse, Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo, Akron, Detroit and other automobile centers. This is a business trip in the interest of the New York Tribune.

WITH THE AD FOLKS

Arrangements have been made by Bates, Harrison & James, advertising and merchandising counsel, of Los Angeles, to conduct advertising campaigns in various Mexican, South American, and Australian, and East Indian newspapers, for several Southern California manufacturers and exporters.



The Women's Advertising Club of St. Louis has named as its delegates to the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs at New Orleans, Miss Mary Wheat, the president; Miss Julia Shipley Carroll, Miss Olivia Brueggeman, and Miss Louise Lenoir Thomas.

R. H. White, for the last three years advertising manager of the Domestic Engineering Company of Dayton, Ohio, makers of Delco-Light products, has joined the forces of Power, Alexander & Jenkins Company, of Detroit, and will have charge of the Dayton office, in the Dayton Savings & Trust Building.

Lieut. Julien J. Burvant, who spent nearly 18 months in France with the A. E. F., much of that time as assistant provost marshal at Bordeaux, has been discharged from the service and has resumed his place on the staff of the Chambers Agency, Inc., of New Orleans.

To Make Newspaper Success Women Must Be Unbiased

FIFTEEN years publisher and editor of a daily newspaper, Mrs. Mabel Shaw, chief of the Evening Telegram, of Dixon, Ill., is one of the most successful newspaper women in the United States. With a good working knowledge of all of the many departments of a newspaper office, she has made her daily an influential power in her community.

MRS. MABEL SHAW.

To be successful in newspaper work, Mrs. Shaw says, women must be open-minded and absolutely fair and unbiased in the treatment of the subjects of the day. She further believes that women will fare much better if they receive their training under newspapermen.

Mrs. Shaw attended this year's convention of the National Editorial Association in the Pacific Northwest.

That women are becoming an important factor in the newspaper business was strongly emphasized at the convention. More women editors and publishers of weekly and daily country newspapers attended than at any previous convention.

Robert Clarke, Jr., recently discharged from the U. S. Aviation Service, has been appointed advertising manager of the Petroleum Iron Works Co., of Sharon, Pa., succeeding William J. S. Ritscher, who has become Chicago manager of the National Petroleum News.

W. I. Goodspeed is now Chicago representative of the Blast Furnace & Steel Plant, the American Drop Forger and the Coal Industry, all published at Pittsburgh, Pa. Chicago headquarters are in the Monadnock Block.

George B. Forrest, who for a number of years was manager of export, sales promotion and other departments of the H. W. Gossard Co., corset manufacturers, Chicago, has resigned to become sales promotion manager of the Acme Packing Co., also of Chicago. He will also edit the Red Crown Magazine, the company's house organ.

The J. Roland Kay Co., advertising agents, Conway building, Chicago, are giving free to interested parties copies of The Far Eastern Review, an export trade periodical which has just issued a 264-page issue dedicated to "The Ports of the Orient," in which data on Chinese importing and trade conditions are detailed.

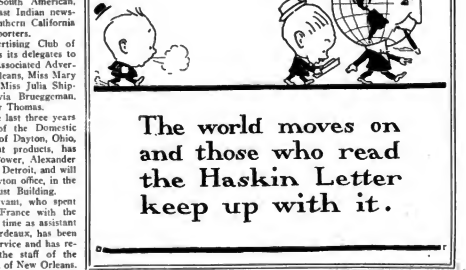
Edward Bartlett Lockwood, former newspaper publicity man and now executive secretary for Camp Roosevelt, Chicago, will resign that position October 1 to establish an advertising service agency in Chicago under his own name.

The United Advertising Corporation of Texas has been organized at Dallas with a capital stock of $100,000.

Erwin Polkoske, rate man for the Sehl Advertising Agency, Chicago, is spending his vacation in one of the Michigan resorts.

Walter Evans, of the Mallory, Mitchell & Faust copy department, is away on a two weeks' vacation.

Herman G. Halstead, vice-president of Paul Block Co., has returned from a business trip through the South.



Lieut. Walter H. Ford, formerly of the classified advertising department of the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press, has returned from France, where he served in the army, and will resume his old position.

H. L. Haas, of the classified department of the St. Paul Daily News, has been transferred to the display department and placed in charge of automobile advertising.

Ralph Robins, advertising manager of the New Leader store in St. Paul, has resigned to become advertising manager of Orkin Brothers of Omaha.

Weinstock Opens Agency

KENOSHA, Wis., Aug. 27.—H. M. Weinstock has resigned as sales and advertising manager of the Cooper Underwear Company of Kenosha, Wis., to embark in a specialized advertising service agency under his own name. Headquarters will be maintained at 161 English Court, Kenosha. Mr. Weinstock formerly was advertising manager of the Holeproof Hosiery Company of Milwaukee.

Digitized by Google

JUDGE TUCKER'S CHARGE TO JURY ON RIGHT OF PRESS TO CRITICISE PUBLIC MEN

Michigan Jurist Interprets Libel Law as Applying to Issue in Henry Ford's Suit Against Chicago Tribune—"Fair Comment" the Test of Criticism

IN his charge to the jury in the Ford-Chicago Tribune libel case, Judge Tucker analyzed the scope and limitations of newspaper criticism, within the law, in an interesting way. He said, in part:

"The publication or circulation of any article which is libelous per se, presumes malice. I don't mean by that personal, individual malice, but an evil or wrong motive, intention or state of mind; not necessarily a personal malice against the person about whom the article is written.

"The burden of proof is upon the defense, and not upon the plaintiff. They must either establish the truth of the charge they have made, or show that it was 'fair comment' within the meaning of that term." * * *

"As to the meaning of the term 'anarchist,' as used in this editorial, that is a matter for you to consider, and is one of the questions you must determine.

"Ordinarily speaking, the term 'anarchist' would be expected to convey to the mind of the ordinary reader that meaning which naturally comes to the minds of the people when they hear the term spoken of by itself. Perhaps the most commonly accepted meaning of the term is—murderous, dangerous persons; possibly a bomb-thrower. * * *

"It is your province, gentlemen, to determine what was meant by the term in this case, and what was understood by the term, in your judgment, by readers of the paper in which the article appeared.

"You are not to do this by testimony as to what the intentions of the parties writing the article were, in their hearts and minds, but by an examination of the article itself within its four corners.

"In other words, it is for you to consider what you honestly believe the average reader would get from the article. An editorial goes broadcast over the world, and the best the jury can do is to determine from their experience in life, and the testimony in the case, as to what the thing was, what the average reader, in the place where the article was circulated, would get from it." * * *

"There is no obligation on the part of any citizen to agree with anybody else on any subject on earth, whether it is the President, Secretary of State, or who. Every man has the right to his own opinions and convictions, and the right to advocate them in any reasonable way. * * * On the other hand, a newspaper has the same right, providing they injure nobody.

"No newspaper has the right to libel anybody for the sake of promoting their own opinions.

"If you become satisfied that the charge or characterization contained in the editorial in question are true in substance, that will end your consideration of the case, and your verdict will be for the defendant—no cause of action.

"If you become satisfied that the charges or characterization or charges in the editorial are true, you may then consider whether they constitute 'fair comment' or not. It is the right of everyone, not the privilege of any particular one, to comment fairly and honestly on any matter of public interest, and the defense of 'fair comment' is equally applicable, whether the criticism is oral or written.

"You should exercise care not to be misled by the word 'fair' in this connection. As criticism is opinion, it can never be primarily material to inquire into its justness. The right to criticise implies the right to judge for oneself of the justness of the criticism. It would seem to be but a delusion to say that one has the right to criticise, provided the criticism be just. The justness or unjustness can never be more than a matter of opinion. The test always is, Was the criticism bonafide? Was it the honest conviction of the publisher? The question is, Was the comment honest? If it was the writer's real ideas and was honestly written, then it was 'fair,' as that term is used in the law, and you must so treat it. But criticism should not exceed the bounds of fair comment. If the editorial in question can be treated as fair comment, you will then find in favor of the defendant.

"But if you find there was no justification for the use of the term 'anarchist' or the other terms and characterization employed in the editorial, your verdict must be for the plaintiff for the amount of damage inflicted upon the plaintiff's reputation and feelings; and if you find further that there was actual or expressed malice behind the publication, you may then add to the amount of actual damages such further sum by way of added damages that your good judgment dictates.

"You are first to consider, Was this editorial true? If it was, you need consider nothing further, because the truth is a complete defense, and your verdict will be for the defendant, no cause for action.

"If you find the editorial was untrue and does not come within the definition of fair comment, your verdict must be for the plaintiff.

"You will then consider the question, Was it written with actual malice? If it was, you may add to the damages whatever sum may fairly compensate for the injured feelings of the plaintiff by reason of the fact that the thing was maliciously done.

"If it was done without malice, although untrue, you will confine yourself to allowing the damages which the plaintiff has sustained."

Contemplates Daily Photogravure

The London Times, weekly edition, is to have a photo-gravure section each week. Not long ago a representative of Northcliffe papers visited the United States with a view to buying machinery capable of this work, and in the Times Weekly we see the first experiment. Before many months are over, it is certain the Times will run this feature daily, and in consequence gain largely in circulation.—Circulation Manager London.

Clement G. Vincent, of Los Angeles (Cal.), is to publish La Gaceta de los E.E.U.U., a Spanish language magazine promoting commercial and social relations with Latin America.

Iowa

104,082 miles of interior road communications!

The Iowa farmer has no cause to worry about how to get his crops and his stock to market. There are 104,082 miles of rural highways and roads in the Iowa road system, AND EVERY FARM in the 99 counties has an accessible market to SELL IN and to BUY in and to get the DAILY NEWSPAPER.

It is quite as easy and often more profitable to advertise and SELL to these communities than it is to those of the great cities; moreover they have more money to spend per capita.

Newspaper advertising will help you, and costs very little compared with the results.

	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 Lines
Boone News-Republican.....(E)	3,636	.0143
Burlington Hawkeye .....(M)	10,908	.03
Burlington Hawkeye .....(S)	12,116	.03
Clinton Herald .....(E)	7,559	.02
Council Bluffs Nonpareil.....(E & S)	16,228	.035
Davenport Times .....(E)	25,643	.05
Des Moines Capital.....(E)	60,655	.08
*Des Moines Sunday Capital.....(S)	46,668	.08
Des Moines Register and Tribune..(M & E)	111,517	.14
Des Moines Sunday Register.....(S)	70,745	.12
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald .....(M & E)	16,678	.04
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald .....(S)	16,037	.04
Fort Dodge Messenger and Chronicle..(E)	8,762	.03
Marshalltown Times-Republican .....(E)	13,781	.028571
Mason City Globe-Gazette-Times.....(E)	9,602	.03
Muscatine Journal and News-Tribune...(E)	8,331	.02
Ottumwa Courier .....(E)	13,606	.035
Sioux City Tribune.....(E)	51,342	.08
Waterloo Evening Courier.....(E)	14,484	.03

Government Statements, April 1st, 1919.
*Publisher's Statement.

FELLOW TOWNSMEN MEET IN FAR-OFF FRANCE

PRIVATE J. GOODE. LIEUT. A. G. JACKSON.

THESE two Bridgeport (Conn.) newspapermen met in France and the picture above was the result. Arthur J. Goode, a private in the infantry, was keeping "in touch" by working on "The Stars and Stripes." He was city editor of the Bridgeport Evening Times before entering service. A. G. Jackson, a lieutenant, was on the high seas most of the time aboard the U. S. S. Federal, having been responsible for the ship's cargo in transit. He was city editor of the old Bridgeport Standard before the war and was appointed city editor of its successor, the Bridgeport Standard Telegram, on his honorable discharge from the service.

HAS NEW AD MANAGER

Sexton Manufacturing Company, of Fairfield, Ill., Employs W. R. Warren

FAIRFIELD, ILL., Aug. 27.—W. R. Warren, until recently assistant advertising manager for the Corticelli Silk Mills, has been appointed advertising manager for the Sexton Manufacturing Company of Fairfield, Ill., manufacturers of athletic underwear for men and boys. At one time Mr. Warren was advertising manager for the Westfield Manufacturing Company of Westfield, Mass.

It is reported that the Sexton Manufacturing Company now is working on plans for the largest advertising campaign ever conducted by them, it being probable that they will shortly undertake the manufacture of women's athletic underwear in addition to their men's and children's lines.

PREDICTS WAR WITH JAPAN

Thomas Millard, Editor, Says Shantung Decision Should Be Modified

WASHINGTON, August 20.—Thomas F. Millard, editor of the Far-Eastern Review of Shantung, China, testifying before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, declared that the Shantung decision would cause war between the United States and Japan within twenty years, unless the decision was disavowed by this country.

"The trouble probably will start in a fight between Japan and China and we will be drawn into it," he said.

Irish Paper Raided

DUBLIN, Aug. 23.—A raid on the office of the Irishman, the leading Sinn Fein newspaper, was made late yesterday by the police. The forms for this week's issue and the proofs run off were confiscated.

INDIANA

Indiana, as a state, presents trading advantages which are particularly attractive.

Indiana people, Hoosiers, are "bugs" on education, and education means culture, and culture means good living, and good living means buying plentifully of good things.

Indiana people are, perhaps, somewhat "touchy" on political matters—being intensely interested in Indiana politics which means they follow their own Indiana daily newspapers very closely.

That, perhaps, is why there are so many very excellent daily newspapers in Indiana.

These daily newspapers get close, very close to Hoosiers, and can do great work for National Advertisers.

Use them and get results.

	Circulation	5,000-line rate
Elkhart Truth .....(E)	8,300	.025
Evansville Courier .....(M)	*23,893	.04
Evansville Courier .....(S)	*20,987	.04
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette.....(M)	29,236	.05
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette .....(S)	34,350	.05
Indianapolis News .....(E)	133,473	.16
Indianapolis Star .....(M)	92,851	.11
Indianapolis Star .....(S)	106,581	.14
Kokomo Dispatch .....(M)	5,400	.0171
Lafayette Courier .....(E)	*8,994	.02
Lafayette Journal .....(M)	10,415	.02142
La Porte Herald.....(E)	3,376	.0179
Richmond Item .....(M)	8,225	.02
Logansport Pharos-Reporter .....(E)	6,621	.015
Muncie Press .....(E)	9,666	.01786
Muncie Star .....(M)	26,858	.05
Muncie Star .....(S)	16,818	.05
Richmond Item .....(M)	8,225	.02
Richmond Palladium .....(E)	11,096	.03
South Bend Tribune .....(E)	*17,436	.035
Terre Haute Star .....(M)	26,945	.04
Terre Haute Star .....(S)	19,422	.04
Terre Haute Tribune.....(E)	24,845	.04
Terre Haute Tribune .....(S)	19,192	.04
Vincennes Capital .....(M)	1,849	.01071
Total Daily Circulation and Rate.....	444,261	.71396
Total Sunday Circulation and Rate.....	207,150	.36
Total Daily and Sunday.....	651,511

*A. B. C. Report, April 1st, 1919
Government Statement April 1, 1919.

Commercial Printers Ask $50 in Brooklyn

Union Men Want Increase in Their Pay and Forty-four Hour Schedule, Beginning October 1

Printers in job and commercial offices in Brooklyn will demand a forty-four-hour week and wages of $50 a week beginning on October 1, according to action taken at the meeting of the Typographical Union.

The meeting was held behind closed doors and announcement of the action taken was made later by John S. O'Connell, the secretary. The demands of the union, he said, would be presented to the employers at once. No threat of a strike is made as yet, but Mr. O'Connell stated that "it might lead to a strike." The demands do not affect printers working in the publication of newspapers.

At present the printers in job and commercial houses have a forty-eight-hour week on day work and a forty-five-hour week when on night work and the union scale of wages is $36, although most of the bosses pay more than that. Mr. O'Connell stated that most of the printers receive about $39 or $40.

There are 5,500 printers affected by the new demands.

Find Rare Boston Issues

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Copies of the "Boston and Country Gazette Journal" of March 12, 1770, and other rare newspapers, were found in the attic of W. F. Dean, of this city, last week. There are less than half a dozen copies of the "Gazette Journal" in the country, it is believed.

NEWSPAPER MAKING BY JASON ROGERS

(Continued from page 9)

of the richest and most prosperous country on earth. More money is in circulation in this section and people are more able to respond to the appeal of the advertiser than anywhere else.

I found that the daily newspapers printed and circulated were sufficient in number to provide a copy both morning and evening to every home in the section. Counting five people to the family there are 10,000,000 families in these states, and as the newspapers circulate 20,000,000 a day there is a morning and evening newspaper for each of them.

I found that as compared with this 100 per cent. cover for the newspapers the Saturday Evening Post with the largest circulation of any of the general media sells only slightly over 1,000,000 copies in this territory, or about 50 per cent of its total circulation among these people representing from 75 to 80 per cent. of the wealth and purchasing power of the country.

If it costs $10 per line to reach 1,000,000 of these homes through the Saturday Evening Post, and $41,000 per line to reach 20,000,000 circulation in these homes through the daily newspapers, we have a fair basis for comparisou of five to one. Of course the advertiser might not want to reach the homes twice a day by the newspapers, but he could reach them all once a day for $20.00 per line, which would produce the same ratin of cost.

Fair Comparison

With such information and data readily available for any one who will take the trouble to dig it out it seems to me most absurd that successful business men in enterprises big enough to buy pages and double pages at many thousand dollars each in general media will go blindly forward throwing their money at the map regardless of efficiencies.

I hold no brief for the territory I am herein using for purpose of demonstration. Fortunately newspaper advertising can be used to cover any industrial or business center wherever located just as effectively and at practically the same proportionate cost. I merely selected this particular territory because, taken as a whole, it reflected the greatest mass of concentrated wealth and purchasing power.

In all sections of the country our daily newspapers exert their greatest power through concentrating circulation at centers of business population and industry. Take for example Atlanta, Birmingham, Seattle, Dallas, Minneapolis, St. Paul, or other similar centers, and we find equally rich and prosperous though smaller fields equally covered by newspapers which can be used at about the same rate per line per thousand and will produce equal results.

Newspaper Advertising Flexibility

The wonderful thing about newspaper advertising is the flexibility with which it can be used. In the case of the manufacturer located say in Providence, R. I., he can first use the Providence newspapers, as his distribution covers that city, and then grow out in gradual circles to Pawtucket, Woonsocket and other towns just as rapidly or slowly as he wishes without a bit of lost motion or waste.

This same manufacturer with the hands of the general medium salesman is told that by using pages he can force distribution everywhere, can do a certain amount of mail order business, and can get results in the places where he has distribution, but he is carefully advised to urge his dealers to use "local newspaper advertising" to supplement the general advertising.

My investigations would seem to prove that the horse should be put the other way round, and that the manufacturer can make most satisfactory trade progress by using newspaper advertising to seeure distribution, and that he cannot afford to buy expeusive and general publicity until he has secured a very good general distribution.

The so-called "graveyard" of general medium false hopes, where lie those who have sunk their money without satisfactory returu and who are forever through with advertising, forms the most sickening chapter in the history of advertising.

Too Much Lost Motion

It should be obvious to auy business man that he cauuot afford to pay a fancy price to address the whole United States and Canada if he only has distribution in a limited number of cities. Even if the circulation which he pays for was worth what is asked for it, the proposition is too heavily loaded with lost motion and inefficieucies to make it a buy.

By reference to the tables it will be found that an advertiser can use twenty-nine daily newspapers covering twenty-two of the principal business centers of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois with a daily circulation of 2,053,922 at a cost of but $2.85 per line on a 5,000-line contract. To cover the same section with the Saturday Evening Post would cost $810.00 per line and he would only reach 296,265 circulation in the desired territory.

A Comparison of Values

Taking the New England states as another example, the advertiser can use daily newspapers with 1,781,017 circulation, covering all the centers of population and industry, for $2.40 per line on a 5,000-line contract, as against $10.00 per line in the Saturday Evening Post, which sells but 143,112 in the New England States.

In the case of the state of New York, it will be found that an advertiser can use seventeen daily newspapers, covering the ten principal industrial markets, for $3.27 per line, securing 1,997,986 circulation, as compared with $10.00 per line for the Saturday Evening Post, which sells only 200,093 copies in the whole state, much of which is outside the cities which we most desire to cover.

Gradually these facts are sinking into the minds of those who buy advertising space and those who handle advertising. Localized national advertising,—advertising linked up to the names of the manufactuter's agents and dealers handling his goods—is being demonstrated to be far superior to "general result," "for sale at all dealers," "send for list of dealers," advertising.

Real Influence

In any city in the country the local daily newspaper has a stronger hold on the confidence of the people of the community than any magazine printed in a distant city can ever have.

Newspaper advertising is quick-fire and immediate result advertising which can be used today and produce results tomorrow. Magazine copy must be prepared and released months in advance of publication regardless of changing conditions, such as the sudden outbreak of the world war in August, 1914.

If our newspapers everywhere would but get together and boost newspaper advertising as a commodity and temporarily forego selfish individual ambitions they would double, treble and multiply many times the business volume that they otherwise would receive.

They won't do this until they get the "big" idea and cut out foolish and childish knocking, cut out offensive and doubtful advertising, and do everything in their power to help simplify the process of buying space in newspapers as a group through closer and more sincere relations with the advertising agents and space buyers.

During the seven months ending July 31

614,922 agate lines

of national advertising were published in

The Clarksburg Telegram

a gain over the same period of 1918 of

74.5%

It pays to advertise in "West Virginia's Leading Newspaper."

TO REACH THE RICH TRADE OF KANSAS

Topeka Daily Capital

Sworn Government Report for Six Months ending Apr. 1, 1919

35,247

Its sales promotion department is at the service of advertisers. And it really promotes.

Arthur Capper

Member A. B. C. Publisher.

Reason Results

The merchants of Washington, D. C., usually use more space in

The Evening Star

than in the other three papers combined.

U. S. P. O. Report

For the period ending April 1, 1919, Average Daily and Sunday Circulation

76,652

New Orleans Item

Enjoys the largest afternoon and Sunday net paid circulation of any newspaper published in the entire South.

try-out market

The Indianapolis Radius can be covered with minimum expense. It is dominated by one paper which can create consumer demand, and command dealer and jobber co-operation. Try out your product in the Indianapolis Radius through

THE INDIANAPOLIS NEWS

Charter Member A. B. C.

Foreign Representatives

Dan A. Carroll, Tribune Bldg., New York
J. E. Lutz, First Nat. Bank Bldg., Chicago

Photogravure Advertising 25c line

8 page supplement Every Sunday

Des Moines Sunday Register

70,000 Net Paid Circulation

I. A. Klein, New York—John Glass, Chicago

The Pittsburgh Post

has the second largest morning and Sunday circulation in Pittsburgh.

MILL STOCKS INCREASE SLIGHTLY IN JULY

Reports from 76 U. S. Mills Show Tonnage on Hand at End of Month Equal to Less Than Seven Days' Output

—Stocks Decrease

THE Federal Trade Commission has just issued a review of the domestic news print market for the month of July, in which it appears that mill stocks, held by the 76 United States mills reporting to the Commission, have slightly increased during the month.

The total production of print paper by these domestic mills for the month of July, 1919, was 113,929 net tons; the shipments for same period amounted to 111,819 tons, and the mill stocks on hand at the end of the month amounted to 26,225 tons. For the month of July, 1918, with 67 mills reporting, the total production was 108,523 tons, shipments 109,772 tons and mill stocks at end of month, 24,912 tons.

The additional mills reporting to the Commission are concerns operating chiefly on other grades of paper, but still producing news print to a limited extent.

For the first six months of 1919 the total production of 74 U. S. mills was 671,141 tons, as compared with 634,854 tons for the first half of 1918, when 66 mills reported.

Forty-one machines were idle for a part of the time during July, there having been a total loss of 3,743 hours, due to lack of labor, repairs and other reasons. No loss of time was reported because of lack of orders for news print, while machines making other grades of paper did sustain considerable loss of output for that reason.

Our imports of news print for the month of June, 1919, amounted to 52,619 tons, all from Canada. This is an increase of 324 tons over June, 1918.

U. S. Exports Decrease

The U. S. mills exported news print, during the month of June, 1919, to the amount of 9,552 tons, as compared with 11,601 tons for June, 1918. The exports of domestic wood pulp for June, 1919, amounted to 4,572 tons, which exceeded those of June, 1918, by 731 tons.

The news print sales agents and jobbers reporting to the Commission had on hand, on July 1, 1919, 3,360 tons of rolls and 6,132 tons of sheets. They received during the month 3,530 tons of rolls and shipped 3,043 tons, leaving on hand at the end of the month 3,287 tons. They received during the month 2,270 tons of sheet news, shipped 3,118 tons and had on hand at the end of the month 5,740 tons, compared with stocks of 7,132 tons on hand at the end of July, 1918. Their total commitments to buy during July, 1919, amounted to 46,558 tons; while their commitments to sell totaled 52,571 tons, these figures including both rolls and sheet news.

In addition to mill stocks reported above there were 1,372 tons of news print on hand at terminal and delivery points on July 31, 1919.

Comparing the stocks on hand at the domestic mills on July 31, 1919, with their average daily production for a period of 12 months, it is shown that the mill stocks equal slightly less than 7 days output.

Publishers' Tonnage

Monthly tonnage reports covering 748 (1) of the most important newspaper publishing concerns and associations grouped according to the principal business sections of the United States together with a separate tabulation for the agricultural publications, show the following results for July, 1919:

Location of publishers (*)	Number of publishers	On hand beginning of month Net tons	Received during month Net tons	Used and sold during month Net tons	On hand end of month Net tons	In transit end of month Net tons
New England	86	15,949	13,263	13,426	15,876	6,045
Eastern States	146	29,238	31,313	40,940	21,586	11,191
Northern States	148	42,874	39,010	32,948	38,745	10,391
Southern States	90	10,966	7,567	8,976	8,645	5,025
Middle West	150	29,385	21,284	21,923	29,749	8,072
Pacific Coast	115	8,984	9,000	10,275	7,977	1,350
Farm papers	28	7,801	1,360	1,360	7,882	384
Total—U. S.	748	151,819	133,563	138,711	140,460	30,747

(1) This number represents a much larger number of publications.

(*) New England includes Connecticut, New Hampshire, Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Vermont; the Eastern States include Delaware, the District of Columbia, Maryland, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania; the Northern States include Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio; the Southern States include Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia; the Middle West includes Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Wisconsin and Wyoming; the Pacific Coast includes California, Oregon and Washington.

Publishers' stocks decreased 5,158 tons during the period. Sixty-five publishing concerns held about 49 per cent of the total stocks at the end of the month.

Mill Prices to Publishers

The weighted average price of contract deliveries from domestic mills to publishers during July, 1919, f. o. b. mill in carload lots for standard news in rolls was $3.646 per 100 pounds. This weighted average is based upon July deliveries of more than 20,000 tons on contracts involving a total tonnage of more than one million tons of paper manufactured in the United States. These contracts, most of which extend until December 31, 1919, include a few long-term contracts made prior to the war at very low prices.

The weighted average contract price based on deliveries from Canadian mills of more than 21,000 tons of standard roll news in carload lots f. o. b. mill in July, 1919, was $3.57 per 100 pounds. This weighted average is based upon the July deliveries on contracts involving about 180,000 tons of Canadian paper. The greater number of these contracts are short-term contracts covering the year 1919.

The weighted average July market price of standard roll news in carload lots f. o. b. mill based upon domestic purchases totaling more than 5,000 tons was $3.72 per 100 pounds.

PREMIUMS

That Are Real Subscription Producers

S. BLAKE WILLSDEN

Manufacturers and Publishers Representative,

1606 Heyworth Building

29 E. Madison St. CHICAGO

"SPURS OF GOLD," WORLD TRIBUNAL PRIZE

(Continued from Page 5.)

every secret in international affairs and set it forth in print.

The League of Nations holds out a new prize for newspapermen, a higher prize than we have ever had before. The de Blowitzes of the past will look like tea-time gossip as compared with the men at the seat of the League of Nations, who do their big job well.

The star League of Nations reporter, in the days to come, will know the histories of all the nations on earth, he will know all the leading statesmen of earth, and they will know him, all the problems of all the nations will be matters of enough knowledge to him, and the secret intricacies of international finance will be as clear as daylight to him, if he is to be a hundred per cent success. He must be able to speak several languages

It won't be an easy job (we who had a little taste of it at the Peace Conference in Paris fully realize this), but every minute of it, if it lasts a lifetime, will be worth while.

To Golden Reward

There isn't one young newspaperman in the United States who can go wrong in making this League of Nations job his life goal. If he is in a school of journalism he can insist on courses which will tend to help him to that end; if he is covering police or city hall he can begin to prepare himself by digging into history and languages and getting into touch with the international statesmanship of the day.

There won't be many League of Nations reporters at any one time, of course, but there will always be a demand for the fellow who has prepared himself to go to Geneva—and the big chances are that some day he will be there will be great gold.

The spurs that a reporter can win sent there.

WE SPEND MORE THAN $500,000

per year to produce the features which have created the greatest newspaper following in the world.

"Hearst's Features Always Lead"

Write for booklet.

"Half Million Dollar Feature Service"

The International Feature Service

246 West 59th Street

THE INTERNATIONAL NEWS BUREAU, Inc.

15 SCHOOL STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

G. J. BOSDAN, Editor

More than 120 American and Canadian newspapers subscribe to our service

Each week our subscribers receive between 30 and 50 columns of copy. Authoritative articles by men of international calibre on matters international, human interest stories from all lands and climes, revelations of European courts, speeches and addresses of men and women whose words influence the thought of nations, translations from every important foreign newspaper; these and numberless other items day after day are sent to our subscribers.

IN SHORT, MR. EDITOR—ESPECIALLY MR. SUNDAY EDITOR —WE CONSTANTLY SPREAD THE WORLD BEFORE YOU FROM ALL ANGLES.

You will find our monthly subscription rates surprisingly low.

The True News

FIRST

Always—Accurately

International News Service

World Bldg. New York

NEWSPAPER Feature Service

GET THE FEATURES THAT HAVE WON THE BIGGEST AUDIENCE

Write us for samples of our colored comics, daily and Sunday pages in black and colors.

Newspaper Feature Service

M. KOENIGSBERG, Manager

241 WEST 37TH ST. NEW YORK

GUNNISON BUYS OLD ESTATE

Business Manager of Brooklyn Eagle Will Spend Summers There

Herbert F. Gunnison, business manager of the Brooklyn Eagle, has purchased for a summer home a country estate of seventy-five acres and a colonial farmhouse, nearly 100 years old, at Purchase, N. Y., just north of White Plains and near the estates of Oscar Strauss and Whitelaw Reid.

The property is known as the "Evergreens" and has been in the possession of one family for nearly 100 years, the deed going back to 1828. The house will be remodeled.

New Era Features

30 East 42nd St., New York City

Forty Leading Papers Print Our Service.

Send for our Headline History of the World War

PRESTIGE

The standing of your newspaper in your city is measured directly by the extent of your service to your readers. There is little difference in the news—sometimes only slight differences in editorial opinions. The service to your readers is largely a matter of entertainment and information, aside from the news.

On this principle, the service of The Associated Newspapers has been built. The association helps every member to a better standing in its community.

Write or wire for rates.

The Associated Newspapers

170 Broadway New York

Digitized by Google

Ohio Women Writers Hold Second Annual Outing

Many Newspaper Topics of Particular Interest to Women Scribes and Readers Are Discussed at Lakewood Meeting

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26.—The second annual outing and meeting of the Ohio Woman's Newspaper Association was held in Lakewood, Augus: 22, 23 and 24, the business meetings being held in the Hotel Lakeside.

Mrs. Lida Keck Wiggins, of the Springfield Sun, discussed "What I Know About You." Mrs. John McKee, of Springfield, spoke on "What This Association Would Like to Do for You."

A memorial was held for the late Miss Henrietta Grauel, a Cleveland writer and lecturer, Mrs. J. W. Freeland of Marion speaking of Miss Grauel's life work.

Mrs. W. K. Matthews, Sunday editor of the Dayton Journal, discussed "Women and the Sunday Paper." Other subjects discussed and speakers were: "Women and Special Editions," Mrs. Mary Southard Young, of Dayton, discussion led by Mrs. E. A. Day, of the Bellville Messenger; "Press Agents," Mrs. Frances Parrott, of the Dayton Journal, discussion led by Miss Georgia Hopley, Bucyrus Telegram; "Securing and Holding Good Country Correspondents," Miss Fern Sapp, Westerville Public Opinion, discussion led by Miss Elsie Berg, Wellsville Union; "Interesting Child Readers," Miss Isabelle Freeland, Cleveland Plain Dealer, discussion led by Miss Irene Atkinson, Columbus.

"Picked From the Streets," Miss Margaret Converse, London Press, discussion led by Miss Sannie B. C. Paxton-Allanee Review; "An Interesting Movie Page," Miss Barbara Webb, Lorain Times-Herald, discussion led by Miss Winifred Bitler, Findlay Republican; "The Woman Page," Miss Ruth Parrett, Ohio State Journal, discussion led by Mrs. Edith L. Hall, Dayton Journal.

AWARD FOR WRITER'S DEATH

Commission Rules He Was Killed in Course of Employment

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The New York State Industrial Department has awarded $15.39 a week to the dependents of James A. Moore, a reporter of the Daily Times, who was killed in an automobile accident while covering a story. The Aetna Insurance Company had contended that his injuries did not arise in the course of his employment.

Harold B. Johnson, editor of the Times, which is insured in the Aetna on behalf of its employees, testified that Moore was killed while on the story of an accident similar to that which resulted in his death and that notes found in his pocket showed he had been gathering data concerning it.

EZRA M. WILKINS DIES

Was Identified with Advertising Nearly Half a Century

Ezra Mandeville Wilkins, for the last five years connected with the advertising department of the New York Times, the last three years as assistant advertising manager, died Saturday at his home, 235 West Seventy-fifth street, after an illness of about a week. Accompanied by a delegation from the Times business staff, the body will be taken to Springfield, Mass., for interment.

Before coming to New York Mr. Wilkins was for thirty-two years with the business department of the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, becoming its advertising manager. He was graduated from the Springfield High School in 1879. His father, Ezra Wilkins, had early been a printer in the Republican office, being one of the "old guard" associated with the late Samuel Bowles.

Mr. Wilkins resigned from the Republican in 1912, and came to New York with the Pharmaceutical Era, and the Soda Fountain, published by D. O. Haynes & Co., of 82 Fulton street. Five years ago he went to the Times, and to its interests he had since given loyal and faithful service.

Floyd Wilding Triggs

Floyd Wilding Triggs, a cartoonist who had worked for Chicago, Boston and New York newspapers, died in Stamford, Conn., Saturday, after a stroke of paralysis. His home was in Darien. He left a widow and two sons. He was a graduate of the University of Minnesota and a member of Phi Kappa Psi and the New York Press Club.

Obituary

WILLIAM EDGE, father of United States Senator Walter E. Edge, died here Aug. 23 in his 74th year. The funeral will be held on Tuesday morning at the home of Senator Edge, 170 South Pennsylvania avenue, this city.

MRS. NELLIE CURLEY, wife of Edward F. Curley, sporting writer on The New York American, died suddenly of heart disease Monday at her Summit home at Glendale, N. Y. She was 43 years old and besides her husband is survived by eight children. The body was removed yesterday to the home, 1953 Eighty-second street, Brooklyn.

F. A. ALBA, who edited the North Shore Advertiser of Long Island for many years, and was also connected with the Shore Press of Ocean Grove, N. J., is dead, aged, 72 years.

GEORGE M. LAW, a member of the advertising department of the New York American, and connected with the Hearst interests for twenty-five years, died at his home in New York City.

MARK FRANCIS NAPIER, president of the Reuter's Telegraph Company, died at Inverness, Scotland, in his sixty-eighth year, from heart failure.

CHARLES P. DOWNS, telegraph editor of the El Paso (Tex.) Times, is dead as a result of a fracture of the skull, received when he was struck by a street car. He formerly practiced law in New Mexico and served in the New Mexico legislature.

GEORGE H. ALCORN, one of the oldest special representatives in the advertising business, with an office at 23 West 33rd street, New York City, died at his home in Newark, N. J., after an operation for acute appendicitis. He was for many years associated with Charles J. Bilhorn. He is survived by his wife and a daughter. His business has been taken over by the Franklin P. Alcorn Company, of New York City and Chicago, which old-time company being a nephew of Mr. Alcorn.

MRS. ELIZABETH WRIGHT GOULD, wife of Alfred L. Gould, editor and publisher of The Wilestone Herald, died at her home in Whitestone, L. I., on Saturday.

ALBERT CLARK STEVENS, financial editor of the Newark Evening News, died of heart disease at his home at East Orange, N. H. He was born in Buffalo 65 years ago and began newspaper work as a reporter on the Buffalo Express in 1874. He was editor of Bradstreet's, 1880-1898; editor of the New York Commercial, 1898-1899; editor Paterson Daily Guardian 1899-1901, and went with the Newark News in 1901. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Edith May Gardiner, of Brooklyn, and two daughters and two sons.

GEORGE ELMER MILES, secretary and treasurer of the Newport News Shipyard and formerly a reporter on the New York Tribune, is dead, after an illness of more than a year.

MRS. EDWARD MOFFATT, formerly Miss Amy Oliver, a graduate of the University of Minnesota and later engaged in newspaper work in Duluth, Spokane, Portland, Ore., and San Francisco, is dead at Santa Cruz, Cal.

A. H. STULBATH, publisher of the Ellenburg (Wash.) Capital, died recently.

SAMUEL D. KIRBY, 37 years old, formerly make-up editor of the Chicago Daily News, died at Marietta, O., following an operation for tumor of the brain.

BURT W. DAY, editor of the Hutchison (Minn.) Leader, is dead at the age of 60. He formerly was associated with his brother, Frank A. Day, editor of the Fairmont (Minn.) Daily Sentinel, in newspaper enterprises.

CHARLES BOYD, employed in the mailing department of the New York Herald, died Wednesday at his home in Rosebank, S. I. He was 55 years old.

The Philippine tobacco crop for 1919 has suffered greatly from the drouth, and as a result the production is expected to be from 40 to 50 per cent smaller than last year.

Queen Helena of Italy is an ardent amateur photographer and possesses a large collection of snapshots taken with her own camera.

A. B. C. Figures Are Wrong

as of TODAY. Our circulation as of April, however, is correctly reported. But the circulation has increased to 2,212 net paid—nearly 1,000 better than in April. The rate is 2½c. per agate line.

Beloit is "the best town of the country" for the national advertiser.

BELOIT NEWS

1,514,850 lines

of advertising appeared in THE PLAIN DEALER during July, a lead of 219,750 lines over the second paper. Advertisers in Cleveland have proven to themselves that the best results are obtained from

The Plain Dealer

Largest Morning Circulation Between New York and Chicago.

LOS ANGELES
EVENING HERALD
CIRCULATION
127,773
DAILY
FIRST IN EVERYTHING
Member A. B. C.

The McCLURE Newspaper Syndicate

supplies continuous daily and weekly services that make and hold home circulation

ALSO

Big Special Features on Timely Topics by Leading Writers

Send for our complete list and particulars of our star features, including Frank H. Simonds, Mary Roberts Rinehart and Sewell Ford.

N373 Fourth Ave., New York

The Rocky Mtn. News
Every Morning
The Denver Times
Evening except Sunday
Two up-to-the-minute Newspapers covering thoroly the representative Homes and the REAL BUYING POWER of Denver and vicinity.
Published in the same plant, but duplicating circulation LESS THAN FOUR per cent
In no city in America is the distinction so sharply drawn between dailies catering to the best and the worst elements in the community. The News and The Times appeal to the Best and are typical of the true spirit of the Great West.
They are the Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and Optimist club papers of Denver.
The News—established 1859—is one of the country's best known dailies. The Times carries more advertising than many of the largest metropolitan papers, both among the nation's leaders in automobile advertising. The News and The Times reach the responsive classes and the wealth of the Rocky Mountain region—a region rich in agriculture, stock raising, oil and other natural resources—where money is more plentiful today than ever before.

The Pittsburg Dispatch

reduces to the minimum all chance in advertising expenditures.

WALLACE G. BROOKE
Brunswick Building, New York
THE FORD-PARKER CO.,
Peoples Gas Building, Chicago
H. C. BOOK
Real Estate Trust Building, Philadelphia

New Orleans States
Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.
Sworn Net Paid Circulation for 6 Months Ending April 1st, 1919
43,701 Daily
We guarantee the largest white home delivered evening circulation in the trade territory of New Orleans.
To reach a large majority of the trade prospects in the local territory the States is the logical and economic medium.
Circulation data sent on request.
The S. C. Beckwith Special Agcy.
Sole Foreign Representatives
New York Chicago St. Louis

You can reach

Albany, Troy and Schenectady with one paper

The Sunday Telegram
Albany, N. Y.
Circulation, 28,000

Digitized by Google

URGES CONTINUATION OF NEWSPRINT QUIZ

N. E. A. Asks Congress to Grant Appropriations to Permit Federal Trade Commission to Bring Its Investigations Up to Date

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 23.—When the 200 odd delegates to the National Editorial Association's annual convention left for their homes at the close of their tour and business sessions in the Pacific Northwest they went fully cognizant of the critical newsprint situation that now faces the industry and determined to do their utmost to solve the problem.

Armed with the latest statistics and clear-cut facts on the newsprint situation as furnished them in the latest editions of EDITOR & PUBLISHER, the newspaper chiefs entered into a deep discussion of the problem at their closing sessions.

Alleged profiteering by paper manufacturers was vigorously flayed.

The resolution in full on the subject adopted by the convention follows:

"Whereas, no good and sufficient reason has been offered by manufacturers and dealers for the recent advance in the price of print paper announced in most paper markets, and nothing to justify the current report that a still greatly increased price will be demanded; and

"Whereas, a hearing will shortly be held to determine what constitutes a fair price for print paper; and

"Whereas, the work of the Federal Trade Commission, which aided materially in 1916, 1917 and 1918 to stop profiteering on the part of paper manufacturers and dealers, has been severely hampered by the failure of Congress to make appropriations sufficient to enable the commission to keep up investigations of the cost of production. Therefore be it

"Resolved, that the association commends the work done by the Federal Trade Commission and urges Congress to grant additional appropriations at once so that the commission may bring its investigation down to date and thus prevent profiteering.

"Be it also resolved, that we urge every newspaper publisher in the United States to eliminate waste in the use of print paper and to use all practicable methods that we have employed to save paper during the war period and other plans that may be found feasible to avoid a repetition of the panic of 1916 and 1917."

Last Call for Pershing Clippings

James Schermerhorn, publisher of the Detroit Times, has sent a circular letter to other newspaper publishers as a "last call" for clippings regarding General Pershing for the big scrap book the Times will present to the general on his return from France.

NEWSPAPER WOMEN GATHERED AT THE PROW OF THE NEW SHIP "EDITOR" JUST BEFORE HER LAUNCHING

MRS. GUY C. HARDY, wife of Congressman Hardy, retiring president of the National Editorial Association, in the center, holding bouquet of roses, surrounded by her aides just before the christening, the 9,600-ton steamship "Editor," named in honor of the newspapermen of the country and launched before the 220 delegates who attended the N. E. A. Convention at Seattle.

The aides shown are: Mrs. J. C. Gillespie, of Le Mars, Iowa; Miss Mareta Black, of Elgin, Ill.; Miss Janet Brimblecom, of Newton, Mass.; Mrs. G. W. Marble, of Fort Scott, Kan.; Mrs. Willard E. Carpenter, of Lincoln, Ill.; Mrs. F. H. Rosebrook, of Dixon, Ill.; Mrs. Charlotte Woodring, of Peru, Ind.; Mrs. Harry Hillman, of Chicago; Mrs. W. O'Dell, of Tarrytown, N. Y.; Mrs. Will Wilke, of Grey Eagle, Minn.; Mrs. H. C. Hotaling, of Mapleton, Minn.; Mrs. Benjamin S. Herbert, of Chicago; Mrs. I. C. Stafford, of Idaho Springs, Col.; Mrs. F. E. Brodie, of Oregon City, and Mrs. G. L. Caswell, Denison, Ia.

FOREST FIRES DESTROY PULPWOOD

Ball and Parry Sound Regions of Canada Reported Swept by Flames

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Forest fires have recently destroyed thousands of cords of pulp wood in Ontario, according to Philip A Payne, of the Herald-Examiner, who has just returned from a vacation spent in the Muskoka Lake region.

For weeks no rain fell in northern Ontario and the forest fires devastated hundreds of acres. Smoke from fires in the Ball and Parry Sound regions was so dense that it enveloped Toronto, which is over 130 miles south, in heavy haze, said Mr. Payne. Tramps and careless tourists are said to be responsible for these fires which were finally checked by heavy rainfalls last week.

Business Papers Change Meeting Date

The Associated Business Papers, Inc., announce through their executive secretary, Jesse H. Neal, that the dates for its annual convention in Chicago have been changed from October to September 18-20. The attendance will be limited to publishers, except at business sessions, one or more of which it is intended shall be of especial interest to advertisers and advertising agents.

The Newark (N. J.) Ledger

is a 7-day Morning Associated Press Newspaper and is the only morning newspaper in industrial centre with a million population.

Morning Edition, 2c.
Sunday Edition, 5c.

Publishers: More "Reasons Why" you, too, should deliver your N. Y. Agency Checking Copies by "S & M Insured Agency Delivery Service."

SOME SERVICE LINERS

New York City
Times-American	Record-American
Journal-World	Globe-Advertiser
Globe-Tribune	Baltimore Sun
Post-Telegram	Indianapolis News
Herald-Staats	Worcester Telegram
Mail-Eve. Sun	Ithaca Journal
Eve. World-Sun	Bridgeport
Wilmington	Post-Telegram
Journal-News	Sioux City, Iowa
Evening	Argus Leader
Philadelphia	Springfield (Mass.)
North American	Union
Boston	Hartford (Conn.)
Herald-Traveler	Times
Post-Transcript	New Haven Reg-ister

[Send for full particulars of S & M Service.]

Cooperative Newspaper Delivery Services of Sawyer-Massey-Handel Inc
460 Fourth Ave. N.Y. 7205-7300 Madison

Perth Amboy, N. J.
Most Rapidly Growing City in East
Thoroughly Covered by Only Daily in Field.

Evening News
Member A. N. P. A., A. B. C., A. P.
Reasonable requests for trade information given prompt attention.
F. R. Northrup, 303 5th Avenue New York City

Summer In New London, Conn.
is the season of social activities and big business that assure success for the advertiser who uses
The New London Telegraph
Advertise your goods at dawn and sell them before dark.
JULIAN D. MORAN, Pres. and Mgr.
Representatives
Payne Burns & Smith, New York—Boston
J. Logan Payne Co. Chicago—Detroit

3 OF A KIND
New England Market
BOSTON AMERICA
Merchandising Service Department
To cover the first effectively you need the other two.
Govt. Statement for Six Months Ending April 1st Shows
301,270

The London Daily Mail offer of £10,000 to the first person to fly the Atlantic was first made in April, 1913.

The North Jersey Shore Resorts are doing more business and accommodating a larger population than ever before in their history.
THE ASBURY PARK PRESS
Evening and THE SHORE PRESS Sunday
Dominate this field. Advertising placed in them reaches homes before representative buyers from all parts of the country.
Member A. B. C. Standard Rate Card.
Frank R. Northrup, Special Representative, 303 Fifth Avenue, New York City.
Association Building, Chicago.
J. Lyle Kinmouth, Publisher, Asbury Park, N. J.

The Dominating Force
in a manufacturing territory famous for its hustle, thrift and prosperity where a million dollars are expended weekly in wages.
The Bridgeport Post Standard-Telegram
Not only dominate this field, but they offer advertisers the lowest rate obtainable in New England. Keep them on your list.
FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVES
L. A. Klein,
Metropolitan Bldg., New York.
John Glass
Peoples' Gas Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The Pittsburg Press Has the LARGEST Daily and Sunday CIRCULATION IN PITTSBURG Member A. B. C.
Foreign Advertising Representatives.
L. A. KLEIN, JOHN GLASS.
Metropolitan Tower, Peoples Gas Bldg.
New York, Chicago

Digitized by Google

SUPPLIES & EQUIPMENT
For Newspaper Making
WANTED AND FOR SALE

N. O. ITEM WILL HAVE 20-STORY BUILDING

Almost Entire Block in Business District Is Being Cleared for Site of Tallest Structure in City as Paper's New Home

NEW ORLEANS, August 25.—Workmen started today clearing a site for the New Orleans Item's new home, demolishing the American Express Company Building preparatory to rearing one of the biggest newspaper plants in the South.

The item plant will cover the greater part of a whole city block between Union and Perdido streets, at St. Charles street, with the editorial rooms and business offices fronting on Union street and the mechanical plant frooting on Perdido street.

This block is in the heart of the downtown business shopping and financial district or New Orleans, within three city blocks of Canal street, and within one block of the Whitney Central Bank, Hibernia Bank, Canal-Louisiana Bank and the St. Charles Hotel.

In the same block are the buildings of the Standard Oil Co. of Louisiana, the United Fruit Co. and the Masonic Temple.

Capacity Is Doubled

The Mechanical plant on the Perdido street side of the theater is to be a Ferro-concrete, fireproof three-story structure, housing two octuple presses and a model stereotyping department, turning out three plates a minute. A battery of seventeen linotypes is to be installed. This doubles the present capacity of Item plant.

On the Union street side the business office will be housed temporarily on the ground floor of the American Express Building. The editorial staff will have quarters on the second floor. On this site the Item will rear a twenty-story office building, the highest in New Orleans. The plant will include a library, rest rooms and shower baths for the employes.

Circulation Grows

Since entering its present quarters at 210 Camp street in 1908, the Item has trebled its circulation. With new issues it now has four city editions and two country editions daily, with three Sunday morning editions, city and country, publishing also Modern Farming, a semi-monthly farm paper, and Merchandising and Advertising, a semi-monthly advertisers' paper.

"The Item's new plant will give New Orleans a newspaper plant better than in many cities of a million population," says James M. Thomson, its publisher.

Arthur G. Newmyer, southern vice-president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, is associate publisher. Marshall Ballard is managing editor, and Clark Salmon, city editor.

French Publisher Accused

PARIS, Aug. 24.—Orders have been issued for an examination of Ernest Judet, former director of L'Eclair. He is accused of having had dealings with the enemy in buying newspapers.

DROPS SUNDAY EDITION

Des Moines News Enlarges Saturday Issue to 16 Pages

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 27.—The News has discontioued the publication of its Sunday paper. For the past several years it has been delivering its daily and Sunday issues to all subscribers, both mail aod carrier. No special rate was made to mail subscribers who did not desire the Sunday issue. The Saturday paper has now been enlarged to take the place of the Sunday paper. Carrier and subscription prices remain the same for the six issues as they were for the seven.

The Saturday paper is now 16 pages, two pages being colored comics, one of which consists of caricatures of local persons and events. It also contains a number of special feature articles. The News is a Scripps-McRae publication. Until the discontinuance of the Sunday issue it was the only paper of the chain which published a Sunday paper. The publishers report an increase in their Saturday sales because of the enlarged edition.

PROVIDENCE NEWS IN NEW HOME

Removal from Old Building Is Accomplished in 24 Hours

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 25.—The Providence Evening News issued its first edition today from its new home. The feat of moving the plant from the old building to the new was accomplished in 24 hours. The News in its new plant can turn out a 36-page newspaper when necessity calls. A new four-deck press was on its good behavior today and the edition was put out without trouble.

Late in the year the News will install a new press which will have no superior, it is claimed, for speed and accuracy in production. The plant as operated today will take care of any rapid growth for some time to come.

"Own Your Home" Is St. Paul Cry

St. Paul business men have been using local newspaper space in an "Own Your Home" campaign, with a local financing corporation making loans to prospective home owners. Five thousand copies of an issue of the Sunday Dispatch-Pioneer Press containing a special page advertisement and explanatory articles on home building and purchasing were distributed among workers by a committee.

New Soldiers' Publication

The first number of The Home Sector, under which name the A. E. F. newspaper, Stars & Stripes, is to be perpetuated, will be issued by the Frederick Publishing Company of New York City, September 17. Practically the entire editorial staff of Stars & Stripes will be reclaimed on the new publication.

England's Victory Loan was brought to the notice of the Army of Occupation in Germany through the Cologne Post.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE

Advertisements under this classification, thirty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Base Ball Player Board For World Series

Best Yet, Inexpensive, Easy to Operate—Shows Every Play—
Batter, Batter runner, etc.
No lights, outdoor or indoor proposition. Used by 11 Eastern Newspapers.

Sent on Approval—Satisfaction Guaranteed, 6 New Boards Available for World's Series. Wire at once, Standard Ball Player Corp., George H. Reynolds, Treas., New Bedford, Mass.

Special Rates given prior to August 15 withdrawn.

For Sale

At sacrifice for immediate acceptance —Sextuple Goss press with color attachment, eight columns, twelve ems, 21½ inch cut; factory rebuilt two years ago; perfect condition. Also semi-automatic pot and pump. This press has been in use on the Bridgeport (Conn.) Post and can be seen standing. Subject to prior sale. Address J. H. B., Box 1677, Boston, Mass.

For Sale

Republican daily newspaper in the best county seat town in Ohio. Consists of New Goss Comet Press, two linotypes and plenty of other equipment. Good location. Rent $35 per month. Free and clear of all indebtedness. Price $13,500. Biggest snap in the State of Ohio. Address Frank H. Wilson, 329 Chamber of Commerce, Columbus, Ohio.

Two Hoe Sextuple Presses

for sale, in excellent condition. Can be bought at reasonable figure. For further particulars write H. D. Bradley, Toledo, Ohio, Toledo, Ohio.

Two Model—One Magazine

in good condition, also seven Model-A Perfection Meditat Feeders. Make on an offer. News and Sentinel, Fort Wayne, Ind.

NEWS BY ELECTRIC SIGN

Will Be Flashed from Tall Building by Syracuse P.S.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Up-to-the-minute news of the world will soon be flashed to the people of Syracuse by the Post-Standard every night through the medium of a huge "talking" electric sign to be erected soon on one of the tallest buildings in the center of the city.

Operators in charge of the sign will be in direct communication with the different news departments of the Post-Standard, and the news will be flashed in letters several feet high.

Will Give Drinking Founts

The Houston Press Club has started a movement to place several drinking fountains on the streets of Houston. Contribution boxes have been placed in various prominent parts of the city. Frank Cerracchio, sculptur, will model the fountains, without charge. John H. Kirby, who was recently appointed state chairman of the Salvation Army campaign, has offered to install one fountain.

Dulcie Ford has started the Stratford (Cal.) Observer, in Kings County.

FOR SALE

Hoe Matrix Rolling Machines in good condition.

Can be shipped at once.
Scott Flat Plate Casting Boxes casts plates 18 x 24 inches. Send for prices.

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY
Plainfield New Jersey

Take It To
POWERS
Open 24 Hours out of 24
The Fastest Engravers on Earth
Powers Photo Engraving Co.
154 Nassau St., Tribune Bldg.
New York City

For Prompt Service
TYPE
Printers' Supplies Machinery
In Stock for Immediate Shipment by Selling Houses conveniently located
"American Type the Best in Any Case"
AMERICAN TYPE FOUNDERS CO.

Boston	Pittsburgh	Kansas City
New York	Cleveland	Denver
Philadelphia	Detroit	Los Angeles
Baltimore	Chicago	San Francisco
Richmond	Cincinnati	Portland
Atlanta	St. Louis	Spokane
Buffalo	Minneapolis	Winnipeg

Printing Plants and Business BOUGHT AND SOLD
Printers' Outfitters
American Typefounders' Products
Printers and Bookbinders Machinery of Every Description
CONNER, FENDLER & CO.
96 Beekman St. New York City

$1,000 FOR NEW DAILY'S NAME

It Is Offered by Newspaper That Starts September 1

PASADENA, Cal., Aug. 27.—F. W. Kellogg, publisher of an evening newspaper that will start publication in Pasadena, September 1, offers $1,000 for the best name for it suggested by any resident of the city. A complete newspaper plant has been installed, with a press capable of printing, folding and counting 24,000 16-page papers an hour.

E. F. Runyon is managing editor and Arthur K. Wyatt business manager.

Digitized by Google

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING COLUMNS

Through the classified columns of EDITOR & PUBLISHER you may find a buyer for any useful mechanical equipment for which you have no present need. A "For Sale" ad at three cents per line may thus turn into cash something which now merely requires storage room—and which would be of real service to somebody else.

SITUATIONS WANTED

Advertisements under this classification, ten cents per line, each insertion. Count six words to the line. For those unemployed, the rate is reduced to two insertions FREE.

Mr. Publisher or Business Manager

Are you satisfied with your present circulation? Do you contemplate a change? Is your opportunity to engage the services of an expert to direct the methods of your circulation department. Over fifteen years as a circulator on morning and evening and Sunday papers east and west. Experienced in every form of circulation development among newsboys, carriers, and city and country routes. Now employed by one of E. D. work and contests of every description. Am seeking permanent connection as circulation director, but would consider proposition for special work in any department. Address A-528, care of Editor and Publisher.

Advertising Manager

Married man, 28 years of age, with twelve years thorough training and unquestioned success on two big dailies, wants an open hear from some publisher regarding a position as advertising manager. Am unusually resourceful, a good salesman and copywriter, have been handling my own ads and get the most out of them. Am employed at present and can furnish strictly first-class references as to character and ability. Address A-851, care of Editor and Publisher.

Advertising Manager and Solicitor

Young man 25 years old, married, 8 years experience, desires position as manager of advertising department with a paper that gets business and new accounts. Position must be permanent and have a good future. Prefer given Western States. Address P. O. Box 276, Chippewa Falls, Wis.

Advertising Manager

Fifteen years' experience, wishes position where entire charge of design and layout advertising. Write compelling copy. Can sell and hold new accounts and build up classified. References. Address A-548, care of Editor and Publisher.

Classified Manager

Desires connection on live newspaper in Middle States. Had training from solicitor up to manager on one of the largest newspapers in the. Also have had years training and understands fully the game of column, results in developing of accounts. Young man and ambitious to make the paper with a future. Highest recommendations. Address A-852, care Editor and Publisher.

Special Engagement

Newspaper business manager will entertain special engagement to organize either business end of a new daily, or reorganization or reorganize and place upon a profitmaking footing a losing proposition. Success end. Over 30 years successful experience. Address A-446, care of Editor and Publisher.

Circulation Manager

That is intuitive and has the "pep." Uses a fine comb to clean the territory. Likes strong competition, and knows how to get and hold the limit substantial list. Practical experience in all branches of circulation work on large and small dailies. Very successful in handling carrier boys and agents. A systematician and organizer. Can stops the leaks and gets results you want. Married. Want permanent position. Have No. 1 references. Can come at once. Write or wire Circulation Manager, Box 34, Shawnee, Okla.

Newspaperman and Editor

Competent reporter who has demonstrated ability as political correspondent and editor, desires overseas duty with Sixth Marines and available for responsible work. Personal record willingly furnished. Address A-460, care of Editor and Publisher.

City Editor

Seeks position city of about 30,000 in Central states. University graduate, married. Nine years' experience. Good personal address and character. Can come at one at right salary. Address A-462, care of Editor and Publisher.

Circulation Manager

Young man with lifetime experience in circulation work temporarily located, desires permanent place. Now employed, discharged from military service. Best of references from former employers. Address A-845, care of Editor and Publisher.

SITUATIONS WANTED

Publisher or General Manager

Sale of paper of which I have been publisher for four years, 6,000 for year, makes me applicant for position as publisher or general manager. I made the profits paid when I took charge in 1915. In that time I more than doubled volume of business and doubled circulation in field where they said it couldn't be done. Want a chance to build another real newspaper. I know circulating, advertising, business management and editorial work. Understand efficient methods of getting the business and handling it most economically. Personally know how to do everything in the plant—and not too proud to do it. Fifteen years' experience dailies and weeklies. Now 37 years old, full of energy, ambition, with plenty of imagination and the lifting and working kind. Work hard. That's why I get lots of work from my employers. Some owner or publisher who wants to hire a different kind of man, and who has an opportunity to offer to an unusual "hired" man, should write me. Am not looking, but if you know a publisher who wants the kind of man here described, tell him about this ad. Write A-853, care of Editor and Publisher.

Experienced Copy Editor

wishes permanent position in New York or Philadelphia; 27 years old, college graduate; can write heads to suit your style; will come on probation. C. J. T., care Editor & Publisher.

Cartoonist

Young man wants position with Western daily; prefers reference—political cartoons and comics. Address A-821, care of Editor and Publisher.

Writer

soon to locate in Los Angeles, seeks newspaper syndicate and trade journal assignments for southern California. Have experience in writing and also correspondence from Europe, Mexico, open in this country, specializing in automotive and mechanicist topics. Address Box 230, Hotel Stevenson, Detroit, Mich.

Pressman or Stereotyper

Wanted—By a young man, position as pressman or stereotyper. Will work cheap. Have had experience. Am 21 years old, with 23 month's overseas service on the battle fields of France. Worked on 16-page Goss and Duplex Flat Bed. Will go to any state. Address Pressman E. L. S., care of Editor and Publisher.

Editorial Position

with Farm paper with right ideals. Can aid in building up paper. Formerly editor and owner of the Orchard Farm Papers. Farm and business experience. Will give best of service desired for details of position and opportunity. Address A-840, care of Editor and Publisher.

Cartoonist

Cartoonist, young man experienced on comics and cartoons, desires employment. Samples furnished upon request. Address A-820, care of Editor and Publisher.

Thoroughly Trained

newspaperman. Twelve years reportorial and editorial wishes desk position anywhere. Prefer place where hard work and ability will count. Am in the prime of life. Best possible reason for this letter. Address Advertiser 803, Garfield Street, Port Huron, Michigan.

Editor

Editor, fully competent to take charge of and build up editorial department of daily; now employed, seeks change. College man, eleven years' experience. Without backward step. Not a cheap man but a good one. Served in all departments. Address A-838, care of Editor and Publisher.

HELP WANTED

Advertisements under this classification twenty-five cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Correspondents

At state capitols and principal cities for leading veterans newspaper. Good space rates. Also correspondents and members vital organizations preferred. Fine side line for right men. Correspondence regarding qualifications. News Editor, The Stars and Stripes, Metropolitan Bldg., 1116 F St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

Advertisements under this classification, forty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Opportunity

If you have $15,000 or more in cash and some financial backing coupled with newspaper horse sense I can deliver to you a profitable bond and stock control in a Southern newspaper located in a growing city of 30,000 where a real newspaper is needed. Plant modern and well equipped. Recently organized and new rate card made effective. Address A-847, care of Editor and Publisher.

Col. Smith's Death Marks Passing of Celebrity

Queen Victoria Pronounced Him Handsomest Man Ever Presented in Her Court

The death of Colonel Nicholas Smith, son-in-law of Horace Greeley and father of the late Nixola Greeley Smith-Ford, has brought forth many stories of his wonderful personality and his own experiences in newspaper work in the Middle West.

Although born in Shelby county, Kentucky, Colonel Smith saw the great light of emancipation and he went to the front in his State to cut the bonds of his slaves.

In all of his six feet three inches of height he radiated personality. Thatched with a veritable mane of hair which rivalled the shimmering whiteness of driven snow, he was the center of attention wherever he went. People turned and stared at his wonderful physique and Apollo-like profile as he passed.

Having graduated from Dartmouth College and received his LL.D. at Harvard in the class of '59, Colonel Smith started the practice of law in the office of Rufus Choate. When the clouds of war obscured the sun in the days of '61, Colonel, then just plain Attorney Smith, cast his lot with the Union and was made a Colonel of the Nineteenth Infantry. He was soon made Colonel on the staff of General Fremont. In his youth he was the most intimate friend of Senator Jim" Lane, first United States Senator from Kansas.

When he bought the Lawrence (Kan.) Republican, he devoted that newspaper almost exclusively to the praising of his friend, "Jim" Lane.

Hated Social Snobs

The almost childish simplicity of his wonderful nature was shown in his utter hatred for everything with a crimp of braggadocio or affectation, and especially strong was his aversion to snobbish social affairs

So ironic was his wit in handling any situation that he devoted an entire column in the Republican one day to the wedding of his negro cook. Under the heading of "Society News" he ran the story of the function in minute detail, described the beautiful bride, what she wore, who her parents were and then went into a long description of the "gowns" worn by the maid of honor, the bridesmaids and then the guests.

The social set of Lawrence gasped. The Colonel smiled, and that was the first and last "Society Column" that ever appeared in his paper.

Married Greeley's Daughter

He married his first wife, who was Miss Lucinda Pope, in the late sixties. She was a noted Southern beauty and died shortly after their marriage. In 1875 he married Miss Ida Greeley, eldest daughter of Horace Greeley. It was during their honeymoon abroad that he was acclaimed the handsomest man who had ever been presented at the Court of St. James. The Colonel, clad in the regulation court costume, made a stunning picture as he bowed in true courtlike manner before Queen Victoria. The Queen glanced at the man before her and held out her hand.

"He is the handsomest man ever presented in my court!" exclaimed Her Majesty. She was not alone in her opinion, for he soon gained the reputation of being the handsomest man in America. His wife died seven years after their marriage. One daughter was the late Nixola Greeley Smith-Ford, the noted writer, who died March 9, 1919.

Famed as Lecturer

Colonel Smith was famed not alone for his masculine beauty but for his witty and srrious lectures His favorite talks were on the "Labor Question," "Tramps" and the "Inconvenience of Being Named Smith."

The Colonel was a close friend of Tom Platt, and was mainly through his influence appointed consul to Three Rivers, Canada, and later was sent in the same capacity to Liege, Belgium. He was appointed Minister to Greece by President Johnson, but the appointment was never confirmed.

He was a versatile and prolific writer on many subjects. During the last ten years he had been practically in retirement.

TEACHER FILES LIBEL SUITS

Asks $50,000 Each from Portland Oregonian and Astoria Morning Astorian

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 27.—Merrill F. Hanville, formerly principal of an Astoria school, has filed a libel suit asking $50,000 damages from the Oregonian. The suit is based on an Astoria dispatch in the Oregonian which the teacher charges characterized him as generally undesirable. A similar suit and for a like amount has been filed by Hanville at Astoria against the Morning Astorian.

Hanville was recently fined in Astoria for alleged assault on the superintendent of schools of that city.

H. C. Hamilton, for several years sporting editor of the United Press, has resigned to become a member of the staff of the sporting department of the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Democratic weekly of a far West county seat paid owner $3,675.80 in year ending April 30, 1919, for his personal effort and income on the investment. Can be bought for $8,500; $5,500 cash necessary.

Proposition S. Y.

Charles M. Palmer
Newspaper Properties
225 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

CONSOLIDATION

is the recognized route to large returns in nearly every line of commercial industry.

We believe that publishing properties offer one of the most attractive of all the fields for merger and consolidation.

We have a record of results in this difficult work that you should investigate.

HARWELL & CANNON
Newspaper and Magazine Properties
Times Building New York

ADVERTISING ONE'S OWN PAPER PAYS

If You Fail to Proclaim Its Good Points, Don't Expect Readers to Do This, David DaHaven Tells North Dakota Publishers

"If you are a newspaper publisher and fail to boost your own paper by advertising its good points, you can expect very little boosting from the community," said David DeHaven, of Fargo, N. D., resident manager of the Western Newspaper Union, in a talk before the North Dakota Press Association at Mandan, N. D.

"The publisher of a newspaper has two things to sell—reading matter and advertising space, and of these two, the first is by far of the greater importance. On your ability to interest your readers, depends your subscription list, and on your subscription list, the amount of advertising space that you will sell. You well realize the importance of circulation when it comes to approaching a prospective advertiser. It is for this reason that competent authorities such for instance as Stanley Clague, managing director of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, and Jason Rogers, publisher of the New York Globe, pronounce advertising a newspaper by-product.

"As reading matter, you have for sale to the prospective subscriber your local news items, your country correspondence, your editorials, your state and general news, serial stories and other forms of fiction, and general reading matter of an informational and entertaining character, including illustrations, comics, etc.

Proclaiming Enterprise

"If you have covered fifty-seven news events in this week's issue, tell that to the public instead of expecting that they are going to count them. If this is more news events than were covered by any other paper that comes into competition with your own, tell the public that in your next edition, but without necessarily mentioning the names of the papers. Isn't the fact that you have had enterprise enough to put one over on your competitor worth advertising?

"If you have some important story, call the public's attention to it, and especially if you should have one that other papers in your locality fail to have. Don't leave it to your readers to find it out themselves.

"Tell the public how many correspondents you have throughout the county and surrounding counties, how many news items these correspondents have contributed in a week, in a month, etc. If you are setting your paper in eight point, with one point leads, you are giving the readers 1,000 words in every twenty inches, and in the amount equivalent to the contents of a fair-sized book in every 100 columns. The average six-column, eight-page paper published in North Dakota, will give its readers the equivalent of one book each month, but do the readers ever think of that—did you ever think of it, and isn't it worth telling at some time through your columns?

Serial Stories

"If you are printing serial stories, and are running two or three, or possibly more of them in a year, did it ever occur to you that in this one feature alone you are giving your readers more than the value of the subscription price? If the reader goes to a book shop to buy one of these stories, he pays about $1.50 for it. If you are running, say, three in one year, they represent a reading value of $4.50. Why not mention it in your paper?

"Talk about your different department and let the fellows out in the country know something about what you are doing in those departments. Say something about the features that are prepared by individuals whose names appear in connection with such departments and tell something about these individuals. Tell your readers who they are and just why they are capable of preparing the material for your paper.

"In the same way, talk about the thoroughness with which you cover your country and your community, the selling power such a circulation as yours represents, the various lines of merchandise the people of these communities are buying, how these very folks can be reached through your columns by means of advertising."

LETTERS OF AN EDITOR TO HIS SON

About six months ago a young newspaperman undertook the management of a somewhat slow going country town daily. His father, an experienced editor, has written him many letters of practical advice. EDITOR & PUBLISHER has secured extracts from these actual letters for publication in several chapters, the fourth of which follows:

TO speak of mixing a sense of humor with a sense of dignity suggests combining oil and water, but nevertheless I am going to advise something of that kind in the conduct of your newspaper.

By dignity I mean that feeling of responsibility that the editor must possess as to his paper, his community and himself. Time was, not so long ago, when the editor was in the habit of referring to himself in slighting terms, speaking of his poverty, his difficulties and his unhappy lot in general. He did not mean all he said, his purpose being perhaps to be humorous, and yet he was in a way the victim of self-pity. You have no double board of small editors who made pathetic appeals to subscribers to pay up, or to advertisers for business, or to the people to support the paper lest it fade away. But the paper men do not do much of that any more, even to be funny, for they have been shown that a community will not long support a paper from a sense of pity or a sense of duty. The paper must show itself worthy of support, or it had better fade away.

Perhaps you get something of the idea of maintaining dignity, but here is another example. Some publishers have been known to beg for advertisements, offering space for almost nothing, with never a word to prove that the advertiser would get full value for his money. If you have not already, you probably will encounter the merchant who acts as though he was doing you a favor to take space, doling copy out as though it was alms. You will be far better off without business given in that spirit, as you will be weakening yourself, unless of course you are intending to prove to the advertiser that he is wrong, that his advertisement will bring returns. The best way to deal with that man is with dignity, and offensively, but with the intention of demonstrating to him that you are not a mendicant. He would scarcely beg you to buy a suit of clothes for the reason that the landlord was threatening him, and moreover, you would not buy.

Making a Paper Good-Natured

Now what about the sense of humor? Someone has said that the cardinal sin of journalism is dullness, and he was about right, although no one would advise that the newspaper should be a comic. Your readers have enough dull care without your adding to it, so make a point to give them the necessary touch of humor and gayety when these qualities may be found in the news and the editorial. This humor is not to be dragged in by the heels of course, must not be unnatural or mere tempered, but just kindly, happy and good natured. Steer clear of mere rediculte and sarcasm, which is not humor at all. I am not referring to the so-called funny department, but to the importance of having the whole paper touched with the saving grace of brightness and lightness of touch, without, remember, trying to force humor where it is not and where it should not be. Just keep your paper and yourself human.

But—here is always a but—hit hard when hitting is necessary, for the editor is something more than a good natured fool.

Now please remember that the editor can keep his dignity without bending backwards and without keeping his head in the clouds all the time. He should take himself and his business seriously enough to convince you that he is deadly earnest, that he respects himself and his vocation, and means to succeed. And at the same time he can get out a better paper when he has a sense of humor, and he can get out of many an unpleasant situation if he can find some humor in it. Hence dignity find some humor in it. Hence, he is able to combine dignity with humor and make the combination effective.

(To be continued)

Food Medium of New Jersey

Trenton Times

A. B. C.

2c—12c Per Week

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

20 Fifth Avenue NEW YORK — Lytton Building CHICAGO

Canadian Press Clippings

The problem of covering the Canadian field is answered by obtaining the service of

The Dominion Press Clipping Agency

which gives the clippings on all matters of interest to you, printed in over 90 per cent. of the newspapers and publications of CANADA.

We cover every foot of Canada and Newfoundland at our head office,

76-76 Church St., Toronto, Can.

Price of service, regular press clipping rates—special rates and discounts to Trade and Newspapers.

The amalgamation of the two leading progressive Jewish newspapers of New York

THE DAY

and

THE WARHEIT

brings into being the most powerful advertising medium in the Jewish field.

The New

דער טאג

The National Jewish Daily

The New York Times INDEX

Summarizes 150,000 current events a year, published in The New York Times.

¶ These are indexed alphabetically, giving the date of publication.

¶ A master key and index to all newspapers.

ISSUED QUARTERLY; BOUND IN CLOTH.

Subscription Price $8.00 per year

The New York Times

Times Square — New York

R. J. Bidwell Co

Pacific Coast Representative

Daily Newspapers of "Advertising Value"

Rates, Circulation, Special Data, Promptly Upon Request

PACIFIC COAST OFFICES

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

SAN FRANCISCO SEATTLE

741 Market St. 1382 L. C. Smith Bldg.

BUFFALO NEWS

EDWARD H. BUTLER

Editor and Publisher

"The only Buffalo newspaper that censors its advertising columns. Many of our advertisers use our columns exclusively. The above is one of the many reasons why."

MEMBER A. B. C.

Foreign Advertising Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

220 Fifth Avenue NEW YORK — Lytton Building CHICAGO

We can increase your business—you want it increased.

You have thought of press clippings yourself. But let us tell you how press clipping can be made a business-builder for you.

BURRELLE

145 Lafayette St., N. Y. City

Established a Quarter of a Century

Hemstreet's PRESS CLIPPINGS

Tenth Avenue at 45th Street New York

Digitized by Google

"Down East"—That's Maine!!

SELECT LIST of NEW ENGLAND NEWSPAPERS

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
MASSACHUSETTS—Population, 2,605,522
Boston Advertiser and American ....(S)	365,660	.35	.35
Boston American ....(E)	301,270	.40	.40
Boston Globe ....(ME)	293,781	.30	.30
Boston Globe ....(S)	329,781	.35	.35
Boston Post ....(M)	459,603	.45	.45
Boston Post ....(S)	367,074	.35	.35
Boston Record ....(E)	50,650	.15	.15
Boston Transcript ....(E)	29,820	.20	.20
Fall River Herald ....(E)	9,419	.025	.025
Fitchburg Daily News..(E)	5,605	.025	.025
Fitchburg Sentinel ....(E)	6,912	.025	.01785
*Haverhill Gazette ....(E)	13,819	.035	.025
Lynn Item ....(E)	15,121	.05	.0333
Lynn Telegram-News ....(E&S)	15,000	.04	.04
Lowell Courier-Citizen ....(ME)	16,780	.035	.035
New Bedford Standard-Mercury ....(ME)	26,674	.05	.05
Salem News ....(E)	18,355	.055	.04
MAINE—Population, 762,787.
Portland Express ....(E)	25,263	.06	.045
Portland Telegram ....(S)	21,846	.045	.035
RHODE ISLAND—Population, 591,215
Pawtucket Times ....(E)	23,752	.06	.04
Providence Bulletin....(E)	55,300	.12	.12
Providence Journal ..(M&S)	35,782	.075*10	.075*10
Providence Tribune ..(E)	28,156	.07	.07
Westerly Sun ....(E)	4,223	.02	.015
Woonsocket Call-Reporter ....(E)	11,888	.04	.03
VERMONT—Population, 361,205
Barre Times ....(E)	6,765	.0214	.0143
Burlington Daily News(E)	8,200	.02	.02
Burlington Free Press ....(M)	10,489	.025	.025
CONNECTICUT—Population, 1,114,756
Bridgeport Post-Standard-Telegram ....(M&E)	45,463	.095	.09
Bridgeport Post ....(S)	13,205	.045	.04
Hartford Courant ..(MS)	24,745	.06	.05
Hartford Times ....(E)	36,055	.07	.07
New Haven Journal-Courier ....(M)	15,1012	.04	.035*
New Haven Register.(E)	26,959	.065	.055
New London Day....(E)	11,636	.03	.025
New London Telegraph ....(M)	4,830	.0128	.0128
Waterbury Republican ....(MS)	10,762	.035*	.025

*Rate on 3,500 lines.

Government Statements, April 1st, 1919.

‡A. B. C. April 1st, 1919.

Maine, with its "rock-bound coast," giant "woods," and habit of "going up to Boston."

All New England is proud of Maine, and Maine is proud of all New England! It is the choice territory for New England's wholesale endeavor, where good things never go a-begging, and where they produce a-many good things for themselves and the balance of the country.

And you can say of national business as is said of elections, "as goes Maine, so goes the COUNTRY."

You have a pick of first class daily papers to start with in Maine advertising. Why not BEGIN in Maine NOW! The all-year-round population is on the spot and thousands of vacationsists, at the shore, by the beaches, and tramping the big woods. Send along your salesmen, and get your advertising started in time.

For Maine Leads The Autumn Buying

Digitized by Google

INTENSIFICATION
DOMINATION and
CONCENTRATION

are three factors of greatest importance in any large national advertising campaign. All three factors can be achieved most positively, most effectively and most economically through newspaper advertising.

Even in the case of small and limited campaigns the advertisers can build more solidly and more positively by applying these basic principles to smaller areas, city by city, and section by section through newspaper advertising.

Take New York City for Example

The New York Globe sells 180,000 copies a day, 94% within Greater New York and ten miles around it, which is used by general advertisers at less than the one-time rate of..... 50c. per line

In the whole State of New York the most largely circulated general medium sells only 200,000 copies, probably slightly over one-half of this in The Globe's territory, for which the advertiser must pay for the whole 2,000,000 circulation all over the country..... $10.00 per line

Member A. B. C.

THE NEW YORK GLOBE

JASON ROGERS, Publisher

180,000 A DAY

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1919

Entered as second-class matter May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Weekly: $3.00 a Year; 10c. Per Copy. NEW YORK, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1919 Vol. 52, No. 14

Facts About Fiction

Newspapers know the value of fiction, particularly in making a well balanced Sunday paper. But newspapers habitually run second rate or second hand fiction. They have allowed magazines to corner first run stories by first rate authors.

The Chicago Tribune is undertaking to change this situation. We are purchasing fifty-two of the finest new short stories obtainable from the foremost writers of English. We are paying from $350.00 to $2,500.00 each. We are having these stories suitably illustrated by artists of distinction.

One of these "bell-ringers" will appear each Sunday for a year in The Chicago Sunday Tribune, beginning September 21st.

The first thirteen writers scheduled are: Will Payne, Holworthy Hall, Vingie B. Roe, Frederick Orin Bartlett, Richard Washburn Child, Elizabeth Jordan, Jeannette Lee, Mary Synon, Bruno Lessing, Sax Rohmer, Dana Gatlin, Clarence Budington Kelland, E. Phillips Oppenheim. Other writers of even higher reputation than those named will be represented in later stories of the series.

For rates on this remarkable series of short stories, wire:

The Syndicate Department

The Chicago Tribune

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Digitized by Google

PENNSYLVANIA

Pennsylvania Daily newspapers produce profits for Pennsylvania retail merchants who use them regularly.

The

Pennsylvania Retail Merchants cooperate with National Advertisers through Pennsylvania daily newspapers' advertising columns.

Eternal Triangle

Pennsylvania people, reading daily newspapers published in Pennsylvania keep posted on buying products of all kinds from day to day.

Place your proposition before Pennsylvania people through the columns of the daily newspapers that get into their homes every day.

Tell them, not only of your product, and how good it is, but tell them of the merchant they know in their town who can supply them with the goods you want them to have.

Localize your advertising throughout Pennsylvania and get results beyond anything you can get through the expenditure of anywhere near an equal amount of money in any other kind of advertising.

Cooperate with those whom you want to cooperate with you.

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Allentown Call (M)	22,175	.03	.03
*Altoona Mirror (E)	23,676	.04	.04
Altoona Times (M)	14,940	.025	.025
Bethlehem Globe (E)	6,766	.025	.025
*Chester Times & Republican (M & E)	14,177	.04	.03
Connellsville Courier (E)	6,888	.015	.025
*Easton Express (E)	11,096	.02	.02
Easton Free Press (E)	15,455	.0285	.0285
Erie Herald (E)	8,632	.02	.02
Erie Herald (S)	8,491	.02	.02
Harrisburg Telegraph (E)	28,910	.045	.045
Johnstown Democrat (M)	9,841	.03	.025
Johnstown Leader (E)	8,039	.015	.015
Lancaster Intelligencer & News-Journal (M & E)	22,018	.05	.05
Lebanon Daily News	8,349	.0179	.0179
New Castle News (E)	13,411	.025	.025
Oil City Derrick (M)	6,135	.023	.018
Philadelphia Record (M)	123,277	.25	.25
Philadelphia Record (S)	133,680	.25	.25
Pittsburgh Dispatch (M)	54,810	.12	.08
Pittsburgh Dispatch (S)		.19	.14
Pottsville Republican (E)	10,797	.04	.03
Scranton Republican (M)	27,130	.08	.07
Scranton Times (E)	36,861	.08	.07
West Chester Local News (E)	11,926	.03	.03
Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader (E)	19,376	.05	.035
*Williamsport Sun (E)	16,110	.05	.035
York Gazette (M)	15,026	.03	.03
Total	678,802	1.6323	1.4418

Government statement April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. statement April 1st, 1919.

Digitized by Google

EVERETT TRUE

by Condo

I included

EVERY DAY WITH

NEA

write or wire

The NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSOCIATION

-A SERVICE NOT A SYNDICATE-

CLEVELAND, OHIO.

Digitized by Google

Philadelphia

Edward James Cattell, Chief Statistician of the City of Philadelphia, reports that within the city limits there are:

16,000 manufacturing places
48,000 wholesale and retail stores
392,000 dwellings
700,000 male workers
350,000 female workers

Do you realize the attractiveness and possibilities of such a compact market for large and quick sales of your commodity?

Are its manufacturing places using your supplies?

Are its stores distributing your goods?

Are its dwellings being equipped with your wares?

Are its workers and their families eating Food; wearing Clothes or Shoes, or Hats made by you?

Dominate Philadelphia

Create maximum impression at one cost by concentrating in the newspaper "nearly everybody" reads—

The Bulletin

Net Paid Average for August 448,264 Copies a Day

No prize, premium, coupon or other artificial methods of stimulating circulation have ever been used by "The Bulletin."

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Thursday—forms closing at two P. M. on the Wednesday preceding the date of publication—by The Editor & Publisher Co., Suite 1117, New York World Building, 63 Park Row, New York City. Private Branch Telephone Exchange, Beekman 4330. James Wright Brown, President; Fenton Dowling, Secretary.

Vol. 52 NEW YORK, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1919 No. 14

A VANDERBILT TAKES UP NEWSPAPER WORK AS WORLD'S GREATEST AGENCY FOR GOOD

Cornelius Jr., an Only Son Who Served in France as Buck Private, Becomes a Cub Reporter on the New York Herald—Wants to Help in Movement for Betterment of All People—Aspires to Editorship or Ownership

By Ben Mellon.

"HELLO, Herald city room?"

"Yes."

"Can I speak to Mr. Vanderbilt?"

"Vanderbilt wanted on the phone," I heard the man at the other end of the line call. There was a pause, jumbled conversation that I could not understand and then over the wire clean cut and matter of fact came:

"Sorry, but this is Vanderbilt's day off—will anybody else do?"

A fine start in the quest for an interview with the scion of one of the wealthiest families in America. Jarring too, to learn that a Vanderbilt now has a regular day off and have a man ask you in the same sentence, merely as an afterthought, if anybody else would do.

Works on Holidays

That was on Saturday. On Monday, which was also a holiday, things were different. Mr. Vanderbilt was in.

"No," he could not see me—not right away, at least—for he had "a bunch of rewrite and a story to get out"—but if I would meet him somewhere away from the office, in a quiet spot, he would be glad to talk over his "job" and why he had gone to work as a newspaper man.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., son of Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt, heir by family conditions to a career among the butterflies of Newport and probably a transportation kingdom, but by choice a cub reporter on the New York Herald, is a clear-eyed, serious minded, every-day sort of young American who has decided what he wants to do and is doing it. He is frank but backward.

Wants to Do Something Worth While

He wants to do something worth while, hates the spotlight, and realizes the handicap he is under as a worker because he is a member of THE Vanderbilt family. With it all he still carries with him the feeling, unconsciously probably, that he is among the gazed upon instead of being one of the gazers. I don't mean that he has the appearance of being conceited but he does have a lot of self-assurance as to his ability to attain the things that he wants to do—which, I think we both agree, is going to be tempered down when he "pulls" his first big running story assignment—for instance, a big murder case.

First of all Vanderbilt realizes that the world is now in the early stages of reformation and that there is going to be a new shake from the bottle of fake for all people; he wants to play his part in the big game; his present desire is to be a good newspaper reporter; his hope that newspapermen will accept him, not as a Vanderbilt but as one of them. He is pretty strong on the subjects of "general betterment" and "for the good of all." That is why Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., says he is in the newspaper business—in for keeps—and he tilts his head as though he meant it. Monday night he talked with all the pride that a cub reporter should display, for that morning he had, he said, and offered to show them, six stories in the New York Herald.

It should be remembered that while Vanderbilt the reporter is young in years assignments into the out of way places of a big city are not going to teach him a lot that he does not know. He went through the world war as a buck private with the 27th Division. He served as a dispatch bearer. He knows something about mud, filth, hate, dirt, real army chow and death. He was sent home from France after he had been gassed.

"How did you go about picking the paper that you wanted to start to work on, and how did you go about getting a job?" I asked him, fully expecting to hear a story of "father's lawyer arranged that." My supposition was a fluke.

"I decided some years ago that I cared more about writing, more about doing things that would do great good than I did about engineering, which my family had decided upon for me," he replied. "This desire increased after I got into the army—when I got to know a lot more fellows, some of them newspapermen. When the affairs of the world were hanging in the balance and our fellows, and the fellows of all other countries in our cause were dying to win, it seemed to me that the newspapers and the newspapermen were playing the biggest part in the game.

"I don't want to get by on name or because of my family but on my own. When I went into the army some people wanted me to go into my father's regiment but I know what that would mean—you understand, don't do that because his father is colonel and all that bunk—so I joined the 27th and it was the greatest division in the war as far as I can see.

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, JR.

Hunting a Job

"When I was settled back here at home and decided that I wanted to enter newspaper work," he continued, "I decided that working for a paper where my family had any influence either financial, social or through family connections would be a lot like being a buck private in your own father's regiment so I looked over the field pretty carefully and as far as I could learn we had no pull on the Herald. I was pretty green on how to go about getting a job, so, I explained to a friend of mine who has a friend that is a reporter on the Herald and he introduced us.

"I explained to him that I would like to get a job as a reporter on the Herald. He said that he believed that there was a couple of openings over there. He advised me to make written application to J. K. Ohl and promised that he would in the meantime say something for me at headquarters. I received an invitation to call. I did. I like it—like it better every day."

Out to Show His Family

To say that the Vanderbilt family is not pleased with young Vanderbilt's choice of a life occupation—as he avers newspaper work is—puts it mildly. He is the only son and was to have followed in the footsteps of his father and this fall was to have entered Sheffield School at Yale University to prepare himself for a career as an engineer.

In view of his determination to enter newspaper work he must for the present live on his salary. His allowance has been cut off until he can demonstrate to his family that he is better suited for the work he has de-

(Continued on page 40)

'ATROCIOUS TASTE' IN AMERICAN ADS POINTED OUT BY ENGLISH EXPERT

Why Should Writers Here "Play Up" At All Times and Never "In Low Key?", Demands Charles Wiles of Harrod's, Ltd., London, On Leaving U. S.

A GREAT deal of the advertising that appears in American newspapers is in "atrocious taste," from an English viewpoint, according to Charles Wiles, advertising manager of London's great store, Harrod's, Ltd., who has just sailed for home after touring this country.

While admitting that readers accustomed to sensational headlines in the news columns of newspapers might demand something similar in advertising, he did not see, he said, why it was necessary for American advertising writers "to play up" at all times, and never "in a low key."

English Women Wouldn't Read Our Ads

"Even if your ads were done into English, we couldn't get English women to read them," he said.

"We must condense everything, not only because of the news print shortage, which is still felt in England, but also because the patience of our people is limited.

"I cannot conceive what a happy day it would be if we could induce our women to read solid pages of bargains as your American women delight to do.

"During the war Harrod's was limited to less than two columns of advertising daily by the London Daily Mail. For this display the firm paid about $110,000 annually.

"The advertising manager of the Mail would not allow us to use type larger than 30-point. What would he have said if we had asked for 240-point type, such as you use here?"

Slang Is Mystifying

"Mystifying slang," "surprising familiarity in addressing advertisements to the buying public," "dazzling electrical displays," and "screaming billboards" were other Americanisms in advertising which Mr. Wiles was sure would never do in England.

"One of the electric advertising 'sky' signs on Broadway, New York, is an artistic outrage, a wicked collision of ideas," he said, suggesting that a maximum size for such signs should be established by law, with a minimum of space that could be left between signs.

"Billboard advertising is overdone and its purpose is defeated by such lavish use as you make of it."

Explaining that he had been sent to the United States to study mercantile and advertising methods here at first hand and to help promote friendly relations between the business men of the two countries, Mr. Wiles said that American business men would be warmly welcomed in England, but that their "slambang" methods would not "take" and they would find it difficult to make their advertising understood if they used American slang in them.

He expressed the opinion that even Niagara Falls had been "over-advertised."

Amused by Store "Service"

Discussing American merchandising methods, he said he had been amazed at what was termed "service" in American department stores. He referred to elaborate rest rooms, manicure parlors, restaurants, dental rooms, day nurseries, drinking fountains, and other conveniences unknown to establishments of like grade in England.

Before becoming advertising manager at Harrod's, Mr. Wiles was a professor of English at Oxford.

General Pershing Addresses French Journalists

They Gathered at Brest to Bid American Leader Farewell Before He Sailed

BREST, Sept. 2.—General Pershing, at a meeting with representatives of the French press yesterday, bade farewell to the journalists. The American Commander in Chief made this statement:

"More than two years ago I arrived in Paris with a small group of officers and men, as the advance guard of our army. Since that day a vast host of Americans have come to France, lived among her people, and returned to their homes.

"If it is possible for different nations to understand each other, then we feel that we carry back with us an appreciation of France and its people, its art, and its culture. Our soldiers found their relaxation in Paris, along the rivers of the Pyrenees, and in the mountains. They have shared with the wonderful peasantry of France their joys and sorrows; they have fought, suffered and died beside the poilus, and rejoiced with them in the final victory. Such a mingling of peoples in a common cause is unprecedented in the history of the world. In taking our departure we have one regret—that the people who have formerly known us only as guests and visitors are without knowledge of the home life of the Americans.

"None of us will ever forget that period of the war when the American forces were assembled and trained for battle under the protection of the armies of France and England, holding the enemy at bay. Nor will we ever forget that moment of the struggle when we found our opportunity to join with the world in the second battle of the Marne.

"All this is now past, but it is upon the past that the foundation of our future relations must rest. In saying goodbye to France—which we have come to love so well—I feel assured that as time goes on we shall regard those days of comradeship and struggle more and more as an everlasting bond between our peoples."

NEW AD HEAD FOR CADILLAC

J. A. Cleary of Philadelphia Takes Charge of Department

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2—John A. Cleary, formerly of Philadelphia, has been appointed advertising manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Company, Detroit. This promotion comes as a recognition of Mr. Cleary's work as sales promotion manager for the Automobile Sales Corporation, Cadillac distributors in Philadelphia, and of his wartime service in charge of the factory advertising department last year.

Beginning his business career as a reporter for the Public Ledger, Mr. Cleary later joined the Inquirer staff as automobile and motor boat editor. He then became manager of the automobile departments of the Press and the Public Ledger, successively. He became associated with Cadillac interests in Philadelphia a little more than two years ago. Mr. Cleary was one of the Philadelphia pioneers in aeronautics.

Chicago Tribune Augments Eastern Ad Staff

New York Office Is Moved to Ziegler Building, at 43rd Street and Fifth Avenue—Hollis in Charge

The Chicago Tribune's eastern office has removed from 331 Fifth avenue to the Ziegler Building, 512 Fifth avenue, on the corner of 43rd street. Enlarged quarters have been secured for the growing Tribune ad staff, recently supplemented by new members from the home office.

Harold B. Sherwood, formerly manager of amusement advertising in the Chicago office, is also a newcomer to the New York office, returning to the Tribune after a year and a half in the Navy as lieutenant, junior grade. Mr. Blend will take charge of all eastern accounts south and east of New York State.

The advertising force of the Illustrated Daily News, the Tribune's new pictorial newspaper in New York City, will also be handled from the Tribune office in the Ziegler Building. Thomas J. Cochrane, formerly of the Tribune's local display staff, has been transferred to the News and is in charge of all New York City business.

Roy C. Hollis, eastern representative of the Chicago Tribune, is also the advertising representative of the Illustrated Daily News.

MAINE EDITOR RESIGNS

Gilbert R. Chadbourne Leaves Kennebec Journal After Nine Years' Service

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 3.—Gilbert R. Chadbourne, who for the past nine years has been editor of the Kennebec Journal, has tendered his resignation and severed his connection with the paper. He is succeeded as editor by Hamlin. Before coming to Augusta, Mr. Chadbourne was for several years telegraph editor of the Lewiston Journal, residing at Auburn.

Elwyn L. Chadbourne, son of Gilbert R. Chadbourne, has been forced to give up newspaper work on the Kennebec Journal on account of his health. He was in service with the First Maine (Milliken) heavy artillery.

Lovett Goes to Detroit

DETROIT, Sept. 3—John L. Lovett, who formerly was a member of the Chicago Tribune news staff and later assistant to John M. Glenn of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, has become secretary of the Michigan Manufacturers' Association with headquarters at Detroit.

AD AGENTS OPPOSE BUSINESS REGULATION

Fear Licensing Plan of Government May Be Extended Even to Press and Advertising — Western Association Adopts Strong Resolution

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—At a meeting of the Western Council of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, held here today, the following resolution was unanimously adopted.

"Resolved that the continued happiness and prosperity of the American people so utterly depend upon the success and prosperity of American business, that public opinion should be aroused in opposition to legislation now being urged in Congress, regulating the conduct of business by license, this opposition being based on these grounds:

"(1) That the licensing principle cannot be introduced except in such general terms that it could soon be interpreted to include all lines of business, even the press and advertising;

"(2) That such power over business and the freedom of the press is too vast and dangerous to trust in the hands of any set of persons, and is contrary to American institutions;

"(3) That increased production is the sure, sane and economical way to reduce costs of goods of every nature;

"(4) That increased production can only come from free and untrammeled competition between individual manufacturers and dealers, seeking in every legitimate way to develop new and extend markets;

"(5) That any legislation, state or national, that restricts or restrict competition or reduce production, through licensing or otherwise, is adverse to the common good."

INVITES LATIN-AMERICANS

Chicago Would Be Host at Proposed Visit of Editors

The city of Chicago, through Mayor Thompson, has extended an invitation to the editors from Latin-American republics is a visit to South Bend, Ind., where they will see Notre Dame University and other institutions of that city.

Samuel Strauss Recovering

Samuel Strauss, formerly treasurer of the New York Times Company, is improving from an operation which he underwent three weeks ago for intestinal trouble. Although Mr. Strauss's condition is still serious, he is said to be out of danger. Mr. Strauss left the employ of Times four years ago, since then has been editing a weekly paper called The Villager in his home town at Bedford Village, N. Y.

Finds First Copy of N. Y. Sun

SYRACUSE, Sept. 1.—In the bottom of her grandmother's trunk, Mrs. Frances C. Snyder, of East Fayette street, Syracuse, recently found a copy of the first issue of the New York Sun, published September 3, 1833. The copy is one of the very few still in existence.

RELATION OF THE NEWSPAPERS AND RUBBER OVERSHOE MARKET

An Investigation Into Trade Conditions Touching Question of Can Sales Be Increased Through Better Merchandising Methods and Consumer Advertising.

A REPORT of an investigation into the merchandising conditions concerning the sale of rubber overshoes and the relation of certain brands to markets has just been made by the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

A questionnaire was designed by the Bureau especially to ascertain whether or not people ask for rubbers under trade mark names and whether dealers are receptive to suggestions for improving sales by advertising coupled with intensive merchandising. The questions were prepared after consultation with leading factors in the rubber overshoe industry and were in turn taken by newspaper investigators to retailers and jobbers. The report follows:

Tendencies and Definite Trade Conditions

"Detailed answers which appear in the completed survey may be said to reflect the average condition and the average point of view of the trade in each city.

"The Bureau of Advertising does not, however, submit its report as an analytical document, but rather as a dealers' symposium sufficiently comprehensive to disclose some interesting tendencies and some definite trade conditions.

Six Leading Brands

"There are six brands of rubbers that dealers report as on sale under brand names and to a certain degree known to the public. The majority opinion indicates two of these brands as ranking leaders, although in individual cities there is a marked fluctuation in public and dealer preference.

"In Canada the same relative distribution exists, but a different set of brand names—the brands of Canadian companies appear in the reports.

"The majority of dealers say that women 'do not shop around' for rubbers as they do for other lines of merchandise and some of the few dealers who contend that women do, say that shopping is entirely for low prices and not for particular brands or for good qualities.

"It is interesting to note, in this connection, that several of the dealers say that while men do ask for rubbers by brand names, women seldom do. This is a rather curious sidelight, because the woman and not the man is usually supposed to be most susceptible to an advertising appeal. The reply suggests itself that probably men know certain rubber brand names in connection with automobile tires and associate these names with other lines of rubber goods.

"Dealers say that bad weather is about the only selling argument for rubber overshoes, and most of them are sceptical as to their own ability to sell rubbers in clear weather through a planned campaign and a definite argument.

The Dealers' View

"Very few dealers think they could increase the sale of rubbers by urging their purchase when a new pair of shoes is bought.

"About the same number believe that sales could be increased by a line of selling talks to the effect that rubbers are an insurance against wet feet.

"A fair percentage of dealers, especially those handling a fancy line of footwear say there is a chance of selling a pair of rubbers when a new pair of shoes is sold by calling the customer's attention to the advantages of protecting the footwear and that educational work in this direction would pay.

"Very few dealers seem to think that the sale of rubbers could be increased by urging the sale of two pairs at a time.

"Dealers are almost a unit in saying that they control the sale and not the manufacturer—in other words, if a customer does call for a pair of rubbers under a brand name, the dealer has little or no difficulty in inducing the customer to purchase another brand if he desires to do so.

"As a rule dealers are very frank in their criticisms of the rubber overshoe industry. Many of them say that they only carry rubber overshoes as an accommodation to the public and that they do not consider this line of merchandise a profitable part of their business. They do not make any displays of rubbers, they do not show them. They merely carry them as a drug store carries postage stamps.

"One of the dealers, discussing the general merchandising situation, said: 'Why should we make an effort to push manufacturers goods all the year round, when they do not make any effort to push them. Why should we advertise rubbers in the summer time when manufacturers won't advertise them all the year round. It is up to the manufacturers to take the leadership if they want our co-operation.'

"Several dealers say that they object to putting in big stocks of rubber because this class of merchandise deteriorates. They say that manufacturers could help them if they could arrange to allow them to 'size up stock' every week.

"One is almost tempted to ask what would the sales of rubbers amount to if the dealers really tried to sell them and the manufacturers stood behind them with an aggressive and educational policy. The possibilities for increase are big.

"Dealers indicate their interest in advertising and their willingness to take hold of a newspaper advertiser's brand of rubbers with the proviso that quality and price are right.

"Some interesting suggestions are made by the dealers as to the improvement of rubbers. There seems to be general complaint about badly fitting heels, and a belief that if manufacturers would improve the rubbers at the point where the top of the rubber touches the heel the improvement would be greatly appreciated by customers.

Some Good Suggestions

"Dealers also say that rubber manufacturers do not keep up with the new shoe styles, and that there are possibilities in this direction which are being overlooked.

"Sales of rubbers form a very small percentage of the average shoe store sales at the present time. Some put it as low as one per cent, but the more general average is around 5 to 10 per cent.

"There is a divided opinion as to whether the sale of rubbers is increasing or diminishing, but the general answer is that there is a tendency towards the lighter styles of rubbers and a more discriminating public taste.

"Locality has a great deal to do with the dealer's answer as to whether or not rubber sales are increasing or diminishing.

"The survey indicates clearly that the rubber overshoe business is a sectional business. In some parts of the country rubbers are sold only during the rainy season In other parts of the country there is little or no sale at any season and other places there is a reasonable demand all year round—but varying with the season.

Link Advertising to Sales Work

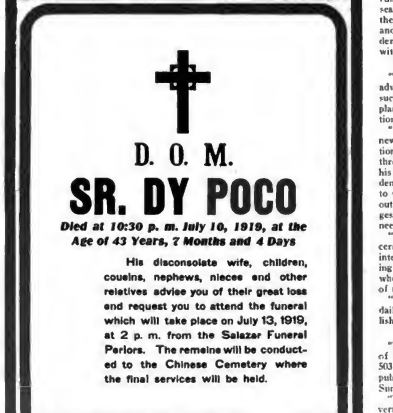
"It is clear from this investigation that advertising and merchandising plans to succeed must lock very closely with plans for dealer interest, dealer education and dealer good-will.

"This is in itself an argument for newspaper advertising. The co-operation of the dealer can be secured through advertising in the newspaper of his city which will center the maximum demand in his store. He can be induced to work with this advertising and to try out some of the new merchandising suggestions which seem to be so badly needed.

"The Bureau attaches some facts concerning newspapers which may be of interest to manufacturers in considering this general advertising problem, but who do not visualize the national scope of the daily newspapers.

"In the United States there are 2,151 daily newspapers published in the English language.

Some Newspaper Facts



"These have a combined circulation of 27,975,127. Of the 2,151 there are 503 published in the morning and 1,648 published in the evening, while 505 have Sunday editions.

"The combined minimum general advertising rate of these 2,151 daily newspapers is $67.03 per agate line, or $938.42 per column inch. The total rate for the morning newspaper is $22.73 per agate line, or $318.22 per column inch, and the total rate for the evening newspaper is $44.29 per agate line or $620.06 per column inch.

"The total circulation of the 505 Sunday newspapers is 16,617,717. The combined minimum general advertising rate of these Sunday newspapers is $30.07 per agate line. (Figures as of July 1, 1919.)

• (Continued on Page 43.)

NOW WE HAVE FULL-PAGE DEATH NOTICES —OVER IN MANILA

OVER in the land of lazy winds where the Old East meets the New West in trade and commerce—at Manila—they have backed the American home-folks off the board as developers of advertising, according to Emil M. Scholz, former publisher of the New York Evening Post, who is touring the Orient.

The page reproduced above is only a sample of the new line that is "regular business." Death notices over there vary in space according to the importance of the deceased. One-page has been the limit so far, but who knows, some day a special edition—containing just one ad—may be printed.

Digitized by Google

DEPRECATES "ALARMIST" REPORTS AS TO NEWSPRINT SCARCITY

J. A. Bothwell, President Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, Tells EDITOR & PUBLISHER That Scramble by Would-be Hoarders is Danger in Situation

J. A. BOTHWELL, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association of Montreal, who has been widely quoted recently as to his claim that there will be ample newsprint for all legitimate needs of newspapers during the fall and winter months, still retains his optimism on this subject.

Mr. Bothwell took occasion recently to comment in an article for the New York Sun on what he designates as "alarmist reports" in Editor & Publisher concerning a possible shortage of paper. He stated that "there has always been sufficient to meet the demands and probably always will be."

Knew of 11,000 Tons Available to Any Purchaser

EDITOR & PUBLISHER, naturally welcoming so bright a prospect as Mr. Bothwell held out, wrote him, requesting that he furnish the names of mills having newsprint to sell. It was explained that we had at this office frequent inquiries from publishers as to where they could obtain supplies, and that we were not often able to give them the information. In his reply to this letter, Mr. Bothwell fails to give the names of such mills, but states that at the time he wrote the article there were, to his knowledge, 11,000 tons of newsprint available for immediate delivery to any purchaser in three Canadian mills. He is strongly of the opinion that newspapers, however, should conserve paper, but believes that many publishers are trying to buy for the sake of hoarding, because of their alarm at the prospect of a shortage. He says:

"I have your letter stating that you are in receipt of several requests from American newspaper publishers asking where they can obtain newsprint paper to meet their immediate needs, and that, in view of my recent article dealing with the newsprint situation appearing in the New York Sun, you would like me to furnish you with the names of manufacturers having newsprint for sale.

"My letter to the Sun stated very distinctly that the available supply of newsprint is subject to great variation, due to many causes; that an apparent shortage today may be turned into a surplus tomorrow and vice versa.

Situation Admittedly Difficult

"At the time my article was written there was, to my knowledge, over 11,000 tons of newsprint available for immediate delivery to any purchaser in three Canadian mills alone, and probably other quantities in the other mills. Whether it is still available can only be ascertained by application to the mills direct or to their selling agents. (Your own statistics show that the accumulation of stock in Canadian mills is quite normal as compared with other years.) If there is now no tonnage available to supply the immediate legitimate needs of any consumer—about which I venture no opinion whatever—it may, perhaps, be due to the scramble by would-be paper hoarders to buy paper against a possible famine later in the year, which has been one of the direct and immediate results of the publication of the several alarmist reports to which my contribution to The Sun made allusion.

"My purpose in accepting The Sun's invitation was principally to point out that the manner in which the fears of the publishers were being played upon was likely to have a contrary effect to that anticipated, as well as to accentuate a situation already sufficiently difficult for both producer and consumer.

"If you will permit me to suggest, although I am not a newspaper publisher and do not pretend to be able to speak for newspaper publishers, the economical use of newsprint and the elimination of inefficient methods in the publishing business could be advocated just as effectively without the accompaniment of alarmist statements, which, however excusable as a means of arousing interest, nevertheless, by their overstatement of the facts and their exaggeration of conditions, inevitably do more harm than good."

ORDER PAPER REFUND IN CANADA

$150,000 Will Be Returned to Publishers Under Tribunal's Ruling—Award Is for Five Months in 1918—Victory for Newspapers

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 3.—Canadian newspapers are to have refunded to them by news print producers of the Dominion a total of $150,000 or $3.00 per ton, amount paid to the mills during the period beginning July 1, 1918, and November 30, 1918, the Paper Control Tribunal having given a judgment fixing the price of news print during the period in question at $66 per ton, as compared with the $69 set by Paper Controller R. A. Pringle, K. C.

A verdict to the effect in question has been handed down by the Tribunal, which was comprised of three judges, and it is final insofar as the period mentioned is concerned. The court found: "That the price of news print paper within the Dominion of Canada in carload lots, in reels, shall be $3.30 per hundred pounds; $3.37½ in less than carload lots," and of sheet news, $3.65 in carload lots, $3.77½ in less than carload lots—all f. o. b. mills.

The effect of the judgment is to reduce the price of paper $3 per ton for a period of five months. It does not deal with the price prior to the fixing of $69 by Controller Pringle, whose action was opposed by both manufacturers and consumers. Consequently, it is expected that hearings will be begun on the larger and more important point at an early date, when the Tribunal will determine the fairness or otherwise of the prices of $50 per ton for eleven months and of $57 per ton for five months.

In the meantime, the newspapers have won a big victory, which apparently they regard as an augury of a still bigger one later on, the larger question comes before the court.

The judgment was signed by all three judges, but under the heading "Remarks," Hon. Justice Archer, of Montreal, said: "Without entering a formal dissent, I deem it advisable to say that I would have supported a judgment allowing $66 per ton for the months of July, August and September (1918), and $69 for October and November."

The following statement in regard to the judgment of the Paper Control Tribunal was given out on their behalf by the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association in Montreal:

"The judgment of the tribunal is based upon an examination of mill costs, including July, August and September, which are the lowest cost months of the year. The manufacturers were debarred from including the mill costs during December and January, as it was held that the appeal under consideration did not properly apply to those months, although the manufacturers contended that they were rightfully entitled to consideration in getting at a fair average price. They claim that had the costs for these later months been taken under consideration they would have justified a price considerably higher than that fixed by the controller or allowed by the tribunal.

"As it is, the ruling applies merely to paper sold during the five months, July to November, 1918, inclusive. The price remains at $69 for the intervening period to date. It will so remain until, and unless, varied by subsequent rulings by the controller or the judges. These can only be arrived at after further hearings have been had on appeals now pending in regard to the price as applied to this later period.

See Future Advance in Cost

"When these hearings are had the manufacturers are confident that the higher costs which have ruled since last November will more than justify the price of $69. In fact, they contend that any subsequent revision that may be made is more likely to be a revision upward than downward.

"The presumption, they say, is borne out in part by the statement of Mr. Justice Archer, of Montreal, one of the three judges who decided the appeal, incorporated in the judgment, which says that he would have supported a judgment allowing $66 a ton for the months of July, August and September, and $69 a ton for the months of October and November.

"Press reports dealing with the decision mention the fact that the manufacturers contended for a price of $80 a ton. (The competitive market price today is higher than that figure.) On the other hand, the publishers, both before the controller and the tribunal, contended that $50 a ton was a fair maximum price. Their brief stated: 'At $50 per ton the mill news is the highest cost company will receive a profit slightly in excess, and the lower cost companies a profit considerably in excess of any profit shown by the evidence to have been received by any company prior to the investigation.' By the judgment rendered, therefore, the manufacturers fall short $14 a ton from achieving their extreme demands, while the publishers fail by $16 a ton to get the price asked by them.

Significant Hint

"Now that the publishers have secured a reduction in the price of their news print covering several months, and amounting to an appreciable sum of money, they will, of course, refund to their subscribers, the general public, the difference, since it was largely upon the strength of the increased cost of paper that the price to the newspapers of Canada increased their selling price, from 50 to 100 per cent."

R. R. Embargo on Newsprint Raised Through S. N. P. A.

South Can Now Get Northern Paper Without Delay, but Care of Reserve Stocks Urged

The current bulletin of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association announces that the embargo recently placed on several railroads in the vicinity of Boston, Mass., and especially lines over which paper is routed from Maine points, has been entirely raised, so therefore there will be no trouble in moving paper over the old routes.

But the following warning is sounded by Secretary Walter C. Johnson:

"It is a question as to how long this will remain in effect, but in the meantime members are urged to keep a close watch on their paper and see that it is moved promptly. As an indication as to the seriousness of the embargo, foodstuffs were embargoed on the New Haven railroad—one can see how impossible it is to move newsprint if food products are embargoed at the same time.

"As many members of the Association are already running with limited reserve stock, depending upon paper in transit, it is therefore important that any delay in transportation. The acute condition of the newsprint market is already well known. Indications are that a number of firings will operate against publishers during the winter months and it will, therefore, be to their advantage to accumulate as much reserve stock as possible, in order to meet all emergencies.

"On August 11 the secretary received a telegram from the traffic manager of one of the large paper manufacturers advising that an embargo had been placed on newsprint by several railroads in the east. This especially affected paper coming through Boston and routed south for southern newspapers.

"Realizing that if the embargo continued for any length of time it would seriously embarrass a number of southern publishers, the secretary immediately took the matter up with Bruce Claggett, assistant director-general of railroads, Washington, D. C., urging that he instruct the Maine Central and Bangor & Aroostook railroads to raise embargo on newsprint.

"As a result of the telegrams that went forward through the assistant director-general and car service section, the secretary has been advised that they were effective, and have enabled the mills to move the paper all rail—raising the embargo on Boston & Maine, Delaware & Hudson and connections, and also gave the mills permission to get permits from the New Haven railroad, as they would not accept shipments carte blanche."

LAURENTIDE EARNED 19%

Profits Nine Times Greater Last Year Than 10 Years Ago

(BY TELEGRAPH)

MONTREAL, Sept. 3.—Profits of the Laurentide Company, Limited, for the year ended June 30 last, total $2,955,000, against $1,823,000 in the previous year and $2,220,000 in 1917. After all deductions there remained $1,823,000, a gain of $119,000 over the figures for previous year.

Earnings were at rate of 19 per cent. on outstanding capital against 17.7 per cent. in 1918. The earnings of year just ended are more than double what they were four years ago and are nine times greater than earnings of ten years ago.

PANGS OF PROHIBITION ARE FELT BY NEWSPAPER WRITERS

One Who Loses His Job Because of Lack of Drunkards Waxes Reminiscent of the Days Gone By, Recalling Many Happy Memories

By Elmer Rigdon
of the Pittsburgh Press

FOR fifteen years I wrote a newspaper column called "Police Court Sketches" and during that time never missed a day. And just as I was beginning to think I had a steady job, along came this prohibition thing and kicked the props from under it, leaving me with nothing to look back to but a glittering past in which the town sot loomed luminously in the picture.

Just so sure as I stealthily stole down the stairs every Monday morning and a sleepy voice called from an inner room saying: "Don't forget to leave two dollars for the washerwoman," so sure was I that some pie-eyed pilgrim in the police station would furnish me material for my story that day.

Police Court Always Furnished Copy Aplenty

It was my business to write of happenings in a lighter vein and I could always find what I wanted in the antics of those who had over-estimated their capacity for the delirant of the still and fell into the clutches of the man in blue. As time passed I began to look upon these wanderers from the path of sobriety as my personal property—a n asset—just as the merchant looks upon the contents of his warehouse. I never took any memory lessons, but I maintain that I carry in my head a mental picture of more dyed-in-the-wool topers than any regular registered voter in the county.

Elmer Rigdon

Historians may tell you about the careers of Carnegie, Rockefeller and Morgan, but they have to take a back seat when I come to the bat and open the floodgates of my knowledge of the human biped.

An Encyclopedia of Knowledge

They may have delved deeply into the precious volumes of ancient and modern lore, but they didn't know that old man Burns began his checkered career in 1866; nor were they aware that after doing a stretch in the penitentiary he became conscientiousstricken, reformed and developed into one of the most patient and perseverging inebriates extant, serving up to the present time no less than 100 terms in the workhouse and innumerable five and ten-day siestas in the county jail.

These erudite gentlemen were not cognizant of the fact that One-eyed Conley had been arrested for excessive indulgence in alcohol 1,224 times until I told them.

They must have felt that their education had been neglected when I extracted from the burglarproof vault of my memory a trustworthy biographical sketch of petite Mary Ann Dolan, the inimitable remnant bonze connoisseur, who, when on a batter, had a penchant for stealing alarm clocks from the homes of prominent citizens whom she had not met socially.

And so, when I got through the enlarged craniums of these eminent and illustrious biographers of great men past and present seemed to shrivel and wither.

Often Called Upon as an Authority

On occasions I have been called upon to appear on the rostrum and enlighten folks on matters pertaining to the dazzling careers of ladies and gentlemen who had taken a post-graduate course in the leading rum cathedrals of the country.

Once I attended the annual banquet of an organization that occupies a conspicuous position in the social world. Sitting next to me at the speaker's table was a theologian, a man of the most scholarly attainments and a professor in a theological seminary.

The toastmaster introduced him in a laudatory address and left out no details of his brilliant achievements. So when the doctor arose to deliver a few carefully chosen remarks all in the magnificent banquet hall felt that they had known him all their lives.

I followed the theologian, and while waiting to be introduced, I looked over the fashionable assemblage of fine-looking men, who knew how to wear a dress suit without embarrassment, and the beautiful, evening-gowned ladies, and I felt honored in being among those present.

Friend of All Drunkards

The director of the oratorical exercises evidently thought everybody knew all about me, and it was unnecessary to relate any details of my supposedly spectacular career, for he confined him-

(Continued on Page 46.)

NEWSPAPER MAKERS AT WORK

R. E. BURNS.

THIS successful Missouri publisher spent ten years as a teacher; athletics occupied his time for another year. Then he devoted two years to general merchandising and one year on the road for a hardware concern.

All this time R. E. Burns, now general manager of the Joplin Globe, was really headed for a newspaper career. The urge grew, and finally led him to accept a job as a solicitor in the circulation department of the Globe. After a year's apprenticeship he was made circulation manager, in the midst of a three-cornered local fight for business. He acquired some stock in the paper and, at the end of his two years of service in the circulation department, he was made general manager of the company.

When the third paper in the field—like the Globe, a morning paper—suspended, Mr. Burns bought the plant and sold it, bit by bit, to other publishers throughout the country. He had won his competitive fight and thus salvaged the mechanical equipment of his late rival.

He looks back to this period with some satisfaction, in spite of the strenuous work which fell to his lot. The Globe had and held during the fight about 13,000 readers. There was a news print expense of $18,000 per year, a circulation income of $20,000, local advertising income of $55,000 and a national advertising income of $9,600. Now, after a few years without competition in the morning field, the Globe has a circulation of about 26,000, pays $70,000 a year for news print, has an income from circulation of $82,500, from local advertising of $163,000, and from national advertising $60,000. It will be seen, therefore, that the Globe's revenues today from national advertising alone almost equal the total advertising revenues of half a dozen years ago.

In 1918 a new home for the paper was built and paid for out of the accumulated earnings. In his direction of the Globe Mr. Burns acts upon this creed: That the public desires from a newspaper, first, the news; then fair business treatment; finally, a constructive policy in municipal, State and national affairs. To make this creed a working policy Mr. Burns has cultivated the organization spirit among the Globe's employees. A club room is provided in the building, with an athletic instructor in attendance. Workers in all departments are invited to devote regular intervals each day and evening to recreative exercises, on the newspaper's "time." Mr. Burns has found the plan highly effective in furthering the fraternal spirit in the Globe family.

Says Broker for Brisbane Wanted Toledo Times

Offer to Purchase Paper Also Made by Indiana Publisher, Trustee for Brown Estate Declares

(By Telegraph)

TOLEDO, Sept. 2.—Overtures for the purchase of the Toledo Times, the only morning or Sunday newspaper in Toledo, have been made by representatives of William Randolph Hearst and an Indiana newspaper publisher, according to Edward Kirschner, trustee of the Clarence Brown Estate, which holds $75,000 par value of the Stock.

Mr. Kirschner says there are 2,000 shares of the stock outstanding, and that they are held at $150 a share, a total of $300,000. Mrs. George Dun, widow of the late publisher of the Times, controls a majority of the stock and the balance is held by William Ardee, president of the National Supply Company, he says.

"The Hearst overtures came through a broker," said Kirschner. "We traced the matter down, and found the broker was acting for Arthur Brisbane. We were merely asked to name a price, which has not yet been done."

The Indiana publisher also made an offer, Mr. Kirschner said. He declined to make known the amount offered or the identity of the publisher.

"Neither offer is being seriously considered," said Kirschner. "The Times is making money now and we are not anxious to sell unless we get a good price."

The Times has the Associated Press Trunk wire, but is not on the State wire. Richard Patterson is business manager and C. W. Howard managing editor.

In the absence of Arthur Brisbane from New York City, Bradford Merrill, general manager of all the Hearst newspapers, was asked concerning the foregoing dispatch.

"There is nothing to be said,' he replied.

U.S. NEWS WRITERS "IMAGINATIVE"

British Writer in London Sphere Squares Himself with Fellow Countrymen

LONDON, Sept. 3.—"Flights of imagination are the life of American journalism" is the comment of Clement K. Shorter in the London weekly magazine, The Sphere, on a prophecy attributed to him by a Chicago newspaper reporter to the effect that "Chicago will outgrow London in fifteen years."

Mr. Shorter who was in the United States recently and visited Chicago, assures the readers of The Sphere that he never said Chicago would outgrow London in any length of time. He admits, however, that he did say that "Michigan avenue in Chicago is the most beautiful street in the modern world."

Ben Hecht Is Home

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Ben Hecht, who has been acting Berlin correspondent for the Chicago News practically ever since the armistice was signed, has returned to this country. He will be replaced by Mr. Wittie, who hitherto has been handling feature assignments on the local news staff.

The Yakima (Wash.) daily American has been started by labor and farmer interests.

Digitized by Google

DAILIES IN FOUR CITIES OPPOSE NEWS WRITERS' UNION

Louisville Courier-Journal and Times Announces That Any Member of Their Staffs Who Joins Union May Consider Himself "Automatically Discharged."

THE establishment of labor unions composed of newspaper writers, editors, and copy readers, or attempts to establish them, continued during the past week in various cities of the country, with the aid of organizers for the International Typographical Union.

In New York City it was announced that plans for perfecting organization were being held in abeyance until the end of the vacation season. A canvass of the newspaper offices of Paterson, N. J., is being made to learn what percentage of the workers there are in favor of organizing. It is understood that any attempt at affiliation with the mechanical departments will be fought by the Paterson newspapers.

Seattle Labor Council Boycotts Non-Union Reporters

As a first move on the part of organized labor of Seattle to force the daily papers to a recognition of Newspaper Writers Union No. 12, the Central Labor Council of the city passed a resolution at their last meeting instructing unions affiliated with that body to refuse to give out any news to any non-union reporter.

The local newspaper writers' union was organized about a month ago by the members of the staff of the Seattle Daily Record, an organized labor paper. A few members of the Post-Intelligencer and Star staffs have joined the union. No Times man has joined, it is said.

Acting on the belief that the publishers of The Times, Post-Intelligencer and Star are opposed to the organization of their workers in the editorial and news rooms into a union, the Central Labor Council plans to enforce a news boycott.

The proposed boycott so far has not been very effective as the papers appear to be having no difficulty in obtaining the news from the labor unions as it develops.

As Seattle is one of the strongest union cities in the United States, the Labor Temple is a fertile source of live news.

Louisville Papers Hostile

At Louisville (Ky.) a first attempt to organize a local newswriters' union at a meeting, held at the Tyler Hotel there, was postponed until September 7 when a Courier-Journal reporter stated that a high official of the Courier-Journal and Times Company had called a staff meeting the preceding evening and had served notice that any employe signing an application for a union charter might consider himself automatically discharged.

In spite of this, staff men of both the Courier-Journal and the Times declared that they were ready to join the proposed organization.

Bert Brady, organizer for the International Typographical Union, and Fred A. White, president of the Local typographical union, were present and addressed the writers, assuring them that successful locals had been established in Boston, St. Louis, Chicago, Columbus, Evansville, Seattle, Milwaukee, Scranton and other cities.

Publishers Must Meet Living Increase

W. B. Bryant, publisher of the Paterson (N. J.) Press Guardian, and president of the Passaic County Publishers' Association, says that in case the news writers of his district attempt to affiliate with the mechanical departments, there is no question that the publishers will oppose efforts to organize and will refuse to recognize them.

"I am not opposed to collective bargaining, and I am not opposed to news writers organized," said Mr. Bryant to EDITOR & PUBLISHER, "but brains cannot be standardized. There is no question that publishers should look after the people on their payrolls and keep them satisfied by granting them the increases in salaries that are due them even though they are not organized.

"In opposing the news writers in their present efforts, I am not opposing them unless they affiliate with the mechanical branches—I am giving no consideration to the increases in salary that it is said will be demanded," continued Mr. Bryant. "I am thinking of the effects of unionism on the newspapers of the country in five years from now.

"It was not until the war that newspapers were able to attain real independence—independence of advertiser and persons of so-called importance. What I would like to know now is whether we are going to sacrifice that independence to unionism. Would it be possible for a writer to be independent, to be anything in fact but a union propagandist, after five years of union affiliation.

"Which, I would like to ask, would be in the majority. The mechanical or brain workers? Could there be an independent press under those conditions?"

Newswriters Parade

MONTREAL, Sept. 3.—For the first time in the history of Montreal Labor Day parades, the Newswriters were represented in the procession here to-day. The union which is affiliated with the I. T. U. was granted a charter four months ago and includes in its ranks about 75 per cent. of the reporters of both French and English newspapers. About thirty walked in the procession.

NEW ORLEANS TIMES-PICAYUNE'S NEW HOME

SITUATED in the heart of what is rapidly becoming a civic center of New Orleans, the new Times-Picayune building at Camp street and Lafayette Square, work on which is already under way, will form a new and appropriate corner in the frame bordering the green tapestry of the park.

Within a year the newspaper's new home is to be turned over by the builder. The contract was signed during July and guarantees completion, barring only unavoidable delays, in one year.

There were many reasons for the selection by the publishers of the site at Camp street and Lafayette Square as the place for the Times-Picayune's new home. It is near the heart of the business center, within easy access of all the arteries of commerce, Lafayette Square with its sweeping lawns, its trees, and its attractive statues offers an enviable setting, while at the same time avoiding the possibility of ever being hemmed in on all sides by neighboring buildings.

But prime among the motives for the selection of the site was the opportunity it offers for providing adequately for the health requirements and the comforts of the Times-Picayune family. Fresh air and sunshine—these prime ingredients of efficiency and success—have been kept in mind throughout, not only in the selection of the site, but in the arrangement and appointments of the building itself.

There will be shower baths and rest rooms, mechanical ventilation, a play room for the newsies, a library and lounging room for the older members of the family and other modern devices which make both for healthy relaxation and recreation and for better work.

The foundation of the building will rest on a stratum fifty feet below the grade. The comparative hardness of the soil through which the piling is being sunk is counted ideal for the purpose. The four-story structure will have a ground area of eighty-five by 150 feet.

The walls will be of dark tapestry brick with white terra cotta trim and a granite base. Facing Lafayette Square at the third floor level a balcony sixty feet long, of handsome wrought iron design, will be built, perpetuating one of the old architectural traditions of New Orleans, providing for functions of all sorts and for the flashing of bulletins of great events to crowds in the park opposite.

In the basement, which is to be five feet below the grade, will be the press room, having a sweep of twenty feet to the ceiling, in which will be housed the four presses, including a new super speed octuple press. Through wide plate-glass windows New Orleans folk may watch their news rolling off the cylinders, thousands of papers a minute. The most modern mechanical facilities will be used throughout the new home.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE'S HEALTH IMPROVED

Joseph T. Gleason, Returning from Visit to England's Greatest Publisher, Says He Is Playing Golf and Will Soon Return to Active Work

Joseph T. Gleason, business representative in America of the great group of Northcliffe publications, issued by the Amalgamated Press, Limited, of London, returned to New York a few days ago after spending nearly two months in Great Britain and Ireland.

Mr. Gleason is an American, whose early newspaper training was obtained on New York newspapers. He has been in charge of many of Lord Northcliffe's business interests at the New York end for many years.

Asked as to the condition of Lord Northcliffe's health, Mr. Gleason assures EDITOR AND PUBLISHER that the great British publisher has so far recovered from his recent illness as to be able to spend most of his time at present playing golf.

"Lord Northcliffe was far from a well man when he was in the United States at the head of the British Mission," said Mr. Gleason. "He was too much absorbed in the great task in hand, however, to spare himself in any way.

"I found him tremendously interested in bringing about a just solution of the Irish question. He feels that this is the direct cause of much ill feeling on the part of Americans toward England. He wants that cause to be removed, and believes that the All-Irish Parliament plan, which his London newspapers have urged, would afford a just solution.

"He was anxious that I should learn at first hand something of political and other conditions in Ireland, and asked me to visit the green isle and to come in contact with all classes of the population, from the north to the south. It was an interesting and enlightening experience for me. I found little actually hostile sentiment toward England. Many made the suggestion to me that the Irish people would welcome the appointment of Lord Northcliffe, himself an Irishman, as Lord Lieutenant."

LEGION HONORS CAPT. BULLOCK

Post in New York Is Named for Times Man

A post of the American Legion in honor of Harry A. Bullock, a former New York Times man, and one time secretary of the New York Municipal Railway Corporation, has been organized by several hundred former service men. Capt. Bullock went to France in August, 1917, being attached to the first regiments that arrived in France after the declaration of war. He was killed by an aerial bomb on Decoration Day of the next year while on duty at division headquarters, about five miles back from the first line trenches, where the American troops, on a certain sector, were standing off the German offensive.

HENRI, HURST & MCDONALD ADVERTISING AGENCY and LORD & THOMAS, both have started impressive advertising campaigns in various Chicago newspapers, exploiting their service to clients.

ADAM AND EVE WILL BE FEATURED AT A. A. C. W. CONVENTION

drs. Germo, Advertising Manager of Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank, Will Describe Them in "Garden of Advertising"—Some Departmental Programs.

TO get back to the primitive, in case you attend the annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World at New Orleans, September 21-25, you may drop in a session of the Financial Advertisers' Association, a department of the A. A. C. of W. on the opening day and hear Mrs. Eleanor Germo, advertising manager of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank, discuss "Adam and Eve in the Garden of Advertising."

Advertising Agencies' Departmental Program

The departmental program of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, of which William H. Johns of the George Batten Company, New York, is chairman; Paul E. Faust of Mallory, Mitchell & Faust, of Chicago, vice-chairman, and Harry Dwight Smith, of Fuller & Smith, Cleveland, is secretary, will be as follows:

Departmental Report to General Session—Harry Dwight Smith, Fuller & Smith, Cleveland.

Newspapers—Led by William H. Rankin, William H. Rankin Company, Chicago; responded to by B. E. Chapelow, Chappelow Advertising Company, St. Louis.

Export Advertising—Led by Bayard W. Barton, Critchfield & Co., Chicago; responded to by Edgar Parker, John O. Powers Company, New York.

Magazines—Led by Paul V. Troop, Lord & Thomas, Chicago.

Trade Papers—Led by Robert Tinsman, Tinsman Advertising Company, New York; responded to by H. B. Humphrey, H. B. Humphrey Company, Boston.

Financial Papers—Led by E. B. Wilson, Edwin Bird Wilson Company, New York; responded to by Cecil Conner, Conner Advertising Company, Denver.

Direct Mail—Led by C. P. Johnson, Johnson, Read & Company, Chicago; responded to by Merle Sidener; Sidener-Van Riper Advertising Co., Indianapolis.

Higham of London to Talk

One of the principal speakers on the program of the Community Advertising Department will be Charles F. Higham, head of the London advertising agency that bears his name, member of Parliament, and vice-president of the A. A. C. of W. Other speakers and their topics will be:

How the Indiana Chamber of Commerce Has Advertised Its State—A. W. Shaffer, director of extension, Indiana State Chamber of Commerce, Indianapolis, Ind.

Conventions as a Community Builder —Dana Welsh, secretary, San Francisco Convention and Tourists' League.

Merchandising Methods as Applied to City Building—Walter B. Weisenburger, secretary, Publicity Bureau, St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

How the Mayor's $100,000 Campaign Is Advertising New Orleans—Thomas J. Hill, manager, Convention Tourist and Publicity Bureau, New Orleans Association of Commerce.

How Omaha Advertises—Arthur Thomas, manager, Bureau of Publicity, Omaha Chamber of Commerce.

How Tourists Have Advertised Denver—Harry N. Burhans, executive secretary, Denver Tourist and Publicity Bureau.

How a Municipal Auditorium Helps Advertise a City—Frank Cleveland, convention secretary, Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce.

A Basket of Chips—G. R. Lowe, Neosho (Mo.) Advertising Club.

Building Canada's Prairie Capital—J. M. Davidson, of the Winnipeg Board of Trade.

Address of Welcome—R. S. Hecht, president, Hibernia Bank & Trust Company, New Orleans, La.

President's Address—W. R. Morehouse, Los Angeles, Cal., president, Financial Advertisers' Association.

The Human Nature Element—F. D. Coubier, manager, Publicity Department, Illinois Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, Ill.

Developing a Trust Department of a National Bank—Virgil N. Harris, trust officer, National Bank of Commerce, St. Louis, Mo.

Standardizing an Advertising Campaign—F. W. Gelb, manager, Advertising and New Business, Mechanics & Metals National Bank, New York.

Making Them See It—W. A. Schulte, advertising manager, Cleveland Trust Company, Cleveland, Ohio.

Outdoor Advertising—Round Table Discussion, John Ring, Jr., manager, Publicity Department, Mercantile Trust Company, St. Louis, Mo., presiding.

Blazing a Foreign Trail—A. D. Welton, Continental & Commercial National Bank, Chicago, Ill.

Wanted: An Old Business Department—Harvey A. Blodgett, president, Harvey Blodgett Company, St. Paul, Minn.

Direct Advertising—Edward A. Kendrick, president, Redfield-Kendrick-Odell Company, New York.

Farm Loans—J. C. Conway, secretary, Southern Trust Company, Little Rock, Ark.

Gingering Up the Savings Department —D. McEachern, secretary, The Huron & Erie Mortgage Corporation, London, Ontario.

Selling Bonds—John M. McMillan, assistant manager, Bond Department, First National Bank, New York.

Establishing a New Business Department in a Small Town Bank—H. B. Grimm, manager, New Business Department, St. Joseph Valley Bank, Elkhart, Ind.

What of Tomorrow? Looking Forward Into Bank Advertising—Edwin Bird Wilson, president, Edwin Bird Wilson, Inc., New York.

Analysis of Territory—Round Table Discussion, Guy W. Cooke, manager, Department of Advertising and New Business, First National Bank, Chicago, Ill., presiding.

How Financial Publishers Can Give Advertisers Maximum Service—Clifford DePuy, publisher, Northwestern Banker, Des Moines, Ia.

Legitimate Publicity—J. I. Clark, manager, Service Department, National Bank of Commerce, New York.

Advertising Service to Correspondent Banks—W. Frank McClure, manager, Publicity Department, Fort Dearborn National Bank, Chicago, Ill.

MAPPING AND CHARTING THE WORLD ANEW

Reynolds' After-War Atlas, just issued by the Reynolds' Publishing Company, introduces us to the world that was, is and that shall be—clarifying the proposed geographical alterations due to the great war. The task which the editors of this work have done so well is one whose difficulties are obvious. Aside from the mapping of the new nations and the revisions of the old ones, this atlas carries a mass of up-to-date data covering industrial and economic conditions. It is a reference work of value to every editor.

N. Y. JOB UNIONS MAKE STIFF DEMANDS

Ask for Flat Increase of $14 for a Week of Forty-four Hours and for Standard Cost System in All Shops—Serious Situation Threatened

Demands of the various printing trades unions for a flat increase for the members of each, on all scales, of $14 a week and a reduction of hours from forty-eight to forty-four a week, to go into effect October 1, were considered Wednesday of this week at a meeting at the Hotel Astor by the Printers' League Section of the Association of Employing Printers of New York City.

The meeting also was attended by representatives of newspaper publishers and periodical publishers who, an announcement of the meeting pointed out, "also will be directly affected by any action taken by the printers in this serious situation." Definite action on the union demands was postponed, after discussion, until a later meeting.

Will Publishers Fight?

"Are you willing to suspend publication in order to help us fight these demands if it seems best to do so?" was a question put by employing printers who attended the meeting to the forty or more publishers of trade journals who were present.

It was pointed out by the employing printers that the real burden of increased wages and fewer hours of labor per week would fall on the publishers, as the increased cost of production would be passed on to them in proportionately larger bills for printing.

It was estimated that if the demands of the unions were granted this increase in cost, exclusive of the cost of print paper, would be about 66 2/3 per cent.

The trade paper publishers who were present at the meeting were not prepared to go on record then as to what stand it would be best for them to take on the demands of the union, although the consensus of opinion seemed to be that these demands were unreasonable.

No Definite Contract

Incidentally, the unions are not willing to enter into a contract with their employers, embodying their demands, before November 1, instead of time. They do not wish to be bound by the new scale for a day longer than its provisions satisfy them.

One demand, which was made only by the press feeders' union, but which, if granted, could obviously be utilized by any other through the medium of a sympathetic strike, is that the union "reserves the right to refuse to work in any office that does not maintain a standard cost system." This, employing printers say, practically would take out of their hands the management of their own business and give it over to their employes.

The pressmen demand, in addition to an increase of $14 a week and a forty-four hour week which would mean $51 a week for day work and, with an additional specified $5 increase, $56 a week for night work, that overtime shall be paid at double time and holidays and Sundays at triple time, and that when a press carries a 60-inch sheet or over, it shall require a man to each machine instead of to two machines as at present.

Demands of Other Unions

The Typographical Union makes similar demands for increased wages and four hours a week less time, and also that all members of the union shall receive fifty cents a day extra if employed less than six consecutive days (a rule that now applies only to machine operators) that a machinist must be employed for four instead of six or more machines as now, and that no proof must be revised as well as read by members of the union before leaving the office.

The press feeders' union demands that not less than two men shall work on any web press, that there shall be one man to each feeding machine, of any kind, that union representatives shall be allowed in the work rooms any time during working hours, and that no union man can be discharged for refusing to work overtime if another man is available and that he may choose his own "sub" for overtime.

Outbidding Other Cities

Other unions making demands for increased wages and fewer working hours, similar to those already quoted, are the Paper Handlers and Sheet Straighteners, Mailers, Paper Cutters, Bookbinders, Book Cover Stampers and Gold Leaf Layers, Blankbook Binders, Paper Rulers, Book Edge Gilders and Binders Women.

These demands show that the printing trades unions of New York City are asking for considerably more than their brethren have been able to get, or can get, under the present set of present contracts, for some time to come. In Chicago, for instance, the forty-eight-hour week is effective during the life of the present contracts which run to September and October, 1921, except in the case of bookbinders, which expires in September, 1920. Pressmen there, under these contracts, make $42; compositors, $41; and bookbinders, $36.50.

In Boston there is a forty-eight hour week, under a contract which does not expire until March 31, 1921. Compositors there make $33, which will be raised to $35 next January, and to $37, next July. Cincinnati has a forty-eight hour week and an agreement which does not expire until September, 1920, under which compositors now paid $33 will get $36 next January, and pressmen and feeders' pay will be raised proportionately.

"H. C. of L." Kills Another Daily

MANSFIELD, Ohio, Aug 30.—The Shield ceased to exist today, the mechanical equipment being taken over by the News. The Shield's owners announce that the high cost of operating is responsible for the discontinuance.

Amsterdam Workers at Picnic

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 1.—The annual clambake of the Evening Recorder employees, given by the employers, was held recently at Camp Taurman, near Amsterdam. All members of the editorial, advertising, circulation, business and mechanical staffs attended.

Digitized by Google

EPISCOPAL CHURCH TO BUY ADVERTISING

Seeks to Get in Touch with Thousands of Members Who Have Moved to Rural Communities Finds It Hard to Get Rates

Advertising as a solution of one important phase of the rural church problem will be tested in several Ohio newspapers during September by the Church League for the Isolated in the Southern Ohio Diocese of the Episcopal Church.

The Episcopal Church, essentially a city communion, a few months ago organized the Church League for the Isolated to get in touch with its thousands of communicants who have removed to rural communities where the Episcopal Church is practically unknown.

In Ohio the number of these "lost" communicants is estimated at 5,000. How to get into communication with them was the problem faced by Miss Elizabeth Matthews, secretary of the League in that Diocese. Instead of relying upon the rural clergy to forward the names of the "lost," Miss Matthews decided to advertise for them.

Would Regain 5,000

The copy, which was written by Paul J. Brindel, of the Episcopal Church's Nation-Wide Campaign Press Bureau, and placed by the Barton, Durstine and Osborn Advertising Agency, of New York City, will appear on the four Sundays and Wednesdays of September in the Cincinnati Enquirer and Post, the Dayton News and Journal, the Columbus Citizen and Dispatch, the Springfield Sunday News and the Zanesville Times-Recorder.

Unlike the officers of most church organizations, Miss Matthews needed no coaxing to allow the use of Sunday newspapers. She even specified that much of the copy appear in them "because everyone knows the Sunday newspapers are read thoroughly."

According to the Church's news bureau, few newspapers have considered the possibilities of religious advertising and some of the publishers' representatives in New York, to quote the papers' church advertising rates. These special rates, usually the minimum commercial rate, were obtainable only by correspondence with the publishers themselves.

NEWSPRINT HEARING SEPT. 10

Expect All Sides to Be Ready for Reed Inquiry Then

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The attorneys for the Department of Justice and Federal Trade Commission, as well as the paper interests and publishers, have asked the committee for a week or two in which to collect their evidence and to arrange for the calling of witnesses on their side of the controversy, before the hearing begins in the Reed Senate investigation of the news print industry.

"Under these circumstances," said Senator La Follette, "it will be necessary to delay the opening of the case for about two weeks. I should say that the committee will be ready to proceed with the Reed resolution by September 10, if not a little earlier."

The hearing will be conducted by a sub-committee of which Senator La Follette will be chairman.

Buys on St. Simon Island

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 3.—St. Elmo Massengale, the advertising agent, has purchased a 27-acre site on St. Simon's Island to be used for a family country home.

ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS ANNOUNCE PROGRAM FOR ANNUAL CONVENTION AT NEW ORLEANS, SEPTEMBER 21-25

"Capital—Labor—Consumer—How Can All Three Co-operate to Insure Increased Production?—A World Necessity" Will Be Principal Theme

THE Associated Advertising Clubs of the World have announced the following program for their annual convention at New Orleans, September 21-25, the principal theme of the convention being the world-necessity of co-operation between capital, labor, and consumer to insure increased production.

Sunday Afternoon, Sept. 21

Inspirational meeting, 4 o'clock on campus, Tulane University. Arthur G. Newmyer, associated publisher of the New Orleans Item, vice-president Southern Division, presiding.

Welcome from the State of Louisiana —Ruffin G. Pleasant, Governor of Louisiana.

Welcome from the City of New Orleans—Martin Behrman, Mayor of New Orleans.

Welcome from Tulane University—Dr. A. B. Dinwiddie, president of Tulane University.

Response—William C. D'Arcy, St. Louis, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

Monday Morning, Sept. 22

General session, Jerusalem Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.

Temporary chairman—L. R. Putnam, president New Orleans Advertising Club.

Permanent chairman—William C. D'Arcy, president Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

Annual address of President D'Arcy.

Address, representing labor—Samuel Gompers, president American Federation of Labor.

Address, representing capital—Speaker to be announced.

Official photograph will be taken at the close of this meeting immediately in front of the Shriners' Temple.

Monday Noon

At twelve-thirty luncheon will be served to all who have made reservations, in the Gold Room, second floor, Grunewald Hotel. An address will be made explaining one of the complete advertising campaigns shown in the National Exhibit of Advertising. These luncheon meetings will be held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Monday Afternoon

2:00 p. m. Department sessions and conferences.

Departments Sessions

Agricultural Publishers' Association.

American Association of Advertising Agencies.

Association of American Directory Publishers.

Association of National Advertisers.

Church Advertising Department.

Community Advertising Department.

The Daily Newspaper Department.

Direct Mail Advertising Association.

Financial Advertisers' Association.

National Association of Employing Lithographers.

National Association of Theatre Program Publishers.

Outdoor Advertising Association.

Poster Advertising Association.

Screen Advertisers' Association.

Conferences

Advertising Women.

Club Secretaries.

Vigilance Committees.

Pan-American Union.

Retail Advertisers.

Monday Evening

7:00 p. m. Official dinner to club presidents in honor of President D'Arcy and the Executive Officers, at Antoine's. Invitations confined to club presidents or their representatives.

8:30. "New Orleans in the Eighteenth Century" in the French Quarter. Delegates and visitors are invited to visit historical Jackson Square, the Cabildo and the old French market, which will be open for the first time at night. The entertainment will be in charge of the French and Italian societies of New Orleans.

Tuesday Morning, Sept. 23

10:00 a. m. General session.

In Tulane Theatre, immediately adjoining Hotel Grunewald, where all but the first of the general sessions will be held. President William C. D'Arcy, presiding.

Address, representing the consumer—Speaker to be announced.

Tuesday Noon

12:30. Luncheon and address explaining one of the complete advertising campaigns shown in the National Exhibit of Advertising. Service in the Gold Room, second floor, Hotel Grunewald, to all visitors who have made reservations the day previous

Tuesday Afternoon

2:00 p. m. Department sessions and conferences.

Tuesday Evening

8:00 p. m. Auto ride about the port for all delegates and visitors, immediately followed by "New Orleans in the Nineteenth Century." Levee scene of the time before the Civil War. This entertainment will be in charge of the Jerusalem Temple Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, and the local Lodge of Elks.

Wednesday Morning, Sept. 24

10:00 a. m. General session, Tulane Theatre. President William C. D'Arcy presiding.

"A Greater Truth Work," Merle Sidener, president Sidener-Van Riper Advertising Co., and chairman National Vigilance Committee.

"Helping Honest Business Protect Itself," William P. Green, organization secretary of Better Business Bureau Secretaries.

"Bricks That Build Walls of Confidence," H. J. Kenner, secretary National Vigilence Committee.

"What Are You Going to Do About It?" Richard H. Lee, special counsel National Vigilance Committee.

Wednesday Noon

12:30 p. m. Exhibit of advertising. Luncheon served in the Gold Room, Hotel Grunewald

Wednesday Afternoon

2:30 p. m. General session. Address, "The Work of the Organs of Business in Creating Better Labor Conditions," Harry Cleland, McGraw-Hill Co., New York.

Address, "The Relation of Advertising to Industrial Morale in War and Peace," Major Roy Dickinson, associate editor Printers' Ink, formerly in charge of Division of Industrial Morale, U. S. A.

Address, "Advertising as a World Force," George Creel, former chairman U. S. Committee on Public Information.

Address, "Relationship of Associated Advertising Clubs to Practical Pan-Americanism," John Barrett, director of Pan-American Union, Washington, D. C.

Wednesday Evening

7:00 p. m. "New Orleans in the Twentieth Century." Modern Southern chicken dinner served at the Country Club. Entertainment in charge of Mayor Behrman and the city officials of New Orleans.

Thursday Morning, Sept. 25

10:00 a. m. General session, President William C. D'Arcy presiding.

Open Forum.

Reports of representatives of departments. How each of them is prepared to carry into effect the conclusions of the convention as to the ways in which labor, capital and the consumer can cooperate for increased production, world necessity.

Thursday Noon

12:30 p. m. Luncheon of the National Exhibit of Advertising, Gold Room, Hotel Grunewald.

2:00 p. m. Election of officers.

Note—Elsewhere in this issue will be found the detailed programs of conferences which various departments of the Associated Advertising Clubs will hold during the convention.

June Canadian Newsprint Exports Show Increases

The Figures Show More Pulp Being Sent Out in Finished State Than Formerly

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.—June exports of paper, pulp and pulp wood from Canada were valued at $7,345,084, as compared with $9,120,000 in June of last year. News print and other manufactured papers show an increase in value of $153,538, and mechanical ground pulp of $295,000, while chemical pulp fell off $1,105,000 and raw pulp wood $1,118,000.

The figures show that more pulp is being manufactured in Canada and exported as the finished product, instead of in the raw state, than formerly.

The details follow:

	June, 1918	June, 1919
Paper and mfs. of	$5,191,868	$4,124,530
Wood pulp, chem.	2,918,671	1,813,618
Wood pulp, mech.	824,108	616,361
	$8,218,823	$6,557,552
Pulpwood	1,906,440	788,126
	$10,120,262	$7,345,857

Exports for the first three months of the fiscal year show a decrease of $2,478,375, compared with last year and a gain of $4,702,547 compared with 1917, as follows:

	THREE MONTHS.
Paper—	1917	1918	1919
Paper	$8,362,036	$10,833,569	$12,809,184
Pulp chem.	5,047,629	7,784,569	8,240,240
Pulp mech.	1,492,271	1,241,903	1,184,197
	$15,011,946	$19,860,203	$19,337,604
Pulpwood—	1,648,295	3,978,370	2,960,714
Total—	$16,660,241	$23,838,163	$22,302,790

Klein Becomes an Ad Agent

M. J. Klein, classified advertising manager of La Presse, French daily, has resigned to enter into the advertising business and will specialize in export advertising. He will be located in the World Building, New York, after September 1.

Opens Minneapolis Office

ST. PAUL, Aug. 30.—The advertising department of the Dispatch-Pioneer Press has opened an office in the Palace building, Minneapolis. O. W. Barlow is in charge.

NEWSPAPER MAKING

A Department of Practical Service for Publishers and Advertisers Conducted by Jason Rogers, Publisher of the New York Globe, and Author of "Fundamentals of Newspaper Building," "Newspaper Building" and "Building Newspaper Advertising"

VIEWING the newspapers of the country in the broadest possible way I am inclined to the opinion that it is the satisfaction with comparatively very small success that handicaps most newspaper makers guilty of producing inferior newspapers. As I have frequently stated, there is no possible excuse for the getting out of a thin, uninteresting and dull sheet except laziness or incompetency.

The shame of it is that only too often will a town give a quality and degree of support to an unworthy publication in the absence of a better production, and those producing the make-believe or false-alarm flatter themselves with the notion that they really deserve the limited success that they reap.

I trust that I may be pardoned for this arraignment of the numerous inferior publications posing as newspapers on the ground that what I am seeking to drive home is that through the elevation of more time and attention to making our newspapers better and more interesting we can secure greater recognition and success.

Small Papers Must Improve

Regardless of the bulk of opinion to the contrary, I believe that the small newspaper field should be made better all-around newspapers and cut free from the old theory local news, more local news and still more local news. Much effort is given toward the printing of local news to the exclusion of presenting an interesting variety of features and miscellany.

This is why the average small city newspaper falls down in the estimate of leading local business men familiar with metropolitan practices and standards. I realize that advocating a venture from the rut established by long years of habitual inspiration I am venturing out ahead of the procession.

According to my theory it is never safe to criticize a well grounded practice unless able to present something definite and constructive as a substitute, which is what I am going to do before I hurl further stones at the traditional structure.

The small town newspapers of the country should get together in two, three or four groups for the co-operative purchase and distribution of the very best and most popular sort of feature matter, special articles.

Cost Would Be Small

Five hundred newspapers, through assessment of only $5 a week apiece, could buy matter costing $125,000 a year, matter which could compare favorably with the best human interest stuff printed in the metropolitan press.

Each group or chain of newspapers would represent exclusive, non-competing dailies, and none of the matter would be permitted to appear in any newspaper seeking undue circulation than the legitimate limits of its circle and suburbs.

The matter would be bought, edited, put in type for proof, with cuts, in neat form by some centrally located plant under direction of a competent managing editor, a committee of editors would pass on the admission of new features to the service.

Such a group of newspapers, by printing from three to eight columns of such matter, would be in a position to defy the encroachments of metropolitan newspapers seeking profitless circulation far afield to bolster up fictitious advertising pretensions.

Aside from the associated newspapers composed of some fifty large city evening newspapers, including the Chicago Daily News, the Kansas City Star, the Philadelphia Bulletin, the New York Globe, the Montreal Star, the Detroit News, which I organized in 1911, feature matter is handled by syndicates for profit.

Would Attract Writers

Instead of paying fancy prices which, in many cases seem prohibitive, thanks to inflated salaries caused by competition among the syndicates for large lines created by the newspapers, the publishers could keep bringing forward new aspirants satisfied with reasonable compensation.

Even in the case of the associated newspapers we have found that in headlining a very simple feature we have created a demand for it that has caused us to increase a salary from $25 a week to $300 a week.

A newspaper feature only occurs very rarely if ever unexpectedly that should make it sought after. The best of the features run out in pulling power long before we are willing to drop them, and some of these we must highly paid for are really past the virile stage.

Regardless of theory to the contrary it is much easier to secure increased circulation and to hold it through good features than by trying to secure similar results by printing mere news. I recognize the few exceptions, such as those of Adolph S. Ochs with his Chattanooga Times and Joseph Pulitzer.

Of course, we must print the news and all of it. But many of our newspapers print local matter of really no news interest. Merely because it is printed does not make it news, and more often than not the desperate efforts of our editors for news leads them to print matter that should and would be paid for at advertising rates.

Our Own Estimate Tells.

If our local newspapers printed better feature and miscellany and occasional high-grade informatory articles the leading business men of their towns would think more of them and gladly pay higher rates for their advertising.

The world takes us largely at our own estimate, provided we make good. Many of our small city newspapers fall so far short of being worthy of the characterization as newspapers as to make it a mystery why they are published.

We pick them up at way stations on our trips about the country, they are spineless, colorless, newsless, and can be descured from end to end at a glance. Advertising space in them is not worth 10 per cent of what it would be if the paper was sufficiently good to hold the reader's interest.

I have the deepest possible sympathy for the man trying to make a newspaper in a town of less than 10,000 population, and wonder how he does it and makes a living, but many of them do, and my hat is off to them.

What I am seeking to advocate is the making of little newspapers at no increase in cost of production. The very machinery employed for group handling of feature matter can be used for the interchange of experience and to secure vastly increasing revenue for every newspaper represented.

As a matter of fact, I want to go squarely on record and admit that I secured much basicly sound information and practical suggestions which we later translated into achievement with the New York Globe at the little informal meetings of publishers of our newspapers in the Associated Newspapers than I had picked up in 30-odd years' previous experience.

I strongly recommend conferences between non-competing newspapers as of the greatest possible value. At such meetings those in attendance can lay all their facts frankly on the table for discussion and construction in a way that is absolutely impossible at general meetings like local publishers' associations, the A. N. P. A. and such.

The trouble with most of us who get out unworthy newspapers is that we are too easily satisfied and fall into the rut or state of mind where we go through the customary monotonous and think we have done the day's work. Whenever a newspaper editor is satisfied with his product he has lost his pupils. There is always room to make tomorrow's newspaper better than today's we don't deserve even that recognition that we receive.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Q.—We are up against a very stiff sort of competition; an old established morning and Sunday newspaper sells to the subscribers at 12 cents per week as against our price of 10 cents for a six-day evening newspaper. We have the edge in circulation against their 7,000, and apparently can make very little progress. What is our best course?

A.—My response by letter was a request for a week's file of each newspaper. A study of the two newspapers day by day indicated the superiority of the morning newspaper as a newspaper. My advice in the situation would be the addition of some sound feature such as a comic or two, a short story, a fashion can and short article, and the presentation of short informatory special articles of especial appeal to my constituency. I should make the editorial page one that would be read and talked about. In the absence of real editorials by home talent on home affairs I strongly recommend the reproduction of the best editorials from exchanges with proper credit.

Q.—Our problem is our Saturday issue. We print a six-day evening newspaper and find it impossible to get local readers to use space in our Saturday paper. They claim that they cannot get results on Monday from Saturday's advertising and go strongly into the Sunday newspapers. Can you recommend any remedy for this?

A.—You have brought up one of the worst spots in evening newspaper production and one which I think we have successfully solved on the New York Globe. We would run 130 columns or more of advertising on Friday and drop to 80 columns on Saturday. This was a cruel tragedy, for we sold as many copies on Saturday as Friday and the heavy losses Saturday frequently more than equalised profits for Friday.

For years we have tried to get general advertisers to use liberally Saturday, but they, following the lead of the local shops more frequently than not, declined to do so. A number of newspapers in other cities have succeeded along this line. With us it did not work out.

A few months ago I determined to overcome the serious situation and made a bargain rate for Saturday, "25 cents flat" on general display, a reduction of anywhere from 10 to 25 per cent from contract rates. In my announcement I stated that I knew the Saturday paper would result just as well as other days and was going to prove it by offering an inducement to try it.

Some of my friends said I was making a mistake in reducing rates, and one agency man said that if a cut rate was all a newspaper could get that that was all the space was worth. This was a man with very narrow vision, for many dozens of our advertisers saw the point, and our Saturday issue gradually came in for a good showing of business.

Some of our solicitors complained that advertisers paying 30 cents gross an inch Monday to Friday were switching their copy to Saturday and that the office was losing earnings. This did not bother me a bit, for we were running to capacity every Thursday and Friday, and whatever ran over into Saturday was just so much more space to secure for the week, for we could not have printed it on the other days.

I sincerely believe that by next Fall many of our local advertisers will commence to use space on Saturday, for business begets business. It is sometimes difficult to get people out of some old woman-like notion that because they have not done a thing they cannot.

Newspaper circulation is just as valuable to the advertiser one day as another. The big local store advertising bargain sales on Friday for the purpose of attracting people on pay day is entirely a different proposition to the manufacturers seeking to have known the advantages of using his product.

If a general advertiser would rather use the Sunday issue, where his ad would be seen than by the people in the mass of heavy local display on a Friday, the same thing holds good with greater emphasis for the Saturday issue compared with Saturday, for few people have the time to wade through the mass of stuff in those huge newspapers created to meet an imaginary demand for mere bulk.

HAMMESFAHR AND BUCK

New Agency Has Offices in New York, Chicago and St. Louis

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—A. C. G. Hammesfahr, formerly general manager of P. F. Collier & Son, Inc., has joined forces in the advertising agency business with Glen Buck in quarters in the Michigan boulevard building, 30 North Michigan boulevard. A New York city office has just been opened on the fifth floor of the Astor Trust building, Fifth avenue at 42nd street.

Another branch office is maintained in St. Louis. Announcements of Mr. Hammesfahr's new association now are being sent out to a selected list.

Discuss Branch of Ad Bureau

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—The Newspaper Representatives' Association of Chicago will meet next Tuesday to consider plans for the establishment of a branch office here of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

Digitized by Google

NEWSPAPER MEN ON PRESIDENT'S TRAIN

Many More Will Join Party on Chief Executive's Tour of Country in Behalf of Treaty of Peace with Germany

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3—Twenty newspapermen left Washington today on the President's special train to cover the tour of the Chief Executive in behalf of the treaty of peace with Germany. This number was smaller than had been expected, but it does not represent the aggregate of correspondents who will be aboard the train during the major portion of the long swing to the Pacific Coast and back.

Several of the Middle Western papers will have staff men join the party at St. Louis and Kansas City and travel with the President during the remainder of his journey. An unusually large number of local men will join the group in advance of the President's arrival at their cities.

The newspapermen who left Washington tonight and the organizations and papers they represented follow:

Associated Press: Bryon Price and Pierce Miller.

International News Service: John E. Nevin.

United Press: Hugh Baillie.

Universal Service: Jay Jerome Williams.

New York Times: Rodney Bean and Charles H. Grasty.

New York World: Louis Siebold.

New York Herald: James A. Hagerty.

New York Tribune: Charles White.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: Robert T. Small.

Chicago Tribune: Philip Kinsley.

Boston Globe: Michael Hennessy.

Boston Post: Robert L. Norton.

Baltimore Sun: Stanley M. Reynolds.

Louisville Courier Journal: Morton M. Milford

New York Evening Post: David Lawrence.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Ben F. Allen.

New York Sun: E. C. Hill.

Washington Times: Frank R. Lamb.

Ford's Dearborn Independent: Joseph O'Neill.

ADS SUPPLANT CHURCH BELL

Newspapers Best Means of Getting People to Services, Pastor Says

HOQUIAM, Wash., Sept. 3.—The Rev. W. W. Switzer, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church here, has ordered the bell removed from the tower of the church and will offer it for sale. Hereafter he will use newspaper advertising, instead, as a means of getting people to come to church.

"A bell is all right on a country church, but it is an unnecessary antique on a twentieth century house of worship in a progressive city or town that has the advantage of newspaper publicity," he declared.

Enlarged Service in Seattle

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 3—Through an arrangement with the Chicago Tribune and the New York Times, the Post-Intelligencer is now receiving a special report of the vital news of the world, by a leased wire which spans the continent. The new service is designed to supplement the Post-Intelligencer's seven-day-a-week Associated Press reports.

SPRINGFIELD EDITOR TO SPEAK

Waldo L. Cook Will Discuss Relation of Editorial Page to Advertising

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Sept. 3.—Waldo L. Cook, chief editorial writer for the Springfield, Mass., Republican, and the man who makes the editorial page of the Republican, will be on the program for the fourth annual conference of Iowa newspaper men which will be held here on November 21 and 22 under the auspices of the extension division and the department of journalism of the University of Iowa. His subject will be "The Relation of the Editorial Page to Advertising."

The fourth annual conference of newspaper men in November is being held in connection with the alumni homecoming of the university, which is expected to be unusually well attended this year because of the return of so many alumni from the military and naval service.

Editor in Pulpit

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 2.—George M. Bailey, chief editorial writer of the Houston Post, occupied the pulpit of the local First Methodist Church in the absence of the pastor and appealed to his hearers for chivalry toward women, especially women in business.

New Ad Agency in Knoxville

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 31.—Herbert Waterbury has opened an advertising bureau in the Empire building. Two commercial artists will be associated with Mr. Waterbury in his work.

FUTURE HEAD OF NEW YORK POST GOES TO EUROPE

EDWIN FRANCIS GAY, who will assume charge of the New York Evening Post on January 1, will arrive in Europe this week for a two months' rest after two years of war work, labor, and will incidentally make a study of the field of international newspaper correspondence.

Dean Gay is a man of unusual personality and a tireless worker. His friends describe him as one of the biggest men in the country, clear thinking, far-seeing doer of the things that he wants to do without thought of financial return to himself. It has frequently been said that all that has been needed for him to acquire a business fortune was for him to enter business. Instead, he has got all the possible joy out of life in building up the first Graduate Business School in the country at Harvard.

This may sound queer in view of his past connections, but Dean Gay's inclination is not toward business. When he joins the Evening Post he will devote his energies to the editorial and news departments and not the business end of the paper.

An indication of the kind of a man Dean Gay is is reflected in his war work. At the invitation of the United States Shipping Board he went to Washington and organized a statistical information bureau; it was such a success that he was then asked to organize the same service for the War Trade Board, where his bureau became such an important part of that organization that he was asked to become a member of the board; the Department of Labor and War Industrial Board then called upon him to do the same service for them, and to top the whole job, President Wilson asked him to organize a private news bureau on all government activities for him.

He accepted and the result was the Central Bureau of Planning and Statistics. Remember, he directed all of these news bureaus dealing in vital facts throughout the war. He did not leave one to start another.

Dean Gay is considered an expert on political, economical and international affairs; politically, he is an independent with progressive tendencies—but is not "radical—he is, however, nearer to being a radical than a conservative. His acquaintance is large among men of art and literature. While in Europe he will divide his time between France and England and may visit Germany.

BUSINESS PUBLISHERS EMPHASIZE "HOW"

Tentative Program Announced for Chicago Convention, in Chicago, September 16-20—Names of Speakers Will Soon Be Announced.

A tentative draft of program the Chicago convention of the Associated Business Papers, to be held September 18, 19, and 20, at Congress Hotel, emphasizes that there will be but one executive session, the "Publisher's and Business Session," beginning the middle of Friday afternoon and continuing through Saturday morning.

The whole program is built around the central theme "How."

The names of the speakers will not be ready for announcement until late this week.

As far as completed the program follows:

Thursday Morning, Sept. 18

Address of welcome by Chairman.
Response and President's annual address.
Addresses on following subjects:
The Partners of Business.
How to Make the Business Press a Better Partner of Business.
An Appreciation by "Business."
The Significance of the "Plumb" Movement in Labor Circles and its Possible Effect Upon Business and Business Papers.

Thursday Afternoon
(Editorial Session)

Introductory remarks by Chairman.
How to Help Serve Present-day Problems:
(a) Labor.
(b) Production.
(c) Distribution.
How the Editorial Conference Helps Business Papers.
How to Have Your Paper Lead as Well as Reflect Opinion.
How to Get and Train Men for Editorial Work.

Friday Morning, Sept. 19
(Advertising Session)

Introductory Address by Chairman.
How to Make a Service Department Pay.
How to Hold Advertising When Demand Exceeds Supply.
How to Steal the Waste in Advertising.
How the Advertising Salesman Can Prove That His Paper Reaches the Buyers.
The Place of the Business Press in a National Campaign.

Friday Night.
Banquet at Congress Hotel.

Friday Afternoon.
(Circulation Session.)

Introductory Remarks by Chairman.
How to Reduce Circulation Mortality.
How to Make Users and Readers Out of Subscribers.
How to Handle the Subscription Crook Problem.
How the Editorial and Circulation Departments Can Cooperate.

Friday Afternoon—Second Session.

Note—Attendance at this session will be limited to members of the Associated Business Papers and members of their staffs. All other members will be open to whoever may be interested.

(Publishers and Business Session.)

The President presiding.
Address on the Audit Bureau of Circulations.
The Advertising Agency and the Business Press.
The Postal Situation.
The Question of Free Copies to Advertisers.

Saturday Morning, Sept. 20.

(Continuing Publishers and Business Session.)
How to Meet the Rising Cost of Publishing.
Standard Circulation Statement for Papers not Members of A. B. C.
To What Extent Should Publishers Assume a Censor Attitude?
The Proper Method of Arriving at Rates Commensurate with Service.
Reports of Officers and Committees.
Election of Officers for Ensuing Term.
ADJOURNMENT.

County Publishers Unite

ROANOKE, Ill., Sept. 3—The six newspaper publishers of Woodford County met at Holton and formed an organization known as the "Woodford County Press Association." George R. Curtiss, of the El Paso Journal, was elected president; R. E. Patterson, of the Washburn Leader, vice-president; C. R. Denson, of the Minonk News-Dispatch, secretary-treasurer; A. E. Potts, of the Woodford County Journal, William Ryan, of the Metamora Herald, and T. P. Pettigrew, of the Roanoke Post, executive committee.

ERIE

Pennsylvania

An Exceptional Market

Erie, Pa., a manufacturing City (port on Lake Erie), received millions in war contracts. This brought new money, new plants, new ideas, to an already prosperous territory.

The Federal Government through the U. S. Housing Corporation embarked upon an imposing housing program, covering 78 acres. Not a temporary, but two great permanent developments resulted. Waste land was turned into a beautiful park. Modern apartments were erected; hundreds of separate brick houses, each with green yards and hedges. All improvements: heating system, electric light, sanitary plumbing, completely appointed bathroom, separate laundry tubs, nicely finished woodwork, door and window screens. The rentals average on the basis of $5.00 per room. The Government is arranging to sell these model homes to the workers on easy payment plans.

The General Electric Company has developed even a more extensive housing program.

War contracts brought to Erie thousands of skilled mechanics. Many have made Erie their permanent home because of profitable employment and attractive living conditions.

Give a human being more than a living wage, a respectable home, the means and inclination for personal cleanliness—and you do more than anything else to combat Bolshevism and radical restlessness. Give a human being these living conditions and you attract and develop an exceptional population—a population appreciative of the better things of life—responsive to advertising of good merchandise.

ERIE

Pennsylvania

The Market, 157,000

Erie Population, 105,000; Suburban (35 mile radius), 52,000

Through one daily newspaper, the Erie Times, an advertiser can dominate. He can reach practically all of the worth-while families.

ERIE DAILY TIMES

(A. B. C. Member)

Paid Circulation 27,693

Line Rate 6c. flat. Evenings except Sunday.

The Erie Times has 50% more than the combined paid circulations of its two daily competitors and over treble the circulation of either.

The Erie Times is a human institution, established 31 years ago in 1888 and intimately allied with Erie's development. To its credit is an imposing program of civic accomplishment. The future holds even greater things. The Times is indeed a part of Erie itself and it is impossible to consider one without the other.

Erie (88 miles from Buffalo, 95 miles from Cleveland—and from an advertising standpoint not affected by either)—Erie, offers such an exceptional situation that no national advertiser can afford to overlook it:—a big, concentrated, prosperous, responsive market unquestionably dominated by a single human newspaper—the Erie Daily Times!

This means a market for net profit advertising; one dominant newspaper lowers selling costs. Erie is superior to many larger territories rendered less profitable through divided newspaper competition.

By all means, visit Erie personally if you can. The Times will be glad to extend the hospitality of showing you the city, its industries, wide, well-paved streets, fine homes, many of them mansions, great stores and good merchandise—the extensive civic projects, a great harbor not yet come into its own—and outlying suburbs and rural sections.

The farming includes the average crops of the east central Great Lakes region. Some of the finest vineyards of the east are in the Erie territory.

The Erie Daily Times for EVERY National Advertiser

Representatives

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

Established 1888

15 E. 26th St.	Harris Trust Bldg.	Waldheim Bldg.	Monadnock Bldg.
New York	Chicago	Kansas City	San Francisco

Digitized by Google

SEES DANGER TO U. S. NEWSPAPERS IN FOREIGN WIRE CONTROL

England Now Has Grasp on Most of Cables of World and, with France and Japan, Is Seeking Exclusive Wireless Rights, Says U. P. Correspondent.

By Fred S. Ferguson

UNITED PRESS STAFF MAN IN WAR DONE AND AT PEACE CONFERENCE.

WHETHER there is a League of Nations, in fact, or in theory, restoration of good relations between the nations of the world, and development of commercial intercourse rests in a great measure upon control of lines of communication.

One of the most vital questions yet to be finally dealt with in meeting the world's reconstruction problem is that of control of cables and wireless.

News Channels of World Still Clogged

Newspapermen from all parts of the world met in Paris during the Peace Conference. They came to understand each other. Upon leaving, each retained the individual characteristic of the journalistic precedents of his country. But each one knew more of the viewpoint of the newspapermen of other countries and possibly had adopted some of the methods of the other fellow if they looked good to him. The groundwork was consequently established for a better interpretation of foreign news developments in every country in the world.

Fred S. Ferguson

Other Countries Are Alert

The news channels of the world however, are still clogged. Cable companies have shown no signs of restoring the rates that existed before the war. And until the present war-rates are reduced, the flow of news will never reach the point possible under reasonable tariffs.

Europe is thoroughly awake to the fact that trade routes follow cable routes. The country that has the cheapest and most direct cable communication with a given point, so that there is a free exchange of news and commercial information, is the country that holds the trade advantage.

England, France and Japan are looking forward to news development in a big way. It is realized that wireless is to play an important part. The establishment of exclusive wireless rights is one of the phases of their activity. England now controls most of the cables of the world. The German cables taken over by the Allies under the terms of the Peace Treaty are yet to be disposed of. England endeavored to get these cables during the Peace Conference, and still wants them. The cables are still under the control of the Peace Conference, which will have final authority to dispose of them. The jockeying in the coming conference at Paris in October which is to take up the cable question will consequently be simply another round in the world's commercial struggle.

America's Opportunity

It cannot be expected that after four years of active propaganda work, the European countries are suddenly going to drop this means of keeping their causes before the world. By careful handling of means of communication, they plan to spread their commercial wares upon the counter of the world through news as well as advertising channels.

If America is to be a successful competitor, American news agencies and newspapers must have equally cheap and direct means of distributing American news, and gathering foreign news without the propaganda trimmings.

English and French newspapers, while divided on internal political lines just as American papers are, take a deeper interest in international affairs than do American papers as a whole. They can always be counted on to be strongly behind their government the minute a foreigner enters into any question. Their support in trade extension plans is, therefore, going to be a real source of strength.

Sees Recent Tulsa Changes as Improving Situation

S. N. P. A. Bulletin Tells of Losing Fight of Publishers There for Past Five Years

Commenting on the recent changes in Tulsa (Okla.) newspaper field, noted in Editor & Publisher at the time, the current bulletin of the S. N. P. A. adds the following details:

"The daily newspaper situation in Tulsa, Okla., has been finally cleared up after a fight extending over four or five years. Tulsa for many years had two dailies, the World in the morning and the Democrat in the evening.

"About five years ago Charles Page, a local oil multi-millionaire, who has extensive interests in Tulsa, decided a newspaper was essential to his happiness and prosperity, so he bought the Leader, a small weekly publication in the suburban town of Sand Springs. He put in a complete metropolitan outfit and began publishing a daily, called the Times, at Sand Springs, for Tulsa circulation. In a few months he bought the Democrat of Tulsa, and since then has published both the Times and the Democrat from the Times plant.

"The two establishments differed on all subjects from politics to religion, and particularly on oil matters, the World being considered a friend of Standard Oil, while the Page papers took the side of the independents.

"Finally, two months ago, the World started an afternoon edition. This resulted in a truce being declared by which the World has suspended the afternoon edition and the Morning Times likewise suspended, leaving just one morning and one evening paper in the field. This settlement probably also disposes of the rumor that Jake Hamon, another Oklahoma oil millionaire, would buy the Page papers and change their politics to Republican."

ASKS INCREASE FOR P. O. CARRIERS

Burleson's Labor Policy Also Condemned at Philadelphia Convention

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—Postmaster General Burleson's labor policy was condemned in a report submitted by President Edward J. Gaynor of the National Letter Carriers at the opening session of that organization's convention here today. An immediate and substantial increase in pay for the carriers also was demanded.

Mr. Gaynor urged an immediate advance of 35 per cent, this to be increased to 60 per cent over the present rate when the regular session of Congress convenes. It was pointed out that since 1907 the mail carriers had received an increase of only 25 per cent, despite the fact that the increase in the cost of living had advanced 82 per cent.

Carroll to Manage Theatre

UTICA, N. J., Sept. 3.—Clifford A. Carroll, formerly a reporter on the Press, will become manager of the Colonial Theatre at Pittsfield, Mass.

The Portsmouth Daily Times Established 1854 — The Portsmouth Sunday Times Established 1919

The Noon Extra Established 1914

The Portsmouth Weekly Times Established 1860

The Times Publishing Company

(INCORPORATED 1896)

Harry E. Taylor, Vice-President and Manager

Portsmouth, Ohio, August 1, 1919

Important Announcement

To Advertisers and Agencies

Regarding the changes of rates for advertising, we are enclosing two copies of our Flat Rate Card effective January 1, 1920, for space in The Daily Times.

Beginning January 1st, 1920, the rate for national advertising in The Portsmouth Daily Times and The Portsmouth Daily Times Sunday Edition will be 3 cents per line K. O. P. and 3½ cents per line for full position. Annual contracts will be sold during the remainder of 1919 at 2½ cents a line to January 1, 1920, and 3 cents thereafter, but no reservations will be made at the 2½ cent rate beyond 1919.

The Portsmouth Daily Times is the only newspapre in Portsmouth and Scioto County. The Times was founded in 1894 and has always operated under the present management, who are the sole owners, and whose policy it has been at all times to give the news and serve their patrons.

The steady growth of the city and surrounding country made the demand for the estbalishment of a Sunday Newspaper imperative, and The Portsmouth Daily Times, Sunday Edition made its appearance March 23rd, 1919.

The Noon Extra, a 4-page news edition published each noon, sold only on the streets, has a circulation averaging 3,000 daily. Its circulation is not included in that of the Daily Times.

The Weekly Times goes out each week, was established in 1860.

The circulation of The Daily Times has grown from 1,000, when it was established in 1894, to its present large and wide circulation, which exceeds 12,000 copies, covering a wide area of surrounding towns and country.

The circulation of the Sunday Edition, starting March 23rd, 1919, was 6,500, and is now more than 8,200 and growing rapidly. New territory is being opened up, which will soon place the circulation of this edition on a par with that of the evening.

The management of The Portsmouth Daily Times wishes to thank the advertising public for its confidence and help in making The Times what it is and it will, as always, in return give the advertiser the largest and best circulation and the lowest basic rate of any newspaper published anywhere in a city of Portsmouth's class.

THE TIMES PUBLISHING COMPANY,
Harry E. Taylor, Vice-President.

Robert E. Ward, Foreign Advertising Representative,
No. 5 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago.
No. 225 Fifth Avenue, New York.

Digitized by Google

David Lawrence's

Washington Dispatches

Published in 78

Leading Dailies

Why?

1. Unbiased—David Lawrence, writing for 78 papers of all shades of political opinion, is not controlled by any paper's policy.
2. Enterprising—David Lawrence gives his clients more exclusive news and accurate predictions than other services combined.
3. Unique—David Lawrence answers the questions which no press association is permitted to answer, namely—Why? What does it mean? What does it foreshadow?
4. Authoritative—David Lawrence writes of National Issues with a deep background of understanding of the significance of policies and events.

Non-Partisan!

Independent Papers	27
Democratic	16
Republican	14
Independent Dem.	7
Independent Rep.	6
Foreign Countries	8
	78

Combined Circulation More Than 4,000,000

Telegraphic and Mail Relays

reach practically every point in the United States within 24 hours. Exclusive rights in a few cities still open.

Telegraph NOW for Terms

WILLIAM A. BIRD, iv, Business Manager

DAVID LAWRENCE, Incorporated

92 HOME LIFE BUILDING

WASHINGTON, D. C.

MANY SMALL-TOWN PAPERS PROTEST EXCLUSION FROM ARMY CAMPAIGN

Publicity Bureau Explains That in Second Drive for Recruits This Fall Small Appropriation Limits List to Media Where There Are Sub-Stations.

SINCE the publication in EDITOR & PUBLISHER in its issue of August 23 of the list of 656 small-town newspapers, recommended by the Publicity Bureau of the Army Recruiting Service, for a $9,000 advertising campaign for recruits this fall, so many protests have been received by the Bureau from newspapers that were not included in the list that the advisability of revising the list has become a puzzling problem.

The War Department, it is announcounced unofficially, has decided to go ahead with the campaign and the opening date probably will be early in October. Present plans are to continue it for two or three weeks. The prevailing sentiment with those who will have it in charge is that it would be well to enlarge the list of newspapers already picked as media, if more money could be obtained for that expense, but the War Department hasn't the money and doesn't know how to raise it.

Many Protests Made in First Campaign

The original recommendation of the Publicity Bureau of the Army Recruiting Service called for an insertion of 5,000 lines in each of the daily newspapers, printed in English, in each of the recruiting sub-station cities. There are 449 of these cities.

In the June campaign, which cost $174,000, the advertising was limited to newspapers printed in English in 56 cities where main recruiting stations were located, and at that time many letters were received from newspapers in other towns, asking why they had not been included in the list.

The Bureau of Publicity was at pains to explain to these papers that the amount of money available for the campaign was limited and that in order that all the small-town newspapers might be treated alike, it had been necessary to exclude all from the first campaign. Commenting on this, the recommendation of the Bureau for a second campaign stated:

Explains the Second Campaign

"The smaller newspapers of the country doubtless were disappointed that they were not included in the first advertising campaign. They have been reasonable in the matter, however, in the vast majority of cases, but if they now learn that they are, themselves, to have a share of this War Department advertising, they will redouble their efforts to prove that the small town papers are alive and alert.

"They will redouble their efforts to prove by results that the small towns can produce a big quota of results. Their incentive is plain. It would be a matter of patriotism and pride with them to outstrip their larger neighbors.

"It should be born in mind that in the sub-station cities and towns there are several hundred newspapers, all of local influence and all ready and eager to provide the same sort of co-operation in their localities that has been furnished in the cities already covered.

"Furthermore, there is no doubt that in the smaller cities, the local newspaper does very fairly cover its field, reaching and influencing a larger proportion of the inhabitants than is true in some of the metropolitan centers."

Can't Include All in List

Most of the protests recently received from smalltown newspapers which have not been included in the list for the fall campaign are based on the argument that while they are not situated in towns where sub-stations are located, they are in towns nearby, on which these recruiting sub-stations must depend largely for recruits and that no effective appeal can be made for recruits in these towns unless local papers are used as advertising media.

The attitude of the Bureau of Publicity regarding such protests appears to be that the argument on which they are based is sound enough, but that, with a limited appropriation, it is absolutely necessary to draw a hard and fast line somewhere and that the logical thing to do, therefore, is to limit the list to towns where there are recruiting substations. Otherwise, the list would have to take in almost every small-town newspaper in the country.

In other words, to an outsider, the Bureau of Publicity seems to be saying to the small-town newspapers who feel aggrieved because they are not to have a share of the appropriation:

"Please don't complicate matters to such an extent that we will have to call this campaign off altogether."

Londoners to Inspect Presses

A. R. Linforth, joint secretary, and A. B. Blayney, general manager of Lord Northcliffe's Amalgamated Press, Ltd., of London, which published the Children's Newspaper and many other periodicals, have arrived in New York City and will spend a month or longer in the larger cities of the East and Middle West inspecting printing machinery, with a view to purchases for their organization.

Miss Helen C. Galbreath, who has been assistant secretary of the New York Advertising Club for two and a half years, has resigned to take a position as copy writer with Stroud & Brown, Inc., advertising agents, at 305 Fifth avenue. The board of directors of the club presented her with a gold wrist watch in appreciation of her efficient services.

THE St. Louis Times announces that Mr. G. Logan Payne, with offices in the Marquette Building, Chicago; Payne, Burns and Smith, Fifth Avenue Building, New York; Payne, Burns and Smith, 8 Winter Street, Boston, and George H. Payne, Kresge Building, Detroit, will have full charge of its foreign advertising.

The St. Louis Times is the only evening Republican paper in a city having the largest Republican majority in the United States. It has a character circulation that cannot be reached by any other St. Louis paper and is an absolute necessity in covering the Evening Newspaper field of St. Louis.

The Times will co-operate to the fullest extent with Mr. Payne and his associates to make the advertising campaigns of its patrons successful.

THE ST. LOUIS TIMES
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI

Automobile Advertising Gains That Lead Baltimore Field

Automobiles lined up outside Billy Sunday Tabernacle during recent "trail hitting" in Baltimore. Scene Baseball Park at right.

TO speak of Automobile advertising in Baltimore is to speak of The Baltimore NEWS. During the month of July, 1919, The NEWS, with a total lineage of 66,812 lines, made the largest gains in automobile advertising of any Baltimore paper. Compared with July, 1918:

The NEWS gained.....	44,352	lines
2nd largest gain	35,322	"
3rd " "	16,770	"

Part of this showing we freely attribute to the changes made in The NEWS Automobile Section itself. Running, up until this year, a typical automobile section, cursed with typical automobile publicity, great in quantity but almost minus in general interest, we came to the conclusion that the public was not reading that kind of a section, and decided to put it on the same basis as the rest of the paper, i. e., news value! This year, while we have been glad to print every item of real news and all the human interest material we could possibly collect, we have rigorously excluded the stuff that had absolutely no legitimate place in a newspaper's columns.

It was new to Baltimore, but that we are striking the right chord—protecting advertisers themselves with publicity that really MEANS something—the gains we are now making would seem to testify.

The Baltimore News

Goes Home and Stays Home

DAN A. CARROLL, Eastern Representative, Tribune Building, New York

Stroud & Wobble, Advertising Manager

J. E. LUTZ, Western Representative, First Nat'l Bank Bldg., Chicago

FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM

Announces

EIGHT PAGE ROTOGRAVURE SECTION

Effective with issue of SUNDAY, OCTOBER 12, the ROTOGRAVURE SECTION of the FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM will be changed from four pages on news print paper to EIGHT PAGES ON SUPER CALENDERED PAPER.

The increased size and better paper will give wider opportunity to national advertisers interested in Rotogravure for illustrative copy.

GUARANTEED CIRCULATION, 70,000 SUNDAY

More than 2 1-2 times as much as any other Fort Worth paper.

Star-Telegram Rotogravure section is printed nearer Fort Worth than that of any competitive paper, giving later closing dates and more up-to-the-minute news pictures.

Foreign Representatives
(FOR ROTOGRAVURE ONLY)
GRAPHIC NEWSPAPERS, Inc.
450 Fourth Ave., New York Hartford Bldg., Chicago
ALL OTHER BUSINESS HANDLED DIRECT FROM HOME OFFICE

FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM

Second Paper in Texas—First Paper in Fort Worth Territory

Member A. B. C.

Over 65,000 daily 70,000 Sunday

AMON G. CARTER, Vice Pres. & Gen. Mgr. A. L. SHUMAN, Adv. Mgr.

Write for book of information about Fort Worth territory

DEFENDS PRINTING LUDENDORFF STORY

German General's History of War Is Not "Propaganda" but Indictment of Germany, Vice-President Eastment of McClure Syndicate Declares

Protests of Senator Chamberlain of Oregon and Senator Lodge of Massachusetts on the floor of the Senate against the forthcoming publication in American newspapers of a history of the war by General Ludendorff on the ground that it was dangerous German propaganda are scoffed at by P. C. Eastment, vice-president of the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, which is releasing the history in serial form to newspapers in this country.

While confirming the report that the Portland Oregonian would not print the Ludendorff history, as it had planned to do, and that one other paper which had contracted for the service—the Lexington Herald—had signified its desire to cancel the contract—Mr. Eastment said:

"Amazingly Uninformed"

"If all the debates on the floor of the Senate are based on such amazing lack of information as were Senator Chamberlain's and Senator Lodge's denunciations of the forthcoming publication in nearly eighty papers of the Ludendorff story of Germany's failure, it is no wonder that the deliberations of the Senate make so little headway.

"I was to be assumed that men of such prominence would not denounce as German propaganda something which they had never seen. It is to be presumed that the judgment of so prominent a statesman and publisher as Lord Northcliffe, who sent two experts to examine the manuscript before he purchased it for publication in the London Times, where it is now appearing, should carry some weight as against the unfounded hysterics of some people who know nothing about it except that Ludendorff wrote it.

"Furthermore, Lord Northcliffe's judgment is backed up in this country by the judgment of nearly eighty editors and publishers, who will print the story here."

The Von Tirpitz Memoirs

John N. Wheeler, president of the Bell Syndicate, which is releasing the Von Tirpitz Memoirs for newspaper publication, was asked whether he considered them "German propaganda." He said:

"During the war the strongest propaganda in this country against Germany, besides the actual deeds done by the German Jimkers, was their own words. Now, in their post-mortem statements, these same German Junkers will evidently indict themselves by the words out of their own mouths."

In his address in the Senate, Senator Chamberlain called attention to advertisements in newspapers announcing their intention to print Ludendorff's story of the war. He said:

"While I would not undertake to restrain the press from publishing this story if they see fit, yet I would appeal to the patriotism of all newspaper men in the United States and beg of them, as Congress ought to beg of them, not to print this narrative. My reason can be found in the character of the man.

The Senatorial Protests

"Can it be that his propaganda is to be disseminated in the United States through the instrumentality of a so-called history of the war or a story of the war? Are the American people to be educated from the German standpoint and get the German theory of the causes for the war, Germany's innocence in its instigation, its harmless carrying on of the war, through the instrumentality of the story by this man?

"Are we to have this friend of the reportorial system of Europe introduce his methods into this country and slyly instill in the American people not only that Germany was innocent of instigating the war, but that the German methods were kindly and their purpose lofty?"

Senator Lodge supported Mr. Chamberlain in expressing the hope that the newspapers would decide not to proceed with the publication of this presentation of the German case from the viewpoint of the man "chiefly responsible for the awful excesses of German war methods."

Rosewater A. N. P. A. Postal Chairman

The chairmanship of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association's postal committee has been accepted by Victor Rosewater, publisher of the Omaha Bee. Mr. Rosewater succeeds George McAneny, of the New York Times. He is not ready yet to make any statement on the policies to be adopted by his committee. President F. P. Glass of the A. N. P. A. has made no other committee appointments.

Why Didn't She Say: "Hello, Prince; How's Everything?"

Syracuse Newspaper Woman Shocks Toronto Society Folk by Breezy, Informal Greeting to Royalty

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—While Prince Edward of Wales was holding a reception here, and a number of society women were being formally presented to him, Miss Mildred E. Phillips, Sunday editor of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Post-Standard stepped up to him, shook him by the hand and said she wished to greet him on behalf of the Post-Standard and the women of the United States. The Prince looked rather dumbfounded, and a local newspaper characterized the occurrence as "an unlooked for incident."

"The ceremony was taking place upstairs in the Administration Building on the exhibition grounds in a room set apart for the purpose," reads the local newspaper account of the contretemps.

"Mrs. T. A. Russell, wife of the president of the exhibition, was introducing the ladies to H.R.H., when a woman, unknown here, and thought to be a United States Newspaper reporter, slipped up to the Prince, and, shaking hands with him cordially, said:

"'I have come with a message from my newspaper and the women of my country.'

"A wave of indignation swept over those assembled. There were a number of Toronto newspaper women present when the incident occurred."

Apparently unabashed, Miss Phillips went back to Syracuse and wrote a three-column story of her adventure with the heir to Great Britain's throne which was printed on the first page of the Post-Standard.

RESTRICT OIL STOCK ADS

New Problem for Ontario Papers—Three Promoters Face Charges

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 3.—Ontario newspapers and the courts are confronting the "oil stock" problem, and three "promoters" who have been generous users of newspaper space are facing charges of having violated the law.

Those men are Glen Craig Tobias, C. J. B. Yearsley and Thomas Fleming, who are charged with having neglected to comply with an act requiring companies offering stock for sale to first file with the Government a prospectus containing definite information as to the incorporators, etc.

Woman Editor from Japan

Miss Miyorke Kobashi, proprietor and editor of the Fujin Shuho, the women's weekly published in Tokio, Japan, will visit the United States for a three-year stay for the purpose of investigating the courses in journalism.

MEN WANTED
by Southern Newspapers

Opportunities are open on southern daily newspapers for competent newspaper men who desire to come south. Men are wanted for positions in all departments.

Address W. C. Johnson, Secy., Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association, Chattanooga, Tenn.

"KWIZ"

Justin Fair's Famous Educational Feature
Now running in

More Than 70 Papers

Each Day 10 Clever, Interest-Arousing Questions.

(Answered the Following Day)

SHALL WE SEND PROOFS?

Thompson Feature Service

No. 443 Fourth Ave., NEW YORK

NEW BUSINESS IS BEING CREATED EVERY DAY
In the readjustment of affairs

The personnel of this agency has especial capabilities which are available for accounts of merit.

A consistent performance over many years in directing the expenditure of millions of dollars in advertising to the certain profit of the investors, makes claim to attention.

Liberty Advertising Agency, Inc.
149 Fifth Avenue New York

NEW YORK STATE

A MARKET FOR MERCHANDISE

Saturday Evening Post
Ladies' Home Journal
Cosmopolitan
Woman's Home Companion
Delineator
Good Housekeeping
American
McClure's
Pictorial Review
People's Home Journal Metropolitan Red Book Century
Harper's
Scribner's
Hearst's
Sunset
Everybody's Review of Reviews
World's Work
Designer
McCall's
Women's Magazine
Mother's Magazine System
Current Opinion
Munsey's
St. Nicholas
Boy's Magazine
American Boy
Literary Digest
Collier's
Leslie's Outlook
Life
Scientific American Popular Mechanics
Popular Science
Theatre Magazine
Physical Culture
Field and Stream
House Beautiful
Motion Picture Magazine
Photoplay
Modern Priscilla
Christian Herald
Atlantic Monthly

Forty-seven magazines—the pick of the entire country.

Good magazines all of them. They are the popular sellers, the magazines that cover the country so thoroughly.

The total circulation of all of these magazines in New York State is 511,157 copies per issue. The total circulation of all of the daily newspapers listed here, in New York State is 6,914,295 copies per issue.

Over thirteen to one in favor of daily newspapers in New York State.

The total circulation of all of these magazines throughout all of the United States and the U. S. possessions, Canada, Mexico and the rest of the known world is 6,184,658 copies per issue. Over half a million (729,637) less than the daily circulation in New York State of this list of daily newspapers.

The agate line rate for advertising in all of these magazines is $38.55, while the line rate for advertising in these daily newspapers of New York State is $9.4766—one-fourth.

Do not be misled as to the "Prohibitive Cost" of daily newspaper advertising

The rate per line per thousand is overwhelmingly lower in daily newspapers, notwithstanding frequent arguments advanced by those more deeply interested in selling magazine space.

Cover New York State with New York State Daily newspapers—and cover it thoroughly.

Cooperate

With New York State merchants. They use their local daily newspapers to reach the people. You want to go into their stores and ask for your goods.

Tell these same people about your goods, and about the merchants in their towns. Cooperate with the local influences to get results. You can get just as close to these people as does your own local merchant.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
Albany Knickerbocker Press (M)	33,559	.07	.07
Albany Knickerbocker Press (S)	43,957	.07	.07
*Batavia News (E)	8,458	.0225	.0225
Binghamton Press-Leader (E)	36,546	.07	.06
*Brooklyn Daily Eagle (E)	46,902	.18	.18
*Brooklyn Daily Eagle (S)	69,046	.18	.18
*Brooklyn Standard-Union (E)	53,264	.15	.15
*Brooklyn Standard-Union (S)	58,929	.15	.15
Buffalo Courier & Enquirer (M&E)	70,626	.15	.12
Buffalo Courier (S)	115,359	.17	.15
Buffalo Evening News (E)	103,634	.16	.16
Buffalo Evening Times (E)	56,861	.10	.10
Buffalo Sunday Times (S)	74,435	.10	.10
Elmira Star-Gazette (E)	25,889	.06	.05
Glens Falls Post-Star (M)	8,045	.0214	.0214
Gloversville Leader-Republican (E)	6,275	.02	.02
Gloversville Morning Herald (M)	6,245	.03	.02
Ithaca Journal (E)	6,791	.025	.025
*Jamestown Morning Post (M)	9,131	.025	.02071
*Mount Vernon Daily Argus (E)	7,193	.02	.02
Newburgh News (E)	10,613	.04	.03
New York American (M)	305,241	.50	.41
New York American (S)	947,270	.75	.65
New York Globe (E)	179,906	.39	.36
†New York Herald (M)	107,642	.50	.36
†New York Herald (S)		.50	.45
New York Evening Journal (E)	675,118	.75	.75
New York Post (E)	32,360	.25	.20
New York Sun (E)	194,695	.39	.36
†New York Sun (M)	117,414	.39	.36
†New York Sun (S)
†New York Telegram (E)	190,681	.342	.315
†New York Telegram (S)		.246	.225
New York Times (M)	350,598	.50	.485
New York Times (S)	500,000	.55	.5335
New York Tribune (M)	108,011	.32	.28
New York Tribune (S)
New York World (E)	355,869	.40	.40
New York World (M)	334,513	.40	.40
New York World (S)	569,763	.40	.40
Niagara Falls Gazette (E)	12,454	.03	.03
Poughkeepsie Star (E)	9,920	.03214	.025
*Rochester Times-Union (E)	67,121	.14	.12
Rochester Herald (M)	35,826	.06	.06
Rome Sentinel (E)	5,353	.0179	.0157
Schenectady Union Star (E)	17,660	.08	.04
Syracuse Journal (E)	45,030	.08	.08
Troy Record (M&E)	25,537	.04	.04
Yonkers Daily News (E)	3,640	.0178	.0178

*A. B. C. Statements April 1st, 1919. Government statements April 1st, 1919.

Total Circulation	6,886,236
10,000 Line Rate	9.4766
2,500 Line Rate	10.1597

†Seven-day average.

Digitized by Google

NEW YORK CIRCULATORS PREPARE TO TAKE UP BIG QUESTIONS

President McKernan Appeals For 100 Per cent Attendance At Watertown Convention, October 20 and 21—Wants New Members and Suggestions for Program.

By James McKernan,
President N. Y. S. C. M. A.

THE most important subject at the present time is our coming meeting in Watertown on Monday and Tuesday, October 20 and 21.

I wish to take this occasion to impress upon our members the importance of attending this meeting. With our large membership and still growing, our association is now assured a success. Its rapid growth in the short time it has been in existence proves that there was a necessity for an association of this kind.

Aims to Be Largest Body of Its Kind

Just how successful it will be in the future depends upon the activity of its members. If each and every member will take an interest in association matters, there is no doubt we will grow to be the largest circulation managers' association, with the exception of the I. C. M. A.

I earnestly request that our members bring us one new member to our fall meeting. We ought to have at least one hundred members. I also urge the members to assist the chairmen of the various committees and not hesitate to write and make suggestions to them or the officers.

It is not right that the work of the organization should all be left to a few members. Your program committee will be glad to receive suggestions as to the subjects you would like discussed at the coming convention. Just jot down on your memo pad the dates of the convention and make up your mind to attend.

Your time will be well spent and will be beneficial to yourself and the paper you represent.

Program Suggestions Wanted

Chairman Hixson of the membership committee is making a drive for more members. Everybody help. Let us reach the seventy-five mark before the first of the year.

Chairman Cockerill of the program committee wants all the suggestions he can get to make an interesting program for our next convention. Send your suggestions for subjects at once.

A new member who attended our Utica convention writes that the convention was a big success to him, and that he received many valuable suggestions, let us get many more new members. They will all feel the same way.

Eugene Cornwell of the Kingston Freeman writes that he just got back to his job, having returned from overseas the first week in July. We will all be glad to see him at Watertown.

E. C. Hanford, formerly of the Poughkeepsie Eagle-News, has returned from Uncle Sam's service and has resigned his newspaper work to enter the magazine field with the Physical Culture.

We have several new members since our Utica convention: F. S. Levy, New York Mail; B. M. Preble, Staten Island Advance; N. P. Robbins, who succeeded our former Secretary Taft on the Binghamton Republican-Herald; W. B. Sutherland, the Auburn Advertiser-Journal. Chairman Hixson promises many more before October 20.

At the annual election a president, first vice-president, second vice-president, secretary-treasurer, and five directors are to be elected.

Watertown Promises Warm Welcome

Watertown will give the members a royal reception from what our friend Congdon tells us. He made a strong appeal to the members to come to his city and he is going to show us a good time after the business sessions. He will have to go some to beat Utica—How about it?

The merchants Association of New York has sent out an invitation for our convention next spring. Think it over. Let us go where the largest crowd will be able to attend.

Many serious problems are confronting the publishers and circulation managers today. News-print is not getting any cheaper and it looks as though it is going higher.

Circulation lost since the armistice must be recovered.

Abuses that are coming back in the circulation field.

Labor wages and many other problems that need serious thought must be taken up at this meeting.

You cannot afford to stay away from the next convention. Remember the dates, October 20-21, at Watertown, N. Y.

Committees Appointed

The president has appointed the following committees whose terms will expire with the next convention October 20-21.

Programme Committee—A. W. Cockerill, chairman; William Hoffman, R. B. Gobbi, M. G. Masterson.

Convention Committee—Charles H. Congdon, chairman; D. W. Tanner, A. R. Kissinger, A. J. Archer.

Publicity Committee—J. M. Annenberg, chairman; F. L. Pruyne, Victor Ryberg, Fenton Dowling.

Entertainment Committee—M. D. Treble, chairman; George M. Thereles, Charles Waterfield, M. J. Burke.

Newsboys' Welfare—E. P. McIntire, chairman; S. P. Booth, F. A. McDuff, E. J. Ponds.

Auditing Committee—M. A. Miner, chairman; C. E. Blaney.

Membership Committee—W. C. Hixson, chairman; E. E. Decker, G. S. England, Eugene Cornwell.

By-Laws Committee—Frank Emery, chairman; E. S. Batty, E. J. Barry, G. R. Williams.

Transportation Committee—R. J. Bolger, chairman; James Hennessey, William M. Henry, H. R. Schenck.

Mailing lists of our membership will gladly be furnished to members upon request. Keep in touch with the members and valuable hints will be gathered.

CIRCULATION NOTES

Ray S. South, circulation manager of the Birmingham News, informs Ewing & Purnham that he has just finished a sixty-day cash prize contest among his city carriers, which was in every way a success. All told, there were nineteen prizes, with an aggregate value of $196. Two suits of clothes were offered as special prizes by Victor H. Hanson, publisher of the News, to the carriers making the largest and second largest cash increases, regardless of class. The inducements brought out such spirited competition and fine results that a similar contest has been arranged for the News' country agents. We made wonderful gains for the month of August," writes Mr. South, "and a suggestion of our methods may prove of interest to other circulation men over the country."

Thomas Downey, circulation manager of the Boston Globe, who has been laid up for several weeks by injuries received in a fall, is much improved and correspondingly more cheerful. He was quite mystified about how his friends learned of his accident until one of his callers mentioned that he had seen it printed in Editor & Publisher—and the matter cleared itself.

Thomas H. Beck, second vice-president, has assumed the duties of circulation director of the Crowell Publishing Company, following the recent resignation of Ernest G. Scholz.

Bert Bowman, formerly with the country circulation department of the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press, has entered the employ of the William L. Betts Company, New York.

Cecil Hockmuth, for several years connected with the city circulation department of the Des Moines Capital, has left that paper and will spend the winter in the South, mostly in the oil well district of Texas. Mr. Hockmuth recently returned from France.

E. R. Ragan, circulation manager of the Omaha Bee, visited Des Moines for several days recently.

C. B. McCauley, assistant circulation manager of the Wichita (Kan.) Beacon, has just returned from a trip which included the leading newspapers of a half dozen middle west cities.

CORRIGAN TO LOS ANGELES

Resigns from Shaffer Papers to Join Hearst Forces

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 3.—Robert J. Corrigan, for four years circulation manager of the Rocky Mountain News and Denver Times, goes to Los Angeles after September 6 as director of promotion for the Examiner. Previous to coming to Denver, Mr. Corrigan was circulation manager of the St. Louis Times, the St. Louis Star, the Indianapolis Star and the Detroit Free Press.

Robert J. Corrigan

ADVERTISING SECURED

Advertising for Special Issues of Daily Papers and Magazines. Souvenir Programs of big events. Publicity campaigns conducted. If you have a legitimate reason for producing something special I have the men and means to do it.

J. L. Le BERTHON
2 RECTOR STREET NEW YORK CITY

Newark (N. J.) Ledger's Great Gain

First 6 months 1918 total lineage	1,954,802
First 6 months 1919 total lineage	3,155,962
Total gained in lineage	1,101,160
Per cent. gain	51%

NATIONAL ADVERTISING

First 6 months 1918	18,022
First 6 months 1919	133,148
July (Morning only) 1918—total lineage	356,784
July (Morning only) 1919—total lineage	474,754
Gain for the month	116,970

This is the largest percentage gain in New Jersey in display, Classified and National Advertising.

The Newark Morning Ledger, weekday, is the highest price home delivered paper in Newark, being 14c. per week against 10c. for the next highest priced paper.

Sale price single copy, morning 2c., Sunday 5c.

Only Morning Newspaper in Industrial Center with a million population.

L. T. RUSSELL
Editor and Publisher

Some Vital Facts About "A. B. C." Newspapers of Interest to All Space Buyers

MORNING newspaper circulations throughout the United States total 9,948,804 paid copies per day. That is—all of the morning newspapers combined have a net paid circulation of 9,948,804 copies per day.

The cost of a line of display advertising space in every one of these newspapers is known to be in round numbers $22.74. In other words—one agate line in all of the morning newspapers would represent a total investment of $22.74.

Newspapers having "A. B. C." memberships have a total combined net paid morning circulation of 7,987,080 copies per day and a joint rate per agate line of $16.15.

All of the evening newspapers of the United States have a total net paid daily circulation of 18,026,323 and a joint agate line rate of $44.30.

"A. B. C." evening newspapers have a total net paid circulation of 12,113,300 and a joint rate of $24.47.

All morning and evening newspapers combined have a total net paid daily circulation of 27,975,127 and a joint rate of $67.03.

All "A. B. C." morning and evening newspapers combined have a total net paid daily circulation of 20,100,380 and a joint rate of $40.61 per agate line.

All Sunday newspapers in the United States have a total combined net paid circulation of 16,617,717 copies per day and a joint line rate of $30.07.

"A. B. C." Sunday newspapers, or rather all Sunday newspapers enjoying an "A. B. C." membership have a total combined net paid circulation of 14,247,204 and a joint agate line rate of $22.38.

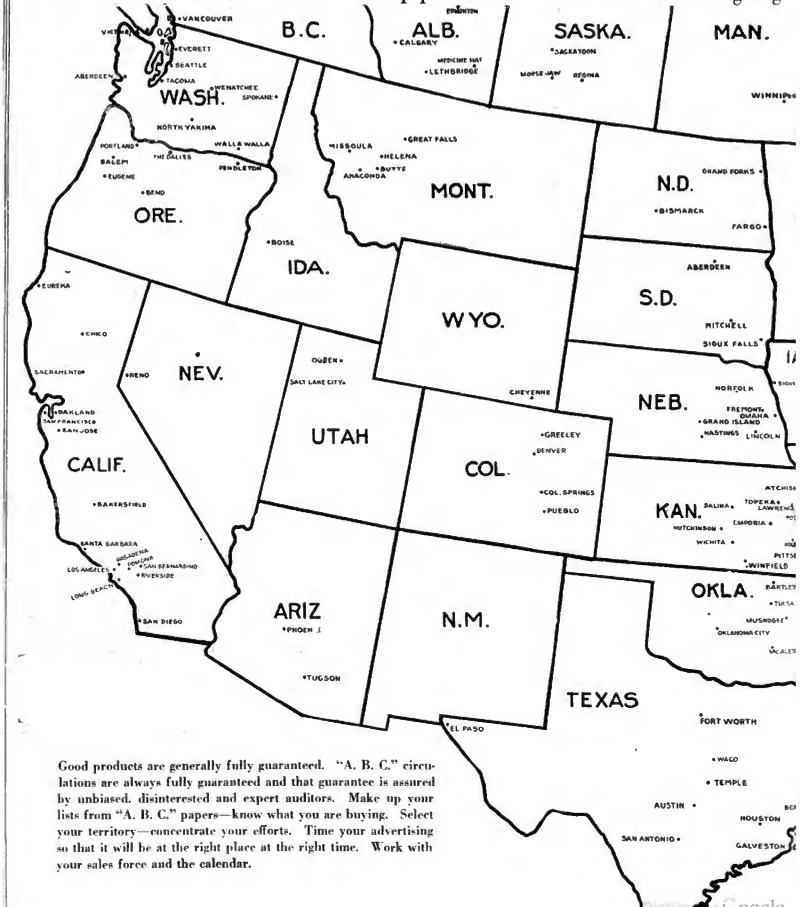
The facts speak for themselves. They need no interpretation. It is fair to state that "A. B. C." newspapers deliver the goods in "known quantities"; that "A. B. C." newspapers offer the advertiser, the agent and the space-buyer a "short line" yes a "sure line" to large returns and a large success.

On pages 24 and 25 all "A. B. C. Cities" are visualized for the enterprising space buyers.

On pages 26 to 32 inclusive the name of every daily newspaper member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations has been listed with its net paid average daily circulation for the six months' period ending April 1, 1919, and its minimum 5,000 agate line space rate for all "national" or "foreign" advertising in effect at August 1, 1919.

Some of the listings are in full-face type—which denotes active, vital interest in "A. B. C." membership. These listings speak to you in no uncertain terms of aggressive management and fine cooperative spirit.

For complete list of all English language daily newspapers in the United States with summary showing number of newspapers—Morning, Evening and Sunday—by States, etc., see Editor & Publisher for July 24, and August 7 and 14.



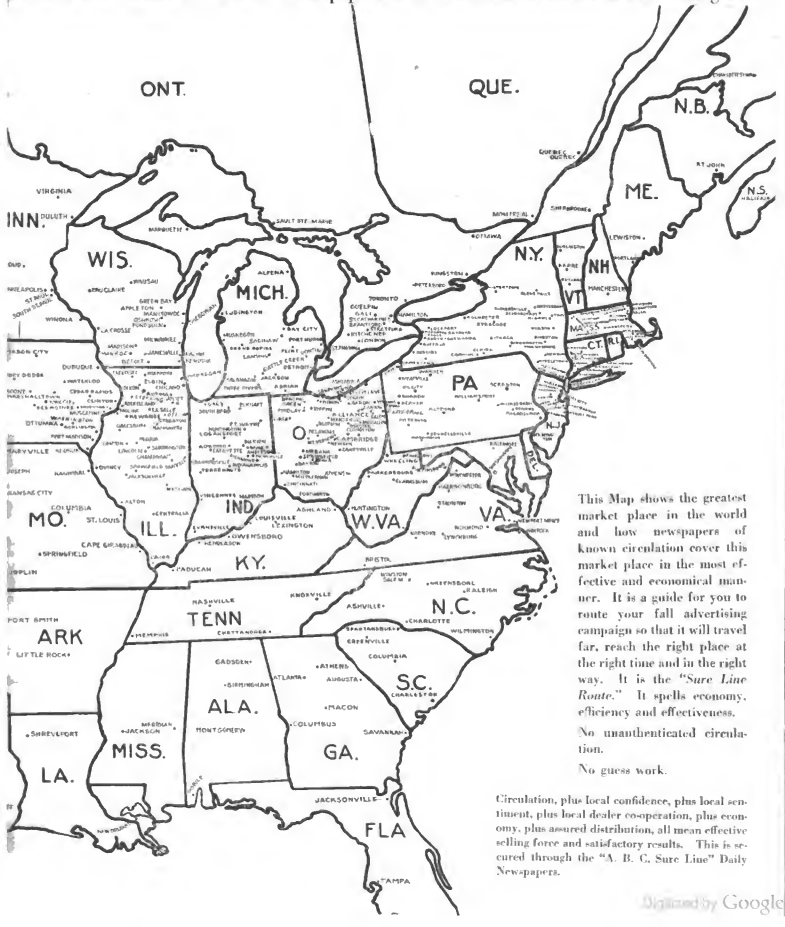
For summary by States of "A. B. C." Circulations and Advertising Rates, see page 26 of this issue.

"A. B. C." Map, Circulations and Advertising Rates appear on the following pages

Digitized by Google

NATIONAL ADVERTISERS MAY REACH THE GRE

Here Are the Cities in Which "A.B.C." Newspapers Are Published—On the Following Pages



Good products are generally fully guaranteed. "A. B. C." circulations are always fully guaranteed and that guarantee is assured by unbiased, disinterested and expert auditors. Make up your lists from "A. B. C." papers—know what you are buying. Select your territory—concentrate your efforts. Time your advertising so that it will be at the right place at the right time. Work with your sales force and the calendar.

Digitized by Google

T BUYING PUBLIC VIA THE "A.B.C. SURE LINE"

ill Be Found Listed All "A.B.C." Newspapers With Their Circulations and Advertising Rates.

This Map shows the greatest market place in the world and how newspapers of known circulation cover this market place in the most effective and economical manner. It is a guide for you to route your fall advertising campaign so that it will travel far, reach the right place at the right time and in the right way. It is the "Sure Line Route." It spells economy, efficiency and effectiveness.

No unauthenticated circulation.

No guess work.

Circulation, plus local confidence, plus local sentiment, plus local dealer co-operation, plus economy, plus assured distribution, all mean effective selling force and satisfactory results. This is secured through the "A. B. C. Sure Line" Daily Newspapers.

Digitized by Google

"A.B.C. Sure-Line" to American Markets

Many national advertisers think of the letters, "A. B. C.," as standing for "Above Board Circulations." And that is exactly what the Audit Bureau of Circulation does signify.

The Bureau came into existence with the purpose of giving to circulation audits the same credence with business men which are attached to audit reports of banks or other financial institutions.

Newspaper members of the A. B. C. PREFER to have their statements of circulation VERIFIED and AT-TESTED by this impartial, coldly judicial organization, controlled by the BUYERS OF ADVERTISING.

And space-buyers do not undervalue this fact. Being hard-headed business men they appraise it for its full significance to them. It is this attitude of space-buyers toward "A. B. C." newspapers which gives to newspaper membership in the Bureau real "asset-value."

In the pages following appear the names of "A. B. C." newspapers, with their circulation figures as of April 1, 1919, and their advertising rates as of August 1, 1919. The feature is published for the convenient reference of buyers of advertising.

ALABAMA	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Birmingham Age-Herald .....(B)	23,560	.05
Sunday Edition .....(M)	29,795	.06
Birmingham Ledger .....(R)	37,888	.07*
Birmingham News .....(R)	45,967	.08*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	48,055	.10*
Gadsden Journal .....(R)	4,722	.0178572
Mobile News-Item .....(R)	10,766	.05*
Mobile Register .....(B)	25,179	.05*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	35,048	.06*
Montgomery Advertiser .....(B)	.....	.05*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	.....	.06*
Montgomery Journal .....(R)	21,358	.05*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	20,131	.05*

ARIZONA	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Phoenix Arizona Gazette.....(R)	8,244	.04*
Phoenix Republican .....(R)	9,934	.035*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	10,968	.035*
Tucson Citizen .....(R)	4,106	.025*
Tucson Star .....(R)	3,150	.0214286*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	3,609	.0214286*
ARKANSAS
Fort Smith American .....(D)	13,222	.03*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	13,845	.03*
Fort Smith Times-Record .....(T)	11,470	.025*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	11,217	.025*
Little Rock Democrat .....(R)	22,326	.05"
Little Rock Gazette .....(R)	40,350	.06*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	54,855	.08*

SUMMARY BY STATES OF "A. B. C. CIRCULATIONS"—MORNING, EVENING SUNDAY—WITH ADVERTISING RATES.

State	Population	Circulation Morning	Line Rate Morning	Circulation Evening	Joint Line Rate Evening	Circulation Total M. & E.	Joint Line Rate M. & E.	Circulation Sunday	Line Rate Sunday	Joint Line Rate Sunday
Alabama	2,885,270	69,786	$.15	120,833	$.2478572	190,642	$.3978572	166,280	$.33
Arizona	272,084	13,205	.0642266	12,230	.065	25,435	.1214286	14,702	.0642266
Arkansas	1,752,204	52,373	.09	33,798	.071	87,368	.1607143	25,315	.09
California	3,119,412	401,388	.5014286	521,683	1.0071430	920,652	1.5042516	778,784	1.3136786
Colorado	1,016,561	61,690	.1492858	136,546	.2892858	202,485	.4385716	112,732	.34
Connecticut	1,286,298	73,381	.225	116,906	.3428578	190,757	.5378578	84,879	.135
Delaware	218,041	10,269	.05	31,219	.065	41,515	.065	31,450	.05
District of Columbia	374,594	88,730	.22	109,104	.31	248,834	.53	220,870	.50
Florida	968,277	24,045	.15	25,846	.075	49,891	.205	68,456	.145
Georgia	2,895,617	107,490	.216	172,134	.3225	279,624	.5375	210,171	.53
Idaho	481,798	16,297	.05			16,297	.05	15,598	.05
Illinois	6,317,734	772,440	.9471429	1,003,626	1.8899150	1,826,066	2.8767579	1,411,579	1.3821430
Indiana	2,854,107	257,760	.4257156	332,376	.5971457	590,136	1.0164303	362,011	.5642856
Iowa	2,224,771	198,841	.3607143	275,757	.5497168	512,396	1.3264288	163,271	.4007143
Kansas	1,690,949	97,758	.21	113,929	.2800717	211,687	.4780717	102,350	.21
Kentucky	2,606,374	114,688	.24	130,790	.2671429	245,478	.5071429	146,227	.3057143
Louisiana	1,884,776	66,267	.150	127,230	.215	222,803	.370	245,372	.415
Maine	742,191	23,088	.05	57,863	.085	80,951	.135	21,549	.025
Maryland	1,364,339	160,412	.37	216,150	.52	376,562	.89	321,166	.56
Massachusetts	3,852,790	737,796	1.34	960,906	2.4857148	1,728,795	3.3727148	1,346,601	1.795
Michigan	3,135,076	194,446	.417	600,351	1.1175573	794,777	1.5292573	414,426	.595
Minnesota	2,548,287	148,986	.36	419,731	.7571430	567,397	1.1471430	378,286	.56
Mississippi	2,091,466	4,772	.025	11,179	.05	15,951	.075	10,951	.075
Missouri	3,449,498	549,522	.97	757,478	1.7721430	1,326,600	2.2621430	1,083,577	1.985
Montana	448,976	41,855	.16	27,603	.135	69,338	.293	57,157	.175
Nebraska	1,281,577	111,797	.26	208,844	.52	318,641	.78	230,317	.40
Nevada	114,242			6,662	.025	6,662	.025
New Hampshire	446,382	11,475	.055	13,662	.055	25,137	.11
New Jersey	3,090,271			253,296	.5071701	253,296	.5071701	54,000	.1135
New York	10,048,989	1,250,027	2.7014286	1,907,428	3.7003575	3,157,455	6.4617861	2,281,075	3.659
North Carolina	2,400,023	24,750	.05	85,093	.11	109,843	.16	94,938	.09
North Dakota	791,437	23,771	.09	27,692	.135	50,449	.225	24,979	.09
Ohio	5,759,394	1,151,624	.6964286	660,764	1.2360724	1,812,716	1.7360010	859,921	.9071430
Oklahoma	2,377,629	109,451	.2478572	76,028	.2942858	184,479	.4521430	123,467	.2678572
Oregon	848,243	143,476	.2928536	142,751	.2915002	286,407	.5843538	177,477	.3742858
Pennsylvania	8,720,017	993,646	1.9035715	714,184	1.4171452	1,699,532	3.3207167	1,292,582	2.055
Rhode Island	627,415	28,675	.075	121,947	.28	151,622	.353	61,972	.105
South Carolina	1,680,324	51,019	.14	58,813	.125	99,832	.255	64,346	.17
South Dakota	750,434	18,596	.0535572	19,946	.06	34,902	.1135	13,350	.0428572
Tennessee	2,321,253	182,192	.395	155,603	.345	337,795	.65	248,318	.415
Texas	4,601,279	236,813	.625	229,360	.455	457,291	1.08	434,324	.86
Utah	453,646	46,438	.0814286	52,113	.14	98,551	.2214286	75,087	.1614286
Vermont	366,182	12,154	.0428572	6,761	.0225	18,779	.0653572
Virginia	2,224,600	109,938	.2928572	131,274	.3742858	240,983	.5442858	139,151	.296
Washington	1,538,179	113,386	.265	249,247	.47	362,633	.735	270,196	.515
West Virginia	1,479,105	21,015	.0535572	84,927	.1750001	75,942	.2103573	47,725	.1278572
Wisconsin	2,553,982	82,697	.1571429	248,041	.3714291	466,738	.5321720	194,538	.3821429
Wyoming	196,380	.....	.....	5,847	.025	5,847	.025	.....	.....
Total	104,815,196	7,987,060	$16,1667582	12,132,990	$24.6852570	20,100,350	$40.6170452	14,267,294	$22.3810955

Digitized by Google

"A.B.C. SURE-LINE" NEWSPAPERS SELL KNOWN CIRCULATION

CALIFORNIA	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Bakersfield Californian (R)	6,230	.02*
Bakersfield Echo (D)	3,744	.02*
Sunday Edition (M)	3,961	.02*
Chico Enterprise (R)	1,265	.01*
Eureka Humboldt Times (D)	4,998	.02*
Sunday Edition (M)	5,116	.02*
Long Beach Press (E)	5,728	.03*
Long Beach Telegram (R)	6,424	.03*
Los Angeles Examiner (B)	72,972	.14§
Sunday Edition (M)	146,939	.21§
(12-31-18- 3 Mos. Stmt.)
Los Angeles Express (R)	55,917	.10*
Los Angeles Herald (E)	127,774	.17
Los Angeles Times (B)	82,796	.12§
Sunday Edition (M)	124,338	.16§
Oakland Tribune (R)	44,154	.09
Sunday Edition (M)	48,884	.09
Pasadena Star-News (R)	11,212	.04642866§
Pomona Progress (R)	2,876	.016§
Riverside Press (R)	4,036	.01787572*
Sacramento Bee (T)	35,413	.06*
Saturday Edition (Y)	37,364	.06*
San Fernardino Index (T)	2,102	.02
Sunday Edition (M)	2,108	.02*
San Bernardino Sun (B)	4,482	.02142866§
Sunday Edition (M)	4,544	.02142866§
San Diego Tribune (R) 15,166 }	30,471	.06
San Diego Union (B) 15,305 }
Sunday Edition (M)	24,528	.05
San Diego Sun (R)	15,517	.035*
San Francisco Bulletin (R)	86,886	.18§
San Francisco Call and Post (R)	95,595	.16
San Francisco Chronicle (B)	15,200	.20812 5§
Sunday Edition (M)	142,514	.23125§
San Francisco Examiner (B)	115,766	.25§
Sunday Edition (M)	263,784	.45§
San Jose Mercury-Herald (B)	13,106	.04
Sunday Edition (M)	14,068	.04
Santa Barbara News-Independent (R)	4,785	.0178572*
COLORADO
Colorado Springs Gazette (R)	4,446	.025
Sunday Edition (M)	6,704	.025
Colorado Springs Telegraph (R)	5,789	.025
Denver Post (R)	113,526	.13*
Sunday Edition (M)	142,613	.175*
Denver Rocky Mountain News (B)	32,094	.08*
Sunday Edition (M)	54,333	.11*
Denver Times (E)	34,863	.07*
Greeley Tribune-Republican (R)	2,408 }
Greeley Tribune-Republican (B)	1,309 §	3,717 .0142858*
Pueblo Chieftain (R)	7,944	.03*
Sunday Edition (M)	8,769	.03*
Star Journal (R)	....	....
CONNECTICUT
Ansonia Sentinel (R)	6,579	.02*
Bridgeport Post-Standard (R) 27,568
Bridgeport Telegram (B) 17,775 §	45,463	.09
Sunday Post (M)	13,205	.04
Hartford Courant (B)	23,767	.05*
Sunday Edition (M)	29,429	.06*
Hartford Times (R)	36,055	.06
Meriden Record (B)	6,608	.025§
New Haven Journal-Courier (B)	14,714	.035*
New Haven Times-Leader (R)	15,594	.035
New London Day (R)	10,626	.02642866§
Norwalk Hour (R)	3,186	.02142866§
Stamford Advocate (E)	7,438	.0214286*
Waterbury American (R)	9,200	.02857158§
Waterbury Republican (B)	10,527	.035§
Sunday Edition (M)	12,238	.035§
DELAWARE
Wilmington Every Evening (R)	12,711	.03*
Wilmington Journal (R)	18,508	.035
Wilmington News (B)	10,599	.03*
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
Washington Herald (B)	26,882	.07*
Sunday Edition (M)	23,487	.07*
Washington Post (B)	61,848	.15§
Sunday Edition (M)	80,105	.16§
Washington Star (R)	101,643	.17
Sunday Edition (M)	82,119	.13
Washington Times (R)	58,461	.14
Sunday Edition (M)	45,168	.14

FLORIDA	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Jacksonville Metropolis (R)	19,135	.045*
Jacksonville Times-Union (B)	28,573	.06*
Sunday Edition (M)	36,778	.06*
Miami Herald (B)	6,455	.03*
Sunday Edition (M)	7,524	.035*
Miami Metropolis (R)	6,711	.03*
Tampa Tribune (R)	19,017	.04
Sunday Edition (M)	25,154	.05
GEORGIA
Athens Herald (R)	2,825	.0125
Atlanta Constitution (B)	51,188	.085*
Sunday Edition (M)	53,999	.085*
Atlanta Georgian (R)	49,441	.08*
Atlanta Sunday American (M)	92,918	.12*
Atlanta Journal (E)	59,223	.09*
Sunday Edition (M)	69,794	.09*
Augusta Chronicle (B)	11,672	.03*
Sunday Edition (M)	10,651	.035*
Augusta Herald (R)	17,413	.035*
Sunday Edition (M)	12,812	.035*
Columbus Enquirer-Sun (B)	3,238	.02*
Sunday Edition (M)	3,232	.02*
Columbus Ledger (T)	7,360	.025*
Sunday Edition (M)	7,268	.025*
Macon News (E)	10,547	.04*
Sunday Edition (M)	17,429	.04*
Macon Telegraph (B)	20,983	.04*
Sunday Edition (M)	18,086	.04*
Savannah News (E)	20,409	.04
Sunday Edition (M)	24,682	.04
Savannah Press (R)	16,315	.04*
IDAHO
Boise Statesman (B)	16,267	.04*
Sunday Edition (M)	15,589	.04*
Twin Falls News (R)	2,233	.025§
ILLINOIS
Alton Telegraph (R)	5,054	.01428858*
Aurora Beacon-News (R)	15,743	.04*
Bloomington Bulletin (T)	7,482	.02*
Sunday Edition (M)	9,303	.02*
Bloomington Pantagraph (B)	16,941	.035*
Cairo Bulletin (B)	1,838	.0107143*
Sunday Edition (M)	1,833	.0107143*
Cairo Citizen (R)	2,689	.0125*
Canton Ledger (R)	6,433	.01214292*
Canton Register (E)	3,450	.015*
Centralia Sentinel (R)	4,836	.1764*
Champaign Gazette (R)	4,605	.01285728*
Champaign News (T)	6,916	.02142866*
Sunday Edition (M)	6,918	.02142866*
Chicago American (R)	330,216	.40*
Chicago Herald & Examiner (B)	289,094	.34§
Sunday Edition (M)	596,851	.49§
Chicago News (R)	386,498	.43*
Chicago Post (R)	51,023	.18§
Chicago Tribune (B)	434,026	.45§
Sunday Edition (M)	693,895	.55§
Danville Commercial-News (R)	15,036	.06*
Dixon Telegraph (R)	5,027	.02*
Elgin Courier (E)	8,153	.02*
Freeport Journal-Standard (R)	6,648	.01785728*
Freeport Bulletin (R)	4,428	.01785728*
Galesburg Mail (R)	8,548	.02*
Galesburg Republican-Register (R)	8,777	.01785728*
Jacksonville Courier (R)	2,884	.00785728*
Jacksonville Journal (D)	5,432	.01642866§
Sunday Edition (M)	5,448	.01642866§
Joliet Herald-News (R)	16,771	.045*
Sunday Edition (M)	16,174	.045*
(3-31-19 3 Mos. Stmt.)
Kankakee Republican (R)	4,040	.01285728*
Kewanee Star-Courier (R)	3,472	.01285728*
La Salle Tribune & Peru Press (R)	2,108	.0107143*
Lincoln Courier-Herald (R)	1,785	.015*
Mattoon Journal-Gazette (R)	5,213	.01142856*
Moline Dispatch (R)	9,788	.03*
Ottawa Republican-Times (R)	3,673	.015*
Peoria Journal (R)	19,713	.04
Sunday Journal and Transcript (M)	17,282	.055
Peoria Star (E)	23,051	.04
Sunday Edition (M)	14,334	.04
Quincy Herald (R)	10,019	.025*
Quincy Journal (R)	8,275	.035*

Digitized by Google

A.B.C. NEWSPAPERS Cover the Country from Hell Gate to the Golden Gate

ILLINOIS—(Continued)	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Quincy Whig .....(D)	7,872	.02*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	9,480	.0235715*
Rockford Register-Gazette .....(R)	12,911	.03
Rockford Republic .....(E)	7,127	.02*
Rockford Star .....(D)	10,498	.03§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	12,586	.033§
Rock Island Argus .....(R)	8,132	.0214286*
Springfield Journal .....(R)	16,628	.035*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	11,545	.035*
Springfield Register .....(R)	20,031	.04*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	15,930	.04*
Sterling Gazette .....(R)	5,072	.02*
Streator Free Press .....(E) (3-31-19 3 Mos. Stmt.)	3,364	.0121429*
Streator Independent Times .....(R)	2,840	.0121429*
Waukegan Sun .....(R)	3,490	.015
INDIANA
Anderson Bulletin .....(R)	6,029	.015*
Anderson Herald .....(D)	6,274	.015*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	7,699	.015*
Crawfordsville Journal .....(R)	3,271	.015*
Elkhart Truth .....(R)	8,256	.0214286
Evansville Courier .....(E)	24,146	.04*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	21,048	.04*
Evansville Journal-News .....(Y)	15,991	.03*
Saturday Edition .....(Y)	10,282	.03*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	12,179	.03*
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette.....(R)	29,091	.04
Sunday Edition .....(M)	23,706	.04
Fort Wayne News & Sentinel.....(R)	32,902	.055
Gary Post .....(E)	5,101	.025*
Huntington Herald .....(M)	3,797	.0126572*
Huntington Press .....(D)	3,828	.015*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	3,851	.015*
Indianapolis Times .....(E)	47,883	.07*
Indianapolis News .....(R)	123,404	.16*
Indianapolis Star .....(R)	92,759	.11*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	106,381	.14*
Kokomo Dispatch .....(E)	5,567	.0178572*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	6,010	.0178572*
Kokomo Tribune .....(R)	8,332	.0214286*
Lafayette Courier .....(R)	8,994	.02*
Lafayette Journal .....(E)	10,415	.0214§
Logansport Pharos Reporter ....(R)	6,621	.015
Logansport Tribune .....(D)	5,258	.015*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	5,340	.015*
Madison Courier .....(R)	2,820	.0107143*
Marion Chronicle .....(R)	6,769	.0214286*
Marion Leader-Tribune .....(D)	8,301	.0214286*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	8,516	.0214286*
Muncie Star .....(E)	26,853	.05*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	16,818	.05*
Newcastle Courier .....(R)	3,930	.0178572*
Richmond Item .....(D)	8,225	.025*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	8,594	.025*
Richmond Palladium .....(R)	11,096	.03*
South Bend Tribune .....(R)	16,814	.035
Terre Haute Star .....(E)	27,046	.04*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	19,267	.04*
Terre Haute Tribune .....(R)	24,845	.04*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	19,192	.04*
Vincennes Commercial .....(D)	3,894	.015
Sunday Edition .....(M)	3,997	.015
IOWA
Boone News-Republican .....(R)	3,444	.0121429*
Burlington Gazette .....(R)	10,180	.025§
Burlington Hawk-Eye .....(D)	10,904	.03*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	12,502	.03*
Cedar Rapids Gazette .....(R)	15,978	.035*
Cedar Rapids Republican (D) 11,191 | Cedar Rapids Times .....(T) 3,207 | Sunday Edition .....(M)	14,398	.0357143*
	15,232	.0357143*
Clinton Advertiser .....(R)	8,473	.025*
Clinton Herald .....(R)	6,998	.02*
Davenport Democrat-Leader .....(E)	16,284	.04*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	18,258	.04*
Davenport Times .....(E)	25,642	.05*
Des Moines Capital .....(R)	60,660	.08
Des Moines Register.....(R) 63,984 |	111,517	.14
Des Moines Tribune .....(R) 48,133 | Sunday Edition .....(M)	70,745	.12
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald (E) 6,000 |	16,079	.04*
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald (D) 10,000 | Sunday Edition .....(M)	16,037	.04*
Dubuque Times-Journal .....(D) 5,475 |	11,025	.03
Dubuque Times-Journal .....(R) 5,550 | Sunday Edition .....(M)	11,029	.03*

IOWA—(Continued)	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Fort Dodge Messenger & Chronicle (R)	8,762	.03*
Fort Madison Democrat .....(R)	3,485	.0214286§
Iowa City Citizen.....(R)	3,195	.015*
Iowa City Press .....(E)	3,139	.015*
Keokuk Gate City and Constitution Democrat .....(R)	5,894	.028§
Marshalltown Times-Republican ...(R)	13,130	.0285715*
Mason City Globe Gazette & Times (R)	9,017	.03*
Muscatine Journal and News Tribune .....(R)	8,331	.02*
Ottumwa Courier .....(R)	13,006	.025*
Sioux City Journal .....(E) 24,707 |	55,151	.08
Sioux City Journal .....(R) 30,444 | Sunday Edition .....(M)	27,144	.08
Sioux City Tribune.....(R)	49,356	.08
Washington Journal .....(R)	2,827	.0128572
Waterloo Courier and Reporter....(R)	14,382	.03
Waterloo Times-Tribune .....(D)	11,096	.025*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	12,324	.025*
KANSAS
Atchison Globe .....(R)	7,126	.02*
Emporia Gazette .....(R)	3,905	.0117857*
Hutchinson Gazette .....(D)	8,095	.02*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	8,337	.02*
Hutchinson News .....(R)	11,471	.025*
Iola Register .....(R)	3,719	.0142858*
Lawrence Journal-World .....(R)	4,592	.0128572*
Ottawa Herald .....(R)	4,326	.0142858*
Pittsburg Headlight .....(R)	2,634	.02*
Salina Journal .....(R)	3,708	.015*
Topeka Capital .....(R)	35,486	.07
Sunday Edition .....(M)	33,810	.07
Topeka Journal .....(R)	25,846	.05*
Wichita Beacon .....(R)	39,322	.07
Wichita Eagle .....(R)	54,152	.12
Sunday Edition .....(M)	60,213	.12
Winfield Courier .....(R)	2,180	.0128572*
KENTUCKY
Ashland Independent .....(R)	4,234	.025§
Henderson Gleaner .....(D)	3,472	.015*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	3,690	.015*
Lexington Herald .....(R)	11,579	.035
Sunday Edition .....(M)	11,003	.04
Lexington Leader .....(R)	12,552	.03*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	12,455	.03*
Louisville Courier-Journal.....(R)	43,319	.09§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	61,983	.11§
Louisville Herald .....(D)	52,456	.08*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	48,767	.08*
Louisville Post .....(E)	41,952	.08*
Louisville Times .....(R)	62,871	.10§
Owensboro Inquirer .....(T)	3,925	.0107143*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	4,046	.0107143*
Owensboro Messenger .....(D)	5,820	.02*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	6,136	.02*
Paducah Sun .....(R)	5,256	.0214286§
LOUISIANA
New Orleans Item .....(R)	73,528	.12
Sunday Edition .....(M)	87,347	.15
New Orleans States .....(R)	44,290	.07
Sunday Edition .....(M)	39,304	.07
New Orleans Times-Picayune ....(R)	78,417	.12
Sunday Edition .....(M)	94,624	.15
Shreveport Journal .....(R)	9,718	.025*
Shreveport Times .....(R)	16,850	.035
Sunday Edition .....(M)	24,297	.045
MAINE
Lewiston Journal .....(T)	12,600	.035*
Saturday Edition .....(Y)	14,715	.035*
Lewiston Sun .....(E)	8,882	.025§
Portland Express & Advertiser .(R)	25,263	.05§
Sunday Telegram .....(M)	21,549	.0375§
(Telegram is the Sunday Edition of Express and Advertiser.)
Portland Press .....(B)	14,206	.025*
MARYLAND
Baltimore American .....(B) 64,961 |	102,489	.06
Baltimore Star .....(R) 37,528 |
Baltimore Sunday American .....(M)	90,991	.16
Baltimore News .....(R)	105,416	.15*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	106,354	.15§
Baltimore Sun .....(B) 95,451 |	168,637	.25
Baltimore Sun .....(R) 73,186 | Sunday Edition .....(M)	123,801	.25

For Explanation of Key-Letters and Markings See Foot Note on Page 32.

"A.B.C. SURE-LINE" NEWSPAPERS MEET THE ACID TEST

MASSACHUSETTS	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Attleboro Sun .....(R)	4,415	.0128572§
Boston Sunday Advertiser and American .....(M)	365,026	.35
Boston Transcript .....(T)	32,467	.20
Saturday Edition .....(Y)	49,774	.25§
Boston American .....(R)	300,878	.40
Boston Globe .....(B) 80,875	293,781	.30*
Boston Globe .....(R) 212,906 Sunday Edition .....(M)	329,446	.35*
Boston Herald .....(B) 122,215	258,294	.35
Boston Traveler .....(R) 136,079 Sunday Herald .....(M)	127,520	.25
Boston Post .....(B)	459,643	.45*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	367,074	.35*
Clinton Item .....(R)	2,541	.0215§
Fall River Herald .....(R)	9,419	.025"
Fall River News .....(R)	6,789	.02*
Fitchburg News .....(R)	5,525	.0178572"
Fitchburg Sentinel .....(R)	6,868	.0228572§
Gloucester Times .....(R)	6,851	.0192856§
Haverhill Gazette .....(R)	13,819	.025§
Lawrence Eagle .....(B) 1,826	14,058	.03"
Lawrence Tribune .....(R) 12,232
Lawrence Telegram .....(R)	7,513	.025§
Lynn Item .....(R)	15,121	.0392856§
Lynn Telegram-News .....(R)	15,201	.04*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	8,802	.04*
New Bedford Mercury .....(B) 5,382	26,774	.05
New Bedford Standard .....(R) 21,392 Sunday Standard .....(M)	21,446	.05
Newburyport News & Herald .....(R)	5,853	.0185715§
No. Adams Transcript .....(R)	7,863	.01714296§
Northampton Hampshire Gazette..(R)	5,710	.0178572§
Salem News .....(R)	18,851	.05§
Springfield News .....(R) 30,228	44,854	.07"
Springfield Republican .....(B) 14,626 Sunday Edition .....(M)	19,624	.045"
Springfield Union .....(B) 26,554	42,883	.07
Springfield Union .....(R) 16,329 Sunday Edition .....(M)	28,976	.07
Taunton Gazette .....(R)	7,536	.025*
Worcester Gazette .....(R)	26,121	.06§
Worcester Post .....(R)	22,272	.04*
Worcester Telegram .....(E)	32,198	.07§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	36,877	.07§

MICHIGAN
Adrian Telegram .....(R)	10,420	.025*
Alpena News .....(E)	2,754	.0142858*
Battle Creek Enquirer & News....(T)	11,102	.03
Saturday Edition .....(Y)	7,771	.03
Sunday Edition .....(M) (3-31-19 3 mos. stm't:)	9,511	.03
Battle Creek Moon Journal.....(R)	5,906	.015"
Bay City Times and Tribune .....(R)	16,779	.035
Detroit Free Press .....(B)	134,446	.17
Sunday Edition .....(M)	156,035	.20
Detroit Journal .....(E)	109,024	.175
Detroit News .....(R)	218,543	.25
Sunday Edition .....(M)	182,203	.20
Detroit Times .....(R)	18,761	.06
Flint Journal .....(R)	24,398	.05
Grand Rapids News .....(R)	14,727	.04*
Grand Rapids Press .....(R)	78,606	.11
Hillsdale News .....(R)	5,419	.015*
Jackson Citizen Patriot .....(T)	21,356	.05
Saturday Edition .....(Y)	17,177	.05
Sunday Edition .....(M)	19,000	.05
Kalamazoo Gazette Telegraph....(T)	23,088	.05
Saturday Edition .....(Y)	19,091	.05
Sunday Edition .....(M)	22,366	.05
Lansing State Journal .....(R)	26,315	.05*
Ludington News .....(T)	3,339	.015"
Sunday Edition .....(M)	3,396	.015"
Muskegon Chronicle .....(R)	11,962	.03
Pontiac Daily Press .....(R) (12-31-18 3 mos. stm't:)	10,860	.025
Port Huron Times-Herald .....(R)	11,559	.0285715*
Saginaw News-Courier .....(R)	23,320	.05
Sunday Edition .....(M)	21,912	.05
Three Rivers Commercial .....(R)	2,093	.01"

MINNESOTA
Duluth Herald .....(R)	35,283	.06"
Duluth News-Tribune .....(E)	21,355	.04*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	30,854	.05*
Minneapolis Journal .....(M)	98,225	.13§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	89,469	.13§

MINNESOTA—(Continued)	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Minneapolis News .....(R)	61,998	.09*
Minneapolis Tribune .....(B) 66,306	124,074	.14§
Minneapolis Tribune .....(R) 57,768 Sunday Edition .....(M)	132,842	.16§
St. Cloud Times .....(R)	1,762	.0142858*
St. Paul Dispatch .....(R) 77,588	138,061	.18§
St. Paul Pioneer Press .....(B) 61,613 Sunday Edition .....(M)	81,289	.15
St. Paul News .....(R)	71,966	.10*
Winona Republican .....(M)	43,102	.09*
So. St. Paul Reporter .....(R)	5,006	.025§
Virginia Enterprise .....(R)	2,346	.0172572*
Winona Republican-Herald .....(R)	6,544	.03*

MISSISSIPPI
Jackson Clarion-Ledger .....(R)	4,772	.025*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	5,271	.025*
Jackson News .....(R)	5,424	.03
Sunday Edition .....(M)	4,976	.03§
Meridian Star .....(R)	5,705	.02*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	6,197	.02*

MISSOURI
Cape Girardeau Southeast Miss'n (R)	4,755	.015"
Columbia Missourian .....(R)	972	.0178572*
Hannibal Courier-Post .....(R)	5,176	.015*
Joplin Globe .....(D)	26,376	.06*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	27,584	.06*
Joplin News-Herald .....(T)	16,330	.04*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	16,113	.04*
Kansas City Journal .....(B)	48,524	.10*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	46,693	.10*
Kansas City Post .....(R)	144,985	.15
Sunday Edition .....(M)	148,010	.15
Kansas City Star .....(R) 224,170	442,348	.35
Kansas City Times .....(B) 218,178 Sunday Edition .....(M)	222,766	.25
Maryville Democrat-Forum .....(R)	3,050	.0142858
St. Joseph Gazette .....(B)	17,648	.06§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	14,216	.06§
St. Joseph News Press .....(R)	39,636	.07
St. Louis Globe-Democrat .....(B)	172,865	.22
Sunday Edition .....(M)	163,534	.22
St. Louis Post-Dispatch .....(R)	163,261	.26§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	339,660	.29§
St. Louis Republic .....(B)	87,040	.15
Sunday Edition .....(M)	77,200	.15
St. Louis Star .....(E)	100,270	.16*
St. Louis Times .....(R)	70,089	.15§
Springfield Leader .....(R)	14,595	.03*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	13,662	.03*
Springfield Republican .....(D)	13,891	.03*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	14,119	.03*

MONTANA
Anaconda Standard .....(B)	10,676	.04*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	14,747	.045*
Butte Miner .....(B)	14,765	.04
Sunday Edition .....(M)	23,657	.05
Butte Post .....(E)	13,248	.045§
Great Falls Leader .....(R)	4,043	.025*
Great Falls Tribune .....(R)	12,489	.04*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	12,661	.04*
Helena Record-Herald .....(R)	7,848	.025
Missoula Missoulian .....(B) 4,469	6,733	.04§
Missoula Sentinel .....(R) 2,264 Sunday Missoulian .....(M)	5,449	.04§

NEBRASKA
Fremont Tribune .....(R)	6,618	.025*
Grand Island Independent .....(R)	5,907	.02*
Hastings Tribune .....(R)	7,084	.025*
Lincoln Star .....(R)	31,267	.06*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	16,844	.06*
Lincoln Journal .....(B) 22,173	33,618	.07*
Lincoln Journal .....(R) 11,445 Sunday Edition .....(M)	19,668	.07*.
Norfolk News .....(R)	9,920	.03*
Omaha Bee .....(B) 45,731	63,981	.09*
Omaha Bee .....(R) 18,250 Sunday Edition .....(M)	60,900	.09*
Omaha News .....(R)	79,904	.10*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	63,154	.09*
Omaha World-Herald .....(B) 43,893	80,342	.10*
Omaha World-Herald .....(R) 36,449 Sunday Edition .....(M)	69,751	.09*

NEVADA
Reno Gazette .....(R)	4,632	.025"

Digitized by Google

A.B.C. STANDARDS OF PRACTICE Are Fair, Straightforward and Businesslike

NEW HAMPSHIRE	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Manchester Leader .....(E) 13,662
Manchester Union .....(E) 11,475	25,137	.055§
NEW JERSEY
Asbury Park Press .....(R)	7,242	.0225§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	8,755	.0225§
Elizabeth Journal .....(R)	17,517	.0414286§
Hoboken Hudson-Observer .....(E)	42,110	.07
Jersey City Jersey Journal.....	38,152	.08
Long Branch Record	3,899	.0171429§
Newark Star-Eagle	61,612	.11§
Passaic Herald	8,185	.025§
(12-31-18 3 mos. stmt.)
Passaic News .....(R)	8,405	.025§
Paterson News .....(R)	10,990	.04§
Paterson Press-Guardian .....(R)	12,050	.03*
Paterson Sunday Chronicle .....(M)	10,026	.03*
Perth Amboy News .....(R)	5,723	.025*
Plainfield Courier-News .....(E)	7,905	.02142866§
Trenton Times .....(R)	28,022	.06*
Sunday Times-Advertiser ....(M)	19,931	.06*
NEW YORK
Albany Journal .....(R)	16,017	.035
Albany Knickerbocker Press	33,559	.07*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	43,957	.07*
Albany Times-Union .....(R)	34,609	.07*
Amsterdam Recorder & Democrat.....	3,635	.0228572§
(3-31-19 3 mos. stmt.)
Batavia News .....(R)	8,458	.0225*
Binghamton Press & Leader.....(R)	26,554	.06
Binghamton Morning Sun .....(R)	10,304	.035
Brooklyn Standard-Union .....(R)	53,265	.15*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	58,929	.15*
Brooklyn Eagle .....(S)	45,884	.18
Sunday Edition	68,467	.18
Buffalo Courier .....(B) 40,366	70,626	.12
Buffalo Enquirer .....(R) 30,260
Sunday Courier	115,359	.15
Buffalo Express .....(B)	37,522	.08
Sunday Edition .....(M)	63,864	.12
Buffalo News .....(R)	103,635	.10*
Buffalo Times .....(R)	55,286	.10*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	69,683	.10*
Corning Leader .....(R)	7,191	.02*
Dunkirk Observer .....(R)	3,561	.01*
Elmira Star-Gazette .....(R)	25,839	.05
Geneva Times	6,399	.03§
Glens Falls Post-Star .....(B)	8,033	.0214286*
Gloversville Herald .....(B)	5,788	.02*
Gloversville Leader-Republican ....(R)	6,005	.02*
Hudson Republican .....(E)	2,313	.0085715*
Ithaca Journal .....(R)	6,544	.025*
Jamestown Journal .....(R)	7,453	.01928586§
Jamestown Post .....(E)	9,129	.0221429§
Kingston Freeman .....(R)	6,831	.01928586§
Lockport Union & Sun & Journal..(R)	7,662	.025*
Middletown Times-Press	5,893	.025§
Mt. Vernon Argus .....(R)	7,193	.02*
Newburgh News & Journal .....(R)	10,878	.04§
New York American .....(M)	301,420	.45§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	930,233	.70§
New York Call .....(R)	20,823	.10§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	14,855	.10§
New York Commercial .....(R)	9,632	.18§
New York Globe & Commercial Advertiser .....(R)	179,906	.38§
New York Journal .....(R)	675,118	.75*
New York Mail .....(R)	102,342	.33§
New York Post .....(R)	32,369	.22§
New York Sun .....(E)	121,221	.38§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	93,666	.38§
New York Sun .....(R)	194,564	.38§
New York Times .....(R)	367,587	.49§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	546,728	.569§
New York Tribune .....(R)	109,629	.30§
Sunday Edition	98,802	.30§
Niagara Falls Gazette.....	12,551	.03*
North Tonawanda News	3,053	.0107143*
Ogdensburg Republican-Journal	3,694	.0142858*
Olean Herald	4,038	.0142858§
Poughkepsie Star-Enterprise	9,918	.02642866§
Rochester Democrat & Chronicle..(R)	65,003	.15§
Sunday Edition	66,340	.15§
Rochester Herald .....(R)	29,327	.06*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	18,827	.06*
Rochester Times-Union & Adv'r.(R)	67,005	.12
Schenectady Gazette .....(B)	21,956	.05*

NEW YORK—(Continued)	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Schenectady Union-Star .....(R)	17,347	.04*
Syracuse Herald .....(R)	44,249	.08
Sunday Edition .....(M)	63,442	.11
Syracuse Journal .....(R)	44,711	.08*
Syracuse Post-Standard .....(R)	51,412	.11§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	46,890	.11*
Troy Record .....(B) 5,838	24,127	.04*
Troy Record .....(R) 18,289
Watertown Times .....(R)	16,349	.035*
NORTH CAROLINA
Asheville Citizen .....(B)	11,434	.03§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	9,734	.03§
Asheville Times .....(E)	7,316	.02*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	6,901	.02*
Charlotte News .....(E)	11,275	.025*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	8,428	.025*
Charlotte Observer .....(R)	19,099	.04§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	19,928	.05§
Greensboro News .....(E)	16,788	.035*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	22,293	.035*
Raleigh News & Observer.....(R)	21,699	.04*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	20,717	.04*
Raleigh Times .....(R)	5,055	.025§
Winston-Salem Journal	5,850	.02*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	6,926	.02*
Winston-Salem Twin City Sentinel (E)	6,734	.02§
Wilmington Dispatch .....(S)	5,305	.02*
NORTH DAKOTA
Bismarck Tribune .....(R)	4,514	.02*
Fargo Courier-News .....(D)	12,867	.04*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	13,830	.04*
Fargo Forum .....(R)	11,292	.035*
Grand Forks American.....(R)	6,032	.03*
Grand Forks Herald .....(D) 10,240	16,132	.05*
Grand Forks Herald .....(R) 5,892
Sunday Edition .....(M)	11,580	.05*
OHIO
Akron Beacon Journal .....(R)	29599	.05*
Akron Times .....(R)	19,808	.03*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	18,674	.03*
Alliance Review & Leader .....(R)	9,004	.02*
Ashtabula Star & Beacon .....(R)	5,851	.0178572*
Athens Messenger .....(R)	8,718	.02*
Bowling Green Sentinel-Tribune...(R)	2,570	.0085715*
Cambridge Jeffersonian .....(E)	8,117	.0178572*
Canton Repository .....(T)	23,862	.035*
Saturday Edition .....(Y)	21,036	.035*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	18,761	.035*
Cincinnati Times-Star .....(R)	158,723	.21§
Cleveland News .....(R)	138,534	.20*
Cleveland Sunday News-Leader....(M)	146,036	.21*
Cleveland Plaindealer .....(B)	174,005	.24*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	204,790	.27*
Coshocton Tribune & Times-Age..(R)	6,477	.0178572*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	6,318	.0178572*
Dayton Herald .....(R)	24,100	.04*
Dayton Journal .....(E)	24,057	.04*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	30,302	.04*
Dayton News .....(R)	38,405	.065*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	31,231	.045*
Delaware Gazette	1,908	.0085715*
E. Liverpool Review	5,909	.015*
E. Liverpool Tribune .....(B)	5,730	.015*
Elyria Telegram	5,013	.015*
Findlay Republican .....(B)	6,793	.015*
Fremont News	3,419	.0107143*
(3-31-19 3 mos. stmt.)
Hamilton Journal .....(R)	7,428	.0175*
Hamilton Republican-News .....(R)	5,873	.0142858*
Lima News .....(R)	12,033	.0285728§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	11,181	.0228572§
Lima Republican-Gazette .....(D)	9,754	.02*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	9,833	.02*
Lorain Times-Herald	7,599	.02*
Mansfield News .....(R)	9,761	.02*
Marion Star	9,833	.02*
Martins Ferry Times	6,522	.015*
Massillon Independent .....(R)	6,416	.0128572*
Middletown News-Signal .....(R)	4,695	.0142858*
Mount Vernon Republican-News ..(R)	3,166	.0085715*
Newark Advocate	5,968	.0145*
Portsmouth Times .....(R)	12,105	.025*
Salem News	2,910	.0085715*
Sandusky Register	5,327	.0114286*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	5,842	.0114286*

Google

"A.B.C. SURE-LINE" NEWSPAPERS DO BUSINESS IN THE OPEN

OHIO—(Continued)	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Sandusky Star-Journal .....(R)	6,408	.0128572*
Springfield News .....(R)	14,950	.03*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	11,525	.03*
Springfield Sun .....(R)	12,061	.025*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	11,815	.025*
Tiffin Advertiser .....(R)	3,044	.0133715§
Urbana Democrat .....(R)	3,728	.0178572*
Wooster Republican .....(R)	4,270	.0107143*
Xenia Gazette .....(R) 3,058 ‖
Xenia Republican .....(B) 1,193 ‖	4,251	.015*
Youngstown Telegram .....(R)	21,583	.05*
Youngstown Vindieator .....(R)	24,338	.05*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	22,348	.05*
Zanesville Signal .....(R)	10,702	.025*
Zanesville Times-Recorder .....(B)	20,786	.03*
OKLAHOMA
Barlesville Examiner .....(D)	2,961	.0128572*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	3,011	.0128572*
McAlester News-Capital .....(R)	3,178	.0142858*
Muskogee Phoenix .....(R)	12,053	.03
Sunday Edition .....(M)	12,959	.035
Muskogee Times-Demoerat .....(R)	11,441	.03*
Oklahoma City Oklahoman. (B) 36,772 ‖
Oklahoma City Times .....(R) 38,639 ‖	95,411	.07
Sunday Oklahoman .....(M)	66,443	.15
Tulsa Democrat .....(R) 22,770 ‖
Tulsa Times .....(B) 16,883 ‖	39,653	.025*
Sunday Democrat .....(M)	22,270	.04*
Tulsa World .....(R)	10,982	.06*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	20,784	.06*
OREGON
Bend Bulletin .....(R)	637	.0089286*
Eugene Guard .....(R)	3,430	.0142858*
Eugene Register .....(D)	4,151	.0142858*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	4,331	.0142858*
Pendleton East Oregonian .....(R)	2,675	.0107143*
Portland Oregonian .....(R)	75,214	.12*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	101,967	.16*
Portland Oregon Journal .....(E)	66,511	.095
Sunday Edition .....(M)	66,288	.10*
Portland Telegram .....(R)	58,169	.10*
Portland News .....(E)	25,115	.04*
Salem Capital Journal .....(R)	4,834	.0178572*
PENNSYLVANIA
Allentown Call .....(B)	22,484	.04*
Allentown Item .....(R) 3,619 ‖
Allentown Democrat .....(B) 4,545 ‖	8,164	.02*
Altoona Mirror .....(R)	23,501	.04*
Beaver Times .....(R)	4,203	.015*
Connellsville Courier .....(R)	6,436	.015
Chester Republican .....(B)	2,633	.01
Cheater Times .....(R)	11,544	.025
Erie Herald .....(R)	3,775	.025
Sunday Edition .....(M)	9,466	.023
Erie Dispatch .....(A)	9,874	.025
Erie Times .....(R)	20,826	.06
Easton Express & Argus .....(R)	11,096	.02
Harrisburg News .....(R) 26,190	47,010	.065
Harrsburg Patriot .....(B) 20,820
Harrisburg Telegraph .....(R) (3-31-19 3 mos. stmt.)	29,886	.055*
Meadville Tribune .....(R) ‖	7,339	.0142858*
Meadville Republican .....(B) ‖
Mt. Carmel Item .....(R)	3,372	.0178572§
New Castle News .....(R)	13,411	.025*
Norristown Times .....(R)	8,543	.025*
Oil City Derrick .....(R)	5,860	.0242857§
Philadelphia Inquirer .....(R)	171,273	.30*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	344,288	.40*
Philadelphia North American .....(R)	143,459	.25§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	197,810	.30§
Philadelphia Press .....(R)	34,969	.12*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	95,385	.20*
Phila. Public Ledger....(R) 113,024 ‖	197,428	.30*
Phila. Public Ledger ....(B) 84,404 ‖
Sunday Edition .....(M)	134,710	.25*
Philadelphia Record .....(B)	117,651	.25*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	125,758	.25*
Pitts. Chronicle-Telegraph (R) 90,296 ‖	169,588	.125*
Pitts. Gazette-Times .....(B) 79,328 ‖
Sunday Gazette-Times .....(M)	81,691	.125*
Pittsburgh Dispatch .....(R)	55,823	.09§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	55,402	.16§
Pittsburgh Post .....(R) 74,739 ‖	147,831	.09
Pittsburgh Sun .....(R) 73,092 ‖
Sunday Post .....(M)	104,506	.12

PENNSYLVANIA—(Continued)	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Pittsburgh Press .....(R)	116,209	.14
Sunday Edition .....(M)	112,112	.14
Pottstown News .....(B)	6,306	.0171429*
Pottsville Republican .....(R)	10,797	.0328572§
Reading Eagle .....(R)	31,191	.06*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	21,578	.06*
Reading News-Times .....(B) 6,036 ‖
Reading Telegram .....(R) 6,176 ‖	12,212	.04*
Scranton Republican .....(B)	25,433	.07
Scranton Times .....(R)	35,496	.07
Sharon Herald .....(R)	4,548	.0142858*
Sharon Telegraph .....(R)	5,022	.0171429
Titusville Herald .....(B)
Warren Times .....(R)	4,018	.0178572§
Washington Observer .....(B) 9,549 ‖
Washington Reporter .....(R) 4,478 ‖	14,027	.03
Wilkes-Barre Record .....(R)	16,707	.03§
Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader .....(R)	19,068	.04§
Williamsport Sun .....(R)	16,110	.035
RHODE ISLAND
Pawtueket Times .....(R)	23,812	.045§
Providence Bulletin .....(R)	55,300	.12*
Providenee Journal .....(R)	29,875	.075*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	45,322	.10*
Providence Tribune .....(R)	26,725	.07*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	12,305	.07*
Westerly Sun .....(T)	4,222	.015*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	4,345	.015
Woonsocket Call & Reporter.....(R)	11,888	.03
SOUTH CAROLINA
Charleston News & Courier.....(B)	10,560	.03*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	12,302	.03*
Charleston Post .....(R)	12,413	.03*
Charleston American .....(R)
Columbia Record .....(R)	13,791	.03
Sunday Edition .....(M)	11,763	.03
Columbia State .....(R)	24,157	.05*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	24,429	.05*
Greenville News .....(B)	10,054	.03
Sunday Edition .....(M)	8,547	.03
Greenesville Piedmont .....(R)	8,189	.025*
Spartanburg Herald .....(D) 6,248 ‖
Spartanburg Journal .....(R) 4,420 ‖	10,668	.03*
Sunday Herald .....(M)	7,307	.03*
SO. DAKOTA
Aberdeen American .....(D)	5,039	.0214286*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	5,532	.0214286*
Mitchell Republican .....(R) 3,872 ‖
Mitchell Republican .....(D) 1,376 ‖	5,248	.02*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	5,304	.02*
Sioux Falls Argus-Leader .....(R)	15,934	.04
Sioux Falls Press .....(D)	8,571	.0214286*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	10,514	.0214286*
TENNESSEE
Chattanooga News .....(R)	16,848	.04
Chattanooga Times .....(R)	30,173	.06*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	26,610	.06*
Knoxville Journal & Tribune....(B)	23,461	.045*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	20,594	.045*
Knoxville Sentinel .....(R)	23,783	.045*
Memphis Commercial-Appeal .....(R)	89,209	.12
Sunday Edition .....(M)	118,089	.15
Memphis News-Scimitar .....(R)	50,119	.11§
Nashville American .....(R) 15,196 ‖	54,545	.08*
Nashville Tennessean .....(B) 39,349 ‖
Sun, Tennessean & American. (M)	34,051	.08*
Nashville Banner .....(R)	49,657	.07
Sunday, Edition .....(M)	48,960	.08
TEXAS
Austin American .....(A)	7,411	.025
Beaumont Enterprise .....(B)	19,346	.05
Sunday Edition .....(M)	23,695	.05
Beaumont Journal .....(R)	6,424	.025*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	5,293	.025*
Dallas Journal .....(R)	39,946	.08§
Dallas News .....(B)	67,385	.14§
Sunday Edition .....(M)	100,673	.16§
El Paso Herald .....(B)	24,716	.06*
El Paso Times .....(R)	12,955	.05*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	16,719	.06*
Fort Worth Record .....(B)	24,389	.06*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	21,967	.06*
Fort Worth Star-Telegram.....(R)	61,442	.10*
Sunday Edition .....(M)	62,160	.10*

For Explanation of Key-Letters and Markings See Foot Note on Page 32.

JUST AS A BANK EXAMINER GOES ABOUT HIS BUSINESS SO DOES A.B.C.

TEXAS—(Continued)	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Galveston News (E)	9,372	.09§
Sunday Edition (M)	14,939	.10§
Galveston Tribune (R)	8,831	.04§
Houston Chronicle (R)	54,204	.08"
Sunday Edition (M)	58,892	.085"
Houston Post (E)	42,660	.08*
Sunday Edition (M)	47,896	.08*
San Antonio Express (E)	33,852	.07"
Sunday Edition (M)	48,067	.08
San Antonio Light (T)	24,797	.07§
Saturday Edition (Y)	18,279	.07§
Sunday Edition (M)	29,518	.07§
Temple Telegram (E)	7,163	.025*
Sunday Edition (M)	7,624	.03*
Waco News-Tribune (E)	12,396	.035*
Sunday Edition (M)	9,450	.035*
UTAH
Ogden Examiner (E)	5,310	.0214286*
Sunday Edition (M)	5 913	.0214286*
Ogden Standard (R)	7,837	.03*
Salt Lake City Deseret News (T)	19,283	.04
Saturday Edition (Y)	21,637	.05
Salt Lake City Telegram (R)	24,993	.07*
Salt Lake City Tribune (E)	41,128	.06
Sunday Edition (M)	69,174	.08
VERMONT
Barre Times (R)	6,765	.0225§
Burlington Free Press (E)	10,489	.025*
Rutland Herald (E)	8,025	.0178572*
VIRGINIA
Bristol Herald-Courier (D)	9,457	.04
Sunday Edition (M)	10,186	.04
Harrisonburg News-Record (E)	6,847	.0178572*
Lynchburg Advance (R)	6,514	.015
Lynchburg News (E)	11,119	.025
Sunday Edition (M)	13,100	.025
Newport News Press (D) 7,359	19,956	.04*
Newport News Times-Her'd (R) 12,597
Sunday Press (M)	9,409	.04*
Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch (R)	43,389	.06"
Norfolk Pilot (E)	33,311	.06"
Sunday Edition (M)	42,697	.07"
Richmond News-Leader (R)	48,681	.07"
Richmond Times-Dispatch (E)	30,082	.07"
Sunday Edition (M)	47,531	.08"
Roanoke Times (D) 6,464	21,952	.04
Roanoke World-News (R) 11,288
Sunday Times (M)	15,249	.04
Staunton Leader (Morn. also) (R)	5,018	.015"
Winchester Star (E)	3,738	.0114286*
WASHINGTON
Aberdeen World (R)	6,318	.02*
Everett Herald (E)	12,341	.03*
Seattle Post-Intelligencer (E)	51,040	.09
Sunday Edition (M)	68,477	.12*
Seattle Star (E)	65,246	.095*
Seattle Times (R)	72,541	.11
Sunday Edition (M)	94,665	.15
Spokane Chronicle (E)	40,668	.08
Spokane Spokesman-Review (R)	42,823	.085
Sunday Edition (M)	56,779	.119

WASHINGTON—(Continued)	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Agate Line Space Rate
Tacoma Ledger (E)	14,177	.05*
Sunday Edition (M)	36,594	.07*
Tacoma News-Tribune (R)	35,433	.07
Walla Walla Bulletin (R)	4,986	.02*
Sunday Edition (M)	4,861	.02*
Walla Walla Union (E)	3,144	.02*
Sunday Edition (M)	3,378	.02*
Wenatchee World (E)	6,123	.025*
Yakima Herald (D)	4,421	.02*
Sunday Edition (M)	5,442	.02*
Yakima Republic (E)	4,591	.02*
WEST VIRGINIA
Charleston Mail (R)	8,689	.025"
Clarksburg Telegram (R)	7,864	.02
Sunday Edition (M)	8,351	.02
Fairmont West Virginian (R)	5,440	.02*
Huntington Advertiser (E)	8,608	.02*
Sunday Edition (M)	8,556	.02*
Huntington Herald-Dispatch (E)	10,961	.0228572§
Sunday Edition (M)	11,671	.0228572§
Martinsburg Journal (R)	3,249	.0128572*
Parkersburg Sentinel (R)	6,372	.0171429§
Wheeling Intelligencer (E)	9,770	.0325§
Wheeling News (E)	14,705	.04§
Sunday Edition (M)	19,150	.06‡
WISCONSIN
Appleton Crescent (R)	2,877	.0142858§
Appleton Post (E)	5,010	.0143
Beloit News (E)	6,362	.02*
Eau Claire Leader (D) 5,548	8,813	.0271429§
Eau Claire Telegram (R) 3,265
Sunday Edition (M)	5,608	.0271429§
Fond du Lac Commonwealth (R)	5,754	.02
Fond du Lac Reporter (R)	4,525	.0178572*
Green Bay Press Gazette (R)	11,011	.025"
Janesville Gazette (E)	7,612	.025*
Kenosha News (E)	5,221	.0142858§
La Crosse Tribune & Leader Press (R)	13,302	.03*
Sunday Edition (M)	12,946	.03*
Madison Democrat (D)	5,880	.02*
Sunday Edition (M)	5,975	.02*
Madison Journal (R)	14,689	.035*
Sunday Edition (M)	10,891	.035*
Manitowoc Herald-News (E)	5,023	.0164286*
Milwaukee Journal (R)	113,683	.14*
Sunday Edition (M)	93,830	.14*
Milwaukee News (R)	56,738	.10*
Milwaukee Sentinel (R) 41,269	76,817	.11§
Milwaukee Sentinel (R) 35,548
Sunday Edition (M)	65,288	.11§
Monroe Times (E)	2,695	.0128572§
Oshkosh Northwestern (E)	13,805	.03*
Racine Journal-News (E)	7,666	.025"
Racine Times-Call (E)	6,079	.024"
Sheboygan Press (E)	6,693	.0214286*
Superior Telegram (E)	15,150	.035*
Wausau Record-Herald (E)	5,337	.0178572*
WYOMING
Cheyenne Wyoming State Tribune (R)	5,847	.025

EXPLANATION OF KEY-LETTERS AND MARKINGS IN TABLES PRINTED ON THE FOREGOING PAGES

A—Every morning including Sunday.
B—Morning except Sunday.
D—Morning except Sunday and Monday.
E—Morning and evening week days.
F—Morning and evening week days and Sunday morning.
G—Morning except Monday and Sunday evening.
H—Morning except Monday and evening except Saturday and Sunday.
I—Morning except Sunday and Monday evening except Sunday.
M—Sunday exclusively.
J—Every evening including Sunday.
R—Evening except Sunday.
S—Evening except Sunday and Sunday morning.
T—Evening except Saturday and Sunday.
U—Evening except Saturday and Sunday, Sunday morning.
Y—Saturday exclusively.
*—Following a rate indicates that the rate is flat and not subject to time or space discounts.
"—Less than 5,000 lines.
§—More than 5,000 lines.

‡—Where the publisher's card does not give space rates, but does give insertion rates, the open rate is used and the fact that lower insertion rates may be earned.

Where the minimum space rate is the 5,000 line rate no character is used.

The circulation figures are the average net paid for the Six Months' period ending March 31, 1919, as reported to the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

The advertising rate is the 5,000 line space rate to "foreign" advertisers in effect August 1, 1919.

For Explanation of Key-Letters and Markings See Foot Note on Page 32.

The September Convention Number of Associated Advertising, We Believe,

Carries More Revenue Than Ever Before Carried by Any Single Number of Any Publication in the Advertising Field

This was possible because the advertisers realized the tremendous value of the magazine, both normally and in this particular issue, and its great editorial content in connection with the A. A. C. W. New Orleans Convention, which gave it a reader interest value hardly ever equalled. Circulation was another factor.

It is one of the best issues of a trade publication ever published. It will be filed for frequent reference during many months to come. Read your own copy and judge for yourself.

NOW FOR THE OCTOBER POST-CONVENTION NUMBER

If it is possible for any number to equal or surpass the September issue in value, the October number will do so.

It will be out in approximately a week after the Convention closes with full and complete stories, reports, events, speeches—the unquestionable high spots—divisional decisions, important departmental discussions and papers, status of standards of practice—matter that will be in importance to advertising men throughout the world similar to the lawyers' statute records.

It is a number that will bring to advertisers actual and publicity results hard to estimate.

Page price remains the same—$150—8 x 10—all full pages right hand, opposite reading. Normal circulation, 15,500 A. B. C.

Reservations assigned as received.

Associated Advertising

A MONTHLY MAGAZINE

Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, Inc., Publishers

H. C. DAYCH
Eastern Representative
110 West 40th Street
New York City
Tel. Bryant 8380

P. S. FLOREA
Business Manager
110 West 40th Street
New York City

STANLEY IKERD
Western Representative
123 West Madison Street
Chicago, Ill.
Tel. Central 3021

Digitized by Google

TIPS TO THE AD MANAGER

F. Wallis Armstrong Company, North American Bldg., Philadelphia. Making 5,000-line contracts with Western newspapers for Henry Sonneborn & Co.

N. W. Ayer & Son, 300 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. Placing orders with newspapers for U. S. Government.

Barton, Durstine & Osborne, 25 W. 45th street, New York. Placing orders with newspapers for "H.-O." Company; reported about to place copy with newspapers for Upson Company.

George Batten Company, Fourth Avenue Bldg., New York. Reported will make up a list of newspapers during October for Columbia Graphophone Company.

Bennett Company, 19 W. 44th street, New York. Will handle the advertising for Nemours Trading Corporation.

J. H. Cross Company, 214 S. 12th street, Philadelphia. Again placing orders with newspapers in selected sections for United Medicine Company.

D'Arcy Advertising Company, International Life Bldg., St. Louis. Reported will make up a list of newspapers during next sixty days for Sheboygan Mineral Water Co.

Dunlap-Ward Company, Union National Bank Bldg., Cleveland. Making 5,000-line contracts with Pennsylvania newspapers for Cleveland Automobile Company.

George L. Dyer Company, 42 Broadway, New York. Placing copy with newspapers for Regal Shoe Company.

Richard A. Foley Advertising Agency, Terminal Bldg., Philadelphia. Again placing copy with Philadelphia newspapers for Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Freeman Agency, Mutual Bldg., Richmond. Reported will make up a list of country weekly newspapers this month for F. S. Royster Guano Company.

Fuller & Smith, Guardian Bldg., Cleveland. Making 5,000-line contracts with Pennsylvania newspapers for Glidden Varnish Company.

W. S. Hill Company, Vandergrift Bldg., Pittsburgh. Making contracts with Pennsylvania newspapers for Chmalene Chemical Company.

C. Ironmonger Advertising Agency, 95 Madison avenue, New York. Placing orders with New England newspapers for Morgan Drug Company.

H. B. Humphrey Company, 581 Boylston street, Boston. Placing orders with newspapers in various sections for Raymond & Whitcomb Company.

Lewis Agency, Star Bldg., Washington, D. C. Placing special copy with newspapers for Allen R. Walker & Co.

Ostenfelder Advertising Corporation, 25 E. Jackson Blvd., Chicago. Placing orders with newspapers generally for B. S. Pearsall Butter Company.

Ruthrauff & Ryan, 404 Fourth avenue, New York. Making contracts with Pennsylvania newspapers for Ferrodine Chemical Company.

Frank Seaman, 470 Fourth avenue, New York. Reported will make up a list of farm papers this month for Atlas Portland Cement Company.

J. Walter Thompson Company, 242 Madison avenue, New York. Again placing orders with Pennsylvania newspapers for Piel Brothers; making 5,000-line contracts with Pacific Coast newspapers for Lamont, Corliss & Co.

Wales Advertising Company, 110 W. 40th street, New York. Making 5,000-line contracts with Pennsylvania newspapers for Boston Varnish Company.

LIFE INSURANCE HEAD URGES ADVERTISING

President of National Association of Underwriters Declares It Is Duty of Companies to Educate People—Favors Use of Newspapers

Seattle, Sept. 1.—"Advertise more." This is the keynote of the messages which Jonathan K. Voshell, president of the National Association of Life Insurance Underwriters is hammering home in the speeches he is making to insurance men on a tour of the West.

Success of an insurance company depends upon advertising on a large scale, says Mr. Voshell. And it is the duty of an insurance company to educate the people to the real service to humanity they stand ready to render.

"Every business has now been brought to the realization that advertising is its greatest asset," declared Mr. Voshell in an address to the Puget Sound Underwriters' Association.

"Advertise your business in the daily and weekly papers, city and country. You've got a big message to deliver and the best way you can deliver it is through the advertising columns of the newspapers."

Scranton Plans to Entertain Circulation Managers

Business Men Arrange Sight-Seeing Tours in Automobiles for Members of Inter-State Association

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 3.--The Board of Trade and officials of leading industries of Scranton are co-operating with the newspapers here on plans to give a big time to members of the Inter-State Circulation Managers' Association who attend the semi-annual convention of that organization here, September 10 and 11. Headquarters will be at the Hotel Casey.

There will be several sight-seeing trips in automobiles to industrial plants, including the International Correspondence Schools, where luncheon will be served and a group picture taken, and lace, silk and button factories.

The Association is the largest sectional organization of its kind in the country, having a membership of about 100, being second in numbers only to the International Circulation Managers' Association.

HARVEY JOINS ATLANTA AGENCY

Is Given Testimonial by Co-workers Before Leaving Greensboro

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 3.—R. Winston Harvey, sales manager of the Vick Chemical Co., leaves September 1 to become associated, in an executive capacity, with the Jacobs Advertising Agency at Atlanta, Ga. As a slight testimonial of the regard and affection in which he is held by his co-workers in the organization, Mr. Harvey was presented recently, at a general meeting of the office force, with a handsome smoking set in copper and gold, suitably inscribed with their well-wishes.

L. Richardson, Jr., a son of the founder of the company, succeeds Mr. Harvey as sales manager.

Appointed to Public Office

Newark, N. J., Sept. 3.--James Morris Jerauld, a member of the News staff, has been appointed secretary to the Director of the Department of Streets and Public Improvements at a salary of $3,500 a year.

St. Louis Boasts a Real Bank Advertisement

Mercantile Trust Company Presents Splendid Piece of Publicity in Post-Dispatch

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 1.—What is said to be the largest advertisement ever run in the rotogravure section of a daily newspaper by a financial institution is that of the Mercantile Trust Company, which occupied the center spread of the rotogravure section of yesterday's Post-Dispatch. The advertisement pictures some of the building projects which have been financed through the trust company in the last few years.

The advertisement aimed to help the people of St. Louis to "realize how much the Mercantile Trust Company has done to build up St. Louis."

Not only was the exhibit sufficient to give present depositors a thrill of pride in being a part of such an institution, but it was most impressive, showing prospective depositors what could be done with their money.

John Ring, Jr., is advertising manager of the Mercantile Trust Company. He also is president of the Advertising Club of St. Louis.

CHICAGO "TYPOS" WAGES RAISED

Newspaper Publishers Also Offer to Increase Scale of Pressmen

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Through negotiations just concluded between the Chicago Typographical Union and the Chicago newspaper publishers, the union employes have obtained an increase of $4.80 a week for day work and $5.60 for night work, making the wage scale for day work $42 a week and for night work $45 a week—48 hours per week, day or night.

The Chicago newspaper publishers voluntarily have offered their union pressmen a weekly increase of $3 a week, which would make the day wage for pressmen-in-charge $38 a week, and for pressmen $32 a week, and have offered their union stereotypers the same increase, which would make their scale $34 for day work and $36 for night work. They have not acted on these offers.

Fire in N. Y. World Office

A slight fire in the want ad department of the New York World caused excitement on Park Row on the morning of Labor Day. A pile of rubbish had become mysteriously ignited, but firemen extinguished the blaze with slight damage.

Brooklyn is big—as big as Boston, St. Louis and Cleveland rolled into one.

As big as Detroit, Baltimore, Pittsburg and Los Angeles combined.

Over two million people, with several billion wants to be supplied.

The Standard Union can tell them about you.

Digitized by Google

Tablet to N. Y. World Men Who Were Killed in War

Unveiling of Bronze Memorial in Arcade of the Pulitzer Building Will Take Place Next Sunday

A bronze tablet, in memory of New York World employees who lost their lives in the war, and in honor of other World men in war service, who survived, will be unveiled by Ralph Pulitzer, Jr., next Sunday. The tablet, designed by Tiffany, will be fixed on a pillar in the arcade of the Pulitzer Building.

One hundred and twenty-five men who worked for the World in various capacities were in active service abroad. Of these, twelve were killed or succumbed to wounds.

The World paid each of the 125 the difference in the amount he earned in its employ and his lesser pay in the service. The free-will offering amounting in all to a little more than $225,000. Besides, every man's place, in whatever department, was open to him when he returned after being honorably discharged.

After young Mr. Pulitzer unveils the tablet, Magr. Luke T. Evers of St. Andrew's Church, Duane street, the priest who had first held early morning services for newspaper night workers, will offer a prayer for the repose of the souls of those who made the supreme sacrifice and for the welfare of those who escaped the perils of war.

President Dobert L. Moran of the Board of Aldermen, representing the city; Dock Commissioner Murray Hurlbert and Police Commissioner Enright, will make brief addresses.

Gov. Smith has written, regretting that a long standing engagement will prevent his attendance on this occasion. In his letter, the Governor speaks of the loyalty and generosity shown by The World's employees in their subscriptions to all the Liberty Loans and says of the tablet:

"It will be a splendid memorial of The World Men who gave up their lives and of those who, fortunately, arrived back from overseas."

After the tablet is unveiled The World men, their families and friends will turn to lighter things and they will board the steamer Hempstead at Dover Street pier and be conveyed to Duer's Pavilion, Whitestone, L. I. There, besides a good dinner, they will enjoy baseball games, field sports, boxing bouts and a musical entertainment.

Veteran Mississippi Editor Dies at Jackson

N. P. Bonney Published Summit Sentinel for 25 Years—Worked with Many Prominent Journalists

JACKSON, MISS., Aug. 30.—Hon. N. P. Bonney, editor of the Summit Sentinel, and one of the oldest newspapermen in Mississippi, died at the Baptist State Hospital a few days ago after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Bonney had edited the Sentinel at Summit since the early seventies when he succeeded his father, the late Henry P. Bonney, as publisher of that paper. He was literally brought up in a newspaper office, having learned the printer's trade when a mere boy, and in the days following the civil war he was the contemporary of such men as Ethelbert Barksdale, Col. J. L. Power, George W. Harper, A. J. Frantz, G. D. Shands, F. T. Cooper, P. K. Mayers and other noted journalists of those days.

Barring only a short period spent as editor of the Daily Corinthian at Corinth, Mr. Bonney had spent his entire life at Summit.

Judge J. H. Dills

Judge J. H. Dills, 84 years old, veteran newspaper man of Sherman, Tex., died at Shreveport, La., August 26. Judge Dills was a native of Arkansas, but went to Texas at the close of the war between the states and settled at Sherman, where he established one of the first newspapers in that section. He also conducted large farming interests and was prominent in politics in North Texas. He moved to New Mexico about twelve years ago and was elected a member of the legislature of that state. He also served in the Texas Legislature.

Frederick W. Watson

Frederick W. Watson, one of the best known men in the newspaper business in New Hampshire, died at his home in Manchester on Aug. 22, at the age of 58 years. He was a native of Tamworth, N. H., and went to Manchester when a boy. Retiring from the express business, in which he was engaged for a time, he entered the circulation department of a newspaper. He was an Odd Fellow, and is survived by a wife, mother, sister and half-brother.

Lunsford Richardson, Sr.

The body of Lunsford Richardson, Sr., president of the Vick Chemical Company, Greensboro, N. C., who died in his 65th year at San Francisco while on a combined pleasure and business trip to the Pacific Coast, was brought to Greensboro, N. C., for interment Aug. 29. He is survived by a widow and five children, among them H. Smith Richardson and L. Richardson, Jr., general manager and secretary, respectively, of the Vick Chemical Company.

Pioneer Engraver Dead

William H. Bartholomew, 63 years old, known as an authority on the halftone process of engraving, died Sept. 2 at the Brooklyn Hospital, after an illness of some time. About 1888 he opened a plant for the manufacture of halftone plates at 18 Spruce street. He was also a pioneer in the three-color process, and is said to have installed the first plant in Canada for the production of these plates.

Frank O. Van Galder

Frank O. Van Galder, for 24 years editor of The Woodman, official organ of the Modern Woodmen of America, died at Rock Island, Ill., Aug. 25, after a short illness due to a breakdown. The deceased was one of the Ford peace party on the celebrated trip to Europe.

Obituary

ABRAM REESE EVERSOLE, former newspaper publisher and attorney, died recently at Columbus, Ohio. For twenty-five years he edited the Fairfield County Republican. He was born in Lancaster in 1850 and was admitted to the bar in 1876.

EUGENE MAYHALL of Oklahoma City, who died recently in a hospital in St. Louis, was a Missouri newspaper man, having conducted papers at Center, New London and Elsberry.

On an average, 1,100 plates are cast daily for the London Evening News, involving the use of some 25 tons of metal.

The advantages of such a territory as West Virginia lie in its easy balance.

If a genius be really a person with one bump over-developed to the exclusion of some other bumps, how much more applicable to territories.

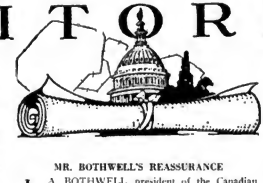
West Virginia's material resources extend from the deep crust of fertile soil that tops its mountains to the bowels of the earth; its mines of coal and iron, its wells of oil and natural gas.

Its factories transform its crude products into merchandise; its farms produce rich crops; its beautiful and luxuriant valleys, with their amazing water ways amidst rich orchards and industrial developments, seem framed by nature for man's highest achievements.

A well balanced territory, solid, permanent, SANE!

And you can advertise to it by its daily newspapers for less money per capita than to any other. Ask the papers.

	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 lines.
Bluefield
*Telegraph ....(M)	5,463	.02143
Charleston
‡Gazette .....(M)	11,410	.03
‡Gazette .....(S)	11,700	.02
†Mail .....(E)	9,336	.025
Clarksburg
†Telegram ....(E)	7,864	.02
†Telegram ....(S)	8,351	.02
After Feb. 1st, 1920.....		.025 flat
Fairmont
*W. Virginian.(E)	5,192	.02
Grafton
*Sentinel .....(E)	2,275	.014
Huntington
†Advertiser ....(E)	8,524	.02
†Herald-Dispatch ....(M)	11,165	.02
†Herald-Dispatch .....(S)	11,599	.02
Martinsburg
†Journal .....(E)	3,249	.0129
Moundsville
*Echo	1,730	.0115
Parkersburg
*News .....(M)	6,239	.02
*News .....(S)	6,239	.02
†Sentinel .....(E)	6,695	.017
Wheeling
†Intelligencer .(M)	10,139	.0325
†News .....(E)	14,749	.04
†News .....(S)	17,000	.05



*Government statement, April 1, 1919.

†A. B. C. statement, April 1, 1919.

‡Publishers' statement, April 1, 1919.

File the Facts for reference.

EDITORIAL

A CHALLENGE TO THE PRESS

SENATOR Chamberlain has expressed in the Senate the hope that the newspapers will "without any act of Congress," decline to print the Ludendorff story. Senator Lodge joins in the hope.

The incident is important because it is probably the first time an effort has been made in the Senate to fix for the newspapers an editorial policy in regard to a particular feature. Senator Chamberlain's appeal to the newspapers is of the kind often made by individual readers, who do not approve of editorial features or policies. But this appeal—or protest—carried with it the suggestion of possible congressional action to enforce it. If Congress should respond to the suggestion, and enact a law suppressing the publication here of the Ludendorff story, a precedent would be created for congressional dictation as to the editorial policies of our newspapers which might logically extend to everything printed. The possibilities of such a situation are plain. Under such a system it would be possible for Congress to decide, in effect, what sort of information the newspapers should be permitted to print, what classes of news and feature matter the American people could be trusted to read. Senator Chamberlain has, in reality, uttered a challenge to the press.

Ludendorff, in the general thought of Americans, is a mere evil symbol of a monstrous and defeated governmental system. The hideous things for which he stood have been abolished. The emancipation of mankind from the menace of German militarism has been accomplished through the awful ordeal of sacrifice. That anything which this man could write would have a tendency to palliate the crimes of his late masters or of himself is not thinkable—if we are to credit the American people with either patriotism or common sense.

It remains true, however, that the history of the war from the German standpoint will inevitably be told, in order that the record shall be made complete. A criminal is entitled to a hearing in the courts of even the least civilized countries. A culprit, arraigned for unspeakable crimes, ante-mortem, against him, is not likely to win sympathy for himself or for his deeds by his story of how it all happened. Yet the sum of knowledge is increased by such disclosures, and the world knows better how to deal with kindred problems through the uncovering of the mental processes of criminals.

If the Kaiser himself should decide to tell his story there would be a keen and legitimate public interest in what he might write. Our newspapers would be justified in printing it. That it would serve as a factor in creating a more lenient public opinion as to German crimes under his mad rule is an absurd view. The thought of the people would be to get a close-up view of the mentality of a man who sought to plunge the world into night and chaos, and who succeeded in dotting the face of the earth anew with the graves of men and women who were ready to die in the defense of liberty.

The American people do not need guardians. They may be trusted to read the plea of the accused without danger that they shall develop sympathy for his crimes. We have not come to the time when Congress must edit our newspapers.

THERE is a movement in England for the formation of a Joint Industrial Council for the newspaper industry for the adjudication of all problems arising between proprietors and workers. The item is of interest to all who have eyes to see and ears to hear, and who, when confronted with "a sign of the times" believes in reading and translating it.

ACCORDING to Editor & Publisher's London correspondent, only about a dozen of England's newspaper publishers advertise advertising. American newspaper makers offer a much better record. Yet, even with us, the advertising of advertising is done adequately by only a small proportion of our publishers.

IT is not the simplest matter in the world to advertise your advertising effectively—but it is a vital, urgent matter, and should engage the best brains in your organization.

VIEWS OF INLAND PUBLISHERS

PRESIDENT A. W. PETERSON, of the Inland Daily Press Association is entitled to the thanks of all publishers for his timely effort to obtain definite expressions of views of the members of his organization as to the postal rate situation and their attitude toward the publishers' statements as a service feature of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Will. J. Tetford, secretary of the association, has tabulated the answers to seven questions, ninety-six publishers having responded to the questionnaire.

To the first question, "Are you in favor of the postal zone system for all publications as now in force?" forty answered "yes," thirty-seven answered "no," fourteen did not answer and some answers were qualified. This result serves to put the Inland members on record as favoring the policy which has been approved by the A. N. P. A. and the Southern Publishers. These dominant organizations of publishers have not conceded that there is any justification for an increase in the second-class mail rate; but they have asked that an impartial investigation of costs of carrying newspapers shall be made. If this shall demonstrate the need for a higher rate, then they suggest that it should be based upon the zone principle, as applying to newspapers as a whole and not merely to the advertising carried.

In question number three publishers were asked if they favored repealing the present law without having ready for immediate passage a substitute. Seventy-six answered "no"; nine answered "yes." Question number four: "Are you in favor of repealing that portion of the present law which requires publishers to furnish to the Government semi-annual statements of circulation?" Twenty-one replied "yes"; forty-six "no."

In question number 5 publishers were asked if they favored an appropriation to enforce penalties on newspapers that make incorrect statements to the Government. Fifty-nine answered "yes," thirteen "no."

Question six: "Do you think the A. B. C. semi-annual statements of publishers are of use and should be circulated among advertisers?" Seventy-one answered "yes;" eight "no." Twelve qualified the "yes" and ten qualified the "no." This would make the figures stand: affirmative, 59; negative, 18.

Question number seven: "Should publishers' statements be abolished and A. B. C. members depend solely on the annual audits?" Twenty-one answered "yes," forty-two "no." Several answers were qualified.

The result of this questionnaire proves that, as to the chief matters of policy touched upon, the Inland publishers have reached sound and progressive conclusions. Particularly is this true as to the principle of the zone postal rate, and the usefulness of publishers' semi-annual statements to the A. B. C. The even division of opinion as to the present zone law applying to advertising indicates that the Inland publishers have been influenced somewhat by the contention that this postal rate operates in favor of the small publisher as against the publishers of metropolitan newspapers which may come into his field. Editor & Publisher does not concede the soundness of such reasoning, and believes that the penalizing of advertising which is involved in this law is injurious to all publishers alike. The publisher of a small daily will not find it profitable to try to build a wall around his local territory, to protect it from invasion. Indeed, he need not fear competition from the outside at all if he covers his home city intensively, developing the local field to its fullest possibilities and securing for his paper an ever increasing volume of national advertising.

ADVERTISING must now be classed with editorial and news matter as a force for creating an informed public opinion.

MR. BOTHWELL'S REASSURANCE

J. A. BOTHWELL, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, feels that Editor & Publisher has shown undue alarm in connection with the newsprint situation. He believes that it is a wrong policy to "play upon the fears" of publishers, contending that this induces would-be hoarders to try to buy up all tonnage now available in order to safeguard their own future needs.

He believes that publishers may be persuaded to realize the need for newsprint conservation without "the accompaniment of alarmist statements." It may be stated for Mr. Bothwell's information—the readers of Editor & Publisher need no assurance on this score—that the only "alarm" sounded in these columns as to possible newsprint shortage in the fall and winter has consisted in the publication of statistical information as to production and consumption, with merely a common-sense interpretation of what the facts have shown.

To relate that production of newsprint has increased over last year only five or six per cent.; that consumption has increased approximately 25 per cent., and that demand is sure to grow within a few weeks, may be "alarming" but it is very necessary information for publishers who are directly concerned. In last week's issue it was shown, by the survey for the month of July by the Federal Trade Commission, that U. S. mill stocks in that month had increased 2,110 tons. This was good news, as showing the balance apparently on the right side. But it is also shown in the report that 84 publishers decreased, during the same period, 5,158 tons, producing a net loss in the available supply for the month of 3,048 tons. If this is an "alarmist report" the fault is with the facts, when it is remembered that the mills usually accumulate substantial reserve stocks during the summer months.

All publishers would be glad to be able to share Mr. Bothwell's optimism and to believe that the manufacturers are going to be able to meet every legitimate demand for paper in the months to come. Editor & Publisher does not believe, however, in ignoring a threatening outlook and preaching hopefulness merely for the sake of furthering optimism. It is necessary to repeat that only sound policies of economy in paper offer a sure remedy for a prospective shortage. In one of his contentions Mr. Bothwell is right: A mad scramble for surplus tonnage, on the part of publishers who think only of their own prospective needs, will contribute to bringing about the very conditions all desire to avoid.

IT is not "possible," from an economic standpoint, for a publisher to meet higher labor scales and other advancing costs without increasing his advertising and circulation rates in proportion. Yet few publishers are doing this. It would be an exceptional advertiser who would fail to take advantage of this situation.

September 4, 1919. Volume 52, No. 14.
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
Published weekly by
The Editor & Publisher Co.
1117 World Building, 63 Park Row, New York.
W. D. Showalter, editor; John F. Redmond, managing editor, Dan F. Miller, News; Ben Mallon, Features.

James Wright Brown, publisher,
J. W. Ferguson, advertising; Fenton Dowling, circulation.

London: Herbert C. Ridout, 42 Kimberly Gardens, N. 4.
Paris: F. B. Grundy.
Toronto: W. A. Craick.
Chicago: D. F. Cass.
San Francisco: H. L. Bernstein.
Boston: M. J. Staples.
Washington: Robert T. Barry.
10 cents a copy; $3 a year; foreign postage, $1.00; Canadian, 50c.

PERSONALS

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOM

H. B. R. Briggs, editor of the St. Paul Daily News, is devoting his vacation to automobile trips among the nearby lakes. His duties are meanwhile attended to by W. G. McMurchy, Washington correspondent, home on vacation. Mr. McMurchy was Mr. Briggs' immediate predecessor.

Grover L. Allman of Sherman and Miss Mittie Lou McDonald, associate editor of the Tioga (Tex.) Herald, were married August 24.

Major George Wythe, who was a member of the Dallas (Tex.) Morning News staff when the United States entered the war, is home from France. After his discharge, Major Wythe will enter the service of the Associated Press in Washington. Major Wythe is regarded as an expert on old-world questions, having specialized in foreign history. He was a member of the Ford peace party.

Alvin Steinkopf, formerly with the Milwaukee Wisconsin, has returned from military service overseas and joined the Paul Pulitzer editorial staff.

D. B. Duncombe, former manager of the Seattle Press Club and former newspaperman, who served more than a year with the Red Cross in France, has returned to Seattle.

Dave Irwin, for years a reporter on the Seattle Star and the old Seattle Sun and later connected with Everett papers, has returned from two years' service with the fighting forces overseas.

Fred Earp, former army lieutenant, has returned to the copy desk of the Seattle Times.

Courtland Mayhin, member of the Tacoma News-Tribune editorial staff, was married recently to Miss Venette Kiesler, of Tacoma. They are spending their honeymoon in Oregon.

Marcus E. Sperry of Orange, Tex., has gone to St. Louis to be market editor for Lumber.

Robert F. Wright, news editor of the Des Moines Register and Leader, and a former Topeka newspaperman, has been visiting relatives in Topeka. Twenty years ago Wright was night editor of the Capital, going from there in 1900 to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. For the last fourteen years he has been in newspaper work in Iowa.

Mrs G. J. Boughner, motion picture editor of the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press, has resigned to attend the college of journalism in Columbia University. She is fitting herself to teach journalism.

George M. Doyle, of the Springfield (Mass.) Daily News and the Republican, spent part of his vacation in Bridgeport, Conn., with Joseph H. Shea, reporter of the Bridgeport Post.

C. Edgar Persons, news editor of the Associated Press western division, has joined the Sacramento (Cal.) Union.

Miss Russell, the Chicago Daily News Irish correspondent, returned to this country this week.

Captain Andrew P. Keefe and Lieut. James H. Baker, former members of the Minneapolis Tribune staff, who have been in war service in France, have written that they expect to be back in this country early this month.

W. E. Mahoney, for the past ten years marine editor of the Portland Oregonian, has resigned to take a position as publicity agent for the sales and supplies division of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. Fred M. White succeeds him as marine editor.

A. Whisnant has resigned from the staff of the Bend (Orc.) Bulletin to become manager of the Loyal Legion of Loggers and Lumbermen in the Central Oregon district.

Finlay D. McNaughton, recently returned from service, has resigned from the copy desk of the Portland (Ore.) Journal to join the staff of a bond house.

Stewart Hanna has left the Peterboro (Ont.) Review to become editor of the Smith's Falls Record-News.

C. C. Caldwell, city editor of the Cleveland Plaindealer, has returned from a fishing trip in Canada with a story about a 27-pound muscallonge he captured and left in Canada to be mounted by a taxidermist.

Goode M. Guerry, a well-known Tampa newspaper man, has bought the Palatka (Fla.) News from Senator W A. Russell.

Roy T. Burke, formerly of the editorial department of the Milwaukee Sentinel, has been made associate editor of newspaper publicity for Thomas A. Edison, Inc.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE.

Victor F. Lawson, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, now has very nearly recovered from all adverse effects of his attack in New York several months ago, and for the past couple of weeks has been coming down to his office every day.

E. H. Baker, president of the Cleveland Plaindealer Publishing Company, has returned with Mrs. Baker from a visit of several weeks at Tacoma, Wash., and other Pacific Coast cities.

Rodman Wanamaker, executive of the New York Herald and owner of the Philadelphia Press and Evening Telegraph, has fully recovered from a minor operation undergone two weeks ago in the Pankenau Hospital, Philadelphia.

Robert Liggitt, who has been overseas in the Y. M. C. A. service, has resumed his former work with the display advertising department of the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press.

Fred Lovell, who left the advertising department of the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press for a soldier's life in France, has returned and joined the advertising force of the Daily News.

John H. Miller, who has been appointed manager of the Ledger Photo Services, with headquarters at Philadelphia, formerly held the position of librarian on the New York American and not assistant Sunday editor.

WITH THE AD FOLKS

G. B. Smith, for over 18 years Sunday editor of the Philadelphia North American, has resigned to go with the Foley Advertising Agency, that city.

O. S. Bruck, vice-president of the Southwestern Advertising Company, Dallas, Tex., was the principal speaker at the Get-Together Club luncheon in Sherman, Tex., last week.

Fred S. Skeen, formerly secretary of the Becker-Moore Paint Company, St. Louis, and who had charge of advertising and sales for many years, is now connected with the Ross-Gould advertising and sales promotion staff, St. Louis.

Alan R. Wile, for a number of years with the Lord & Thomas Advertising Agency, having had charge of sales promotion and investigation and a year and a half with Knill-Burke, Inc, publishers' representative, has returned after two years' war service abroad and has again become identified with Knill-Burke, Inc., organization.

James A. Young, for the past two years Western manager of the Illustrated Review, a monthly rotogravure pictorial publication, has resigned that connection and has become Western manager of the Graphic Newspapers, Inc., in Chicago.

C. F. Chapin, who has just returned from artillery training at Saumur, France, has rejoined the Vick Chemical Co., of Greensboro (N. C.), in the capacity of first assistant to the advertising manager, Richard B. G. Gardner. Mr. Chapin will be in charge of space-buying and the general detail work of the department.

SPORT WRITER HAS NOT BEEN FIRED SINCE HE WAS PRINTER

SOMETIME ago, George H. Evans, proprietor of the Chickasha (Okla.) Express was introduced to H. C. Hamilton, then sporting editor of the United Press, while on a visit to New York City.

H. C. HAMILTON

"Say, your stuff is going fine down our way and we have a lot of people who swear by your sporting dope," remarked Mr. Evans.

"I am awful glad to hear you say that — for you fired me once," replied Mr. Hamilton.

It then developed that Hamilton, as he is generally known, had once been a tramp printer and during his wanderings had covered most of the Southwest and regardless of his confession that he had been fired from the Express he claims to have been a good printer.

He graduated from printer to reporter on the St. Joseph (Mo.) Gazette and was finally made sporting editor. Then he drifted up to Minneapolis and from there down to Indianapolis, where he worked on the Star.

Three years ago he came to New York as sporting editor of the United Press, and with the exception of a few weeks last spring when he went South with the New York Yankees on their training trip for the New York Mail. He is a great friend of Jack Dempsey and had a great deal to do with a story of his life being printed.

While with the United Press he covered practically every big sporting event in the country. Now he has left them to join the sporting department of the Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer. For the present he will specialize on football.

Hugh Farrell, formerly of the sports department of the Columbus (Ohio) Citizen, is now handling sports in the New York office of the United Press.

The Haskin Letter records and seriously interprets, day by day, those events which mark the progress of the world.

BRING $250,000 LIBEL SUIT

Complainants Say Palmer and Garvin Accused Them Falsely of Disloyalty

The Attorney General, A. Mitchell Palmer, and the Alien Property Custodian, Francis P. Garvin, have been made defendants in a suit filed in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York to recover $250,000 damages for libel, brought by Julius Forstmann and the Forstmann & Huffmann Company, of Passaic, N. J.

The complainants allege that in a series of articles written for the Saturday Evening Post and Munsey's Magazine by Attorney General Palmer, and for the New York Tribune by Mr. Garvin, they were charged with disloyalty during the war and with owning and operating an industry in the interests of Germany. They declare these charges were false.

One H. N. Moore Goes to London

H. N. Moore, the Washington correspondent of the Montreal Star, has been transferred to London, England, as correspondent of the same paper. It will be his first experience in the British capital, but he covered the opening sessions of the Peace Conference in Paris. In the meantime, H. N. Moore, no relation, New York correspondent of the Star, is slightly worried, for H. N. Moore of Washington was to have relieved him on his vacation.

Young Bingham Tennis Champion

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 30.—Robert W. Bingham, Jr., son of the publisher of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal, won the championship of North Carolina in the open tennis tournament here today by defeating Eugene Jones of Asheville by scores of 6—1, 6—0, 6—1.

Digitized by Google

LETTERS OF AN EDITOR TO HIS SON

About six months ago a young newspaperman undertook the management of a somewhat slow going country town daily. His father, an experienced editor, has written him many letters of practical advice. EDITOR & PUBLISHER has secured extracts from these actual letters for publication in several chapters, the fifth and last of which follows:

I HAVE just received your letter and a copy of the paper in which I note certain changes. Evidently the editor is going to have trouble in adjusting himself to the new conditions, but it will be entirely up to him to choose his course. If he will be good and go along it is possible he might become a fair to middling newspaper man, but I doubt it—he is so much sot in his ways. Of course, it is only natural that he should be peeved, anybody would be, but it may be that he will come to his senses before it is too late. If he is going to hold back and make the change as hard as possible he will be worse than useless and will have to go. However, give him time enough to show his cards. Always when you have occasion to give him instructions make them so plain that he cannot claim a misunderstanding.

I am glad you got that new reporter. Get him broken into your way of doing things and see that he is given a full understanding of the editorial department, because when your editor does leave it will probably be in a hurry.

In the paper I see the beginning of a sports department, and it should be built up as rapidly as possible. Put a two or three-column head over the news, and keep it on the same page, preferably the sixth. Can't you get hold of a high school boy to help you with sports?

Always Encourage Suggestions

And, by the way, impress on everybody around the shop that you want suggestions and lots of them, not that you can act on all of them, but try out as many as you can, even if you are doubtful as to some of them. There is nothing that makes more for esprit du corps than to have every man and woman feel that they are an important part and that their ideas are wanted. So I say encourage the whole staff to come to you with advice and criticism. If you can get them all together occasionally to talk things over you will be surprised to find how many good ideas are brought out.

Running short news stories without heads gives the paper a careless look, a fault the editor can easily remedy. Then I see sometimes telegraph stories with no head but the word "bulletin." That's a lazy man's way.

Tell the make-up man never to run an item from one column to the next breaking on a paragraph, for the reader may think that is the end of the story. Nor do I like to see breaks from one page to another on a paragraph. And, speaking of runovers, I am sorry to see that you have a good many carry-overs of only a few lines. It is troublesome enough for the reader to run to another page for the completion of the story, but decidedly irritating to him to find that he has gone to so much trouble to get a few lines that could have been worked into the first page somehow. Runovers are annoying at best to the readers, so better not make them any worse than absolutely necessary.

Another kind of sloppy make-up is apparent too often in the using of personals to justify a column. If the editor would edit some small stories justification would be easier, of course, but still many times the make-up will pinch off lots from a department because that is the easiest way out.

While I am on the subject of make-up let me make another suggestion or two, this time as to the first page. Day after day you have been running a two-column news picture at the top of the first two columns and a double-column head in the last two, all of which is well enough until it becomes tiresome. Try some of the other tops of columns for the cut. Nowadays it seems to be necessary for a paper to have a streamer head across the top of the first page whether the news is worth it or not, but even so, can't you vary the style of type occasionally?

Variety in First Page Makeup

Let me tell you again to watch your column and other rules. Some of them are decidedly ragged and without connections. If the make-up will take a little more time and care the rules will be all right. If you have to buy some new ones the money will be well spent. Look out, too, for worn-out ads, for some of them have been running so long that they are almost illegible. If I were the advertiser I would not pay you a red cent for the space they occupy, little as the amount might be. Be careful, too, about broken letters both in ads and in heads, and broken news dashes. These are all small things, but they count for a lot in the general appearance of the paper. And, besides, in many cases the remedy costs nothing but carefulness and the exercise of a sharp eye.

I hope you prove to be one of the rather rare men whose eyes become trained to catch errors almost without looking. I worked for a man once who was almost uncanny in his ability to see mistakes, even those buried in the solid text of the paper. And incidentally I never knew a man who was such a stickler for keeping the paper clean typographically and mechanically. He did not assume, either, that anything was good enough for the reader, nor that the reader did not notice carelessness and dirtiness.

"Well, I guess that will be about all for this time. Don't get discouraged because you cannot do all you would like to do all at once. I have crowded a good many things on you, I know, but do the best you can. And, above all, don't get fussed. Do your darndest, and you will be in the class with the angels.

St. Louis Endorses Indianapolis

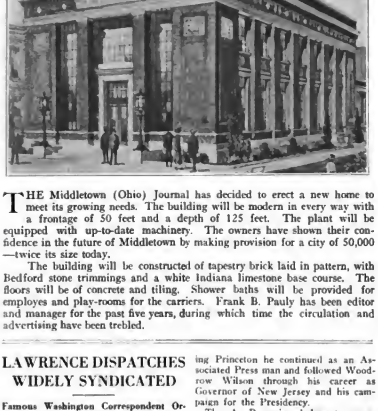
ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 1.—The Advertising Club of this city has gone on record in favor of Indianapolis for the 1920 convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. This action was taken at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the club last Tuesday, following an address by Charles A. Bookwalter of Indianapolis. The weekly meetings of the club have been resumed after having been suspended for the summer.

Newsprint Companies to Merge

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Negotiations are pending toward the merger of the St. Regis Paper Company and the Remington Paper and Power Company, the two largest newsprint manufacturing concerns in this section. If the deal is consummated it will mean a concern with more than $25,000,000 in assets.

—Oh, Yes, they DO build ocean carriers in Wisconsin.

They built two miles of ocean ships for the war, in fresh-water shipyards—and did it on time, too!



YOU CAN SELL THEM almost anything that is used in the home, the office, or in the factory, if you present it right and call attention to it by advertising in the daily papers. There are ONLY fifty English language dailies in Wisconsin. They reach the readers on the farm and in the ...ies, at ho...; and your adverti... for a w... year in all of the... need not cost you much more than the price of a stamp to mail a letter to each family head in the state!

NO, you can NOT beat it! The proof is these papers:

Papers	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 lines
Appleton Daily Post (E)	5,010	.0143
Beloit News (E)	6,593	.02
Eau Claire Leader-Telegram (M&E&S)	9,042	.027
Fond du Lac Commonwealth (E)	6,017	.025
Green Bay Press Gazette (E)	11,011	.025
Kenosha News (E)	5,221	.0129
La Crosse Tribune-Leader Press (E&S)	13,567	.035
Madison, Wisconsin, State Journal (E)	†14,689	.035
Madison, Wisconsin, State Journal (S)	†10,891	.03
Milwaukee Wisconsin News (E)	*68,431	.10
Milwaukee Journal (E)	113,830	.14
Milwaukee Journal (S)	93,830	.14
Milwaukee Sentinel (M&E)	81,752	.11
Milwaukee Sentinel (S)	67,162	.11
Racine Journal News (E)	7,666	.025
Sheboygan Press (E)	6,698	.0214
Superior Telegram (E)	15,152	.035
Wausau Record-Herald (E)	5,353	.01785

Government Statements, April 1, 1919.
*Publisher's Statement, April 1, 1919.
†A. B. C. Statement, April 1, 1919

NEW HOME FOR FAST GROWING OHIO DAILY

THE Middletown (Ohio) Journal has decided to erect a new home to meet its growing needs. The building will be modern in every way with a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 125 feet. The plant will be equipped with up-to-date machinery. The owners have shown their confidence in the future of Middletown by making provision for a city of 50,000 —twice its size today.

The building will be constructed of tapestry brick laid in pattern, with Bedford stone trimmings and a white Indiana limestone base course. The floors will be of concrete and tiling. Shower baths will be provided for employes and play-rooms for the carriers. Frank B. Pauly has been editor and manager for the past five years, during which time the circulation and advertising have been trebled.

LAWRENCE DISPATCHES WIDELY SYNDICATED

Famous Washington Correspondent Organizes Company for Wider Distribution of His Interpretative News Articles—Has Won Laurels

David Lawrence, who has won a place of special distinction among Washington correspondents through his interpretative dispatches on national and international problems, has broadened the scope of his activities. He has organized "David Lawrence, Inc.," with headquarters in Washington, to facilitate the distribution of his dispatches to a list of leading newspapers now numbering about sixty-eight and increasing constantly.

This organization took control of the dispatches on July 1, and the New York Evening Post—for which newspaper Mr. Lawrence had been special Washington correspondent for several years—continues to print them on the same basis with the other newspapers. These dispatches are being printed by republican and democratic newspapers alike, as they are non-partisan observations by a man trained to analyze significant news without bias.

The Washington Feature Service is a subsidiary company, and EDITOR & PUBLISHER is informed that its plans include the development of a wide range of distinctive matter, under the general direction of Mr. Lawrence.

Mr. Lawrence obtained his first training as a newspaper man on the Buffalo Express. When he became a student at Princeton he represented the Associated Press there, and among his achievements is recorded a beat on the death of Grover Cleveland. Upon leaving Princeton he continued as an Associated Press man and followed Woodrow Wilson through his career as Governor of New Jersey and his campaign for the Presidency.

The A. P. assigned him to cover many big news events, such as the McNamara trial and the Mexican revolutions of 1910 and 1912. He is considered as a leading authority today on Mexican affairs.

When the great war broke Mr. Lawrence was White House correspondent of the A. P. and was placed in charge of the international news department of that organization at Washington, supervising the gathering of news throughout the Lusitania controversy. His accurate forecasts of diplomatic moves attracted nation-wide attention. In December, 1915, he became correspondent of the New York Evening Post and his dispatches appeared exclusively in that newspaper for about two years. The demand for the rights to print them in other newspapers induced the Post to arrange to telegraph them simultaneously to a large list of papers.

DAVIS BACK FROM WAR WORK

Again with Morgan Agency After Serving K. of C. Abroad

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 3.—John A. Davis, after a year's service as a Knights of Columbus secretary in France, has returned to this country and resumed his duties as vice-president of the John J. Morgan Advertising Agency.

Besides conducting two clubs, a theatre, a warehouse and an amusement park at La Rochelle, as head secretary in that area for the K. of C., he had supervision of twelve other sections of welfare work.

ILLINOIS

There are seventy-three incorporated cities in Illinois each having a population in excess of 5,000.

Seventy-three worth while trading centers in 58,980 square miles, giving each city an average of over eighty square miles of territory to draw from.

There are 250,000 farms in Illinois, every one of them close to some pretty much worth while city—and these are the highest priced farms in the United States.

Illinois is easy to get to, easy to get around in and easy to win in a business way.

Illinois daily newspapers are representative —and localize national advertising so that with the cooperation of local merchants, who get their business through their home town daily newspapers, national advertisers get action commensurate with their expenditures.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
Aurora Beacon News (E).....	16,000	.04	.04
Bloomington Pantagraph (M)	17,213	.035	.035
Champaign Daily Gazette (E).....	4,605	.0129	.0129
Chicago American (E)	326,998	.40	.40
*Chicago Herald-Examiner (M)	289,094	.38	.31
*Chicago Herald-Examiner (S).....	596,851	.53	.46
Chicago Daily News (E).....	386,498	.43	.43
Chicago Journal (E)	116,807	.22	.18
Chicago Post (E)	55,477	.25	.12
Danville Commercial News (E)....	15,086	.03	.03
*Elgin Courier (E)	8,173	.02	.02
Moline Dispatch (E)	10,113	.03	.03
Peoria Star (E)	22,738	.045	.04
Quincy Journal (E)	*8,591	.025	.025
Rockford Register-Gazette (E).....	13,477	.03	.03
Sterling Daily Gazette (E).....	5,072	.02	.02

Total Circulation 1,892,449. Rate per line, $2.3304.
Government Statement, April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. Report, April 1st, 1919.

BRIEFS

"Valon Tiella" (The Lighter Road), a booklet published by the Finnish Socialist Publishing Company, of Fitchburg, Mass., has been prohibited by the chief press censor for Canada.

Thomas G. Duque, the director of the Star and Herald in Panama, is the successor of his father, Don Jose G. Duque, who died last year.

The Portsmouth (Ohio) Times, an evening paper, will issue a morning edition this fall.

First annual golf tournament of the Des Moines Advertising Club commenced Friday, Aug. 29. The daily papers of the city are offering cups and members of the club and local merchants are offering all sorts of prizes. One feature of the tournament is that, outside of the main prizes, the contestants will not know what prizes they are to receive until the tourney is over.

Lieut. Sewell Collins, who once held positions on the Chicago Tribune as cartoonist and dramatic critic, has been presented with the military cross by Sir Douglas Haig. This served as intelligence officer in London. Lieut. Collins is a successful playwright as well as an ex-newspaper man. One of his latest plays, "Rescuing Annie," will open in New York City this fall.

"Clem" Manning, veteran Chicago newspaper police reporter, who has just returned from overseas, where he served with the U. S. Coast Artillery, was married to Miss Sadie Agnes Gill, of Chicago, at St. Andrew's Church this week.

Wallace ("Wallie") Smith, creator of the popular "Joe Blow and Bitter Bill" daily illustrated dialogue feature in the Chicago Evening American, is representing his paper on the Mexican border during the operations of the Eighth Cavalry in pursuit of the Rentarias bandit gang. All of "Wallie's" news stories appeared signed nowadays.

Jackson J. Donovan, former sporting editor of the Bridgeport (Conn.) Post, is now employed at the Lake Torpedo Boat Company plant.

Robert Farrell has resigned as sporting editor of the Bridgeport (Conn.) Sunday Herald. Editor Richard Howell is temporarily getting out the sporting section.

Victor W. Ferris, city editor of the Norwalk (Conn.) Hour, recently took a party of friends in his yacht Dink to Oyster Bay, Long Island, to visit Roosevelt's grave.

Gordon Ertz, of the Palette and Chisel Club, Chicago, and former newspaper and magazine illustrator, who recently was discharged from U. S. Army camouflage service, has just been appointed to the art department of Selznick motion pictures, and will shortly leave to assume his new duties in the New York City studios.

During the seven months ending July 31
614,922 agate lines
of national advertising were published in
The Clarksburg Telegram
a gain over the same period of 1918 of 74.5%
It pays to advertise in "West Virginia's Leading Newspaper."

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Francis Ida Beardsley, of Stratford, Conn., to Herbert P. Plank, special writer for the Bridgeport Sunday Herald.

Albert W. Fell, general manager; Harry M. Nelson, treasurer, and Franklin I. Jordan, plant manager of the Pilgrim Press, Boston, are enjoying a hiking trip in the White Mountains.

PAPER ADS AID FLORISTS

Are Least Expensive and Most Efficient Boosters, Convention Hears

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2.—Newspaper advertising as the least expensive and most efficient medium for spreading the gospel of "Say It With Flowers" was advocated at the convention here of the American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, by Payne Jennings, of Chicago.

He recommended an advertising appropriation of 5 per cent of the annual sale, emphasizing the fact that this was money invested rather than spent and the best form of business insurance.

Albany Soldiers Return

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Albert H. Easingwood, who was with the British army in France, and Jerome L. Smith, who was attached to General Pershing's headquarters in Paris, have joined the staff of the Knickerbocker Press. James H. Mansell is the latest addition to the reportorial staff of the Albany (N. Y.) Argus. William Marlette has returned to the staff of the Schenectady (N. Y.) Union-Star.

Combines Athletics and Publicity

Chicago, Sept. 3.—James Leonard Lee, for seven years editor of the Evanston Daily News-Index, and former member of the editorial staff of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, has been elected director of athletics and publicity of Northwestern University at Evanston. His appointment makes him a voting member of the faculty.

Issues Bankers' Edition

The Twin City Sentinel of Winston-Salem, N. C., issued a special North Carolina Bankers' Convention Edition on August 20, in celebration of the opening of the annual gathering which was held in that city this year. The convention number was made up in four sections and contained 36 pages.

The Religious Publications are COMING BACK with their far-seeing general advertisers.
THE CONGREGATIONALIST
14 BEACON ST., BOSTON

U. S. P. O. Report
For the period ending April 1, 1919, Average Daily and Sunday Circulation 76,652
New Orleans Item
Enjoys the largest afternoon and Sunday net paid circulation of any newspaper published in the entire South

A VANDERBILT ENTERS NEWSPAPER WORK

(Continued from Page 5.)

cided on than for the place in the world that his family would have him take.

His family has agreed, however, that he shall have his room at home and he can drop around when he cares to, or is hungry, for a meal. That promised assistance is not helping him a great deal right now for his father is in Europe on business, his mother and sister are out of town, the house is boarded up and as a result he is bunking on his 29-foot racing sloop down on Long Island Sound.

He still has his little roadster, a gift of allowance days but is already finding it expensive on his salary. As a matter of fact since becoming a newspaper reporter he has for the first time in his life enjoyed that rare experience of having his banker call him up and tell him his account was overdrawn.

Many Untrue Things

There are some things that have been said about young Mr. Vanderbilt that are not true; his often referred to yacht is not the little sloop on which he sleeps at the present time, and to say the very best the quarters are cramped; he spends his day off racing on Long Island Sound and not at Newport, a place he does not think much of and which he has visited only once this year and then for but two days; his favorite part of the world to see world is the Pacific Northwest, and especially the Puget Sound country; he is not covering his assignments in a high-powered touring car and does not expect to in the future.

He confesses that his principal assignments to date have been with "office pests" and some rewrite thrown in. His ambition is still to cover a real big happening of importance from the scene of activity.

He has always been interested in newspaper work. For some time he attended Lake Placid Academy and while there was interested in school journalism. He was for a time business manager and later editor of the Migrator, a semi-monthly school paper. He has been unable to develop any great interest in finance or mathematics. The only studies that have interested him greatly are history, politics, languages and first of all the other people in the world.

Will Own Paper

There is no indication that the social whirl will draw him into it and dancing —well, he says that's all right if you can't think, have nothing else to do and time is the only thing that is worrying you.

While in the army he did some work for such well known publications as Stars and Stripes, the Gas Attack and Trench and Camp. Politically he professes independence, on the big questions of today his mind is open.

This does not mean that he has not opinions on present-day events and their possible results, but he is young and out to learn and it would be unfair to him to set them down here.

Mr. Vanderbilt believes that the newspaper is the greatest agency for good in the world. He believes that its importance will grow each day and that it must take the leadership in world remaking for betterment to all people.

His only concern at present is to learn all about the newspaper business from the sub-basement to the roof.

His ambition of the future is editorship or ownership of a big newspaper and a place in helping to influence all mankind for better things.

Mrs. Hearst Heads Committee

Mrs. William R. Hearst has been appointed by Mayor Hylan, of New York, as chairman of the Mayor's Committee of Women Recognition to Distinguished Guests in connection with the approaching visit of the Prince of Wales.

dominance
You can absolutely dominate one of the most easily cultivated markets in U. S. A. through its dominant paper.
The Indianapolis News
Chester Mosher A. B. C.
Foreign Representatives
Dan A. Carroll, Tribune Bldg., New York
J. E. Luca, First Nat. Bank Bldg., Chicago

The Detroit News
published more Department Store advertising on Sundays than its only Sunday competitor. Week days, it carries more than all its competitors combined. In total advertising it is First in America.

Photogravure Advertising 25c line
8 page supplement Every Sunday
Des Moines Sunday Register
70,000 Net Paid Circulation
I. A. Klein, New York—John Glass, Chicago

The circulation of
The Evening Star
in Washington, D. C., and suburbs, is believed to be about three times that of the corresponding edition of its afternoon contemporary in the same territory.

The Pittsburgh Post
has the second largest morning and Sunday circulation in Pittsburgh.

Digitized by Google

EDITORS DEFEND POLICY OF BIG SPACE FOR BASEBALL NEWS

Many Contend That Topic Is Rarely Over-Played Because of Its Intimate Interest to All Men—Others See Need for Curtailment.

EDITORS in various cities who have been interviewed by representatives of EDITOR & PUBLISHER on the subject of proper and reasonable space for baseball, in the face of a need to economize in the use of newsprint, generally concede that this topic should be confined to its news value.

However, no editor will admit that his own newspaper is overplaying the news appeal of the national game, insisting upon its strong hold upon the mind of the average reader.

Plain Dealer Averages Six Columns a Day

W. G. Vorpe, Sunday feature editor and now acting managing editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, does not think that "baseball news is generally over-played at present."

Discussing the question of conserving news space in big dailies, Mr. Vorpe said:

"There may be individual cases of newspapers giving it more space than is necessary. Baseball, during the season, is perhaps the largest single item of news that appears daily and has a larger class of readers looking for the information than is given by the baseball reporters. As newspapers are issued primarily for the dissemination of news, it is highly important that sufficient attention be paid to a news item of so extreme importance to a large class of readers.

"The question of reasonable space depends upon the definition of reasonable as applied by various managers and publishers of newspapers. The Plain Dealer, which carries baseball news of the American League, the National League, the American Association and some of the smaller leagues which are pertinent to this territory, gives to professional baseball an average of six columns a day; that is, when the teams are generally all playing. This space will run lighter or heavier, as the occasion may demand. Newspapers in cities having two of the major leagues represented will occasionally have to give a little more space.

"Amateur baseball, which is a very popular sport among all red-blooded boys, is a considerable item in the news of Cleveland newspapers, especially on Saturdays and Sundays, and the Plain Dealer is in the habit of carrying something around 50 to 70 scores of amateur games on Monday morning, many of which are box scores."

Hopes for Concerted Action

The St. Paul Dispatch Printing Co. has no cause to worry, as it has its own paper mill. C. K. Blandin, publisher of the Dispatch-Pioneer Press, says: "I do not think too much space is being given to baseball. When you consider that 30,000 people witnessed a recent game here your can readily perceive what the readers want."

M. R. Galt, managing editor of these papers, thinks that while the amount of space devoted to local games is not too large in cities that have a big team, altogether too much is given to outside games. "The box score and play by innings are sufficient, in my opinion," he says. "The space could easily be cut to two or two and one-half columns. But nothing can be done unless the papers take concerted action. I hope that EDITOR & PUBLISHER will succeed in getting something started."

Opinions of St. Louis Editors

B. F. Bradley, general manager of the St. Louis Star, says: "There is a tremendous popular demand for baseball news, and I do not see how the newspapers can get away from meeting that demand. Personally, I think baseball is a clean, healthy sport, and ought to be encouraged. We aim to regulate the amount of news space devoted to baseball according to the interest and enthusiasm of the public, which in turn is regulated by the standing of the local teams in the percentage columns. Generally speaking, no newspaper can run counter to a popular demand in news classifications, and baseball is one of the sports that are of paramount interest to the public."

Homer Bassford, general manager of the St. Louis Times, observes: "The St. Louis Times treats baseball news exactly as it treats any other news. If the teams are playing and the interest is large, it gives a proportionately larger amount of space to this department. When interest in the home team falls off, space is reduced correspondingly and attention is given in an increased degree to the leading teams in other cities."

Sam Hellman, managing editor of the St. Louis Republic, offers some advice to the editor: "If the editor of EDITOR & PUBLISHER would ride in street cars and mingle with the people on the street corners, he would know that baseball is so widely read and discussed that any amount of news space given to it would not be overplaying it. The one thing a newspaper has to do is to sell its papers, the baseball news does sell papers. If the people want baseball, and they do, baseball news is not overplayed. In my opinion, the big waste in space is in market news. Not 1 per cent. of a newspaper's readers are interested in market news. I have yet to hear an argument on the street corner as to why Bethlehem steel went down two points, but you can always get up a conversation on whether the Cincinnati Reds will win the pennant."

No Interest in Off-Season

George W. Norton, editor, Portland (Me.) Express-Advertiser, says:

"The same general rule should be applied, in my opinion, to the space devoted to baseball as to all other matters. It should be given space according with news value. In the off season it has none, and it seems to me a waste of space to use any so-called 'dope' when there is actually no news in it. When the season actually begins the stories become of news value, and are entitled to just so much space as this requires.

"The habit of trying to keep up an interest in this particular sport by printing gossip that is not news is not good journalism. Wheo things are happening then it becomes the province of the newspaper to tell all there is to tell."

E. R. Russell, editor of the Portland Argus, comments:

"In our opinion baseball is one of the very 'live' items of news. It may be overplayed by a few newspapers, but ordinarily we believe it it given little more than its true value. By that we mean few newspapers furnish more information, or occupy more space than their readers demand.

"During play season from three to six columns appears like a reasonable average, dependent largely upon local conditions, while between seasons from half to a full column, we believe, will fully 'cover' most publications."

H. M. Bigelow, editor of the Portland Press, has this to say:

"I regard baseball as more than a sport; it is an institution, and its educational influence on the American people is a power for good. The newspapers should give it all the space they can, although, of course, it is possible to overdo it. I am not a baseball fan, either, and rarely attend games."

W. H. Cowles, publisher of the Spokane (Wash.) Spokesman-Review, says:

"Baseball has been overplayed in the past. It still is in some centers. A half or three-quarter column introduction to a ball game is absurd. Box scores outside of local clubs are unnecessary. The Associated Press reports to the Spokesman-Review are first class."

Des Moines Ad Men Elect

The Des Moines Advertising Club will send a delegation of thirteen to the Associated Advertising Club Convention at New Orleans. All the officers of the club were elected as delegates, with Harter Hull, president, as delegate at large. Money to defray the expenses of the delegation was raised last winter at the annual Ad Club Show and Frolic.

The delegates elected are W. S. Arant, Chester Cogswell, Byron H. Dawson, Clifford DePuy, C. W. Graham, Harold Holmes, Harter Hull, Geo. A. Jewett, T. W. Le Quatte, E. P. Schwartz, Paul B. Talbot, E. Allen Walker, and Fred Wiley.

Charles M. Flandrau has resigned as dramatic critic of the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press and will spend the winter on the Pacific Coast.

PREMIUMS

That Are Real Subscription Producers

S. BLAKE WILLSDEN

Manufacturers and Publishers Representatives,
1606 Heyworth Building
29 E. Madison St. CHICAGO

WE SPEND MORE THAN $500,000

per year to produce the features which have created the greatest newspaper following in the world.

"Hearst's Features Always Lead"

Write for booklet.

"Hall Million Dollar Feature Service"

The International Feature Service
246 West 59th Street

New Era Features

30 East 42nd St., New York City

Forty Leading Papers Print Our Service.

Send for our Headline History of the World War

Fifty leading newspaper publishers in the United States and Canada will tell you that their membership in The Associated Newspapers was worth more than it cost at the start and has steadily increased in value since.

If your city is open, you may join at the same proportionate rate and secure the greater value they have already built up.

Write or wire for rates.

The Associated Newspapers
170 Broadway New York

THE INTERNATIONAL NEWS BUREAU, Inc.
15 SCHOOL STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
(J. J. BOSDAN, Editor)

More than 120 American and Canadian newspapers subscribe to our service

Each week our subscribers receive between 30 and 50 columns of copy. Authoritative articles by men of international calibre on matters international, human interest stories from all lands and climes, revelations of European courts, speeches and addresses of men and women whose words influence the thought of nations, translations from every important foreign newspaper; these and numberless other items day after day are sent to our subscribers.

IN SHORT, MR. EDITOR—ESPECIALLY MR. SUNDAY EDITOR —WE CONSTANTLY SPREAD THE WORLD BEFORE YOU FROM ALL ANGLES.

You will find our monthly subscription rates surprisingly low.

The True News
FIRST

Always—Accurately

International News Service
World Bldg. New York

NEWSPAPER Feature Service

GET THE FEATURES THAT HAVE WON THE BIGGEST AUDIENCE

Write us for samples of our colored comics, daily and Sunday pages in black and colors.

Newspaper Feature Service
M. KOENIGSBERG, Manager
241 WEST 38TH ST. NEW YORK

TAKING RUMELY CASE EVIDENCE IN BERNE

U. S. Government Agents Examining Figures in Noted New York Evening Mail Case—Dr. Albert Admits Handling Money for Germany

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 29.—Evidence is now being taken on commission before Francis Stewart, United States Consul at Berne, in connection with charges against Dr. Edward A. Rumely as purchaser of the New York Evening Mail, and against the New York lawyers, Lindheim and Kaufmann, who advised Rumely in transactions with Dr. Albert, formerly German agent in New York and now German Under-Secretary of State.

The charge against the defendants is that the Evening Mail was purchased by Dr. Rumely with money supplied by Albert, who was head of the German Government's propagandist organization in the United States.

Albert, giving his evidence in English, admitted that he had advanced money for the purchase of the Evening Mail from funds in his hands—funds resulting from the raising of German loans in the United States and from certain other sources.

He said that he had advanced this money somewhat against his own judgment, but his objection had been overruled by Dr. Dernburg, who assured him that advancing this money was proper, and that Hermann Sielcken, the German-American coffee magnate, who had been living many years in Germany, would assume responsibility for the transaction.

Dr. Albert said he had never received any money or had any kind of communication with Mr. Sielcken and knew of no communication by Dernburg to Sielcken. All Dr. Albert knew or cared to know about the transaction was that Dernburg had told him to act as he did.

Albert gave his evidence with great apparent frankness and directness, but explained that the matters about which he was examined happened so long ago, and that he had since passed through such troublous times, that his recollection of many details was necessarily very vague.

Schultze-Gaevernitz, a former member of the German Reichstag, is expected to give evidence before the commissioner concerning his connection with the purchase of the newspaper.

Will Meet Next in Quanah

QUANAH, Tex., Sept. 1.—This city has been selected by the executive committee of the Northwest Texas Press Association as the place for holding the next annual meeting. The Northwest Texas Press Association includes all territory north of the Texas & Pacific Railway and west of Fort Worth and has a membership of several hundred. The time of the meeting has not been selected.

BECOMES ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

Portland Sport Writer Resigns to Accept Position with State College

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 3.—Woodbury F. Howe has completed his duties as assistant sporting editor of the Express-Advertiser, in order to at once take up his new duties as assistant athletic director of New Hampshire State College at Durham.

WOODBURY F. HOWE

Howe is a graduate of Westbrook Seminary, and has taken an active interest in all kinds of athletics there, in the Deering High School and in the Maine colleges. He has served as baseball, football and basket-ball official several years. He also has coached at Westbrook Seminary.

He served in the United States Naval Reserves in this district during the war. He has been engaged in newspaper work in Portland since leaving the seminary.

MARYLAND WEEKLY SOLD

Wicomico News Acquired by F. P. Adkins and Associates

SALISBURY, Md., Sept. 2.—Brewington Brothers' Company, owners of the Wicomico News, a weekly newspaper, have sold out to interests represented by Fred P. Adkins, Dale Adkins and Amos W. W. Woodcock, who will organize a new corporation known as the News Publishing Company.

Ex-Senator Marion M. Brewington several years ago, with his brother, Harry L. Brewington, established the Wicomico News and developed the newspaper and printing business from a very small enterprise to one of the leading publications and largest printing establishments on the Eastern Shore. The Brewington brothers have for several months been in ill health.

Pity the Poor Newsprint Paper Manufacturers

Spanish River Mills Announce an Increase in Annual Earnings of Merely 12.6%—Hopes for Better Times

MONTREAL, Sept. 3.—The annual report of the Spanish River Pulp & Paper Mills, Ltd., just issued, covering the year ended June 30, 1919, is the best in the company's history.

It shows net revenue of $2,757,000, an increase of over $1,028,000, or nearly 60 per cent over the figures for the previous year. After making generous allowance for depreciation, deducting interest charges, putting aside large sum for contingencies, there remains available for dividend purposes the sum of $1,296,000, against $577,000 last year. This surplus is equivalent to 22.6 per cent on the outstanding preferred stock, compared with 10 per cent earned last year.

After allowing for a full year's dividend requirements on the preferred, there remains a balance equal to 11.1 per cent on the common stock against 2.2 per cent the last year. The record of the Spanish River company will be best shown by a comparison of the surplus of six years' ago and today. In 1914 the surplus was $157,000; in 1916, $431,000; last year, $577,000, and in the year just closed, $1,296,000.

President George Mead, in his annual report to the shareholders, says:

"The result of the past twelve months' operations, while showing substantial increase over the previous year, does not, however, in the opinion of your directors, yet represent adequate returns upon the very favorable resources of the company, or the large amount of capital invested."

UNITED PRESS MAKES CHANGES

Karnes Goes to Pittsburgh and New Bureau Is Opened at Hartford

Paul H. Karnes, formerly on the "embassy run" of the United Press at Washington, and more recently manager of the Philidelphia bureau, has been appointed manager of the Pittsburgh bureau, succeeding Guy W. Seem, who has joined the New York staff of the Associated Press.

S. P. Hollingsworth, a California newspaper man, recently discharged from the army, succeeds Karnes at Philadelphia. The United Press has opened another bureau in New England, at Hartford, Conn., with E. E. Thompson, formerly of the Hartford Post, in charge. Other recent United Press changes include: H. E. Caylor, of the Chicago bureau, to the Des Moines bureau, as manager; B. A. Hoffman, from the Madison to the Milwaukee bureau, as manager; J. F. Kolbert, who covered the Winnipeg strike, to the Cleveland bureau, as manager; Charles Leith, of Pittsburgh, to the Harrisburg bureau, as manager; Hal Thompson, formerly manager of the Milwaukee bureau, but who has recently been working vacation tricks in the Middle West, transferred to the Chicago bureau.

Boys Like Books on Writing

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 3.—The management of the Syracuse Public Library reports that the youth of this city are most interested in books on technical subjects and among the first eleven such subjects in point of popularity are newspaper writing and editing and advertising.

You can reach

Albany, Troy and Schenectady with one paper

The Sunday Telegram
Albany, N. Y.
Circulation, 28,000

A Steady Increase

in the volume of advertising appearing in THE PLAIN DEALER not only indicates new advertisers, but an increased amount of advertising from old ones who have learned by actual experience that they get the best returns from

The Plain Dealer

Largest Morning Circulation Between New York and Chicago

A. B. C. Figures Are Wrong

as of TODAY. Our circulation as of April, however, is correctly reported. But the circulation has increased to 7,212 net paid—nearly 1,000 better than in April. The rate is 25c. per agate line.

Beloit is "the best town of the country" for the national advertiser.

BELOIT NEWS

Dominates Its Field
LOS ANGELES
EVENING HERALD
Circulation
127,773
DAILY
Member A. B. C.

After the War—and on a 2c Basis

The circulation report of the Louisville Herald to the U. S. Postoffice Dept., as of April 1, 1919, shows the following.

DAILY . . . 52,456
SUNDAY. . . . 48,767
Average Daily & Sun. 51,930

Use of premiums and reduced rate offers to mail subscribers were all discontinued in August, 1918.

The Herald has the largest daily (morning) and the largest daily-Sunday average circulation in Louisville.

Herald circulation is concentrated in the Louisville trading territory.

The Louisville Herald
Kentucky's Greatest Newspaper

The Mount Vernon, N. Y.
DAILY ARGUS
carries more display advertising than any other newspaper in Westchester County

This is an acknowledgment of its power that the advertiser should heed, if desirous of reaching the people of Mount Vernon.

GEO. B. DAVID & CO.
Foreign Representative
171 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

The Pittsburgh Dispatch is a capable and welcome salesman in thousands of good homes.

WALLACE G. BROOKE
Brunswick Building, New York
THE FORD PARSONS CO.,
People Gas Building, Chicago
H. C. BOOK
Real Estate Trust Building, Philadelphia

New Orleans States
Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.
Sworn Net Paid Circulation for 6 Months Ending April 1st, 1919
43,701 Daily
We guarantee the largest white home delivered evening circulation in the trade territory of New Orleans.
To reach a large majority of the trade prosperous in the best territory the States is the logical and economic medium.
Circulation data sent on request.
The S. C. Beckwith Special Agcy.
Sole Foreign Representatives
New York Chicago St. Louis

BRIDGEPORT POST HITS AT WRITERS' UNION

Co-operates with Its Own Staff Men in Organizing Mutual Benefit Association—Won't Agree to "Closed Shop"—Union Starts Paper.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 3.—Following the organization here of the Bridgeport Newswriters' Equity Association and adoption made by it for affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, as announced in last week's issue of EDITOR AND PUBLISHER, the management of the Post Publishing Company, which issues the Post, the Sunday Post, and the Standard-Telegram is co-operating with its editors and writers in forming a mutual benefit association within its own organization.

A proposal that such an association be formed was made at a meeting of all the employes of the editorial departments of the three newspapers mentioned by George Waldo, Jr., editor-in-chief. The employes immediately endorsed the plan and appointed M. T. Hettinger, sports editor of the Standard-Telegram, temporary chairman, and Lee M. Pasquin, rewrite man on the Post, temporary secretary.

Earl C. Donegan, editor of the Sunday Post, and Mr. Pasquin were appointed a committee to confer with six members of the Standard-Telegram staff who left the paper when the Newswriters' Equity Association was formed and to invite them to return to work and join the mutual benefit association.

"We are willing to let bygones be bygones," said Mr. Waldo.

It is said that the Post Publishing Company would not agree to a "closed shop" for its three papers and that there was no need of a "union invasion" of them. He cited increases in pay and improvements in working conditions that had taken place on the papers since he and Edward Flicker bought them.

The organization of a mutual benefit association within the Post Publishing Company's organization may have the effect of limiting membership in the Newswriters' Equity Association to staff men of the other two Bridgeport newspapers—the Herald, the Sunday Herald, and the Times-Farmer—whose number is less than one-half of all the editors and newswriters at work in Bridgeport.

Denies "Strong Opposition"

The Newswriters' Equity Association long reflected its organization and is now issuing a weekly paper called the Bridgeport Newswriter. In a letter to EDITOR AND PUBLISHER, A. F. McCrea, city editor of the Bridgeport Herald, which, with the Sunday Herald and the Times-Farmer has endorsed the Equity, denies a report that there is "strong opposition" to the union, as a dispatch from Bridgeport stated.

"I also wish to deny, as spokesman for the Equity," he writes, "that four men on the Standard-Telegram resigned when they joined the union. They did not. They were given a chance to resign from the Equity and when they refused, they were discharged. No demand for an increase in pay had been made and none was planned. The workers simply wanted the right to organize."

Annual Picnic Helps Hold Newsies on the Job

Des Moines Capital Finds Plan a Rousing Success—Whole Circulation Department Motorized

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 29.—The Capital will soon hold its annual carriers' picnic. The affair is usually attended by over four hundred. As the boy situation in Des Moines is of such nature that many carrier changes occur about State fair time, the Capital started advertising the picnic to its carriers early and as a result so much interest was aroused that hardly a boy quit at fair time this year. One of the parks is secured and the city furnishes help as well as wood for the grand fires.

The Sunday Capital on August 10 issued a great Iowa State Fair number. It carried special news and feature matter, including two pages of fair pictures in its rotogravure section.

The Capital has secured a totally new fleet of delivery trucks, completely motorizing the circulation department. During the Iowa street car strike the Capital was able to serve every section of the city on scheduled time. The new trucks are of one and one-half ton capacities. The motor truck fleet is proving of especial help to the new Sunday edition.

Alex Fidler, city circulator of the Cedar Rapids Gazette, has been visiting the plant of the Capital. He was particularly interested in the new arrangements for handling the Sunday Capital, particularly the belt conveyor for lifting the papers from the mailing room to the loading platform.

Arthur F. McCrea, assistant city editor of the Bridgeport (Conn.) Herald, has married Miss Helen Plumley, daughter of a Bridgeport physician.

STAHLMAN ANSWERS 2ND CLASS INQUIRY

Legislative Committee Chairman of S. N. P. A. Emphasizes Policies of His Body, A. N. P. A. and I. S. P. A. in Replying to Post Office

Referring to the recent communication of second-class mail sent out by Postmaster-General Burleson, over the signature of Congressman J. J. Mansfield, Major E. B. Stahlman, chairman of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association legislative committee, advises that his reply to the inquiries would be substantially as follows:

"(a) I favor a zone system, with rates based on the cost of transportation to the Government.

"(b) I am opposed to the flat rate on news matter plus zone system on advertising, embodied in the Revenue Act of 1917.

"(c) I favor an amendment to the Act of 1917 by substituting the zone system such as is embodied in what is known as the McKellar Amendment, the only plan or system which, in my judgment, was ever submitted to Congress that had in it the merit of establishing rates on second-class matter based upon the cost incurred by the Government in carrying such matter.

"The McKellar Amendment fixed the rate at one cent per pound on the three first zones of three hundred miles. Based on the actual cost of carrying these papers the rate of one cent per pound is excessive, and yet in order to indicate a spirit of entire fairness to the Government, I from the start favored that provision of the McKellar Amendment along such rates on the other zones beyond the three hundred mile zone, and for the same reason I favor the McKellar Amendment now.

"The views expressed by me in this connection are entirely in accord with the various declarations unanimously made by the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association on this subject, and I may say also in accord with the unanimous expression of the sentiment of the members of the Inland Press Association and by practically the unanimous vote of the membership of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association."

REST FOR WOMEN WRITERS

Mother of the Late Inez Milholland Boissevain Given It as Memorial

In memory of her daughter, Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, the well known suffrage worker, who died in California more than a year ago, Mrs. Jeanne R. Milholland has set aside a cottage on the country estate of the family near Elizabethtown for a vacation and rest resort for women newspaper and magazine writers of New York.

The place is beautifully located, with 6,000 acres of land in meadows, forests and with springs and bathing pools, an elk and deer park.

SURVEY OF THE RUBBER OVERSHOE MARKET

(Continued from Page 7.)

"Newspaper rates per line per thousand circulation are the lowest of all printed mediums. They vary in cost from one-half to one-fifth of the cost of other kinds of advertising.

"National or general advertisers are using the newspapers at the present time on the basis of more than $100,000,000 per year.

"But the newspaper is especially the medium for localized effort and for this reason its value to an industry surrounded by such peculiar conditions as the manufacture and sale of rubber overshoes is self-evident.

"Its aid to the manufacturer who wants to concentrate in logical markets and to work with the dealers is invaluable."

The Newark (N. J.) Ledger

is a 7-day Morning Associated Press Newspaper and is the only morning newspaper in industrial centre with a million population.

Morning Edition, 2c.
Sunday Edition, 5c.

The McCLURE Newspaper Syndicate

supplies continuous daily and weekly services that make and hold home circulation

ALSO

Big Special Features on Timely Topics by Leading Writers

Send for our complete list and particulars of our star features, including Frank H. Simonds, Montanye Glass and Sewell Ford.

N373 Fourth Ave., New York

The NORTH JERSEY SHORE will be larger this winter than ever before. After the summer season enjoyed this year this field will be far more responsive than in the past.

THE ASBURY PARK PRESS
Evening
and
THE SHORE PRESS
Sunday

are the dominating mediums in these resorts. This profitable field can be thoroughly covered by advertising in these papers

Frank R. Northam, R. C. Standard Rate Card
Metropolitan Tower, New York Representative.
303 Fifth Avenue, New York City.
Association Building, Chicago.
J. Lyle Kinsworth, Publisher, Asbury Park, N. J.

The Bridgeport Post
Standard-Telegram

Not only dominate this field, but they offer advertisers the lowest rate obtainable in New England. Keep them on your list.

FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVES
I. A. Klein,
Metropolitan Bldg., New York.
John Glass,
Peoples' Gas Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The Dominating Force
in a manufacturing territory famous for its hustle, thrift and prosperity where a million dollars are expended weekly in wages.

The Bridgeport Post
Standard-Telegram

Not only dominate this field, but they offer advertisers the lowest rate obtainable in New England. Keep them on your list.

FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVES
I. A. Klein,
Metropolitan Bldg., New York.
John Glass,
Peoples' Gas Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Perth Amboy, N. J.
More than 50,000 and going strong.
Thoroughly Covered by
Evening News
Member A. N. P. A. A. B. C. A. P.
Reasonable requests for trade information given prompt attention.
F. R. Northrup, 303 5th Avenue New York City

Summer In New London, Conn.
is the season of social activities and big business that insure success for the advertiser who uses
The New London Telegraph
Advertise your goods at dawn and sell them before dark.
JULIAN D. MORAN, Pres. and Mgr.
Representatives
Payne Burns & Smith, New York—Boston
J. Logan Payne Co. Chicago—Detroit

CLINCHING THE CAMPAIGN
The Merchandising Service Department of the
BOSTON AMERICA
Helps to assure and insure dealer co-operation and the successful clinching of your advertising and sales campaign
Govt. Statement For Six Months Ending April 1st.
301,270

The Pittsburg Press
Has the LARGEST
Daily and Sunday
CIRCULATION
IN PITTSBURG
Member A. B. C.
Foreign Advertising Representatives.
I. A. KLEIN, JOHN GLASS,
Metropolitan Tower, Peoples Gas Bldg.
New York. Chicago

Digitized by Google

SUPPLIES & EQUIPMENT

For Newspaper Making

WANTED AND FOR SALE

ENLARGING IN CAPE CIRARDEAU

Tubular Press and "One-Set" Rollers for Southeast Missourian

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Sept. 3.—The Southeast Missourian, published by Naeter Brothers, has contracted for a Duplex tubular plate press, with complete stereotyping equipment, to supplant its present 8-page Duplex press. The publishers say theirs will be the first tubular plate press in Missouri. They will also install modern steel-top imposing cabinets, etc., and are considering making extensive alterations in the magnificent building erected a few years ago.

Writing to EDITOR & PUBLISHER, Naeter Brothers say: "We read the advertisement of "One-Set" Rollers in your paper recently, with the result that an examination proves we must have them in our new press."

WILL ERECT NEW HOME

Corpus Christi Times Lets Contracts for Modern Building

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Sept. 3.—W. E. Pope, president of the Times Publishing Company, announces that he has purchased the property on which the Times is at present housed and that the present structure will be razed and a modern three-story building erected on the site. The new building will have a frontage of 27½ feet on Chaparral street and a depth of 120 feet. The first two floors of the new building will be given over to the Times. The improvements planned include new equipment and greater news facilities.

Masonic Paper to Enlarge

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 2.—The Texas Freemason, state organ of Masonry, has been moved from San Antonio to Dallas. Z. Starr Armstrong, a newspaper man who was engaged in war publicity work, has been made editor. A small corporation, known as the Union Publishing Company, has been organized to finance the enterprise in its enlarged plans.

New Home for Houston Press

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 2.—The Houston Press, which began publication in September, 1911, has begun construction of a one-story brick building adjoining the one it now occupies and expects to have it ready for occupancy in November. The Press will add a sixteen-page Goss Quad to its present equipment.

Plaindealer Improves Plant

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 2.—The Cleveland Plaindealer has improved its plant by installing a new press, has equipped its fifth floor with new wash room and shower baths at a cost of nearly $8,000, and is remodeling its third floor better to accommodate the departments there.

Alliance Publishers Expand

LORAIN, Ohio, Sept. 3.—The Times-Herald has sold to the publishers of the Alliance Review, R. C. and F. A. Heiles. C. A. Rowley, for nine years manager of the Times-Herald, will retire.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE

Advertisements under this classification, thirty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

For Sale

At sacrifice for immediate acceptance —Sextuple Goss press with color attachment, eight columns, twelve ems, 21½ inch cut; factory rebuilt two years ago; perfect condition. Also semi-automatic pot and pump. This press has been in use on the Bridgeport (Conn.) Post and can be seen standing. Subject to prior sale. Address J. H. B., Box 1677, Boston, Mass.

Two Hoe Sextuple Presses

for sale. In excellent condition. Can be bought at reasonable figure. For further particulars write H. D. Bradley, Toledo, Blade, Toledo, Ohio.

Two Model—One Magazine

in good condition, also seven Model-A Perfection Medial Feeders. Make us an offer. News and Sentinel, Fort Wayne, Ind.

EQUIPMENT WANTED

Advertisements under this classification, thirty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Wanted

to buy second-hand seven columns turtle and chases. Must be in good condition. Fay Florida, Metropolis, Jacksonville, Florida.

INCORPORATIONS

NEW YORK.—Graphic Record Corporation; publishing statistics; $125,000: E. H. Morse, W. J. Schmidt, G. L. Wast, 157 Cedar street.

Double S Paper Supply Company; $10,000; M. Z. H. Schapira, C. Geschwind, L. Blazer, 221 Rivington street.

J. R. Mayers Dealer Service Company; advertising; $50,000; H. H. Vanaken, F. Kaiser, Jr., M. C. Flanagan, 140 Nassau street.

LaFrance Publishing Corporation; 2,000 shares common stock, no par value; active capital, $10,000; S. M. Seymour, C. B. Hughes, C. M. Thorne, 200 West 91st street.

Essential Printing Company; $20,000; W. F. McCarthy, C. Vilhauer, G. Abrahams, 205 Bay 29th street, Brooklyn.

Riverton Paper Company; $100,000; F. B. Oldham, G. Mecarnochen, E. E. Ellsworth, 8 West 40th street.

Classified Advertising Mediums, Inc.; $25,000; W. Hirsch, B. M. Blumenthal, S. Gharnett, 261 Broadway.

DOVER, DEL.—Lithoprint Company of New York; $695,000; M. L. Ross, T. A. Irwin, W. G. Singer of Wilmington.

RICHMOND, N. Y.—Advance Press; printing and bookbinding; $5,000; B. M. Prebee, B. Sayre, B. F. McGuirk, Port Richmond.

SHAWNEE, OKLA.—Litho-Tone Printery; capital, $3,000; C. W. Dobbyn, Burta S. Dobbyn, W. F. Skelton.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Buffalo Linotyping Company; $10,000; W. J. Kelly, J. R. Souter, H. G. Boice.

Sandusky Star-Journal Builds

SANDUSKY, Ohio, Sept. 3.—The Sandusky Star-Journal has let a contract for four-story building to take the place of its present quarters. It will contain a room for civic and commercial gatherings. A new three-deck printing press will be installed.

For Prompt Service

TYPE
Printers' Supplies
Machinery

In Stock for Immediate Shipment by Selling Houses conveniently located

"American Type the Best in Any Case"

AMERICAN
TYPE FOUNDERS CO.

Boston	Pittsburgh	Kansas City
New York	Cleveland	Denver
Philadelphia	Detroit	Los Angeles
Baltimore	Chicago	San Francisco
Richmond	Cincinnati	Portland
Atlanta	St. Louis	Spokane
Buffalo	Minneapolis	Winnipeg

Printing Plants and Business BOUGHT AND SOLD

Printers' Outfitters

American Typefounders' Products
Printers and Bookbinders Machinery of Every Description
CONNER, FENDLER & CO.
31 Beekman St. New York City

FOR SALE

Hoe Matrix Rolling Machines in good condition.

Can be shipped at once.
Scott Flat Plate Casting Boxes casts plates 18 x 24 inches. Send for prices.

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY
Plainfield New Jersey

Take It To
POWERS
Open 24 Hours out of 24
The Fastest Engravers on Earth
Powers Photo Engraving Co.
154 Nassau St., Tribune Bldg.
New York City

GOSS
the name that stands for
SPEED, DEPENDABILITY, SERVICE

THE GOSS
"High Speed Straightline" Press
Used in the largest newspaper plants in U. S. A. and Europe.

THE GOSS
Rotary Half Tone and Color Magazine Press
Specially designed for Mail Order, Catalogue and Magazine Work.

THE GOSS
"Comet" Flat Bed Web Perfecting Press
Prints 4, 6 or 8-page newspaper from type forms and roll paper.

GOSS STEREOTYPE MACHINERY
A complete line for casting and finishing flat or curved plates.

DESCRIPTIVE LITERATURE CHEERFULLY FURNISHED

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
Main Office and Works: 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago
New York Office: 220 W. Forty-second St.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING COLUMNS

Through the classified columns of EDITOR & PUBLISHER you may find a buyer for any of your mechanical equipment for which you have no printed need. For Sale ad to come—and which several lbs. of real service to somebody else.

SITUATIONS WANTED

Advertisements under this classification, twenty-five cents per line, each insertion. Count six words to the line. For those unemployed, a list received by publication, two insertions FREE.

r. Publisher or usiness Manager

e you satisfied with your present circu- Do you contemplate a campaign r increased business this fall? This is ur opportunity to engage the services an expert to direct the energies of your culation department. Over fifteen years circulator on morning and evening and inday papers east and west. Experienced every form of circulation development oving newsboys, carriers, and city and untry dealers. Wide experience in R. work and contests of every description. Am seeking permanent connection circulation director, but will consider an opposition for special work in any de- tment. Address A-828, care of Editor d Publisher.

eneral Reporting and port Writing

ung man just returned from foreign ice and for years engaged in sport- porting and sport writing wants perma- nt position on live city daily where ility may find egress. Now temporar- employed as sporting editor of week- t premier consideration if chances of ogress are offered. State particulars d salary in reply. Address A-858, care Editor and Publisher.

usiness Manager

rsonality conversant with all depart- nts of daily papers of from three to ty thousand circulation. Competent vertising solicitor and writer and able take entire charge of the business and vertising departments of daily in the ld up to 20,000 population. Will lease or part interest. Now em- ployed. At liberty September fifteenth or er. Address A-856, care of Editor and blisher.

dvertising Manager

ant-to-date advertising manager of first class newspaper in city of 75,000 to 100,000. Seven years' experi- reign field, four years experience in S. would not accept position unless it on increased business basis. Now- nnected with one of the leading middle- dailies. Address A-854, care of itor and Publisher.

dvertising

ertising copywriting copy that even poor- esmen find it easy to sell. Have been ting it for twenty-five years and ieves fifty per cent time in consid- ring room. Am now advertising man- r of department store but will be open engage. First offer of sixty dollars per k. Address A-857, care of Editor and Publisher.

ewspaperman

ewspaperman, 29 years old, unmarried, st back from Europe, ten years' ex- rience European field, wants position w York daily or news agency. ther writer, editor foreign staff, special Sunday paper magazine section. Best ferences. Would also contemplate signments abroad. R. H. F. 249 care Editor and Publisher.

ewspaperman and Editor ospective reporter who has demon- rated ability as political correspond- t and editor is looking for connec- ity with Sixth Marines and available responsible work. Personal matter ningly furnished. Address A-850, care Editor and Publisher.

reculation Manager

ve years' lifetime experience in culation work temporarily located, de- es permanent place. Recently dis- rged from military service. Best of erences from former employers. Ad- ss A-845, care of Editor and Publisher.

perienced Copy Editor

ches permanent position in New York ty. Age-limit: 27 years old. Col- ducate; can write heads to suit your te; will come on probation. C. J. T., Editor & Publisher.

rtoonist

ung man wants position with Western ss—highest references—political car- ns and comics. Address A-821, care Editor and Publisher.

ewspaper Man

ewspaper daily newspaper man is on for engagement as editor, editorial writer, managing editor or assistant ere; central or western states. Address 861, care of Editor and Publisher.

SITUATIONS WANTED

News and Advertising Writer

Young man, capable energetic, writer of human copy, experienced in finding human interest in town on newspaper in news or advertising department, or as assistant to editor. Address B. S., care of Editor & Publisher.

General Manager Business Manager or Publisher

An unexpected call of duty of which I have been publisher for four years makes me at liberty October 1 and open for engagement as general manager, business manager or publisher. I more than doubled volume of business and doubled circulation since 1915. Fifteen years' experience on weeklies and dailies. Head full of ideas, chock full of energy, and have the ability and experience to make a success of any paper that deserves it. Editorially, I know how to run the kind of paper people will buy. Business office, mine, covers including ad writing and soliciting, local and foreign; accounting, collecting and circulation methods. Mechanically, understand printing methods without having to learn. I know what ought to be done and how to get it done. All gained from practical experience. I work hard myself and thus inspire my helpers to do likewise. Have reputation for getting most work done with smallest force. Am looking for top paper to dominant position in field where experience and ability to use it are what couldn't be done. Age 35, married, good health. Have saved from my salary and just sold paper for three times what he paid for it. Now city of 40,000, but will consider any size city with possibilities. Can furnish bonds if necessary. Permanent connection desired. Address A-846, care of Editor and Publisher.

All Around Newspaper Man

is looking for a connection on good daily in Pennsylvania outside of New York City. Married, employed. Address A-862, care of Editor and Publisher.

Correspondent

recently out of the service, now employed, would consider change; eight years' experience; married; clean, snap and ambition. Address A-864, care of Editor and Publisher.

HELP WANTED

Advertisements under this classification twenty-five cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Correspondents

At state capitols and principal cities for leading veterans newspaper. Good space rates. Applications and numbers of vets organizations preferred. Fine side line for right correspondents. Write stating qualifications. News Editor, The State & Savings Merchants Bldg., 1110 F St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Woman Reporter

Young newspaper woman who takes this job will be thoroughly dependable and able to write interesting stuff. She wanted at once as a feature and straight news reporter on the Sunday edition of an evening paper published in the capital city of Texas. Preferably one will come from a similar city and not more than 25 to 30. She will have a liking for work and an ambition to get ahead. Send full information in first letter, state salary expected and when can come. Address A-825, care of Editor and Publisher.

Experienced Circulation Manager

wanted by Southern publisher of several monthly publications. Present circulation in good shape, maintained by mail and staff and direct from office. The man selected will have the hearty cooperation of the publication in increasing present circulation volume. Address A-855, care of Editor and Publisher.

Advertising Manager

Wanted—a advertising manager for evening daily. Must be able to write strong copy. Opportunity for man young in the game, but willing to work. Splendid chance for man early expected to start in the first letter. P. C. Sparks, Business Manager, Courier-Post, Hannibal, Mo.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

Advertisements under this classification, forty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Wanted to Buy

Interest in newspaper publishing field. Want not less than one-half interest, by a man that knows a paper when he sees it, understands same, and can take charge of all of it, or less part if desired, and qualified to satisfactorily and successfully. Address A-859, care of Editor and Publisher.

REYNOLDS STAYS IN EUROPE

Founder of Iowa School of Journalism Resigns by Cable

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Sept. 3.—Conger Reynolds, formerly assistant professor of English and head of the department of journalism at the University of Iowa, has cabled from Paris that he will not return in September to resume his position in the university.

During the war Professor Reynolds was on duty with the A. E. F. as a lieutenant in the intelligence service, but was discharged in France last winter to accept a position with the Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune. He had opportunity at that time to assume a post with the Tribune in Paris.

Journalism was first taught at the university by Professor Reynolds four years ago, and the department which he founded has sent out many graduates to good positions in newspaper work.

PAPER'S GUESTS IN AIRPLANE

Des Moines Capital Flyer Drops Free Ride Tickets from Sky

DES MOINES, Sept. 2.—During the Iowa State Fair, which closed here last week, an aeroplane was used daily to the fair grounds with copies of the Capital for distribution there dropped from the sky cards signed by the publisher, Lafayette Young, which entitled the finders to free 15-minutes rides in the airplane.

A few months ago the Capital delivered copies by airplane to Guthrie Center, Iowa—the first time an airplane had been used for that purpose in Iowa.

English Like Mutt and Jeff

Bud Fisher, who has been in England for several weeks introducing "Mutt and Jeff" to the English public through the medium of the London Express, is reported to be meeting with wonderful success. Information received here says the characters that have caused laughter in millions of homes in this country have been very generally received by the English. The London Express has been running the feature about a month.

Fleisher's New Enterprise

B. W. Fleisher, editor and publisher of the Japan Advertiser, the English-language daily of Tokyo, has launched "The Trans-Pacific," an ambitious magazine devoted to international relations and the financial and economic development of the Orient, including the Philippines. The first number, which has just reached America, is filled with special articles of timely importance.

Miss Cary Home

Miss Emile Alice Cary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry N. Cary—the former of whom is general manager of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' Association—has returned after eight months' service with the Red Cross in France. She is now assisting in the work of the Red Cross canteen located in Grant Park, Chicago.

To Bring Capital and Labor Closer

SEATTLE, Sept. 1.—A new weekly publication, known as the Square Deal, devoted to the development of Seattle's commercial and industrial interests, made its first appearance this week. In its opening editorial, the magazine announces its function as a means of communication between employers and employees.

Democratic weekly of a far West county neat paid owner $3,675.80 in year ending April 30, 1919, for his personal effort and income on the investment. Can be bought for $8,500; $5,500 cash necessary.

Proposition S. Y.

Charles M. Palmer
Newspaper Properties
225 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

CONSOLIDATION

is the recognized route to large returns in nearly any line of commercial industry.

We believe that publishing properties offer one of the most attractive of all the fields for merger and consolidation.

We have a record of results in this difficult work that you should investigate.

HARWELL & CANNON
Newspaper and Magazine Properties
Times Building New York

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Washington Publishers Adhere to War Industries Board Paper Rules

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2, 1919.

To Editor & Publisher: Your telegram in regard to local publishers co-operating and my views on the matter during the existence of the print was received during my absence from the city.

The publishers of Washington have by local agreement consistently carried out the principles of conservation laid down by the War Industries Board and the Printing Board. Every publication in all of the old wasteful practices as defined by the War Industries Board. There has also been a great economy followed the limitations of space and particular attention has been given to press room waste.

None of the Washington publishers issue holiday or prelude editions and only one publication puts out more than one daily and that paper prints only two editions.

The Washington publishers do recently considering the matter fully realized the serious situation and will continue to be even more helpful in the general policy of conservation. Every department, however, feels that this cooperative spirit does not relate to the question of publishing and would be glad to see a conference among the publishers of the country to sanction such a policy of newspaper, and the manufacturers in try to work out some practical measures in connection with production and conservation in the use of paper.

FLEMING NEWBOLD, Business Manager, Post.

Meier Leaves Catholic Directory

Joseph H. Meier, for fourteen years editor and business manager of the Official Catholic Directory, has resigned his position with P. J. Kenedy & Sons, New York. The men will succeed Mr. Meier, one as editor, the other as advertising and sales manager, and the announcement of these appointments will be made shortly. Mr. Meier and his family will return to Milwaukee.

Curtis Johnson in Oil Fields

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 3.—Curtis B. Johnson, publisher of the Knoxville Sentinel and Charlotte News and Observer, and Cowland Chapman, a large stockholder in the Sentinel, have been visiting the oil districts of Texas. The purpose of their trip has not been announced.

A. P. Promotes Wohlwender

CINCINNATI, Sept. 3.—Fred Wohlwender, Sr., night editor of the Associated Press here, has been promoted to the position of manager of the Cincinnati office, succeeding James C. Hamilton, who has been transferred to the St. Louis office, also a promotion.

Digitized by Google

PANGS OF PROHIBITION FELT BY WRITERS

(Continued from Page 9.)

self to one telling and impressive remark. It was: "Ladies and gentlemen, allow me to introduce to you the personal friend of all the drunkards in western Pennsylvania!"

If a dignified, distinguished-looking gentleman, having the appearance of a magnate, or a judge of the Supreme Court, or a great financier, sauntered by, no one ever thought of asking me who he was, but if a rummy-nosed party, all lit up with liquor, happened to wobble down the plaza, there was always some one to inquire, "Who's your friend?"

In my own peculiar vocation I thought I occupied a spot in the sun.

Today that spot is no longer visible to the naked eye.

Prohibition came, and while taking the kink out of stimulants, it delivered a kick which removed from my immediate vicinity a job which I had begun to think was a legacy for life.

In the old days—revered days to the plodding inebriate—it was a common occurrence to see from 40 to 50 drunks pass the judge's reviewing stand in the police court where for years I sat and shined and polished the mahogany in basement of many a pair of trousers.

Now Only Two or Three a Day

With the new order of things the number has diminished to two or three, and one day, recently, there was only one—a woman. Her face was a familiar one in police court circles. She made a confession of which she was ashamed, and said she had sunk to depths of which she never dreamed. Unable to get alcohol, she fell, figuratively and literally, for Jamaica ginger. When plucked out of a doorway by a policeman, she was babbling the miserere of a nun.

Now and again we hear of substitutes for old Home Wreckers Delight. I was informed by one of the most trustworthy and dependable town sots that ether soaked in candy produced one of the finest, high-geared, ball-bearing jags it had ever been the pleasure of any one to organize and put in operation.

Since prohibition came great changes have taken place in the police station. To go there a short time ago was to be greeted by the gentle tumult of disorder emanating from the cell department. Liquor sometimes inspires the inoculated to indulge in song and it is always one who has no ear for melody; again, the saturated individual leans toward oratory. With a concert and an oratorical contest in full swing, the visitor gets a collection of sounds that go well with a college football game or a riot in full bloom.

Old Scenes Are But a Memory

Such scenes have faded into history and are now only a memory.

In the dim future we will hark back and, to paraphrase an old saying, wonder at the charm in third-rail whiskey and the void in a jag withdrawn.

There is nothing in the police station now to recall the old days. A solemn hush hangs like a pall over the place, and in the cell department the faces I knew so well are missing.

What has become of Three-fingered Milligan, who got drunk and arrested every Saturday night? He has not been in his barred bungalow since the prohibition wave swept across the continent.

I could name a score who bowed with alcoholic gravity to the court regularly and often—they are all gone. Strange as it may seem, old-timers are not among the few drunks that get locked up these days. The newcomers are mostly strangers, men from out of town.

I had been wondering what became of the veterans, and one day last week I saw half a dozen of them sitting like a row of crows on the courthouse wall. Apparently they were looking listlessly into space. I passed on, for I knew they were struggling with the awful horrors of sobriety.

Pathos Aplenty

I would like to know what became of Pat Dugan. He was well advanced in years, and had never married. Pat supported his aged mother, but once in a while he went on a little spree and was arrested. When he didn't come home at night, the Widow Dugan knew where to find him, and in the morning, no matter how inclement the weather, she came to the police station, and sitting on a bench, waited for her son to be called up for a hearing. A frail, wan, delicate little old woman, at least 80 years of age, she presented a pathetic figure, and scoffed at surroundings.

She sat with palsied hands clasped, her lips moving as if in prayer. Never once did she have to plead for the release of her grizzled-haired son—still a boy in the mind of his doting mother. To the grim judge, stony-hearted at times, her presence was a pardon for Pat. Gruffly the court discharged the derelict and pointed to his mother.

Feebly the old lady rose to her feet and to the judge made a little curtsy worthy of the days of culture and chivalry, and with the strong arm of her boy about her, she tottered from the courtroom proud and happy. Several months would pass before Pat again fell off the water wagon.

I picture an humble home not far from the police station, and in an old-fashioned rocker, a frail, wan, delicate, little old woman, at least 80 years of age, her palsied hands clasped. If her lips utter a prayer, you can take my bet, Mr. Dealer, that it is a prayer of thankfulness for prohibition.

Saw His Finish Coming

Prohibition had not been effective a week when I saw my finish. I waited several days expecting some one to set finis smeared all over my job, but I heard nothing, not even a word of sympathy or a query as to whether I intended to have my old card in the candy butchers' federation renewed.

Finally, one morning, I walked into the humble office of the managing editor. I found him trying to adjust the head of his chair, one of the spindles having slipped loose and scratched his hide. I told him that the ban on liquor had shot my job to pieces, or words to that effect.

The managing editor had never thought of that, and I could see that he was shocked. He turned slightly and looked toward the street. I imagined that he was trying to hide his grief, but he was only stuffing an old shirt in a place where a window pane used to be.

We had been reporters—street men—together, and friends of many years' standing. After long association, we had come to the parting of the ways. We clasped hands in farewell—words were futile—and, tripping over a loose board in the floor, I stole softly from the sanctum.

A Sad Parting

A minute later I entered my own luxurious office with its Oriental ruggery and Japanese tapestry, and hurling myself nonchalantly into a gaily-caparisoned and magnificently upholstered chair, I realized that the cunning season for my job, like that of tomatoes and peaches, was here. I had automatically retired from office.

For every man, no matter what his business or profession, there is someone, somewhere, who believes in him and speaks highly of his accomplishments. He is an unofficial press agent, singing paeans of praise at every opportunity.

There appeared in police court, one time, a low-set, fierce-looking man, who was reputed to consider assassination in the light of a pastime, and if you met him on a dark night and in a dark alley, your prospects of getting rapped on the head with a sandbag or a piece of lead pipe were very hopeful. Despite this, I heard one of his friends declare that he was a devoted husband and a loving parent.

Tribute of a Great Admirer

Early in my career as a chronicler of police court events I acquired an ardent admirer. I did not seek him; he forced himself upon me. Being of a shrinking disposition, I rather would have remained unhonored, unsung. It was not to be. One day, in speaking of me and my work in the presence of several friends who could be depended upon to pass a good word along, this faithful and loyal admirer of mine said proudly, enthusiastically: "Why, he writes that stuff when he's as full as a goat!"

Thus, fame that was to endure, came to me. That glorified eulogy is still rumbling down the subway of time looming ever and anon with added beauties that come with constant repetition.

Though the police court drunk has vanished from view and my job is only a memory, that touching tribute will stick to my trail in the haggard years to come, clinging to me with the constancy that characterizes the delicious perfume of the toothsome limburger and the fragrant eau de cologne of the garbage wagon.

Food Medium of New Jersey
Trenton Times
A. B. C.
2c—12c Per Week
KELLY-SMITH COMPANY
30 Fifth Avenue NEW YORK
Lytton Building CHICAGO

Canadian Press Clippings
The problem of covering the Canadian Field is answered by obtaining the service of The Dominion Press Clipping Agency
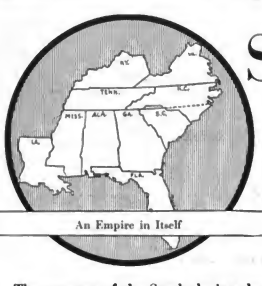
which gives the clippings on all matters of interest to you, printed in over 90 per cent. of the newspapers and publications of CANADA.
We cover every foot of Canada and Newfoundland at our lowest rates.
74-76 Church St., Toronto, Can.
Price of service, regular press clipping rates—special rates and discounts to Trade and Newspapers.

The New York Times INDEX
Summarizes 100,000 current events a year, published in The New York Times.
¶ These are indexed alphabetically, giving the date of publication.
¶ A master key and index to all newspapers.
ISSUED QUARTERLY; BOUND IN CLOTH.
Subscription Price $8.00 per year
The New York Times
Times Square 1-1 New York

R. J. Bidwell Co
Pacific Coast Representative
Daily Newspapers of "Advertising Value"
Rates, Circulation, Special Data, Promptly Upon Request
PACIFIC COAST OFFICES
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SAN FRANCISCO SEATTLE
742 Market St. 1302 L. C. Smith Bldg.



BUFFALO NEWS
EDWARD H. BUTLER
Editor Publisher
"The only Buffalo newspaper that censors its advertising columns. Many of our advertisers use our columns exclusively. The above is one of the many reasons why."
MEMBER A. B. C.
Foreign Advertising Representatives
KELLY-SMITH COMPANY
220 Fifth Avenue NEW YORK
Lytton Building CHICAGO

We can increase your business—you want it increased.
You have thought of press clippings yourself. But let us tell you how press clipping can be made a business-builder for you.
BURRELLE
145 Lafayette St., N. Y. City
Established a Quarter of a Century

The amalgamation of the two leading progressive Jewish newspapers of New York
THE DAY
and
THE WARHEIT
brings into being the most powerful advertising medium in the Jewish field.
דער טאג
The National Jewish Daily

Hemstreet's
PRESS CLIPPINGS
Tenth Avenue at 45th Street
New York

Digitized by Google

An Empire in Itself

Southern Opinion

Your average Southerner is intensely loyal to "home folks"—and takes his daily newspaper a heap more serious than does the average Northerner.

Opinions in the South are strong, either for or against any proposition and Southern opinions are formed by reading Southern daily newspapers.

Southern merchants are working hard constantly to get and keep "home trade" at home.

They very much "on the job" all the time and have a splendid appreciation of the value of daily newspaper advertising.

They are willing—and anxious to cooperate with manufacturers in pushing meritorious merchandise of any kind—and are thoroughly awake to the idea of cooperating through the daily newspapers printed in their home cities.

National advertisers can materially increase their Southern business by cooperating with local merchants, through daily newspapers in reaching this great territory.

The progress of the South during the past five years—particularly the states shown on this map is beyond anything ever recorded in the history of the United States.

It is permanent boom too—no sliding back—but, somehow the spirit of the thing has got into these people and the steadily increasing momentum which has been acquired is going to put the South way beyond anything ever achieved, or even dreamed of.

Make your Southern business grow with the South. Identify your product with the local boosters—through local daily newspaper advertising.

Southern Daily Newspapers Going Into Southern Homes Tell Southern People What Southern Merchants Have To Sell Tell These Same People Your Story The Same Way

Southern Daily Newspapers with Cooperative Spirit

		Net Paid Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
NORTH CAROLINA
Asheville Citizen	(M)	11,420	.025	.025
Asheville Citizen	(S)	9,734	.025	.025
Asheville Times	(E)	10,087	.025	.02
Charlotte News	(EMS)	11,886	.06	.025
Charlotte Observer	(M)	19,217	.055	.06
Charlotte Observer	(S)	16,217	.045	.04
†Durham Sun	(E)	5,000	.02	.02
Greensboro Daily News	(M)	16,925	.045	.035
Greensboro Daily News	(S)	22,485	.06	.04
Greensboro Record	(E)	2,451	.045	.025
Raleigh News and Observer	(M)	21,200	.05	.04
Raleigh News and Observer	(S)	21,200	.05	.04
Wilmington Dispatch	(E)	3,300	.02	.02
Wilmington Dispatch	(S)	3,305	.02	.02
Winston-Salem Journal	(M&S)	6,447	.025	.02
Winston-Salem Sentinel	(E)	7,000	.025	.02
SOUTH CAROLINA
Anderson Mail	(E)	4,060	.0173	.0173
Charleston American	(M)	7,236	.025	.025
Charleston American	(S)	10,451	.035	.035
*Columbia Record	(E)	13,700	.04	.03
*Columbia Record	(S)	11,780	.04	.03
*Columbia State	(M)	34,614	.06	.06
*Columbia State	(S)	34,600	.06	.06
*Greenville News	(M&S)	10,518	.035	.03
Greenwood Index Journal	(E)	3,745	.02	.02
Spartanburg Jour. & Car. Spartan	(E)	2,978	.02	.02
Spartanburg Herald	(M)	4,388	.02	.02
Spartanburg Herald	(S)	5,473
TENNESSEE
*Chattanooga News	(E)	17,262	.04	.04
*Chattanooga Times	(M)	30,408	.06	.06
*Chattanooga Times	(S)	30,365	.06	.06
Knoxville Sentinel	(E)	24,022	.06	.045
*Knoxville Journal-Tribune	(M)			.045
*Knoxville Journal-Tribune	(S)	24,338
Memphis Commercial Appeal	(M)	82,278	.14	.12
Memphis Commercial Appeal	(S)	118,148	.17	.12
Nashville Banner	(E)	43,388	.07	.07
Nashville Banner	(S)		.06	.06
Nashville Tennessean	(M)	84,749
Nashville Evening America	(E)	15,196	.06	.06
Sunday Tennessean & American	(S)	84,581
VIRGINIA
†Bristol Herald-Courier	(M&S)	11,004	.04	.04
Danville Register and Bee	(M&E)	10,669	.03	.03
*Newport News Times-Herald	(E)	12,987	.04	.04
*Newport News Daily Press	(S&M)	9,463	.04	.04
Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch	(E)	43,259	.07	.06
Roanoke Times	(M&S)	11,305	.04	.04
Roanoke World-News	(E)	11,288	.04	.04
GEORGIA
Atlanta Georgian	(E)	48,441	.06	.06
Atlanta Sunday American	(S)	92,878	.12	.12
Augusta Chronicle	(M)	12,245	.05	.05
Augusta Chronicle	(S)	10,681	.035	.035
Augusta Herald	(E)	17,418	.066	.066
Augusta Herald	(S)	12,812	.066	.066
Columbus Ledger	(M&S)	7,366	.0275	.0275
Macon Telegraph	(M)	22,450	.04	.04
Macon Telegraph	(S)	19,521	.04	.04
Savannah News	(M&S)	20,120	.04	.03
Savannah Press	(E)	16,240	.04	.04
ALABAMA
Birmingham Age-Herald	(M)	23,560	.07	.06
Birmingham Age-Herald	(S)	29,796	.08	.06
Birmingham Ledger	(E)	35,723	.07	.07
*Birmingham News	(E)	46,121	.08	.08
*Birmingham News	(S)	48,556	.10	.10
*Mobile News Item	(E)	10,786	.03	.03
Mobile Register	(M)	14,000	.05	.05
Mobile Register	(S)	23,048	.08	.08
Montgomery Advertiser	(M)	24,758	.06	.06
Montgomery Advertiser	(S)	24,258	.06	.05
LOUISIANA
New Orleans Times-Picayune	(M)	78,417	.12	.12
New Orleans Times-Picayune	(S)	81,445	.15	.15
New Orleans Daily States	(E)	41,994	.10	.08
New Orleans Daily States	(S)	37,875
*New Orleans Item	(E)	72,906	.12	.12
*New Orleans Item	(S)	67,585	.16	.16
FLORIDA
Jacksonville Metropolis	(E)	19,117	.045	.045
Florida Times-Union, Jacksonville	(M&S)	20,432	.06	.06
Pensacola Journal	(M)	5,810	.0172	.0172
Pensacola Journal	(S)	6,687	.0172	.0172
Pensacola News	(E)	5,060	.02	.02
KENTUCKY.
*Louisville Herald	(M)	32,456	.06	.06
*Louisville Herald	(S)	48,707
Paducah News-Democrat	(M&S)	7,004	.0225	.018

Government Statements April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. statement, April 1st, 1919.
†Publisher's statement, April 1st, 1919.
†Includes Bristol, Tenn.

Digitized by Google

Mr. National Advertiser

Do you know that you can buy space in 40 great newspapers with 6,300,000 circulation, covering the 35 great centres of industry of the United States, for

$8.40 per line on
5,000-line contract

Such localized national advertising placed in the 35 great national markets is much more economical than paying more money for space in media of only ⅓ the circulation scattered, shot-gun style, all over the country

If you desire to cover the 300 principal markets of the country reaching 13,600,000 circulation it can be done by using 310 newspapers at a cost of $22.29 a line

LISTS GLADLY FURNISHED

Member A. B. C.

The New York Globe

JASON ROGERS, Publisher

180,000 A DAY

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1919

Entered as second-class matter May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Weekly: $3.00 a Year; 10c Per Copy. NEW YORK, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1919 Vol. 52, No.

Follow the Department Stores

Volume of business is the life-blood of the dry goods and department Store. It must appeal to the greatest possible audience. It must make this appeal steadily, and with virtual certainty of results.

For many years Chicago's leading dry goods and department stores have found the advertising columns of The Daily News the quickest, surest and most economical avenue of appeal to the great buying populace of Chicago and suburbs. The table shown below gives abundant proof of the supremacy of The Daily News in this field.

Follow these stores! Their advertising is scientifically placed, and must prove effective.

Total Agate Lines of Display Advertising used by Individual Dry Goods and Department Stores in Chicago Papers, January 1 to June 30, 1919.

		Tribune		Herald-Examiner
	The Daily News	Daily	Sunday	Daily	Sunday	Post	American	Journal
Rothschild & Co.	269,782	31,852	129,798	19,348	112,376	10,776	149,788	134,886
Boston Store	245,164	2,472	90,289	29,622	83,172	9,687	118,940	157,757
Mandel Brothers	230,831	128,692	95,678	30,041	40,649	66,316	49,053	119,698
The Fair	228,720	34,143	95,662	26,954	87,626	23,710	117,676	154,147
Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co.	193,705	169,171	....	75,639	....	37,833	65,923	30,359
Marshall Field & Co.	161,604	200,066	....	123,715	....	191,723	134,449	115,458
M. L. Rothschild	150,484	172,206	....	76,782	....	2,386	85,207	49,294
Hillman's	145,404	2,330	66,600	1,960	61,600	....	....	....
Wieboldt's	140,840	....	36,415	....	34,190	....	35,406	....
The Hub	139,979	104,662	28,653	83,986	26,081	19,535	106,029	23,583
Chas. A. Stevens & Bros.	74,582	88,692	52,099	3,654	17,004	6,327	10,213	8,442
L. Klein	49,889	248	17,808	....	....	....	....	....
Twelfth Street Store	46,752	....	....	....	....	....	....	....
E. Iverson & Co.	38,050	....	....	....	....	....	....	....
Weber's	14,780	....	....	....	6,423	....	....	....
Loren Miller & Co.	5,474	....	2,206	....	....	....	....	....
Becker, Ryan & Co.	4,002	....	2,208	....	448	....	....	....
Total	2,140,042	934,534	617,496	471,701	469,869	368,293	872,684	793,624

The Daily News Printed

1,205,508 lines more than the next morning paper.
1,267,358 lines more than the next evening paper.
588,012 lines more than the next daily & Sunday paper combined.
733,807 lines more than all morning papers combined.
1,052,677 lines more than all Sunday papers combined.

THE DAILY NEWS

FIRST in CHICAGO

Digitized by Google

SELECT LIST of NEW ENGLAND NEWSPAPERS

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
MASSACHUSETTS—Population, 3,605,522
Boston Advertiser and American .....(S)	365,660	.35	.35
Boston American ....(E)	301,270	.40	.40
Boston Globe .....(ME)	293,781	.30	.30
Boston Globe .....(S)	329,781	.35	.35
Boston Post .....(M)	459,603	.45	.45
Boston Post .....(S)	367,014	.35	.35
Boston Record .....(E)	50,650	.15	.15
Boston Transcript ....(E)	29,820	.20	.20
Fall River Herald ....(E)	9,419	.025	.025
Fitchburg Daily News.(E)	5,665	.025	.025
Fitchburg Sentinel ...(E)	6,912	.025	.01785
*Haverhill Gazette ...(E)	13,819	.035	.025
Lynn Item .....(E)	15,121	.05	.0333
Lynn Telegram-News .....(E&S)	15,000	.04	.04
Lowell Courier-Citizen .....(ME)	16,780	.035	.035
New Bedford Standard-Mercury .....(ME)	26,674	.05	.05
Salem News .....(E)	18,355	.055	.04
MAINE—Population, 762,787.
Portland Express ....(E)	25,263	.06	.045
Portland Telegram ...(S)	21,846	.045	.035
RHODE ISLAND—Population, 591,215
Pawtucket Times ....(E)	23,752	.06	.04
Providence Bulletin ..(E)	55,300	.12	.12
Providence Journal (M*S)	32,082	.075*10	.075*10
Providence Tribune ..(E)	28,156	.07	.07
Westerly Sun .....(E)	4,223	.02	.015
Woonsocket Call-Reporter .....(E)	11,888	.04	.03
VERMONT—Population, 361,205
Barre Times .....(E)	6,765	.0214	.0143
Burlington Daily News(E)	8,200	.02	.02
Burlington Free Press .....(M)	10,489	.025	.025
CONNECTICUT—Population, 1,114,756
Bridgeport Post-Standard-Telegram .....(M&E)	45,463	.095	.09
Bridgeport Post .....(S)	13,205	.045	.04
Hartford Courant ...(MS)	24,745	.06	.05
Hartford Times .....(E)	36,055	.07	.07
New Haven Journal-Courier .....(M)	15,101‡	.04	.035*
New Haven Register.(E)	26,959	.065	.055
New London Day.....(E)	11,636	.03	.025
New London Telegraph .....(M)	4,830	.0128	.0128
Waterbury Republican .....(MS)	10,762	.035*	.025

*Rate on 3,500 lines.
Government Statements, April 1st, 1919.
‡A. B. C. April 1st, 1919.

Six Hundred and forty-one places in New England can properly be termed Manufacturing towns.

They are divided as follows:

Connecticut	103
Maine	131
Massachusetts	195
New Hampshire	96
Rhode Island	44
Vermont	72

Here, industrial nomads find scant welcome; instead, are communities where intelligent, productive people have made permanent homes.

AND no better markets exist for whatever is useful for factory, office or home.

The via Media to New England Good Will!

Digitized by Google

The Remarkable percentage gain in Automobile and Accessory Advertising on the part of the

NEW YORK MORNING & SUNDAY WORLD is but a SINGLE instance of advertising SUPREMACY and PRESTIGE for

"The First Paper in the First City"

For August, the World's gain in Auto advertising was 530% against a total gain of 246% for ALL the remaining Morning and Sunday newspapers of New York City.

For July, the World's gain in Automotive advertising was 150%; combined, all other New York Morning and Sunday newspapers gained 91%.

For the eight months of 1919, the World's gain in Automotive lineage (over the corresponding period of 1918) totals 120%.

The collective gain of the six remaining New York Morning and Sunday newspapers in the same period totals 59%, or the World doubled the combined metropolitan showing!

To the Manufacturer of Trade-Marked Products and His Advertising Agency:

Why not "Merchandise" your advertising and sales activities in the great twelve - million - New - York - market through the WORLD'S MERCHANDISING DEPARTMENT?

One who knows and has benefited thereby says: "It's a real service aid for distribution and the enhancing of dealer influence before release of consumer acceptance advertising to 64% of Greater New York."

The best advertising "buy" in the Metropolitan territory is now supplemented (gratuitously) with genuine distribution service. Let The World's Merchandising Department know your problem—Address 206 World Building.

The World's Circulation (Average Apr. 1, to Aug. 30, 1919)

Morning	Evening	Sunday
337,942	341,380	554,105

91% of the World's and 97% of the Evening World's Circulation is Concentrated in Metropolitan New York

The New York World & Evening World

BRANCHES:

LONDON
20 Cockspur Street.

PARIS
47 Avenue de l'Opera.

DETROIT
429 Ford Building
(Neil D. McGinn)

CHICAGO
1603 Mallers Building
(J. E. Middleton—A. D. Campbell)

"In lean times, the farmer sows and reaps with superlative care and winnows every grain. With harvests that burst his granaries, he is apt to grow careless. But principles are principles, just the same, and every advertising dollar should be made to do one hundred cents' worth of work, more than ever now that the opportunity is so wonderful."

Richard A. Foley in Newspaperdom

Dominate Philadelphia

Create maximum impression at one cost by concentrating in the newspaper "nearly everybody" reads—

The Bulletin

Net Paid Average for August 448,246 Copies a Day

No prize, premium, coupon or other artificial methods of stimulating circulation have ever been used by "The Bulletin."

EDITOR&PUBLISHER

Issued every Thursday—forms closing at two P. M. on the Wednesday preceding the date of publication—by The Editor & Publisher Co., Suite 1117, New York World Building, 63 Park Row, New York City. Private Branch Telephone Exchange, Beekman 4330. James Wright Brown, President; Fenton Dowling, Secretary.

Vol. 52 NEW YORK, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1919 No. 15

NEWSPAPER'S FIRST DUTY IS TO KEEP FAITH WITH READERS, SAYS COL. HERSHMAN

Man Who Has Made Pittsburgh Press a Leader Among American Newspapers Tells Editor & Publisher Readers Something of His Ideals and Policies—Forty-Eight of His Sixty Years Spent in Newspaper Work in One Field

WHEN a success has been achieved —a big thing accomplished— the world turns its lively attention to the result, and applauds. Then the world asks: "Who is the man? How did he do it?" It insists upon an answer. The answer forthcoming, the man is studied, surveyed, appraised—and something of him, of his forcefulness, of his ideals, of his methods, goes out to other men and becomes, unconsciously, a part of themselves.

In the field of newspaper making there are, in almost every metropolitan community, certain newspapers which stand out, which lead—rearing their heads above their fellows because of the measure of service which they have rendered out to their public and which has been measured to them again in the popular support which is theirs. And the story of a newspaper success is almost always the story of a man.

The Press "Stands Out"

In Pittsburgh the newspaper giant is the Press. EDITOR & PUBLISHER is not advertising the Press in making this trite observation, for the fact is well known to all men in the profession. Nor is there involved any criticism of the Pittsburgh contemporaries of the Press —for the city of steel boasts of admirable newspapers, metropolitan in every sense, each one an institution of which that great community is justifiably proud. But even in such company the Press "stands out."

Among all American newspapers one may count upon the fingers of one hand the year-by-year contestants for the leadership in total advertising volume—and the Press is always included, often standing at the head. During seven months of 1919 the Press printed 13,525,382 lines of advertising—while 176,592 lines were omitted for lack of space.

A Fortune Each Year for News Print

During this year the Press will pay approximately one million and two hundred and fifty thousand dollars for newsprint. Such facts as these attest business leadership, leaving no room for argument. So the reader goes on to the inevitable inquiry: "What manner of man is Colonel Oliver S. Hershman, the president-editor of the Press?"

Col. Hershman has recently passed his sixtieth birthday anniversary. Early this year he celebrated the completion of his forty-eighth year in the newspaper business. During all of this period of service to his ideals Col. Hershman has been growing, setting the pace in the development of forward-looking policies and aims, keeping young through keeping close to the only time-tested fountain of youth—devotion to constructive work.

He has witnessed the evolution of newspapers over a period of half a century, and has himself been a factor in that evolution. He has seen the old four-page paper grow to 40 pages daily and more than a hundred pages on Sundays—the advertising volume grow from thousands to millions of lines. He has seen the passing of the partisan newspaper as a force in our public life—and rise and dominance of the independent paper, acknowledging allegiance only to the public interests. It is related that he was the first publisher in America to make a long-term contract for newsprint. That was in the early nineties and it covered a five-year term. Last fall he made, with the same manufacturer, a contract for a similar period, dating from the first of the present year, aggregating about $6,000,000.

Col. Hershman's Personal Reminiscences

Colonel Hershman was asked by EDITOR & PUBLISHER to relate something of his life and newspaper work. He said:

"I was left an orphan when four years old, my father, Henry Logan Hershman, having been killed in the Civil War. When I was old enough to enter school, I attended the public school for about six years. At the age of 12 I entered a newspaper office, continuing to go to public night school, and later graduated from a business college.

COL. OLIVER S. HERSHMAN

"A daily one-cent morning newspaper was published in Pittsburgh named The Mail, on which I secured employment. After a year or two the paper was moved to the old city of Allegheny and published as an evening paper for several years there. Upon this change, one of the managers of The Mail became interested in the establishment of the Pittsburgh Telegraph, and took me with him to that paper in 1873.

Started as Office Boy

The Telegraph was merged with the Chronicle-in 1884, and I was for nearly 28 years on that newspaper, filling about every position—including office boy, press boy, type setter, clerk, bookkeeper, advertising solicitor, manager—and I finally became the secretary-treasurer-publisher of that institution, conducting its affairs (having previously acquired a large interest in the paper) until January, 1901. Shortly before that time, I, acting for myself, and others interested in the Chronicle-Telegraph, sold it.

"I then purchased The Pittsburgh Press, and Pittsburgh Daily News, combining the two under the name of The Pittsburgh Press. Ever since that time I have devoted my undivided time to the publication of this newspaper, and take a pardonable pride in pointing to the great success it has achieved.

Sunday Papers a Necessity Now

"During the 48 years I have been identified with newspaper work, I have noted a great change in the public's attitude toward daily and Sunday newspapers. Twenty-five years ago the Sunday newspaper was an experiment and an object of criticism. Today it has come to be a fixed institution and an absolute necessity to modern civilization. In fact, I have observed newspaper progress almost from the time of Horace Greeley."

Commenting on the changes in newspaper policies, Colonel Hershman said:

"The first duty of a great newspaper today, is to keep faith with its readers, and serve them in the best possible manner. I believe this is being done today far more effectively than in the 'good old days' when an editor who was a Democrat or Republican carried his paper along with his party regardless of the best fitted man for office. The successful newspaper today must support good men for local offices, regardless of party lines. It must keep away

(Continued on Page 39.)

RETURN PRIVILEGE SCORED AT MEET OF INTER-STATE CIRCULATION MEN

Increased Cost of News Print Makes This Practice Extravagant and Wasteful, Speakers at Semi-Annual Convention in Scranton Declare.

(By Telegraph)

SCRANTON, PA., Sept. 10.—The semi-annual convention of the Inter-State Circulation Managers' Association opened at 9 o'clock this morning in the crystal ballroom of the Hotel Casey. During the day over a train brought in additional members of the association, assuring a large attendance. The men were entertained at luncheon by the International Correspondence Schools and women members of their families who accompanied them here were treated to automobile rides through the fine boulevards of the city.

Because of his absence from the city, Alexander E. Connell, mayor of Scranton, delegated Mark K. Edgar, secretary of the Board of Trade, to welcome the delegates, which he did in a speech noteworthy for its cordiality. E. L. Merriman, president of the Board of Trade, also made an address of welcome.

Conditions Still Call for Practice of Utmost Economy

Circulation managers were urged to conserve newsprint in every possible way by E. J. Lynett, editor and proprietor of the Scranton Times, who welcomed the circulation men on behalf of the newspaper proprietors of Scranton. He said:

"Though the Government has withdrawn its control and left you free to act, I trust that the circulation departments will never relapse into the wasteful practices that prevailed in most newspaper offices before the war. Conservation of paper is a necessity. It is not always the price is high. The chief worry among publishers is that we may not be able to get paper at any price. The newspaper business is at best precarious, and economies are necessary to see the publisher through.

Premiums Unnecessary

"In the old days we used to run the estimated number of papers and let the pressmen go home. As a consequence, on account of the varying demand, there were often over-runs of from five hundred to eight hundred papers, and we rarely ran short. Now we hold the pressmen until about 6 o'clock, when the market is about over, and we run what we require—no more, no less. I recommend that economy to the managers of evening papers where the circulation varies from day to day on account of important news, rainy days, or holidays.

"Premiums and gift enterprises and voting contests were put out of commission by the war, and have not been resumed to any great extent. I am glad of that. I believe the right policy for the publisher and the circulation manager is to sell the paper at the regular subscription price without either premium, quiboby, or intimidation. In the period of twenty-five years in which I have controlled the Scranton Times, we have never had a premium, gift enterprise, or voting contest, and my experience is that this is the best policy to pursue.

Opposes Returns

In discussing the subject, "Is Return Privilege a Benefit When the Price of Newsprint is Considered," James L. Farley, circulation manager of the Philadelphia North American, said that "the practical answer is No."

"Rather," he said, "it is a wasteful extravagance and expense that very few can afford, and that any publisher, with commercial sense, would not tolerate. In discussing the allowance question it might be well to consider how the practice of returns started, what necessity there is for it, and whether the practice is of any benefit to newspaper circulation.

"Years ago when publishers in their great desire to build up tremendous circulations figured it a great many things which, in the light of later experience, has proven financially disastrous, such as special trains put on at a considerable expense, to take advantage of a competitor's delay; the hiring automobile drives to distant points which would not create sufficient revenue to pay the initial cost of the run per day; salaries and bonus given to agents, which, in many cases, exceeded the receipts from the same agents.

"It was not surprising that in line with such practices they should also do other things which have since come to be considered wasteful and non-essential, such as giving the agent the privilege of returning such copies as he cannot dispose of.

A Destroyer of Profits

"If the manufacture of newspapers cannot be looked upon and handled precisely as the manufacture of any other commodity is handled; if newspapers are not the sale of this part at a price which will prove profitable and permit the agent to exercise his judgment as to the quantity he desires, then the publisher is in business for some reason other than the manufacture of newspaper at a profit, and the rules of business and commerce must naturally be suspended and the sky be the limit, as it probably determine the life of his newspaper.

"A publisher who will permit returns today when the price of newsprint is considered is not only an expense to himself but a leech on the publishing business, as he is taking away and wasting newsprint which belongs to the entire publishing fraternity. The only necessity I have ever been able to learn for returns is to hide the inefficiency of the circulation department or to give some new Mossy just one job an opportunity to prove to the publisher that he has been asleep for many years, and that his circulation might be increased 25 per cent in thirty or sixty days by permitting returns.

"Strange as it may seem, there are publishers who will believe this until the treasurer's balance sheet is examined and they find the cost of newsprint wasted, compared with cash receipts, not only alarming but also a delusion and a snare.

"How to Avoid Return Privilege and Still Show Sustained Circulation Growth, in Competition with Newspapers Which Accept Returns," was discussed by A. C. Finley, circulation manager of the Chester Times. He said:

How to Avoid Returns

"When newsdealers, boys and carriers, were clamoring for us to give return privilege because other papers were doing it, we spent part of the money saved in waste which the return privilege creates in prizes for increases by dealers of ten papers a day for two or three weeks, of twenty a day by newsboys for six or twelve days, and of ten a day by carriers during two or four weeks.

"About a week after the first campaign was ended, we started another for a small number increase by each class of distributors, and after another week's interval, we started another. We have kept this scheme up right along, and have shown a satisfactory increase in circulation without accepting returns.

"Newspaper publishers soon will be after us circulation men to conserve paper, and as we will find it hard to meet competition with fewer pages, we will all find it expedient to get along without returns."

Costly Practices

More advice against going back to "returns" and using artificial means of stimulating circulation was given by G. A. Stewart, of the Clearfield Progress, from his own experience. He said:

"The return privilege is costly. Rather than increase circulation we found that it decreased circulation and discontinued the practice two years ago. I can count only from one such limited experience. We found that the people in the community would buy a paper only when there was some most interesting piece of news in it. They would buy it when they were bored while at work or over the lunch table. Five times out of ten the paper was left where the news ended. People when we solicited told us that unless anything was of interest they would buy the paper.

"Under circulation on returns, naturally we had some of the small agencies which could not pay for the paper on a cash basis—of course we take care of the emergency days and on the other days do not wish to be bothered with only a few papers. But notified me paid in advance that was growing. People got bored of their reading and the only way to be sure of getting a paper when news was interesting was to pay in advance and get it the next day.

"We are now delivering papers to our customers hundreds of miles beyond the limits of the circulation we had when we were operating on returns, and we have created this for ourselves without any loss of time by a subscriber in case of being taken care of. We have a competitor who seems to have nothing to do but print a 'hot rate for their papers and retailing them out. We do not know for how long this privilege will be, but will never grant it. If the agencies quit handling the paper we know that their customers will come to us and pay us in advance. With the possible exception of 5 papers I am decidedly and resolutely policy to allow returns.

Service Appreciated

"Service is appreciated. We will be thoroughly loyal to the war with its great opportunities for service. Newspapers and newspaper men have played on a high pinnacle in the public eye. We are very proud of the part we did and the part of it. The value of publicity as an aid to Government activities during the war has never been fully estimated. We claimed the hyphenated Hun was a myth, but the Kaiser's Hun there are other agencies could have done. Our readers know this. We have a right to be in a high regard.

Quit "Cheap John" Methods

"Is it not about time that we quit 'cheap John' methods of merchandising, sell a proper price on our paper and get it? It is purely a business proposition with our paper, and only expect to be gained. We can put out our utility to the community and be well compensated. We can say, 'here's our product, we made it, we have it to sell, we believe it is worth the money we ask for it,' then set about to hold their business and build it up.

"I would have every circulation man a salesman, with authority similar to other salesmen to go to the publisher and say, 'here is a commodity, our commodity, a raw in the workmanship, a necessity in the eye and ear of the public. The customer will not stop with us unless they be convinced on the daily delivery.

"The newspaper industry never had the chance to put itself on a business basis that it has today. Shall we grasp the opportunity or shall we slip back to the old methods, there to protest and sweat until a rising prosperity regenerates us? Let's be men. Let's be U. S. Coin publishers and business salesmen? My judgment and experience is against unrestricted returns."

A net profit of £170.50, 11s. 3d. was made by the Associated Newspapers, Ltd., for the year ended March 31.

PRINTERS CALL STRIKE ON TACOMA PAPERS

They Defy International Union by Walking Out After Demanding $9.25 and $10 a Day for Six and a Half Hours Work

(By Telegraph)

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 10.—Without the sanction of the International Typographical Union, Tacoma printers employed on the daily newspapers here went on strike last Friday, after demanding $9.25 and $10 a day for six and a half hours work, and the men employed on the News-Tribune and Ledger, owned by Frank S. Baker, are still out, despite emphatic orders from the International Union to return under penalty of expulsion.

The Tacoma Times, a Scripps-McRea paper, was issued yesterday for the first time since the strike was declared, the publishers and the local union agreeing to abide by the decision of a "conciliation board" consisting of two men named by the employers and two named by the printers.

Expect Printers from Chicago

The News-Tribune and the Ledger have not been issued since Friday. Mr. Baker, the owner, declaring that he will stand strictly by a provision for arbitration of difficulties contained in the agreement between the International Typographical Union and the American Publishers' Association.

There was a report today that union printers at work in Tacoma from Chicago to take the places of the News-Tribune and Ledger strikers, so that these papers may resume publication. There seems to be no possibility at present of the strike spreading to other cities in the Northwest, although the Tacoma union says it has received the "moral support" of the Seattle local.

Because of the issue at stake—whether a local union can strike in open defiance of the orders of the International Union—the situation is being watched with keen interest by publishers throughout this section of the country. It is understood that unless the local union complies promptly with the order of the International Union that all the strikers return to work, its charter will be revoked and the union declared outlawed.

The last attempt was made by the Ledger last Saturday to get out a four-page paper, with a few printers, the stereotypers refused to work. The strike was well timed by the printers as it is the season of School and Shipping advertising matter, which had been set up, was all wasted. The loss to the publishers already amounts to many thousands of dollars. Practically all of the papers, except the strikers, have been kept on the payrolls, although idle.

Baker Would Arbitrate

Under an agreement which expired August 1, the printers have been paid $7 and $7.50 for seven hours work, which Mr. Baker, publisher of the News-Tribune and Ledger, declares, is the highest wage scale in the country.

"I stand ready to arbitrate and have the award retroactive to September 1," he said. "The strike is plainly illegal if the men refuse to abide by the rules of the International, we will try to publish a paper anyway."

The strike does not involve a breach of contract as there is none between any of the newspaper publishers and their employes. The printers take the position that inasmuch as they are not under contract, the controversy is not one over which the International Union has any jurisdiction.

WILL PLACE ALL NAVY RECRUITING ADVERTISING IN DAILY AND WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS

Completion of Plans for First Campaign Shows Officials and Space Buying Experts Are Convinced That Newspapers Give Best Results—Use of Several Thousand Publications Will Be Made and Copy Will Be Localized for Each Section

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Virtually all of the $300,000 to be invested by the Navy in advertising for recruits is to be devoted to daily newspapers. Copy is to be placed in several thousand weekly papers. Only two periodicals are on the list and they are publications having a special appeal to men interested in trades from which the Navy desires to draw enlistments.

The campaign which is to begin on or about September 22 is to relate almost entirely to daily and weekly newspapers because of the conviction of all parties to the program that to obtain quick results the newspapers offer the only effective answer.

Copy Will Be Localized

A contract has been drawn by the Navy Department and submitted to the Advertising Agencies Corporation, the composite association of 116 agencies, and while Navy Department officials say that the official red tape required in all government contracts may present some problems to the agency, they have no concern over the prospect of an immediate agreement. The statutory restrictions with respect to vouchers are especially bothersome in this instance.

Instead of national advertising—the same copy being used throughout the country—the program provides for the division of the country into twenty-seven industrial and economic areas. This division has been undertaken with the idea of arranging the various sections according to the dominant industrial or agricultural activities so that the copy may be prepared by the agencies of each district with a view to its special appeal there.

Lieut. Commander Emory Winship, chief of Navy recruiting, is quite optimistic over the campaign, for the very good reason that he is convinced that the Advertising Agencies Corporation desires to make a strong showing for the Navy in order that it may obtain the State advertising of the future.

Officers of Composite Agency

The corporation has submitted to the Navy the following list of officers:

President, William H. Johns; vice-president, Paul E. Faust; secretary, Harry Dwight Smith; treasurer, Walter R. Hines.

Directors, M. P. Gould, Jesse F. Matteson, W. C. D'Arcy, Stanley Resor, Bayard W. Barton, O. H. Blackman, J. Wesley Barber, H. H. Charles, W. R. McLain, William H. Rankin and Jefferson Thomas.

The committee of newspaper publishers to co-operate with the advertising men, follows:

William F. Rogers, Boston Transcript, chairman; G. Edward Buxton, Jr., Providence Journal; Harry Chandler, Los Angeles Times; William Findlay, Toronto Globe; Louis Wiley, New York Times; Lafayette Young, Jr., Des Moines Capital; Fleming Newbold, Washington Star; S. E. Tomason, Chicago Tribune; David B. Plum, Troy Record; John B. Woodward, Chicago Daily News.

The 350 towns where the Navy has recruiting stations and where it is proposed to place copy with all dailies there, in addition to the weekly paper towns to be selected later, follows:

Where Copy Will Be Placed

PORTLAND, ME.
Boulton, Me.
Bangor, Me.
Lewiston, Me.
Augusta, Me.
BURLINGTON, VT.
Montpelier, Vt.
Rutland, Vt.
Plattsburgh, N. Y.
Hartford, Conn.
BOSTON, MASS.
Fitchburg, Mass.
Haverhill, Mass.
Worcester, Mass.
Lowell, Mass.
Springfield, Mass.
Manchester, N. H.
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Fall River, Mass.
New Bedford, Mass.
Taunton, Mass.
NEW HAVEN, CONN.
Waterbury, Conn.
Bridgeport, Conn.
ALBANY, N. Y.
Glen Falls, N. Y.
Schenectady, N. Y.
Troy, N. Y.
Pittsfield, Mass.
North Adams, Mass.
NEW YORK, N. Y.
Brooklyn, N. Y.
Yonkers, N. Y.
Newburgh, N. Y.
Kingston, N. Y.
SYRACUSE, N. Y.
Watertown, N. Y.
Utica, N. Y.
BUFFALO, N. Y.
Rochester, N. Y.
Elmira, N. Y.
Erie, Pa.
Olean, N. Y.
Binghamton, N. Y.
NEWARK, N. J.
Passaic, N. J.
Elizabeth, N. J.
Jersey City, N. J.
Trenton, N. J.
Paterson, N. J.
Bayonne, N. J.
New Brunswick, N. J.
Hoboken, N. J.
PHILADELPHIA, PA.
Pottsville, Pa.
Harrisburg, Pa.
Wilmington, Del.
SCRANTON, PA.
Hazelton, Pa.
Wilkes Barre, Pa.
Williamsport, Pa.
Binghamton, N. Y.
Allentown, Pa.
PITTSBURGH, PA.
Sharon, Pa.
Beaver Falls, Pa.
Altoona, Pa.
Oil City, Pa.
Steubenville, Ohio.
Connellsville, Pa.
Butler, Pa.
PARKERSBURG, W. VA.
Zanesville, Ohio.
Portsmouth, Ohio.
Charleston, W. Va.
Huntington, W. Va.
Clarksburg, W. Va.
Bluefield, W. Va.
BALTIMORE, MD.
Cumberland, Md.
Hagerstown, Md.
WASHINGTON, D. C.
NORFOLK, VA.
Newport News, Va.
RICHMOND, VA.
Bristol, Va.
Danville, Va.
Lynchburg, Va.
Petersburg, Va.
Roanoke, Va.
Winchester, Va.
RALEIGH, N. C.
Greenboro, N. C.
Newbern, N. C.
Charlotte, N. C.
Asheville, N. C.
Wilmington, N. C.
CLEVELAND, O.
Akron, Ohio
Youngstown, Ohio
Canton, Ohio
Mansfield, Ohio
Lorain, Ohio
Ashtabula, Ohio
East Liverpool, O.
Cincinnati, Ohio
Columbus, Ohio
Lima, Ohio
Dayton, Ohio
Springfield, Ohio
Findlay, Ohio
LOUISVILLE, KY.
Ashland, Ky.
Covington, Ky.
Lexington, Ky.
Paducah, Ky.
Bowling Green, Ky.
Owensboro, Ky.
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
Indianapolis, Ind.
Evansville, Ind.
Ft. Wayne, Ind.
Richmond, Ind.
South Bend, Ind.
Terre Haute, Ind.
CHICAGO, ILL.
Rockford, Ill.
Joliet, Ill.
DETROIT, MICH.
Flint, Mich.
Saginaw, Mich.
Grand Rapids, Mich.
Toledo, Ohio.
Kalamazoo, Mich.
Bay City, Mich.
PEORIA, ILL.
Bloomington, Ill.
Champaign, Ill.
Danville, Ill.
Quincy, Ill.
Springfield, Ill.
MILWAUKEE, WIS.
Eau Claire, Wis.
Ishpeming, Mich.
Madison, Wis.
La Crosse, Wis.
Green Bay, Wis.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.
Duluth, Minn.
St. Paul, Minn.
Fargo, N. D.
Grand Forks, N. D.
Minot, N. D.
DES MOINES, IA.
Cedar Rapids, Iowa
Davenport, Iowa
Burlington, Iowa
Ft. Dodge, Iowa
Waterloo, Iowa
Dubuque, Iowa
ST. LOUIS, MO.
East St. Louis, Ill.
Joplin, Mo.
Springfield, Mo.
St. Joseph, Mo.
OMAHA, NEB.
Lincoln, Neb.
Sioux City, Iowa
Grand Island, Neb.
Sioux Falls, S. D.
Aberdeen, S. D.
Norfolk, Neb.
Watertown, S. D.
KANSAS CITY, MO.
Pittsburg, Kan.
Salina, Kan.
Wichita, Kan.
Topeka, Kan.
COLUMBIA, S. C.
Florence, S. C.
Sumberg, S. C.
Charleston, S. C.
Spartanburg, S. C.
Greenwood, S. C.
NASHVILLE, TENN.
Memphis, Tenn.
Jackson, Tenn.
Chattanooga, Tenn.
Johnson City, Tenn.
Knoxville, Tenn.
ATLANTA, GA.
Augusta, Ga.
Ocala, Fla.
Savannah, Ga.
Valdosta, Ga.
Macon, Ga.
Rome, Ga.
Jacksonville, Fla.
Albany, Ga.
Athens, Ga.
Waycross, Ga.
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Mobile, Ala.
Montgomery, Ala.
Dothan, Ala.
Florence, Ala.
Gadsden, Ala.
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
Monroe, La.
Lake Charles, La.
Shreveport, La.
Alexandria, La.
MERIDIAN, MISS.
Jackson, Miss.
Dupelo, Miss.
Vicksburg, Miss.
Laurel, Miss.
Greenville, Miss.
DALLAS, TEX.
Paleating, Tex.
Waco, Tex.
Ft. Worth, Tex.
Abilene, Tex.
Corsicana, Tex.
Paris, Tex.
HOUSTON, TEX.
Austin, Tex.
San Antonio, Tex.
Beaumont, Tex.
Richmond, Ind.
Galveston, Tex.
Corpus Christi, Tex.
LITTLE ROCK, ARK.
Texarkana, Ark.
Ft. Smith, Ark.
Jonesboro, Ark.
OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.
Tulsa, Okla.
Ardmore, Okla.
Alton, Okla.
Chickasha, Okla.
Muskogee, Okla.
Enid, Okla.
McAlester, Okla.
EL PASO, TEX.
Marfa, Tex.
Bisbee, Ariz.
Clifton, Ariz.
Albuquerque, N. M.
Roswell, N. M.
Las Vegas, N. M.

UNVEIL TABLET TO WAR HEROES

LAST Sunday morning members of the New York World's great "family" gathered in the main lobby of the Pulitzer Building to witness the unveiling of a bronze tablet, presented by the employees of the World and the Evening World, in honor of their comrades who had served in the great war and in memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice.

The tablet was unveiled by Mrs. Ralph Pulitzer. Robert H. Deery, superintendent of the composing room, opened the ceremony and introduced Mgr. Luke J. Evers of St. Andrews, celebrant of the first early mass for Park Row night workers, who read a prayer. A short address was then made by Ralph Pulitzer, president of the Press Publishing Company.

(Continued on Page 38.)

Digitized by Google

REPORTERS WERE FIRST TO GREET PERSHING

Met Him Down the Bay on Army Tug, but Tide Prevents Their Boarding Leviathan—General Submits Good Naturedly to Their Requests

The first of his fellow countrymen to welcome General John J. Pershing back to the United States when he arrived at New York City on the transport Leviathan, Monday, were seventy-five newspaper men and photographers, who went down the bay on the army tug Hulver at 4 o'clock in the morning to meet the transport coming in.

They met the transport off Ambrose lightship and the Leviathan opened a boarding port for them, but the port was swung shut again and the transport sped past on her way into harbor. Her commander had explained to General Pershing that if she were delayed, she would miss high tide and that she could be docked only at the flood.

Couldn't Board Ship

So the newspapermen curbed their impatience to greet the General until the big transport was docked at Hoboken, and then they, and they alone, excepting Captain James Collins, for six years General Pershing's chief of staff, were allowed to board her.

They raced on deck as soon as the gangplank was laid, and the General met them on the lower deck. Thereupon occurred the most amusing incident of the day. The photographers clamored for snapshots, the Commander-in-Chief consented, and then arose a protest from men brhind half a hundred cameras that there wasn't enough light.

"Come with me," Pershing called out, and he started with his long stride through the ship, with the newspapermen and photographers hurrying after. He knew the big transport well and led them through corridors, across decks, and up stairways, while army and navy officers looked on, astounded at first, and then reassured when they noted that both the General and his followers were laughing hilariously.

"Shoot," Said Pershing

At last, in a clear, light space, the General stopped and told the cameramen to "shoot." Someone begged him to stand at salute and he replied, jovially:

"Oh, no; I can't perform!"

There was more bantering and then the General posed with military men who had come over with him. Finally, he tired of posing and he turned to the reporters. One of them, a woman, said:

"General, aren't you going to give us an interview? We stayed up all night to meet you."

Pershing glanced at her keenly and then gallantly replied:

"I can't possibly believe it of anyone who looks so perfectly fresh as you do."

He exchanged a few words more and then the clamor for him from the crowd on the pier became so great that he prepared to disembark.

Received in His Suite

Later in the day, hr met the newspapermen in his suite at the Waldorf-Astoria. The first thing he did when he came into the room where they awaited him was to shake hands with each of them.

"Did you come, expecting me to talk?" he said. "If so, you are going to be much disappointed. But if there is something particular you wishrd to ask me about, strictly within the scope of my military experience, I will be glad to answer.

The General was then asked if there had been any change in the Statue of Liberty since he had seen it last.

"No," said the General. "But it was very foggy when we sailed out of the harbor two years ago. There were no lands playing, no whistles blowing, and no ships dressed. The contrast between my departure and my return is like the darkest midnight and a beautiful noonday.

Nothing on Foreign Affairs

"Npthing could equal the impression made on me of my homecoming. While we were anticipating coming home for months, they told us that we were to be given some kind of reception. I expected nothing like this; but I suppose it's the way New York always does things.

"It is too warm an afternoon to discuss the Mexican situation," was the General's smiling answer when he was asked about the recent troubles across the border. "In fact," he continued, "I don't know anything about the Mexican situation. You see I have just returned from a situation 'over there.'"

After being asked what particular situation he meant, General Pershing said that he had not the time to go into a general discussion of European affairs, and that his work "was purely on the military side."

When he was asked what he thought of the American doughboy, General Pershing's eyes flashed and he hit the table with his fist:

"He is the finest soldier in the world. It didn't take Europe long to find it out."

PALMER MANAGING EDITOR

On Changing to Cohoes Is Succeeded in Troy by C. F. McGrath

COHOES, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Frank S Palmer, for nine years a member of the editorial staff of the Troy Record, and more recently city editor of the evening edition, has assumed the managing editorship of the Cohoes Dispatch. Mr. Palmer was formerly managing editor of the Troy Standard, filled a like position on the Newburgh Register and was at one time associate editor of the Hudson Register. He is a native of Catskill, N. Y.

Mr. Palmer is succeeded on the Troy Record by Cornelius F. McGrath, of Troy, who has been reporter and later copy reader.

Texas Republicans Start Paper

FORT WORTH, Sept. 8.—The Texas Republican Counselor has made its appearance as the state party organ. J. A. Arnold, secretary of the Republican council, is editor.

GENERAL PERSHING ENTERTAINS AMERICAN NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENTS

Photo by Lucian J. Kirtland.

BEFORE leaving Paris for his return to America General Persbing tendered a reception to the American newspaper correspondents in attendance upon the Peace Conference. It was a happy American family reunion, held in the gardens surrounding the General's Paris home, where be met his guests with the same simplicity that has marked his movements generally.

Everyone quickly felt at home and a delightful hour was spent during which General Pershing was photographed with the American correspondents, as shown in the accompanying illustration.

From his home General Persbing sent the entire party by auto to the Bois de Vincennes, where a special review was held of the "Composite Regiment" made up of special companies from the combat divisions of the American Army of Occupation in Germany.

The French people had also been invited to the review, and this regiment which had already thrilled London and Paris at their Peace Celebrations by their splendid appearance and magnificent marching, were tendered a great ovation It was likewise General Pershing's day, for be was wildly acclaimed by the French.

Reading from left to right—Hedin, Universal Service; Warnick L. Thompson, Universal Service; Florence O'Neill, Pittsburgh Dispatch; Henry G. Wales, Chicago Tribune; Mrs. Helen J. Kirtland, Leslie's Weekly; Mrs. Wilson, Baltimore News; Fred Benham, New York World; General Pershing; Charles A. Selden, New York Times; Charles Thompson, Associated Press; Carlisle MacDonald, New York Herald, Mrs. Lloyd Allen; Miss Catherine Groth, Secretary Press Department, American Peace Commission.

New Owner and Title in Bedford

BEDFORD, Id., Sept. 8.—James M. Pierce, publisher of the Iowa Homestead of Des Moines, has purchased the Bedford Times-Republican and has changed its name to the Bedford Record.

"Salesmanship" Monthly Topic

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 9.—The Advertising Club will have one program each month hereafter on the subject of "Salesmanship," under the direction of Vice-President Arant.

Fairbanks Estate Controls Indianapolis News

Former Vice-President Had Three-fourths Interest in That Newspaper at Time of His Death

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 10.—Supplemental inventories filed in the probate court by the executors of the estate of the late Charles W. Fairbanks, former Vice-President of the United States, disclose the fact, hitherto unknown even to heads of departments in the office of the Indianapolis News, that Mr. Fairbanks at the time of his death had a three-fourths intrrest in that newspaper. This is now part of the Fairbanks estate.

The News property includes a one-half interest in the Griffith building, formerly occupied by the newspaper, and the present mechanical building, which is separate from the business building, and is inventoried at $2,000,000. The three-fourth interest of the Fairbanks estate represents, therefore, a valuation of $1,500,000.

When the founder of the paper, John H. Holliday, sold the controlling interest to the late Major W. J. Richards and associates, Mr. Fairbanks, at the instance of Major Richards, became one of the associates. He retained his interest as an investment later at the time of the sale in 1899 by Major Richards to Delevan Smith and Charles R. Williams, but took no part in the conduct of the property and had no voice in the management.

Subsequently, Mr. Smith bought out Mr. Williams and purchased the interest of Mr. Fairbanks, the latter reserving the right of repurchase. The repurchase had been negotiated just prior to Mr. Fairbanks' death, which interrupted the processes of reorganization.

"Letters received from Mr. Smith, who has been ill for a long time, indicate that agreements have been reached on a friendly business and that it is the desire of all concerned that he remain in control of the paper," said Hilton U. Brown, general manager of the News, to the correspondent for EDITOR AND PUBLISHER. "There is to be no change in management or policy."

FRENCH WELCOME VANDERBILT

Paris Figaro Comments Editorially on Cornelius, Jr., Entering Journalism

PARIS, Sept. 9).—The French press has shown much intrrest in the news that Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., is now a reporter on the New York Herald. The Figaro says:

"Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., one of the wealthiest young Americans, has entered the career of journalism as a reporter on the Herald. What attracts him was the alert spirit, initiative and decision he observed in former newspaper men during his war service in France.

"Obviously there was before him the example of Clemeneeau, Pichon and Tardieu. But all rules are not without exceptions, nor do we wish to conceal from young Vanderbilt that rarely are fortunes made by reporters. In any event we predict for our young confrère a brilliant future."

Grimes Sells to Melcher

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 7.—P. T. Grimes, editor and publisher of the Davis County (Ia.) Republican, has disposed of the plant to Carl Melchrr. Mr. Grimes has been connected with the Republican for more than thirteen years.

Digitized by Google

ROBBINS MADE EDITOR OF ST. LOUIS TIMES

S. R. Standard Becomes Managing Editor and Manus McFadden News Editor in Appointments which Take Effect on September 15

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 10.—Henry P. Robbins will be in charge of the editorial page of the Times, effective September 15.

Mr. Robbins has been an editorial writer on the Globe-Democrat for the last six years. He is a native of Missouri, but was reared in Kansas, being educated in the public schools of that state and at Baker University and Southwestern College, whence he was graduated as an A. B. in 1897. After leaving college he started a newspaper at Mexico, Mo. He went to McAlester, I. T., where he was admitted to the bar and practiced for a time. He has done every kind of newspaper work on country weeklies and dailies in Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma, and has had metropolitan experience in Kansas City and St. Louis.

S. R. Standard, who has been connected with various St. Louis newspapers since 1912, and more recently city editor of the Star, has been made managing editor of the Times, succeeding R. A. Walsh, who has become connected with the good roads work of the Automobile Club of St. Louis. Mr. Standard conducted a daily newspaper at Duquoin, Ill., before coming to St. Louis.

Manus McFadden, formerly with the Chicago American, and lately with the Post-Dispatch, has been made news editor of the Times. During the war he was connected with the Great Lakes Bulletin. J. R. Williams, formerly of the Post-Dispatch, is political writer for the Times, and Edward Logan, well known in Buffalo and St. Louis, is on the copy desk.

HERSHEY JOINS GLOBE AGENCY

Will Have Charge of New Offices in New York

The Globe Advertising Agency, of South Norwalk, Conn., has opened offices at 25 West 42nd street, New York. The Norwalk office will still continue under the management of Thomas H. Canty, Jr. H. H. Hershey, formerly managing manager of the Peruna Company, has charge of the New York office; associated with him is R. J. Duffy, formerly of the Bridgeport Brew Company. Officers of the Globe Agency are: J. J. Cavanaugh, president; T. C. Cavanaugh, vice-president; R. J. Duffy, secretary; T. H. Canty, Jr., treasurer.

H. H. Hershey

Leaves Property to Newspaper

Quincy, Ill., Sept. 9.—For many years agent and correspondent for the Journal at the Soldiers and Sailors' Home Godfrey Loeffler, veteran of the Civil War, left his property, valued at about $600, to the Journal. First, Mr. Loeffler provided that all funeral expenses be paid. Mr. Loeffler died the latter part of August.

E. W. PARSONS

EUGENE W. PARSONS, advertising manager of the Chicago Tribune, is another of the comparatively few one-job men notable in the newspaper profession today, and the work he has done during the past fifteen years justifies one in the belief that the Tribune will see that he continues the singularity of his chosen life-work. Already he has gone far, considering the span of his years.

Born in Cory, Pa., in 1884, he was educated in the public schools of Detroit, Mich., and completed his high school and collegiate training at Lewis Institute, Chicago, graduating with the class of 1904. He went to work almost immediately as a want-ad clerk in the classified advertising department of the Chicago Tribune, shortly undertaking classified solicitation on the street, under Harrison M. Parker. That was the beginning of a career which has carried him through every branch of the advertising department of the paper.

His subsequent transfer to the display advertising department placed him first in the financial field; then the automobile end and general solicitation, until he was appointed Western representative in 1908. He was made advertising manager two years later and has held that position with marked credit ever since.

Mr. Parsons was married in 1906 to Miss Hazel M. Mettler of Chicago. They have two children, both girls. He is an active member of the Chicago Athletic Association, the South Shore Country and the Chicago Advertising Clubs, and is secretary-treasurer of the National Newspaper Advertising Managers' Association.

During E. W. Parsons' term of office, pronounced upward development has been effected in the Chicago Tribune's advertising department. To him belongs the credit for the organization of the Tribune's now nationally-celebrated and nearly unique business research and advertising promotion department, simplifying the selling problems for staff solicitors and affording a detailed, comprehensive purchasing service to advertisers and prospective advertisers such as would have been dubbed chimerical prior to its establishment Mr. Parsons founded this department while he was Western representative for the Tribune and many of its outstanding and less complicated features have since been adopted and put to practical use by other newspapers from coast to coast. Fundamentally the idea was to establish a definite advertising plan for the advertising and promotion of his own (i. e. the Chicago) market as a unit and that end has been accomplished superlatively well, in a way that has been of supplemental benefit to all Chicago publications, not merely the Tribune, which it was intended primarily to serve. It is estimated that the Chicago Tribune will have spent by this Fall $150,000 exclusively for advertising the Chicago market's buying potentialities.

The Book of Facts—an annual publication of the Tribune—was first written and compiled under the direction of Mr. Parsons in 1913. It is by all odds the most comprehensive statement of Chicago buying possibilities ever collected and represents the nucleus of the business promotion idea. The book has increased in size annually until the present 1919 edition runs

BOOST ALASKA PULP WOOD

Seattle Commercial Body Opens Campaign for Territory's Development

Seattle, Sept. 10.—Alaska in the near future will become one of the greatest paper producing centers in the world, according to the predictions of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce and Commercial Club.

Timber in Alaska is much more suitable for pulp and paper than for saw timber.

56 pages of small type, maps and carefully prepared charts.

Statistics thus compiled and put to practical application by Tribune advertising solicitors have vastly simplified their selling problems and enabled them to render a genuine service to every prospective advertiser with whom they enter into consultation. Under the theory thus presented they now are enabled actually to merchandise every piece of copy and campaign they sell, not merely solicit ads in the old, conventional fashion. This naturally has led to the evolution of the Tribune's advertising department into 12 subdivisions, each highly and even technically specialized for the work peculiarly incumbent upon it. Each solicitor is trained as an expert trade advisor in one or another special field, and his fundamental work is first determining the prospective advertiser's own selling problems and then fitting the Tribune's selling service possibilities to them.

These sub-departments are divided as follows: (1) Local stores, (2) financial, (3) movies and amusements, (4) passenger automobiles, (5) trucks, tractors and accessories, (6) western national advertising, (7) eastern national advertising, (8) resort and school bureau, which is included with the railroads and steamship advertising, (9) want ads, (10) business research and general publicity, (11) copy and art departments and (12) special advertising, which comprehends local "specials," the business end of the Tribune's Paris edition and that of the New York Illustrated Daily News.

Intensive Service

It also has been Mr. Parsons' idea for these various sub-divisions of the advertising department to still further intensify the informative advisory service they offer with the periodic issuance of numerous booklets, every item in which is to be taken as authoritative by business men in those fields. These booklets—all beautifully printed and most elaborately and expensively covered and illustrated—are sent on publication to all reputable advertising agencies and a preferred list of regular advertisers. The remainder of each addition are advertised by the Tribune in the advertising trade journals. The most recent issuances of this sort by the Tribune comprehend What's Behind the Want Ad? (a thorough analysis of classified advertising); Pictorial Persuasion (how to use photogravure and color); one of the most sumptuous publications of its kind ever issued in America); Motor Trucks in Chicago Territory; Farm Tractors in Chicago Territory; Why Is an Auto Editor? (the Tribune) stand on the free publicity evil); Time to Come Out (Summer and Winter resort advertising); Prospective Pupils (school advertising); Trust Plan for Farm Land and Real Estate Advertisers; Code of Censorship for Financial Advertising (the Tribune Blue-Sky Law). Still others are in preparation.

Digitized by Google

SCORES "BOLSHEVIK" NEWSPAPERS

Montana State Press Association Passes Resolutions at Annual Convention Denouncing Seditious Press—Independent Paper Mill

(By Telegraph)

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Sept. 6.—In discussing recent legislation in North Dakota obtained by the Non-Partisan League, under which that organization controls all the state and county printing, and which already has resulted in putting thirty-three newspapers out of business, F. E. Packard, assistant attorney general of North Dakota, warned delegates to the annual convention here of the Montana State Press Association to prevent similar legislation in Montana.

In a talk on "Loyalty of the Montana Press," J. M. Kennedy of the Libby Times denounced several Montana newspapers, which he accused of seditious and Bolshevik tendencies. Resolutions were passed denouncing them.

J. L. Dobell of the Butte Miner spoke upon "Chances for a Montana Paper Mill" and announced that a plan to build an independent mill was being considered favorably by financiers.

Entertainment provided by the citizens of Great Falls included a banquet, a basket picnic at the Rainbow Falls, a dance, and sightseeing automobile tours.

When the visitors called for their bills at the Rainbow Hotel, they were informed that the local entertainment committee had paid them.

NEW 55-TON NEWS PRINT MILL

Manistique Pulp & Paper Company Expects Operation by March

MANISTIQUE, Mich., Sept. 10.—Rome G. Brown, president of the Manistique Pulp & Paper Company, announces that financial arrangements have been made whereby this company would start work immediately on the construction of a news print paper mill to operate in connection with the pulp mill here. The new mill and machinery are to cost $600,000 and it will have a capacity of 55 tons of news print paper per day. Mr. Brown expects the mill will be running full capacity by March, 1920.

It is expected that the mill will supply paper for a Minneapolis daily and possibly for a St. Paul paper. At the present price of news print the annual output of the paper mill will be worth over $1,500,000.

2½-Year Contract in Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 5.—After a three weeks' conference between representatives of the Baltimore Typographical Union and the newspaper publishers of the city, an agreement that is satisfactory to all concerned has been signed for the next two and one-half years. The contract will end on Jan. 1, 1922.

Chicago Meeting Postponed

(By Telegraph)

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—The meeting of the Chicago Newspaper Representatives Association, which was to have been held here today to consider the opening of an office here by the Advertising Bureau of the A. N. P. A., was postponed.

Spoke at Cotton Meeting

Walter B. Brown, associate editor of The New York Commercial, was one of the speakers at the conference of the American Cotton Association in New Orleans on Tuesday. His subject was "Cotton and Prosperity."

BOOK SHOWS WHAT AMERICAN PRESS THINKS OF GENERAL PERSHING

Photos by Curtis.

MISS HELEN C. SCHERMERHORN, DAUGHTER OF THE PUBLISHER OF THE DETROIT TIMES, FINISHING THE GREAT SCRAPBOOK WITH STORIES OF GENERAL PERSHING'S ARRIVAL HOME.

ONE of the favorite stories of James Schermerhorn, editor and publisher of the Detroit Times, has to do with the presentation of a silver axe to a faithful fire chief of a mid-we tern city. The axe had been purchased with money obtained by public collection and the Chief was well aware of what was going on. Nevertheless a great public reception was arranged. The Mayor rehearsed his presentation speech for a week and believed himself to be letter perfect.

The night of the big event, the largest auditorium in the city was filled with admiring friends of the Chief and the Mayor. Named by the chairman each stepped to the front of the platform, the Mayor with axe in his hand. When the cheering had subsided the Mayor held forth the axe, stammered for a moment and then suddenly realized he had forgotten his speech.

"Here's the axe, Jim," he exclaimed, thrusting the gift into the hands if the Fire Chief.

"Hell!" Is that the axe," replied Jim, as he turned it over.

That was the end of the speech making.

THE BIG SCRAPBOOK WHICH WAS PRESENTED TO GENERAL PERSHING.

Something similar happened in New York this week and Mr. Schermerhorn has a greater appreciation of that story now than ever.

He has quite a reputation as a public speaker and he had many things in mind that he was going to say this week on the occasion of the presentation of a great scrapbook, containing most of the things that the American press has said about General Pershing during the last two years, to the General.

When Mr. Schermerhorn met General Pershing face to face, however, and handed over the book the speech making was cut to a very few words, and then the two walked over in a corner, alone, and talked very confidentially. It was later hinted that their conversation had to do with things that happened the last time they met. That was 34 years ago at West Point when Mr. Schermerhorn was a plebe and General Pershing was a first classman. Mr. Schermerhorn says he has forgiven General Pershing for everything that he done to him in those days.

"Unity" Is His Appeal for Christian Science Press

Mrs. Eddy Never Desired Publicity Company to Be Separated from the Mother Church, Says Counsel

(By Telegraph.)

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Former Governor John L. Bates, counsel for the directors of the Mother Church, resuming his final argument today before Judge Frederic Dodge, as master of the Supreme Court on the bill brought by the Christian Science Publishing Company against the directors, to enjoin the latter from interfering with the affairs of the former, quoted Judge Hanna as saying Mrs. Eddy intended to keep the publishing society under the control of the first members and directors of the Mother Church. He said that Mrs. Eddy believed in unity, and it was impossible to conceive of her intending to have the publishing company separated from the Mother Church.

An attempt made on Monday to introduce a new phase to the legal battle being waged between the trustees and the directors, was frustrated when Judge Loring of the Supreme Court denied with prejudice a motion by Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for the trustees.; that Judge Frederic Dodge be allowed to receive a brief from former U. S. Senator J. D. Works of California in which the latter wished to express the ideas of the Scotch Christian Science Church goers. Claiming that these ideas differ from the views of the trustees or the directors.

Attorney Bates told the court that Senator Works was only one of 100,000 members of the Mother Church and only one of 1,000,000 members of the branch churches and that he, as counsel for the directors, failed to understand why Mr. Works should be permitted to try to express the views of the great number of Christian Scientists.

Price Raised in Springfield, Ohio

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Sept. 7.—The Sun has increased its Sunday price from two to five cents and added a 12-page magazine feature section and a four-page comic. For many years it has issued a 32-page Sunday edition at two cents. On September 11 the Sun will observe its 25th anniversary. It was started as a co-operative proposition by union printers. George V. Sheridan now is the publishers.

Lorated War Cross Winner

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 9.—A story recently run in the Houston Post was the means of locating Lieut. G. G. Howard for whom a British War Cross was being held by Col. Joseph Gohn, commanding the Houston recruiting station. A letter was received advising Col. Gohn that Lieut. Howard was in Albuquerque, N. M.

The Great Scrap Book is one of the most complete works of the kind ever done. It is bound in khaki calf skin and contains two hundred pages of pictures, stories and tributes to the great American general clipped from the press of the country from 1917 to 1919. Practically every newspaper in the country is represented within its pages, all are given credit. The actual work of listing the material and arranging it in the book was done by Miss Helen Schermerhorn, daughter of Mr. Schermerhorn.

In all, it is a great tribute from the American press to a great American.

Digitized by Google

Standardized Rate Cards Are Urged in British Field

Display Advertising Is Used Successfully to Settle Strikes and Sell Airplane Linen

By HERBERT C. RIDOUT, London Editor, Editor & Publisher

THE most recent application of paid advertising in British newspapers is in connection with the strikes that arise every five minutes or so out of the unrest (which resembles here much what Ogden Armour described for the United States as a nation "on an extravagant drunk").

In two or three directions of late employers have put their case in this way to the public, the latest and most successful instance being that of the dispute in the furnishing trades, when the Birmingham Center of the National Federation of Furniture Manufacturers placed a statement of their position in the dispute in the advertising columns of the county newspapers.

In the Birmingham Daily Post, the advertisement occupied half a double column, and it set forth in plain, straight language the employers' views on the dispute. It opened with a definite assertion that the Federation, realizing their position as servants of the public, had been "compelled most reluctantly to lock out their trades unless operatives as a protest against reactionary and profiteering methods of certain of the trades union leaders."

Each point in proof of this assertion was argued in definite terms, one stating that the employers "were faced with a demand that all forms of payment by result shall be done away with. This means in the net result that work would be done at a pace regulated to that of the slowest man in each shop."

The final note of the appeal was interesting as evidencing a confidence in their case, and a belief that publicity would assist in achieving the desired result; it said that the employers "are glad to place their case fearlessly before the public, whose judgment in the end is the deciding factor, asking for the moral support of each and everyone who is a lover of fair play and who will not willingly see the middle class and the working man plundered." It should be added that no reply was forthcoming from the union challenged.

British Publishers as Advertisers

THOMAS H. MOORE'S condemnation at the Southern publishers' convention of the publishers of daily newspapers as "the poorest advertisers to-day" might almost be applied generally to British publishers. With the exception of a few doughty supporters, the British trade press that is championing the cause of advertising and achieving little wonder in its way is very scantily assisted in its work by advertising support. In a previous letter I referred to the panicky and poor quality of publishers' mail solicitation efforts, and this and their failure to advertise in their trade newspapers suggests a lack of confidence in the value of advertising that is strangely at variance with the fact that they themselves live at the receipt of advertising.

When it comes to advertising newspapers in other newspapers there is a marked distinction, at least so far as London is concerned, for week by week one sees the morning and evening papers on Fridays and Saturdays made excellent use of by the Sunday papers boosting their special features. The Daily Mirror and the Daily Sketch, our two picture papers, are frequent users of large spaces to announce special issues, and latterly some of the country papers, including the Glasgow Daily Record, the one day and this turned out to contain some two hundred standardized rate cards of that number of publications. It was by no means complete, of course, but moderately representative and formed a useful guide to many advertisers. But it was never kept up to date by the mysterious sender, with the result that by degrees the information it gave became unreliable and the index had to be discarded.

To-day, there is urgent need for a standardized rate card for British publications both for advertisers who are resuming their activities in greater

British Newspaper Makers Arrange Interchange Details

By HERBERT C. RIDOUT

SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCH.

LONDON, England, Sept. 9.—The special committee of the British Newspaper Proprietors Association headed by Sir George Riddell of News of the World and seventeen other of the leading journalists of the country, today completed its report on the subject of interchange of editors with America and recommends individual action in the matter.

It has been decided, according to Ralph D. Blumenfeld of the London Express father of the movement, that the matter is one for individual determination. A number of British proprietors announce that they are already arranging the details for editorial interchange with American newspapers.

Mr. Blumenfeld says that his representative will leave for the United States within a fortnight to arrange to carry out the movement with one or more American newspapers.

Lord Burnham, confident of the international good that will result from such action, is also arranging to send his representative to the United States within the next few weeks.

The question of interchange of editors between England and the United States as a means to better international feeling was first advocated in a special article by Ralph D. Blumenfeld appearing in the Victory Number of EDITOR & PUBLISHER on May 22. Since then this paper has published the opinions of many American newspaper editors and publishers in which the subject was dealt with from every angle and was generally endorsed.

Leeds Mercury, and the Irish Independent have advertised themselves in the London newspapers.

Perhaps the best exponents of advertising for newspapers are the Amalgamated Press, who periodically use big spaces for their publications in turn, and who never launch a new periodical without a volnminous newspaper campaign. The results are seen in the phenomenal circulations quickly attained by Amalgamated Press issues.

Standard Rate Cards Wanted

SOME years ago there was a movement towards a series of standardized advertisement rate cards for British newspapers. Advertisers received a mysterious package by mail numbers and as a means of practical propaganda among new advertisers.

It seems to be overlooked that definite figures and data relating to advertising media should be made as easy of access as possible rather than as difficult as possible. The more accessible such information is the more likely is advertising to expand.

And it is not an easy task to secure such information at present from British publishers as a whole. Your London editor had occasion less than two months ago to secure specimen copies and advertising rates from British publishers as part of a service of Editor and Publisher in the interests of an American advertiser. Out of a dozen approached, six very promptly responded. Three others took over a week to furnish what was required, two of the remaining three had to be asked again, and one never replied at all.

What is required is action by one of the established newspaper organizations—the Newspaper Proprietors Association, the Newspaper Society, or the Association of Advertisement Managers—to receive from publishers a supply of cards of an agreed size bearing all information relating to their publications, based on an approved schedule, the Association undertaking, as a service to advertisers on behalf of its members, the collection and arrangement of the cards.

They should be boxed in convenient form and the Association should undertake the distribution of the complete index to all advertisers and advertising agents, and hold spare sets at the disposal of all enquirers. At yearly intervals, the index should be brought up to date, cards representing new media and notifications as to discontinued publications being circulated as and when required.

For one thing alone, while American advertisers and advertising agents are so freely discussing the use of advertising to open up the British market such an index would be invaluable. But most of all, the circulation of a mass of reliable data of this character would afford an appreciable impetus to new home advertising.

King's Honors to Newspaper Notables

THE long-deferred list of King's Birthday Honors, delayed by reason of the Prime Minister's visit to the Peace Conference, was issued this week and contains three names of interest to newspaper and advertising circles. One is Sir Edward Russell, raised to the peerage and created as a baron, who is a doyen of the British press, having been editor of the Liverpool Daily Post since 1869 and being 85 years of age.

Another is Mr. George Fenwick, J. P., who becomes Sir George Fenwick, and is the founder and for over thirty years the director of the New Zealand Press Association in London.

The third is Colonel Hall Walker, M.P., who is raised to the peerage and becomes a baron. He is the head of the brewery firm of Peter Walker & Sons, who have been large advertisers of a lager beer identified with a quaint little figure known as "Little Peter."

The advertising caused unusual interest at its beginning, because it was the first to be based upon a weekly series of topical cartoons having a news interest as well as an advertising value.

Government Proposal for Weekly Review

THE Government announced last week that it proposed to issue a "Weekly Review of the Foreign Press" and to employ over a hundred experts to prepare it. This is pre-

(Continued on page 38.)

Digitized by Google

N. Y. UNIONS REFUSE $5 WAGE INCREASE

Notify Employing Printers They Stand by Original Demands for $14 Raise and 44-Hour Week, Beginning October 1—Won't Arbitrate

Citing as a precedent the self-announced willingness of New York City newspaper printers in arbitration proceedings last April to "help carry part of the burden caused by the war" by making a "modest demand" for 30 per cent increase in wages—$9—the Association of Employing Printers of the city has offered to pay the union employes in its commercial shops $5 a week more, instead of the $14 increase they have demanded.

Twelve unions are represented in the negotiations and these, through their representatives, have flatly rejected this offer, and likewise have refused to arbitrate the question of a 44-hour week—another of their demands—or to consider arbitration agreements in future contracts unless the 44-hour week is conceded. They also stand by their original demand for double and triple time for overtime.

Levy Strike Assessment

The unions have set October 1 as the date when these demands shall go into effect in all the book and job shops of the Association of Employing Printers of New York City. While discouraging the hope that they will moderate their demands they have agreed to another conference with representatives of the association on September 19.

Since the first conference last Wednesday the members of several of the unions have held special meetings, ratified, unanimously, their original demands in full, and have levied assessments on themselves of as much as ten per cent of their earnings as a fund to be used in case of a strike. The employing printers recognize that the situation is critical and are particularly interested in finding out what stand will be taken by the trade papers they serve if the unions refuse to recede from their present stand.

"Are you willing to suspend publication for several months or indefinitely in order to help us fight the obviously unreasonable demands of the unions?" is, in substance, the question they would like to have answered by the local trade paper publishers, but no concerted expression of opinion has been obtained from the latter.

Trade Papers Affected

If the employing printers yield to the demands of the union it is estimated that the increase in cost of publication to trade papers, when present contracts expire, exclusive of paper cost, will be about 66 2/3 per cent.

"The employing printers are not worried over the situation," said Leon Rouse, president of Typographical Union No. 6 and spokesman for the Allied Printing Trades Unions. "They know that if they are obliged to grant the increase in wages asked by the unions they can pass the buck to their customers."

In a printed statement of their position, the employing printers say:

A Comparison of Costs

"Assuming the increase in scale paid hand compositors to be representative of the percentage increase in cost of labor, it will cost $144.70 in labor to do in New York what it costs $100.00 to do in Chicago—if the wage scales asked for by the unions together with the 44-hour week are put into effect.

"Making same comparisons as in case of Chicago, each $100 worth of labor in the twelve cities would cost in New York $168.50.

"From the standpoint of practical and reasonable business considerations, certainly the union must recognize, unless it is simply a matter with them of force, irrespective of consequences, that these facts must be considered.

"Why Not Arbitrate?"

"Certainly it is reasonable to insist that the unions, if sincere in their desire to use an appeal to reason rather than a resort to force, should recognize the fundamental necessity of having established conciliation and arbitration machinery to deal with controversial issues. If the war has made any lesson plain it is that of the necessity of having machinery for the settlement of controversies through conference and an impartial consideration of the facts, using the resort to force only as the very last measure when the rational process fails. Is the implied threat to use force to gain the 44-hour week when the representatives of both groups in the industry are endeavoring to meet the issue fairly and reasonably on a national basis quite in keeping with the spirit of the hoped for new order which has expressed its disapproval in no uncertain terms of the philosophy that might makes right?

"Employing printers desire to make an arbitration agreement a condition precedent to the entering into of any contracts and to emphasize the importance of having such arbitration agreements expire on different dates from the contracts so that the machinery for dealing with controversial issue will be available at all times."

A SUNDAY BIRMINGHAM LEDGER

New Edition Will Be Started on Ocotber 5 by R. G. Hiden

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 9.—After twenty-three years in the daily field, the Ledger will issue its first Sunday edition October 5. The Ledger also announces that it will give a voluntarily 10 per cent flat salary raise to all men employed in the editorial department.

The Sunday Ledger will carry the full leased wire report of the United Press, along with another wire service; the service of the Newspaper Enterprise Association; four full pages of colored comics, and a magazine section. Robert G. Hiden is editor and publisher of the Ledger.

WHEN THE RED CROSS "PAPER TRAIN" ARRIVED AT THE FRONT

AMERICAN RED CROSS DELIVERING NEWSPAPERS FROM HOME ON THE FRONT LINES—NOTE THE SATISFIED SMILES.

NO matter where he goes, the greatest weakness of the American vacationist is his daily newspaper, even men away on business demand the home-town newspaper, so it is not any wonder that the first demand of the average man in khaki uniform, with a dug-out for his home and "eooties" for his bed fellows, should have a craving for the news that he would willingly walk through shell-fire to satisfy.

Also let it be understood here there was no favorite news among the men of the American army. The papers that went to them were the best read of any newspapers that have been distributed in the history of journalism—not once but many times. Every brow-beaten copy reader in the country, every cub reporter and every country correspondent and even "An Old Subscriber" would have swelled up with pride if he could have but watched the doughboy read his thought gems.

Every piece of news and advertisement appearing in the papers that reached the front took on all the importance of a presidential election at home. Tobacco, newspapers and hot chocolate were the great reserve forces of the army that kept up morale. The reports of Col. Harvey D. Gibson, formerly Red Cross Commissioner to France, are replete with gripping accounts of how Red Cross contrived to "deliver the papers on time."

SEATTLE JOB PRINTERS QUIT

Four Hundred Strike—Newspapers Not Affected—Bookbinders Out

SEATTLE, Sept. 7.—Nearly 400 pressmen, press feeders and bookbinders in the job printing establishments of Seattle went out on strike this week for increased wages and shorter working hours. The feeders and pressmen are demanding $7 per day for seven hours, instead of $6 for eight hours. The women binders are asking for $28 a week instead of $21.

Nine shops, which have contracts for publishing weekly magazines and periodicals, have granted the demands. Publishers of Seattle, exclusive of newspapers which are not affected by the strike, are attempting to assist in an adjustment of the differences.

A compromise proposition offering $6.50 to the pressmen and feelers for eight hours has been rejected.

Fitchburg News Purchased by James J. Devine

Leaves Clarksburg, W. Va., After Twelve Years' Association with Telegram—Given a Rousing Send-Off

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 9.—James J. Devine, treasurer and general manager of the Clarksburg Telegram Company, has acquired the entire capital stock of the Daily News Company, of Fitchburg, Mass., a $60,000 Massachusetts corporation publishing the Evening News.

JAMES J. DEVINE

The announcement of the intention of Mr. Devine to leave Clarksburg caused many expressions of regret among the business men and others of the city, as he has been active in all business and civic enterprises here during the last ten years. He is a member of the Clarksburg Chamber of Commerce, the mercantile board, the Central West Virginia Association of Credit Men, the Clarksburg Rotary Club, the Elks and the Knights of Columbus lodges, and has been active in the work of these organizations.

In his 12 years with the Telegram Company Mr. Devine helped to make it one of the best and most influential journals in the state.

Just prior to Mr. Devine's departure from Clarksburg, 42 employes of the Telegram attended a banquet, which was given by the company to wish him well in his new business venture. In the course of the evening Mr. Devine was presented with a handsome gold watch and fine traveling bag, gifts of the stockholders and employes, respectively.

Besides being a farewell banquet for Mr. and Mrs. Devine, the affair also was a "get acquainted" meeting of stockholders and employes, the first of its kind ever held by the company, and a successful was it considered that V. L. Highland, a large stockholder in the company, who presided as toastmaster, announced that the banquet of stockholders and employes would be made an annual affair.

C. P. A. AGAIN POSTPONES MEET

Annual Convention Probably Will Not Be Held Until November

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 9.—The annual convention of the Canadian Press, which was to have been held in June and was postponed until September on account of labor controversies, has been postponed again because of uncertainty regarding the prohibition referendum vote in Ontario, in October.

As a Victory Loan campaign follows it is unlikely that the convention will be held until November.

Will of J. P. Bass Is Filed

BANGOR, Me., Sept. 8—The inventory of the estate of Joseph P. Bass, for many years publisher of the Bangor Daily Commercial, shows estate to be valued at $580,905, the rights and credits at $683,241 and the goods and chattels at $406,668, a total of $1,670,814. The goods and chattels consist of 400 shares of stock in the J. P. Bass Publishing Co., publishers of the Commercial, listed at 68, with a value of $77,350.

HIT THE LINE WITH WARNER

"America's Greatest Football Coach"

1919 will be the biggest year in football history.

Coach Warner's review, released each Friday, starting September 27th, offers you the most attractive sport feature obtainable this season.

Warner will bring to your sport page the judgment of the shrewdest student of football in the country.

Write or wire your reservation for the Warner review today.

UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE

318 World Building New York City

Digitized by Google

NEWSPAPER MAKING

A Department of Practical Service for Publishers and Advertisers Conducted by Jason Rogers, Publisher of the New York Globe and Author of "Fundamentals of Newspaper Building," "Newspaper Building" and "Building Newspaper Advertising

In most places other than a few of our larger cities there is still too much of the old attitude of thanks for "patronage" among our newspapers. There is no nourishment in such a policy for our newspaper makers who would go farthest. Today the man who advertises for anything else but profit is a chump.

Many a time in approaching an advertiser I have been met with the remark: "Well I suppose I have bought you many an automobile" or other trifling thing, to which I would reply, "We suppose you advertise with me because you like my face" or something of the kind to bring him down to earth where we could talk as business men.

To the experienced advertiser, advertising is the device through which he creates that last fifty per cent of his traffic in which is contained his overhead and profit, with constantly increasing volume from year to year.

Without Advertising

Without advertising he would have to cut down his floor space fifty per cent, take off his coat and help wait on customers and gradually shrink to the proportions of the small retail shops which "do not advertise" but figure for their lives to beat off the sheriff.

Not by a jug-full and then some should we permit our advertisers to patronize us. We render them a vital and most important service and should clearly make them understand that we do not profit all that they pay us, but only a reasonable and fair manufacturer's profit.

Owing to the unsound training of those running them either from the educational or commercial viewpoint our newspapers suffer unfair hardships through ignorance of the true relation which they should seek to establish and which can be done in any city.

Primarily, we must be sound regarding fundamentals or our house may fall about our heads like that built upon sand.

We must realize that if we are going to live and prosper and go forward to constantly greater achievements we must know our costs and demand and secure a high enough rate for our product to meet costs, to pay for production and leave a margin over for profit.

Where Many Fall Down

Here is where many of our small newspapers and quite a number of big ones fall down. Too many of us forget that modern newspapering is different from what it was a century ago when all a man needed to start a paper was a can full of type, access to a hand press and the inclination.

Our modern newspaper is a costly venture in proportion to the population and competition in its city of publication. Unless it is made a successful and profitable enterprise it can never win position of great power and influence.

For purpose of demonstration of what I mean I can only give the case of a high-school student who at his examination passed every subject except French and who was informed that the only reason for his failure was the unsoundness of his elementary training on the subject.

It is just so in newspaper making

COMBINED NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION OF COUNTRY IS 7,003,575 GREATER THAN COMBINED MAGAZINE CIRCULATION

	Population	White Families	Total Newspaper Circulation	*Magazine Circulation	†Total 47 Magazines	‡Circulation List 389 Newspapers
Alabama	2,895,270	268,861	232,181	211,861	143,946	130,084
Arizona	272,034	27,699	51,912	116,864	72,105	18,178
Arkansas	1,792,965	247,581	130,593	180,272	118,567	74,146
California	3,117,412	387,205	1,292,866	1,618,912	957,657	483,329
Colorado	1,014,581	145,903	273,354	361,576	219,198	129,775
Connecticut	1,286,266	171,142	352,051	488,720	305,103	129,630
Delaware	216,941	34,152	41,818	49,240	39,893	29,107
District of Columbia	374,584	47,062	249,834	178,616	117,540	163,491
Florida	938,877	222,416	136,730	91,065	126,440	47,590
Georgia	2,935,617	314,829	312,296	304,928	217,498	203,078
Idaho	461,766	61,954	48,866	152,248	95,190	28,949
Illinois	6,317,734	960,978	2,218,997	1,795,264	1,276,485	959,266
Indiana	2,854,162	551,253	837,720	660,714	510,695	222,233
Iowa	2,224,771	430,157	617,427	661,320	539,845	269,939
Kansas	1,874,195	333,147	333,842	399,960	316,465	182,054
Kentucky	2,408,547	250,040	308,378	244,175	181,067	145,143
Louisiana	1,884,778	199,128	246,063	197,623	131,970	178,513
Maine	742,191	182,000	124,836	139,969	147,054	71,836
Maryland	1,284,539	212,992	422,246	265,560	181,061	394,494
Massachusetts	3,832,790	1,201,128	2,043,912	505,306	815,664	1,311,449
Michigan	3,133,678	486,605	930,019	916,104	737,437	577,271
Minnesota	2,343,287	336,937	627,350	625,400	443,652	395,643
Mississippi	2,001,466	172,605	46,654	143,884	94,469	11,179
Missouri	3,448,498	645,786	1,493,499	714,184	527,780	819,081
Montana	486,376	59,764	111,724	262,987	166,045	50,714
Nebraska	1,296,872	223,306	364,404	326,016	260,835	225,131
Nevada	114,742	12,506	12,648	47,328	27,108	4,632
New Hampshire	446,352	103,472	56,885	74,077	95,477	25,137
New Jersey	3,080,371	397,268	519,966	658,032	576,631	281,432
New Mexico	437,015	62,653	18,149	89,654	51,997	13,048
New York	10,646,980	2,838,064	4,815,308	1,386,127	1,282,152	1,997,986
North Carolina	2,466,025	332,126	166,343	252,944	147,696	68,562
North Dakota	291,437	91,933	62,933	181,752	115,902	39,923
Ohio	5,273,814	901,700	2,075,410	1,506,432	1,176,436	871,924
Oklahoma	2,377,629	312,999	342,718	303,328	234,623	158,558
Oregon	888,243	122,686	280,477	313,976	227,022	199,894
Pennsylvania	8,758,067	1,339,776	2,709,938	1,931,360	1,416,629	1,036,038
Rhode Island	637,415	153,808	172,970	78,770	121,946	120,875
South Carolina	1,660,934	149,579	117,488	157,944	111,403	47,130
South Dakota	735,434	102,921	62,366	177,464	124,260	24,699
Tennessee	2,321,253	376,216	391,216	290,048	178,226	259,289
Texas	4,601,279	658,859	702,613	817,448	550,674	385,940
Utah	453,648	67,375	124,749	154,248	84,299	93,241
Vermont	366,592	67,653	51,235	107,872	79,697	22,090
Virginia	2,234,030	302,929	316,265	362,488	233,660	167,820
Washington	1,660,578	192,869	480,877	655,298	382,479	270,504
West Virginia	1,439,165	244,388	156,573	232,200	156,426	89,107
Wisconsin	2,553,983	401,774	462,870	710,352	415,311	210,122
Wyoming	190,380	25,156	25,374	57,712	44,323	13,585
Total	105,257,184	17,332,260	27,975,127	21,448,116	20,971,552	13,650,858
Cost per line =		$61.74			$122.90	$22.29

* As quoted erroneously by the True Shape Shoe people. These magazines actually have: Good Housekeeping, 454,840, line rate $3.25; Literary Digest, 909,618, line rate, $5.50; Saturday Evening Post, 1,906,638, line rate, $7.0; Vogue, 80,000, line rate, $1.25; total, 3,351,096, line rate, $16.50.

† List of 47 magazines (as shown in Editor & Publisher, April 12, 1919), the line rate for which is $122.90 per line, as against $61.74 for 28,096,869 daily newspaper circulation.

‡ Probably intended to be 246,175.

§ The list will be furnished on request.

Our enterprise must be fundamentally sound. We must lay our own foundation and build brick by brick regardless of imaginary competition.

If our conception of the sort of a newspaper the people want is correct, and we make it that kind, ever seeking opportunity for improvement, success is bound to come to us logically as that day follows night.

Our course must be properly set. We must know exactly what we can afford to spend in making the sort of a newspaper that is demanded. We must not permit competitors to drive us into foolish additional expenses.

We must know how to calculate with accuracy just how much sale of newspapers and advertising space at proper rates we can count upon to be safe. We must realize that everything in life is a battle.

Therefore we must create a budget for promoting the production of our newspaper for its presentation in a circulation way, for promotion of the sale of its advertising space at a rate based on definite costs, and fair profit.

It may be easier to get out any sort of a newspaper as cheaply as we can and to give away space at the low on traffic will bear, but more often than not such policy leads to bankruptcy and the sheriff's sale.

It may take a little more nerve to provide a slightly larger fund for making a better newspaper more entitled to success and to demand a much higher and livable rate for advertising.

It may take a little more capital to promote such a newspaper along sure

(Continued on Page 26.)

MORE THAN 36,000 IN USE

© TRADE LINOTYPE MARK ©

THE MACHINE THAT LASTS

The 10-Finger Efficiency Method for Display Composition

SET YOUR DISPLAY DIRECT FROM THE LINOTYPE KEYBOARD

Representative dailies throughout the country are operating Model 20 Display Linotypes—profitably. Successful performance under such a wide variety of working conditions on the every-day run of copy is undeniable proof of the economy of producing display composition with straight-matter speed direct from the Linotype Keyboard. Modernize your methods—install a Model 20

Note:
This advertisement is a specimen of Model 20 "Straight-Matter" produced direct from the keyboard. Get acquainted with the Display Liontype—write for Model 20 Literature

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY
New York, U. S. A.

SAN FRANCISCO 646 Sacramento Street
CHICAGO 1100 So. Wabash Avenue
NEW ORLEANS 549 Baronne Street

Canadian Linotype Limited, 68 Temperance Street, Toronto

Digitized by Google

WHAT NEWSPAPER MEN SAY ABOUT BASEBALL PUBLICITY

THE following opinions on the question of the amount of space that should be devoted to baseball have been received by EDITOR & PUBLISHER from the editors and publishers of American newspapers during the past week in connection with the symposium recently opened on this subject.

EDGAR B. PIPER

EDITOR, PORTLAND (ORE.) OREGONIAN

There are few, if any, other departments of a newspaper in which it is possible to get the personal-interest element so strongly to the fore as in the handling of sports, especially professional sports, and particularly baseball. On this ground I think American newspapers are justified in giving to baseball the large amount of space that it now occupies in their columns.

It is not sufficient for a newspaper to chronicle events as they happen. A great deal of interest among readers is created and maintained by the element of personality that is brought into the news pages. The ways that this may be done are limited; it is not proper to print gossip about private citizens, their characteristics and the minor events of their lives, nor has the editor the right to make such an invasion of private rights. But the baseball player is, in a way, a public character. It is altogether proper to make him the subject of newspaper comment that will bring his personality strongly before the public. You may, in some instances, make a sort of hero of a man who isn't worth it, and at all times you are increasing the gate receipts of a game that is highly commercialized, but, nevertheless, you are interesting thousands of readers and, in my judgment, it is good newspaper policy to do it.

I think that the actual reporting of games is often overdone, as to space. The games must be reported, of course, but the greater value, it seems to me, lies in the incidental comment that deals with the activities of the ball players. This is conditioned, too, on the necessity for the man who writes the sporting news to be accepted by the paper's readers as an authority.

M. E. FOSTER

PRESIDENT, HOUSTON CHRONICLE

"In my opinion, newspapers generally give too much space to baseball news. I think one-half column a day should be sufficient space for that part of the sporting page devoted to baseball. I think all baseball extras should be discontinued; that newspapers generally should cease to allow space to be used for the purpose of building up baseball organizations, nearly all of which are run for the purpose of profit, and which get such a vast volume of free advertising that they cease to patronize the general advertising columns.

LEON M. SILER

MANAGING EDITOR, HOUSTON PRESS

Baseball news is not overplayed. Political news alone attracts wider interest. I consider that summer sports merit a full page in a metropolitan daily. This space, of course, should not be confined solely to baseball. Between seasons, sports space can be reduced one-half to three-fourths, but the sports feature as a separate news department should be a year-round affair.

JOHN D. WELLS

MANAGING EDITOR, BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

The news value of baseball stories varies, according to the playing ability of the team and the position it occupies, but that in the main baseball news is overplayed and that baseball magnates should be required to do advertising.

HARVEY W. WHITE

EDITOR, BUFFALO (N. Y.) COMMERCIAL

Baseball news should be treated as theatrical news now is treated; that is, give whatever news there is in the activities of a team, but stop filling the paper with a lot of chatter which is nothing more or less than free advertising.

R. G. HIDEN

PUBLISHER, BIRMINGHAM (ALA.) LEDGER

I hardly consider myself competent to answer the question of the EDITOR & PUBLISHER as to whether baseball is an overplayed item of news in view of the newsprint situation, as I am not a baseball fan.

As an outsider, however, I believe that a conservative cut in baseball space would be alright and timely, viewing it as a matter of white paper conservation. How the fans would look at it, I can't say, but it is significant that more people read the baseball page than any one single feature of the newspaper. I believe a column to a column and a half would be sufficient between seasons.

J. E. CHAPPELL

MANAGING EDITOR, BIRMINGHAM (ALA.) NEWS

Baseball news certainly could be held to one or two columns between seasons. During the playing season, however, I am opposed to placing any limit on the space given to the national pastime.

Newspapers have made baseball. Their continual boosting brought it back after the war, and while more money is spent on baseball than any other feature of the newspaper, I believe the public has been so educated by the newspapers to expect it, that it will continue to demand the same amount of space. With all the peace treaty excitement, race riots and labor unrest, nothing has created the same amount of interest as has the several races for the pennant in the big leagues.

W. T. STOTT

MANAGING EDITOR, PORTLAND (ORE.) TELEGRAM

From our own experience I do not believe that baseball is being overplayed by the newspapers. We can judge only from a circulation standpoint, and our circulation department is constantly after us for more baseball, rather than less.

Portland newspapers do not print the box scores of the National and American leagues, carrying the box scores of only the Pacific Coast league. The press associations do not carry the eastern box scores out here. We have been told by men who seemed to be in a position to know what they were talking about that our circulation would be increased from 3,000 to 4,000 if we would bring the box scores out here "over-head."

Baseball has a universal appeal, because every man has been a player or, at least, thinks he has.

DONALD STERLING

ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR, OREGON JOURNAL, PORTLAND

Two factors have compelled the newspaper to devote an enormous amount of space to baseball news, viz.: its desire to render its readers the widest possible service and inter-newspaper competition. That there is a great demand among newspaper readers for baseball news is unquestioned and viewed from the news angle that demand has been considered justification for the space devoted to this subject. The normal newspaper ambition to print the news first has created, especially among evening newspapers, a keen and expensive competition in the publication of sports extras.

Especially at this time of high production cost, it is proper to translate the space devoted to baseball into dollars and cents and determine whether the two factors above outlined have led editorial judgment beyond the path of sound business policy.

In view of the admitted demand for baseball news that comes from a healthy interest in clean sports, I prefer to consider the problem apart from the narrow view that points to the exploitation of private business in the news columns.

That the newspaper should carry baseball news is beyond question. That in its enthusiasm to render service it has accustomed its readers to expect too great a volume is apparent to me. That there is a middle ground is clear, but to reach it will be difficult because of the existing competition among newspapers in news service.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

J. E. Phelan, one of the publishers, and Augustin P. Maher, editor of the Evening Herald, answered jointly for their publication, as follows:

1. "No. At least one-quarter of the population is interested in baseball.

2. "The varying conditions—morning and evening editions, major and minor leagues, cities with league members and cities without—make it impossible to give any idea of the space which might be called reasonable for all."

Charles J. Haynes, managing editor of the Standard-Telegram, Bridgeport's only morning newspaper, replied:

1. "No.

2. "I believe morning newspapers should give as much space as possible to baseball, using complete box scores, but for evening papers the scores should be skeletonized."

Wilfred D. Bagley, city editor of the Bridgeport Post (evening), declared:

1. "Yes, by 25 per cent.

2. "Four columns in season and one and one-half columns out of season."

The profits for the year ended May 31 of the Edinburgh Evening News, after charging excess profit duty, were £20,536 14s. 9d.

The St. Louis Star's Daily Average Net Paid Circulation for August, 1919:

101,735

The Star's Month by Month Statements of Net Paid Circulation for the Past Six Months are as follows:

March, 1919
94,845

April, 1919
94,833

May, 1919
96,446

June, 1919
97,682

July, 1919
99,265

August, 1919
101,735

In Total Paid Advertising Compared with August, 1918

The St. Louis Star Gained 58,116 Lines

Foreign Advertising Representatives
STORY, BROOKS & FINLEY
CHICAGO, Peoples' Gas Bldg — PHILADELPHIA, Colonial Bldg — NEW YORK, Fifth Ave. Bldg.

Don't Say "Paper"—Say "STAR"
Trade Mark Registered.

First

In eight months of 1919, The New York Times published the greatest volume of advertising ever printed by any New York newspaper in any eight months of any year.

The total was 11,723,314 agate lines, (39,606 columns), more than 27 per cent. of all the advertising published in New York morning newspapers, and a gain of 3,264,568 lines (11,029 columns) over the corresponding period of last year.

In August The New York Times published 1,460,544 agate lines of advertisements—a greater volume and a greater gain over August, 1918, than any other New York newspaper.

The sale of The New York Times daily edition exceeds that of any other New York morning newspaper. On Sunday The Times is purchased by more than half a million persons.

The New York Times

Digitized by Google

PRESSMEN TO VOTE ON ARBITRATION CONTRACT WITH A. N. P. A.

Tentative Agreement Already Accepted by Publishers and Union Board of Directors—New Commercial Contract Wage Scale Changes—44-Hour Week Wanted

THE International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America will vote in November on the adoption of an arbitration contract with the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

By action of the convention of 1916 the union's board of directors was authorized to confer with the representatives of the A. N. P. A., looking to the establishment of a contract between that association and the union.

Tentative Contract Agreed Upon, Subject to Members' Vote

In accordance with that authority the board of directors has conferred with the publishers and has agreed to a tentative contract, subject to the approval of the membership of the international body, the outstanding points of which follow:

(a) The contract is to run, if adopted, for two years and four months. This action was taken in order to bring about the expiration of the proposed agreement with that of the expiration of the agreements held by other international printing trades unions.

(b) The question as to whether local unions or local publishers shall come within the purview of the agreement is entirely optional with them; it is not compulsory for any local union or local publishers' association or individual members thereof to take out an agreement unless satisfactory to them.

(c) The agreement provides that when a local agreement is taken out all differences shall be subject to conciliation and arbitration; no strikes, lockouts or other concentrated action shall be taken by either side during the life of the agreement.

(d) Local union laws not affecting wages, hours or working conditions and the laws of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America in effect July 30, 1919, shall not be subject to the provisions of the arbitration agreement.

New Commercial Contract

The union's board of directors has accepted a contract for closer affiliation between the five International Printing Trades Unions and the employers' associations, which provides:

(a) The means of working out a universal wage scale.

(b) The establishment of joint action in the determination of the price cost of the product.

(c) The establishment of a universal cost finding system.

(d) The creation of conciliation and arbitration of disputes of industry.

(e) The protection of the machinery now in operation in local organizations.

The Board of Directors of the union also reports having met with the employing printers of the country in the matter of a 44-hour week, and has tentatively agreed subject to the approval of the membership to the following:

(a) The establishment of the forty-four week in May, 1921.

(b) The tentative arrangement contemplates the Until Typothetae of America, closed shop division; the Printers' League of America, the Employing Stereotypers' and Electrotypers', and the Employing Photo-Engravers.

The board of directors in order to ascertain the opinion of the membership reports having circulated all sub-ordinate unions and that more than two hundred locals have endorsed the proposition. It is now being submitted for the formal ratification of the International membership.

This contemplates the establishment of the universal forty-four hour week for all of the printing trades unions.

Wage Scale Changes

The pressmen's union reports the following new wage changes:

Lansing, Mich.—Increase of $6 a week for pressmen and $5 for assistants, making the wages $33 and $25 a week respectively.

Rock Island, Ill.—Receiving pressmen over the week scale adjusted between cost of living index, cylinder pressmen and feeders and $6 for platen pressmen.

Keene, N. H.—Increases of $2 a week for cylinder pressmen, $5 for platen pressmen and cylinder feeders and $4 for automatic pressmen.

Evansville, Ind.—Increase of $3 a week for first assistant web pressmen.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Substantial increases over amounts stipulated in the existing agreement which does not expire until September 1920. Cylinder pressmen receive $6.50 a week additional; no change in scale for first assistants; second assistant pressmen $11, web pressmen $8.

Saginaw, Mich.—Union agreement signed with employing printers providing for opening of wage scale after six months from May 1. Provision and arbitration is provided for by settling chairman and minimum scales established of $25 to $27.50 a week for cylinder pressmen, $20 for cylinder feeders and $18 for platen pressmen. Night scale is $2 additional to day scale.

Salem, Mass.—Cylinder pressmen advanced an increase of $3 a week.

Quebec, Can.—Increases of $3 a week for cylinder pressmen and assistants, $2 for web pressmen and providing a scale of $28 a week for offset pressmen.

Pasadena, Cal.—Employes of the Star-News, both newspaper and commercial branches, have received a voluntary increase of fifteen per cent.

Allentown, Pa.—One-year agreement with newspaper publishers establishing a scale of $35 a week for pressmen in charge of press, $28 and $23 for first, second and third assistants, respectively, and double time for holidays. Minimum scale of $30 has also been established for the flatbed branch.

Champaign and Urbana, Ill.—Scale of $30 a week for foreman of newspaper pressroom, $26 and $24 for foreman, $28 for Duplex and Goss pressmen and cylinder pressmen, $24 for supernumerary cylinder pressmen and for platen pressmen, $21 for cylinder feeders, $16 for platen feeders, and for web apprentices $15 a week for first year.

Jackson, Mich.—Increases of $3.50 a week for cylinder pressmen, $5 for web press foremen and offset pressmen, $4.50 for cylinder assistants and web press assistants, $4 for Kelly pressmen, $7 to $8 for platen pressmen, $5 for platen feeders $1.50 for cylinder feeders and making the night scale $2 above the day scale instead of $1.50.

Lewiston, Me.—Increase of $2 a week.

San Francisco, Cal.—Voluntary increase of $1.00 to $3.50 a week granted. Twelve men, others and paper handlers, who formerly received $43.00, $44.00 and $44.00 a day, now have a flat scale of $45.50 a day or $267 a week while men in charge receive $51.

Denver, Colo.—Additional voluntary increases of $3 a week for journeymen and apprentices on the Post and $2 a week for all on the News.

Toledo, Ohio.—Bonuses over the signed agreement of $2.50 a week for men in charge, $0.85 for journeymen, making wages for former $36.00 a week and for latter $35.00 a week.

Baltimore, Md.—Increase of $1 a day for men in charge and other journeymen, 50c. a day for apprentices.

Hudson County, N. J.—Increases of $6 a week for men in charge and journeymen, $5 for feeders making scales $35, $30 and $24 a week, respectively.

An Open Letter to

JOHN SPACEBUYER,
Every Agency,
Everywhere.

Dear Sir:—

When some enterprising Newspaper Manager or Special Representative circularizes you with elaborate broadsides of half truths or attractive phrases having no truth—do you "bite" or do you say "show me?"

Isn't the use of a Newspaper by "home folks" the best measure of its effectiveness—the best proof that it is the best medium for you to use?

Here is what an army of advertisers did during June, July and August in our town, Worcester:

LOCAL DISPLAY ADVERTISING

	Lines
Week day editions of the TELEGRAM	1,878,472
Sunday editions of the TELEGRAM	820,183
Total TELEGRAM	2,699,655
The Worcester Gazette	1,538,967

In addition to the foregoing 126,000 lines of Local Display advertising were published in the TELEGRAM'S Peace Edition July 31st.

Other advertising in the Telegram and the Gazette brought the total for three months to

	Lines
Worcester Telegram	3,245,886
Worcester Gazette	1,996,725

The total number of advertisements published in these Worcester Newspapers during June, July and August is 146,953, of which 76% were placed in the TELEGRAM, and 24% in the Gazette.

That you may form a mental picture of the TELEGRAM by comparison with newspapers with which you may be more familiar we quote from records published by The Advertising Age giving volume of advertising published by leading American newspapers in the first six months of 1919.

IN RELATION TO BOSTON NEWSPAPERS

	Lines
WORCESTER TELEGRAM	5,718,053
Boston Post	5,367,706
Boston Herald and Traveler	4,073,940

IN RELATION TO NEW YORK NEWSPAPERS

WORCESTER TELEGRAM	5,718,053	N. Y. Eve. Telegram	4,624,923
N. Y. American	5,009,058	N. Y. Eve. World	3,677,439
Brooklyn Eagle	5,506,800	N. Y. Eve. Globe	3,677,689
N. Y. Eve. Journal	4,705,600	N. Y. Herald	4,181,960
N. Y. Eve. Mail	2,193,211	Brooklyn Standard Union	3,396,749
N. Y. Eve. Post	2,166,794	New York Sun	2,870,030
N. Y. Eve. Sun	3,858,879	New York Tribune	3,567,220

Only two New York Newspapers, The TIMES and The WORLD carried more advertising than the WORCESTER TELEGRAM.

The Worcester TELEGRAM in one edition prints more advertising than any other newspaper in New England—every line authorized and not a line of complimentary, unauthorized or "stretched" advertising. That kind is relied upon by some Newspaper managers and Special Representatives to mislead space-buyers a hundred or more miles away—though it doesn't influence those near enough to know.

Who are right in their choice—the 2% who buy without first hand knowledge of local conditions, or the 98% who are our neighbors—home folks?

Yours truly,
THE WORCESTER TELEGRAM,
Austin P. Cristy, Publisher.

PAUL BLOCK, Inc.
Representative

New York Chicago Detroit Boston

After Twenty Years

The Sun

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

New York, August 12, 1919.

Lanston Monotype Machine Company,
24th & Locust Streets,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Gentlemen:

I have recommended the installation in our new building of eight new Monotype Composing Machines to replace eight old machines which have been in use for twenty years. This means really forty years, since they were used on an average of at least two shifts a day.

We will retain four of our original Monotypes, which are in good condition, making a total battery of twelve Monotypes for use exclusively on ad. work for the Sun and Evening Sun.

When I assumed charge of the Sun Composing Room, I was, to say the least, not a Monotype enthusiast. I had had but little practical experience with Monotypes for Newspaper work, but finding a battery of these machines in our composing room, I observed their operation closely and was decidedly impressed with their performance.

That I am convinced that Monotypes are the machines for our ad. composition, is evidenced by our order for these machines and other equipment for bringing our Keyboards and, in fact, the entire Monotype department up to date.

Yours very truly,

John E. Martin

Superintendent.

LANSTON MONOTYPE MACHINE COMPANY · PHILADELPHIA

NEW YORK: World Building
BOSTON: Wentworth Building
CHICAGO: Plymouth Building
TORONTO: Lumsden Building
MONOTYPE COMPANY of CALIFORNIA: SAN FRANCISCO

Digitized by Google

U. S. NAVAL CENSORSHIP EXECUTIVE FINISHING FINE WAR RECORD

Lieut.-Commander Baker Will Reach New York Sunday—Made Record in World War in Rushing News From Front—Was Trained in Newspaper Work.

BY HERMAN SUTER

WHEN Lieut.-Commander George Barr Baker, U. S. N., lands in New York from Europe next Sunday, he will have completed two and one-half years of most exacting service for his country. As executive officer of the Naval Censorship in New York for a year and a half and later, upon special assignment, to expedite the censorship of war news from Europe to America, Commander Baker rendered aid of vital importance to the newspapers of America, and through them to the entire reading public of the United States.

Finally as right hand man to Herbert Hoover, Director General of Relief in Europe, he was a big factor in the splendid success of the American Relief organization—a work that has greatly enhanced American prestige the world over.

Has Strong Grasp on International Affairs

Commander Baker's strong and pleasing personality, his broad grasp of international affairs, his tact, perseverance, and ability to stand up and do good work under constant pressure, resulted in a service that was a great credit to the man and his country alike. His record is a compliment to the newspaper profession in which he was trained and in which he promptly attained a notable position. His accomplishments during the war and the armistice period are a striking testimonial to the value of a broad journalistic training in grappling with the heart-breaking problems that arise in war and the chaos that for a time follows war.

Navy's Pride Is Speed

Commander Baker was executive officer of the Naval Censorship in New York from May 2, 1917, until September 24, 1918. At this time there was bitter complaint from the newspapers against censorship of American correspondents with the army in France and also in Paris and London. In addition to censorship and the delays consequent to it, there was a great congestion of cable and telegraphic wires.

The navy censorship had prided itself that insofar as its responsibility lay, the press was receiving its dispatches with greater speed than in peace times. Unlike the European censorships, the United States navy censorship established its officers at the ticker in the cable offices; these officers read the dispatches as rapidly as the operators did, and saw that they were passed on to the short wires without even the ordinary delay of peace times.

Admiral Sims Assisted

Where such dispatches were addressed to papers which could be got on the telephone, the navy censors, instead of cutting out matter as was done in Europe, generally followed the practice of telephoning the editor and discussing with him any objectionable features with a view to securing a more complete elimination and rearrangement of dispatches than would be likely to occur through the individual work of the censor.

This, however, did not cover the European situation, and Baker was detached and ordered to duty with the United States naval forces operating in European waters, under the command of Admiral Sims, for the purpose of securing relief.

Admiral Sims immediately recognized the importance of getting the news of the war quickly before the American public and made it possible for Baker to secure an agreement with the British Government not to divert dispatches from the American front to the British censorship when in transit through England. This was done with the assistance also of Lord Reading, and effected a saving of from two to four hours.

LIEUT.-COM. GEORGE BARR BAKER

A Great Saving

Arrangements were then made whereby copy filed in Paris was sent over the Signal Corps and navy leased cable direct to Western Union House in London and there put immediately upon the cable without having passed through any censorship.

This was effected through an agreement by which the British and French detailed military censors to act in cooperation with the American military censors at the front, so that instead of three operations there was only one, and that at the source.

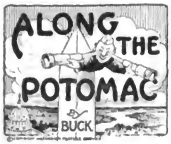
This secured a considerable saving, but it then became apparent that telegraphic communication between the American front and Paris was little better than nothing, dispatches frequently lying as long as eight hours before being put on the wires from headquarters. The sympathy of the signal Corps was enlisted, and a genius by the name of Wheat (now Lieut.-Col. Wheat), to whom the press will ever remain deeply grateful, began in the roughest way to say that there was "only a busted clothesline" between the American front and Paris, and that no reliable service could go over "such a fool contraption."

Baker wept on Wheat's shoulder until Wheat, to get rid of him, decided that something had to be done. The busted clothesline ran along poles, ditches, trees, hedges and sometimes nowhere in particular. Through the genius of Wheat this was developed into a wire, with repeaters and accelerators and duplicators and batteries and things which Baker never did learn anything about, except that they had to be got, and that Wheat could get them.

Made New Record

Four weeks from the time that Baker struck London, Wheat remarked to him casually that he had just sent ten words from the American front straight through to London in the space of two or three minutes. Within a week the service between the front and Western Union House in London was as easy as telephone communication between two points in New York.

The French and British censors entered into the spirit of the thing with the American censors, and saw to it that there were no delays at the headquarters near the battle front. The only serious delays thereafter were occasioned by congested cables from London to New York. This was physically impossible to remedy except where the Committee on Public Information came to the rescue and provided facilities for the press through wireless.



Commander Baker thereafter sat on a diminishing job until January 1919, when Admiral Sims ordered him for extra duty with Mr. Hoover in the Food Administration, after which Baker was fully occupied from 8:30 in the morning until 10 o'clock at night.

The relation of commercial censorship to blockade was a subject of vital interest to American business, and it was Baker who finally secured an agreement with Great Britain by which messages transmitted through Allied countries in either direction were censored only in America instead of by each of the governments into whose custody they passed in transit.

Censorship was declared finally at an end with the lifting of the blockade and the ratification of the peace treaty by Germany. As representing both naval censorship and certain of the Food Administration interests Baker attended the sessions of the Supreme Economic Council of the Peace Conference and was a member of various committees of the Supreme Economic Council. These required continual travel back and forth between France and England, during which time almost the only good sleep he got was in aeroplanes on the journey until the tragic death of his favorite flier broke his nerve.

(Continued on page 37.)

THE KITCHEN SOCIALIST

Am I delirious?
Does my mind roam?
Why this mysterious
Air in my home?

Why this strange atmosphere
Filling each room?
Even the cat must fear
Such a dread gloom!

In all of the dire place
No sign of life!
Why the cold fire-place?
Where is my wife?

What is this document
I read, aghast?
"Prepare for a shock. You meant
Well in the past,

"But, dear, if you're true to me,
You'll stand the gaff;
For overtime due to me,
Time and o half!

"Labor's to share in all
That it produces—
If that isn't fair, in all
Truth, what the deuce is?

"I don't want to trouble you,
Darlingest Frank,
I'm no L. W.
W. crank,

"But you're outa luck for a
While (till you pay).
Dearest, I've struck for a-
'N eight-hour day!"

Work and Save is the cure for the H. C. of L. malady, according to the head of the Federal Reserve Board. That's mighty good medicine, says ex-Sergt. SOL, but hard to take on an empty stomach.

MOANINGS AT THE BAR

"I don't take six drinks a year, myself, so it makes no difference to me, but—"

THE ELASTIC CONSCIENCE

There were some men, o score or more,
Whose conscience kept them out of war.
May I inquire, and not be rude,
If they are buying Army food?

We hear that the Police are agitating for a national Union.
It's a blow, isn't it, to think the cops want to clnb together?

Fall out!

Buck Up!

All Is Not Quiet Along the Potomac

In fact your news dispatches are carrying enough hot and unpleasant news from all parts of these United States to keep your readers unhappy seven days a week.

What they need in addition to the painful truth is a little humor, something to take the sting out of the H C of L, the social unrest, and other unpleasantries.

"Along the Potomac" is a humor column that will stand out in your paper like a rose on a bramble bush—a laugh for your readers about the things that are irritating them.

Good, live topical verse with a lilt and swing and a good stiff punch at the foibles of politicians and parties without preference or partisanship.

Read the sample—get "Along the Potomac" for your paper and see what a bracer it is for the sad news that's breaking all around it!

"Buck"

was the poet-humorist of the A. E. F., on the staff of the "Stars & Stripes," the Army's newspaper.

Now he is back from his job of keeping the A. E. F. smiling—to the new job of making America laugh.

6 Days a Week

If not already appearing in your city, telegraph for terms.

Washington Feature Service

William A. Bird, iv, Business Manager

92 Home Life Building — Washington, D. C.

Digitized by Google

Admiral Sims Tells

How close to disaster we were in 1917

His history-making conferences with KING GEORGE, ADMIRAL JELLICOE, BALFOUR, BEATTY, LLOYD GEORGE.

Of the difficulties made by "red tape." How Ships were convoyed.

The romantic story of the British "Q" or "Mystery" ships.

Anti-submarine devices.

The dashing exploits of our submarine chasers.

The Aeroplane war on the submarine.

The construction of a mine barrage from the Orkneys to the coast of Norway.

How Germany was defeated on the high seas.

THE BIGGEST NAVAL

ADMIR

TELLS HIS GREAT AME

THROUGH TI

"In the latter part of March, 1917, I the Naval War College and there I r ment summoning me immediately to Washington. The form in was pending." These orders were the first move of our activities amazing story from that day to the signing of the armistice. The dously crucial part in the war. Admiral Sims now tells the story

AMONG THE PAPERS THAT HA

PITTSBURG POST	LOS ANGEL
CHICAGO DAILY NEWS	MILWAUKE
ATLANTA CONSTITUTION	CINCINNAT
CANTON REPOSITORY	BOSTON G
MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL-APPEAL	PHILADELI
SALT LAKE CITY TRIBUNE	CHARLOTT
GREENSBORO NEWS	NORFOLK

Most of the important territories are closed, but if yours is open t gigantic undertaking of our naval history. For weekly release be layouts. To run ap

WIRE, OR LONG DISTANCE TEL

THE McCLURE NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE

Digitized by Google

)RY IN OUR HISTORY

L SIMS

RY TO THE

CAN PUBLIC

NEWSPAPERS

ADMIRAL SIMS is more responsible than any other for the present efficiency of our fighting ships. He has always been a naval reformer and advocate of preparedness. His story of our sea war with Germany is such an important document that before our preliminary announcement had been out but a very short time some of the biggest papers in the country had telephoned or telegraphed us to enter their orders. Numerous others have ordered by mail, and a large number are now negotiating for territory.

ADMIRAL SIMS' STORY WILL GO DOWN TO HISTORY FOR FUTURE GENERATIONS TO READ WITH PRIDE AND GRATITUDE TO OUR OWN SAILORS AND OFFICERS AND TO THOSE OF OUR ALLIES IN THE GREAT STRUGGLE.

stationed at Newport as president of d a message from the Navy Depart-these instructions were cast showed that something extraordinary st Germany's submarine warfare. Admiral Sims tells the whole sh and American navies played a momentously silent but tremenıe first time.

CLOSED FOR THIS STORY ARE

KAMINER	OMAHA WORLD HERALD
IRNAL	PENSACOLA JOURNAL
UIRER	SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE
	FORT WORTH STAR TELEGRAM
BULLETIN	KINGSTON BRITISH WHIG
WS AND COURIER	SEATTLE TIMES
NIAN PILOT	NEW YORK AMERICAN

your golden opportunity to give your readers the story of the most g Sunday, September 21st. Supplied with splendid photographic nately thirty weeks.

)NE, FOR OPTION AND TERMS

373 FOURTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

Digitized by Google

NEW HAVEN WRITERS DEMAND MORE PAY

Ask for Minimum Wage of $5 a Day, $3 Extra Pay for Additional Night Work and a Six-Day Week

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 9.—Employes of the news departments of New Haven newspapers today presented demands to the publishers for minimum pay of $5 a day, $3 extra pay for additional assignments at night and a six-day week.

They asked for a reply on or before Saturday and announced that if any employe of a newspaper was discharged because of these demands, the entire news writing force on that newspaper would strike. They say they are 100 per cent organized.

John Flynn, city editor of the Register, was elected president of the new organization; Bob Wilson, of the Courier, secretary, and Gary Finley, of the Times-Leader, treasurer. These three with Michael Finley, of the Union, and D. S. Brown, of the Register, form the executive committee.

Settle the Union Differences in Bridgeport

Equity Members Return to Work on Standard-Telegram and Post on Adjustment of Dispute

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 6.—Relations between those men, whose connection with the Post Publishing Company newspapers ceased at the outset of the organization of the Bridgeport Newswriters' Equity Association, and the Bridgeport Standard - Telegram and Evening Post, were resumed last night and today. James H. Shay, James L. McGovern, Jr., W. E. McDonald, H. H. French and Vincent L. Sexton returned to the editorial staff of the Standard-Telegram and John Powell was added to the desk force of the Evening Post. It followed the offer of George C. Waldo, Jr., editor, made a week ago.

President James H. Shay issued the following statement the day following the return of the men to work: "The Equity is gratified to announce that its differences with all publishers have been happily adjusted to the satisfaction of all parties concerned. The six men who were dismissed by the Post Publishing Company have returned to work and are now co-operating with the company to the fullest extent in carrying out its program of justice and equality."

Now Propose Labor Union of Chicago News Writers

Those Who Attend Meeting Are Invited to Sign Articles of Organization —May Ask $35 Minimum

CHICAGO, Feb. 10—Efforts to form a labor union composed of employes of the news departments of Chicago newspapers have been made here this week by men said to be connected with a local labor paper called The Unionist. Twenty-seven reporters attended a meeting at 180 Washington street last Sunday, but none, so far as could be learned, signed the articles of organization. Seven of the men present were from German newspapers.

One speaker at the meeting extolled the benefits to labor obtained through Bolshevism in Russia, and another speaker invited those present to become members of the union immediately by paying initiation fees. One reporter asked what benefits he might obtain by joining, and was told:

"Join and find out."

It is reported that one demand to be made on Chicago newspaper publishers, if the union is formed, is a $35 minimum wage for reporters.

DENVER PRINTERS STRIKE

Tie Up All Smaller Publications to Force $39-$42 Scale

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 8.—Practically all weekly and other small publications in Denver are tied up by a strike of 130 union printers, which has been in progress since September 1. The printers' strike is regarded by the Denver Typothetae as ideal, in that they have been working under a contract with the employers which was to be in force until the end of the year, and that they are alleged to have violated the thirty-day strike notice provision of the state industrial act.

District Attorney William E. Foley has threatened prosecution of the men on the latter ground. The printers are demanding $39 a week for day work and $42 for night work. The present scale averages about $32 a week.

FRENCH REPORTERS ARE OUT

Courrier des Etates-Unis Refuses Raises —Hires New Staff

Five members of the editorial staff of the Courrier des Etats-Unis, the French daily newspaper of New York city, went on strike when their application for an increase in salaries was refused by L. H. Sampers, owner of the paper.

The management of the paper announces that the positions of the strikers have been filled.

Benefit for "Writers' Equity"

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 8.—Arrangements are being made by the Bridgeport Newswriters' Equity Association for a big benefit theatrical entertainment. President James H. Shay has announced that the Actors' Equity Association of New York has agreed to provide a performance with many leading stage stars.

Lardner Joins Bell Syndicate

Ring W. Lardner, well-known short-story writer and formerly columnist for the Chicago Tribune will write a weekly letter of comment on current events for Sunday newspapers, which will be syndicated by the Bell Syndicate, beginning October 19. He also is under contract with the Bell Syndicate to report events of national and international interest and his first assignment of this character probably will be the World Baseball Series. He also will write a play for Morris Gest

Change in Gillette Company

BOSTON, Sept. 8.—F. D. Copeland is the new advertising manager of the Gillette Safety Razor Company, succeeding J. T. Ashebrooke, resigned. Mr. Copeland was Mr. Ashebrooke's assistant

The Pulping Technical School at Perth, Western Australia, are experimenting with karri as a paper-making material.

PAPER FOR NEW GOLD FIELD

Manitoba Mines About to Make Appearance in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Sept. 9.—A mining journal will be established here to serve the western Canadian field. It will be published under the auspices of the Winnipeg Mining Association, which has become active in recent weeks owing to the discoveries of rich gold areas in Northern Manitoba.

The provisional directors of the paper will be: J. M. Baird, president; John Beekman, vice-president; J. Connor, secretary-treasurer; N. C. Tobias and E. W. Jackson. The new paper will be called the Manitoba Miner.

F. N. Smith Reported Returning

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 8.—Word has come to friends of Frederick Nelson Smith, vice-consul to Genoa, Italy, that he will leave his post and return home soon. Mr. Smith was managing editor of the Lynn (Mass.) Telegram when war broke out and after winning a lieutenancy went overseas with the 76th Division. He was appointed to the consular post on return. He was with the South Norwalk Sentinel, the Norwalk Hour, the old Bridgeport Standard, and was city editor of the Bridgeport Telegram during his connection with newspaper work.

New Texas Daily

MARSHALL, Tex., Sept. 10.—A new daily, known as the Marshall Morning News, has been launched in Marshall, the first issue appearing Sept. 7. It is published by Homer Price and Bryan Blalock. It carries the full leased wire report of the Associated Press.

Pleads Truth and Privilege

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 8.—The Oregonian has filed a reply to the $50,000 libel suit recently filed against it by Merrill F. Hanville, former school teacher at Astoria. The Oregonian contends that the article objected to by Hanville was both true and privileged.

Greene and Monroe Join Remington

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Finley H. Greene, who for many years has been secretary of the Buffalo Express and secretary and sales manager of the Matthews-Northrup works, has become general manager of the E. P. Remington Advertising Agency. Clarence J. Monroe, new art director for the Remington Agency, acted in a similar capacity for several years with the Niagara Lithograph Company. Carl J. Balliett will be the directing partner in the organization.

Gibbs Revisiting Old Scenes

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Philip Gibbs is revisiting the Continent in order to describe the changes wrought by war and peace. He will go over the battlefields and districts which he saw laid in ruins and also tour the principal towns of the Allies and their late enemies. The journey will include the chief centers of Belgium, Northern France, parts of Austria and the area occupied by the British troops on the Rhine.

Reporters' Friend Dies

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Susan Spellman, 62 years old, mother of John L. Spellman of the Chicago Tribune staff, who for many years had Chicago newspaper reporters who were unmarried as her guests at Christmas dinner, is dead, after an illness lasting three years.

Mrs. F. B. Crocker

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Florence Berg Crocker, 33 years old, wife of Herbert C. Crocker, died recently at Edwardsville, Ill., where her husband is representative for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Will Represent St. Louis Times

Payne, Burns & Smith, Inc., New York, have been appointed to handle the foreign advertising of the St. Louis Times in the East and G. Logan Payne of Chicago and Detroit will look after the business in the West.

Newark (N. J.) Ledger's Great Gain

First 6 months 1918 total lineage	1,954,802
First 6 months 1919 total lineage	3,155,962
Total gained in lineage	1,101,160
Per cent. gain	51%

NATIONAL ADVERTISING

First 6 months 1918	18,022
First 6 months 1919	133,148
July (Morning only) 1918—total lineage	356,784
July (Morning only) 1919—total lineage	474,754
Gain for the month	116,970

This is the largest percentage gain in New Jersey in display, Classified and National Advertising.

The Newark Morning Ledger, weekday, is the highest price home delivered paper in Newark, being 14c. per week against 10c. for the next highest priced paper.

Sale price single copy, morning 2c., Sunday 5c.

Only Morning Newspaper in Industrial Center with a million population.

L. T. RUSSELL
Editor and Publisher

Digitized by Google

Adopt this New Roller that gives most in Service

A single set of Goodrich "ONE-SET" Rollers are used by a leading newspaper for a year and a half without any signs of wear

This splendid tribute to the service obtained with Goodrich "ONE-SET" Rollers is conclusive evidence of their superiority—it is evidence that these scientifically built rollers will give you, also, the utmost in service. They have stood the real, actual hard test of practical application.

That one hundred live, progressive newspapers throughout the country have adopted them is further unquestionable evidence that they are a superior roller and have the qualities which will give the most in service.

Goodrich "ONE-SET" Rollers need no washing. They need no re-adjustment from time to time. Winter or summer, hot or cold temperature, slow or fast speed, they remain unaffected and maintain a uniform consistency. They afford perfect ink distribution, because they have the right properties of "tack." They are not affected by water. They are as near a perfect roller as human effort and ingenuity can make them.

The best evidence of their superiority is the calibre of the newspapers that have adopted them.

Write today for prices, specifying core diameter, finished diameter, and length of cover face.

THE B. F. GOODRICH RUBBER CO.
The City of Goodrich—Akron, Ohio

GOODRICH

"ONE-SET"

AUTOMATIC SUCTION ROLLERS

Digitized by Google

NEWSPAPER MAKING

BY JASON ROGERS

(Continued from Page 14.)

lines and perhaps it may seem foolish to take the longer route in getting there, but it will pay in the long run.

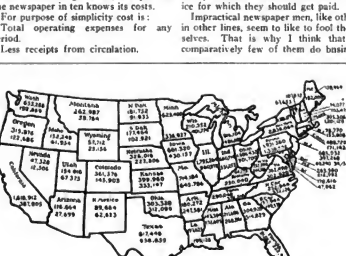
I don't believe that the rate demanded has anything much to do with the majority of people buying advertising in a newspaper. People advertise because they make money by doing so.

tional insurance against the rainy days if they come. A few thousand dollars or many thousand in such an account pleases the banker or friend to whom you show your balance sheet.

One of the great weaknesses of our business is the large percentage of unbusinesslike men who are in it. In some

TOP PICTURE: WHITE PAPER, ITS SIZE FOLDS AND NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION PREPARED BY JASON ROGERS

Because one publication gives away space is no reason why another newspaper should foolishly do the same. We must get cost plus for our advertising space or we will go broke, and yet not one newspaper in ten knows its costs.



For purpose of simplicity cost is:

Total operating expenses for any period.

Less receipts from circulation.

way or other born newspaper men are impracticable and sanguine dreamers. Too many of them are so satiated with overwhelming hopefulness that they will take promises and a kind word for service for which they should get paid.

Impractical newspaper men, like others in other lines, seem to like to fool themselves. That is why I think that so comparatively few of them do business

HOW the True-Shape dealers had the circulation of magazines used by the manufacturer visualized to them, as compared with the number of white families in the same state. Top figures in each case give total circulation of Good Housekeeping, Literary Digest, Saturday Evening Post and Vogue, while the lower figures in each case give number of white families.

Divided by number of inches or lines of advertising.

Nothing can be easier to find out provided our books reflect true conditions and we are not trying to deceive ourselves.

Commissions to agents on advertising should not figure as an expense to us. Enter all advertising at the net price to us. The advertising pays cost on net rate and the agents' commission. Such a method simplifies process of entry.

Don't be afraid of making a liberal allowance for depreciation and replacement. Because you charge a big figure the money has not gone out over the counter or through the bank. You have simply established just so much additional asset on a strictly business basis and go on deceiving themselves regarding the true conditions of their business.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(By Jason Rogers)

Question.—In reading your book, "Newspaper Building," I note what you say regarding the saving of white paper by reducing the size of heads, the elimination of cut off rules between ads, etc., but fail to see where this would help a small town daily only printing a six and eight-page newspaper. We could not very well reduce the size below present basis. Would not the adoption of your suggestion inflict a handicap?

Answer.—No, I don't think so. If the smaller newspapers eliminated the waste space they would have room for added variety that would make their publication better newspapers. Every time I pick up one of these little newspapers my hat is off to the man making it, but I am filled with a feeling of regret that he does not cut out the waste and give his subscribers just so much more value.

If in the case of a six-page newspaper, two columns of space now wasted could be saved and the two columns used for a daily comic, a good special article or some regular general interest department, I believe that the trifling extra cost would be more than justified by results.

* * * *

Question.—I am up against unfair competition. Every time a new advertiser appears in the columns of my newspaper my competitor calls upon him and advises him that he is wasting his money and that his newspaper is the only one that covers the field. Even the merchants are disgusted with his abuse. What is my best defense?

Answer.—Give him all the rope he needs to hang himself. There are a number of such men in the newspaper business and they constitute a powerful destructive influence in the development of newspaper advertising.

I should frankly go over the situation with all my customers, tell them frankly regarding the whole situation, explain to them my own strength and weakness and get the business on the views of the case. I should tell them that my competitor was inclined to "knock" and ask them that in case he did so to discontinue his publications.

I have seen many a so-called "star solicitor" of that type shoot his bolt and drop out of sight. In New York City we have had many such aspirants for fame, but they don't last very long.

Advertisers are human and soon get onto a man who is a pernicious knocker by steering clear of him. Every time the representative of another New York newspaper tries to knock the Globe he is boosting us for we stand on the level with those who buy our space.

President Thanks Mr. Ingham

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 7.—This afternoon President Wilson called upon Harvey Ingham, editor of the Register, and thanked him for his support of the League of Nations "in the name of the country."

ADVERTISING SECURED

Advertising for Special Issues of Daily Papers and Magazines. Souvenir Programs of big events. Publicity campaigns conducted. If you have a legitimate reason for producing something special I have the men and means to do it.

J. L. Le BERTHON

2 RECTOR STREET NEW YORK CITY

Prof. Ronchi Made Editor of Italian Daily

La Voce del Popolo, of San Francisco, Will Work for Americanization of Italians

San Francisco, Sept. 5.—Ottorini Ronchi, for the past two years professor of Italian at the University of California, has assumed the managing editorship of La Voce del Popolo.

Mr. Ronchi is one of the best known figures in San Francisco's art and literary life, and has had experience as a journalist in Milan, Bologna, New York and San Francisco. His first work in San Francisco was as assistant to Ettore Patrizi, editor of L'Italia.

La Voce del Popolo was established in San Francisco sixty years ago and has had some famous editors, among them Felice Ferrero, brother of the historian, and Dr. Arturo Sporzio, who became a captain in the Italian army and was killed in the war. Mr. Ronchi has contributed frequent cartoons to the Bulletin. He announces that the policy of La Voce del Popolo will be independent and devoted to the Americanization of Italians in the United States.

Rome (Ga.) News Starts Sept. 17

(By Telegraph)

Rome, Ga., Sept. 8.—The first appearance of the News, the afternoon and Sunday morning paper being organized by T. E. Edwards, formerly business manager of the Anniston (Ala.) Star, will appear about September 17, according to a statement made to Editor and Publisher today by Mr. Edwards, general manager.

Hudnut Succeeds Miller

Youngstown, O., Sept. 8.—H. B. Hudnut has been appointed assistant advertising manager of the General Fireproofing Company, succeeding D. B. Miller, who has gone with the Cleveland Cadillac Company, Cleveland, as advertising manager.

HILDA M. RICHARDS

Former Chief of the Women's Division, U. S. Employment Service.

is writing a series of practical, helpful articles for the business woman, entitled

"WOMAN AND HER JOB"

This feature has been appearing for more than six months in twenty important papers.

Service three times a week. About 500 words each.

Released by

Thompson Feature Service

No. 443 Fourth Ave., NEW YORK

To Advertisers in the Tacoma Ledger and News-Tribune

Friday afternoon, September 5, the members of the Tacoma Typographical Union No. 170 struck suddenly without the sanction of their International officers and despite the fact that they were already receiving the highest newspaper scale in the country.

In consequence of this strike the Tacoma Ledger and the News-Tribune have not been issued pending compliance by the men with orders of their International officers. Offers of arbitration under the course laid down by the International Typographical Union were refused by the printers who first presented a scale calling for $9.25 and $10.00 for a working day of six and a half hours for day and evening workers respectively, besides working conditions which would impose onerous conditions on the office.

The publishers pointed out that the present Tacoma scale of $7.00 and $7.50 for seven hours for day and night work respectively was already the highest newspaper scale paid in the United States per ratio of working hours. The stereotypers and pressmen later joined the printers in sympathy, although they had no grievance. The men were ordered back to work by their International officials but defied the order.

Conditions which obtained before the presentation of the new demand make the attitude of the men more reprehensible.

On January 1, 1919, the old Typographical scale of $5.00 and $5.50 for seven hours day and night work respectively, expired and a new scale was negotiated by which the men were given an increase of 40 per cent. The new scale of $7.00 and $7.50 was the highest in the United States and 60 per cent higher than the average of all cities of Tacoma's class in the country. The scale has been in effect eight months. The new demands for an increase of 30 per cent would make a total of 70 per cent increase demanded since the 1st of January, 1919.

TRIBUNE PUBLISHING CO.

THE TACOMA LEDGER THE TACOMA NEWS-TRIBUNE

FRANK S. BAKER, President and Publisher.
CHARLES B. WELCH, Editor and General Manager.

AD CLUB SECRETARIES ANNOUNCE PROGRAM

Conference Will Have Sessions on Monday and Tuesday Afternoons of Associated Advertising Clubs' Convention Week in New Orleans

Following is the program for the Conference of Advertising Club Secretaries, to be held in connection with the New Orleans Convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, September 21 to 25. The club secretaries will hold two sessions, Monday and Tuesday afternoons.

Chairman, C. M. C. Raymond, Los Angeles, president of the Conference of Club Secretaries, Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

Monday Afternoon, Sept. 22

2 P. M.—Each secretary or club representative to briefly state comparative facts of general informative value concerning his particular club, and in a five-minute speech tell the most notable thing accomplished by his club during the year.

3 P. M.—"Standardizing Office Records," a fifteen-minute address by Norman M. Parrott, secretary-treasurer, Advertising Club of Baltimore.

General discussion.

3.30 P. M.—"Maintaining Interest in Your Club," a fifteen-minute address by George A. Cummings, secretary-treasurer, Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs Association.

General discussion.

4 P. M.—"Limiting Your Membership," a fifteen-minute address by Lincoln G. Dickey, secretary-manager, Cleveland Advertising Club.

General discussion.

Tuesday, Sept. 23

2 P. M.—"Assisting the Small Town Club," a fifteen-minute address by H. William Nelle, manager, San Francisco Advertising Club.

General discussion.

2.30 P. M.—"How to Develop the Real Advertising Club Spirit Among Members," a twenty-minute address by Frank LeRoy Blanchard, secretary, Advertising Club of New York.

General discussion.

3 P. M.—"The Secret of Successfully Collecting Club Dues," a fifteen-minute address by C. M. C. Raymond, executive secretary, Advertising Club of Los Angeles.

General discussion.

4 P. M.—Plans for the coming year and election of new officers.

Adjournment.

McTigue Rejoins Old Friend

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The resignation of Charles H. McTigue as managing editor of the Argus, has been accepted by the owners. Mr. McTigue plans to go to the Syracuse Herald as city editor. Mr. McTigue was city editor of the Knickerbocker Press until a year ago, when he went to the Argus. He lived originally in Buffalo. In going to Syracuse, he rejoins Frank W. Clark, who, as managing editor of the Albany Knickerbocker Press, named McTigue city editor

Reorganization in Vincennes

VINCENNES, Ind., Sept. 8.—Perry D. Green has resigned as secretary-director and editor of the Capital after fifteen years' service because of ill-health. The new officers of the Capital are George W. Stout, formerly of Indianapolis, editor and business manager; Frank W. Curtis, vice-president; John J. Selby, secretary and office manager; Allie A. Arnold, associate editor and treasurer.

Interviewing the Authors of "The House of Mystery, Or the Icy Hand"—and Also Marcellus E. Foster

Photo by Curtis.

MARCELLUS E. FOSTER, president and publisher of the Houston Chronicle, has two bosses. They are Zaidee Lee, aged 13, and Madora Hale Foster, aged 11 years, and both during office hours and in his spare time he works, under their personal, joint supervision, at the life-time job of being a distinguished father.

Partly as a reward for efficiency, and partly because they like to come to New York City for a lark and schooltime is fast approaching, they brought him to the big city last week to see the sights and took him home again with them yesterday, tired but edified.

They sandwiched a call at the office of EDITOR & PUBLISHER in between "Happy Days" at the Hippodrome and a trip to Coney Island, brought their father with them, and permitted him to be photographed with them for publication.

"We must see the proofs, however, before the picture is released for EDITOR & PUBLISHER," said Zaidee Lee, in a positive manner.

(Yes, "released" is what she said.)

"We certainly must," said Madora, nodding vigorously.

"We must!" said Marcellus, thus encouraged.

All three consented to be interviewed and it developed that all three are literary—especially the two youngest members of the family. The latter are collaborating on a bit of fiction, which they may let their father syndicate, if he is willing to pay them what it is worth. Its title is "The House of Mystery, or the Icy Hand" and is full of shivers.

Obviously this was the thing to interview them about, but the interview was interrupted from time to time by questions concerning humdrum newspaper topics put to the elder Foster and his replies thereto.

"The scene of 'The House of Mystery' is laid away out in the country, where it is very lonesome. The wife of the owner of the house was a beautiful artist and she had a secret room on the top floor of the mansion, up a winding staircase," said Zaidee Lee.

"I believe so," said Mr. Foster. "Last July, news print was being offered the Houston Chronicle, freely, in quantities of two, three, or four hundred tons, at $3.75½. I was able to buy stock, in addition to that ordered under contract, from both Canadian and American mills, at $3.68. The best offers now—and they are few—are 4½ to 5 cents."

"The beautiful wife, who was an artist, died after a melancholy illness," said Madora. "Her husband mourned for her unceasingly and could not bear to think of her being put in the cold ground, so he kept the body for several years in the secret studio at the top of the winding staircase."

"That may be," said Mr. Foster. "One way in which to conserve news print is to charge enough for advertising space in newspapers. Advertisers will use their space and more advertisers can be accommodated without printing huge issues.

"We have advanced advertising rates on the Chronicle and have reserved the right to advance them again whenever it may be necessary because of increased cost of production, without giving long notice in advance as has been the prevailing custom."

"Finally, the grief of the lonesome husband became so unbearable that he determined to move away from the mansion with all its tragic memories, but the happy days passed there with his beautiful artist-wife was heart-breaking," said Madora.

"So he rented the mansion to another couple who had just been married and they went there to spend their honeymoon. Soon afterward, as the young wife was ascending the dark, winding staircase to her boudoir, she placed her hand on the balustrade of the winding staircase, and to her horror, an unmanly icy hand—"

"I am planning a new method of profit-sharing for the Houston Chronicle," said Mr. Foster. "I do not favor either the plan of basing profit sharing on earnings, or on both earnings and length of service. The plan I have in mind is to base it on length of service alone—that is, to establish a certain amount as a unit for one year's service —say $10, or $20, or whatever it might be—and pay each employe as many times that amount as he has spent years in the service of the paper. Every one in the service for a year or more would participate in the profit-sharing."

"When the beautiful bride felt the icy hand——" said Madora, "——she fainted dead away. That's as far as we've got," said Zaidee as they took the president and publisher of the Houston Chronicle out of the office of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

PUTNAM BUYS CONTROL AT OREGON'S CAPITAL

Charles H. Fisher Sells Capital-Journal to Former Owner of Medford Mail-Tribune and Will Give Whole Time to the Eugene Guard

(BY TELEGRAPH)

SALEM, Ore., Sept. 9.—George Putnam, until last April owner and publisher of the Medford Mail-Tribune, yesterday closed a deal whereby he takes over the entire control of the Salem Capital-Journal.

Charles H. Fisher, editor and publisher of the paper since February, 1914, severs his connection with the paper. Mr. Fisher, who is also owner of the Eugene Guard, will hereafter devote his entire time to that paper.

Mr. Putnam, formerly served as private secretary to E. W. Scripps, was employed on the staffs of newspapers in Los Angeles and San Francisco and has been connected with the Associated Press.

Rhodes Made Vice-Consul

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 9.—Russell H. Rhodes, a member of the Courant's city staff, has been appointed U. S. vice-consul in London. Rhodes has been with the Courant for a year, having graduated from Dartmouth College with the Class of 1918. In college he was president of the "Jack-o'-Lantern" and took part in dramatics. During the war he served with the Quartermaster Corps at Camp Meigs.

Digitized by Google

EXPECT 2,000 PRINTERS AT N. Y. MEETING

Sessions of United Typothetae of America Next Week Are of Nation-Wide Importance Because of Uncertainty of Conditions in the Industry

About 2,000 printers are expected to convene at the annual meeting of the United Typothetae of America in New York, September 15-17. The convention will end on the evening of September 17 with a banquet. The sessions are to be held at the Hotel Commodore.

The attendance is expected to be larger than usual and the importance of the meeting is greater than ordinarily because of the uncertainty in general industrial conditions and the close connection of printing with all other business.

Among the speakers who will address the members of the U. T. A. is Magnus W. Alexander, executive secretary of the National Industrial Conference Board, Boston, whose topic will be "Important Aspects of the Industrial Situation." E. H. Naylor, secretary of the Writing Paper and Cover Paper Manufacturers' Association, will speak on "The Paper Market—A Message from the Interests Subscribing to the Three-Year Plan," a project of the typothetae organization.

A feature of the convention will be a comedy skit by the Franklin Typothetae of Chicago entitled "The Sick Print Shop."

A matter of vital importance to the printing trade is a forthcoming survey in the Boston district, as a part of the three-year plan mentioned above. Edgar E. Nelson, secretary of the Boston Typothetae Board of Trade, announces that this survey probably will be made late in the fall. The objects, as officially stated, are three-fold: to show the magnitude of the industry and the important part it plays in local business activities; to show its condition as a profit-producing and money-making industry, and to show the opportunities it affords to those who use their efforts in the wisest and most practical manner.

Bank Robbery Wrecks Ad Agency

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—The Fletcher Company, a general printing and advertising concern, of this city, is in the hands of receivers as a result of the looting of the North Penn Bank. It is charged that the Fletcher firm made overdrafts at the bank totalling $275,000. The failure of the concern is the third to follow the crash of the banking institution on July 18.

B. E. Bradley's Father Dead

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 10.—Benjamin A. Bradley, 87 years old, father of B. E. Bradley, general manager of the St. Louis Star, died recently at Holden, Mo. He was the son of a revolutionary soldier. He is survived by his widow, four sons and a daughter.

The London Times now reaches Paris the same evening of publication.

MISS OHL, DAUGHTER OF N. Y. HERALD'S EDITOR, WEDS

MRS. DAVID F. WEBSTER.

MISS JOAN KINGSLEY OHL, daughter of Josiah Kingsley Ohl, editor of the New York Herald, and Mrs. Ohl, has become the bride of David Frank Webster, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Scott Webster, of San Francisco. The couple are spending their honeymoon in the Berkshires, and will leave soon for Manila, where the bridegroom's business interests will keep him for some time.

Mrs. Webster has pased much of her time with her parent in the Far East, particularly in Manila, in Japan, and at Pekin, as well as in Washington, where she had a large circle of friends in diplomatic and army and navy circles. She was enrolled on the staff of the Belgian Ambassy as honorary attaché during the war, and at the conclusion of her duties was decorated by the Belgian Ambassador on behalf of his government with the Medaille de Son Altesse le Duchesse de Vendome. Mrs. Webster also was a member of Mrs. Larz Anderson's Red Cros canteen unit in Wahington.

Veon Vacationing in Los Angeles

(By Telegraph)

LOS ANGELES, Cal. Sept. 5.—Fred C. Veon, of Detroit, is here on a six months' vacation, helping F. W. Kellogg with his Rural World farm paper, which is owned by the Evening Express. Mr. Veon, who several years ago started the morning Tribune (discontinued) for the publishers of the Express, denied to EDITOR & PUBLISHER a rumor that his present work is to be permanent and declared that he still retains all his Detroit interests.

Resume Canadian Paper Case, Sept. 17

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 9.—Paper Controller Pringle has extended the date for the resumption of the Canadian newsprint probe to September 17, when manufacturers and publishers will continue the hearing.

To Publishers of All Newspapers

Help us get a live, responsible local dealer acceptable to us, for the

MUTUAL TRUCK
America's Greatest

and help yourself to a

Handsome Advertising Contract

We are prepared to spend $3,000 in local advertising for the first ten Mutual Motor Trucks sold by each dealer.

And we will not look with favor upon the application of any dealer who is not big enough financially and personally to sell ten "Mutuals" in a year.

Nor will the advertising stop after the first ten are sold.

Write for particulars.

MUTUAL TRUCK COMPANY, Sullivan, Indiana

END RUMELY INQUIRY AT BERNE

Prof. Gaevernitz, Member of German Parliament and Formerly of General Staff, Testifies He Recommended Defendant to Dr. Dernberg—

BERNE, Sept. 10.—Assistant Attorney General Brown and Harold Harper, Assistant Attorney for the Southern District of New York, have concluded their inquiry into charges against Rumely, Kaufmann and Landheim before Consul Stewart in Berne.

The last witness examined was Professor Gerhard Gaevernitz, a member of the German Parliament and formerly of the German General Staff. Gaevernitz admitted that Rumely wrote him about financial aid for the New York Evening Mail. Gaevernitz wrote to Hermann Sielcken, a wealthy American citizen, originally German, for financial aid, but Sielcken gave no definite answer, merely saying that he would think it over.

Cross-examination by Mr. Harper elicited the fact that before applying to Sielcken, Gaevernitz conferred with a German Foreign Office official about the possibility of the German Government buying the Evening Mail. Gaevernitz admitted that he recommended Rumely to Dr. Dernburg as a man qualified to assist him in his propaganda work in the United States. Then he entered into explanations of his alleged opposition to unrestricted submarine warfare and his having contended in and out of the Reichstag that America's entrance into the war would be fatal to Germany.

Rumely's life in Germany was described as that of an eccentric man who wore sandals, braved the weather in scanty attire and lived on nuts, herbs and uncooked foods.

Examination of the witness revealed the fact that many German agents, employed in America, received large amounts of German Government money, but instead of using this for propaganda they engaged in stock exchange speculation and thus the German Government was defrauded of millions.

Mr. Brown and Harper later left for Germany to investigate cases connected with the Alien Enemy Property Custodian's Department.

Latest Opportunity Book Deals with Journalism

Fourth Volume in Harper's Series Is by Dean Lee, and Deals with Phases of Newspaper Making

The fourth in a series of "Opportunity Books" being issued by Harper & Brothers, just published, deals with newspaper making. "Opportunities in the Newspaper Business" is the work of Dean James Melvin Lee of the School of Journalism at New York University. The country weekly, small city daily and metropolitan daily are each treated in detail in the order named.

The book with no doubt be read with a great deal of interest by newspaper workers, especially those climbing in the profession. It is filled with helpful suggestions on all branches of newspaper making and is put together in a manner that is sure to hold attention.

Horace Greeley is quoted at length on the making of a country weekly and there are several examples of strong news writing, including Lindsey Denson's story of the rescue of Bill Hoar, Julian Ralph's story of the trial of Lizzie Andrew Borden, and Gilson Gardner's story of the conviction of Charles Becker.

William C. Freeman's fifty qualifications that advertising solicitors should possess are also given.

The appendix contains a list of more than 100 books and publications dealing with every phase of newspaper work, which should prove of unusual value in every newspaper man and woman's library.

A. S. TAYLOR IS SUED

Attorney Demands $11,000 Damages for Sale of Post-Intelligencer

SEATTLE, Sept. 7.—Suit has been instituted in the Superior Court of Kings County by Wilson R. Gay, an attorney, against A. S. Taylor, formerly publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, asking for $11,000 judgment against Mr. Taylor.

Mr. Gay alleges that Taylor, who sold the "P.-I." a year ago to Clark Nettleton, sold 1,000 shares owned by the attorney in the newspaper and appropriated the money to his own use for five months. Later, alleges Gay, Taylor gave him some worthless promissory notes. The plaintiff further states that Taylor has threatened to go into bankruptcy to avoid payment of the debt.

ST. LOUIS STAFF CHANGES

Shifts on Star and Republic—Benesch in Agency Business

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 10.—Aaron Benesch, long a reporter on the Star, has entered the advertising business with the firm of Nin-Parkell Agency. Frank Sullivan, recently returned from service overseas, has left the Star to become connected with the publicity department of the Southwestern Bell and Telephone Company. Floyd Bell, a sports writer, has gone with the Sporting News.

Tom Dyer, at one time secretary to the Mayor and later Chairman of the Efficiency Board, has left the Republic to become connected with the Star. Joe Carey has succeeded him as assistant city editor of the Republic.

Sheehy Succeeds Sheppard

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 10.—After eight years' service as superintendent of the mechanical department of the Knickerbocker Press, John A. Sheppard has resigned and will take up a position in New York. Mr. Sheppard was foreman of the composing room of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle before coming to Albany in 1911. Timothy J. Sheehy will be the new superintendent. Mr. Sheehy has been a printer in Albany and Troy newspaper composing rooms for more than twenty years.

Encouraging Readers to Write Ads

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 8.—The Star-Gazette is conducting an ad-writing campaign open to all readers of the newspaper. All persons who can write a letter are invited to prepare ads for a certain four firms each week, and 200 weekly prizes will be given the successful contestants. Merchandise prizes are awarded weekly, and the grand prizes, to be awarded at the end of the contest, will be in the form of money.

Buy Storm Lake Register

STORM LAKE, Ia., Sept. 10.—E. L. C. White, owner and publisher of the Spencer (Ia.) News-Herald, and Roy A. Jarnagin, advertising manager of that newspaper, have bought the Storm Lake Register from John Bell. Mr. Jarnagin will move from Spencer to Storm Lake and be manager of the Register.

AD CLUB HEAD SPECIALIZES IN HUMAN NATURE

CHARLES W. MEARS

HUMAN nature is the supreme possession of everyone of us, but at the same time it is the most persistently misunderstood of all subjects, according to Charles W. Mears, who in ordinary times devotes his time between the management of Winston Motor Car Company's advertising and making the Cleveland Ad Club an active and much alive organization. Right now he is giving the major part of his attention to the coming convention of advertising men at New Orleans.

Human nature is a hobby with Mr. Mears and recently he spoke for nearly half an hour on the subject at a gathering of the Ohio Piano Merchants' Association. He is so thoroughly imbued with human nature that he has been heard to use such expressions as "Nature permits no man forever," "Men may think what they like, nature still impels them to ends of her own selection," "Living becomes a beautiful dream—simply a product of natural, base human feeling."

Mr. Mears has also expressed the belief that "great men are great because they are sensitive. The man who is not sensitive is already dead and is not aware of the fact."

Now and then intimating that advertising was found in a stepping stone on every highway to success, Mr. Mears, during his address to the Ohio piano men, said:

"I do not happen to know whether during the war-time pianos were classed as non-essential. But I do know this, that music makes its appeal to human feelings and as such is tremendously fundamental. A world without music would be a world not fit for human habitation. In the sale of your goods you are promoting human happiness, which, after all, is about as important a piece of work as any mortal is privileged to undertake. And you will be delinquent in your duty if you rest from your labors until every household in your territory has its piano or some other musical instrument, the use of which will insure a happiness that the musie-less home can never know."

Coal Ad Impresses Des Moines

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 9.—The Sunday Capital recently printed a special four-page section devoted to advertising by coal dealers, emphasizing the advantage of ordering the winter's coal supply early.

MEN WANTED
by Southern Newspapers

Opportunities are open on southern daily newspapers for competent newspaper men who desire to come south. Men are wanted for positions in all departments.

Address W. C. Johnson, Sec'y, Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association, Chattanooga, Tenn.

N. Y. Police Reporters Deny Mayor's Aspersions

Ask Him to Name Men He Accused of Being on Payrall of "Gamblers and Vicious Interests"

Reporters for New York City newspapers who are regularly assigned to Police Headquarters have sent a letter to Mayor John F. Hylan asking that he make known by name those of their number he referred to anonymously in an address to patrolmen as "being on the payroll of gamblers and the vicious interests during the previous city administrations." They deny there is any basis for his accusation. He has not replied.

The Mayor was right, the newspaper men say, in another assertion that every effort had been made by his administration in preventing them from getting police news. During former administrations, they pointed out, police commissioners had held daily conferences with reporters, and often obtained valuable information from the latter.

Now the daily conferences have been abolished, and information concerning burglaries and other crimes are concealed from them, they say.

Thomas Young Visiting U. S. A.

Another British newspaper man to visit America on business is Thomas Young, a director and advertisement manager of the publishing house of Cassell & Co., Ltd., London. It is understood Mr. Young will confer with a large number of American publishers, advertising and business men, and will inspect the most up-to-date newspaper plants and the quite similar to discuss advertising with those anxious to open up the British market. Messrs. Cassell & Co., Ltd., are publishers of a big bunch of weekly periodicals and magazines and in addition have one of the finest syndicate and stereo newspaper feature series in the United Kingdom. Mr. Young is a popular figure in British publishing circles and knows advertising and newspaper conditions as few men do.

Maurice Schwartz, who was formerly with the Houston Chronicle, has returned home from six months' service overseas duty.

"Sure of Results"

is the way advertisers express their opinion of the selling power of the

Chester Times & The Morning Republican

An influence which sways the desires and directs by education the purchases of 150,000 consumers. Let our Service Department help you put your product over in Chester, Pa., and Delaware County.

Foreign Representative,

FRANK R. NORTHROP

303 5th Ave., New York City
Association Bldg., Chicago

REDUCES CABLE TOLLS TO THE ORIENT

Cut of 20 Per Cent on Press Messages Announced by Postal Telegraph-Cable Company—29 Cents to China and Japan

SEATTLE, Sept. 10.—The Postal Telegraph-Cable Company announces a new press rate to all points on the Pacific that includes a flat reduction of 20 per cent on all press and urgent press messages.

The new rates from San Francisco to Manila on straight press messages will now be twenty-seven cents a word and a rate of twenty-nine cents to Hongkong and all points in China and Japan.

Prominent Trade Men Aid Red Cross Roll Call

Publicity Campaign to Be Conducted Under Direction of Well Known Publicity Authorities

The Red Cross has fired the opening gun of the publicity campaign for the Third Roll Call. It is announced that this publicity campaign will cover the entire country and will utilize every known medium for reaching the public. The Roll Call will open November 2 and will continue active operation until November 11, the anniversary of the signing of the armistice.

The purpose will be to enroll approximately 20,000,000 members for the Red Cross and also to obtain $20,000,000 dollars to complete their war activities both home and abroad.

The publicity campaign will be sponsored by Frederick C. Munroe, general manager of the Red Cross, with C. S. Clark as executive secretary in charge of the details. Mr. Clark will be assisted by Ben B. Hoover, formerly of the publicity department of the United States Public Health Service, and William J. Benjamin, from the War Savings Department of the United States Treasury.

General publicity will be in charge of M. G. Scheitlin, acting director of the Department of Publicity. Mr. Scheitlin and his assistants will furnish newspaper copy and supply general information and ideas on newspaper publicity to all divisions. Daily and weekly newspaper copy will be furnished by divisional publicity directors and chapter officers.

W. D. Orcutt, of Boston, will be in charge of the bureau of magazines.

Mrs. O. D. Foster has charge of all publicity in technical trade and class publications, assisted by Robert R. Ramsey, editor of Advertising and Selling and president of the House Organ Association.

W. A. Biby, treasurer of the Knights and Ladies of Security and chairman of the Red Cross Committee of the National Fraternal Congress of America, will direct the campaign in fraternal papers. This bureau will not only cover all the technical and trade journals but also includes farm journals, juvenile publications, religious, collegiate and educational papers.

Harry Le Bair, of the Sherman & Bryan Company, New York, is supervising the preparation of advertising copy for magazines and general copy for newspaper display advertisements to be sent to the division headquarters as suggestions for their use. He is assisted by several writers of national advertising copy. Ralph Foote, of the Seaman Company, Inc., is supervising the art work in the preparation of copy. Fred C. Wertz is general adviser on display and outdoor publicity.

Publicity is being directed toward bringing out the value of the peacetime program of the Red Cross.

HAS SPENT 54 YEARS ON PITTSBURGH DISPATCH

AMOS BARBIN, oldest employe of the Pittsburgh Dispatch, who has never lost his "cub-like" eagerness, recently celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary.

Despite his age, Mr. Barbin continues to get daily pleasure out of his work. He first entered the employ of the Dispatch in 1854 as a route carrier in the District. In 1860 he took charge of the mailing room and one year and a half later resigned to go to war as a member of Company A, Second West Virginia Volunteers, the first organization sworn in under President Lincoln's three-year plan.

AMOS BARBIN

After the close of the Civil War Mr. Barbin did not immediately return to the employ of the Dispatch, but in 1871 he rejoined the organization and has been with it continuously since. In all he has been on the job 54 years and has kept smiling practically all the time. At present he is storekeeper and among all members of the staff is one of the best liked men on the paper.

SHAKE-UP IN PORTLAND, ORE.

Important Changes Occur in Organization of The Telegram

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 9.—A sudden shakeup in the Telegram staff includes the resignations of R. D. Cannon and William Raymond, assistant to the publisher and news editor, respectively.

W. T. Stott, who came to Portland from the Chicago Tribune a few months ago, remains as managing editor. H. C. Campbell, who went to the Telegram from the Oregonian a few weeks ago, is the new news editor and Harry C. Fry becomes head of the copy desk. Don H. Thompson of the repertorial staff has left for St. Louis, where he will joint the Star.

Horace Traubel Dead

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 9.—Word of the death of Horace Traubel, poet, editor and Walt Whitman's biographer, of Camden, N. J., was received here today from Bon Echo, Ontario, a literary colony. Mr. Traubel was 60 years of age and was regarded with John Burroughs as the best living authority on Walt Whitman. He was the author of several books of verse and was editor of The Conservator of Philadelphia.

Erie Times Has 29,826 Circulation

In the "A. B. C." feature published in last week's issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER, the Erie (Pa.) Times should have been credited with a net paid A. B. C. circulation of 29,826. A typographical error made it appear as 20,826—one wrong figure, but a very material difference of 9,000 circulation.

Aaron Benesch, for ten years with the St. Louis Star, has resigned to become associated with an advertising concern.

35,910 Square Miles 2,854,167 People

Prosperous People—Well Educated

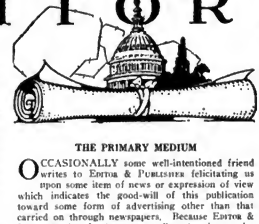
In the Heart of the United States with the heart to fairly judge manufactured products, and to a marked degree, the typical American spirit and spending capacity to acquire them



Exceptional Transit Facilities for Distribution of Goods and Excellent Retail Outlets for Their Sale.

The following daily newspapers intensively cover merchandising areas with a potential local sales strength represented in their circulations which is not nearly equalled by any other advertising media.

		Circulation	5,000-line rate
Elkhart Truth	(E)	8,300	.025
Evansville Courier	(M)	*23,893	.04
Evansville Courier	(S)	*20,987	.04
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette	(M)	29,236	.05
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette	(S)	24,350	.05
Indianapolis News	(E)	123,473	.16
Indianapolis Star	(M)	92,851	.11
Indianapolis Star	(S)	106,381	.14
Kokomo Dispatch	(M)	5,400	.0171
Lafayette Courier	(E)	*8,994	.02
Lafayette Journal	(M)	10,415	.02143
La Porte Herald	(E)	3,376	.0179
Richmond Item	(M)	8,225	.025
Logansport Pharos-Reporter	(E)	6,621	.015
Muncie Press	(E)	9,646	.01786
Munrie Star	(M)	26,858	.05
Munrie Star	(S)	16,818	.05
Richmond Item	(M)	8,225	.02
Richmond Palladium	(E)	11,096	.03
South Bend Tribune	(E)	*17,436	.035
Terre Haute Star	(M)	26,945	.04
Terre Haute Star	(S)	19,422	.04
Terre Haute Tribune	(E)	24,845	.04
Terre Haute Tribune	(S)	19,192	.04
Vincennes Capital	(E)	1,049	.01071
Total Daily Circulation and Rate		444,261	.71396
Total Sunday Circulation and Rate		297,150	.36
Total Daily and Sunday		651,511

* A. B. C. Report, April 1st, 1919
Government Statement April 1, 1919.

EDITORIAL

TREND TOWARD ORGANIZATION

IN many cities there are under way efforts to organize news writers for the purpose of affiliating with the Federation of Labor. For many years such a movement has been discussed in general terms by newspapermen, but the majority opinion has been against it. It has always been contended that editors and reporters are in a class by themselves, engaged in work where individual initiative and ability must measure the possible wage; that, to attempt to standardize the earnings and working hours would be to put a premium upon average, rather than exceptional effort and achievement. It has been the accepted view that individualism in this field is the one factor making for constant progress.

It may be said that this view still holds with most newspapermen. But new economic and industrial conditions have developed. In a period of mounting costs of living the news writers and editors have noted that the men in the mechanical departments have had substantial wage increases while, in many instances, their own earnings have not kept pace with changing conditions. It happens that in a great many newspaper establishments the present wages of printers and pressmen are higher than those of editorial men and news writers. In explanation of this situation it is always pointed out to the newspapermen that unionism takes care of these questions and that individualism does not.

So it has happened that the idea of affiliations with organized labor, which once seemed to be fantastic, now appears to many to offer the solution to the question of how to earn a comfortable living in a time when the dollar has lost half of its buying power. Thus we see in various cities efforts among the news writers to organize.

At the convention of the Southern publishers at Asheville this matter of proper pay for men "upstairs" was freely discussed, and prevailing wage scales were admitted to be inadequate. It would, indeed, be hard to find a publisher who does not admit that a capable reporter should receive at least as high a wage as a capable mechanic. The salary increases for editorial and news men have already been granted by many publishers. This course is being followed as a policy of fairness to the men and also as a policy of good management for the newspapers. Dissatisfied or underpaid men on the news staff mean deterioration in the daily product, which menaces the whole investment.

We have long since outlived the day when there was any serious opposition to the principle of unionism. Criticism nowadays is confined to specific demands or particular attitudes of the unions, and to labor leaders who may momentarily disregard the greater public interests involved in pending issues and seek to arbitrarily impose upon communities the will of minorities. Not many publishers would now think of reverting to the non-union shop. Generally speaking it is admitted that organized labor is an asset of great value in the publication of a newspaper. Whether this would be true as to the editorial end, or would tend toward the elimination of individual initiative, is a matter, however, upon which opinion is still sharply divided.

HON. C. F. HIGHAM, who so successfully applied Government advertising to the solution of some of Great Britain's most difficult war problems, is now a member of Parliament. In his first address to that body he commended advertising as the means for solving the unemployment question. It was the first argument of the kind ever heard in that house, and made a deep impression. Will Official Washington please take notice?

"THE corporation press agent and his press matter offer a problem that can only be solved by the waste basket," says the Joplin News-Herald. Happily, therefore, the solution is usually found within easy reach of the editor who accepts this view. The waste basket, indeed, has come into its own in these latter days. It is the Great Preventer. It is the beneficent "slip 'twixt the cup and the lip," whose very proximity to the editorial desk is a reminder that all is not grist that comes to the mill

THE PRIMARY MEDIUM

OCCASIONALLY some well-intentioned friend writes to EDITOR & PUBLISHER extolling or upon some item of news or expression of view which indicates the good-will of this publication toward some form of advertising other than that carried on through newspapers. Because EDITOR & PUBLISHER has for long years adhered to its conviction that the newspaper is the great primary medium for advertising—that all other media and forms of appeal are supplementary or subsidiary—many men engaged in these "side-lines" have assumed our hostility to them. This assumption has no basis in fact.

We have no quarrel with any form of legitimate advertising—magazine, periodical, class journal, painted signs, posters, car cards or direct-by-mail If these various forms of appeal failed to give results they would cease to attract advertisers. Our quarrel —if our attitude could be so harshly defined—is with the man who tries to persuade an advertiser that any or all of these media or forms of advertising may supplant newspaper advertising.

Only newspaper advertising affords to a manufacturer a sure and economical local appeal, involving no waste, no random effort. This fact has been incontestably shown in the tabulations of newspapers, circulations and rates which have been appearing in EDITOR & PUBLISHER. To do not believe that the public interest is served by advertising waste—such as is involved in using mediums of general circulation for the purpose of creating sales in particular zones of distribution. The economic status of advertising must rest upon its usefulness in lowering selling costs—and this is apart from its purely ethical value. Advertising cannot produce results profitable to the advertiser unless it is linked up with his distribution.

Even in the cases where distribution is national the policy of concentrating advertising in the newspapers is still best—for only in this way may the local dealer be fully identified with the sale of the product. If EDITOR & PUBLISHER may be accused of frequent insistence upon these fundamental facts, the plea must be justification—for there are a great many very fine and agreeable men in the advertising business who would be glad to have them forgotten.

THE Vanderbilts are to be congratulated on the fact that Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., son of the most distinguished member of that family, has become a newspaper man. All Americans are proud of the fighting patriotism of General Vanderbilt, and all men in the newspaper profession will hope that the young man already exhibiting something of his father's virile independence of family traditions—may win to the top in his chosen work. EDITOR & PUBLISHER is proud to have been the first newspaper to print an interview with him, considering that this was accomplished in the face of strong rivalry on the part of the New York dailies.

September 11, 1919. Volume 52, No. 15.
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
Published weekly by
THE EDITOR & PUBLISHER CO.
1117 World Building, 63 Park Row, New York.
W. D. Showalter, editor. Guy Richmond, managing editor, Don F. Miller, News; Ben Mellon, Features.
James Wright Brown, publisher.
J. W. Ferguson, advertising; Fenton Dowling, circulation.
London: H. C. Bidout.
Paris: F. B. Grandy.
Toronto: W. A. Craick.
Chicago: D. F. Cruse.
San Francisco: R. J. Bidwell.
Boston: A. Steffek.
Washington: Robert T. Barry.
10 cents a copy; $3 a year; foreign postage, $1.00; Canadian, 50c.

AN INTERESTING CONTROVERSY

IN urging editors to economize space—for the sake of more vital matter—on the treatment of baseball, EDITOR & PUBLISHER did not anticipate that this counsel would find general acceptance. The opinions printed have shown a sharp conflict of opinion upon the subject.

In some instances editors are swayed by the convictions of their circulation managers, who seem to be united in the view that baseball is a sure-fire circulation factor. To a varying degree, of course, this must be conceded. The value of that circulation to advertisers—particularly of that secured through baseball extras—is debatable.

Marcellus E. Foster, editor of the Houston Chronicle, is of the opinion that newspapers generally give entirely too much space to this topic, suggesting so small an allotment as half a column a day. He sees the unsoundness of the policy of permitting an enterprise organized for private profit to grow up at the expense of the newspapers, ignoring the advertising columns.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER does not deny the news interest of baseball, nor of the movies or other amusements. It should be apparent, however, that these topics have been greatly overplayed in a period when the conservation of newsprint is of first importance in newspaper management. Indeed, a false standard has long prevailed in the editorial valuation of these things. To contend that, because a news topic is of wide interest it should be played to the point of overexposure, damning the space available for things of equal or greater importance, is not to display balaneed editorial judgment.

This new era in the world's life has brought to the fore new considerations in the treatment of news and feature matter. The old order is passing. It is hardly fair to assume that there is greater interest in two columns of gossip and piffle about ball players than in an address by the President. If that were true most Americans would feel heartily ashamed of it. Yet there are newspapers which, in the matter of space, give baseball gossip and news at least an equal break with the reports of the President's historic message

PERSONALS

COL. C. B. BLETHEN, editor and publisher of the Seattle Times, has been elected director of the National Rifle Association for three years, beginning next January. Colonel Blethen served as artillery liason officer during the war. He was formerly prominent in National Guard activities in the state of Washington.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOM

Paul J. Hughes, wire editor in the Chicago office of the United Press, has been transferred to the New York office. J. L. O'Sullivan, manager of the Indianapolis Bureau, has been transferred to the Chicago office.

Frederick A. Shepherd, who recently returned from service of more than two years as a Y. M. C. A. secretary in France, has resumed his duties as city editor of the Waterville (Me.) Sentinel.

Harold Putnam, news editor of the Portland (Me.) Express-Advertiser, is visiting the various attractions in the vicinity of Portland as part of his vacation.

Fred K. Owen associate editor of the Portland (Me.) Daily Press, recently returned from a vacation at his old home at Milo, Me., during which he enjoyed an automobile tour to Quebec.

Raymond A. Eaton, familiarly known as "Colonel" and for more than twenty years identified with Denver newspapers, has resigned from the Denver Times to become assistant industrial agent of the city and county of Denver.

Peter McKissock, of the Winnipeg Telegram editorial staff, has been called to London, England, by the publishers of his book, "Fourteen Years in Canada." Mr. McKissock, whose pen name is "Sergt. Rafferty," will sail about the middle of September.

A. W. Mitchell, of the staff of the Houston (Tex.) Chronicle, has been remaining over from the National Editorial Association convention, and visiting the Hood River district and other parts of the Northwest to get story material.

Fred M. White, marine reporter for the Portland Oregonian, and Miss Mary C. Inman of the same city were married on August 29. They kept it a secret for several days before Mr. White announced it to his office associates.

Edward P. Doran, director of the telegraph and news department of the Dallas Morning News and Evening Journal, spent last week in Bangor, Desdemona and Eastland oil districts.

Lieut. Joseph Well, publicity officer at Ellington Field, has been discharged and left for New York this week, where he will become aviation editor for a New York paper.

Charles Edwin Gilbert of the New Orleans Daily States was married to Miss Martha Virginia Weyman of Yoakum, Tex., August 25.

Floyd L. Bell, until recently baseball writer for the St. Louis Star, has become managing editor of the Sporting Goods Dealer, St. Louis. Mr. Bell also will be contributing editor to the Sporting News. From 1915 to 1917, Mr. Bell was sports editor of the St. Joseph (Mo.) News-Press, and prior to that was for five years with the Minneapolis Tribune.

Capt. William J. Tucker, formerly editor of the Brenham (Tex.) Evening Press, has been discharged from service (member of the Rainbow Division) and is visiting old friends in Brenham and Taylor.

Marquis James, who is editing the American Legion Weekly in New York, where he has been employed as rewrite man on the Tribune, hails from Enid, Okla.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

William H. Morrow, business manager of the Philadelphia Record, was a recent visitor at the newspaper office in Portland, while passing his vacation in Maine. He made the trip from Philadelphia by automobile.

P. Benson Oakley has been made advertising manager of the Geneva (N. Y.) Daily Times. He was formerly advertising manager of the Norwich (N. Y.) Sun-Telegraph. After over a year of army service in France he was only recently discharged.

J. Milton Ball, recently on the advertising staff of the Portsmouth (Va.) Star, has entered the life insurance field.

James Bennett and A. Levisch, of the display advertising department of the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press, are absent on vacation.

Leland M. Wooters, of the Des Moines Register and Tribune copy service department, and his bride, who was Miss Miss Hope Harris, are spending their honeymoon in Chicago.

Morris E. Jacobs has quit editorial work to become classified advertising manager of the Omaha Daily News, succeeding S. S. Conklin, who recently became business manager.

WITH THE AD FOLKS

Bernice S. Blackwood's appointment as manager of the credit and accounting department of Johnson, Read & Co., Chicago, is another evidence of the ever-widening scope of women's activities in the advertising field. Mrs. Blackwood formerly held a responsible position with the Chicago Tribune and has been connected with the advertising departments of several daily newspapers in Iowa. Her most recent work has been as assistant credit manager of the General Cigar Company's Chicago office.

MRS. B. S. BLACKWOOD

Robert E. Thom has become associated with the Walter H. Zimmer Agency, Detroit. He was until recently a member of the Martin V. Kelley Company's organization, New York.

Maxwell Droke, late with the Palmolive Company, is establishing an advertising service of his own in Milwaukee.

G. G. Holmes has been appointed to the advertising and publicity department staff of the Thomas Edison Company, Orange, N. J.

J. Watts, late with the Green, Fulton & Cunningham Company, Detroit, has become associated with the Meinzinger Studios.

H. B. Snyder, late space buyer for Williams & Cunnyngham, Chicago, is now with the Gundlach Agency, that city.

William S. Archibald, late with Vogue and the Hearst newspapers, has become associated with the E. T. Howard Agency, New York.

Wallace B. Blood has changed from the Green-Fulton & Cunningham Company to the Brotherton-Noble Agency, Detroit.

Paul H. Bolton, until recently with Rand, McNally & Co., Chicago, is a new addition to the copy staff of the Frailey Advertising Agency, Youngstown, Ohio.

APPOINTED AD MANAGER OF MORSE DRY DOCK

Bert E. Barnes, formerly an editor on the New York Sun, Detroit Journal, Philadelphia Record and other papers, has been made advertising manager of the Morse Dry Dock & Repair Company, South Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Barnes joined the Morse Company a year and a half ago, to edit a plant paper and he produced the Morse Dry Dock Dial, in January, 1918.

BERT E. BARNES.

All of the company's advertising and publicity are now turned over to Mr. Barnes, who is assisted by C. Stewart Wark and Wesley T. Jones, assistant editor and reporter, respectively, of the Dial; Charles W. Bailey and Rolfe Stier as company photographers; Phil A. Hartwell as head of the printing department; and W. B. Prince, formerly of Boston, as an art director and advertising assistant.

The "Morse Dry Dock Dial" is a de luxe publication of twenty-four pages, 9 by 10 inches with two-color covers and profusely illustrated. The employees elect their own association officers once a year and a daily paper is issued during the campaign period, handled by the Dial staff.

Mr. Barnes has built up an organization, which compares with the editorial staff of any small sized paper. In his department he has every facility for handling publicity, art work, printing and advertising matter.

George C. Van de Carr has joined the Vreeland Advertising Press organization, New York. Before entering military service he was on the Wanamaker Store advertising staff in New York.

Thomas F. L. Henderson has been appointed assistant to the managing director of the Agricultural Publishers' Association, Chicago. He was for more than eight years an active personality in the work of the Sheldon School of Salesmanship, serving in the capacities of assistant to the president, sales manager, field organizer and treasurer.

D. B. Miller has been placed in charge of advertising and sales promotion of the Cleveland Cadillac Company, Cleveland, Ohio. His department is a new one in the organization, but already has made itself felt in many ways. Mr. Miller is also identified with other T. H. Towell interests, including T. H. Towell, distributor of Dodge Brothers Motor Cars, and the Eclipse Musical Company, distributor of Victor Talking Machines. He is publishing a monthly house organ for each of these interests.

Paul Sutcliffe, advertising manager of the Edison Storage Battery Company, Orange, N. J., has been appointed manager of the Industrial truck and tractor department of the same company. Mr. Sutcliffe has been connected with the Edison Storage Battery Company for over five years.

E. H. Scott, a Winnipeg and Vancouver newspaperman, has joined the advertising department staff of the T. Eaton Company at Winnipeg.

William L. Roberts, formerly of the Red Cross Magazine, and Louis H. Frohman, who conducted an agency, received a hearty welcome this week when they made their appearance at the New York Advertising Club on returning from overseas war service.

Bertha L. Darling, advertising manager of Plant & Kent, and president of the Buffalo League of Advertising Women, has resigned to take a position with Morris & Co., Baltimore. Mrs. Darling went to Buffalo from New York in September, 1912.

Charles J. Baker, of the copy staff of Erwin & Wasey, Chicago, sails for England September 23 to join the branch office recently established by Erwin & Wasey in London. He will remain abroad indefinitely. Mr. Baker is a son of P. C. Baker, for many years general manager and managing editor of the Detroit News.

C. E. Bogardus has been appointed to the sales department management of the Brandt Advertising Company, Chicago. Mr. Bogardus for many years was connected with the national sales department of the Street Railways advertising company, the Curtis Publishing Company and the Critchfield Company.

The Grand Rapids Press and the Dubuque Telegraph-Herald have each signed a contract for the Haskin Service for one year.

Digitized by Google

POSTPONES NEWS PRINT INVESTIGATION

Senator LaFollette Announces Appointment of Four Other Members of Sub-Committe Which Will Hear Testimony Several Weeks Hence

By Telegraph

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Investigation of the news print situation by a subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Manufactures, which was provided for in a resolution introduced recently by Senator Reed, of Missouri, will not begin for several weeks, Senator LaFollette, chairman of the sub-committee, announced today.

"As soon as a meeting of the subcommittee can be held, a plan for conducting the investigation will be decided on and announced," he said. "In the meantime, the data which has been obtained as a result of previous investigations will be supplied to members of the committee."

The other members of the committee appointed by Senator LaFollette, are McNary of Oregon and Gronna of North Dakota, Republicans, and Reed of Missouri and Walsh of Massachusetts, Democrats.

No decision has been reached as to the witnesses to be called.

Proposes That Newspapers Interchange Advertising

Plan of G. M. Burbach Contemplates Use of Paid Space Between at Least Five Cities

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 10.—A plan for the interchange of advertising has been developed by George M. Burbach, advertising manager of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. It contemplates the use of page space by the Post-Dispatch, Philadelphia Bulletin, Chicago Daily News, Detroit News and Washington Star to advertise the fact that "In each great American city, there is one great afternoon newspaper—one newspaper that stands conspicuously in the foreground as the recognized leader—in circulation —in advertising and prestige. A newspaper dominating the entire territory it serves."

Reproductions are given of the first pages of the publication, with emphasis on the publication printing the advertisement.

PACIFIC AGENCIES JOIN INTERESTS

Izzard, Horsley and Hall & Emory Affiliated and Open Chicago Office

SEATTLE, Sept. 10.—The Izzard Company and the Will H. Horsley Company, of this city, have consolidated and formed an affiliation with the Hall & Emory Agency of Portland. They will establish an office at Chicago in charge of J. A. Grief. Negotiations are also under way for expansion into the California field.

Publicity Man Arrested

David M. Harvey, publicity agent of the George Washington Memorial Association, which was to have held a victory celebration Tuesday night at Carnegie Hall, New York, to be attended by General Pershing, Mayor Hylan, and other officials, was arrested and committed to the Tombs Tuesday by Judge Rosalsky in Part I of General Sessions. The reception was cancelled Monday night. Harvey is technically charged with violating the terms of his probation. On July 31, 1909, he received a suspended sentence following a plea of guilty to larceny. After an alleged violation of his parole a bench warrant was issued for him, but he was not arrested until Monday.

MADE HIS MARK BY SELLING CLAY BRICKS

J. H. PAYNE, who is even now, mentally at least, on his way to the big convention of advertising men at New Orleans, took his first real job with the Sherwin-Williams Company, in Kansas City, as manager of the promotion department at the age of 20 years and since then —he is now 34— real jobs have been a hobby with him.

J. H. Payne

He denies above all other things that he is an advertising man, but adds, very forcibly, that he would not know how to conduct any kind of business without advertising.

Right now he is president of the Dallas Advertising League, which claims to be the fifth largest club of the kind in the world with a membership of 406, and president of the Presidents' Club of Dallas, composed of the heads of the eight important business organizations of the Texas city. He is a vice-president of the Sequin Brick & Tile Company and of the Mercantile Investment and Adjustment Company.

During the two years that Mr. Payne was manager of promotion for the Sherwin-Williams Company, at Kansas City, he won two annual trips-to-the-prizes in competition with all other members of the organization. He was with the same company for a time, on special work, at Dallas, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Chicago, in the order named, and then in 1910 he resigned to return to Dallas, having acquired an interest in the Fraser Brick Company.

In 1912 he assumed charge of sales and became secretary and treasurer of the firm. It was then that he made his real mark by becoming one of the first in the country to sell bricks by the use of newspaper advertising space.

Clarke and Calder Join Toronto Globe

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 9.—Andrew Clarke, formerly news editor of the London Morning Advertiser, has been appointed editor of the Retail Merchants' Guide and in charge of the Globe's Promotion Department. Mr. Clarke is a former Globe desk man. E. C. Calder, formerly on the advertising staff of the Montreal Star in Toronto, has joined the local soliciting staff of the Globe.

Rewarded for Saving Paper Mill

RUMFORD, Me., Sept. 5.—In appreciation of excellent work done by the fire departments of Lewiston and Portland in saving their paper mills here when 10,000 cords of pulp wood was burned recently, the Oxford Paper Company has sent checks for $400 and $600, respectively, to the firemen's relief associations of those two cities.

Iowa

The "little pigs that stay at home" are a poor investment compared with those that get to market when the price is right.

Thus Iowa's prosperity has been established, and is CONSERVED by its system of strategic ROADS that never fail to get the "pigs" to market at the right time.

By a New Road Bill, Iowa provides for the expenditure of something over $20,000,000 each year for a decade, to improve and maintain its system of over 104,000 miles. Of this, 6,278 miles is hard surface highway on which about 90% of the people live, and which connects every town and market-place of 1,000 or more inhabitants. Military strategy provided European countries with means to protect forts and battle grounds with men and material, but it never approached the ideal which has brought the farms of ninety-nine counties intercommunication, that they MAY buy and sell and keep in complete touch with the NEWS of the day.

Here CULTURE and INDUSTRY and TRADE walk hand in hand, and furnish a market for national goods that publish their claims to preference in the daily newspapers, of which the following is a select list:

		Circulation	Rate for 5,000 Lines
Boone News-Republican	(E)	3,636	.0143
Burlington Hawkeye	(M)	10,908	.03
Burlington Hawkeye	(S)	12,116	.03
Clinton Herald	(E)	7,553	.02
Council Bluffs Nonpareil	(E & S)	16,228	.035
Davenport Times	(E)	25,643	.05
Des Moines Capital	(E)	60,655	.10
*Des Moines Sunday Capital	(S)	46,668	.10
Des Moines Register and Tribune	(M & E)	111,517	.14
Des Moines Sunday Register	(S)	70,745	.12
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald	(M & E)	16,078	.04
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald	(S)	16,037	.04
Fort Dodge Messenger and Chronicle	(E)	8,762	.03
Marshalltown Times-Republican	(E)	13,781	.028571
Mason City Globe-Gazette-Times	(E)	9,602	.03
Muscatine Journal and News-Tribune	(E)	8,331	.02
Ottumwa Courier	(E)	13,606	.035
Sioux City Tribune	(E)	51,342	.08
Waterloo Evening Courier	(E)	14,484	.03

Government Statements, April 1st, 1919.
*Publisher's Statement.

BUSINESS PAPERS WAIT CHICAGO SESSIONS

Complete Program with Names of Speakers and Participants Announced from Headquarters of Association—Annual Banquet on Sept. 19

Everything is all set for a helpful and an inspiring meeting in Chicago at the Congress Hotel, September 18, 19 and 20. The sessions will be open to all interested publishers, advertisers and others, with the exception of the last half of Friday afternoon and Saturday morning.

As usual the banquet on Friday evening will offer an opportunity for a social get-together-session, for both ladies and gentlemen. Everyone at all concerned with advertising and publishing is cordially invited. E. R. Shaw, Power Plant Engineering, Chicago, is in charge of the arrangements and reservations may be sent either to him or this office. He promises a program which will surpass the notable dinner at Chicago two years ago—"nuff said."

The Program.

Central Theme, "HOW."

Thursday Morning.

September 18, 9:30 A. M.

Chairman—E. R. Shaw, President, Power Plant Engineering, Chicago, and Chairman, Chicago Committee on Arrangements.

Address of welcome by the Chairman.

Response and President's address—A. C. Pearson, President The Associated Business Papers, Inc.

Appointment of Credentials and Resolutions Committees.

10:15 A. M.—"Partners of Business"—H. G. Lloyd, President, The Textile World Journal, Boston and New York.

11:30 A. M.—"How to Make Better Partners of Business"—H. M. Swetland, President, The United Publishers' Corporation, New York.

11:35 A. M.—"An Appreciation by Business"—Charles Piez, President, Link-Belt Co., Chicago.

12:00—"The Significance of the 'Plumb' Movement in Labor Circles and Its Possible Effect upon Business and Business Papers"—Samuel O. Dunn, Editor, Railway Age, Chicago, Non Revoc.

Thursday Afternoon.

September 18, 2:00 P. M.

Editorial Session.

Chairman—H. Cole Estep, Editorial Director, Penton Pub. Co., Cleveland.

Introductory remarks by the Chairman.

2:15 P. M.—"How to Help Solve Present Day Problems" (a symposium of three 15-minute addresses). "Labor"—Harry Thiper, Manager, Automotive Industries, New York. Discussion. "Transportation"—Harry Hillman, Editor, Inland Printer, Chicago. Discussion. "Merchandising"—W. L. Ward, Editor, Dry Goods Reporter, Chicago. Discussion.

4:15 P. M.—"How the Editorial Conference Helps Business Papers"—David Beecroft, Editorial Director, Class Journal Co., New York. Discussion.

4:45 P. M.—"How to Have Your Paper Lead as Well as Reflect Opinion"—R. J. Patterson, Editor, The American Hatter, New York. Discussion.

5:15 P. M.—"How to Get and Train Men for Editorial Work"—Jay Stevens, Editor, Motor World, New York. Discussion.

Friday Morning.

September 19, 9:30 A. M.

Advertising Session.

Chairman—A. O. Duckert, Vice-President and Manager, Penton Pub. Co., Cleveland.

Introductory Remarks by the Chairman.

9:45 A. M.—"How to Make a Service Department Pay"—H. Bigelow Lockwood, Manager, Service Department, McGraw-Hill Co., New York. Discussion.

10:30 A. M.—"How to Hold Advertising When Demand Exceeds Supply"—William T. Lowell, Assistant Treasurer, Rust & Rose Rubber, Boston. Discussion.

11:30 A. M.—"How to Treat the Waste in Advertising"—R. Marshall, President, Comercio, Detroit. Discussion.

11:45 A. M.—"How the Advertising Salesman Can Prove that His Paper Reaches the Real Buyer"—Warren C. Platt, President, National Publishers Service, Cleveland. Discussion.

12:15 A. M.—"The Views of the Business Press in a National Campaign"—E. R. Shuman, Shuman Advertising Co., Chicago. Discussion.

Friday Afternoon.

September 19, 2:00 P. M.

(First Half.)

Circulation Session.

Chairman—F. D. Porter, President, Building & Building Measurement, Chicago.

Introductory remarks by Chairman.

2:15 P. M.—"How to Reduce Circulation Mortality"—L. W. Snedigarie, Vice-Pres., McGraw Hill Co., N. Y. Discussion.

2:45 P. M.—"How the Editorial and Circulation Departments Can Co-operate"—M. C. Robbins, President, The Gas Age, New York. Discussion.

3:15 P. M.—"How to Make Fliers and Boosters out of Subscribers"—Speaker to be announced. Discussion.

Friday Afternoon.

(Second Half.)

Note.—This session and the one Saturday morning are for member organizations only.

Publishers' and Business Session.

Chairman—A. C. Pearson, President, The Associated Business Papers, Inc.

3:45 P. M.—"The A. B. C."—Stanley Clague, Managing Director, The A. B. C., Chicago. Discussion.

4:15 P. M.—"How to Meet the High Cost of Publishing"—J. M. Muir, Vice-Pres., McGraw-Hill Co., New York. Discussion.

4:45 P. M.—"The Advertising Agency and the Business Press"—Robert Tincomb, President Federal Advertising Agency and Chairman of the Business Press Committee of the American Association of Advertising Agencies. Discussion.

Friday Evening.

September 19.

Reception, Congress Hotel, at seven o'clock.

Banquet, Congress Hotel, at 7:30 o'clock. Plates $5.00 each. For ladies and gentlemen. For program, see menu card.

Saturday Morning.

September 20, 9:30 A. M.

Publishers' and Business Session.

(Continued from Friday afternoon.)

Chairman—A. C. Pearson, President, The Associated Business Papers, Inc.

Report of the Committee on Credentials.

The Postal Situation—Arthur J. Baldwin, Chairman, Postal Committee.

Report of the Executive Secretary.

Report of the Auditing Committee—Chairman, Edward Caldwell, Treasurer, McGraw-Hill Co., New York.

Report of the Treasurer.

The question of standardizing circulation reports under our Standard of Practice No. 2.

Report of the Committee on Agency Relations—Chairman, Harry Tipper, Manager, Automotive Industries, N. Y.

Report of representatives on the National Advertising Committee.

The Observance of Postal Regulations Covering Free Copies to Advertisers.

Report of the Resolutions Committee.

Report of the Advisory Committee, acting as a Nominating Committee—Chairman, H. M. Swetland, President, United Publishers' Corporation, New York.

Election of officers.

New business.

GENERAL CONVENTION COMMITTEE.

Roger W. Allen, Chairman.
Harry Chapman,
H. H. Rosenberg,
Geo. W. Sherman,
J. R. Sherman.

Strike of Boston Police Handicaps Papers

Increase of Disorder Makes It Impossible for News Staffs to Cover Police News Adequately

(By Telegraph)

Boston, Sept. 10.—The strike of 1,500 Boston policemen—almost 85 per cent of the force—late yesterday afternoon, and the consequent increase in disorder have made it impossible for the newspapers of the city to cover the news of Boston, even in a general way.

When the police went on strike, every newspaper assignment man that could be spared from his regular work was put on police reporting, but their number was too few to handle the situation.

The strike was precipitated by the suspension of nineteen patrolmen found guilty by Commissioner Curtis against unionizing, and as soon as it began hundreds of young gangsters proceeded to break windows, loot stores, and attack men and women.

Reporters were kept busy throughout the night, hurrying from one section of the city and its suburbs to another—wherever violence occurred.

In the downtown section of the city a roaming gang of boys caused a riot in the Casino Theater, and stopped the show. When elected they smashed the windows and looted the stock of a shoe store next door, and wrecked a cigar store nearby. Many other stores were robbed by boys, who escaped arrest.

Banker Becomes Ad Agent

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 9.—H. R. Failing, assistant cashier of the First National Bank, has retired to become treasurer of the Botsford, Constantine & Tyler Advertising Agency. P. S. Tyler, president of the company, who has had his offices in Seattle, is returning to Portland, leaving the Seattle business of the agency in the hands of Mr. Constantine.

The Air Mail Center of The United States

Not content with being the world's greatest playground; not satisfied with being a gigantic seaport; not satiated with its healthy combination of industry and agriculture, New Jersey is to be made the terminal of the Air Mail Service of the United States—perhaps of the Western Hemisphere.

Inside of a month, it is anticipated, the new Air Mail Landing Field at Newark will be ready for use, and the ships now using Belmont Field, New York, will be transferred to Newark.

The national interest centering around a state like New Jersey with its innumerable activities naturally attracts to it people of all kinds from everywhere.

It naturally becomes a trading center of great value — it buys and sells enormously. And being within such easy reach of the mighty centers of distribution it becomes one of the most profitable fields for advertisers of any valuable product or service.

Tell Your Story To Jerseymen

In New Jersey Newspapers

	Circulation.	Rate 5,000 lines
Asbury Park Press (E)	7,122	.0225
Atlantic City Press (M) Union (E)	14,871	.035
Elizabeth Journal (E) (A.B.C.)	17,656	.04143
Hackensack Record	4,879	.0178
Hudson Observer (Hoboken)	43,000	.08
Passaic Herald (E)	8,535	.025
Passaic News (E)	8,427	.025
Paterson Press-Guardian (E)	12,686	.03
Perth Amboy Evening News (E)	*8,723	.025
Plainfield Courier-News (E)	7,908	.0214

Government Statement, April 1st, 1919.

*A. B. C. Report, April 1st, 1919.

South Should Get More Ads, Dallas League Is Told

Liberal Use of Newspaper Space Would Put More Money in Circulation, F. K. Beebee Says

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 9.—"There is not enough advertising being done in the South," said F. K. Beebee in an address at a dinner of the Advertising League of Dallas. "Much more is being done in other sections of the country.

"Figures show that there is more spending money per capita in the Southwest than in any other section of the United States, and judicious advertising will put it into circulation. Even in the cities of western Canada, such as Winnipeg and Calgary, there is more advertising done, chiefly in the daily papers, which are the best medium, yet there is a greater opportunity here.

"In Canada small grocers insert half-page advertisements at least twice a week in the daily papers, where the cities are far apart, and can not be reached by newspapers. Here they can. More advertisements mean better business as a whole.

"There are at least a dozen big Dallas firms that are not advertising in the daily papers; they should do so. A well-known advertising man has said that advertising is a forethought and not an afterthought, but there is considerable work to be done here yet to bring local ads to such a level for the benefit of the entire section of the country."

LEHRS PLEADS GUILTY

Former Newspaper Correspondent's Trial Closes in Stockholm, Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 8.—Reginald Lehrs, said to have been an American newspaper correspondent once, pleaded guilty today to taking part in the killing of Col. Hadjelache Ettinger, a former Russian naval officer, and an American citizen named Legros.

A Stockholm despatch of Aug. 8, reporting the killing of Ettinger and Legros, said it was done by a band supposed to be part of an organization known as "The International League of Re-establishing the Russian Monarchy." In previous despatches originating in Stockholm and London, Lehrs's name appeared in connection with the killing of Nikolai Ardasjeff, a prominent member of the Russian colony in Stockholm, whose death was laid to the Russian monarchist movement.

Ohio Women Meet in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 10.—The Women's Press Club held its 35th annual meeting here September 5, an unusual number of out-of-town delegates being present. Among them were Mrs. Lonie S. Culp of San Antonio, Tex.; Miss Hanna Foster of Berea, Mrs. Virginia Curtiss Smith of Chagrin Falls, chairman of the day's program; Miss Adele Thompson of Middlefield, Mrs. Cora Gaines Carrel, Mrs. Ellen Robertson Miller of Painesville, and Miss Ethel Bryant of Willoughby, with the president, Mrs. Emily D. McBride of Ravenna.

CANADA PAPERS TO PROFIT

Increased Advertising Appropriation Is Announced for New Victory Loan

MONTREAL, Sept. 9.—Canada's new Victory Loan drive is to start October 22 and to last until November 11. The amount to be asked for has not been officially announced, but it is believed that it will be from $300,000,000 to $350,000,000, and that the rate of interest will be 5½ per cent, the issue to be at 99 or par. At a meeting yesterday, Sir Henry Drayton, the new Minister of Finance; Mr. W. J. Taylor, president of the Canadian Press Association and the Provincial Chairman, met the representatives of the press of the Province of Quebec and asked for their co-operation. It was announced that the amount set aside for advertising would be 20 to 25 per cent, greater than last year and that every daily paper and trade paper in the country would carry the advertising.

Editor Commands Troops

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 10.—The Third Maine Infantry, National Guard, which went into camp at Augusta, Me., this month for a 15 days' tour of duty, is in command of Colonel Harry M. Bigelow, managing editor of the Portland Daily Press. Colonel Bigelow organized the regiment to replace the National Guard units which went into Federal service, and has been largely instrumental in bringing it to its present state of efficiency.

La Republica Editor Held

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 10.—Luis R. Alvarez and Luis Velasco, editor and manager, respectively, of La Republica, a Spanish language newspaper published in El Paso, have been arrested for the second time on charge of printing discussions of United States Government policies with regard to Mexico without furnishing translations of the same to the postmaster, as required by law.

Maj. Harrison Fuller, city editor of the St. Paul Dispatch, has been elected commander of the Minnesota branch of the Loyal Legion.

The Religious Publications are COMING BACK with their far-seeing general advertisers.

THE CONGREGATIONALIST
14 BEACON ST., BOSTON

During the seven months ending July 31
614,922 agate lines
of national advertising were published in
The Clarksburg Telegram
a gain over the same period of 1918 of 74.5%
It pays to advertise in "West Virginia's Leading Newspaper."

U. S. P. O. Report
For the period ending April 1, 1919,
Average Daily and Sunday Circulation
76,652
New Orleans Item
Enjoys the largest afternoon and Sunday net paid circulation of any newspaper published in the entire South.

Canada's Paper Mills Are In Clover, Stock Sales Show

Plans Being Made by Them to Largely Increase Output of News Print—But Not to Decrease the Price of It

MONTREAL, Sept. 10.—For some time the pulp and papers issues in Canada have been occupying a very prominent part on the Montreal and Toronto stock exchanges. The bulk of last week's transactions were in the securities of the paper stocks. Spanish River was traded in to the extent of over 10,000 shares, with a net gain of 4½ points for the common and 4¼ points for the preferred.

Laurentide with over 1,100 shares traded in, showed a net gain of 3¼ points. Wayagamack, with over 3,400 shares, gained 5 points, while Riordin, Howard Smith, Brompton and Abitibi were all active and showed gains from 3½ to 5½ points.

The very favorable reports issued earlier in the week by Spanish River and Laurentide were undoubtedly factors in fresh interests taken in the paper stocks. It is a well-known fact that all the Canadian paper companies are making money. The plants are working day and night to overtake the sales which have been made at figures which net the companies a very handsome margin of profit.

Developments are now under way among the Canadian mills which will largely increase the output of news print paper in Canada, but this is not likely to cause any material reduction in the price at which paper is selling at the present time.

Joins Pensacola Journal

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 10.—Grover Cleveland Baldwin, formerly of the reportorial staff of the Lewiston Daily Sun, has received honorable discharge from the Navy, and has become managing editor of the Pensacola Journal.

Texas Writer Dead

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 10—Sidney R. Maxwell, 52 years old, of San Antonio, well-known newspaper man, who had been connected with the San Antonio Express, Houston Post and other Texas publications, is dead.

The Detroit News
carries 60% of all Want Ads published in Detroit every day—Sunday, too. The News carries 50% more Want Ads than its only Sunday competitor. In total advertising it is First in America.

Reason Results
The merchants of Washington, D. C., usually use more space in
The Evening Star
than in the other three papers combined.

TESTIMONIAL TO R. W. HARVEY

Vick Associates Present Well Wishes—C. F. Chapin Assistant Ad Manager

GREENSBORO, N. C., Sept. 6.—R. Winston Harvey, sales manager of the Vick Chemical Company, Greensboro, N. C., who has resigned to become associated in an executive capacity with the Jacobs Advertising Agency at Atlanta, Ga., was given a testimonial of the regard and affection in which he is held by his co-workers in the form of a handsome smoking set in copper and gold, suitably inscribed with their well-wishes.

C. F. Chapin, who has just returned from artillery service in France, has rejoined the Vick Company as first assistant to the advertising manager, Richard B. G. Gardner. Mr. Chapin will be in charge of space-buying and the general detail work of the department. C. Guy Ferguson, division superintendent of Bradstreet's, with headquarters at Wheeling, W. Va., has joined the company as personnel and office manager—a newly created position.

Captain Keeler Joins Seaman Agency

Frank Seaman, Inc., New York, has just announced the appointment of Capt. Floyd Y. Keeler to the position of assistant to the vice-president. Before entering the Army, Mr. Keeler was vice-president of the I. W. Lyons & Sons Company, New York, and was prominent in the affairs of the Association of National Advertisers, of which he was at one time executive committee chairman and long an officer and director. Recently he organized the Associated Engravers, Inc.

prestige
You buy more than so much circulation when you purchase News advertising. You buy real reader interest, dealer influence, and the co-operation of the jobbers of The Indianapolis Radius.
The Indianapolis NEWS
FOR 50 YEARS A NEWSPAPER.
Charter Member A. B. C.

Photogravure Advertising 25c line
8 page supplement Every Sunday
Des Moines Sunday Register
70,000 Net Paid Circulation
I. A. Klein, New York—John Glass, Chicago

The Pittsburgh Post
has the second largest morning and Sunday circulation in Pittsburgh.

Digitized by Google

Banks at Last Awakening to Newspaper Aid

Advertising Manager Tells Dallas Advertising League the War Has Made Them Advertise

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 8.—It took a world war to wake the banks of this country up to the fact that they needed to advertise to keep abreast of the business procession, George Hearn, advertising manager of the City National Bank, told members of the Dallas Advertising League.

Before the late war, Mr. Hearn said, not more than half a dozen banks throughout the United States were really doing anything along the line of advertising. Some of them carried small business cards in the papers, but just a few of the larger ones were making any comprehensive, systematic effort to advertise their business. Since the war, he pointed out, these institutions have realized the need for advertising, and they are using space in newspapers to inform the people of the good points of their institutions and to attract a larger volume of business.

Banks have goods to sell, Mr. Hearn said, just as the department stores or grocery stores. They sell credit, they sell transmission of funds from one point to another, they sell safety in keeping money for their depositors. These things may be brought home to the minds of people with money through the right sort of advertising.

Operating Job Plant Separately

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 8.—The Sun Printing and Binding Company, which has been run for many years as the job department of the Sun, has been separated from the parent concern, and is now controlled by Arthur A. Mitchell, Thomas R. Bayard and Frank S. Hammer. Mr. Mandell came to Williamsport a little more than three years ago, as manager and will continue in that capacity in the new company. Mr. Bayard, the mechanical superintendent, has been with the Sun for more than 25 years, and Mr. Hammer learned his trade with the Sun more than 22 years ago.

Votes Increases to P. O. Employes

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—A flat increase of $150 in the annual wages of all postoffice employes is provided for by a bill passed today by the House and sent to the Senate. The increase is retroactive to July 1 last, and affects approximately 250,000 employes.

Captain Andrews Made Editor

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 6.—Capt. Roland F. Andrews, who has served the Times as editorial writer and assistant managing editor during the past six years, is appointed editor.

MRS. ASHPLANT HAS DONE WELL—CONSIDERING

HAVING been born in London—not Canada, not England— schooled, raised and married all in the same place, W. J. Ashplant, believer in advertising, would not at this late date think of going any place in London for any other purpose than to boost that particular spot on the Dominion map. He succeeds at the job, it seems.

W. J. ASHPLANT

The birth event was in 1875. All things considered the school seems to have been sufficient and—well, at the age of 20 he started to work for Hubert Ashplant, shoe merchant; didn't do much good, but stuck around and each week accepted his weekly salary of about $9 per. That continued until he was about 25, and at that age he took unto himself a wife, who, though handicapped with poor material, immediately set about to make something worth while out of her hubby.

To date the results are still in doubt, but through no fault of hers. When he had reached the age of 30 his father and brother decided to admit to the extent of taking him into business partnership with them. He showed plenty of nerve and took over the purchasing end of the business and the responsibility of finding a purchasing market. He took care of the former on visits to the shoe manufacturing centers of Canada and the United States, and the last part of his work he solved by the use of newspaper advertising space.

Mr. Ashplant, as head of the London Advertising Club, has become pretty well known as one of the livest Ad club presidents in Canada. He has a secret for increasing shoe sales. It is: "Increase your volume of newspaper advertising."

Starts Gulf Coast Agency

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 9.—T. V. Orr, late of the aviation corps, has launched the Gulf Coast Advertising Agency at DeFuniak Springs, Fla. He plans to handle southern accounts at first, specializing in land development and manufacturing.

PREMIUMS
That Are Real Subscription Producers
S. BLAKE WILLSDEN
Manufacturers and Publishers Representative,
1606 Heyworth Building
29 E. Madison St. CHICAGO

MEMORIALIZING A PIONEER

"Cradlebaugh and Glacier Day" Proclaimed at Oregon Reunion

Hood River, Ore., Sept. 8.—The Hood River County Pioneer Society, at its annual reunion, September 17, will observe "Cradlebaugh and Glacier Day" in respect to the memory of J. H. Cradlebaugh, first editor of the Hood River Glacier, the fruit valley's pioneer paper. George T. Prather, who was associated with Mr. Cradlebaugh, will read a paper entitled, "How the Glacier Came to be Founded."

Poems by Mr. Cradlebaugh, who before his death was for many years on the staff of the Sales Capital Journal, will be read.

NAVY CENSOR CLOSES FINE WAR RECORD

(Continued from Page 20.)

Of his experiences on the front lines in October, 1918, trying to discover why the correspondents could not secure quicker and more complete battle news, Baker can only repeat that it is better to die in a ship than be spattered all over a field.

Baker's assignment for special duty with Mr. Hoover, the Director General of Relief was natural, in view of his having been a member of the Commission for Relief in Belgium during the entire period from January, 1915, until its close in the spring of 1918. He is an officer of the Crown of Belgium, conferred by King Albert, and accompanied President Wilson as a guest of the Belgian Government during the presidential visit there.

Faith in Annapolis Man

Baker's affiliation with the navy was merely a return to an old service. He started as an enlisted man of the United States navy in the Spanish-American war, and wears the service stripe of Sampson's fleet, as well as of the Cuban occupation. Baker has been an editor, but remains a newspaper man in America, although he has sometimes been obliged to call himself a journalist in foreign countries, in order not to be confused with "pressman" of the English nomenclature.

Baker's fad is a blind faith that if the American people could only once discover the true ability of the modern Annapolis man who has had a few years' experience in the enormous responsibilities of navigation, civil and mechanical engineering, gunnery, ship and port administration, stevedoring, the command of men, diplomacy, and general world knowledge, they would put the same general service throughout the world, wherever the United States has commercial or sentimental interests. And that if the people had Admiral Sims, would be President. The only thing for which Baker can never forgive the admiral is that the latter was born in Antario, Canada.

His Newspaper Work

Commander Baker has had a varied and interesting career as a journalist. He entered the profession as a reporter on the Detroit Tribune, later working on the Detroit Journal and was European correspondent of the latter newspaper in 1900 and 1901. He was for a time connected with the English Office of McClure's Magazine, and art critic of the London "Academy and Literature." Later he was American correspondent of the London Daily Standard and the London Daily Express. For a time he was journalist secretary to the late Joseph Pulitzer. He was associate editor of Everybody's Magazine, 1907 to 1910, and editor of the Delineator, 1911 to 1914.

WE SPEND MORE THAN $500,000
per year to produce the features which have created the greatest newspaper following in the world.
"Hearst's Features Always Lead"
Write for booklet.
"Half Million Dollar Feature Service"
The International Feature Service
246 West 59th Street

New Era Features
30 East 42nd St., New York City
Forty Leading Papers
Print Our Service.
Send for our Headline History of the World War

Time and Money
Both time and money are saved by members of The Associated Newspapers who are securing a most effective feature service at a saving over former feature expense. Besides, they are building up for themselves a service of increasing value.
Write or wire for terms of membership. Only a few cities now open.
The Associated Newspapers
170 Broadway New York

THE INTERNATIONAL NEWS BUREAU, Inc.
15 SCHOOL STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
(J. J. BOZZO, Editor)
More than 120 American and Canadian newspapers subscribe to our service
Each week our subscribers receive between 30 and 50 columns of copy. Authoritative articles by men of international calibre on matters international, human interest stories from all lands and climes, revelations of European courts, speeches and addresses of men and women whose words influence the thought of nations, translations from every important foreign newspaper; these and numberless other items day after day are sent to our subscribers.
IN SHORT, MR. EDITOR—ESPECIALLY MR. SUNDAY EDITOR —WE CONSTANTLY SPREAD THE WORLD BEFORE YOU FROM ALL ANGLES.
You will find our monthly subscription rates surprisingly low.

The True News
FIRST
Always—Accurately
International News Service
World Bldg. New York

NEWSPAPER Feature Service
GET THE FEATURES THAT HAVE WON THE BIGGEST AUDIENCE
Write us for samples of our colored comics, daily and Sunday pages in black and colors.
Newspaper Feature Service
M. KOENIGSBERG, Manager
241 WEST 37TH ST. NEW YORK

Digitized by Google

Congress Starts Its Inquiry Into P. O. Salaries

Committee Holds First Session in New York—Will Visit Other Complaint Centers Soon as Possible

The Congressional Joint Commission on Postal Salaries held a session Tuesday with employes of the Postoffice Department in New York and New Jersey regarding the readjustment of postal salaries. It also will hold sessions at Boston, Chicago, St. Paul, Cincinnati, Atlanta, Memphis, Kansas City and Washington.

In every case hearings will be accorded all postal employes in the States adjacent to the cities where the hearings are to be held. Every class of postoffice employe is to be represented in the hearings.

The members of the commission are Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama, chairman; Representative John A. Moon of Tennessee, vice-chairman; Senators Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, Edward J. Gay of Lonisiana, Thomas Sterling of South Dakota, and George H. Moses of New Hampshire. Representatives Thomas M. Bell of Georgia, A. B. Ronse of Kentucky, Holvar Steenerson of Minnesota, and Martin B. Madden of Illinois; and Cecil A. Beasley, secretary, and Isham P. Byrom, assistant secretary.

STANDARD RATE CARDS IN BRITISH AD FIELD

(Continued from Page 11.)

sumed to be a growth from a similar publication established during the war by the British War Offiee, containing extracts from foreign newspapers, and circulated confidentially each day to interested eireles.

This announeement has raised a storm of protest from the press, which inveighs bitterly against the policy of waste which it betokens, points out the futility and uselessness of such a review, and urges that if a publication of the kind be required at all it should be left to private or commercial enterprise. There have been some ugly revelations of waste in the matter of propaganda leaflets, posters and inter-departmental forms and issued by Government offiees, and the feeling of publishers is undoubtedly a reflection of public opinion.

A "Hush-Hush" Commission Criticised

MUCH RESENTMENT is felt at the attiude of the parliamentary officers responsible for the procedure of a Royal Commission just appointed to investigate our national agriculture.

It has been ruled that the proceedings shall be taken without the presence of representatives of the press. The matter was put in a nutshell by the Earl of Selborne in the House of Lords this week. He said, "Farmer's are accused of making undue profits. I believe that to be wholly unjust. They have nothing to fear from putting their cards on the table. I regret therefore that the Commission is to sit behind closed doors and I hope it is not too late for them to reconider their deeision."

It is being pointed out that the publeity which resulted from the admission of the press to the sittings of the Coal Commission was productive of mneh good, and it is practically certain, unless some concerted action by a press body secures a revision of that intention, that the whole of the proceedings of the Commission on Agriculture will be ignored by journalists.

Selling 6,000,000 Yards of Aeroplane Linen

AN INTERESTING test is being made of newspaper advertising in London just now. The Government has themselves at the end of the war with something like six million yards of surplus aeroplane linen on hand. They mentioned it to the press and the press mentioned it in its eolumns.

But the Government did not advertise it, and it hung fire badly. Then an enterprising man named Leonard Martin came along and bought the lot. And the press chaffed him and gave the deal more publicity than they did the official effort to dispose of it.

There was about a fortnight's silence and then appeared advertisements in the London newspapers announcing that this Government linen was on sale at the various stores; followed this week by some of the stores featuring it for themselves.

It is definitely stated what the linen can be used for and leaflets are available describing how it can be bleached at home. In other words, Leonard Martin is doing through the advertising columns what the Government themselves might have done, but failed to do because they used the news-columns instead of paid advertising.

As enquiries show that the stocks are moving well, it would appear to point the fact that advertising is actually that sells and news publicity is not.

Covering Cleveland

and Northern Ohio is easier than covering any other territory of equal buying power because of THE PLAIN DEALER.

All the prosperous towns in Northern Ohio—and there are a lot of them—depend for their "big city" news on

The Plain Dealer

Largest Morning Circulation Between New York and Chicago

LOS ANGELES

EVENING HERALD

Carries a greater volume of advertising than any daily on the Pacific coast

DAILY CIRCULATION 127,773

Charter Member A. B. C.

The Test Town of the Country for the National Advertiser

Beloit, Wisconsin

Here is a city rich in factories and agriculture, rich in educational institutions, rich in contentment and Americanism. Workmen own their homes and deposits in banks total $7,000,000.

Beloit has one paper—the Daily News—in which the people have faith.

Circulation over 7,000. Rate, 2½ cents per agate line.

TO ADVERTISE WHEAT FLOUR

Southern Millers to Spend $100,000 in Newspapers of the South

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 8.—G. A. Breann, of the Ballard & Ballard Company, this city, has been named chairman of a publicity committee which will work out the details of a $100,000 advertising campaign for Southern flour millers to be conducted through Southern newspapers for the purpose of increasing the consumption of wheat flonr.

The executive committees of the Southeastern Millers Association and the Southern Illinois Millers Association met at St. Louis, Mo., on August 27, to discuss plans for a campaign and raising the necessary money. It was decided to pro-rate the cost of the campaign between more than 150 members of the two associations. The members were found strongly in favor of this method, which will aid the Grain Corporation somewhat in disposing of the 1919 wheat crop.

RATES UP 11 TO 48 PER CENT.

Increased Operation Costs Forces Up Washington State Prices

SEATTLE, Sept. 7.—Inquiry made by questionnaires sent out by the Journalism Department of the University of Washington shows that weekly newspapers in this State have raised their subscription rates from 11 to 48 per cent during a period of more than a year on account of the increased cost of newsprint.

Fifty-seven weeklies in the State charge $2 a year, and thirteen papers charge $1. The smallest weekly in the State has a circulation of 250 and the largest of 2,800.

Former Editor Dead

WAUPUN, Wis., Sept. 10.—Rufus H. Oliver, aged 74, who was formerly interested financially in the Waupun Leader and in its editorial department, is dead after several attacks of paralysis.

You can reach

Albany, Troy and Schenectady with one paper

The Sunday Telegram Albany, N. Y. Circulation, 28,000

TO REACH THE RICH TRADE OF KANSAS

Topeka Daily Capital

Sworn Government Report for Six Months ending Apr. 1, 1919

35,247

Its sales promotion department is at the service of advertisers. And it really promotes.

Arthur Capper

Member A. B. C. Publisher.

WHERE NAVY DEPT ADS WILL BE PLACED

(Continued from Page 7.)

DENVER, COLO.
Durango, Colo.
Grand Junction, Colo.
Greeley, Colo.
Pueblo, Colo.
Trinidad, Colo.
Cheyenne, Wyo.
Sheridan, Wyo.
Casper, Wyo.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.
Billings, Mont.
Great Falls, Mont.
Boise, Idaho
Butte, Mont.

S. F. FRANCISCO, CAL.
Eureka, Cal.
Marysville, Cal.
Redding, Cal.
Stockton, Cal.
Watsonville, Cal.
Reno, Nevada
Sacramento, Cal.
San Jose, Cal.
Fresno, Cal.
Oakland, Cal.
Santa Rosa, Cal.
Chico, Cal.

PORTLAND, ORE.
Spokane, Wash.
Eugene, Ore.
Lewiston, Idaho.
Pendleton, Ore.
Klamath Falls, Ore.
Bend, Ore.
Wallace, Idaho.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.
Bakersfield, Cal.
Santa Barbara, Cal.
Flagstaff, Ariz.
Prescott, Ariz.
San Bernardino, Cal.
Santa Ana, Cal.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.
El Centro, Cal.
Riverside, Cal.
Globe, Ariz.
Tucson, Ariz.
Phoenix, Ariz.

SEATTLE, WASH.
Tacoma, Wash.
Bellingham, Wash.
Yakima, Wash.
Chehalis, Wash.
Everetts, Wash.
Olympia, Wash.
Aberdeen, Wash.

Kauffman Advances

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 9.—Advertising supervision of the duPont Chemical Company has been placed in the hands of Charles K. Kauffman, heretofore assistant advertising manager of the explosive division of that I. duPont de Nemours & Co. Before coming here Mr. Kauffman was with the New York American and the Arkenberg Special Agency, New York.

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 9.—Newspaper men will be the guests of the new Hotel Savery at an informal opening, September 18.

The Mount Vernon, N. Y.

DAILY ARGUS

carries more display advertising than any other newspaper in Westchester County

This is an acknowledgment of its power that the advertiser should heed, if desirous of reaching the people of Mount Vernon.

GEO. B. DAVID & CO.

Foreign Representative

171 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

The Pittsburg Dispatch

steadily advances (not spasmodically) as the leading newspaper in its field.

WALLACE G. BROOKS
Brunswick Building, New York

THE FORD-PARSONS CO.,
People's Gas Building, Chicago

H. C. ROOK
Real Estate Trust Building, Philadelphia

New Orleans States

Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.
Sworn Net Paid Circulation for 6 Months Ending April 1st, 1919

43,701 Daily

We guarantee the largest white home delivered evening circulation in the trade territory of New Orleans.

To reach a large majority of the trade prospects in the local territory the States is the logical and economical medium.

Circulation data sent on request.

The S. C. Beckwith Special Agcy.

Sole Foreign Representatives
New York Chicago St. Louis

Digitized by Google

TIPS FOR AD MANAGERS

Firey-Hanly Company, 1120 Walnut street, Kansas City, Mo., Has obtained count of New Orleans Paint & rnish Company.

Norris L. Bull Agency, 703 Main reet, Hartford, Conn., Has secured count of Allen Manufacturing Com- ny ("Safety-Set" screws), Hartford.

Eugene McGuckin Company, 105 orth 13th street, Philadelphia. Will ish account for the Dinesenberg Mo- r Corporations, New York.

Wood, Putnam & Wood Company, 8 Tremont street, Boston. Reported ll make up a list of newspapers dur- g the next sixty days for McCormick Co.

Craig & Ward, Monroe Building, Chi- go, are putting out 5,000-line contracts New York, Chicago and other papers r "Virginia Sweet Pancake Flour."

Colcine Agency, Dekum Bldg., Port- nd Ore., local milk distributers and the egon Dairymen's League, the latter or- anization made up of producers, have ired to carry on an extensive advertis- ing campaign. Twenty-five thousand llars, raised by a small assessment on t milk sold, will be used to advertise e merits of milk as a food and to crease its use. Similar campaigns ve been conducted successfully in attle and Vancouver, B. C. Alma D. ith is chairman of the committee in arge.

Advertising Agencies Corporation, 3 Metropolitan Tower, New York nited States Army advertising con- racts now being placed with newspa- rs.

F. Wallis Armstrong Advertising ency, North American Bldg., Phila- lphia. Reported to be renewing con- acts with newspapers for Victor Talk- g Machine Co.

George Batten Company, Fourth venue Bldg., New York. Reported ill make up a list of newspapers dur- g October for Bird & Son.

Calkins & Holden, 250 Fifth avenue, ew York. Placing orders with news- pers in cities where they have deal- s for Sherman & Williams.

Dippy & Aitkin, 12th and Filbert reets, Philadelphia. Placing orders ith same list of newspapers as heretofore for G. H. P. Cigar Company.

George W. Edwards Company, 328 hestnut street, Philadelphia. Again aving orders with some newspapers r H. O. Wilbur & Sons.

Federal Advertising Agency, 6 East 8th street New York. Reported to be placing orders with some Middle West newspapers for Bradley Knitting Com- pany.

Richard A. Foley Agency, Terminal ldg., Philadelphia. Placing orders ith some newspapers for Philadelphia ress and Philadelphia Public Ledger.

F. A. Bray Company, 14th and Oak streets, Kansas City. Renewing some of their newspaper contracts for Barbo Manufacturing Company.

Humphrey's Homeopathic Medicine Company, 156 William street, New York. Renewing their fall advertising with papers generally.

H. E. James Agency, 116 West 139th street, New York. Reported to be again renewing newspaper contracts for Dr. Earl S. Sloan. Placing orders with some New York newspapers for Illustrated Review.

Philip Kohn Company, 208 Fifth avenue, New York. Placing orders with some Southern newspapers for Talcum Puff Company.

Long & Thomas, Mailers Bldg., Chicago. Placing orders with some large city newspapers for Red Book Magazine.

H. K. McCann Company, 61 Broadway, New York. Reported will shortly place a few new contracts with newspapers for Royal Typewriter Company.

Eugene McGuckin Company, 1211 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. Reported will make a list of farm papers during October for Atlas Powder Company.

Mallory, Mitchell & Faust, Security Bldg., Chicago. Again placing orders with large city newspapers for Cornell Wood Products Company.

Paul Nelson & Sprosser, 44 East 23rd street, New York. Placing orders with some New England newspapers for Merck & Co.

Newell-Emmett Company, 129 West 42nd street, New York. Reported will shortly place orders with newspapers that have rotogravure sections for Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company.

Harry Porter Company, 18 East 41st street, New York. Will handle the advertising for Dae Health Laboratories.

Ruthrauff & Ryan, 404 Fourth avenue, New York. Placing orders with a list of newspapers for Physical Culture Magazine.

Russel M. Seeds Company, 330 University square, Indianapolis. Renewing some newspaper contracts for Milks Emulsion Company.

Sherman & Bryan, 79 Fifth avenue, New York. Placing orders with some California newspapers for Luckawanna Mills Company.

Stack & Brown, 303 Fifth avenue, New York. Again placing orders with newspapers for Brown, Durrell & Co.

Tucker Agency, 303 Fifth avenue, New York. Again placing orders with newspapers for National Catholic War Council.

Van Patten, 50 East 42nd street, New York. Again placing orders with newspapers for International Magazine Company.

James T. Wetherald, 142 Berkley street, Boston. Renewing some newspaper contracts for Chester Kent & Co. Renewing some contracts for Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company.

NEW N. Y. MANAGER FOR AYER

J. M. Mathes Succeeds R. T. Snodgrass — With Agency for Nine Years

James H. Mathes has succeeded R. T. Snodgrass, resigned, as manager of the New York office of N. W. Ayer & Son. Mr. Mathes has been connected with the Ayer organization for the past nine years, serving in the Cleveland and Chicago offices as well as in the headquarters in Philadelphia.

For the past two years he has been in charge of the entire sales organization. He has obtained and handled some of the most important accounts handled by the Ayer agency.

COL. HERSHMAN TELLS OF PRESS'S DUTY

(Continued from Page 5.)

from political deals, except to expose them, and it must realize that its service to the average citizen is the measure of its success.

"The great growth in advertising illustrates dramatically the mighty factor it has become in the modern business world. It is greater today than it was a year ago, and I believe it will continue to grow and dominate trade.

Advertising as a Growing Force

"Every day emphasizes its great importance, and I feel that this great growth will continue along broader lines than anyone imagined a few years ago. I realize, perhaps as every other editor and publisher of a metropolitan newspaper, that the work has become more exacting and that personal attention and thought are greater requisites than could have been conceived not so many years gone by."

As an example, Colonel Hershman pointed out that daily papers today are issuing 40 pages or more in minutes, if not seconds, to get hundreds of thousands of newspapers distributed before evening dinner time within radius of 100 miles or more.

Colonel Hershman meets and knows a great many newspaper workers, and believes there are just as great opportunities in the profession today for men of brains, as in the past.

Questioned particularly about newspapers in politics, Colonel Hershman explained that The Press, while adhering to Republican party principles, has always maintained an absolutely independent course as regards state or local politics and has thereby acquired the standing and reputation of having at all times served the best interest of the people in the community.

Has Steered Steadfast Course

He recalled the dominant politicians of the time of Mackey, Cameron, and Quay, down to the present time, and while some fierce battles in Pennsylvania have been fought in Pittsburgh by rival factions, The Press stands today in that enviable position, that it is recognized as seeking to serve the people only. A steady course of this kind was planned many years ago, and the paper steered ever since along these lines—that whichever faction or politician succeeded or was defeated, the people were given the whole truth about both sides. To justify the people's belief that they have a safe guide in The Press, has been Colonel Hershman's constant ambition. That he has achieved it seems proven by the success his newspaper has attained.

Colonel Hershman's mastery of details stamps him as a remarkable executive, but personally "you the job" in The Press office every day, excepting a few weeks he spends each season at his summer home in Allenhurst, N. J.; and even there he is in constant touch with the office. His home is in the Bellefield district of Pittsburgh. His personal qualities are best illustrated by the loyalty and affection with which he is regarded by all members of the organization which he has built up to help him make a great newspaper.

THE NORTH JERSEY SHORE
offers a highly diversified market for all products of general demand. The territory is responsive and sales effort produces large returns.
This field is thoroughly covered and dominated by the
ASBURY PARK EVENING PRESS
and
THE SHORE PRESS
Sunday
These are strictly high class papers that go into the homes of both the resorts and the country districts.
Standard Size Circulation Guaranteed
Frank R. Northrop, Special Representative,
701 Fifth Avenue, New York City.
Association Building, Chicago.
J. Lyle Kinstedt, Publisher, Asbury Park, N. J.

"A.B.C."
The Service that—Guarantees Circulation
For Advertisers
For Advertising Agencies—
Ask for List of Subscribers

"S & M"
The Service that—Guarantees Payment of Advertising
For Publishers
"Proves You Run It"

Consolidated Services of Schwarm-Standel Inc.
450 Fourth Ave. N.Y. 7705-7200 Mad. Sq.

The Dominating Force
in a manufacturing territory famous for its bustle, thrift and prosperity enforces a million-dollar-a-day sales expended weekly in wages.

The Bridgeport Post Standard-Telegram
Not only dominate this field, but their offer advertisers the lowest rate obtainable in New England. Keep them on your list.
FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVES
I. A. Klein,
Metropolitan Bldg., New York.
John Glass,
Peoples' Gas Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Perth Amboy, N. J.
More than 50,000 and going strong.
Thoroughly Covered by
Evening News
Member A. N. P. A., A. B. C., A. P.
Personable requests for trade information given prompt attention.
F. R. Northrup, 303 5th Avenue
New York City

Summer In New London, Conn.
is the season of social activities and big business that assure success for the advertiser who uses
The New London Telegraph
Advertise your goods at dawn and sell them before dark.
JULIAN D. MORAN, Pres. and Mgr.
Representatives
Paige-Burns & Smith, New York—Boston
J. Logan Payne Co. Chicago—Detroit

Reaching the MOST Buyers at the LEAST Cost
Govt. Statement For Six Months Ending April 1st.
BOSTON AMERICA
301,270
The LARGEST Homecoming Circulation in New England. Can produce for YOU as it has for others.

The Pittsburg Press
Has the LARGEST
Daily and Sunday
CIRCULATION
IN PITTSBURG
Member A. B. C.
Foreign Advertising Representatives.
I. A. KLEIN, JOHN GLASS,
Metropolitan Tower, Peoples Gas Bldg.
New York. Chicago

SUPPLIES & EQUIPMENT
For Newspaper Making
WANTED AND FOR SALE

JESSUP FAMILY PROGRESSIVE

Headed by "Pa Jessup" They Now Run a Daily Paper

BREMERTON, Wash., Sept. 7.—As busy a "centralized family" as there is in the State of Washington is the one headed by W. B. Jessup, publisher of the Bremerton Searchlight. This week Mr. Jessup put the Searchlight on a daily basis. For years it has been published twice a week. Mr. Jessup, of course, is the big chief. His chief assistants in the editorial departments are his sons, John H. Jessup, until recently an ensign in the navy pay corps, and William Jessup, lately discharged as a sergeant in the air service.

His daughters, Miss Cora Jessup and Miss Clara Jessup, are in the business office and Mamma Jessup handles news and business details in her spare time, Jimmy Jessup is the carrier-in-chief.

Mantenach Agency in Buffalo

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 6.—The Mantenach Company of Hartford, Conn., has opened an advertising office in charge of Walter A. Allen, secretary, at 100 D. S. Morgan building. The company is already handling several advertising accounts in the Buffalo field and surrounding territory, and it desires to keep in closer touch with their local clients.

Students Launch New Comic

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 8.—The Scalper is the name of a new publication launched at the University of Texas. It is the product of the wit and humor of the school. Jack Hyman, who edited the Daily Texan, the Longhorn Magazine, is editor; Jack Lutter of Temple is the general and business manager, and Edgar Perry of Austin advertising director.

Pacific Agency Expands Eastward

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—The Hall & Emery Advertising Agency, of Portland, Ore., has opened an Eastern office here, at 440 South Dearborn street. The same firm has formed an affiliation with the Izzard Company of Seattle. The Chicago office will be in charge of Robert Armstrong, who for several years directed the publicity of Armour & Co.

Printing Show for 1920

As the result of a vote taken among exhibitors in past New York printing trade shows, there will be a resumption of the New York exposition, probably in Madison Square Garden, during the 1920 meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association under the management of Harry Cochrane.

New Press in Tampico

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 10. The Tampico Printing Company, which publishes the Tampico Tribune is building an addition to its plant to accommodate a new press. The machine has capacity for an eight-page, seven-column paper printed in two colors, pasted, folded and ready for delivery at the rate of 100 copies per minute.

GOBLE BUSINESS MANAGER

Lockport Circulation Man Placed in Charge of Middletown Times-Press

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Ralph B. Goble, circulation manager of the Lockport Union-Sun and Journal for several years and an employe of that newspaper since boyhood, has been appointed business manager of the Middletown (N. Y.) Times-Press, succeeding H. H. Knickerbocker, who recently became manager of the Westfield (Mass.) Journal.

R. B. GOBLE.

Mr. Goble is a member of the board of directors of the New York State Circulation Managers' Association.

TRACTION ENGINE RUNS PRESS

When Strike Stops Current, Elgin Courier Builds Make-Shift Plant

ELGIN, Ill., Sept. 8.—When a street car strike shut off the local supply of electric power for a month, the Elgin Daily Courier hired a traction engine and an electric generator, and rigged up a make-shift plant for its presses, which it used until the strike was settled.

While the plant was being installed, the paper was printed in Aurora, fifteen miles distant, by the Beacon-News. Not an issue was missed.

INCORPORATIONS

NEW YORK—National Film Advertising Company; $3,000; F. Davis, M. E. Curry, W. J. Lee, 701 Fifth avenue.

State Pulp and Paper Company; capital increased from $50,000 to $100,000.

Shapiro & Aronson Printing Company; $5,000; A. Shapiro, E. Aronson, M. Hassner, 247 Vermont street, Brooklyn.

New Negro Publishing Company; $10,000; W. A. Domingo, F. R. Crosswaith, G. P. Campbell, 116 West 133rd street.

Current Printing Company; capital increased $3,000 to $30,000.

BOGOTA, N. J.—Bogota Publishing Company; $5,000; William S. Tozer, of Bogota; A. C. Inmig and L. T. Vreeland, of New York.

Greenwich Press Is Sold

GREENWICH, Conn., Sept. 10.—Robert L. Chamberlain and Ralph E. Burch have purchased the majority stock of the Press. Ralph Morrow, who has been in charge since 1914, has resigned as editor-manager and president-treasurer, and has been succeeded by Norman Talrott, formerly of the Press staff.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE

Advertisements under this classification, thirty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Hoe Sextuple Press

Will sell a Hoe right angle sextuple press, which was dismantled some time ago but not re-erected. Has two folders; will print 2 or 8 column papers of 22" column length; 15" diameter cylinders; will print per hour 24,000, 4-6-8-10-12-14-16-18-20-22 or 24 page papers; in excellent condition and can be purchased at a bargain. Address: Mechanical Supt., The Courier-Journal, Louisville, Ky.

For Sale

Three platen or triple Goss steam table with apron and gas heated steam generator, in first class condition, for sale, $225. F. O. B. Scranton. Times, Scranton, Pa.

Two Model—One Magazine

In good condition, one seven Model-A Perfection Medial Feeders. Make us an offer. News and Sentinel. Fort Wayne, Ind.

EQUIPMENT WANTED

Advertisements under this classification, thirty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Magazine Press Wanted

We are in the market for a magazine press which will print up to 48 pages, size 10½ x 14½ or larger. Press must have capacity of 10,000 to 12,000 or more papers per hour and be equipped with paster or stitcher. Color attachment for 2 colors on cover pages and one or two colors on several inside pages is desirable. If you have such a press communicate with Mechanical Sup't., Courier-Journal, Louisville, Ky.

Perfecting Press.

Want to buy perfecting press to print 16 to 24 pages (including 14 and 15), 3 columns 13 ems preferred. Give full details, price etc. Address A-868, care of Editor & Publisher.

Wanted

A Cox Duplex Flat Bed Press for eight pages, cut off 21 inches. The Herald, Swindon, Wilts, England.

Covering Mine Workers' Convention

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 10.—Cleveland has had many out-of-town newspaper writers this week in connection with the biennial convention of the United Mine Workers of America, which began a two-weeks' session Monday. The meeting is being attended by over 255 delegates, representing more than 500,000 coal miners, who will formulate a wage scale and decide upon other questions to be submitted to a conference with coal operators, in Buffalo, on September 25.

Asks $30,000 for Alleged Libel

DENVER, Sept. 8.—A libel suit for $30,000 damages has been filed in the Denver District Court against Julius H. Duvall, editor of the Moffat County Courier, published at Craig, Col., by Mrs. Cora A. Baker, as a result of an article published July 24, 1919, which Mrs. Baker alleges to have been false.

A Quadruple Birthday

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—There was a quadruple birthday celebration August 29 at the home of Peter S. Lambros, publisher of the Greek Star. It was the birthday of Mr. Lambros, of his mother-in-law, of his nine-year daughter Maria, and of his son, Theodore, age 2 years.

FOR SALE

Hoe Matrix Rolling Machines in good condition.

Can be shipped at once.

Scott Flat Plate Casting Boxes cast plates 18 x 24 inches. Send for prices

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY
Plainfield New Jersey

Take It To
POWERS
Open 24 Hours out of 24
The Fastest Engravers on Earth
Powers Photo Engraving Co.
154 Nassau St., Tribune Bldg.
New York City

For Prompt Service
TYPE
Printers' Supplies
Machinery
In Stock for Immediate Shipment by Selling Houses conveniently located
"American Type the Best in Any Case"
AMERICAN
TYPE FOUNDERS CO.
Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Richmond, Atlanta, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Spokane, Winnipeg

Printing Plants and Business
BOUGHT AND SOLD
Printers' Outfitters
American Typefounders' Products
Printers and Bookbinders' Machinery of Every Description.
CONNER, FENDLER & CO.
96 Brekman St. New York City

Junior Ad Men Begin Fall Meeting

The Junior Advertising Club of New York will open its fall season at the Advertising Club, Friday evening, September 12. The first meeting will be a get-together session to greet old and new members and disclose plans for the coming season.

The Hoquiam (Wash.) Record, published by O. M. Moore, has been changed in name to the Olympic Record.

Digitized by Google

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING COLUMNS

Through the classified columns of EDITOR & PUBLISHER you may find a buyer for any [illegible] for mechanical equipment for which you have no present need. "For Sale" ads at [illegible] cents per line may thus turn into cash something which now merely requires storage room—and which would be of real service to somebody else.

SITUATIONS WANTED

Advertisements under this classification, ten cents per line, each insertion. Count six words to the line. For those unemployed, rate is one-half. Not to exceed 50 words, two insertions FREE.

Advertising

Space advertising copy that even poor women find it easy to sell. Have been selling it for twenty-two years. My ads have given fifty per cent time in coming room. Am also advertising manager of Southern daily but wish to make change. First offer of sixty dollars per week, or 1c. per line. Address A-387, care of Editor and Publisher.

Business Manager

Thoroughly conversant with all departments of daily papers of from three to ten thousand circulation. Complete advertising solicitor and writer and able to take complete charge of business and advertising departments of daily in the city up to 20,000 population. Would consider lease or part interest. Now employed. At liberty September fifteenth or after. Address A-886, care of Editor and Publisher.

News and Advertising Writer

young man, energetic, capable, seeks position in Eastern City or town in news or advertising department of newspaper or as assistant to editor. Address S.S.-1, care of Editor and Publisher.

Manager

Now employed, wishes to make a change, has a charge of dying paper five years and has made it big success. Understands game thoroughly. Is aggressive; plenty of initiative and imagination. Wants full responsibility. Prefers paper with 5 to 10,000 circulation that needs to be built up. Married, age 33. Salary expected $60 per. Address A-885, care of Editor and Publisher.

Newspaperman and Editor

Experienced reporter who has demonstrated ability as political correspondent and editor is open for engagement with Sixth Marines and available for immediate home from overseas. Specialty furnished. Address A-850, care of Editor and Publisher.

Editor-Manager

Seeks position on independent or republican daily. Now publisher of afternoon paper in small industrial city. At present position since 1914, except 18 months in service as infantry, officer, 6 months in France. Result getter and business builder. Will produce. Desire to prove it. Can handle job printing department. Will go anywhere. Salary $40 to $4,000, depending on location and future increase upon return from France, but prefer to locate in city of 10,000 to 30,000. Widower. Go anywhere on 6 days' notice, but prefer 30. Write A-871 care of Editor and Publisher.

General Reporting

Graduate Christian young man, 25, one year newspaper, seven years with financial institution, nine months as reported in official publications while in that time, seeks position as reporter on New York daily. Will deliver the goods and any time at all the time, know no hours, can furnish best references. Address: Reporter Wire, care Editor and Publisher.

A Live City Editor

Just out of the service, now employed, would consider change; eight years' experience; married; plenty of pep and ambition. Address A-864, care of Editor and Publisher.

Experienced Copy Editor

Wants permanent position in New York or Philadelphia. 27 years old, college graduate, can write heads to suit your style, will come on probation. C. J. T., care Editor & Publisher.

Cartoonist

Young man wants position with Western daily—Sunday references—political cartoons and comics. Address A-821, care of Editor and Publisher.

Newspaper Man

Experienced daily newspaper man is open for engagement as editor, editorial writer or telegraph editor of Republican daily, central or western states. Address A-841, care of Editor and Publisher.

Circulation Manager

With 12 years' experience desires to make change with daily in middle west by October 1st. Thoroughly experienced in all kinds of circulation work. Married, best of references. Address A-865, care of Editor and Publisher.

SITUATIONS WANTED

Mr. Publisher or Business Manager

Are you satisfied with your present circulation? Do you contemplate a campaign for increased business this fall? This is your opportunity to engage the services of an expert to direct the energies of your circulation department. Over fifteen years as circulator on morning and evening newspapers in the east and west. Experienced in every form of circulation development including newsboys, carriers, and city and country dealers. Write results. Circ. Mgr., P.O. Box 1, Station A, Jersey City, N. J.

Am seeking permanent connection as circulation director, but would consider proposition for special work in any department. Address A-828, care of Editor and Publisher.

Writer of Daily Feature which can be elaborated into a "column" desires change January 1; original, strong human interest stories or editorials, matter of serious or semi-comic nature with a "pull"; city of 50,000 or larger; salary, your limit for a producer. Address A-862, care of Editor and Publisher.

Newspaperman—Reporter

seeks position New York or vicinity. Young man—daily and trade journal experience. Address A-829, care of Editor and Publisher.

Cartoonist

and layout position wanted by young man. Experienced; will go anywhere. Address A-866, care of Editor and Publisher.

Webb Pressman

Wanted position as foreman of press room. Thirteen years' experience with known newspapers. Address A-867, care of Editor and Publisher.

HELP WANTED

Advertisements under this classification twenty-five cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Advertising Man

who can produce business for a fast growing daily in a town of ten thousand guarantees a good opportunity for the right party. State salary desired in first letter. Address A-870, care The Reporter-Star Publishing Co., Orlando, Florida.

Newspaper Man.

Wanted young newspaper man to write local and handle city editor's desk, must be hustler, salary permanent position. Afternoon newspaper. Address High Point Enterprise, High Point, N. C.

Foreman

Wanted, a man capable of holding down foremanship of a city daily, which is a responsible position. Besides the foreman, Eight hour day, and everything done to make work pleasant. State salary desired in first letter. The Reporter-Star Publishing Co., Orlando, Florida.

Job Printer

Wanted a first class job printer, one who is familiar with Miller Feeder preferred. Address Reporter-Star Publishing Co., Orlando, Florida.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

Advertisements under this classification, forty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Wanted to Buy

Interest in newspaper publishing field. Want not less than one-half interest, by a man that knows every department of the publishing game, and can take charge of all of it, or any part of it, and conduct it satisfactorily and successfully. Address A-859, care of Editor and Publisher.

Publishers—Attention!

We supply Electrical Equipment of all kinds for newspapers or magazines at very reasonable prices. Our service is prompt and by competent writers. No matter what your needs may be, we can help you. Will take advertising in exchange for all or part. Electrical Literary Bureau, M. O. J. 4, Hannibal, Mo.

New Secretary in Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Herman H. Graham has been elected secretary of the C. N. Matthews Company (publisher of the Buffalo Express), succeeding Finley H. Greene, who recently resigned to become general manager of the E. P. Remington Advertising Agency.

CIRCULATION NOTES

A sort has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Miller at Calgary, Alta., the latter of whom was formerly Miss Carrie Kennedy, for a number of years in charge of an important desk in the circulation department of the Houston Chronicle.

R. B. Gammun, of the Houston Post's country circulation department, was married August 30 to Mrs. L. B. Warren of Houston as the culmination of a 40-year romance.

A. C. Woodside, formerly of Edmonton, has been appointed circulation manager of the Winnipeg Telegram.

The Des Moines Evening Tribune is offering prizes to its readers for the best letters on how to reduce the high cost of living.

The Des Moines Sunday Register announces that the winner of the $100 first prize in its short story contest, open to all Iowa amateur writers, is William Stone, an employe of the government hospital at Fort Des Moines.

The St. Paul Dispatch is conducting a "High Cost of Living" contest. It offers $2 for each letter published and $10 for the best letter of the lot.

John S. Beehm has been appointed circulation manager of the Crowell Publishing Company, New York. There will be no changes in the staff or organization of the circulation department. Mr. Beehm was first assistant to Ernest A. Schulz, who resigned as circulation director on August 31.

Girls and women appeared on Main street and in the lobbies of Buffalo (N. Y.) principal hotels the other day selling newspapers which were donated by the various newspaper offices for the benefit of the Newsboys' Association. Each one wore the official badge. At several stations cans of buttermilk were supplied, the refreshments being served by those contributing to the fund. Flowers were offered for sale at a news stand at Main and Court streets between the hours of 3 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

W. E. Dailey, for the past six and one-half years country circulator of the Minneapolis Daily News, has resigned to become business manager and circulation manager for the Alfalfa Farm Journal, recently removed from Sioux Falls, S. D., to Minneapolis. Mr. Dailey is succeeded by Henry N. Swedish, who had been a reporter on one of the Winona papers before entering the publishing business in Minneapolis.

C. K. Jefferson, who has been a member of the road force of the Des Moines (Iowa) Register and Tribune for the past six months, has been promoted to the position of newsdealer circulator to take the place of J. L. Doolittle, who has become circulation manager of the Port Huron (Mich.) Times-Herald.

Cash prizes, valued at $50 have just been given to women readers for the best letter telling of the advertisements in the Peoria (Ill.) Journal or the Transcript, which has interested her the most. There were ten cash prizes.

$50,000 for investment in a good newspaper property, Ohio, Penna., W. Va., Ky., Indiana. Michigan locations preferred. Proposition T. C.,

Charles M. Palmer

Newspaper Properties

225 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

CONSOLIDATION

is the recognized route to large returns in nearly every line of commercial industry.

We believe that publishing properties offer one of the most attractive of all the fields for merger and consolidation.

We have a record of results in this difficult work that you should investigate.

HARWELL & CANNON

Newspaper and Magazine Properties

Times Building New York

NO NEWSGIRLS IN PORTLAND

Banished by Police Department Order—Boys Must Wear Badges

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 8.—Several hundred newsboys in Portland appeared with their badges on September 1 under the new order of Chief of Police Irving S. Watts that none would be allowed to sell papers without them.

The boys registered and obtained their badges from Superintendent Butler of the Portlander Boys' Club. A number of them labored under the false impression that those who received their badges first would get the pick of the "best customers," but there was a general rush and free-for-all at the start. Superintendent Butler succeeded in pacifying them, however, and they were very orderly thereafter.

Newsgirls in Portland are no more. Chief of Police Watts has given orders that they shall not be allowed to sell papers as they have done to a large extent the past year or two. Hereafter papers will be sold by the younger representatives of the sterner sex and girls will not be allowed to act in competition with them.

Christian Church Authorizes Ads

EUGENE, Ore., Sept. 9.—Full page advertisements will be used by the First Christian church of this city to build up its attendance. The official board has authorized the pastor, Rev. E. V. Stivers, to carry on such a campaign through the fall and winter. Dr. Stivers used this method of advertising his services at Stockton, Cal., with success. His congregations there were built up from a handful in crowded houses every Sunday.

Barnhart Out for Himself

ROCHESTER, Ind., Sept. 9.—Dean L. Barnhart has left the Sentinel to become manager of the Press Club, Ind.) Democrat. He is a son of Henry A. Barnhart, former Congressman and owner of the Rochester Sentinel.

McEndree Elected Secretary

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—H. G. McEndree has been elected secretary of the Culbliss-Kirk Advertising Agency. He recently resigned as vice-president of Horsting & Co., this city.

Digitized by Google

I. E. A. HOME INMATES TO TEACH JOURNALISM

Managing Director Steen Announces Bedford Institution May Be Ready Jan. 1 —Will Conduct Correspondence Study Courses

BEDFORD, Va., Sept. 8.—Managing Director Clyde P. Steen, of the International Editorial Association, which is planning to open a home for newspaper workers here, has announced that the remodeling of the Jeter Institute Building has been placed in the hands of the architect and that the title for the property will pass into the hands of the association within another week. The officers of the association, together with board of directors, will meet in Bedford from September 15 to 18 to ratify this action and transact all other business incidental to opening the Home.

The announcement says:

"Work of remodeling will begin October 1. By January 1, the building will be ready to receive inmates, it is expected.

"The upper floors will be devoted to dormitories and class rooms. Some of the inmates will act as teachers in a school of instruction for young men desiring to enter the newspaper field of work. In addition, these inmates will conduct a correspondence school of instruction.

Officers to Meet Sept. 15-18

"A permanent superintendent for the Home, who will probably be a retired newspaper man, will be appointed at the meeting of the officers on September 15. Several changes in the official staff are being made incidental to the operation of the work here.

"Miss Carol E. Bird, lately of the Detroit Free Press, has been transferred to the New York district office and will be in charge there, while Sam O. Sarokin, who has been in charge of that office, will act as one of the traveling field secretaries.

"Miss Bird has been an assistant in charge of the preliminary work here since the association opened offices in the Jeter Building. She is vice-president of the organization.

"Donald H. Harper, of Mount Vernon, Ohio, will come here to take Miss Bird's position. Harper was formerly editor of the Mount Vernon Daily Banner, and recently returned from service in France.

Opening Branch Offices

"Fred N. Schermerhorn, who has been connected with the Detroit Times, will work Southern territory as one of the field secretaries for some time.

"Managing Director Steen has just received instructions to open southern district offices in Lynchburg. It was decided to have these offices as near the Home as possible and in close touch with the Southern territory. Other district offices have already been established at New York, Chicago and Los Angeles, and another is soon to be opened in Oklahoma City, with Walter M. Harrison in charge.

"C. O. Younger and Charles C. Grant are in charge of the other offices. Mr. Steen will be in charge of the Southern district and will supervise the work at the National Home until a permanent superintendent is appointed.

"All officers have notified Mr. Steen they will be present at the meeting opening the fifteenth."

Elmer Jones of the Denver Post Dies After Illness

Was Business Manager of Newspaper for Six Years, and Connected with It for Over Twenty

(By Telegraph)

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 4.—Elmer Jones, for the last six years business manager of the Denver Post, died at St. Luke's Hospital, in this city, yesterday. Death resulted from a complication of diseases after an illness of six months, during which time a trip to southern California failed to restore his health. He had been connected with the business department of the Post for over twenty years. He was born in Cincinnati forty-two years ago. He leaves a widow and two sons.

His successor has not yet been appointed.

Obituary

MAUDE MEREDITH, wife of H. L. Preston, editor of the New York Produce News, died September 3 from heart failure. The deceased was for years editor of the Housekeeper, at Minneapolis, conducted for 25 years a home department for the Farmer at St. Paul, wrote a number of novels, and was when she died vice-president and director of the P. & D. Publishing Company, owner of the New York, Chicago and California Produce News. She was 71 years old. The interment was at Dubuque, Ia., where she lived for nearly 50 years. She was the wife of Col. D. T. Smith until his death in 1902.

JOHN STARK, a former newspaper man at Orange, Tex., died there August 26.

MRS. MARGARET E. WYLIE MAY, widow of George J. May, who was for many years connected with the Brooklyn office of the New York World, died at Rockville Center, N. Y., on September 7.

JOHN MOORE, editor of the Elmira (N. Y.) Sunday Telegram and former editor of the Albany Sunday Telegram, died in Elmira last week. Mr. Moore was connected with the Elmira paper for several years prior to 1894, when he went to Albany and conducted the Albany Telegram, on which he was associated with the late James Hill. Mr. Moore returned to Elmira after his Albany venture, and conducted the Sunday paper. He was elected a member of the State Board of Regents, holding this position for several years.

MRS. MARIE E. O'REILLY, widow of Edward J. O'Reilly, who was for many years political reporter for the New York Times, died in New York on September 2.

ARNOLD PRINCE, a member of the Jersey City Morning Star staff, died at the Metropolitan Hospital, New York, on September 4.

REV. GILBERT SIMMONS, C. S. P., editor of the Current Events column of the Catholic World, died in New York, September 4.

VAN BUREN CHASE, for 64 years an employe of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Journal, died September 1.

MRS. EDWARD DALTON, mother of James C. Dalton, who is city editor of the Associated Press in New York, died last week at her home in Baldwinville, N. Y., aged 71 years.

REV. J. B. ADAIR, father of Howard J. Adair, of the Dallas (Tex.) Times-Herald staff, died recently of paralysis.

W. J. LACEY, for the last fourteen years editor of the Audubon County Journal, at Exira, Ia., is dead, aged 74 years. He had been ill for several years. He is survived by his wife, five daughters and three sons.

MRS. J. E. MASSENGILL, mother of Fred I. Massengill, editor and publisher of the Terrell (Tex.) Daily Tribune, died at her home in Terrell, August 24, after a brief illness.

PORTER L. BENSON, editor of the Kane (Pa.) Republican and a former Buffalo (N. Y.) newspaper man, died last week after several years' illness.

Reporter Arrests Fugitive

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 9.—While riding on a street car, Roy Albertson, police reporter for the Buffalo Times, saw a man leap from an automobile, reported to have been stolen, and run down the street. Albertson jumped from the street car, pursued the man and caught him. His prisoner was held to the grand jury.

Geo. E. Pollock Left Est Valued at $313,034

Will of A. D. Juillard, Executor of J. Gordon Bennett Estate, Contested by His Niece

George E. Pollock, vice-president the New York Herald Company at time of his death, August 2, 1918, l total estate of $313,034 and a net e of $289,674, according to the appr just filed in the Surrogate's Court, York.

Mr. Pollock died in his sixty-sec year in the residence bequeathed to by the will of the late James Go Bennett. The deed to the property given to Mr. Pollock on the unders ing that it should not be registered u after the death of the benefactor. appraisal value of this property $80,000.

The bulk of the estate is represe by stock and bond investments v at $232,569. Personal property is va at $13,000 and cash in bank tota $13,909.

Attorneys for the executors of late A. D. Juillard, an executor of James Gordon Bennett estate, appea in Goshen, N. Y., Monday and mad motion for an order fixing a date the trial of the action which has b brought by Mary Etta Fauve, of E Wayne, Ind., niece of the deceased, set aside the will on the ground of due influence. The niece by the w gets $10,000 outright and the sum $100,000 is set aside in trust for l

BUFFALO NEWS
EDWARD H. BUTLER
Editor and Publisher
"The only Buffalo newspaper that censors its advertising columns. Many of our advertisers use our columns exclusively. The above is one of the many reasons why."
MEMBER A. B. C.
Foreign Advertising Representatives
KELLY-SMITH COMPANY
220 Fifth Avenue, NEW YORK — Lytton Building, CHICAGO

We can increase your business—you want it increased.
You have thought of press clippings yourself. But let us tell you how press clipping can be made a business-builder for you.
BURRELLE
145 Lafayette St., N. Y. City
Established a Quarter of a Century

The amalgamation of the two leading progressive Jewish newspapers of New York
THE DAY
and
THE WARHEIT
hereafter being the most powerful advertising medium in the Jewish field.
The Day
דער טאג
The National Jewish Daily

R. J. Bidwell Co
Pacific Coast Representative
Daily Newspapers
of
"Advertising Value"
Rates, Circulation, Special Data,
Promptly Upon Request
PACIFIC COAST OFFICES
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SAN FRANCISCO SEATTLE
742 Market St. 1302 L. C. Smith Bldg.

Food Medium
of
New Jersey
Trenton Times
A. B. C.
2c—12c Per Week
KELLY-SMITH COMPANY
20 Fifth Avenue, NEW YORK — Lytton Building, CHICAGO

Canadian Press Clippings
The problem of covering the Canadian Field is answered by obtaining the service of The Dominion Press Clipping Agency
which gives the clippings on all matters of interest to you, printed in over 85 per cent. of the newspapers and publications of CANADA.
We cover every foot of Canada and Newfoundland at our head office.
74-76 Church St., Toronto, Can.
Price of service, regular press clipping rates—special rates and discounts to Trade and Newspapers.

Hemstreet's
PRESS
CLIPPINGS
Tenth Avenue at 45th Street
New York

OHIO FIRST

Your Business Progress Is Dependent On Your Advertising

Newspapers Are First in Creating And Sustaining Progress

"Ohio First" newspapers give both QUANTITY of circulation and QUALITY of circulation—a winning combination—among a population of 5,273,814 (the fourth State in population in the U. S.).

"Ohio First" newspapers have a local dealer influence and a greater local advertising potentiality than any other advertising medium.

Ohio people are always intensely interested in their state, in Ohio products and Ohio business—and local retail merchants reach local buyers of merchandise through their local daily newspapers.

While Ohio's identity is marked by tremendous manufacturing activity, it is well to keep in mind that Ohio's agricultural balance makes Ohio a leading state of the Union.

The following figures are conservative but they indicate a tremendous value of annual crops and therefore suggest an unusual spending capacity of Ohio's population:

150,100,000 bushels corn
99,072,000 pounds tobacco
78,100,000 bushels oats
41,000,000 bushels wheat
16,000,000 bushels potatoes
13,000,000 pounds wool
6,336,000 bushels apples
4,154,000 tons hay
1,093,000 gallons syrup

The following daily newspapers work in harmony with local retailers in their communities, and can do great work for national advertisers in making a mighty worth while market worth a whole lot to them:

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Akron Beacon-Journal (E)	31,110	.05	.05
*Akron Times (E)	20,454	.03	.03
Bellaire Daily Leader (E)	3,446	.02	.0125
*Cambridge Daily Jeffersonian (E)	8,117	.0179	.0179
Chillicothe News-Advertiser (E)	3,055	.00714	.00857
Cincinnati Enquirer, Sc. (M&S)	62,911	.12	.12
Cleveland Plain Dealer (M)	168,440	.24	.24
Cleveland Plain Dealer (S)	208,02-	.27	.27
Columbus Dispatch (E)	75,402	.115	.105
Columbus Dispatch (S)	71,117	.115	.105
Columbus (O.) State Journal (M)	53,155	.10	.09
Columbus (O.) State Journal (S)	37,147	.10	.09
*Dayton News (E)	37,240	.065	.065
*Dayton News (S)	29,533	.045	.045
East Liverpool Tribune (M)	6,138	.015	.015
Lima Daily News (E&S)	12,549	.0286	.0214
Lima Republican Gazette (M&S)	10,008	.02	.02
Middletown Journal (E)	4,174	.0115	.0115
Newark American-Tribune (E)	6,217	.0179	.0179
New Philadelphia Daily Times (E)	4,413	.0129	.0129
Piqua Daily Call (E)	4,019	.0114	.0114
*Springfield News (E&S)	13,838	.025	.025
Toledo Blade (E)	82,973	.17	.15
Warren Daily Chronicle (E)	5,200	.02	.02
Youngstown Telegram (E)	21,601	.05	.05
Youngstown Vindicator (E)	24,558	.05	.05
Youngstown Vindicator (S)	22,223	.05	.05
Zanesville Signal (E)	10,704	.025	.025

Government Statements, April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. Report, April 1st, 1919.

Digitized by Google

Distribution and Advertising

Comparatively few manufacturers have sufficient distribution to make it possible for them to use the general medium without waste and to pay for something of little or no value to them

You can cover:

NEW YORK	CLEVELAND
CHICAGO	DETROIT
PHILADELPHIA	PITTSBURGH
BOSTON	BALTIMORE
ST. LOUIS	CINCINNATI

With thirteen newspapers having 3,224,629 circulation for $4.15 per line on a 5,000-line contract

Here are the newspapers:

New York Globe	Detroit News
New York Times	Baltimore Sun
New York Evening Sun	St. Louis Globe-Democrat
Chicago Daily News	Pittsburgh Press
Chicago Tribune	Cincinnati Times Star
Philadelphia Bulletin	Cleveland News
Boston Globe

Broader campaigns, including additional territory at approximately same rate per line, can be arranged through the use of newspaper space and in no other way

Member A. B. C.

The New York Globe

JASON ROGERS, Publisher

180,000 A DAY

84 Pages, Including Space-Buyers' Charts and Market Survey of Connecticu

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1919

Entered as second-class matter May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Weekly: $3.00 a Year; 10c Per Copy. NEW YORK, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1919 Vol. 52, No.

WHOLESALING NEWS

Distributing Chicago Tribune Stories From Paris to Shanghai

Map showing system of leased wires by which news papers from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Canada to the Gulf receive news reports from The Chicago Tribune.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE news and features have a circulation far greater than that of the largest national magazine. The public is familiar with the world-wide organization through which The Tribune gathers news, but few think of The Tribune as a distributor of news—retail and wholesale.

Through The Tribune Syndicate and The Tribune News Bureau, the influence of the W. G. N. radiates to every section of the United States and even to France, Canada, Cuba and China. The Syndicate sells Tribune cartoons and such features as Dr. Evans, Doris Blake, B. L. T., Tribune comics, etc. Chicago Tribune features are purchased by the Shanghai Times and by El Mundo of Havana, Cuba, and, of course, news is cabled and features mailed regularly to The Paris Edition of The Tribune.

The Tribune Syndicate has made "The Gumps," "Gasoline Alley," "Bobby Make-Believe," "Antoinette Donnelly" and other distinctive Tribune features household words not only in The Chicago Territory, but in every state in the Union.

The News Bureau sells exclusive stories of Tribune local reporters and Tribune foreign correspondents. Certain papers pay The Tribune as much as $1,000 a month for a complete news report nightly. Such reports amounting to 12,000 to 15,000 words each are sent every night from The Tribune office to the following seventeen newspapers over leased wires. The circulation of these papers, together with that of The Tribune, amounts to 2,500,000:

N. Y. Illustrated Daily News
Buffalo Inquirer
Pittsburgh Post
Minneapolis Journal
Kansas City Star
Lincoln State Journal
Denver Rocky Mountain News
Salt Lake Tribune
Seattle Post Intelligencer
Portland Telegram
San Francisco Chronicle
Los Angeles Times
San Antonio Express
Houston Post
Fort Worth Star Telegram
New Orleans Item
Little Rock Gazette

In addition, the news report is mailed from the nearest leased wire relay to the Vancouver (British Columbia) World and to the Great Falls (Montana) Tribune.

The Boston Post buys a full news report, but receives it over ordinary wires, paying regular telegraph rates.

In addition the News Bureau sends out "queries" each night to many other papers, which buy as much or as little as they please, paying for it at space rates. The success of The Chicago Tribune News Bureau is due to the close personal attention given to the needs of every paper served.

Members of The Chicago Tribune staff now stationed abroad as special correspondents include: Floyd Gibbons, Henry Wales, Spearman Lewis and Betty Van Benthuysen in France; Henry Hyde and Arthur Mann in England; Parke Brown and Richard Henry Little in Germany; Thomas Stewart Ryan in Poland; J. H. Clayton in Greece; and Frederick A. Smith in Japan.

Digitized by Google

THE EASE OF DOING BUSINESS IN CANADA and the absence of maritime risks and insurance are factors that should influence American Advertisers to Cultivate the Canadian Market.

Canadians already know and appreciate American goods. Pioneer work is unnecessary.

American manufacturers are missing an opportunity if they are not getting their share of this splendid Canadian market that is concentrated, therefore easy and economical to reach.

Canada is a country of daily newspapers the same as the United States. The newspapers listed on this page reach about two-thirds of the population of the Dominion which has an area larger than that of the United States. This two-thirds of Canada's population is in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec covered by the following daily newspapers.

Suppose you had the tremendous selling force of these daily newspapers working for you; don't you think you would soon feel the benefit?

The advertising manager of any of them or any recognized advertising agency will give information regarding dealers and methods of distribution in Canada.

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO
Population 2,523,274

	Circulation	Lines 2,500	Lines 10,000
Border Cities Star (Windsor)	12,403	.03	.03
†Brantford Expositor	10,160	.025	.025
†Brockville Recorder-Times	4,225	.0179	.0107
Chatham Daily News	2,472	.01	.0071
*Galt Reporter	3,955	.015	.0125
†Guelph Mercury	3,877	.015	.01
*Hamilton Spectator	31,058	.055	.05
Hamilton Times	11,200	.035	.03
*Kingston British Whig (E)	5,549	.025	.02
*London Free Press (MN&E)	41,609	.07	.06
*Peterborough Examiner (E)	5,329	.0193	.015
*St. Catharines Standard (E)	7,632	.0275	.0175
*Toronto Globe (M)	80,388	.15	.11
*Toronto Star (E)	86,157	.14	.11
*Toronto Star (S)	75,777	.105	.09
*Toronto World (M)	27,437	.09	.06
*Toronto World (S)	87,655	.12	.09

Government Statement, April 1, 1919.
*A. B. C. Report, April 1, 1919.
†Publishers' Statement, April 1, 1919.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC
Population 2,002,731—English 397,392
French 1,605,339

	Circulation	Lines 2,500	Lines 10,000
*Montreal Gazette (3c-$8 yr.) (M)	32,110	.035	.07
*Montreal La Presse (2c per copy) (E)	117,127	.13	.11
*Montreal Star (E)	111,151	.13	.11
*Quebec Le Soleil (E)	39,356	.06	.06

Digitized by Google

BASEBALL BUGS

WANT TO READ ABOUT THE COMING WORLD'S SERIES FROM EVERY ANGLE

NEA

AS USUAL N. E. A. WILL GIVE ITS CLIENTS, IN ADVANCE, A WONDERFUL SERVICE OF SMASHING FEATURES, SMART LAYOUTS AND ACTION PHOTOGRAPHS FOR USE NOT ONLY DURING THE WEEK BEFORE THE GAMES BUT ALSO WHILE THE GAMES ARE BEING PLAYED.

FRED TURBYVILLE, famous N. E. A. sports writer, will visualize the coming contests from the standpoint of an expert.

ROY GROVE, clever N. E. A. sports artist, will illustrate the stories in both serious and humorous vein.

BOB DORMAN, On-The-Spot news photographer has spent three months with the big leagues making action pictures for the series.

WRITE OR WIRE

The Newspaper Enterprise Association
(A SERVICE, NOT A SYNDICATE)
Cleveland, Ohio

Digitized by Google

The Clyde of America

"The Philadelphia Board of Trade maintains that the Delaware River has earned the right to be called the Clyde of America because of the shipping tonnage which has been and will be launched in its waters before the end of this year. According to the board, more than 1,000,000 deadweight tons of shipping will have been launched in the Delaware by Dec. 31, 1919."

New York Times, August 26, 1919.

Philadelphia Board of Trade Reports of 1919 Shipyard Tonnage

Clyde (Scotland) Yards	550,000 tons
All United Kingdom Yards	1,500,000 "
Delaware River (Philadelphia) Yards	1,479,000 "

Dominate Philadelphia

Create maximum impression at one cost by concentrating in the newspaper "nearly everybody" reads—

The Bulletin

Net Paid Average for August 448,246 Copies a Day

No prize, premium, coupon or other artificial methods of stimulating circulation have ever been used by The Bulletin.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Thursday—forms closing at two P. M. on the Wednesday preceding the date of publication—by The Editor & Publisher Co., Suite 1117, New York World Building, 63 Park Row, New York City. Private Branch Telephone Exchange, Beekman 4330.
James Wright Brown, President; Fenton Dowling, Secretary.

Vol. 52 NEW YORK, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1919 No. 16

WANAMAKER, AMERICA'S MASTER MERCHANT, NEVER TAKES VACATION FROM ADVERTISING

For More Than Half a Century Successful Philadelphian Has Given a Part of Each Working Day to Advertising Thought—Writes Everything Appearing Over His Signature—Puts Faith in Newspaper Space

WHILE the part advertising has had in the success of John Wanamaker, dating from a night in April, 1861, when at the close of the first day's business of Wanamaker & Brown the present merchant leader kept 67 cents for change and invested the balance of the day's receipts, $24, in advertising, there are a great many things that have never been told about the part purchased space has played in building one of the foremost retail institutions in the world.

Wanamaker's is more of an institution than a store, or group of stores, it is generally conceded. Advertising has been one of the dominant factors in its creation.

Advertisements That Live

Wanamaker advertisements are printed words that live, in that they reflect the thoughts and acts of John Wanamaker, aged 81, the creative driving power that has made and is today keeping the stores that bear his name at the forefront in the ranks of dealers with the people of America.

With Wanamaker's, advertising is more than a means to sell goods. It is the courier of a business creed and is representative of but one thing—John Wanamaker, the man, who has something to sell backed by a selling knowledge gained in a business life of 58 years.

Wanamaker's believes in but one kind of advertising media—newspapers.

Books have been written about John Wanamaker—good books and inspiring books—but taken all in all there are many things that have not been disclosed. To advertising men and newspaper owners, his daily work should be a much better heralded lesson of advertising—not only as a stepping stone to success, but as the foundation upon which business can be maintained as a living thing.

Led Pershing Welcome

John Wanamaker celebrated his 81st birthday anniversary on July 11—but years mean nothing to a man like him.

On September 12, Philadelphia turned out en masse to welcome America's great war leader fresh from the battlefields of Europe. John Wanamaker was there. His eyes twinkled in anticipation like those of the school children who tossed $10,000 worth of flowers in the pathway of General Pershing. There was a happy smile on his face, and when all-America's war hero stepped from the shrine of American independence and faced the multitude that filled Independence Square, it's a safe bet that there was a youthful catch in John Wanamaker's throat and that he never really knew whether he shouted nor how long he applauded.

Advertising is the keystone in the creed of John Wanamaker that built business success. That advertising has been kept young and virile and every Wanamaker advertisement is merely a reflection of John Wanamaker's ideas, ideals and beliefs.

In more than half a century of business success John Wanamaker has taken many vacations—he has traveled far in the out of the way places of the world; he has forgotten about "good buys," "easy sales," meetings of bank directors and a hundred other things in which he is vitally interested; he has forgotten all those things that he might play, but never—not for a single day—has he failed to give his personal attention to Wanamaker advertising.

JOHN WANAMAKER.

From that night in 1861, when Wanamaker at the close of his first day's business sat down to write an advertisement that would meet his $24 purchasing power, until the early eighties he wrote all Wanamaker advertisements. For many years those advertisements were written at the close of the day's business on the basis of the purchasing power of the day's receipts, and it is worthy of notice that each day's receipts were always greater than those of the day before.

Today Mr. Wanamaker goes around with his pockets bulging with scraps of paper—not unlike a boy who picks up to keep everything that interests him. Those scraps of paper, torn at random, among them even the backs of envelopes and pages ripped from note books, each holds a thought jotted down immediately when it comes to him, and many of them have to do with advertising.

Pockets Full of Ideas

To him advertising is still the most important of his business activities. He directs all Wanamaker advertising campaigns and criticises, and at times changes and rebuilds, all Wanamaker advertisements because he believes that printed words are the tonic necessary to the success of his vast business.

When you read a statement in a Wanamaker advertisement that is followed by John Wanamaker's signature you can rest assured that he wrote it and it is not often that you will see an advertisement of one of his stores without such a statement.

He writes those statements with painstaking care, the corrections he makes are sometimes many—some are rewritten twenty times or more—but when you read it finally it is all his message to you, even to the most minute corrections.

Contrary to general belief, Mr. Wanamaker does not have a single dollar invested in a newspaper enterprise. The estate of his son, the late Thomas Wanamaker, is interested in several newspapers and that has caused this impression. Early in life, however, he was an editor and publisher of a weekly newspaper called Everybody's Journal. That was before he won the honor of being the first paid secretary of the Y. M. C. A., or had abandoned a career as a lawyer.

Marked New Era

From the beginning, Wanamaker advertising has been used to carry a daily message to the public, except Sunday. On September 26, 1874, Mr. Wanamaker first, in a large way, made a step that attracted the wide attention that he has since been able to hold, when he used a half page to announce a new policy which was set forth as

(Continued on Page 64.)

Digitized by Google

PUBLISHERS TAKE OPENING STEP TO OBTAIN ZONE LAW REPEAL

Chairman Victor Rosewater of A. N. P. A. Postal Committee Confers with Washington Leaders on Mondell Resolution —Strong Opposition Reported Developing

(BY TELEGRAPH)

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.

IN order to acquaint himself with the situation in Washington relative to the second class postal zone system, which Republican Leader Mondell hopes to repeal at an early date, Victor Rosewater, of the Omaha Bee, who is the new chairman of the postal affairs committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, was in the Capital this week.

Mr. Rosewater conferred with a number of House leaders in order to obtain a clearer understanding of their viewpoint on the Zone Law, especially of the members who are supporting the Post Office Department in the fight against its repeal.

Gave Some the Publishers' Point of View

His mission was in some sense an effort to lobby for repeal of the bill, since the publishers will conduct their fight when the ways and means committee of the House begins consideration of the Mondell repeal resolution. But Mr. Rosewater was able to give the leaders with whom he conferred something of the publishers' point of view.

In some of his conferences, Mr. Rosewater drew an analogy between a package of laundry and a bundle of daily newspapers, pointing out that it costs less to ship the former by mail than it does a newspaper under Mr. Burleson's zone system. Although Mr. Rosewater would not commit himself in his conferences, it was plain to the casual observer at the capitol that a very strenuous opposition has developed to the Mondell Bill on two accounts, both of which have been outlined in previous issues of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

Points of Opposition

They are: First, the belief of some of the leaders, notably Representative Steenerson, of Minnesota, who is chairman of the House committee on Post Office and Post Roads and who is in agreement with Post Office Department officials on the question; and, second, a considerable body of members who do not believe that any revenue yielding legislation can be repealed with safety under the existing financial condition of the Treasury of the United States.

Chairman Good, of the Appropriations Committee, having predicted today that even though Congress does not appropriate another penny, which is highly improbable, there will be a deficit of not less than $500,000,000 at the end of the current fiscal year.

Representative Mondell still is hopeful of getting the Ways and Means Committee to act on his resolution in the near future, and he was understood to have encouraged Mr. Rosewater to do the same, but that this feeling of optimism is not shared by many other Republican leaders, especially in the Senate where Messrs. Smoot and Penrose, both of whom are opponents of the zone law, are not inclined to open the flood gates of tax repeals if there is any way to avoid it.

Objects to New P. O. Ruling

Debates on such measures would be certain to compel confession that reduction of income taxes and repeal of the so-called consumption taxes is not probable during the current fiscal year.

While in Washington, Mr. Rosewater conferred with officials relative to the ruling by the Post Office Department that advertising by a newspaper in its own columns is advertising within the meaning of Zone Law, whereas the copy in the interest of the government or such organizations as the Red Cross is not.

The best that the Post Office Department promises to do is to consider the publishers' argument.

Amalgamated Press Officials Complete American Tour

A. R. Linforth and A. B. Blayney Will Sail for Home Saturday—They Like America

Take it on the authority of no less keen observers than A. R. Linforth, the joint secretary, and A. B. Blayney, the general manager of Lord Northcliffe's Amalgamated Press, which prints so many publications that no one has ever memorized the names of all of them, that the only real difference between Englishmen and Americans is the way Americans have of pronouncing some of their words.

"You'll pull me up a bit on that, Linforth, if I'm wrong," said Blayney, when this matter was under serious discussion at the Biltmore, Tuesday evening, with a representative of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

"Righto," said Blayney.

The two Englishmen, who are the most likable chaps imaginable, still speak English rather strangely (to the American ear), owing to the fact that they have been in the United States two weeks only.

"A fortnight," said Linforth.

They were sent over here by Lord Northcliffe's big publishing house to prowl around a bit on the American terrain, penetrating as far into the interior as the Chicago river, stopping for several days at the outer shores, and also at a place farther north, named after the shaggy beasts that used to roam the American continent and were killed off by an American who took a Wild West Show to England.

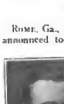
Not Over Advertised

Niagara Falls is only a jaunt away and, take it from Messrs. Linforth and Blayney, it is the finest sight that the United States has to offer a discerning tourist—especially from the Canadian side.

Charles Wiles, advertising manager of London's big store, Harrod's, Ltd., came over here recently, gave Niagara Falls a passing glance, and told EDITOR & PUBLISHER that, in his opinion, the falls had been over-advertised.

"Can you over-advertise a good thing? Rather not!" was Messrs. Linforth and Blayney's comment on this verdict. (The falls are really immense when viewed from the Canadian side.)

So they are going back to London to advertise America, as being so much like England and so much worth while, that it ought to be cultivated. For that matter, many more Englishmen, they agree, come to America, than there are Americans who visit England. If more Americans would visit the mother country, it would be no time at all before the United States would be quite like England.



At Philadelphia, Washington, New York City, Chicago and Detroit, the two visitors were entertained in a way that pleased them greatly by the heads of establishments in which they were principally interested—the big printing press, type, type-setting, and publishing houses of this country. Their organization has made large purchases of printing supplies here and is contemplating more. They were sent here to study recent improvements in methods and production. They gained a wealth of information, they said.

They sail Saturday on the Adriatic.

ROME DAILY NEWS OUT SEPTEMBER 20

Manager and Editor T. E. Edwards Announces Make-Up of Staff Polleies and Plans of New Georgia Newspaper

ROME, Ga., Sept. 17.—It was definitely announced today that the Daily News will make its appearance for the first time on September 20. In a statement to EDITOR & PUBLISHER, T. E. Edwards, who will be manager and editor, said:

T. E. EDWARDS.

"We have great plans for our publication here. We are putting in full Leased wire service with the service of the 'N. E. A.,' and expect to cover the local news thoroughly, as well as in the small towns near here. Of course, we are Democrats and our chief policy will be to give Rome and northwest Georgia a long-felt need in the way of a real, live, boosting newspaper.

"W. G. Foster, formerly with the Chattanooga Times, is managing editor; O. McPeat, formerly with the Birmingham Ledger, is circulation manager; C. B. Wright, formerly of the Anniston (Ala.) Star, is advertising manager. I will direct both his editorial and business departments.

"For a town this size, we believe our advance circulation is almost phenomenal. We had expected to get 4,000 bona-fide subscribers to begin with, whereas we will have near 6,500. This we expect to hold, as we are beyond a doubt going to give this section the best local newspaper they have ever had."

New Sunday Editor in Hartford

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 17.—Ralph Reed Wolfe, who has been Sunday editor of the Courant since the establishment of the Sunday paper in 1913, has resigned to enter the sales promotion and publicity department of the Aetna Life Insurance Company. Ray T. Tucker becomes Sunday editor. He has been with the Courant as a reporter since shortly after his graduation from Yale in 1915 and was correspondent for the paper at Camp Devens in 1917. He later served in France in the infantry.

McANENY MENTIONED FOR BERLIN POST

Executive Manager of New York Times Mentioned in Washington Despatch as the Choice of President Wilson —No Confirmation Obtainable

A special despatch to the New York World, dated September 14, announced:

"As soon as the Senate disposes of the German peace treaty and opens the way to the restoration of diplomatic relations with Germany, President Wilson will announce the name of his selection as Ambassador to Berlin. There is excellent authority to justify the statement that the President has already selected the man for the most important and difficult post and the delay in the ratification of the peace treaty alone prevents announcement of his identity.

"Unless there are unexpected complications, the name that the President will send to the Senate will be that of George McAneny, former Borough President of Manhattan, and now executive manager of the New York Times.

"The President has had Mr. McAneny in mind for the post of Ambassador to Berlin for some time and there is reason to believe that barring unforeseen developments he will accept it if he has not already done so."

At Mr. McAneny's New York home it was said that he was at his summer home at Bolton Landing, Lake George, on telegraphic inquiry there by EDITOR & PUBLISHER brought the information that he "was out of town."

Mr. McAneny's associates at the Times offices say they know nothing further than what has been printed, and the Washington correspondent of EDITOR & PUBLISHER reports: "Acting secretary of State Phillips says: 'I know nothing about Mr. McAneny in the connection mentioned.'"

Court Refuses Libel Case Based on Dead Man

Unusual Suit Decided in Favor of Kansas City Star—Hyde Case Is Appealed to Supreme Court

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 16.—There can be no civil libel against the dead. This is the ruling of Judge T. B. Buckner in the case brought by Mrs. Rebecca Fry and two minor children against the Kansas City Star for $50,000 damages. Mrs. Fry's former husband, Rolla Harvey, was killed and in 1913 and in 1916 in telling of the death of Mr. Harvey's brother, the death of the former was recounted. It was on publication of this article that the suit was based. Judge Buckner upheld the demurrer of the Star.

Dr. B. Clark Hyde, whose suit for alleged libel against the Star asking $2,500,000 damages was dismissed by Judge Hall in July because of the statute of limitations, has appealed to the Missouri Supreme Court. The suit is based on publication of testimony in the Hyde murder trial which was not allowed to go to the jury.

G. M. Trowbridge Critically Ill

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 15.—George M. Trowbridge, editor of The Portland (Ore.) Journal, recently underwent a serious operation at St. Vincent's Hospital, Portland. Although he rallied from the operation his condition is considered critical. He is one of the best known journalists in the West.

Digitized by Google

URGENT NEWS PRINT CONSERVATION APPEAL MADE BY A. N. P. A. BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Following Special Meeting Held in New York to Consider Need of Economy in Consumption, President Glass Says Many Publishers Are Not Awake to Danger of Serious Shortage Even with Mills Working at Full Capacity

DESPITE depreciation by some paper manufacturers of what they have characterized as "alarmist reports" in EDITOR & PUBLISHER concerning a possible shortage of newsprint, the board of directors of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association is agreed that the situation is a serious one and that there is urgent need for conservation in every practical way by every newspaper publisher in the country.

At the instance of Elbert H. Baker, publisher of the Cleveland Plain Dealer and chairman of the Association's Committee on Paper, a special meeting of the board of directors was called by President Frank P. Glass, editor of the Birmingham News, and was held last Thursday in New York City.

After the meeting, in a statement made to EDITOR & PUBLISHER, President Glass said that other topics, such as labor problems, had been discussed by the directors, but that the important subject and the one for which the directors had been called into special conference, was the newsprint situation. He said:

Must Act in Own Interests

"The result of our deliberations was an agreement to use all the moral suasion we could, to persuade all newspapers of the United States to act in their own interests by restricting consumption.

"Many newspapers are not awake to the danger of a serious shortage. These papers are not curtailing consumption of newsprint in ways which would be readily apparent to them, if proper effort were given to the emergency. The directors of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association have no authority to effect restrictive measures—they can only appeal to these newspapers to save all by serving their own best interests.

"There seems to be no doubt that production of newsprint cannot be increased for months and months. On the other hand, there has been in many quarters a feverish demand for paper, which has practically resulted in a run-away market. Fear of the railroad strike caused publishers to scramble for excess tonnage at high prices.

Mills at Full Capacity

"I do not believe that the mill men want a run-away market, and I do not believe they are trying to restrict the output. On the contrary, I am advised reliably that the mills are running to full capacity.

"It is time for the directors of the Association to say or even to suggest in what way or ways each newspaper can cut down its consumption of newsprint most effectively. It has been suggested that one way of doing this is to increase subscription prices and so limit circulation, but I do not believe that any reasonable raise in subscription price has any appreciable effect, other than temporarily, on circulation.

"Another expedient, which undoubtedly will be found more practical, in many cases, is increase in advertising rates, with the intention of limiting the amount of space used by individual advertisers and so increasing the number of these that can be served without greater or even with less consumption of newsprint.

"Another plan that many newspapers can put into effect is to eliminate certain of their special features—especially those in Sunday issues—and print fewer columns of news in proportion to the volume of their advertising."

Method of Conserving

Another method of conserving newsprint was pointed out by the Association recently in one of its bulletins, as follows:

"At a time when every pound of newsprint saved tends to relieve a dangerous situation, it is difficult to understand why the mails are still clogged with the free advertising copy of the press agent. Even though in the days of cheap paper some publishers permitted their news columns to be virtually sold by the press agent to others seeking free publicity, it would seem that the present is a good time to put a stop and a final stop to the practice."

It is understood that the directors of the Association discussed at their special meeting the advantage of having New York City newspapers take the lead in the conservation of newsprint, inasmuch as they were the heaviest consumers of paper, and the example they set in this way would carry weight with other papers throughout the country.

Baker Seeks Action

Elbert H. Baker, chairman of the Committee on Paper, said he had been led to ask that a meeting of the directors be called, because he, personally, was convinced of the urgent need of paper conservation, and because he had received letters and telegrams to the same effect from other newspaper publishers. "Mr. Glass and I are in hearty accord on this matter and we hope our sentiments will bear fruit as soon as possible," he said.

In a statement on the paper situation issued by the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, following the special meeting of the directors, which is printed herewith, it will be noted that there are now wide fluctuations in price for spot paper and that such limited offerings as there have been have ranged from $4.75 to $5.40 a mill.

How prices have increased in the past month is reflected in a statement issued by the Association in its bulletin of August 9, which stated:

How Prices Have Risen

"Publishers are experiencing extreme difficulty in securing additional tonnage above contract, and such as can be found is offered at prices well in excess of $3.75. Some lots have recently been offered at from $4.10 to $4.40 f. o. b. mill, and some small offers are reported as high as $4.65 mill and $5.20 delivered."

The statement of that date continued:

"These extreme demands indicate the danger of a run-away market, resulting in part through the operations of speculative brokers, and the many efforts of publishers to secure additional paper.

"It is reported that the mills now have on hand an average of but four days' supply, or less than at any time during 1918, notwithstanding the fact that during the first six months of this year production exceeded that of the first six months of 1918 by approximately 6 per cent. The Federal Trade Commission reports show that on June 30, there was on hand and in transit an average of about 27 days' supply against the supply of 56 days on June 30, 1918.

"There seems to be less surplus newsprint available for use at the present time than at any time during the war, and any interruption of production or transportation would result in even increased prices because of the absence of reserve stock or any margin of safety.

Economy Is Only Solution

"There seems to be no hope of relief through increased production of newsprint being secured at the expense of the production of specialties, because the specialty market is reported to be at the present time as high or higher comparatively than newsprint.

"There is reason to believe that the quantity of advertising will increase in the near future and the only visible hope of relief for the present seems to lie in universal and thorough economy on the part of consumers.

"It is suggested that publishers immediately co-operate with the publishers in their city with a view to taking steps to reduce consumption, and thereby lessen the danger of largely increased prices and unequal supply."

The statement of President Glass to EDITOR & PUBLISHER that the production of newsprint probably could not be increased for months is concurred in by the Newsprint Service Bureau of the paper manufacturers, which reports slightly less increase in production during the first eight months of this year than for the first six or seven months, as compared with the same periods last year, the increase for the first six and seven months being approximately six per cent. The Bureau does not expect any increase in the present percentage of increase during the fall.

"MOST RIGID ECONOMIES" NEEDED TO INSURE ENOUGH 1920 NEWS PRINT TONNAGE, A. N. P. A. DECLARES

FOLLOWING a special meeting of the board of directors of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, the following statement, headed "The Paper Situation," appears in a bulletin issued by the Association:

"There has been little if any change in the paper market other than an apparent lessening of demand and wide fluctuation in price for spot paper. Such limited offerings as there have been have ranged from $4.75 to $5.40 mill.

"So far as has been learned, it seems to be the consensus of opinion that unless publishers collectively put into immediate operation the most rigid economies, the demand for 1920 tonnage may be expected to exceed the capacity of the mills with the resulting difficulties of a disturbed market.

"It is obvious that the only method of avoiding the anticipated difficulties of the future market is for publishers to realize that unless immediate reduction of consumption is effected and maintained prices may be expected to be adversely influenced for such paper as may be supplied under contract for 1920, as well as for such spot paper as may be available.

"Publishers are again urged to practice every economy."

SEATTLE TIMES JUMPS ITS PRICES

Management Says Raise to 5 Cents, Daily, and to 10 Cents, Sunday, Was Necessitated by the Increasing High Cost of News Print

(BY TELEGRAPH)

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 17.—On the ground that it will have to pay $500,000 more for its newsprint in 1920 than in 1919, the Seattle Times has increased its subscription price from three to five cents daily, and from seven to ten cents Sunday, and has also increased its advertising rates.

The managements of the Post Intelligencer, the Star and the Record say that no advance in the subscription prices of those papers is contemplated.

In a public statement, the Times explains that its Sunday paper weighs a pound and a half and, with newsprint at five cents a pound, costs it seven and a half cents for paper stock alone, although the Sunday issues are sold to vendors at four cents. Its daily papers weigh a half pound each, so the publishers merely break even at the advanced subscription price by selling the dailies to vendors at two and a half cents.

Cost Up Over 100%

"The cost of production has advanced the price of white paper more than 100 per cent," the Times declares. "We can either cease publication and wind up our affairs; call upon advertisers to pay, through advanced rates, this additional cost; can divide this additional cost between the readers, the advertisers and itself; can reduce the cost of publication by printing less news and fewer and less expensive features, or make some combination of these three preceding plans. The Times has selected the last plan."

Newspapers all over the country are confronted by the cold fact that the cost of production has greatly increased and must increase; revenues diminish expenditures or suspend publication, the Times concludes.

Digitized by Google

WANTS NAVY RADIO TO CARRY NEWS

Representative Curry Wants Legislation Making Permanent the System Used During War Emergency—5-6 Cent Rate from Far East

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Established charges of 5 cents a word for radio news and commercial messages by Navy wireless from the Philippines, Japan and Korea, and 6 cents a word from China, with the Secretary of the Navy directed to authorize such use of the Navy's system, are provided in a bill to be taken up for consideration by the House Merchant Marine Committee next week.

Secretary Daniels has reported that this press news and commercial service over the Navy's wireless from the Orient, which has been permitted during the war, will be terminated with the promulgation of peace. The existing law and regulations do not authorize such use of the Navy's wireless, according to the opinion of legal authorities.

While this interpretation of the law does not coincide with the views of the House lawyers, Republican Curry, of California, who introduced the pending bill, seeks to overcome the difficulty raised by the Navy and proposes a mandatory direction for continuance of the news and commercial radio service at fixed prices.

Matter of Great Importance

"The proposed legislation is of great importance to the newspapers and commercial interests of this country," said Mr. Curry today. "Unless the Navy wireless continues to carry news dispatches and commercial messages from Asia, Japan, the Philippines, and other Orient points, all such messages will have to come to the United States over the wireless systems controlled by the Japanese and British, and be subject to the censorship of agents of these governments.

"The tolls also will have to be paid to these foreign governments or operating concerns." Such a condition would be "intolerable," Curry added.

Newspaper Relics Burned

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 16.—O. H. Hovey, president of the Southern Printing Company, who has the finest collection of newspaper relics in Oklahoma, suffered almost its entire loss during a fire that destroyed his plant. His collection included autographed photographs of all Presidents from Grant to Wilson, complete first copies of Louisville Conrier-Journal, New York Tribune, New York Sun, Chicago Tribune and many other well known papers.

Portrait of Sibley on Exhibit

BOSTON, Sept. 17.—A portrait of Frank P. Sibley, war correspondent of the Boston Globe with the Yankee Division, by Mary L. Titcomb, is on exhibit in the Copley Gallery. Critics have pronounced it a fine bit of portrait painting that has behind the surface likeness the very spirit of "Sib"—the thing that General Edwards has said "made Frank Sibley an important part of the soul of the Yankee Division in France."

Adopts 12½ Em Column

STOCKTON, Cal., Sept. 15.—The Daily Independent is now being issued in eight-column page form. Twelve and a half ems is the new width of column, but 21½ inches continues as the length.

France Had a Chinese Paper

TROY, Pa., Sept. 16.—James Yen, editor of a Chinese newspaper in France, published during the World War, spoke on his newspaper experiences here recently. He told of the problems confronting him in establishing the paper, which was meant for circulation among the 200,000 Chinese fighters and laborers in France.

Issued Daily for Convention

"Printing," the New York Trade weekly, was issued as a daily during the convention of the United Typothetae this week.

$150,000 Paper Mill Fire

ASTORIA, Orc., Sept. 15.—The plant of the Astoria Pulp and Paper Company was totally destroyed this week with a loss of approximately $150,000. Several barges of paper stock were damaged. The fire is believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion.

New Manager in Reading

READING, Pa., Sept. 16.—George W. Kunsman, a former business manager of the York Dispatch, has been appointed business manager of the News-Times and Telegram here.

S. J. DUNCAN-CLARK, FROM A NEW SKETCH

THE above picture shows the widely known chief editorial writer and Peace Conference reporter of the Chicago Evening Post, as he looks to Wyncie King, caricaturist of the Louisville Herald and long a close personal friend. The insert is of Mr. King.

Mr. King's type of work is something of a new departure in the field of caricaturing in that eccentricities of face and figure are treated with a moderate emphasis that stops short of grotesque distortion. It has been a feature of the Louisville Herald for the past year, and has been so favorably received by critics that a novel exhibit of sixty caricatures by Mr. King was shown at the Morristown (N. J.) Library between September 5 and September 15. The drawings, all made from life, included sketches of persons prominent in various fields of public life and portraits of physiognomic "types."

The exhibit was brought to Morristown from Louisville, Ky., and it is planned to show it in New York later in the Fall. The sketches shown were both in black and white and in color. In the latter group is a collection of drawings of members of the foreign military missions sent to this country during the war.

Among the sketches of persons more or less prominent at the moment was a caricature in color of Francis Wilson, president of the Actors' Equity Association, and another in color of Henry E. Dixey, also aligned with the striking actors; a black-and-white sketch of Coleman Dupont, and another, in the same method, of Lieut. Gov. James D. Black, of Kentucky.

An interesting and somewhat novel group consisted of a collection of sketches of "types" made by Mr. King at a recent session of the Kentucky Legislature. These are eccentric portraits in black and white of persons who, in the caricaturist's view, run more or less true to types of state politicians, in one way or another.

TELLS OF CARRANZA PROPAGANDA

G. L. Edmunds, Examined by Fall Senate Committee, Discloses Past Relations of Mexican "First Chief" With G. F. Weeks and Himself

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—George L. Edmunds, member of the Washington Bureau of the New York Sun, who was press agent for Carranza in Washington in 1915 when the First Chief was vieing with Francisco Villa in seeking recognition from the Wilson Administration, was a witness today before the Fall subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, which is investigating the Mexican situation.

The appearance of Mr. Edmunds was important to members of the committee because of his ability to throw light on Carranza's propaganda in the United States. It was especially interesting to many newspapermen in that it recalled the famous Press Club controversies which raged between Edmunds and Robert B. Smith, now of the Chicago Tribune bureau, who was press agent for Villa

Edmunds and Smith, who were, and are, warm personal friends, met at the club every night to pay their respects to each other's candidate for recognition.

Calls Weeks Publicity Agent

Edmunds told the Fall committee that the cry of a "plot to force intervention by the United States in Mexico," and submitted documentary evidence to show that this cry was a favorite political expedient in Mexico. He told of the relations between Carranza and George F. Weeks, who had been mentioned in previous testimony as the man who furnished most of the publicity for the propaganda of the League of Free Nations, to the effect that there was a plot to force intervention in Mexico.

Edmunds testified that with Weeks he founded the Mexican Review in Washington in 1915, and that the publication was financed by the Carranza government through Eliseo Arredondo, Carranza's Washington representative at that time.

Only 200 Paid Subscribers

The witness said the Review was distributed to a free list of from 13,000 to 15,000 and had less than 200 paid subscribers. He said Mr. Weeks secured the matter published in the Review largely from Mexican publications favoring Carranza. Both he and Mr. Weeks, the witness said, were in the pay of the Arredondo Embassy.

"Why did you leave the employ of the Mexican Embassy?" asked Senator Fall.

"Mr. interpreter, Luis Cabrera," said Mr. Edmunds, "and published the interview. Mr. Cabrera decided that we had better sever our connection."

Publication of the Review was continued by Mr. Weeks in Washington until 1918, Mr. Edmunds said, and it was then moved to Mexico City.

"Apparently," said the witness, "there has been no interruption in the relations of the Review and the Mexican Foreign Office."

Cold Facts to Smash Bolsheviki

SEATTLE, Sept. 17.—An extensive local newspaper advertising campaign is being conducted by Seattle business men designed to stabilize industrial conditions. Full and half page display ads are being carried in all daily papers containing cold facts aimed to smash at the fanc of Bolshevikism.

Digitized by Google

AD MEN WILL ENDEAVOR TO FORM PROGRAM FOR FUTURE INDUSTRIAL PEACE

One of Greatest Triangular Debates in Recent History Promised When Gompers, Wade and Clark Discuss Issues at A. A. C. W. Convention Next Week—New Orleans Promises to Surpass All Previous Attempts at Pageantry, Turning City Back 100 Years

(By Telegraph)

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 17.

NEW ORLEANS, swept and garnished, is ready for the Fifteenth Annual Convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. The program of convention sessions, general and ,departmental, is now completed under the supervision of Lewis E. Pratt, first vice-president of the A. A. C. of W., who has spent the past two weeks here rounding into final shape the plans of the 1919 convention board of the New Orleans Ad Club. The convention's sessions begin Sunday and will come to a close Thursday afternoon.

The program of entertainment in which the Orleanians have done the heretofore impossible feat of "Turning a city back a century to show its progress," is also ready. In that entertainment, spread over three nights, nearly 2,000 citizens will take part in a pageant historical in all details of costume and staging.

To Stage "Impossible" Features

The city that has made Mardi Gras and its carnivals synonymous with sumptuous revelry throughout the world has thrown itself heart and soul into this task of showing the Ad Club delegates features impossible of duplication by any other city in America.

New Orleans of 1815, of 1860, of 1919 and of the future, will be spread before the gaze of the delegations of advertising men.

There will be more than an entertainment to this convention, however, since the Ad Club delegates are keen to formulate "A program upon which business can stand and under which the people can live" in the business problems of post-war reconstruction.

In one of the greatest triangular debates in recent history, Samuel Gompers will speak for labor; Festus J. Wade, St. Louis banker and member of the financial board of the U. S. Railroad Administration in wartime, will speak for capital and Champ Clark will speak for the consumer.

Historical Debate Promised

On Monday, September 22, the Eighteenth Century Night will be staged in the heart of the old French quarter centering on the Jackson Square that was the "Place d'Armes" in the early days of the colony. Colonel Allison Owen, recent commander of the 141st U. S. Field Artillery and noted New Orleans architect, will be in charge, assisted by the French and Italian societies of New Orleans.

All of Jackson Square and French Market is to be roped off from the public for the evening, admission being only by card. For the evening all modern lighting and transportation will be discontinued. The crude wooden and wrought iron affairs that were street lights of Nouvelle Orleans in the Eighteenth Century will swing above the street and over quaint and ancient doorways.

Ladies in the fascinating garb of that period will step daintily down the narrow banquettes, preceded by servants and torches. Torches will light the French market. As of old, one-mule carts, stage coaches and the vehicles of the Eighteenth Century will supplant today's electric street cars and will convey New Orleans guests from modern Canal street to the heart of two centuries ago.

The puppet shows of that time will stage their entertainments. Spanish soldiers with arquebus and sword will lounge about the gateway of the old military squares or will patrol stiffly up and down the streets. In the confectionery of the chevalier, he who first will receive President William C. D'Arcy, of the Advertising Clubs, with other dignitaries of his staff. The ancient streets that night will sound to the tread of Iberville, Bienville, John McDonogh. The Baroness Pontalba, who built in America its first apartment house, still standing in Jackson Square; Don Andres Almonastery; Rox as her father, Pere Antoine "Bebe," the military dancing master; Jean Lafitte and his brother, Pierre, with their crew of buccaneers and their pirate mate, Dominick You; Louis Phillippe, King of France, and his brothers; Mayor Girod, Baron Carondelett, the "chevalier" himself, and Jean Victor Mircou, Napoleon's rival.

WILLIAM C. D'ARCY.
President of the A. A. of W.

In the throng will be Ursuline Nuns, Jesuits, the "Filles de Cassette," those Casket Girls, King Louis, sent from France with their dowries as colonists' brides, the Natches, Indian basket makers; the "Cadians from the Attakapas," nobles of France and Spain, the Yellow Sirens from San Domingo, peddling merchants, street hawkers, coffee and milk women, gypsy musicians and dancers, flat boat men from Kentucky, the Orleans Guard, the military of that day, bear trainers and fortune tellers and mountebanks.

Orleans Night

Then on the next night, Tuesday, September 23, the wilds of time will roll back nearly a century. It will be "Orleans Night," staged by the Elks with Waldo Pitkin the chairman. The big scene will be laid at the foot of Canal street. There will be shown the period of New Orleans history from the Colonial days, ended the night before, to the days just "befo' de wah."

The delegates will leave by steamer from Jackson avenue and will be given a trip about the harbor by moonlight. They will land at the foot of Canal street. Flatboats, luggers and all forms of ancient watercraft of the river history will surround their landing place.

Whistles and bells will greet their arrival. On the public belt tracks ancient locomotives will snort and puff. Cotton bales will be piled high and torches and candle lamps will illuminate the scene. All will be screened off by a barrier at the foot of Canal street from the Louisville and Nashville station, and admittance from the Canal street end will be only by card.

Gov Claiborne Back to Life

Governor Claiborne is to welcome the ad men, one of his descendants is to impersonate that historic figure. Negro music will sound up and down the levee, plantation dancing to the tinkle and swing of the banjo will vie with the dancing of the famous Bambola and Calinda. Strolling about to greet the city's guests will be LaFayette, Aaron Burr, Dr. Antomarichi, Napoleon's physician, Myra Clark Gaines, Judal Touro, Marshal Ney, Marie Le Veau, the Voudou Queen, General Scott, Henry Clay, Paul Murphy, Adelina Patti, Jenny Lind, Mme. John, Madame Delphine, and James Caldwell, founder of the American drama; all the colorful picturesque groups that through the long dead years knew Orleans as the world knows them.

Negro roustabouts, steamboatmen, mammies with bralines, the cream cheese women, will swirl above with the colored "merchants" whose stock was sold from trays; negroes will tell fortunes as of old; lady folks will bob past in crinolines.

Organ grinders and their trained monkeys will vie in interest with the bottleman, the chimney sweeps answer the clothes line man of old New Orleans life, pickaninnies galore will gambol about the levee.

An oyster roast on the levee will provide refreshments; corn bread and molasses, hot corn, sweet potatoes, molasses gingerbread, mead, all of the old time delicacies and relishes will be offered the guests.

(Continued on Page 77.)

sold the pralines of New Orleans, will be sold again that historic sweetmeat. Coffee houses will have at their tables gallants and buccaneers, adventurers and soldiers of fortune.

In the Place D'Armes Don Alexandro O'Reilly, the Bloody O'Reilly of history,

SPACE-BUYERS' CHARTS AND MARKET SURVEYS OF STATE OF CONNECTICUT IN THIS ISSUE

EDITOR & PUBLISHER presents in this issue—pages 29 to 56 inclusive—the most comprehensive market surveys and space-buyers' charts ever compiled for a state and its principal cities.

In these surveys the resources, industries and market possibilities of Connecticut are set forth in great detail. In a general article the state as a whole is analyzed and in separate chapters the dominant cities are charted, under a standardized plan, by which space-buyers are afforded data of prime importance by the aid of which the value of city market units may be appraised.

This feature, which has entailed extensive research, will be found to be of immediate value to all advertising agencies, national advertisers and space-buyers.

Digitized by Google

ENVIABLE CONVENTION MARK SET BY INTERSTATE CIRCULATORS

Splendid Program and Its Conduct Give Members Invaluable Benefits from Two-Day Convention—Visitors Received by Publishers and City Officials.

By Fenton Dowling

THE semi-annual convention of the Inter-State Circulation Managers' Association at Scranton, Pa., was perhaps the liveliest session of that body since its formation. Things began to happen with the remarks of President Fred I. Cook of the Scranton Republican, who opened the business session.

The executives of the local newspapers, Mr. Lynnett of the Scranton Times, Mr. Thompson of the Scrantonian, Mr. Keator of the Times, and Duffy of the Republican, fired enthusiasm in the meeting by their splendid addresses.

Growing Importance of Circulation Managers Evidenced

The reception of the visitors by the publishers, managing editors and representatives of the mayor and the Chamber of Commerce indicated the growing importance of circulation managers and at this particular meeting the spirit of co-operation between publisher and circulator was displayed to the utmost.

A program arranged so that business and pleasure were intermixed and no time lost was cleverly arranged and commented on most favorably. It reflected the studied effort of a most competent committee. The arrangement of this particular program could well be recommended to other associations as a working model for similar meetings.

Early Sessions Described Last Week

It was Editor & Publisher's privilege to be able to print excerpts from several notable addresses of the newspaper executives in last week's issue, our own representative at the meeting having filed by telegraph the opening report, crowding as much of the work of the early sessions into it as was possible.

While the ladies of the party were being treated by the Scranton local committee, consisting of the wives of the home newspaper men to an automobile drive through the residential sections and a visit to the Scranton Lace Mills, the preliminaries of the session were disposed of at the convention hall and all hands joined for a visit to the International Correspondence School.

Visit to "I. C. S."

Here the picture of the members, shown in this article, was taken by the courteous officials of that institution and the members were escorted first to a tasty luncheon and then through that truly wonderful school which has helped to make Scranton famous.

One can go sometimes beyond the great metropolitan cities and find an institution of world-wide prominence which is the outgrowth of a local community idea.

The International Correspondence Schools, of Scranton, grew out of a small "Ask and Answer" column based on the interest in coal mining and development of scientific methods employed in that marvelous industry for which the Lackawanna Valley is noted. The advertising and the publication and printing of the systems for handling the educational ideas of this institution were laid before the visitors and the time was spent most profitably.

Saw How Buttons Are Made

At the button factory, where the visitors next went, an amazing production of not only buttons, but trinkets, souvenirs, useful and ornamental articles running into hundreds of designs were molded and produced in imitation of hard rubber, rare woods, etc. Scranton is proud of that plant and the newspaper circulators were treated to inside glimpses of a very interesting industry.

The theatres of Scranton threw their doors open at the request of the entertainment committee and two evening parties found recreation at Poli's as guests of John M. McCarthy, manager.

Thursday was a busy day from early morning to late at night, some of the members taking midnight trains for home. A wide range of subjects held the meeting at the Crystal Palace Convention till two o'clock in the afternoon. Seven out of the nine papers listed in the program were read and discussed. A general discussion followed the papers and every man had an opportunity to clear up problems to his satisfaction. The chairman had the faculty of drawing out the information needed and the session waxed warmer and more interesting every minute.

Association Making Rapid Strides

The Interstate Circulation Managers' Association is making rapid strides in its membership—eighteen new members having been added to the roll since the last meeting. The list today shows 101 active circulation men in the fold.

Comments on the papers read seem hardly necessary in view of the reproduction of excerpts from them last week and in this issue of Editor & Publisher, but a few notable efforts are worth calling particular attention to.

G. A. Stewart, of the Clearfield Progress, who occupies a unique position, being managing editor and circulation manager of his paper, was able to analyze the needs of both departments and prove the effectiveness of co-operation. Mr. Stewart took the wind out of the premium idea and backed up his contention that a good paper needs no gifts of any other nature by stating that in his community, in a local section, where there are 1,700 homes he sells 1,400 copies.

Goodman's Fine Talk

M. L. Goodman, who is circulator of the Scranton Times and wholesale agent for out of town newspapers and periodicals, handling nearly 100,000 weekly and Sunday publications, told how to control newsboys to secure the best service and how to look after their welfare. It was a practical talk by a man who came up from the ranks and today enjoys a reputation throughout the East in circulation circles for aggressiveness and ability, not surpassed by anyone in his chosen work.

"Mike" told the I. C. M. A. members at the Buffalo meeting to give every attention to the welfare of the boys; find out where they live, what their circumstances were, list them carefully, help them in their misfortunes, teach them to be good business men, buy them a pair of shoes or a coat when needed, show a real kindly interest in them by studying their needs and their characters, never fail to keep track of their progress and their careers; show that you know them intimately; don't permit anyone to cheat them; protect them in law against sickness, render if you can medical and educational assistance—give them your loyalty and they'll give you theirs.

His paper at the Scranton session was full of meat of a similar character.

Much Credit Due Officials

Scranton newspaper men and their associates on the program arrangements deserve more than passing remark in the matter of their devotion to the comfort, entertainment and profit of the visitors. There didn't seem to be a hitch anywhere at any time in the carrying out of the plans, and members generally said they never before went through so much of interest and profit in two days' time.

The next meeting will take place in Harrisburg.

"The Value of Starting the Press on Time and What it Means to the Circulation Department," by E. J. Cullen, circulation manager of the Scranton Times; "Exclusive Agents and Why They are Desirable," by Adam G. Bridle, circulation manager of the Lancaster, (Pa.) Intelligencer & News, and "The Best Way to Control Newsboys and Get Maximum Results," by M. L. Goodman, secretary of The Scrantonian, were interesting and informative addresses delivered in addition to those of Messrs. Lynett, Farley, Finley and Stewart printed in Editor & Publisher last week.

"Among the advantages of starting the newspaper press on time," said Mr. Cullen, "are enabling the mailing force to count, wrap and tie all bundles correctly and accurately, thus preventing shortages; giving the delivery department ample time to make their deliveries to trains, street cars, post offices, carriers, enabling the latter to receive their bundles on the same trains every day and so eliminating dissatisfaction and increasing circulation by educating readers to expect editions at a definite time.

Speeding Up the Press

"Up to five or six months ago, the Scranton Times was accepting local advertising copy up to an hour of press time, with the result that the start of the press was delayed daily—sometimes as much as thirty or forty-five minutes.

"Finally, when advertisers got to waiting until the last minute to turn in their copy, conditions became intolerable, and we printed a notice that all copy for display advertising must be turned in by 3 o'clock on the day preceding publication.

"This seemed a bold move and the management expected that there might be some loss of advertising until advertisers were educated to conform to the new schedule. One of the agencies which handled grocery advertising protested that it was impossible to quote prices until the day of publication, because of rapid fluctuation in the prices of foodstuffs.

"There were other protests, also, but within a week, copy was coming in promptly on schedule and the press was starting on time. It was noted that the grocery advertising was coming in, sometimes, two days in advance. Advertising forms were ready to close two hours before press time.

"What has been done by the Scranton Times can be done by the management of other newspapers which have been experiencing the same trouble."

Getting into a Rut

Mr. Bradle said that the experience of the Lancaster Intelligencer & News caused it to favor the employing of "exclusive" circulation agents, because it had found that the agent who handled all newspapers usually "got in a rut."

"The general agent takes the attitude that he need not go after new business because he represents all the newspapers and anyone who wants to buy must come to him. Neither does he care particularly which paper a reader buys.

"Our experience also has been that agents handling several or many papers are opposed to our working his town

(Continued on Page 28.)

MEMBERS OF THE INTERSTATE CIRCULATION MANAGERS' ASSOCIATION IN SCRANTON, PA.

Digitized by Google

DEATH OF BEN ALLEN SHOCKS MANY THROUGHOUT WHOLE NATION

Known and Loved by Public Men and Fellow Journalists, Big Hearted Washington Correspondent Loses Life in Performance of Duty.

Washington, Sept. 15.

NOTHING in recent years has so shocked newspapermen in Washington as the death, Monday, of Ben F. Allen, correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, in an automobile accident in Portland, Ore., while accompanying President Wilson on he Pacific coast trip in behalf of the treaty of peace with Germany.

Not alone because it was Ben Allen, one of the most upstanding and beloved members of the corps of Washington correspondents, but because it was a member of the craft "killed in action" that the more than 200 newspapermen in the Capital were stunned.

News Overshadowed Even Treaty Story

Washington newspapermen received their first information on the accident from a bulletin to the Associated Press, released to Bond Geddes, the A. P. man on the Senate side of the Capitol. Treaty stories were taboo while every member of the gallery grouped about the operator's table pressing for a "sub-bulletin," saying Ben Allen was not really dead and that "Bob" Small on Stanley Reynolds were not hurt seriously.

The hoped for reassurance in the case of Robert T. Small, correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, and Stanley M. Reynolds, of the Baltimore Sun, came in an hour or so, but with it came confirmation of Allen's death.

Most Hardy Broke Down

Veteran correspondents, immune to emotion of every sort, whose "cub" days were spent at police headquarters, spoke hoarse comment on the shocking manner in which "thirty" came for the genial Ben. To their tributes were added those of Cabinet officers and other public officials with whom the Plain Dealer's correspondent had come in contact.

Mr. Allen was born at Hannibal, Mo., the son of a Congregational minister and was educated at Oberlin College. He was prominent in every form of athletics and was a pitcher on the Oberlin baseball team. When 21 years old, Allen went to Cleveland and asked for a "job" on the Plain Dealer.

John M. Siddall, now editor of the American Magazine, was a member of the Plain Dealer editorial staff, and he knew Allen at Oberlin. The first vacancy on the reportorial staff went to Allen, and that connection formed in 1899 was broken only by the overturned automobile on Columbia Highway this afternoon.

Intimate Friend of Big Men

As a "cub" on the Plain Dealer, Allen took assignments and occasionally assisted in the sports department. In doing the latter he followed his natural inclination which had been earlier expression at Oberlin, and after he became a Washington correspondent he remained an ardent baseball "fan." When his work would permit he attended the American League games in Washington, "rooting" for Griffith's Nationals, except when the Cleveland club was in town when he would see pennants for none but the Indians.

From a police reporter's beat Allen went to the copy desk, and then became assistant city editor and city political editor. While engaged on the latter beat he met Newton D. Baker, and the two remained warm personal friends. While in charge of the Plain Dealer's Bureau at Columbus, Allen met and married Miss Blanche Drake, of Kimball, O., the daughter of a State Senator. He came to Washington in 1909.

Mr. Allen was a member of the National Press Club and the Gridiron Club. He was a member of the Standing Committee of Correspondents in Charge of the Press Galleries of Congress and was an indefatigable worker for the best interests of the profession. He left a widow and two small children.

Copyright, Harris & Ewing.

THE LATE BEN F. ALLEN

Among the tributes paid to Mr. Allen by prominent Federal officials were the following by Secretary of War Baker and Postmaster General Burleson:

Secretary Baker Pays Tribute

Secretary Baker: "Ben Allen's death removes one of the veteran newspapermen and journalists of Washington. Although relatively young, he had established himself by character and force as one of the leaders of the group of distinguished journalists kept in the National Capital by the great papers of the country.

"His fidelity to the truth and wise judgment of men and affairs made his work reliable as a matter of news and important as a matter of comment and opinion. In a sense he was a public man, interpreting the life of the Government to the people of the nation. Those of us who knew him personally loved him for his high purposes and the simplicity and sweetness of his life.

He Represented the Best

"Cleveland and the Cleveland Plain Dealer have suffered a great loss, and the profession of which he was an honored and honorable member will miss his strong influence and vigorous personality."

Postmaster General Burleson: "He was one of the finest men in the newspaper profession. I have known him for years and I learned to love and admire that strong virile character, which detested sham and insisted upon truth and square dealing. His life was devoted to fighting for honest politics, and he himself represented the best in private and public life.

"He was a soul of the highest character, a man whose word was golden, a

(Continued on Page 58.)

PRES. WILSON SENDS HIS CONDOLENCES

Telegraphs Special Message to Mrs. Allen and Family—How Accident Occurred —Allen Had Been the Life of the Party

(By Telegraph)

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 15.—Ben F. Allen, staff representative of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, with President Wilson's party on the Western tour, was killed here today and three other newspapermen were injured when the automobile in which they were riding was overturned. James R. Patterson, Portland realty broker, owner and driver of the car, also was killed.

Besides Mr. Allen, who was one of the best-known newspapermen in the United States, the newspapermen in the accident were Robert T. Small, of the Philadelphia Public Ledger; Stanley Reynolds, correspondent for the Baltimore Sun, and Robert Sullivan, reporter on the Portland News. Mr. Reynolds sustained a broken arm, dislocated shoulder and severe cuts and bruises. He is confined to Good Samaritan Hospital, Portland.

Others Not Seriously Injured

Mr. Small was painfully, but not seriously cut and bruised. He was attended by Admiral Carey T. Grayson, President Wilson's private physician, and expects to continue on the trip. Mr. Sullivan's injuries are not serious.

The tragedy cast a cloud of gloom over the entire party and seriously marred the President's day in Portland. Mr. Wilson, at a luncheon following the accident, feelingly referred to Mr. Allen as a close personal friend, and sent to Mrs. Allen the following telegram:

"Our hearts go out to you in deepest sympathy in the tragical death of your husband, whom we all esteemed and trusted. He will be missed as a true friend and a man who always intelligently sought to do his duty."

The accident occurred when the President and his party were returning from a trip on the Columbia River Highway. Mr. Patterson swerved his car to avoid another machine, which unexpectedly had run out into the road, and left the roadway into a ditch. The machine then traveled 150 perilous way along the ditch for 160 feet. The driver made a final effort to guide it back into the pavement.

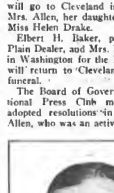
Turned Completely Over

The machine catapulted through the air and turned completely over Mr. Allen, who was on the seat with the driver. He was pinned beneath the car and died almost instantly. Mr. Small was thrown first, alighting in the clump of bushes. The driver of the machine that struck into the highway causing the accident was taken into custody.

Mr. Allen's fellow correspondents on the President's special train were grief-stricken when they learned of Mr. Allen's untimely death. He had been the life of the party since they left Washington on the night of September 3. He was a big, strong, good-natured fellow, who always had a kindly word for all, said his fellow correspondents.

WASHINGTON HONORS ALLEN'S MEMORY

Congressional Press Gallery and All Newspaper Associations Take Official Action and Will Have Representatives at Funeral Saturday



(By Telegraph)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 17.—Chairman Gus Karger of the Standing Committee on Correspondents has appointed a committee composed of Lewis Strayer of the Pittsburgh Dispatch, chairman; James L. Wright, Mr. Allen's assistant in the Plain Dealer bureau; Robert M. Gunter of the Pittsburgh Gazette Times, Roy A. Roberts, Kansas City Star; Carl D. Ruth, Cleveland News and Leader, and George L. Edmunds, New York Sun, to prepare resolutions on the death of Mr. Allen. A suitable floral tribute will be sent to Cleveland on behalf of the correspondents.

Mr. Allen's body is expected to arrive in Cleveland on Saturday night, and Mr. Wright will attend the funeral as the representative of the Press Gallery. He will go to Cleveland in company with Mrs. Allen, her daughter and her sister Miss Helen Drake.

Elbert H. Baker, publisher of the Plain Dealer, and Mrs. Baker, who were in Washington for the Pershing parade, will return to Cleveland to attend the funeral.

The Board of Governors of the National Press Club met tonight and adopted resolutions in tribute to Mr. Allen, who was an active member of the club and a former member of the board.

ROBERT T. SMALL.

The executive committee of the Gridiron Club meets tomorrow night to take action and it is expected that Mr. Strayer will be selected as the representative of the club to go to Cleveland to attend the funeral.

A general meeting of the correspondents has been called to be held in the Press Gallery of the House of Representatives Thursday afternoon to receive the report of the Strayer committee in addition to the adoption of resolutions out of respect to Mr. Allen. It is anticipated that a motion would be offered by Chairman Karger to instruct Robert T. Barry to send messages to Mrs. Small and Mrs. Reynolds expressing the regret of the correspondents over the injurying of the Public Ledger and Baltimore Sun representatives and the gratification over their escape from the fate of Mr. Allen.

Digitized by Google

NEWSPAPER MAKING

A Department of Practical Service for Publishers and Advertisers Conducted by Jason Rogers, Publisher of the New York Globe and Author of "Fundamentals of Newspaper Building," "Newspaper Building" and "Building Newspaper Advertising

IT has been suggested that I devote one of this series of articles to the topic of relations between newspapers and labor unions, and I am doing so with a full knowledge that perhaps I may be getting myself into hot water on account of the liberality of my views.

Admitting in advance that the daily newspapers have often been more afflicted and handicapped by arbitrary and unreasonable demands of labor than most other industries, I nevertheless feel that if we as employers had kept well in advance of best thought on the subject and led the way through progressive practices, we would now be much better off.

A few years ago newspaper publishers felt themselves more largely at the mercy of organized labor than anyone else, for their circulations were largely a matter of popular vote as represented by the pennies paid for papers, and publishers threatened with a strike or a boycott usually conceded the point.

Labor Works with Us

Much of this is now behind us, for organized labor such as we have to deal with has been working with us to establish and maintain the validity of contracts between employer and employe with elaborate formalities for arbitration before a strike is authorized by international bodies.

Organized labor has found that it can never win in a contest against public opinion, and that in the absence of favorable publicity an unjustified strike never can win wide enough popularity to be successful.

The memorable stereotypers' strike in Chicago in 1898 during which no newspaper was printed for over a week and which resulted in complete defeat for the strikers, and the strike of the pressmen there a few years ago with like result showed organized labor that unreasonable strikes produce little nourishment against a united press.

On the other hand, our newspapers as a whole have sought to be absolutely fair in their relation with labor, for the reason that they recognized the great advantage to them of bringing about trade or bargain with responsible organizations free from the petty and selfish demands of small local units, in many cases wholly underpendable and without responsibiliy.

Advertisers Cannot Be Scared

In the old days the department stores and other local advertisers were much weaker and more easily scared than they are today. During an illegal strike in the Globe office last April not a single big advertiser dropped out and we did not have a single demand for rebate on account of loss in circulation.

Advertisers and merchants have learned that business men cannot afford to assist in making illegal strikes effective even though it may cost them a few dollars in the results produced by their advertising.

During the big five weeks' strike of the news dealers in New York during February, 1918, when some of the newspapers circulated less than half of the usual number, there was only a half-hearted suggestion on the part of a few advertisers for a concession, but so far as I know none was made them by a single newspaper.

I merely recite these incidents for their heartening effect, and not because I am not in favor of the highest possible compensation to labor.

I have always maintained the position that the Globe was willing to pay as much money for any service as could be secured by agreement from the New York Publishers' Association, and that in case demands grew faster than my ability to produce revenue to meet them, I would quit.

Enormous Increases

In view of the enormous increases in salaries and wages now paid by the newspapers for services of various kinds, it would seem that before we as manufacturers should carefully study the broad principles being applied by other manufacturers to bridge the unsettled period right ahead of us and readjustments which must come later.

We can hardly expect labor to forego any of the advantages it has secured through necessities of the war period and yet those of us who have given the matter careful study must face with effective work throughout the newspaper factories.

It is easy to conceive how employees view with suspicion and distrust all our arguments that their demands for shorter hours and more pay are impossible. Men who are worrying their heads off trying to make both ends meet readily get an erroneous impression that the concern is making enormous profits.

I have watched with interest the discussions of statesmen, business men and others regarding the impracticability of profit sharing without some device for standing a share of the losses.

Lack of Frankness

The impression it gives me is that of regret at the lack of frankness on the part of employers in dealing with such a situation. If they really were sincere in their effort to solve the problem and could not find the answer I would be sorry for them, which I am not because I think that they are trying to put something over on the producer through pretense of impossibility.

If, for example, every business concern were forced to fix upon itself a valuation worked out on a standardized form applicable to each industry in separate units, we would have a fair basis for arranging a sound profit sharing plan and incidentally a solid base on which to assess city, state, and national taxes.

Rewards and Obligations

Upon the stated valuation it would be fair and equitable to allow the owners say a banking return of 3½ per cent, in addition to an equal fifty-fifty share in the profits with labor after costs of manufacture, selling and reservations for depreciation, replacement and such are provided for.

Profit sharing means participation in losses provided it is properly applied, and labor must in its turn generate recognition and reward forego something today in order to secure greater advantage in years to come.

If, for example, all industry was to start operations on the basis of wages or salaries as they were in 1914 before war inflations, and to determine upon a policy of paying the same rates to all labor as salaries and wages (aside from executive salaries) represented a proportion of the total payroll, everyone would be better off and better paid.

In case for any reason an off year may come, the concern would be on a sound basis to meet the storm. Salaries and wages would be on a normal base. In case operations involved a loss beyond the reserve hereinafter provided to be established by the workers to provide for such a contingency, the concern would borrow money from the bank or elsewhere, with all employees participating in the borrowing, for there would be no profits to divide until it had been repaid.

If it is desired to meet the objections of employers regarding participation in losses, it can be easily accomplished by creating a sinking fund through contributing part, say 25 per cent, of the total profits by both capital and labor before division, until an ample fund is provided, the interest on which fund could be applied for sick benefits or like purposes.

The employees should be entitled to representation in the management so that they through their fellows would have knowledge enough regarding the difficulties of operation and costs, to enable them to inform their fellow workers regarding the fairness or unfairness of demands. Increased responsibility would breed greater interest and co-operation.

Representation in Management

If in the development the employees and employer desire to provide for employees to gradually acquire stock in the enterprise, it could be easily done through provision of partial payments from half of the profits made through profit sharing, employees being entitled to the profits on the shares subscribed for by them, they in turn being charged simple interest on their notes.

The only danger to such an arrangement is failure to provide for a basis of valuation of the stock at the time of purchase, as above provided and for taking it back at a valuation reached when the employee quits or fails to fulfill his obligations regarding payments.

Viewed in the large the problem of relations with labor is more serious in the case of the smaller towns and cities than in large centers of industry, for many reasons, among them being the lack of supply of men to fill positions, the lure of higher scales paid in big cities, and absurd rules adopted by the union prohibiting liberal allowance of apprentices.

End of Labor Agitstors

Profit-sharing and participation is perhaps more practical and easily applied in the case of a small plant than a large one, at least for experimental purposes. It would cement the whole working force of such a plant together for greater success than anything else so far devised.

The plan I am indicating would be opposed by labor agitators, for their services would no longer be required, for most of the disputes would automatically become employers of labor.

Strange as it may seem, the lower the basic scale of wages decided upon as the base, the more widespread the scheme would be. During the season of great prosperity, the profits would be all the larger and during the season of poor business and possible loss, the deficits to be met by borrowed money would be so much less.

To me, the so-called labor problem is more imaginary than real. I would rather deal with it as intelligent units

(Continued on Page 36)

American Press Saved Cardinal Mercier Great Belgian Prelate

CARDINAL MERCIER, "great father of all the Belgians," who is now a visitor in this country, gives all credit to the newspapers of America for saving him from the Germans. Speaking to newspapermen at Baltimore a few days ago on his experiences during the war, he said:

"They (the Germans) wanted to lay hands upon me, but the power of the press in your country stopped them. The Germans knew the strength of public opinion in the United States, and they decided that I was not the man they could afford to put in prison."

Digitized by Google

A Practical Advertising and Merchandising Plan to Sell Newspaper Space

You are invited to inspect the exhibit of the Newspaper Division

CONVENTION HEADQUARTERS
Hotel Grunewald, New Orleans

September 22, 23, 24, 25, 1919

This exhibit will be exactly what its name states: "A Practical Advertising and Merchandising Plan to Sell Newspaper Space."

Every newspaper publisher and advertiser can turn to his own advantage ideas from this exhibit.

For those who cannot attend the convention, an endeavor will be made to supply through the mails, as much of the material as possible. Write for it.

Exhibit Originated and Contributed by

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

Established 1888

Publishers' Representatives

15 E. 26th St. NEW YORK | Harris Trust Bldg. CHICAGO | Waldheim Bldg. KANSAS CITY | Monadnock Bldg. SAN FRANCISCO

Digitized by Google

COVERING PRESIDENT WILSON'S TOUR

Every Facility for Comfort and Happiness Placed at Correspondents' Disposal on Special Train—President and Staff Co-operate

By HUGH BAILLIE
OF THE UNITED PRESS.

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER. Exclusively)

DUNSMUIR, Cal., Sept. 16 (Aboard the President's Train).—A combination White House and newspaper office on wheels.

That's a pretty fair description of the special train on which President Wilson, accompanied by eighteen newspapermen, three motion picture camera-men and a staff of stenographers and other attaches, is touring the United States.

Three compartment cars are taken up by the newspaper men and the clicking of typewriters may be heard there in almost any hour of the day or night.

The President resides in his private car, "The Mayflower," which is the last car on the train. Occasionally the President strolls through the cars, looks in at the newspaper men at their work, and takes a seat in the club car up ahead, where he speedily accumulates a "gallery." There he talks about the big issues, spins a yarn once in a while and altogether acts quite human.

President Can Argue

If anyone should disagree with him on any topic the President is quite ready to argue about it. He sometimes tells of his own experiences while running a college newspaper. Mr. Wilson usually shows interest in what the newspaper men have to say with regard to public opinion on various topics.

The principal worry of the newspaper men is with regard to where and when they can file their stuff. On the Pacific Coast where the time is three hours behind New York time, that problem is especially acute. The Western Union has a representative on the train whose job is to arrange filing places and have operators on hand to take care of the filings. After each speech there is a dash back to the train, and the stories are written and handed to the telegraph representative for him to file at the designated point.

The Party's Humorist

Humorists are aboard, whose jests relieve the monotony of the trip. Perhaps the chief among these is Dave Hardester, the conductor, a veteran of many presidential tours. He has a new monologue every morning.

There is an unofficial press club along. It meets in the car up ahead of the diner, and its members talk shop while the plains of Dakota, the mountains of Montana or the orange groves of California roll past the windows. The train carries its own newspaper office atmosphere right along with it and after a day of crowds, cheers and various thrilling episodes when the men get back to their cars—"Home again" they say, and they almost mean it. The train does seem like home, and it's good to get back to the door step of your own car and find your porter, imported all the way from Washington, D. C, waiting there with a grin of welcome.

Although the President is accessible he isn't bothered unless there is something of great importance to take up with him. His secretary, Joseph Tumulty, is his spokesman on most matters.

Dr. Grayson, his physician, is one of the best newspaper men on the train. He has a real nose for news features and ferrets them out almost daily, then hands them over to the correspondents.

Tom Brahaney, a former newspaper man, now of the President's Staff, makes most of the official announcements. These gentlemen reside in the White House car, which is between the newspaper section and the Secret Service men's car. The latter car is next to the President's and newspaper men representing the press associations live among the Secret Service agents.

All Hard Workers

One of the hardest working individuals aboard is Charles Swem, the President's official stenographer. He makes a stenographic report of all Mr. Wilson's speeches and then rushes back to the train to transcribe. This he does in an empty baggage room in the club car, pounding out Mr. Wilson's words on mimeograph stencils, which are run through the mimeograph by his assistants and several hundred copies made of each sheet.

The club car usually is filled with newspaper men during this work waiting for a complete copy of the speech. Sometimes Swem is interrupted in the midst of his transcribing to run to the rear with his notebook when Mr. Wilson shows signs of making a rear-platform speech.

Swem holds the world's record for fast typewriting.

Food is an important item of life on the train and the Pennsylvania Railroad experts who are in charge of the diner are always on the alert for new local dainties. If the special enters a melon country, for instance, some of those melons speedily appear on the menu. The President's meals are prepared by his own cook in his private car. On several occasions the newspaper men have enjoyed extra delicacies from the Wilson kitchen, which Mrs. Wilson wanted passed around.

The Portland Tragedy

Twenty correspondents started the trip. At Portland, Ore., came the tragic accident in which Ben F. Allen, of the Cleveland Plain-Dealer was killed and Robert T. Small, and Stanley Reynolds, injured, the result of an outsider trying to force his auto into the line of press cars following the President.

The automobile arrangements have been very good, each man being assigned to the same numbered car at every stop. The only time this plan was broken up was at Portland, where persons who were not newspaper men usurped places in the press cars and in the parade line-up, until the Secret Service had to be called on to straighten things out.

Levin Agency Officer Goes Abroad

Rene Silz, vice-president of the Charles D. Levin Advertising Agency, New York, and general American representative of motion picture films produced by Les Films Albert Dulac de Paris, has sailed for France, Belgium and Switzerland to make selling connections for several American manufacturers and to place some large advertising contracts in France, and to close some French advertising contracts for his own concern. Mr. Silz recently completed a Franco-American combination for the production of motion pictures.

Will "Clean Up" Music Ads

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 17.—Attorney Ben C. Hyre, who looks after the legal end of the Cleveland Music Trades Association, has been elected secretary of the Piano Merchants' Association of Ohio, but his principal work will be in the line of "ad-censor" for this statewide organization, 150 strong. The Cleveland dealers have an "ad-censor" in the person of A. L. Maresh.

A Market No Advertiser Can Afford to Overlook

Erie

Pennsylvania

The Market, 157,000

Erie Population, 105,000; Suburban (35 mile radius) 52,000

The exceptional feature is this:

A large, concentrated, prosperous market—dominated by a single newspaper. That means big sales at low advertising cost.

Erie Daily Times

(A. B. C. Member)

Paid Circulation, 27,693

Line Rate 6c. flat. Evenings except Sunday

The Erie Times has 50% more than the combined paid circulation of its two daily competitors, and over treble the circulation of either.

Erie City population is 105,000 (conservative) that means 21,000 homes.

The City paid circulation (A. B. C.) of the ERIE TIMES is 18,939.

Suburban Erie, 35-mile radius, has 52,000 population—10,000 homes.

The suburban paid circulation (A. B. C.) of the ERIE TIMES is 6,718.

You can saturate this big market through The Times alone.

Obviously, Mr. Advertiser, the Erie situation is so exceptional as to be in every national campaign. Net profit—that's what you want. Select Erie therefore—large population and small advertising cost. You do not have to scatter your advertising funds. The Times dominates and you reap the benefit.

The Erie Daily Times for EVERY National Advertiser

Representatives

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

Established 1888

15 E. 26th St. New York | Harris Trust Bldg. Chicago | Waldheim Bldg. Kansas City | Monadnock Bldg. San Francisco

The New Friendship in Business

PEOPLE have always bought goods on a friendship basis. They always will. But the kind of friendship changes. Formerly it was a purely local affair between customer and store, between retailer and wholesaler, and thus to the source of supplies—the manufacturer, still invisible and mysterious to the final consumer.

The public now demands that the manufacturer step down from this pedestal into national friendship.

It has become more and more the habit of the American people to consider advertising the proper, natural, and honest way for the maker of an article to ask for their friendship based on the value of the article made. Advertising is thus not alone for the sale of more goods but, also for making those sales give a customer friendship so reasonable and direct that it will survive panics, prosperity sprees, and changing customs.

For twenty-eight years George Batten Company, Inc., has successfully directed this force of advertising for broadening and strengthening customer friendship for manufacturers. Not the least part of this service has been in giving the manufacturer an outside viewpoint, the ability to see himself both as his customers do see him and as they might be taught to see him for better understanding.

For the efficient rendering of such intimate service there must be a friendship also between client and agent, a friendship based on a similarity of tastes and ideals such as direct in the choice of a family physician or a close, legal counselor. Our mental processes, our aims, ideals, and judgments—the very texture of our life—is shown incidentally in our current brochures, called Batten's Wedges, which are timely discussions on subjects of business interest.

Any business executive desirous of judging the value of our acquaintanceship we will gladly add to this mailing list on his writing us on his business letter-head.

GEORGE BATTEN COMPANY, Inc.

WILLIAM H. JOHNS, President

Advertising

381 Fourth Avenue, New York

10 State Street
BOSTON

McCormick Building
CHICAGO

Digitized by Google

C. P. A. SETS NOV. 27-28 FOR CONVENTION

Dates Decided by Postal Vote—Fredericton (N. B.) Mail Elected to Membership—Again Will Handle Victory Loan Advertising

TORONTO, Sept. 17.—By a postal vote of the directors of the Canadian Press Association, it has been decided to hold the annual meeting on November 27 and 28. The date was originally set for June but owing to the serious labor troubles prevailing at the time, it was thought wise to postpone the meeting until the fall.

Uncertainty regarding the date of the Ontario prohibition plebiscite and the provincial election has led to further delay and it was only this week that the directors were able to come to a decision.

The latest daily paper to join the membership of the C. P. A. is the Fredericton, N. B. Daily Mail.

Temporary recognition has been granted by the advertising committee of the C. P. A. to the Federal Advertising Agency, London, Ont.

Preparing for New Loan

With a third Victory Loan campaign for Canada looming up on the horizon, steps are now being taken to organize for the necessary publicity. The general plan to be followed will be quite similar to that of a year ago. That is to say the Canadian Press Association will accept full responsibility for handling the press publicity. This work will be divided into two parts, viz., paid display advertising and press news and feature service. Each division is in charge of a special committee, the chairmen of which together with the president of the C. P. A. forming a general executive committee.

The display advertising committee will consist of the following: George E. Scroggie, Toronto Mail and Empire, chairman; W. J. Taylor, Woodstock Sentinel-Review; H. B. Muir, London Free Press; W. B. Preston, Brantford Expositor; Eugene Tarte, Montreal La Presse; Henri Gagnon, Quebec Le Soleil; P. Geo. Pearce, Waterford Star; John Weld, Farmers' Advocate, London; John M. Imrie, Manager, C. P. A., Toronto.

Extended Among Six Agencies

The committee has completed arrangements with six advertising agencies for the preparation and handling of the campaign. A. McKim, Limited; McConnell & Fergusson; Smith, Deune & Moore, Limited, and J. J. Gibbons, Limited, will co-operate with the committee in regard to display advertising in all publications other than those published in French, while Desbarats Advertising Agency, Limited, and the Canadian Advertising Agency, will be utilized particularly in regard to the campaign in publications published in French.

As regards the press news and feature service, W. J. Taylor, Woodstock Sentinel-Review, will act as chairman of the central committee, with headquarters at 34 King Street, West, Toronto. Nelson Wilkinson, an experienced Canadian newspaperman, recently managing editor of the Toronto World, will take editorial charge of the service.

The actual selling campaign in connection with the Loan commences on October 27 and lasts for three weeks. Advertising will start well in advance of the campaign.

Lawrence and Bird Form New Feature Service

Will Handle Only Subjects of National and International Interest—"Along the Potomac" Is First

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 15.—The Washington Feature Service, a subsidiary of David Lawrence, Inc., has been organized to handle newspaper features dealing solely with national and international events, though they will cover a wide range of subjects from humorous verse and comment to serials on governmental problems David Lawrence, the Washington correspondent, is the head and the business manager is William A. Bird, IV., formerly a member of the New York Tribune's Washington bureau and lately editor of Good Government, New York.

The service's first feature is 'Along the Potomac," a unique humor column written by H. R. Baukhage, formerly assistant managing editor of Leslie's Weekly and contributor to Judge. Baukhage has just secured his discharge from the A. E. F., where he served in the artillery.

At the cessation of hostilities, 'Buck" was attached to the Stars & Stripes where his quips and verses were a popular feature of the army's popular paper. In collaboration with LeRoy Baldridge, the Stars & Stripes cartoonist, he published a book of doughboy verse and sketches entitled "I Was There," which ran through two editions in France and which is being brought out in America by G. P. Putnam's Sons.

Baukhage and Baldridge were both "bucks," and Baukhage was finally commissioned in the Field Artillery before he left the service. He comes back to America with the new civilian's fresh outlook on men, women and events.

By coincidence, Lawrence, Baukhage and Bird all are natives of Buffalo, N. Y., and began their newspaper careers there.

VON WIEGAND WITH UNIVERSAL

Will Represent News Service As Head of Berlin Office

Karl von Wiegand, who for ten years has been a correspondent in Europe for American newspapers, has joined the Universal Service as head of the Berlin office. He was formerly the representative of the New York World, the International News Service and the New York Sun.

Among the most notable recent news achievements of von Wiegand have been his interviews with Gen. von Hindenburg, Gen. Ludendorff, Gen. Falkenhayn and Von Moltke and his article about Admiral von Tirpitz.

Recently he spent an entire day with William Hohenzollern at the latter's retreat in Holland and wrote a pen picture of the abdicated monarch. He has also interviewed the former German Crown Prince.

Shuman Agency Moves

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—The Shuman Advertising Company, located for a number of years past in the Westminster building, Chicago, this week moved to larger quarters at 117 North Dearborn street. R. R. Shuman is president and is well known in the national field, having at one time been advertising manager for the Liquid Carbonic Company of Chicago.

EIGHTY brands of Talcum Powder were found on sale in Baltimore as the result of an investigation recently completed by the merchandising department of The Baltimore NEWS.

Do all of these brands sell? Does Lady Baltimore—or Lord Baltimore either, for that matter—go into a store, throw down a quarter, or a dollar, and say, "Give me a good can of talcum," trusting to luck or the will of the retailer to hand him anyone of the eighty?

Not so you can notice it. Investigation shows that about three-fourths of the purchasers call for brands by name, many dealers placing the specifying purchasers as high as 90 and 95%.

Truth is, the public has been educated in its tastes through advertising and has little time for less known brands, no matter how good they may be, until the name and qualities of such brands are brought effectively and systematically to their attention through advertising. Here and there a manufacturer may kid himself into the belief that special inducements to the dealer will take place of advertising to the public but in Baltimore, and we venture the same is true elsewhere, the dealer himself prefers to handle advertised goods.

With 80 brands to choose from it is significant that 90 stores should show 4 advertised brands as their best sellers. What are these brands? What qualities of merchandise or merchandising make these four the leaders out of the 80 brands sold in Baltimore? How do they rank in distribution? What is the individual percentage of distribution?

The individual reports of 100 stores, with tabulations showing the essential composite facts, will answer most of these questions. The invaluable, intimate view-point of 100 retailers and 7 wholesalers together with their observations and opinions in selling ALL brands of talcums—are embodied in this report.

A copy of which as will be glad to place in the hands of manufacturers, advertising agencies and distributors who are interested in talcum powders in this market.

Last week we outlined briefly some facts uncovered by an investigation and analysis of the sale of chewing gums in Baltimore. Whether you are directly interested or not you will want to read next week's announcement of a report just completed on Jams and Jellies.

The Baltimore News
Goes Home and Stays Home

DAN A. CARROLL
Eastern Representative
Tribune Building
New York

Frank R. Webb
Advertising Manager

J. E. LUTZ
Western Representative
First Nat'l Bank Bldg.
Chicago

Digitized by Google

MORNING EDITION.
The World
NEW YORK.

The Key to New York Is Adequate Preparation

An accurate estimate of the difficulties of establishing a new trade mark in New York territory is most unusual. It is customary either to exaggerate or to belittle them.

As a matter of fact, the same general rules obtain here as elsewhere. Before there can be a legitimate advertising prospect, there must be first a good product and proper financial backing. To these add adequate merchandising and adequate advertising and you have spelled SUCCESS.

Map out your New York campaign carefully, and a long time in advance of the date set for its launching. Overlook no smallest detail. Once you have started, work fast in order that you may not go stale. Secure representative distribution. And then, and not until then, release your advertising.

If you have been able to place your goods with every third or fourth or fifth dealer before your advertising starts, you can probably increase your representation to every second or third or fourth dealer during the first thirty to ninety days of your advertising campaign.

If copy, mediums and space are right, you have now only to "stick." Keep after the dealer. Get him to co-operate and his clerks to help. And keep after the public. Advertise, without intermission if possible, for at least three to five years.

If you will follow a program like this you will not only win your market, but you will say at the end of half a dozen years, "New York wasn't so hard. But I would willingly have doubled our appropriation, if I had had the slightest conception of the possibilities of the New York market."

Ask us how to secure distribution for your product by merchandising the demand your advertising will create.

Try advertising in newspapers by the year

THE NEW YORK WORLD'S MERCHANDISING DEPARTMENT

Mallers Bldg., Chicago Pulitzer Bldg., New York Ford Bldg., Detroit

The Evening World

Digitized by Google

PRINTERS GIVE UP TACOMA STRIKE

Return to Work at Former Wages on Threat of Expulsion by I. T. U.—Publishers Win Fight for Arbitration Principle

TACOMA, Sept. 12.—Facing expulsion from membership in their international unions unless they obeyed orders to resume work, striking news printers on the News-Tribune and Ledger, who walked out a week ago and prevented these two papers from publishing for six days, returned to their posts last night. The stereotypers, pressmen and mailmen who later went ont in sympathy with the printers also resumed work.

The strikers returned at the old scale, which they were receiving under the contract which expired August 31, namely, $7 and $7.50. They demanded $9.25 and $10.

Statements by Both Sides

The only announcement made by the local typographical union on the return of the strikers was as follows: "The men have returned to work and an agreement has been reached satisfactory to both sides. The committee may have some statement to issue later."

The Ledger, which made its reappearance today, issued the following statement:

"The Ledger makes its reappearance after an involuntary suspension of six days. On Friday afternoon the members of the Tacoma Typographical Union went on strike after their demand for a scale of $9.25 and $10 for six and a half hour day had been refused by the Ledger and News-Tribune.

"The printers, stereotypers, pressmen and mail room employees came back to work for the same scale and under the same working conditions which obtained in the Tribune Publishing Company, before the strike.

"The Tribune Publishing Company has, however, given its employees a written guarantee protecting them from any reduction of this scale or change in working conditions during the next six months.

"The contract which expired on September 1, 1919, has been extended for a period of six months from date and a method has been provided in it by which a peaceful and legal method is outlined for settling any grievances which may occur."

Publisher F. S. Baker said that he did not want to expand on this statement at this time.

Victory for Arbitration

The Tacoma situation assumed the proportions of a celebrated case in the annals of the International Typographical Union. It was more complex in its relation to union law than any that has ever developed in the West. The pivotal point upon which the dispute rested was whether or not the controversial matter should be determined by local or international arbitration. The News-Tribune and Ledger management insisted during the strike that their only protection was to stand by the union rules and insist on international arbitration.

"International arbitration has been in practical operation for twenty years, has stood the test of experience, and has been repeatedly approved by an overwhelming majority of the local unions which compose the international organizations," said Mr. Baker.

May Not Be Settled Yet

Printers of the Tacoma Times, Scripps-McRae newspaper, returned to work after being on strike two days on a local arbitration plan, which Baker rejected.

That the last chapter in the Tacoma newspaper strike has not been written is declared certain by close observers of the situation. Communications are still going to and from officers of the International Typographical Union, as Mr. Baker contended from the start that he was abiding religiously by the agreement entered into between the International Typographical Union and the American Publishers' Association, which provided for international arbitration of disputes.

Strike Shuts Off Gas Supply from Seattle Linotypes

Compel Return to Hand Composition and Use of Gasoline Heaters for a While

SEATTLE, Sept. 13.—Strike of gas-workers in the Seattle Lighting Company's plant, with the resultant stopping of the gas flow, gave Seattle newspapers considerable trouble last week in the composing and stereotyping rooms. At the Seattle Post-Intelligencer type that usually came from a battery of twenty-six typesetting machines was set by hand for the first edition on the first evening of the strike when the city was taken unawares by the sudden walking out of the gas company's forces.

Appliances, composed chiefly of gasoline-burning pots to melt the metal, were improvised in the offices of the Times, Union-Record, Star and later at the Post-Intelligencer, and no further interference with publishing resulted.

Gould Made Managing Editor

WICHITA FALLS, TEX., Sept. 17.—John Gould, former Dallas and Wichita Falls newspaper man, has become managing editor of the Record-News, recently purchased by the Fort Worth Record owners.

SPHINX CLUB EXPECTS NOTABLE SEASON

Will Begin 1920 Program with 163d Banquet at Waldorf-Astoria, New York, on Evening of October 14

President George Eihridge announces that the Sphinx Club will hold its 163rd banquet at 7 o'clock on Tuesday evening, October 14, at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York.

The season of 1918 was one of the most successful in the 24 years of the club's history, and 70 new members were added to the Sphinx roster, with promises of many more. Representatives of practically all the foreign governments and the United States were represented at various times, and the Sphinx dinner speeches were quoted by the nation's press and translated into many tongues abroad.

The coming season promises to be especially notable.

Ad Managers in Agency Work

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Wendell Walker, late advertising manager of the Wander Company, and H. M. Legler, until recently in charge of sales and advertising for the Open Court Publishing Company, are additions to the copy staff of the Stavrum, Thomson & Bennett Advertising Agency, this city.

Sorensen Moves Up

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—The Turner-Wagener Advertising Agency announces the election of R. A. Sorensen as treasurer. He has been in charge of auditing and checking

The News Leader Leads

DO YOU WANT TO DO BUSINESS IN RICHMOND—IN VIRGINIA, where the factories are working full time and the stores and shops are crowded?

If you do—these advertising figures from the RICHMOND newspapers for the FIRST SIX MONTHS in 1919 will interest you.

	News Leader	Times-Dispatch	Journal	Virginian
WEEK DAYS	3,998,672	2,086,362	2,067,862	584,584
SUNDAYS	No Sunday	1,834,129	No Sunday	467,904
TOTALS	3,998,672	3,920,491	2,067,862	1,052,488

The News Leader Leads in Advertising —3,998,672 Lines

The News Leader Leads in Circulation—48,681 Last Gov. Report

The News Leader Leads in Contact—3,000 more copies sold in Richmond than there are houses in Richmond.

FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVES:

Marbridge Bldg., New York KELLY-SMITH CO. Lytton Bldg., Chicago

ONE MARYLANDER IN EVERY FOURTEEN OWNS A MOTOR CAR

Maryland's fine system of state roads invites the motor tourist to drive through some of the finest scenery on the continent; naturally, the people of Maryland are motor enthusiasts. They are prosperous. They own cars and they use them on these splendid roads, and they are interested in every development of the motor industry; in every new accessory that will increase the comfort of their car; in every announcement of the tire makers, and they get their motor information from the columns of Maryland's Big Newspaper

THE BALTIMORE SUN

That The Sun is the favorite newspaper of the Maryland motor car owners and prospective owners, and consequently the first choice of automobile advertisers, is shown by the record of automobile advertising published in Baltimore Newspapers.

In August the Sun published in Morning, Evening and Sunday editions, 214,700 lines of Automobile Advertising (display and classified), 120,800 lines more than in same month last year, while the five issues of all other Baltimore newspapers in August carried only 146,800 lines.

The Sun, in other words, carried 67,000 lines of automobile advertising—more than all other Baltimore papers combined.

The Total Advertising Gain of the Baltimore Sun in the Eight Months of 1919 is Almost

4½ MILLION LINES

Digitized by Google

TOUR OF SWITZERLAND CREATES INTERNATIONAL FRIENDSHIP

American Newspaper Correspondents, Who Covered Peace Conference in Paris, Are Guests of Swiss Government—Hospitality Showered Upon Them.

SWITZERLAND has recently been quite thoroughly visited by a group of the best known American newspaper correspondents, who have been in Paris covering the Peace Conference.

This visit was the result of an invitation by the Swiss Office du Tourisme, delivered to the correspondents in Paris by Alexander Castell, special delegate selected for the mission.

Through the Famous Simplon Tunnel

Starting the tour at Geneva, future home of the League of Nations, the party visited Lausanne, Vevey, Montreux, Chillon, Viege, and Zermatt. At Zermatt an ascent was made by cog-wheel railway to the "Gornergrat," where the party had a splendid view of the snowy Mattethorn.

From Zermatt the journey led to Brigue and Interlaken. At the latter point the correspondents were taken on mountain coaches to the entrance of the Simplon Tunnel, which is twenty kilometres in length, and which reduces the time of travel from certain parts of Switzerland to cities in northern Italy by twenty-four hours.

At Interlaken an elaborate entertainment was given the party.

Climbed Noted Mountain

On the following day the Americans had a real experience in mountain climbing, when an ascent of the Jungfrau was made. The party left Interlaken in the valley with the sun shining, and at the terminal of the mountain railway its members stepped out into a heavy snowstorm. Mountain climbing shoes and snow glasses were donned and the Americans pushed on to the summit of the mountain.

Next Lucerne and Lugano were visited. At Lucerne many views of the country were possible from convenient high points, and steamer trips were made to nearby resorts on the lake. Lugano, decidedly Italian in customs, language and architecture, was greatly enjoyed. In this picturesque spot the party was invited to the summer home of Mme. Tettrazzini, the famous grand opera star, so well known in America.

Received by President

When Zurich was reached a day's rest was declared as the members of the party had travelled so hard and had been so constantly entertained that a let-up in activity was necessary. Before leaving Zurich several museums, colleges, and other public buildings were inspected; also a silk factory where the entire process of silk-making was seen.

From Zurich the trail continued to St. Moritz and St. Gall, and at the latter place an embroidery factory was visited.

The climax of the visit to Switzerland was at Berne, the capital city of the republic. By special arrangement the members of the party were received by the President at his palace.

Throughout the entire journey hospitality was showered upon the American correspondents by officials and people alike.

Undoubtedly this visit has greatly strengthened the tie of friendship between Switzerland and the United States.

The following correspondents made up the party:

Charles A. Selden, New York Times; Mr. and Mrs. Lucian J. Kirtland, Leslie's Weekly; J. B. Hirsch, New York Sun; Lincoln Steffens, American Magazine; Warnick L. Thompson, Universal News Service; Florence O'Neill, Pittsburgh Dispatch; G. C. Hickok, Brooklyn Daily Eagle; Edward T. Gibbons, Chicago Tribune; Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Bechtol, Newspaper Enterprise Association; Herbert Bayard Swope, New York World; William G. Shepherd, New York Evening Post; Mrs. Anne Elizabeth Shepherd, Everybody's Magazine; Carlisle Macdonald, New York Herald; Fred Benham, New York World, and S. S. McClure.

Photo by L. F. Kirtland

Right—William G. Shepherd, famous American war correspondent (his friends say it is his best picture). Left—Lincoln Steffens. Yes, the light does seem good, but they say it is breakfast.

Photo by L. F. Kirtland

Florence O'Neill, of the Pittsburgh Dispatch, and one of the Swiss children who, bearing wreaths as gifts, welcomed the American correspondents.

Photo by L. F. Kirtland

An outdoor luncheon of the Swiss journey. Shown in the picture are J. B. Hirsh, of the New York Sun; Fred Benham, of the New York World; Lucian J. Kirtland, of Leslie's Weekly; S. S. McClure and Lincoln Steffens.

Howland & Howland Named

The York (Pa.) Gazette and Daily have appointed Howland & Howland, 303 Fifth avenue, New York, as eastern representatives.

IF YOU NEED THIS KIND OF A SERVICE

—a service, which, entailing an expenditure of many millions of dollars over a period of years, has been amazingly successful, it may be worth your while to consider the

Liberty Advertising Agency, INC.
149 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK

Digitized by Google

The Pittsburg Press

in the first eight months of 1919 published a total volume of 15,432,284

AGATE LINES

ADVERTISING

Greatest Result Getter

O. S. HERSHMAN, President-Editor.
New York Office, Metropolitan Tower,
I. A. KLEIN, Manager

H. C. MILHOLLAND, V. Pres. & Adv. Mgr.
Chicago Office, Peoples Gas Building
JOHN GLASS, Manager

Digitized by Google

"SUSPENSION" REPLY TO STRIKE THREAT

One Hundred and Fifty-Two New York City Periodical Publishers Declare They Will Stop Publication Unless Unions Recede

Answering the threat of twelve unions whose members are employed in the book and job offices of the Employing Printers of New York, to strike on October 1 if an increase in wages of $14 a week, a 44-hour week, and other radical demands are not granted, the Periodical Publishers' Association has announced the decision of the publishers of 152 periodicals to suspend publication indefinitely unless the unions' demands are withdrawn.

Employing printers, periodical publishers, and union labor leaders have agreed that the stand of the publishers foreshadows the biggest fight the printing trade has known since the big strike of 1906 when the International Typographical Union and the United Typotheræ of America went to grips in a nation-wide strike on the eight-hour day. In the present situation about 20,000 union men are involved.

Meeting a Threat

Ninety per cent of the magazines and other periodicals published in the United States are printed in New York City and it is understood that substantially all of the larger publications were represented at the meeting where the decision was reached to suspend publication if the unions persisted in their demands. Newspapers are not affected as their agreements with the unions run until next April.

The announcement of the New York Publishers' Association was made over the signature of John Thayer Adams, secretary of the association and reads as follows:

"The periodical publishers of New York, at a meeting held Sept. 15, 1919, with 152 New York periodicals represented, agreed that, unless the unwarranted and unfair demands made on them by the radical labor leaders of the New York local unions were withdrawn, they would suspend publication until such time as the industry could be stabilized.

"Two publishers of publications of national circulation, now being published in New York, announced at the meeting their intentions to sell out their real estate in New York City, which is an entirely new property, and have ordered manufacturers of printing machinery, which was to be installed in their new buildings, not to ship, as they intended to secure property outside of New York, so that they might be free from the radicalism of local labor unions.

"The publishers of another periodical of more than a million circulation, who are now face to face with renewal of their leases, whose magazine is now paying payroll amounts to more than $17,000 weekly, announced that they will move their entire plant to a Western city rather than submit to Bolshevik rule with profit-sharing and their business.

"We hope that these steps will not be necessary."

The unions have flatly rejected an offer of the Employing Printers to increase wages $5 a week and likewise have refused to arbitrate the question of a 44-hour week. While declaring they will not moderate their demands, they have agreed to another conference with the employers Friday of this week.

Raise Strike Fund

The last conference between the employing printers and the representatives of the unions was held September 3 and at that time it was announced that the unions had levied assessments on their members of 10 per cent of their earnings in preparation for a strike.

While the announcement of the intention of the periodical publishers of their readiness to suspend publication, came a statement from the Printers' League, made up of employing printers who operate closed union shops, analyzing the demands of the unions, as follows:

"Assuming the increase in scale paid hand compositors to be representative of the percentage increase in cost of labor, it will cost $144.70 in labor to do work in New York what it costs $100 to do in Chicago, if the wage scales called for by the unions, together with the 44-hour week, are put into effect. Making the same comparisons as in the case of Chicago, each $100 worth of labor in twelve representative cities in the same competitive zone would cost $168.50 in New York."

Typothetæ's Stand

The question of a 44-hour week came up Monday at an executive session of the United Typothetæ of America, which is holding its annual convention in New York City. At this session it was voted to put the shorter day into effect October 1, 1921, as voted by the International Typographical Union as a whole, and by the other unions of the printing trades.

By accepting the proposition of the International, the employing printers, it is believed, will maintain that a contract binding on the International unions to enforce has been made, and that any strike action in New York will involve only the printers, but any other trades that may strike in support of them, into conflict with their international unions.

To meet the situation thus created, the National Conference Council of the Printing Trades, composed of Marsden G. Scott, president of the typos; Major George L. Berry, International president of the pressmen; James L. Freel, of the stereotypers and electrotypers; William Reddick, of the binders, and Matthew Woll, of the photo-engravers, with a committee of five employing printers, headed by A. G. Kendall, will meet in New York City this week.

This meeting will be followed by a meeting of a committee of the local unions, headed by Leon H. Rouse, president of New York Typographical Union No. 6 ("Big 6") with a committee of the Printers' League, the union shop section of the Employing Printers, of which William Green is chairman.

Pressmen on Strike

The present situation is complicated by a strike of two pressmen's unions at the plant of the Paul Bunyan Printing Company, in defiance of the International Typographical Union.

It is this strike which precipitated the action of members of the Periodical Publishers' Association to suspend publication. The Literary Digest is printed at the plant of the Publishers' Printing Company and is understood to have taken the lead in effecting the agreement. The attitude of the Employing Printers in this strike is explained in a statement issued by William Green, vice-president of the United Typothetæ, which reads, in part:

"The present strike in the printing industry of New York is a strike by the local unions against the disciplinary control of the International body. No question of hours, wages or working conditions is involved. The particular shop in which the strike occurred is a strictly union shop and for years has been operating under union conditions.

"The action of the local seceding union shows utter disregard for contracts for temporary advantage which can only result in industrial instability, in the overturn of collective bargaining, and destruction of confidence in the value of contracts.

"The present strike has a broader significance than merely a strike of the printing unions in New York. It will determine the faith the world can have in unions as to their ability or disposition whether labor is to abide by its contracts backed by a single national union, or whether a group of insurgents can by a promise of gain wreck completely the structure it has taken honest labor years to build.

Aiding Its Advertisers

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 16.—The Ohmsteze (Okla.) Times, a morning newspaper, is boosting its advertisers by using a small "box" on its front page telling the readers who the leading advertisers are each day and what they are advertising.

Major Asselin Re-entering Montreal Journalism

Founder of Le Nationaliste (Now Le Devoir) Is Starting La Garde Fou, a Weekly

MONTREAL, Sept. 13.—This city is shortly to have a new French-Canadian weekly called Le Garde Fou (The Railing), which will be edited by Major Olivar Asselin, who has just returned from four years of service at the front. In pre-war days Major Asselin was a well-known journalist, being the founder and editor of Le Nationaliste, which eventually became Le Devoir, now a daily and the organ of the Nationalist party.

Major Asselin broke with the Nationalist party over the war, so that his re-entry into journalism as the opponent of the party and paper he founded is likely to provide some sensational copy. He is considered by many to be the ablest French writer in Canada.

Widenberg-Anthony Engagement

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 17.—Announcement of the engagement of Miss Anna Elizabeth Widdeberg, of Brooklyn, N. Y., to Edmund Anthony, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Anthony, and secretary and publisher's assistant of E. Anthony & Sons, Inc., publishers of the New Bedford Standard, has been made. During the war Mr. Anthony served in the Naval Reserve Force as seaman, for nine months assigned to duty in foreign waters. The couple met this summer, while Miss Widdeberg was on a visit to New Bedford. Miss Widdeberg is prominent in social work in Brooklyn.

Bryant Going to Philippines

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 16.—Vaughn Bryant of this city, one of the first graduates of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, is slated for appointment as dean of a school of journalism in the Philippine Islands. Dean Walter Williams of the Missouri school has recommended him, it is said, for the place.

Dupree Returns to Seeds Agency

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 16.—Lieut. Herman J. Dupree has rejoined the Russel M. Seeds Advertising Agency staff on returning from overseas service. At one time Mr. Dupree was advertising manager of the Remy Electric Company, Chicago.

Joseph Medill Patterson, co-editor of the Chicago Tribune, is confronted with electric signs all over the city announcing the film production of his novel, "A Little Brother of the Rich," which first was published in 1908.

Within One Hundred Miles of Indianapolis

Indianapolis is the commercial center of an agricultural territory of great wealth.

During the year 1918 within one hundred miles of Indianapolis farm crops were produced to the value if $350,000,000.00 and live stock within the same area was valued at $375,000,000.00.

A $625,000,000.00 production of agricultural wealth within one hundred miles of Indiana's capital city.

Are You Sharing in This Prosperity?

Large production means large consumption. The greater the production of wealth, the greater the ability to buy. The best way of reaching the consumers of this prosperous section is thru the advertising columns of the newspaper that goes daily into every one of Indiana's ninety-one counties.

The Indianapolis Star

Largest morning and Sunday circulation in Indiana.

Eastern Representative, Kelly-Smith Co., Merbridge Building, New York.

Western Representative, John Glass, Peoples Gas Building, Chicago.

One of the Shaffer Group of Newspapers.

THE SHAFFER GROUP—
The Indianapolis Star.
The Terre Haute Star.
The Muncie Star.
The Louisville Herald.
The Denver Times.
The Rocky Mountain News.
The Chicago Evening Post.

The Indianapolis Star Gained 1,746,918 Agate Lines During the First Six Months of 1919

Indianapolis wants the 1920 Convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

THE NEW HOME OF THE TIMES-PICAYUNE, NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA

THE CORNER STONE

Of the New Home of The Times-Picayune, Corner North and Camp Streets, Will Be Laid

Wednesday, September 24th, at 5 P. M.

WILLIAM C. D'ARCY
President Associated Advertising Clubs of The World
Officiating

To which all Publishers, Patrons of The Times-Picayune, and the Public are Cordially Invited

THE TIMES-PICAYUNE

South's Greatest Newspaper

Digitized by Google

MAINE MILLS BUILD BIG WOOD RESERVE

Notably the Great Northern Paper Company Overly Supplied for Coming Winter—Costs of Production Thus Reduced

BANGOR, Me., Sept. 17.—The big pulp and paper concerns operating in Maine have piled up pulp wood reserves at such a rapid rate during the past year that, the war being over and the labor market on a downward trend, the necessity for heavy reserves no longer exists. This winter they will curtail their cut 50 per cent or so in some localities, it is understood here.

The Great Northern Paper Company with mills at Millinocket and East Millinocket, on the Penobscot River, and at Madison, on the Kenebec, has so much wood on hand that it will greatly curtail operations this winter, cutting only 60,000,000 or 70,000,000 feet, compared with an average of 110,000,000 to 120,000,000 feet on both rivers, about two-thirds of the whole quantity being cut on the Penobscot waters.

Cut Chiefly by Contractors

The cutting of pulp wood, which is usually small, to medium size spruce, is carried on at all seasons and this past summer the Great Northern Paper Company has piled up a great quantity on the south branch of the Penobscot, close to the Quebec boundary, cut chiefly by contractors.

The contract system is coming into general favor with the pulp companies, as by letting out the cut they know definitely what the wood is to cost them, whereas the expense of maintaining their own camps is variable and uncertain, as well as expensive.

Last year fabulous wages were paid to pulp wood choppers, so scarce were they and the wood crop was a very costly one. This year, however, the labor market is liberally supplied, and wages have taken a decided drop. Hundreds of men are available in Bangor today, where not a dozen could be hired a year ago at this time. Under the contract system of cutting pulp wood, the contractor usually hires his men at so much per cord, and even at the reduced rates a smart, willing chopper can make big wages.

International Union Ousts Striking Pressmen

Will Fight "Attempt to Set Up Soviet Government in New York Shops," Declares McHugh

William McHugh, vice-president of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, issued a statement Monday night denouncing the strike of union employees of the Publishers' Printing Company as an attempt to set up Soviet management of the book and job printing offices of New York. It is the intention of the International to fight the seceding unions to a finish, he said.

A strike was called against the Publishers' Printing company thirteen days ago by local unions which have seceded from the International, a subsidiary of the American Federation of Labor, in an attempt to secure the discharge of pressmen who have remained loyal to the International. The plant has continued in operation.

In his statement Mr. McHugh declares the International is out for the forty-four-hour week and increases of $14 a week for pressmen, but that it will not resort to force when results can be obtained by arbitration. In this demand he asserts the pressmen are backed by the five international unions in the printing trade.

William Green, Chairman of the union shop section of the Employing Printers' Association, said the Publishers' Company was running on normal lines and that no other concerns have been affected by the strike.

Ross and Friedlander Form New Chicago Service

Will Specialize in Advertising of Wearing Apparel, with Office in Auditorium Building

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Penny Ross Advertising, a service agency corporation, is about to come into being with headquarters in the Auditorium Building. It will be under the control and direct management of Penny Ross, Chicago Tribune cartoonist and nationally familiar as the creator of "Mamma's Angel Child," who during the past year or so has been lending toward advertising illustrations, and Philip L. Friedlander, who for the last year and a half has been advertising and sales manager for Mayer Brothers, Chicago, manufacturer of boys' and young men's clothing.

According to Mr. Friedlander, the new corporation is capitalized at $25,000, "fully paid up," and a general advertising service will be furnished to retailers, special preference being given those in wearing apparel lines.

FIFTY YEARS PAPER'S OWNER

Col. W. B. Rogers Celebrates With Special Edition of Republican

TRENTON, Mo., Sept. 13.—The Republican has just celebrated the 50th anniversary of its publication under the management and ownership of Col. W. B. Rogers with a special edition of twenty pages.

The Republican, which is the oldest paper in Grundy County, was established as the Grand River News in 1864. Col. Rogers became owner of the paper in September, 1869. Col. Rogers was born in Greene Township, Fayette County, Ohio, February 8, 1835. He first went to Missouri in 1856. He has been active in politics and served as State Senator and during the Civil War was elected sheriff of Mercer County. He served in the Civil War as a captain in the 44th infantry of Missouri Volunteers.

Collins an Owner of Bonham News

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 17.—A. C. Wright of the Austin Statesman, has been appointed instructor in the mechanics of printing at the State University. He will direct the laboratory of the School of Journalism, and will have charge of most of the printing, including the Daily Texan. Mr. Wright succeeds W. B. Collins, who has resigned to take active management of the Bonham News, in which he has bought half interest.

In Honor of E. P. Butler

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 16.—Ellis Parker Butler, author, will be the guest of the Iowa Press and Authors' Club, September 22. Members of the Des Moines Women's Press Club and of the City Press Club have been invited to be present.

EDITOR AND SON ON LONG HIKE

Have Started to Tour Roosevelt International Highway on Bicycles

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 17.—T. B. Windross, associate editor of the Sarnia (Ont.) Canadian Observer, and his son, Raymond, have started from Portland on a tour of the Theodore Roosevelt International Highway on bicycles.

They are traveling under the auspices of the Sarnia Chamber of Commerce and will register at every Chamber of Commerce and Board of Trade along the 4,000 miles of their journey, which probably will consume about three months. They will describe their trip in a series of articles.

N. Y. Free Ad Course Opens

The advertising classes of the New York Evening High School opened Monday. Instruction is entirely free, and is open to public school graduates of both sexes. The work is entirely practical throughout. Classes meet Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings, between the hours of 7:45 and 10, and new students may register at the school building. David S. Mosesson is the instructor in charge.

Two New Journalism Teachers

DENVER Colo., Sept. 16.—Two members of the Denver Times editorial staff have been engaged as instructors in journalism in Colorado universities. Lee T. Casey will be in charge of the course at the University of Colorado, Boulder, Colo., and Willard E. Hawkins will be in charge of the classes at Denver University. Mr. Hawkins is also publisher of the Student-Writer, a journal for literary workers.

Forty Years a Publisher

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Former State Senator Michael F. Collins, publisher and proprietor of the Troy Sunday Observer, this month rounds out forty years of complete control of the paper. With his two sons, Frank M. Collins and Edward Collins, Mr. Collins has controlled the paper since a few years after its founding.

The Legionnaire Out September 25

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 17.—The first edition of the Legionnaire, official publication for the American Legion of Texas, will be issued September 25. Kent Watson, formerly with the Associated Press, is editor and supervisor.

George A. Cummings of Oakland, Cal., has been elected secretary-treasurer of the Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs Association.

Say "Hello, Brooklyn!" at our expense when seeking any sort of information about this big market. Telephone or telegraph, reversing the charges to The Standard Union. This means you, no matter how far away.

Advertisers and Agencies at Your Service

THE S. C. BECKWITH SPECIAL AGENCY

Established 1880

World Building	Post-Dispatch Bldg.	Tribune Building	Ford Building	Bryant Building
NEW YORK	ST. LOUIS, MO.	CHICAGO	DETROIT	KANSAS CITY

THE MESSAGE

THE history of this agency dates back many, many years—nearly forty—and just as rapidly as newspaper advertising grew in favor, just as rapidly has the Beckwith Special Agency expanded. As a matter of fact, it had a lot to do with the pace with which newspaper advertising popularity grew—for it was not only a pioneer, but its men worked along the high-ways and the by-ways talking horse sense to advertisers about the efficiency that lay back of newspaper circulation as a "teller and seller" that could prove its own efficiency in covering the distance between manufacturer and consumer. Today the Beckwith Special Agency is known from Coast to Coast as an organization that stands for the highest ideals in its business relations between buyers of space and the newspapers that the organization represents. Its policy from its early days has been to give advertisers service in its list of newspapers that would justify confidence year after year.

The Workers

J. T. BECKWITH
R. W. BECKWITH
T. F. FLYNN
J. W. COOPER
P. L. HENRIQUEZ
C. T. LOGAN
S. W. DuBOIS
F. E. FORSHAW
J. R. LISSON
A. SEIFFER
A. MARUCCHI
A. GROSS
W. MARKWIZ
W. M. THOMPSON
G. CINQUE
J. L. MANDABLE
S. C. BECKWITH, Jr.
EARL BECKWITH
J. J. FARRELL
A. W. PINNELL
E. M. ROSCHER
J. CARR GAMBLE
C. O. LANGLOIS
M. H. ROWZEE
S. L. RARIDEN
H. B. RAYMOND

THE BECKWITH SPECIAL AGENCY is equipped to be of real service to advertisers and agencies that require or desire trade information concerning selling conditions or distribution methods that exist in each city in which it represents a newspaper. All publishers represented are believers in the co-operative idea and are glad of the opportunity to strengthen in various ways the effect of the advertising messages placed in their columns. At your service always.

The Beckwith Neo-Latin Division will aid you to establish your business or increase it, in South America, Central America and the West Indies. Write to New York Office for particulars.

THE S. C. BECKWITH SPECIAL AGENCY

Representatives at St. Charles Hotel, New Orleans, La., During A. A. C. W. Convention

Digitized by Google

TORONTO TIMES ENDS SHORT LIFE

Six Months Ago It Succeeded the Daily News—Publishers Find It Impossible to Meet Increasing Cost of Production

TORONTO, Sept. 17.—The Toronto Times has suspended publication. A winding up order has been granted and a liquidator appointed. The end has come with unexpected suddenness and practically no one on either the business, editorial or mechanical staffs was aware that suspension was contemplated until the announcement appeared in the morning papers on the day the paper ceased publication.

Approximately 120 employees have been thrown out of work and are now scurrying about looking for new positions. They include composing room employees, 37; stereotype, 3; proof room, 4; press room, 5; mailing room, 7; business staff, 9; advertising, 6; circulation, 8; editorial, 30.

Production Too High of Cost

The statement as handed out on the night of September 11 by C. W. McDiarmid, the business manager, was as follows:

"At a meeting of the shareholders of the Toronto Times, Limited, held tonight, it was unanimously decided to suspend publication. Owing to the enormous increases in the cost of production, it has become no longer profitable to continue the publication of the paper. A winding-up order is being applied for."

It is just six months ago since the Toronto Times, Limited, was formed to take over the Toronto Daily News and the Times has been practically a continuation of the latter paper. The News originated in 1881, being established by the Riordons, who are prominent in the pulp and paper manufacturing industry.

History of Paper

It passed through several hands until 1903, when the property was acquired by Sir Joseph Flavelle, with whom was associated Sir John Willison. Sir Joseph financed the paper for a number of years but it was never a financial success.

Later other interests associated with the conservative party kept it in funds. Two years ago Sir John Willison withdrew He was succeeded as editor by F. D. L. Smith, while C. W. McDiarmid became business manager. The change to the Times was made in an attempt to rehabilitate the fortunes of the paper but evidently without success.

Toronto is now left with three morning and two evening papers.

New Branham Phone List Is Out

The John M. Branham Company, publishers' representative, with offices in New York City, Detroit, Chicago, Atlanta, St. Louis, and Chicago, has just issued a new hanger, similar in form and contents to those that have preceded it, giving the names, addresses and telephone numbers, of the New York City offices of the representatives of newspapers, farm papers, general agencies, magazines, and miscellaneous publications.

Hellmann Is "of Chicago"

In the issue or EDITOR & PUBLISHER of August 7 it was stated that Walter C. Hellmann was of Louisville, Ky. He was formerly of Louisville, but is now, and has been since last April, a Chicagoan. Mr. Hellmann is in Kuppenheimer's advertising department, specializing on dealer help.

LITTLE TRAGEDIES OF A NEWSPAPER OFFICE

Miss Du Puyster is quite overcome to discover that "Dolly Dimples," writer of such beautiful "Advice to the Lovesick," is not the dainty little blue-eyed fuzzy-haired person she had pictured.

"CLIFF" KNIGHT

LIKE every other cartoonist, "Cliff" Knight hates bouquets—he does. He dodges every one that comes his way—whenever he thinks there is a brick-bat in it. He is always expectant. Anyway, the only bouquet he thinks is really worth while, now that even an artist's clothes cost money, is the one the Boss puts into an envelope periodically—any old kind of an envelope, so long as it isn't blue. That's why this is a plain, straightforward tale.

When "Cliff's" name gets on the top line of the list of cartoonists and the roll is called of the men who "discovered" him, Harry C. Smith's cognomen will stand at the head. Mr. Smith was editor of the Rockville (Conn.) Leader, and he made his discovery when the boy climbed up the old wooden staircase to his office and whisperingly offered him a sketch of a fireman's fair that was being run off in the town.

It got on the first page when the next bi-weekly number of the Leader went to press. Young Knight admired it till he almost burst. Then he ran all the way home with it, and his mother nearly cried with him as she adjusted her glasses to gaze her fill of her son's artistry.

His father ventured the hope that a newspaper career would be a wise choice for a capable young man.

For good or ill, that first page cartoon started Knight. With a "do-or-die" determination he went West, where there was "more scope," whatever that may be. He did pretty well on several newspapers in Ohio, but became peeved because so many city editors seemed to appreciate his reportorial abilities as higher than his artistic talents. So he came back to New England and did a lot of cartoon work satisfactorily for the Hartford Post and the Courant. Then he determined that New York couldn't get on without him any longer, or that, anyway, there he'd have a chance to fight for his head with the best.

That's how he comes to be on the New York Evening Mail, where his clever work on the magazine page is attracting attention. He is nursing along a line of comic strips, too, that are called more than "pretty good," and still finds time to manage the art end of Associated Advertising, for which he also produces a full page cartoon and a number of other sketches every issue. Besides this he contributes cartoons regularly to "The Medical Pickwick" and "Policeman's News" of New York.

ADVERTISING SECURED

Advertising for Special Issues of Daily Papers and Magazines. Souvenir Programs of big events. Publicity campaigns conducted. If you have a legitimate reason for producing something special I have the men and means to do it.

J. L. Le BERTHON
2 RECTOR STREET NEW YORK CITY

You will please note that the man who made a better mousetrap incidentally became a pioneer in this good-roads movement by having the world make a beaten path to his door.

In the making of a daily newspaper the owners of

The Denver Post

(F. G. BONFILS AND H. H. TAMMEN)

Have for the past 26 years been actuated by this single motive, viz: To make each succeeding issue the best. They fixed no standard of excellence—fix none now—accepted no models. Betterments must continue. To this and every agency—money, editorial and reportorial ability, news services, artists, cartoonists, mechanical skill, transportation, business department, all—must contribute in fullest measure.

The paid circulation of this newspaper for the past six years is proof that it has created a world of newspaper readers, making paths to them over every highway and byway to the remotest country post office, village, mining camp and community in Colorado—a state where every ninth person—man, woman, boy and girl—and in the City of Denver where every fifth person—is a paying subscriber. Here are the figures.

Year.	Average week-day issue.	Average Sunday issue
1914	70,134	97,637
1915	77,977	104,946
1916	90,398	108,722
1917	98,350	122,209
1918	115,161	139,119
1919 (August)	117,473	147,366

(A. B. C. Audit on Application.)

Advertising

Having made, then, a better newspaper and determined to continue to make that kind only, it is not surprising to find a world of advertisers making much beaten paths into our advertising columns. Here is shown a summary of their requirements for

AUGUST, 1919

Local Display Lines	National Display Lines	Classified Lines
568,312	233,212	219,908
	Total Lines, 1,121,232.

And for 8 months, 1919

4,589,192	2,002,504	2,286,480
	Total Lines, 8,887,176.

Number of separate classified or want ads 8 months, 1919

The Denver Post..... 394,874
Next Denver newspaper..... 115,491

Address all communications to

The Denver Post
DENVER, COLO.

Publishers' Representatives,

CONE, LORENZEN AND WOODMAN
New York, 225 Fifth Ave.
Detroit, American Bldg.
Chicago, 12 S. Adams St.
Atlanta, Candler Bldg.

BARANGER-WEAVER CO.
Merchants Exchange Bldg., San Francisco, Cal.

Iowa's "Old Reliable" Sunday Newspaper

THE
Des Moines Sunday Register

is enoying the largest circulation and the largest advertising patronage in its career. The Sunday Register is thoroughly metropolitan and will favorably compare with any Sunday newspaper published in cities twice the population of Des Moines. Its issues have averaged 66 pages a Sunday for the last three months. Eight pages of photogravure on super calendered paper. The only Associated Press Sunday newspaper in Central Iowa.

One Exceeds Any Two

The Sunday Register has a greater paid circulation than any two other Des Moines or Iowa Sunday newspapers. The official statements prove it.

71,963
Net Paid August Average

The Des Moines Sunday Register has gained 4,156 new subscribers since January 1st. The city circulation of 27,295 represents a copy for practically every home in the city.

Sunday Register gains
430,934 lines in 3 months

In June, July and August, The Sunday Register carried 928,256 lines—an increase of 430,934 lines over the same months of 1918.

LOCAL display advertising increased 226,352 lines—National advertising increased 117,076 lines. Classified advertising increased 87,506 lines.

NO medical, speculative, financial or other advertising classed as objectionable by the A. N. A. is accepted by The Sunday Register—all of this remarkable increase is clean advertising.

Representatives

I. A. Klein, Metropolitan Tower, New York

John Glass, Peoples Gas Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Digitized by Google

How the Interstate Circulators Looked to Cartoonist Walsh of the Scranton Times

SPLENDID MEETING HELD BY INTERSTATERS

(Continued from Page 10.)

for new business as this may oblige him to change his accounts from one paper to another as well as change his orders for papers.

"On the other hand, our exclusive agents keep us posted on the activities of other newspapers in their towns, such as subscription campaigns that are being planned, and sometimes we are able to start a campaign of this kind before our competitor does.

"At present we have 90 agencies within a radius of about 25 or 30 miles and less than ten of these handle other newspapers. We pay our agents an attractive commission for all new business they obtain and we protect them by sticking fast to a rule that all subscriptions in their towns must be ordered through them."

Praise for Newsboys

The American newsboy is about as bright, capable, quick-witted, ambitious, and resourceful a youngster as it is possible to find anywhere in the country, M. L. Goodman, secretary of the Scrantonian, told his audience at the convention.

"The best way to handle newsboys is to treat them fairly, encourage them to come to you with their troubles and advise them to go to school and save their money, and show them that you are really interested in their success. You'll get top-notch results from such boys.

"Giving prizes for good work is a good plan, too. There are a number of prosperous business men in Scranton today who wear watches that were won in contests conducted by us and they are mighty proud of them.

"Newspaper selling is fine training for any boy. There are lots of lawyers, doctors, and successful merchants in Scranton who got their start selling papers. Some of our newsboys start to college every year."

Col. L. A. Waires opened the tower of his beautiful mansion, permitting the automobile party which had just returned from a trip around Lake Scranton, to view the surrounding country. The mansion is 1,600 feet above the level of the sea and the tower commands a view for twenty miles around.

A special performance at the Majestic Theatre was tendered Manager Louis Epstein, Thursday night.

GIANT FLAG GREETED PRINCE

Toronto Mail and Empire Had 80x40 Foot Flag on Building

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 16.—During the visit of the Prince of Wales to Toronto the city was lavishly bedecked with flags and mottoes on the most elaborate scale, but the colossal Union Jack displayed by the Mail and Empire on the front of the Mail building so far transcended all others that it was the theme of amazing admiration. It is doubtful if his royal highness ever saw the flag of the British Empire with such gigantic dimensions.

The flag itself was of canvas, 80 feet by 40 feet, and was suspended from the top of the Mail building. It quite covered the whole front in width, and from top to bottom, leaving just enough space for the public at the steps of the main entrance. This enormous Union Jack was painted in one piece, and was absolutely exact and correct in all colors and proportions.

"Press Day" in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 16.—President J. W. Kayser of the Oklahoma Editorial Association has announced September 26 as "Press Day" for the Oklahoma State Fair here. President Wilson may speak, and a large attendance of state publishers is expected.

Free Press Exhibit Wins Again

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 16.—Employes of the Free Press were awarded first prize at the Greater Winnipeg Garden Show for an exhibit of vegetables entered in the class for industrial and community clubs displays. This is the second year they have won in this section.

Editor Mysteriously Attacked

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 15.—C. H. Griffith, editor and publisher of The Comet, in which attacks have been made on several well-known persons, including city official, was found unconscious and bleeding recently in a lonely spot down the valley from El Paso.

NEIGHBORS

BY BENNET KING

The Girl Who Dreams

Yesterday I saw a girl who stands or sits all day behind a small machine which addresses envelopes. Young she is in years, with an eager vital youth that spills all about her an atmosphere of romance and mystery. Swiftly her hands move to adjust her machine, then languidly she leans far back in her chair with her arms stretched high above her head. Always her wide eyes dance with a hidden meaning, the age-old challenge of the women of all the ages, and she shakes herself a bit, rises to dance a few steps to cast off the fatigue of confinement. But she is never tired, it is only the irksomeness of restraint that wearies her, the impatience of youth that eternally wars with close application to the monotony of labor. But her spirit seems always untamed, and always she smiles on the verge of laughter, except when pensive-eyed she gazes out of the window for long moments and dreams—of the shipping clerk on the floor below who expects to make those dreams of hers come true.

Six times a week.

Released by

Thompson Feature Service

No. 443
Fourth Ave.,
NEW YORK

FIRST

In August The New York Times published more than thirty per cent. of the total advertising appearing in New York morning newspapers in each of the nine classifications listed below. The Times ranked first in each classification.

	Total in 6 New York Morning Newspapers. Agate Lines.	The New York Times. Agate Lines.	Percentage.
Boots and Shoes	30,160	13,292	44
Financial	454,490	158,618	34
Men's Furnishings	132,674	60,346	45
Office Appliances	15,202	7,248	47
Periodicals and Publishers.	108,440	62,976	58
Schools and Colleges	67,102	27,202	40
Automobiles	380,350	121,274	31
Hotels and Restaurants	38,714	16,692	43
Real Estate	419,840	134,282	32

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S Space-Buyers' Charts and Market Survey of the STATE OF CONNECTICUT

PAGES 29 TO 56 INCLUSIVE

CONNECTICUT HAS REDUCED THE PRODUCTION OF WEALTH TO A SCIENTIFIC SYSTEM

Industrial Greatness of State Analyzed for National Advertisers Who Seek Greater Markets for Their Products—A Leader in Many Important Lines of Manufacture—Readjustment from War to Peace Basis Accomplished Without Serious Consequences

CONNECTICUT is a state of surprising contrasts.

In size it is forty-sixth, in population thirty-first, in density of population it is fifth among the states of the Union.

Within its landed area of 4,820 square miles (gross area 4,965 square miles) are more than four thousand manufacturing industries, some of these being the most extensive of their kind in the United States, their products having world-wide distribution.

Connecticut is essentially a state of cities. According to census reports of 1910, 89.7 per cent of her people lived in incorporated towns and cities of 2,500 population and upward. Ten years previous this urban population was 87.2 per cent of the state's total, which indicates the steady drift toward the cities—centers of wealth production.

This is accounted for by the fact that Connecticut's major sources of wealth are found in her industries, agriculture being subordinated. Statistics show that there are 231.3 inhabitants to the square mile. These figures are of the last census, and of course are larger now by a substantial margin.

In 1914 there were in the state 17 cities having estimated populations of 10,000 or more. These cities alone, with an estimated population totaling 61.1 per cent of that of the state, reported, in 1914, 71.6 per cent of the value of Connecticut's manufactured product.

In 1914 the steam railway mileage in the state was 999; electric railway mileage, 963.

Demobilization of War Industries

Coastwise commerce is served by numerous good harbors on Long Island Sound. Bridgeport, New Haven and New London are ports of entry of no mean importance.

In quoting official statistics covering the volume and nature of Connecticut's manufactured products it is necessary to mark back to 1914. From that year until 918 the state's manufacturing plants were in a very large measure diverted to war production, and no figures are obtainable at this time showing the volume of this work. Immediately after the signing of the armistice, however, and because of the cancelling of large government orders, Connecticut's manufacturers went about the difficult task of readjusting industry to a peace time basis. Many had anticipated a general disruption of business while this process was going on. There had been drawn to the state many thousands of workers for the great emergency. Plants had been especially created for the production of arms, ammunition and war equipment. Men and women had been drawn from other vocations to carry on the necessary work of the nation. The "work or fight" order had been instrumental in giving to thousands of people their first experience of industrial life.

What happened, at the close of hostilities—and what is happening now, when the state's industries are again winning to a sound and stable peace basis—forms an interesting chapter of industrial history.

The thousands who had been drawn to war work, for the most part, returned to their peace time labors. The armies of emergency men from other states returned home. There was no panic, no sudden shock to the industrial life of the state such as had been feared.

No Unemployment Problem

Today Connecticut has no "unemployment problem" in any large way. There are a certain number of drifters, strikers and other disturbing elements in the leading cities, but they do not constitute a special problem due to the transition from peace to war. Rather they indicate the inevitable factors of unrest present always in industrial communities.

It would be strange if the matters of wages and of working conditions were not to the fore at this time of unstable living costs. They are present in Connecticut as in every other state—but in no menacing sense. This little but mighty commonwealth, dating its free life back to the day of the "Charter Oak," prides itself upon the poise and conservatism of its people—and particularly upon their undiluted Americanism. It is the conviction of her people that Connecticut may always be trusted to solve every industrial or political problem in the good old American way, without resort to revolutionary ideas or policies.

So that, while Connecticut workmen do react naturally to the world-wide undercurrent of unrest; while they do aspire to still better wages and living conditions, no industrial crisis is in sight. The state is prosperous, busy, growing steadily in industrial greatness and is keeping its eyes turned to the future with 100 per cent confidence and faith.

No Clouds Visible

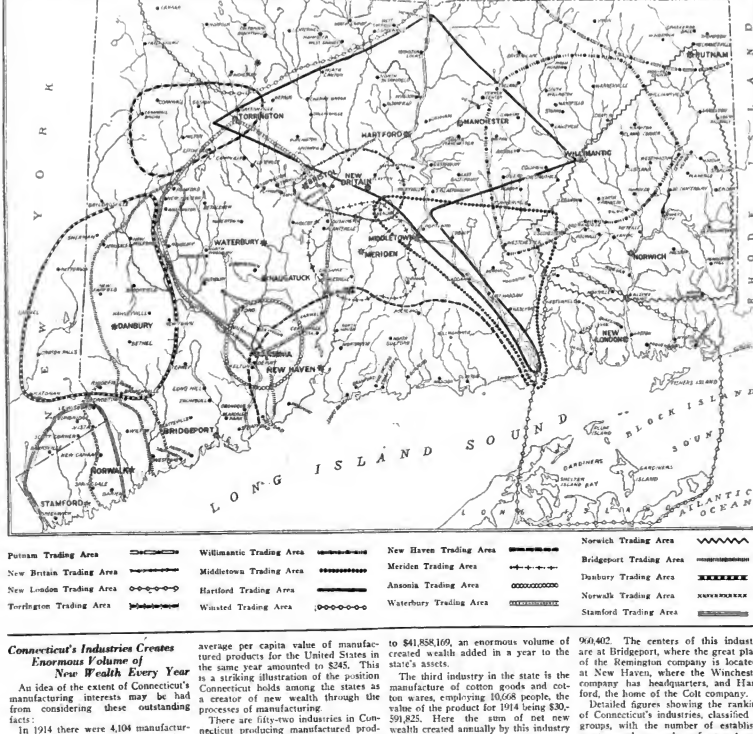
In many talks with men representing industrial interests in the state, a representative of EDITOR & PUBLISHER has been impressed with their view that the danger point in the transition period has been safely passed. Has there been profiteering in war supplies? These men say yes, perhaps, in isolated cases. They claim no super-moral virtues for Connecticut people. But they point out a fact which means much to them and which has not been sufficiently emphasized: Many Connecticut manufacturers turned the resources of their plants over to the government at an actual sacrifice of usual profits. They did this unGrudgingly, in the same spirit which actuated the state's young sons in flocking to the colors. It was national service—and Connecticut, which did not falter when she constituted one of the original group of thirteen states, whose people have always been "minute men" in their spirit of service to the union, met every test in the great crisis and carried their part of the common burden.

It is no small source of pride to the people of the state that Connecticut's genius in the industries, Connecticut's organization for emergency production and Connecticut's army of skilled workmen proved a veritable strong right arm to Uncle Sam and aided mightily in the working of the miracle of preparation which amazed the world.

Daily Newspapers of Connecticut

City	Newspaper
Ansonia	Sentinel	(E)
Bridgeport	Post	(E)
	Sunday Post	(S)
	Standard-Telegram	(M)
	Herald	(E)
	Timos and Farmer	(E)
Bristol	Press	(E)
Danbury	News	(E)
Hartford	Times	(E)
	Courant	(M)
	Sunday Courant	(S)
	Post	(E)
Manchester	Herald	(E)
Meriden	Journal	(E)
	Record	(M)
Middletown	Press	(E)
New Britain	Herald	(E)
	Record	(E)
New Haven	Register	(E)
	Sunday Register	(S)
	Journal-Courier	(M)
	Times-Leader	(E)
	Union	(E)
	Sunday Union	(S)
New London	The Day	(E)
	Telegraph	(M)
	Globe	(E)
Naugatuck	News	(E)
Norwalk	Norwalk Hour	(E)
	South Norwalk Sentinel	(E)
Norwich	Bulletin	(M)
	Record	(E)
Stamford	Advocate	(E)
Torrington	Register	(E)
Waterbury	Republican	(M)
	Sunday Republican	(S)
	American	(E)
	Democrat	(E)
Willimantic	Chronicle	(E)
Winsted	Citizen	(E)

(E)—Eve. (M)—Morning (S)—Sunday



INDEX TO SPACE BUYERS' CHARTS

City	Page	City	Page
Ansonia	54	New Haven	31-33
Bridgeport	35-36	New London	49
Danbury	54	Norwalk	53
Hartford	37-39	Norwich	51
Meriden	47-48	Stamford	45
Middletown	54	Waterbury	41-43
New Britain	54	Willimantic	55

Digitized by Google

TRADING AREAS OF CONNECTICUT VISUALIZED

This map shows the boundry lines of territories from which each of the large cities of the state attracts business.

Putnam Trading Area
New Britain Trading Area
New London Trading Area
Torrington Trading Area
Willimantic Trading Area
Middletown Trading Area
Hartford Trading Area
Winsted Trading Area
New Haven Trading Area
Meriden Trading Area
Ansonia Trading Area
Waterbury Trading Area
Norwich Trading Area
Bridgeport Trading Area
Danbury Trading Area
Norwalk Trading Area
Stamford Trading Area

Connecticut's Industries Creates Enormous Volume of New Wealth Every Year

An idea of the extent of Connecticut's manufacturing interests may be had from considering these outstanding facts:

In 1914 there were 4,104 manufacturing establishments in the state, employing 254,499 people and having a total payroll of $160,731,359. Of the employes, 236,204 were wage earners. These establishments turned out products to the value of $545,471,517. The materials used cost $288,510,886. The value added by the manufacturing process—and thus the new wealth created by these industries in one year—was $256,960,631. Thus we are considering, as a market unit for advertised goods, a state in which machinery, brains and labor create, each year, more than a quarter of a billion of net wealth!

The per capita value for products for the state amounted to $454, while the average per capita value of manufactured products for the United States in the same year amounted to $245. This is a striking illustration of the position Connecticut holds among the states as a creator of new wealth through the processes of manufacturing.

There are fifty-two industries in Connecticut producing manufactured products in excess of one million dollars a year each. These range from the brass, bronze and copper products, amounting to $69,353,103 in 1914, to toys and games, with an output valued at $1,089,205. In the first industry named there were employed 16,781 people, and in the latter 527.

Metal Products the Dominant Industry

Metal industries, of one class or another, lead all manufacturing lines in the state. Foundry and machine-shop products amount in value to $67,009,127, employing 39,369 people. The value added to costs of materials by the manufacturing processes in this line amounts to $41,858,169, an enormous volume of created wealth added in a year to the state's assets.

The third industry in the state is the manufacture of cotton goods and cotton wares, employing 10,668 people, the value of the product for 1914 being $30,591,825. Here the sum of net new wealth created annually by this industry is $13,473,000.

Silk goods rank fourth among the industries, employing 10,668 people, with a total annual product valued at $30,591,918. Of this total the new wealth added by the manufacturing processes amounts to $12,185,573.

The fifth industry of the state is the manufacture of firearms and ammunition—a peace-time industry in which Connecticut has long been the leader among the states. This industry employs in peace times more than ten thousand men, the value of the annual product in 1914 was $25,657,797 and the value created by manufacture was $13,960,402. The centers of this industry are at Bridgeport, where the great plant of the Remington company is located; at New Haven, where the Winchester company has headquarters, and Hartford, the home of the Colt company.

Detailed figures showing the ranking of Connecticut's industries, classified in groups, with the number of establishments, employes, value of annual output for 1914—the last census reports that are reliable—and the amounts of new wealth created by these industries are shown in this issue in a separate tabulation. These statistics were issued in 1917 by the Department of Commerce, and it is the opinion of Connecticut manufacturers that the figures shown will approximate very closely to those covering operations for 1919.

Rich Market for Worthy Products

While the variety of Connecticut manufactured products is bewildering, the facts show that Connecticut is a rich market for all standard products adver-

Digitized by Google

Survey in Two Parts .....PART 1

EDITOR & PUBLISHER — SPACE BUYERS CHART —

New Haven, Conn.

Population

1910 Census	133,605
A. B. C. April, 1919	160,800
A. B. C. City and Suburban	257,000
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City	180,000
Chamber of Commerce, City and Suburban	225,000

Native whites.	74%	English reading...	85%
Foreign born.	23%	Industrial workers.	25%
Negroes	3%	Home owners....	23,000
Students	4,000	Summer residents.	5,000

Suburban and Farm Residents

in territory within ten-mile radius...Branford...10,000. Wallingford... 12,000. North Haven...6,000. Derby, Ansonia and Seymour...40,000. Milford...16,000. Many large produce farms and a few dairies which send practically their entire output to the markets of New Haven. The greater part of the farm products are brought to a large central wholesale market which numbers among its regular patrons many dealers who come from points as far distant as Bridgeport and New York.

City Classed As

Manufacturing and educational center. Also the business center of a popular and prosperous Summer resort section extending about ten miles east and thirty miles east of the city.

Location

On the shore line and five other divisions of N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., including the New York, Hartford, Springfield and Boston division of the same line. Two steamboat lines to New York. Connecticut Co. trolley lines throughout the city and suburban territory west to Bridgeport, east to New London, north to Waterbury, Derby and Ansonia.

Banks

Savings	3	Resources...$52,323,646
State Banks and Trust Companies	5	" .. 21,546,152
National	5	" .. 42,205,641

The banking resources of the city are considerably over $116,000,000.

Theatres

16 Moving Pictures exclusively.
2 Vaudeville and Motion Picture combined.
2 Legitimate Houses.
Seating capacity of these houses averages 1000 seats; the largest house has 3,200.

Schools

47 Public grade schools	No. of pupils.....22,100
1 High school	No. of pupils.....3,219
2 Trade schools	No. of pupils.....376

There are 5 business schools, 8 Catholic schools, a boys' preparatory and a girls' preparatory school, school of gymnastics and one of the largest grammar schools in the east in addition to the Yale University with its varied associate schools. There are two orphan asylums with total registration less than 500 and 28 private schools.

Churches

8 Baptist. 1 Christian Science. 18 Congregational. 14 Episcopal. 3 Jewish. 6 Lutheran. 17 Methodist. 1 Presbyterian. 18 Roman Catholic. 1 Second Advent. 1 Seventh Day Advent. 1 Universalist. 1 Undenominational.

Principal Industries

Firearms and ammunition (a leading industry in peace or war time), rubber shoes and other rubber goods, household and builders' hardware, clocks and watches, plumbers' materials and sanitary appliances, corsets, hosiery and underwear, automobiles, auto accessories, carriage and automobile bodies, concrete stone, electric elevators, dies, chucks, screws, geometric tools, machine tools, hack saws, saddlery specialties, printers' machinery, safes, caskets, wire, paper wares and boxes, drop forgings, pianos, organs, oyster growing and cigars.

Special Information

Manufacturing industries employ more than 35,000 people.

Yearly volume of business estimated by Chamber of Commerce at $60,000,000. Several prominent business men place figures at $75,000,000.

The variety of industries results in a high wage scale and demand for skilled mechanics.

Educational opportunities, private home awning and social surroundings are of such a high standard that desires and purchasing characteristics of all classes are varied and alert. Number and standard of stores indicate general prosperity and natural demand for everything of merit from latest laundry soap to gorgeous gowns and palatial touring cars.

NOTE: Sources from which the above figures and facts and those of Part 2 were secured.—Chas. E. Julin, secretary of the New Haven Chamber of Commerce, the latest A. B. C. report to date, several recently compiled bank statements and interviews with reliable business men, educators and others.

tised and sold through her splendid stores. In other words, Connecticut does not consider herself self-sufficient. Selling to all the states—and to all the world—her people buy the products of all the states and of all the world. The majority of her people being producers, they are appreciative critics of worthwhile products. More than that—they are able to buy whatever they need or desire, either of necessities or of luxuries.

A state in which there are more than a quarter of a million wage earners employed at good pay in the factories presents market possibilities easily understood and appreciated by national advertisers. All sorts of food products find a ready market in the state; clothing, automobiles, tobacco products, furniture, in fact, almost every line of standard goods finds a market place in this wealth-producing corner of the union.

If we are to group under textiles the manufactures of cotton goods, silks, woolen, worsted and felt goods, hosiery and knit goods, cordage and linen, this industry would rank second in the state only to metals manufactures. The textile group gave employment in 1914 to an average of 36,765 wage earners and reported products valued at $84,633,997.

Connecticut in 1914 ranked first among the states in the value of her metals products, with 42.8 per cent of the total for the United States. The state leads the nation in the manufacture of hardware. The value of this product is $28,808,363, which in 1914 amounted to 39.3 per cent of the total hardware products of the United States.

Lines in Which Connecticut Leads

Connecticut ranks first in the manufacture of firearms and ammunition. In silverware and plated ware the state also leads the country, producing nearly forty per cent of the total output. Meriden is the center of this great industry, and here it had its origin more than a hundred years ago in the manufacture of pewter utensils, which pioneer effort led to the development of process plating as invented by the famous brothers Rogers, whose initial work was done in Hartford, but whose larger development was carried on at Meriden and now constitutes a part of the great International Silver Corporation of that city.

In the making of corsets Connecticut stands first. In the manufacture of cutlery and tools the state ranks second. In rubber goods her rank is sixth in value of products. One-quarter of the fur and felt hats made in the United States are made in Connecticut. In this industry the state stands second. In clocks and watches, including cases and materials, Connecticut stands first among the states.

Since the advent of the national child labor law children under sixteen have disappeared from the ranks of wage earners in the industries. Women, however, have found their places in the various lines of manufacturing and since the war their number has largely increased. There are but two classes of industries in the state in which women are not employed—iron and steel forgings and gas making.

In the industries of box making, buttons, clothing, corsets, furnishing goods, hosiery and knit goods the women employees outnumber the men. In all other lines men predominate.

Stability of Employment

The four largest cities in the state are New Haven, Bridgeport, Hartford and Waterbury; but in respect to the number of wage earners employed in 1914, these cities ranked in the following order: Bridgeport, New Haven, Waterbury and Hartford.

Among Connecticut's industries those affording the most nearly uniform employment are the manufacture of cotton goods and printing and publishing. March is usually the month of maximum employment in a majority of the industries, and August the minimum. The dominant cities, named above, show the greatest stability in employment, taking all industries into consideration, the fluctuations in the number of wage earners employed from month to month being slight.

The working week in Connecticut industries, as of 1914, varies greatly. There were but 18,850 wage earners working 48 hours or less per week; 27,929 working from 48 to 54 hours; 38,856 working 54 hours; 121,717 working from 54 hours to 60 hours, and 16,067 working 60 hours each week. It will be seen that the eight-hour day does not prevail very generally in these great industrial centers.

However, the tendency is toward a shortening of the working day, and the figures here given, it is claimed, do not fairly represent working hours of today. They show, however, a considerable variance from prevailing working hours in cities which are highly unionized.

The cities of Connecticut, having between 10,000 and 25,000 inhabitants, ac-

(Continued on Page 38.)

MARKET GARDENING AT STRATFORD

Intensive farming is carried on in every part of the state. Scores of busy manufacturing cities afford ready markets for all garden products.

THE FAMOUS YALE CAMPUS

Since 1701 this has been a center of American educational progress and culture, drawing to itself ambitious youth from every country of the world, and playing a mighty part in the drama of world progress.

Digitized by Google

ONE PAPER COVERS NEW HAVEN
CONNECTICUT

The New Haven Register.

Daily Paid Circulation Over 27,000 Copies

Practically Double Any Other New Haven Paper. The major part of the advertising of New Haven Merchants appears in the Register—They know the field.

Actual Advertising Lineage Carried by New Haven Newspapers First Six Months of 1919

Register	5,939,152
Union	2,790,012
Journal Courier	3,301,145
Times Leader	2,191,088

80% More Advertising in The Register Than in Any Other Paper.

The Register printed in this period in automobile and accessory advertising 155,138 lines more than its nearest competitor.

Advertisers who have conducted concentrated campaigns in The Register have secured tremendous results.

IN NEW HAVEN–THE REGISTER DOMINATES

92% of Circulation Within 15 Miles of City Hall.

THE REGISTER IS OVERWHELMINGLY AHEAD of all New Haven Papers in circulation and in advertising. It is the quantity and quality paper of New Haven. The paper with the prestige.

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER SPACE BUYERS CHART

Survey in Two Parts ..... PART 2

New Haven, Conn.

Wholesale Houses

Beef and provision dealers	11
Butter, cheese and eggs	9
Tobacconists	8
Confectioners	15
Druggists	3
Fish dealers	3
Flour dealers	9
Fruit dealers	12
Grocers	18
Commission merchants	24
Shoe dealers	3

They supply retailers throughout the city and suburban territory as far distant as Milford on the west, Waterbury on the north, and the Connecticut River valley on the east. These points are supplied daily and on a few shore resort routes every other day by auto delivery and trolley express lines in addition to the regular railroad express and freight service.

Retail Section

The principal shopping center is about a mile on Church and Chapel streets. Here are located the large department stores, specialty houses, etc. On Orange and Elm streets within a block of this business heart are women's wear, millinery and other exclusive and specialty shops.

On State street and Grand avenue is found another business center about a mile long, the latter street passing through the Italian section.

For about a half-mile on Broadway and Dixwell avenue there is a prosperous neighborhood shopping section.

For a distance of more than a mile and a quarter on Meadow street and Congress avenue there is a thriving business district of small shops of every description. The Congress avenue section is for the most part the Hebrew quarter.

Residential Features

There are three small tenement sections, but 1 and 2-family houses predominate, even in the poorer wards. The private homes of the working class and the wealthy are of a character that denotes prosperity and desire for the better things in home life and education.

There are a few apartment houses of the better grade and several in course of construction. However, the tendency of the people is toward owning their own homes.

Trading Area

Westville and Fair Haven are part of the city. West Haven and East Haven are so close to the city lines that their population is sometimes considered as New Haven residents. The same is true of Hamden and Hightwood.

On the west the towns are not of vital importance to the shopping interest of New Haven but on the east and north the shoreline towns as far east as Saybrook are prosperous and because of excellent trolley and train service they swell the buying standards of New Haven by thousands of dollars every week. The bulk of this business comes to the city on Friday and Saturday.

The trading boundaries to the northeast and north extend just beyond Derby, Ansonia and Wallingford. These prosperous towns are within the New Haven area and contribute generously to the retail business of the city.

Beyond these towns the Waterbury, Meriden and Hartford merchants attract about as much business from the territory as the New Haven houses.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Products

Automobile (Passenger) Agencies	46	Delicatessen stores	42	Garages	66	Milliners and Millinery Goods	69
Automobile (Truck) Agencies	43	Dress-makers	304	Grocers (Retail)	793	Opticians	6
Automobile (Tire) Agencies	36	Druggists (Retail)	94	Hardware and Cutlery	30	Piano stores	16
Automobile (Parts) Agencies	77	Dry Goods stores	67	Hats and Caps	31	Photographers	33
Bakers	77	Department stores	5	Jewelers	66	Plumbers, steam and gas fitters	114
Cigar stores	65	Electrical Supplies	10	Ladies' Tailors	46	Restaurants and Lunch Rooms	147
Cloak and Suit stores	43	Florists	30	Meat Markets	161	Shoe Dealers	96
Clothiers	46	Furniture stores	40	Men's Furnishings	52	Sporting Goods Stores	14
Confectioners	288	Furriers	24	Merchant Tailors	58	Stationers	21

Morning Newspapers	Evening Newspapers	Sunday Newspapers	Weeklies
New Haven Journal-Courier.	New Haven Evening Register. New Haven Times-Leader. New Haven Union.	New Haven Sunday Register New Haven Union.	The Commercial Record. Connecticut Labor Press. The New England Farms.

Miscellaneous Publications

Foreign Language Newspapers: Corriere Del Connecticut (Italian), L'Parola Cottolica. West Haven has two weeklies: Town Topics and West Haven Life. Leading Yale University Publications: Yale News (daily during college term), Yale Alumni Weekly, Yale Divinity Quarterly, Yale Law Journal (monthly), Yale Literary Magazine, Yale Review (quarterly), Yale Record.

The New Haven Journal-Courier

Member A. B. C.

Only Morning Newspaper published in New Haven—covers alone a field divided between three local evening newspapers.

Best edited newspaper in New Haven—admittedly the cleanest and best newspaper from news as well as typographical standpoint.

Appeals to New Haven's greatest purchasing power, enjoys fullest confidence of readers.

Offers efficient co-operation with Advertisers in the placing and marketing of their merchandise in the New Haven territory.

As evidence of the dominant position The Journal-Courier occupies in New Haven, and the strong appeal which it makes to the great buying population of that city, the following GAINS in CIRCULATION qualify The Journal-Courier as New Haven's One BEST Newspaper for the National Advertiser:

Over 86 per cent of The Journal-Courier's Circulation is within the City of New Haven.

Over 96 per cent of The Journal-Courier's Circulation is within the acknowledged trade zone of New Haven's merchants — practically no waste circulation.

The Journal-Courier has the largest direct home delivered circulation of any newspaper in New Haven.—It Covers New Haven ALONE!

DAILY AVERAGE

April 1, 1916 to April 1, 1917

11,781

April 1, 1917, to April 1, 1918

13,440

April 1, 1918 to April 1, 1919

15,101

The Journal-Courier through the vast buying power of its readers offers to National Advertisers the greatest single selling force in New Haven.

These figures are not paid and are from A. B. C. Auditor's statements.

The New Haven Journal-Courier

"New Haven's One Best Newspaper"

THE CARRINGTON PUBLISHING CO.

Tribune Building CHICAGO

GILMAN AND NICOLL, Representatives

World Building NEW YORK

Digitized by Google

Don't Take Anything For Granted In New Haven!

When you consider newspapers in the metropolis of Connecticut you should

Demand the A. B. C. Figures

Not those which include the inflated sales of September, October and December, 1918, but figures based on 1919 only. If you will do this you will find that

The Times-Leader has by far the largest net-paid, proven, A. B. C. circulation in the New Haven field.

Net Paid Six Months A. B. C. Statement Ending March 31, 1919—15,584

Present Circulation Exceeding - - - - - - 16,400

New Haven Times-Leader

The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency

Sole Foreign Representative

New York Chicago St. Louis Kansas City Detroit

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SPACE BUYERS CHART

Survey in 2 Parts.....PART 1

Bridgeport, Conn

"THE PARK CITY"

Population

1910 Census 102,054
A. B. C. Estimate City March 31, 1919..... 150,000
A. B. C. City and Suburban..... 225,000
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City..... 180,000
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City and Suburban 250,000

Native whites..63% English reading....80%
Foreign born.35½% Industrial workers 33 1/3%
Negroes .... 1½% Homes owners....20,200
Students .....none Summer residents. 1,000

Suburban and Farm Residents

In territory extending twenty miles north, eight miles east and fifteen miles west, are Stratford...15,000, Huntington, Monroe, Shelton, Stepney...14,000, Westport...6,000, Fairfield...6,000, Newton...6,000, Milford...16,000, Bethel...6,000, New Milford...8,000. While Danbury has trading identity of its own, it contributes business to Bridgeport.

City Classed As

Industrial community with a summer resort territory extending about 8 miles east and 10 miles west along the shores of Long Island Sound.

Location

On main line of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Terminal Naugatuck and Berkshire lines. Connecticut Co. trolleys throughout city and connecting with New Haven, Norwalk and other points. Steamboat line to New York. Two boat lines to Port Jefferson, L. I.

Banks

Savings	4	Resources	$46,126,738
State Banks and Trust Companies	6	"	15,890,000
National	5	"	34,756,600

Increase in deposits for three months since the April, 1919, statement, more than $6,000,000.

Theatres

17 Moving Picture, 1 Motion Picture and Vaudeville, 1 Legitimate, 1 Stock, 1 Burlesque. Average seating capacity 600. Five houses more than 1,000. The largest 3,300.

Schools

35 Public grade schools..... No. of pupils.... 22,881
1 High school ..... " " " 2,400
1 Trade school ..... " " " 250

There are 5 business schools, 8 Catholic schools and 19 private schools.

Churches

Baptist...11. Congregational ...8. Episcopal...7. Lutheran ...7. Methodist Episcopal...11. Presbyterian...3. Roman Catholic...20, and 19 other churches.

Principal Industries

Electrical specialties, oil engines, shears and scissors, fabric machinery, aluminum castings, guns and ammunition, paper boxes, hardware, steel tubing, steam and gas fitters' tools, screw machine products, cabinet hardware, corsets, pasteboard, gas engines, automobile bodies, dolls, stained and art glass, bed springs, boilers, brass tubing, wire, coach lace and trimmings, cans, babbitt metal, drop forgings, webbing, electric water heaters, clock dials, malleable castings, mattresses, neckwear, leather specialties, silver plated ware, moulder rubber goods, cutlery, sheet metal goods, graphophones, tents, awnings, sails, marine boilers, carpet sewing machinery, varnish, welding machines, cement pipe, sheet metal, insulated wire and cables, typesetting machines, soap, rolled steel, acid and chemicals, trucks and wagons, carbonated beverages, laces, toys, metal novelties, torpedo boats, steel chains, underwear, leather belting, auto tires, lathe tools, typewriting machinery, plushes, velvets, printing presses, cardboard, cut cards, car couplers, notions.

Special Information

Bridgeport undoubtedly has more varied industries than any other city in Connecticut.

There are 60,000 industrial workers, and the character of the leading products manufactured calls for mostly skilled mechanics.

The average weekly wage for unskilled labor is $20.50.

The average weekly wage for skilled labor is $35.50.

The character of homes and stores denotes an unusual spending capacity of the public. In this respect amusements indicate a similar feature as shown by the many yacht clubs, three country clubs, eight community golf clubs, etc.

The fact that most of the products manufactured in Bridgeport are staples rather than luxuries is guarantee of permanency of occupation and unhampered spending ability.

Under all conditions of national business the city as a whole is busy and prosperous.

NOTE: Sources from which facts and figures of Bridgeport Survey were secured: M. B. Russell, assistant secretary of Chamber of Commerce, latest A. B. C. reports to date, bankers, tax collectors, manufacturers' associations and others.

Bridgeport Post and Telegram

Dominating Newspapers in the Most Easily Cultivated Market of the East!

Prosperity and the "free dollar" are synonymous. Where there is prosperity look for spending power—look for spending power and you will seek out Bridgeport, Conn., as your field. Bridgeport is New England's foremost industrial center. Its varied industries (211 mills and factories) include the manufacture of graphophones, sewing machines, automobiles, machine tools, hardware, corsets, textiles, brake lining, toys, brass goods, electric light sockets, firearms, cartridges, submarine boats, etc.

And Bridgeport keeps its skilled labor because it supplies exceptional housing facilities, recreational facilities, and other features that make the workman contented and glad to live in such a city as this. It boasts of 15 parks and playgrounds comprising 300 acres, 66 public schools, 87 churches.

Many factories are working on day and night shifts. They are back on the pre-war basis, making peace-time products.

Bridgeport ranks second in New England in the relative low average cost of forty food articles. The entire pay envelope is not appropriated towards living alone.

Bridgeport is progressive—it is busy and it is prosperous. It is your field regardless of what you have to sell. The Greater Bridgeport market radius teems with communities that spend their every dollar in Bridgeport. The highest wage scale ever paid in this territory is now in effect. Property value per capita $976.49.

A large proportion of the family income is spent for products that are put on the Bridgeport market through advertising. Bridgeport is the home of over 60 nationally advertised articles.

350,000 people in this flourishing community shop in Bridgeport and you can thoroughly cover the Bridgeport field with your advertising campaign in the only papers in 36 manufacturing New England cities showing increase in circulation since the armistice was signed.

Post and Telegram

Greater Bridgeport—recognized the world over by its perpetual industrial prosperity—is a remarkable try-out field. It has wonderful possibilities.

JOHN GLASS, People's Gas Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

I. A. KLEIN, 254 Metropolitan Tower, New York N. Y.

Digitized by Google

Survey in 2 Parts.....PART 2

Bridgeport, Conn.

"THE PARK CITY"

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SPACE BUYERS CHART

Wholesale Houses

Beef	4
Butter, eggs and cheese	7
Confectioners	13
Flour, grain and feed	7
Fruit	4
Grocers	7
Oyster dealers	2
Stationers	3
Tobacconists	7

These wholesalers distribute throughout the trading territory of Bridgeport as outlined in this survey. Several are branch houses of New York establishments, while others maintain branches in the smaller cities. Transportation is ideal by railroad and trolley express and in the case of the larger houses, motor truck delivery to shore resorts and distant points.

Retail Section

The principal shopping district is about two miles long on Main street, Fairfield avenue, Broad and State streets. Here are located the large department stores, specialty houses, etc.

In the foreign settlement there is a shopping section about a mile and a half long.

The West End section and Black Rock district is a neighborhood center a mile in length.

Fairfield, which is so close to the city lines as to be considered a part of the city, has a busy trading center typical of such localities.

Residential Features

The houses for the most part are one and two family structures. Detached houses are a feature. There are few apartment houses and only a limited tenement district in the poorer quarter.

The United States Housing Corporation has just completed what has been adjudged by experts as the finest housing system in the world. These homes of the industrial workers are permanent in construction and the total value of the entire system is close to $7,000,000. These houses are mostly detached. There are a few semi-detached and terrace style homes. The houses are built of brick, slate and concrete and have kitchen gardens and playgrounds.

Trading Area

Fairfield and Stratford are considered part of the city. Two boat lines to Long Island bring business from across the Sound. To the west the trading area extends to Saugatuck and then north to Branchville. From this point north out of town trade is shared with Danbury. However, a large amount of business comes from points as far north as New Milford and New Preston to the northeast. Towns along the Shepaug River contribute to Bridgeport business. The trading territory boundaries on the east extend from Roxbury Falls to Southbury and through Ansonia south to Milford. In this area out-of-town business is shared with Waterbury and New Haven.

Fine railroad systems, trolley lines and good automobile routes have done much to develop the business in this trading area. Many Bridgeport houses maintain motor delivery throughout this entire section.

The shore resorts contribute a great amount of business during the summer months.

It is very necessary for the national advertisers to use the Bridgeport newspapers to completely cover the Bridgeport trading area and secure the desired distribution of goods.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Product

Automobile (Passenger) Agencies	22	Delicatessen	39	Garages	59
Automobile (Truck) Agencies	16	Dressmakers	159	Grocers	733
Automobile (Parts) Agencies	21	Druggists	59	Hardware	18
Automobile (Tires) Agencies	9	Dry Goods	7	Hats and Caps	11
Bakers	59	Department stores	3	Jewelers	48
Cigar stores	59	Electric apparatus	11	Ladies' Tailors	26
Cloaks and Suits	23	Florists	21	Meat Markets	127
Clothiers	44	Furniture	44	Men's Furnishings	31
Confectioners	104	Furriers	5	Merchant Tailors	24
				Milliners	35
				Optimists	24
				Photographers	24
				Pianos	11
				Plumbers, steam and gas fitters	80
				Restaurants	157
				Shoe Dealers	65
				Sporting Goods	7
				Stationers	12

Morning Newspapers
Standard-Telegram

Evening Newspapers
Bridgeport Post
Bridgeport Herald
Bridgeport Times

Sunday Newspapers
Bridgeport Post
Bridgeport Herald

Weeklies
Labor Advocate
Bridgeport Life
The Bridgeporter (Hungarian)

Miscellaneous Publications
Milford Citizen (Weekly), Stratford Times (Weekly), Westporter Herald (Weekly)

"The Miracle Paper"—Bridgeport, Conn.

BRIDGEPORT EVENING HERALD
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

Established in March, 1919, and Four Months Later Passed the Circulation Mark of the 129-Year-Old Times-Farmer, Safely Entrenching Itself as

Bridgeport's Second Evening Newspaper

As this advertisement is being written (August 27, 1919) the Evening Herald is working out the sixth month of its career with increased popularity, important daily growth in circulation, and making serious inroads on The Post. The Evening Herald—Bridgeport's "Miracle Paper"— is

Fast Changing the Entire Newspaper Complexion of Bridgeport

In its overnight growth of circulation and the influx of advertising (a million and a half lines were contracted for before the first issue) both people and advertisers have spoken with force against their common enemy—a controlled press.

HERE IS A BIG EVENING NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION THAT IS SOLD CLEAN AT A FAIR PRICE, WITHOUT FORCING THE ADVERTISER TO BUY A COMBINATION OF NEWSPAPERS IN THE TRANSACTION.

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SPACE BUYERS CHART

Survey in Two Parts ....PART 1

Hartford, Conn.

Population

1910 Census	98,915
A. B. C. April, 1919	150,000
A. B. C. City and Suburban	173,000
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City	160,000
Chamber of Commerce, City and Suburban	375,000

Native Whites	72%	English reading	80%
Foreign born	24%	Industrial workers	25%
Negroes	4%	Home owners	12,000
Students	1,000	Summer residents	few

Suburban and Farm Residents

In territory within twenty-mile radius..New Britain..60,000. Middletown..22,000. Manchester..15,000. Rockville..20,000. Thompsonville..4,000. Windsor Locks..5,000. Bristol..20,000. Farmington..4,000. Unionville..4,000, and ten smaller towns and villages. Hartford is also in the heart of a rich tobacco district where crops last year were valued at nearly $25,000,000. There are several large produce farms in the same territory but hardly enough dairy farms to supply the average demands for milk, eggs, etc.

City Classed As

Manufacturing and Insurance center. Is Capital of Connecticut and the business center of a rich tobacco growing territory. Also big convention center for this part of New England.

Location

On the main line of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R., via New Haven, Hartford, Springfield and Worcester to Boston. Also the Valley and Central New England divisions of the same road. Direct boat line daily to New York City. Connecticut Co. trolley lines throughout city and suburban territory.

Banks

Savings	4..	Resources..	$67,189,980
State Banks and Trust Companies	11..	"	" 52,140,300
National	4..	"	" 55,592,735

The importance of Hartford as an Insurance center is evident in the report for 1918. Twenty-three companies had a total capital of $35,010,000; Assets of $653,928,555; Surplus of $81,834,962 and Premium Income of $247,292,683.

Schools

14 Public grade schools	No. of pupils	18,400
1 High school	No. of pupils	2,600
7 Catholic schools	No. of pupils	5,000

Trinity College averages 400 students and the Catholic Seminary and Catholic high school attract students from all parts of the country. There are five business schools and two large private schools.

Theatres

7 Moving Pictures exclusively. 1 Vaudeville and Motion Picture combined. 1 Legitimate House. 1 Burlesque.

Seating capacity of these houses averages 1,200 seats; the largest house has 2,300

Churches

1 Advent Christian. 1 Seventh Day Adventist Society. 8 Baptist. 1 Catholic Apostolic. 12 Chapels. 11 Congregational. 11 Episcopal. 1 Universalist. 1 Unitarian. 1 Swedish. 6 Hebrew. 9 Lutheran Evangelical. 8 Methodist Episcopal. 1 Presbyterian. 15 Roman Catholic. 2 Scientist.

Principal Industries

Two of the largest typewriter factories in the United States, ball bearings, tools, revolvers, automatic machine guns, belts, iron and edge tools, water supply outfits, gas and gasoline engines, lathe and drill chucks, ice-making systems, feed-water heaters, driving chains, iron and steel valves, incandescent lamps, nails, valves and pipe fittings, gas supplies, drill chucks, railway supplies, drilling machinery, blowers and blower systems, towers and windmills, sheet copper works, high speed drilling machines, marine engines, auto radiators, marine and stationary boilers, horse goods, church organs, bicycle sundries, and small tools.

Special Information

The manufacturing industries employ an average of 30,000 people.

The volume of business per year is estimated by the Chamber of Commerce at $50,000,000.

Practically all the factories demand the most skilled mechanics obtainable. The wage scale is high.

The hundreds of offices in the business center, especially the large insurance companies, employ thousands of well paid clerks and office forces which rank with the finest. Their demands for nationally advertised goods are varied and exacting.

NOTE: Sources from which the above figures and facts and those of Part 2 were secured.—W. L. Mead, secretary of the Hartford Chamber of Commerce; Thos. S. Weaver, superintendent of schools; the latest A. B. C. report to date, recently compiled bank statements and interviews with reliable business men and others.

THE HARTFORD COURANT

MEMBER AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

Few communities in the United States enjoy as high a per capita wealth as Hartford. The above figures show this conclusively, as well as the unusually large percentage of houses owned. The people of Hartford are in position to satisfy desires created by advertising.

The Hartford COURANT is able to deliver the advertiser's message to the most important and vital element in Hartford. You want to reach the business executive, the home owner, the woman of the home. They have all found the COURANT a newspaper in which they may safely place the utmost confidence.

The results of over a hundred years' careful newspaper making are concentrated in the columns of the Hartford COURANT.

Advertising today has been reduced to an almost exact science, and appreciates quality circulation rather than quantity. The COURANT furnishes a quality market that has demonstrated over and over again its responsiveness and stability.

No matter what you advertise, the quality of your audience governs your results. If you have securities to sell, reflect on the fact that the Hartford COURANT carries annually over a million lines of financial advertising—the second largest volume of any newspaper in the United States.

If you sell automobiles, tires or other accessories, it is interesting to know that the Hartford COURANT leads all other Hartford papers in this classification by hundreds of thousands of lines each year.

Food, clothing, furniture—all these have been advertised in the Hartford COURANT with most gratifying results. It is a simple matter to "make good" in Hartford. Tell your story consistently to this worth-while audience delivered to you at small cost by the Hartford COURANT.

GILMAN, NICOLL & RUTHMAN

WORLD BUILDING
NEW YORK

SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVES

TRIBUNE BUILDING
CHICAGO

Digitized by Google

(Continued from Page 31.)

cording to census estimates of 1914, were: Ansonia, Bristol, Danbury, Middletown, Naugatuck, New London, Norwich, Torrington and Willimantic; those having between 25,000 and 100,000 were Meriden, New Britain, Norwalk, Stamford and Waterbury; and those having more than 100,000 inhabitants were Bridgeport, New Haven and Hartford. These census estimates do not represent the actual figures of population of today, as some of these cities have enjoyed wonderful expansion. The estimates published in connection with the city surveys in these pages may be relied upon as showing more accurately the present populations.

The Connecticut Tax Commissioner's report for 1917-18 shows 2,768,129 acres of taxed land, the average assessed value for the state being $35 per acre. There are 209,407 dwelling houses in the state, with an average assessed value of $2,539. The largest number of houses in any city in the state is in New Haven—16,326. There were assessed for taxes in 1917-18 5,675 mills and manufacturing establishments; total assessed value, $155,788,163; average assessed value, $27,451.

Vast Number of Automobiles

The total number of motor vehicles, traveling to and from business. Even wage earners in the industries are getting the habit more and more, it is said, and it is significant that they are able to afford it.

Savings Accounts Indicate Thrift and Prosperity of Connecticut People

The prosperity of Connecticut's wage earners is indicated also by the volume of business done by the savings banks Bristol, is illuminating. Here are made: Silver-plated flat ware, clock springs, glass cutters, knit underwear, elastic goods, sheet brass and tubing, machinery and tools, electric power and light, shears and belts, screw machine products, house finish, trucks and wagons, clock machinery and dies, steel fishing rods, clocks, nuts, gongs, hardware, paper boxes, marine lanterns, ball bearings, cyclometers, trolley wheels, auto trucks, circular saws, brass hinges, iron and building and loan associations. In 1917 there were 81 savings banks in the state, with total deposits of $366,740,691.-93. The total number of depositors was 700,367, or perhaps more than half of the state's inhabitants! Depositors having less than $1,000 to their credit numbered 588,744; the total amount of their deposits being $122,930,696.64. Those having from $1,000 to $2,000 to their credit numbered 69,898, with total deposits of $92,902,840.98. Depositors having from $2,000 to $10,000 to their credit numbered 41,078, with total deposits of $142,261,763.25. Depositors having more than $10,000 each to their credit numbered 657, their total deposits amounting to $8,645,391.00.

The assets of the building and loan associations of the state amounted in 1914 to $3,581,777.99.

The State Bank and Trust Companies on October 1, 1917, had total assets of $134,651,891.69.

Connecticut's leadership in brass, bronze and copper products is indicated by the comparative values for 1914 of these products for the following states: Connecticut, $69,353,103; New York, $23,964,582; Michigan, $16,868,725; Pennsylvania, $9,779,626; Ohio, $7,843,092.

Great Variety of Products

To visualize the great variety of manufactured goods produced in Connecticut, a list of lines turned out in one of the medium-sized cities of the state, castings, cabinet hardware and stamp trade specialties..

The Department of Commerce reports show that in 1914 New Haven had 450 manufacturing establishments, Hartford 350, Bridgeport 340, Waterbury 162, Norwich 102, Meriden 87, Stamford 91, New London 67, New Britain 65, Danbury 81 and South Norwalk 62.

The value of farm crops, according to the last federal census, was $22,487,999.

Creation of a New Industry

One of the amazing farm industries of Connecticut is the shade-grown leaf tobacco crop, which it is estimated will this year have a value exceeding $15,000,000. This development in tobacco growing is less than twenty years old. In 1900 one-third of an acre was devoted to this crop. In 1918 the acreage for the state was 6,100. The crop is grown under cover, and the white tents dotting the Connecticut valley above Hartford afford a spectacle unique in farming developments. This tobacco is considered of the highest quality grown in the United States, and is used for wrappers for many fine grades of cigars. The industry is expanding by leaps and bounds and forms one of the great sources of potential wealth in the state. Soil and climate both favor this crop in the Connecticut river valley, and the industry has spread into western Massachusetts. It is no longer an experiment, but represents a romance of industrial development, justifying those who in the experimental days pinned their faith to a new idea.

One of the great sources of Connecticut wealth consists in the entertainment of summer visitors. Her long shore line is a succession of pleasure resorts, attracting city-tired people from New York and other cities; and her trim and attractive farm houses invite the vacation-seeker from everywhere. There are no estimates ventured as to the value to the state of this summer vacation travel, but it is generally agreed that it is an enormous wealth-asset.

Corporations owned, in 1914, 38.6 per cent of the total number of manufacturing establishments, producing 91.4 per cent of the total factory products of the state.

The "melting pot" functions in Connecticut. Americanization work is linked with the school system, and also is carried on through welfare associations, such as the Y. M. C. A. There is in Connecticut such a dominating spirit of Americanism that alien sentiment does not thrive in such an atmosphere.

Fisheries a Source of Wealth

The shell-fish interests of the state are important, the products of her shell fisheries placing Connecticut second among the states in this industry. In 1918 about 840 men were employed in the different fisheries. In the lobster fisheries alone there are employed 238 power boats and 339 row boats; $4,928 shad were caught in 1918, exclusive of those caught by hand line or by trawl fishermen. Alewives, blue fish, butter fish, black fish, cod, flounders, flatfish, frost fish, mackerel, sea bass, striped bass squid and scup are abundant. The catch of these and miscellaneous varieties in 1918 total 1,191,852 pounds. The state maintains numerous game preserves.

The City of "Yale"

New Haven, Connecticut's largest city, is known wherever civilization has a foothold as the seat of one of the greatest of universities—Yale—which

(Continued on Page 40.)

GENERAL VIEW OF THE REMINGTON ARMS PLANT, BRIDGEPORT

The site of this great plant was an open field in 1914. War needs brought it into being, and peace needs keep it busy. It is one of Bridgeport's greatest industries.

PANORAMA OF NEW HAVEN'S "GREEN," CENTER OF THE CIVIC LIFE AND COMMERCIAL ACTIVITIES OF THE STATE'S METROPOLIS

The two beautiful structures to the left are the Public Library and the Superior Court. Modern office buildings, including the Chamber of Commerce and the old City Hall, follow in order, and the magnificent new Post Office and Federal Building—a veritable "Greek Temple"—which has but recently been completed, give to this city center a distinctiveness and impressiveness hard to match. The buildings to the right are office structures and retail establishments.

TYPICAL QUARRYING PLANT

Connecticut has a substantial quarrying industry, through which her "rock bound hills" are converted into building material. This is the plant of the New Haven Trap Rock Company, near that city.

WHERE WORKMEN LIVE

This section of Mill Green development at Bridgeport shows the types of homes available for wage-earners. Playgrounds and parks are provided for in each of these developments.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SPACE BUYERS CHART

Survey in Two Parts .....PART 2

Hartford, Conn.

Wholesale Houses

Beef	11
Butter, eggs and cheese	21
Tobacconists	6
Tobacco leaf	20
Cattle dealers	14
Commission merchants	5
Flour dealers	5
Dry goods	6
Fruit	19
Grocers	20

These wholesalers have excellent delivery facilities via motor truck, steam trains and trolley express. In their territory there are several large towns and cities of 15,000 to 60,000 population. Several of these houses have branches in New Haven, Springfield, Waterbury and other distant points. The system of wholesale distribution is so fine that Hartford is considered one of the most prosperous jobbing centers in New England.

Retail Section

Asylum, Pratt and Main streets are the principal retail thoroughfares. These streets combine in making a shopping center nearly two miles in total length. In this part of the city are found the large department stores, specialty stores and exclusive shops. In size and character of stores the Hartford shopping center compares favorably with many larger city retail sections.

On Park street there is a fine neighborhood shopping section about a half-mile in length.

Front street is a half-mile trading center of the Italian and Hebrew sections and boasts of several thriving stores of every kind.

Windsor street is another busy neighborhood shopping center for the foreign population although it is only about one-quarter of a mile in length.

Residential Features

Hartford has a large residential section composed of fine one and two-family homes. Some of these are the finest in the state. During the past year there has been only a slight increase in this class of homes. Fine apartment houses seem to be the favorite choice of new arrivals in Hartford and several of largest and most exclusive apartment houses are in course of construction.

The strictly tenement section of the city is small, even in face of the fact that Hartford has a large foreign population. These new citizens seem to prefer their own individual homes and wherever possible a small farm or garden plot.

Trading Area

Hartford undoubtedly has a larger and perhaps more prosperous trading area than any other city in Connecticut. The nearness of such large cities as New Britain, Middletown, Rockville and other prosperous manufacturing centers is a benefit to the merchants of Hartford who have exerted every influence to maintain fine transportation facilities.

The prosperous towns of the Connecticut valley prefer Hartford for their out-of-town shopping center and from the north and east there comes a big trade from such centers of industry as Thompsonville, Windsor Locks, Rockville, Manchester and Willimantic. New Britain, one of the most prosperous manufacturing cities in the state contributes largely to the income of the Hartford merchants each week. Trolley and special train service at low fare is responsible for this tremendous trade from the south.

Within this trading area which extends fully twenty-five miles east, thirty-five miles southeast on the Connecticut valley, twenty miles west and fifteen miles north, there are twenty prosperous villages, and in addition to several large product farms there are hundreds of acres of valuable tobacco land that each year makes its returns felt in the shopping center of Hartford.

Beyond these boundaries the cities of Springfield, Waterbury, New Haven and New London attract the really important out-of-town shopping.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Product

Automobile (Passenger) Agencies	37	Delicatessen stores	19	Garages	99
Automobile (Truck) Agencies	40	Dress-makers	213	Grocers (Retail)	462
Automobile (Tire) Agencies	33	Druggists (Retail)	74	Hardware and Cutlery	24
Automobile (Parts) Agencies	74	Dry Goods stores	57	Hats and Caps	12
Bakers	32	Department stores	5	Jewelers	54
Cigar stores	21	Electrical Supplies	15	Ladies' Tailors	14
Cloak and Suit stores	30	Florists	30	Meat Markets	119
Clothiers	27	Furniture stores	33	Men's Furnishings	32
Confectioners	45	Furriers	13	Merchant Tailors	13
				Milliners and Millinery Goods	40
				Opticians	20
				Piano stores	6
				Photographers	28
				Plumbers, steam and gas fitters	84
				Restaurants and Lunch Rooms	96
				Shoe Dealers	76
				Sporting Goods Stores	6
				Stationers	12

Morning Newspapers
Hartford Daily Courant.

Evening Newspapers
Hartford Times.
Hartford Post.

Sunday Newspapers
Hartford Sunday Courant.
Hartford Sunday Globe.

Weeklies
Catholic Transcript.
Labor Standard.

Miscellaneous Publications
Connecticut Staatszeitung (weekly), Fraternal News (monthly), and several Trinity College publications.

THE PUBLIC OF HARTFORD, CONN.

DEMANDS

THE HARTFORD POST

Your Newspaper

As It Is Today — The Fastest Growing Daily in the State

With Hartford's rapid development as an industrial and financial center, there has come a constantly growing demand for all the news in concise, well-edited form—the best news features—live sport pages and editorial columns that are not bound to a political party, but to the big 75 per cent of the people.

Increasing circulation makes the Post increasingly attractive to both local and foreign advertisers.

BOTH RATES AND RETURNS ARE PROFITABLE

SPECIAL NOTE—The Advertising Department of the Hartford Post will co-operate with all national advertisers seeking introduction among the varied and numerous distributing outlets classified in the chart above.

THE HARTFORD POST PUBLISHING CO.
HARTFORD CONN.

Digitized by Google

(Continued from Page 38.)

for two hundred years has touched and colored the cultural life of the world. The pride of Connecticut people in the fame of Yale is shared equally by all Americans. Here every worthy and useful feature of university life and effort is found. From this historic institution radiates an influence upon American life and progress which cannot be measured.

New Haven is about seventy-two miles northeast of New York City. It is a city which has long since outgrown the status of a "college town," ranking second only to Bridgeport in the value of its manufacturing interests. Its largest industry is the manufacture of firearms and ammunition; its second largest industry is the railroad business. Here are located the general offices of the N. Y., N. H. & H. Railroad. Out of the city radiate six divisions of that system. About five thousand people are employed here in this one line of industry. There is now under construction at New Haven the most extensive freight classification yard in the east, covering one thousand acres. From this point all freight for New England points is to be routed. Ten miles of trackage for switching purposes have already been completed.

TRANSFORMING RAW MATERIAL INTO WEALTH

Machine room of the Billings & Spencer Co., Hartford, showing the construction of giant drop hammers.

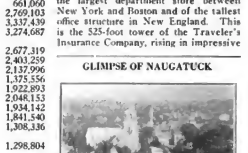
The Winchester Arms Company employ about 7,000 people; Sargent & Co., hardware, about 3,000; New Haven Clock Co., 2,200. It is estimated by the Chamber of Commerce that New Haven industries employ at the present time between 35,000 and 36,000 workmen.

Bridgeport, Industrial Marvel

Bridgeport, first city in the state in value of manufactured products, has enjoyed throughout the period of the war an amazing degree of activity. The city's contribution to the cause of the allies and to that of the United States in the matter of war equipment, arms and ammunition has been notable. Her industries, expanded in many cases to enormous proportions to meet the war emergency, are once more getting grounded upon a peace basis and the transition has been accomplished without panic or disaster.

There is little unemployment. Wages are high. Labor troubles are few. This may be accounted for by the attitude of dominant manufacturers toward their employes. One of these men remarked recently: "I know what living costs are now in comparison with what it cost me five years ago. I know that the same conditions face our wage earners, and I have tried to put their present wages upon a basis which will amply cover this added living cost."

In 1914 Bridgeport ranked twenty-ninth among American cities in the value of her manufactured products. Her comparative standing today should be much higher. The city is one of the busiest spots in America. Her business streets are so congested with traffic that there is a general call for relief measures. Her stores are busy, modern, progressive. New construction is in evidence on every hand. Within a few years there have been completed many beautiful business structures, giving to the business section a metropolitan aspect.



In solving the housing problem for her enormous army of wage earners, Bridgeport has created a precedent for other cities. Housing developments have been completed in many sections which afford to workmen comfortable and even luxurious homes, with park-like surroundings and every modern convenience—including janitor service for each group of houses or apartments. The rentals average $5 per month per room. Thus a six-room house or apartment costs but $30 per month. This housing development was conceived several years ago by Bridgeport business men who foresaw the inevitable industrial expansion to come and realized that homes must be provided for the extra population. They formed a company, with a working capital of a million dollars, and proceeded to the construction of what have been termed the most attractive types of homes for workmen in America. When the war-time needs required immediate extension of Bridgeport manufacturing plants, the Government co-operated in the housing development, spending great sums in the construction of groups of modern apartments, two-family houses and detached houses. Needless to say, this constructive work has played a most important part in the industrial life of the city.

Aside from the great arms, ammunition and metals industries of Bridgeport, there are many other manufacturing lines in which the city is a leader. These include automobiles, graphophones, silk goods and gold and silver refining.

The Insurance Center

Hartford, the state capital, is a city of distinctive beauty. The city boasts of the largest department store between New York and Boston and of the tallest office structure in New England. This is the 525-foot tower of the Traveler's Insurance Company, rising in impressive

GLIMPSE OF NAUGATUCK

Naugatuck factories produce rubber goods of all kinds, brass, cutlery, knit goods, buttons, machinery and malleable iron.

beauty from the midst of the great group of granite buildings comprising "Insurance Row." This structure cost $3,000,000.

Hartford is the insurance center of the United States. Twenty-two underwriting concerns have their home offices in this city. These companies represent a capital investment of $32,500,000. They have assets totaling $536,716,110. Their net premium income for 1918 was $92,683. The largest corporation in New England is the Aetna Life Insurance Company. The banks reflect this insurance importance and have approximate resources of $170,000,000.

Hartford's manufactures include the famous Colt firearms and the Underwood and Royal typewriters. Hartford's industrial output is estimated at $70,000,000 annually. This is an unofficial estimate of the local Chamber of Commerce. Five types of skilled mechanics are employed in its factories, and prevailing wages are high. It is a city of homes, rich in historical associations. The Americanism of its people is indicated by the great pride they feel in Hartford's part in shaping the political life of the Republic. It was the constitution drawn and adopted by the Hartford colony in 1639 that was used as a model one hundred and fifty years

(Continued on Page 44.)

CONNECTICUT'S MANUFACTURING INDUSTRIES

CENSUS OF 1914

Industry	Number of establishments	Wage earners Average number	Value of products Amount	Value added by manufacture Amount
All industries	4,104	226,264	$545,471,517	$256,960,631
Brass, bronze and copper products	67	16,781	69,353,103	15,467,331
Foundry and machine-shop products	388	39,369	67,009,127	41,858,169
Cotton goods, including cotton small wares	50	15,466	30,808,918	13,474,040
Silk goods, including throwsters	44	10,658	30,591,825	12,185,573
Firearms and ammunition	13	10,863	25,657,797	13,960,402
Woolen, worsted and felt goods	53	7,350	17,128,975	6,365,465
Silverware and plated ware	33	6,465	15,238,821	7,857,204
Electrical machinery, apparatus and supplies	43	5,059	14,330,156	6,894,026
Corsets	21	7,298	12,935,805	5,361,242
Cutlery and tools, not elsewhere specified	76	7,568	11,541,307	7,573,158
Rubber goods, not elsewhere specified	18	2,485	10,187,757	4,542,915
Hats, fur-felt	58	5,461	9,475,778	4,842,504
Automobiles, including bodies and parts	28	2,223	8,050,692	4,281,531
Bread and other bakery products	467	2,014	8,005,138	3,344,158
Clocks and watches, including cases and materials	15	6,599	7,927,011	5,497,634
Printing and publishing	364	2,838	7,712,615	5,517,400
Typewriters and supplies	7	4,662	7,178,293	5,717,078
Lumber and timber products	295	2,336	6,966,352	3,200,902
Furnishing goods, men's	17	3,142	6,434,933	2,345,723
Paper and wood pulp	44	1,898	5,968,797	1,961,803
Musical instruments, pianos and organs and materials	19	2,267	5,229,954	2,659,457
Hosiery and knit goods	25	2,904	5,221,683	2,495,112
Slaughtering and meat packing	26	453	5,216,272	661,060
Needles, pins and hooks and eyes	12	1,068	5,108,556	2,769,103
Liquors, malt	18	539	5,029,541	3,337,439
Gas, illuminating and heating	27	1,209	4,745,720	3,274,687
Iron and steel forgings, not made in steel works or rolling mills	17	1,573	4,559,897	2,677,319
Gas and electric fixtures and lamps	16	2,476	4,076,227	2,403,259
Copper, tin and sheet-iron products	65	2,465	3,818,012	2,137,996
House furnishing goods	5	1,233	3,818,969	1,375,556
Boxes, fancy and paper	42	1,963	3,741,235	1,923,893
Dyeing and finishing textiles	12	1,764	3,503,139	2,048,153
Tobacco manufactures	256	1,570	3,149,301	1,934,142
Screws, wood	4	2,266	2,842,798	1,841,540
Clothing, men's, including shirts	28	1,305	2,628,149	1,308,336
Patent medicines and compounds and druggists' preparations	43	327	2,062,727	1,298,804
Paper goods, not elsewhere specified	10	762	1,993,700	948,156
Fertilizers	10	329	1,971,991	494,779
Sports and shoes	9	567	1,957,709	619,649
Flour-mill and gristmill products	85	113	1,881,481	250,665
Soap	7	258	1,672,123	901,260
Bookbinding, including boat building	37	514	1,665,293	1,323,092
Fancy articles, not elsewhere specified	12	521	1,615,381	723,415
Clothing, women's	19	1,337	1,596,888	896,628
Hat and cap materials	15	400	1,593,895	310,251
Buttons	18	1,063	1,498,002	884,694
Wirework, including wire rope and cable	20	646	1,329,713	667,064
Blacking and cleansing and polishing preparations	19	173	1,316,926	880,830
Furniture	22	783	1,156,652	501,969
Marble and stonework	80	538	1,056,846	703,672
Iron and steel, bolts, nuts, washers, and rivets, not made in steel works or rolling mills	14	606	1,048,197	557,495
Toys and games	14	527	1,039,705	659,424
Carriages and wagons and materials	84	452	995,508	584,896
Paints and varnish	13	126	951,241	537,636
Confectionery (ice cream)	46	194	925,048	494,132
Leather, tanned, curried and finished	7	185	905,961	270,242
Screws, machine	8	571	906,177	549,743
Cordage and twine, nets and seines and linen goods	13	377	882,596	247,627
Hats, straw	3	302	800,408	363,007
Confectionery	27	227	783,560	301,785
Grease and tallow, not including lubricating greases	9	166	798,271	254,017
Leather goods	15	216	672,775	276,977
Cutlery and clothes	24	63	624,286	97,137
All other industries	748	26,143	74,575,302	35,267,274

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SPACE BUYERS CHART

Survey in Two Parts.....PART 1

Waterbury, Conn.

"The Brass City"

Population

1910 Census	73,141
A. B. C. March 31, 1919. City	115,000
A. B. C. City and Suburban	140,000
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City	117,025
Chamber of Commerce, City and Suburban	150,000

Native whites	66%	English reading	82%
Foreign born	33%	Industrial workers	35%
Negroes less than	1%	Home owners	10,000
Students	200	Summer residents	200

Suburban and Farm Residents

Within a fifteen mile radius are many prosperous manufacturing centers and rich farms. Among these towns Bristol..20,000, Thomaston..5,000, Watertown..4,500, Southington..6,316, Naugatuck..10,000, Beacon Falls..3,000, Cheshire..3,000, Torrytille..4,000 and twenty smaller towns and villages.

City Classed As

One of the largest and most important manufacturing cities in New England.

Location

On the Waterbury division of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Connecticut Company trolley lines throughout the city and interurban lines connecting with New Haven, Bridgeport, Hartford, Meriden, Bristol and New Britain.

Banks

Savings	3	Resources	$24,172,666
Trust Companies	3	"	14,677,589
National	3	"	15,519,932

Schools

33 Public grade schools.....No. of pupils....13,242
3 High schools.....No. of pupils.... 1,720

There is a large Trade School which conducts day and night classes and is generously patronized due to the fact that many local factories send their employees there for advanced preliminary and technical training. There are six Catholic schools, two private girls' schools, one private boys' school and three business schools.

Theatres

10 moving pictures, 1 vaudeville and motion pictures (also road shows), 1 stock house, 1 burlesque. Average 900 seats. Four houses have more than 1,200 seats and the largest house seats 1,700.

Churches

Baptist..4. Congregational ..5. Episcopal..4. Jewish ..2. Lutheran..3. Methodist..5. Roman Catholic..11. Russian Greek Catholic ..1. Undenominational..1. Second Advent..2. Christian Scientist..1.

Principal Industries

Brass goods (several large factories), dress fasteners, knives, suspender webbing, pins, hooks and eyes, stamped brass goods, machinery and tool, wire goods, upholstery, brass and iron hardware, recording instruments, seamless brass tubing, brass and ingot, exhaust tumbling barrels, silverware, chemicals, clocks, furnaces, metal buttons, castings, sheet metal, handcuffs and chains, watches, hardware specialties, brass novelties, rolled links and eyelets, hot water boilers, automatic machinery, shoe buckles, rolled sheet brass and copper, stamped metal novelties, electric batteries, brass hardware, hose and metal buttons, watch jewelry, belting, paper boxes and lamps.

Special Information

Waterbury has annually the second largest freight tonnage in New England. (Mere than Cleveland, Ohio and second to Boston, Mass.)

There are more than 35,000 industrial workers.

The average weekly wage for unskilled labor is $24.

The average weekly wage for skilled labor is $40.

The annual output of the Waterbury manufacturing interests is more than $80,000,000 in value. The demand for skilled mechanics is great and the class of workers' homes indicate prosperity and great spending power.

Waterbury has the largest brass manufacturing industry in the United States and the largest clock manufacturing business in the world.

It is the home of the Ingersoll Watch.

NOTE: Sources from which figures and facts of Waterbury Survey were secured: Thos. F. Moore, assistant secretary Chamber of Commerce, Board of Education, bank statements, A. B. C. Reports and other reliable sources.

The Waterbury American

(Member A. B. C.)

Has long been recognized as one of the first papers in Connecticut and also in New England. Its standing in character and influence is unchallenged.

Has always been a three-cent paper.

The use of the American is necessary to cover Waterbury and western Connecticut effectively.

It is the only paper in this center to reach the homes of a wide constituency.

REPRESENTATIVES OF NATIONAL ADVERTISING

FRANKLIN P. ALCORN COMPANY

Marbridge Building
New York

Marquette Building
Chicago

Digitized by Google

PHENOMENAL UNDISPUTED

PROSPERITY PLUS SUPREMACY

OF TRADING TERRITORY CIRCULATION—CITY—COUNTRY

Guarantee Results to Advertisers and Explains the Tremendous Volume of Advertising—Local, National—Printed by

Waterbury CT. Republican

—Circulation data from August A. B. C. record.

NET PAID CIRCULATION

(Representative Days in August, 1919)

	Daily	Sunday
City of Waterbury (73,141 population)	8,091	8,596
Town of Naugatuck (12,700 population)	745	840
Town of Torrington (12,500 population)	526	606
Town of Thomaston (3,300 population)	471	410
Town of Watertown (3,900 population)	361	404
City of Bristol (12,500 population)	320	120
Town of Woodbury (1,860 population)	236	33
Town of Plymouth (5,000 population)	132	30
Town of Litchfield (3,000 population)	112	53
Town of Beacon Falls (1,150 population)	68	40
Town of Cheshire (2,000 population)	87	75
Town of Southbury (1,200 population)	70	41
Town of Southington (6,500 population)	69	10
Town of Winchester (6,700 population	65	70
Town of Seymour (4,000 population)	63	60
Town of Middlebury (650 population)	54	22
Town of Wolcott (500 population)	40	20
Town of Prospect (520 population)	29	15
Totals	11,434	11,975

1910 Census figures used.

REPUBLICAN LEADS EVERYWHERE

8,091—City circulation nearly as great as total circulation second paper.

3,733—Within radius of 30 miles—more than combined suburban circulation of competitors.

11,824—Nearly 40% more circulation than second paper.

facts

factories throughout Waterbury trading territory working to capacity, labor at a premium, earning more, spending more than ever before.

department stores, specialty shops, shoe and furniture stores, books, all report exceptional increase in business since January 1.

automobile dealers cannot obtain cars rapidly enough to supply the demand.

national advertisers have recognized the advantage of placing "try out" campaigns in this extraordinarily prosperous territory and as a result:

old advertisers have doubled and trebled their contracts in The Republican.

new advertisers with the cooperation of the well developed Service Department of The Republican have obtained efficient distribution and opened constructive campaigns—and at minimum expense.

More than double the number of classified ads are printed in The Republican than in both competitors combined.

More than 90% of all automobile and accessory advertising, local and national, in this territory is printed exclusively in The Republican.

More national advertising is printed in The Republican than in both competitors combined.

THE Republican Leads

IN CIRCULATION—IN ADVERTISING

City—Suburban—Mail Local—National & Classified

The Waterbury Republican, Inc., Waterbury, Conn.
Daily, 3c. Sunday, 7c. Wm. J. Pape, Publisher.

The Julius Mathews Special Agency—Representative.
Boston New York Chicago

EDITOR & PUBLISHER SPACE BUYERS CHART

Survey in Two Parts.....PART 2

Waterbury, Conn.

"The Brass City"

Wholesale Houses

Beef and Provisions	7
Tobacco	2
Confectionery	5
Druggist	1
Dry goods	3
Fruits	8
Grocers	8
Stationer	1

These houses supply the retail trade throughout the Waterbury trading area and several maintain branch offices in the largest of the nearby towns. Excellent freight facilities, both trolley and steam road, assure prompt shipping. Motor truck delivery is also developed to an important degree. Nationally advertised goods are thereby assured exceptional distribution.

Retail Section

The main shopping center totals nearly three miles and is located on Bank, West Main, East Main, North Main, South Main, Grand, Center and Leavenworth streets.

These streets branch out and after passing through residential sections terminate in prosperous neighborhood trading section.

Bank street in the Brooklyn section has a shopping district nearly a mile long in the Lithuanian neighborhood.

North Main street in the North End section has a small trading center about a quarter of a mile long.

East Main street, West Main street and South Main street each have neighborhood sections near the three boundary lines of the city in the directions indicated.

On Baldwin street there is another small neighborhood business section.

Residential Features

Waterbury has many of the finest residences in the state. The homes of the mechanics are for the most part one and two family structures. There are a few large apartment houses of the best design.

Twenty per cent of the foreign population is housed in tenements.

Three housing projects will soon be completed with a total of 300 houses of permanent character of one and two family design.

Trading Area

Waterbury has one of the largest and most prosperous trading areas in the state. Within its boundaries are several of the largest towns and villages, each with one or more thriving factories employing well paid mechanics whose families come to Waterbury to trade.

On the south this territory extends to Seymour. At this particular point business is shared with Ansonia and New Haven. To the east the territory extends to Cheshire, Southington and Bristol.

On the west the area extends beyond the Shepaug river. In the case of such towns as New Preston, Washington and Roxbury out-of-town business is shared with neighboring territory.

The northern boundries extend to Torrington.

The farms are prosperous and the per capita wealth is very high.

The people of these farms and towns are liberal spenders and contribute many thousands of dollars each week to the business of the Waterbury merchants.

Excellent motor roads, trolley connections and express routes throughout the section are responsible for the steady increase in Waterbury business from the area and the rapid growth of Bristol and other towns within a few miles of Waterbury assures greater business in the future than has been experienced in the past.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Product

Automobile (Passenger) Agencies	52	Delicatessen	9	Garages	22	Millinery	30
Automobile (Truck) Agencies	16	Dressmakers	66	Grocers	427	Opticians	11
Automobile (Tire) Agencies	25	Druggists	42	Hardware	16	Photographers	14
Automobile (Parts) Agencies	47	Dry goods	55	Hats and caps	6	Pianos	22
Bakers	46	Department stores	5	Jewelers	30	Plumbers	43
Cigar stores	23	Electrical supplies	6	Leather Tailors	13	Restaurants and lunch rooms	80
Cloaks and suits	23	Florists	14	Meat Markets	144	Shoe dealers	68
Clothiers	36	Furniture	14	Men's furnishings	40	Sporting goods	4
Confectioners	72	Furriers	6	Merchant Tailors	19	Stationers	6

Morning Newspapers	Evening Newspapers	Sunday Newspapers	Weeklies
Waterbury Republican	Waterbury American Waterbury Democrat	Waterbury Republican	La Verita (Italian)

An Industrial City—and—Essentially An Evening Newspaper City

This is the collective judgment of the largest, most representative and successful merchants of Waterbury.

Of the 5 leading Department Stores
2 use the morning paper; 4 the competing evening paper, and all 5 of them use the Democrat.

Of the 6 leading Furniture Stores
four use the morning paper while all six use the Democrat.

Of the 8 Leading Shoe Stores
The Democrat carries as much as both other dailies combined.

Of the 7 Leading Men's Wear Stores
the first and third in importance do not use the morning paper. All of them use both evening papers.

The 2 leading Grocery Stores do not use the morning paper—both use the evening papers and give the Democrat the most space.

The 2 leading Dress Goods Stores
do not use the moning paper—both use the Democrat exclusively.

The local merchants recognizing the value of the Democrat pay it a highest rate per inch per thousand of circulation.

The Democrat is the most progressive and fastest growing newspaper in Waterbury. It maintains a promotion department that performs 100 per cent.

Applicant for membership in the A. B. C.

THE WATERBURY DEMOCRAT

KNILL-BURKE, Incorporated

New York, 110 West 40th St. Manager of Nat'l. Advtg. Chicago, 122 So. Michigan Blvd.

Digitized by Google

(Continued from Page 40.)
later for the national constitution. So, when you mention "Amcricanism" to a Hartford man, he replies: "Here is its birthplace."

Hartford claims the title, "The City Beautiful," and tries to live up to it. It was one of the first of American cities to adopt a permanent City Planning Commission. The great park system—comprising sixteen hundred acres—is an evidence of Hartford's civic pride.

Hartford has contributed to the world many notable people, including Noah Webster, Mark Twain, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Charles Dudley Warner, Edmund Clarence Steadman, George D. Prentice, John Fiske, Emma Willard, Rose Terry Cooke and Theodore Dwight.

Waterbury a Leader

Waterbury ranks third in the value of products among the cities of Connecticut. Its dominant industries are the manufacture of brass, bronze and copper products. In these lines Waterbury maoufactures one-fifth of the total volume for the United States. There are many other important industries, including watches, foundry and machine shop products, buttons, needles and pins, hooks and eyes and lamps. Waterbury's growth has been steady and rapid. Today the city is considcred one of the centers of American industry, while as a city it has kept pace in every way with its great expansion industrially.

Meriden's Great Industry

Meriden, the Silver City, while cherishing that proud title, manufactures about one hundred different lines of products. These include gas and electric fixtures, the Angelus Piano Player

CHURCH STREET, HARTFORD

Connecticut's chief cities boast of department stores equal in every respect to those of New York and Boston. The Fox store, at Hartford, is one of these.

and Aeolian talking machines, the Parker shotguns, etc

The International Silver Co., an amalgamation of the principal concerns engaged in the manufacture of silver and silverplated ware in the state, and whose

INSURANCE ROW, HARTFORD, SHOWING THE NEW SKYSCRAPER TOWER OF THE TRAVELERS' INSURANCE CO., WHOSE GOLDEN SPIRE REACHES 525 FEET ABOVE THE SIDEWALK

Hartford, "the Insurance Center of the United States," is proud of this newest symbol of Connecticut's leadership in this line. To the right of the tower are shown glimpses of the home offices of the Aetna and other great insurance corporations.

general offices and central groups of factories are in Meriden, is the dominant concern io this line of manufacture in the United States. The art of electroplating, developed by the three Rogers brothers in 1847, was the real birth of this great industry. although as early as 1808 Meriden had an establishment devoted to the manufacture of Britannia ware. It was the vision of these Britannia makers, later to be joined with the genius of the brothers Rogers, that created an industry whose products now find their way to the remotest corners of the world. It is to be noted that in late years the Meriden manufacturers have been engaged in the manufacture of sterling silver products on a growing scale, while retaining their supremacy in plated ware production.

New London an Important Port

New London, on the main line of the N. Y., N. H. & H. Railroad, midway between New York and Boston, has one of the finest harbors in the world. It has three steamship lines to New York. It has a 1,000-foot state pier and freighter and lighter service of the Central Vermont as well as of the "New Haven" railroad. The city has 3,866 homes, valued at $13,962,900. Of its population, but 10 per cent is foreign born. It is the chief trading center between New Haven and Providence. The total money transactions for the year 1918 in banking, manufactnring and jobbing for New London County amounted to $669,405,812. The manufacturing business for the same year amounted to $36,323,295, and the total jobbing business $8,549,000. Ship building is an important industry, while textiles and metals products add to the sum of the city's wealth.

Norwich, the City of Roses, situated thirteen miles north'nf New London, is an important manufacturing center. Firearms, cotton goods, rubber goods, stoves, locks, trunks, corks, velvet goods, etc., are the chief products.

Stamford, nearest to New York of Connecticut's important cities, is both a residential and manufacturing ccoter. Locks, dyestuffs, chocolate, pianos are the chief products.

New Britain is noted for its manufactures of hardware, cutlery and tools. Ansonia is a large producer of brass and bronze products, while Torrington's chief industry is the rolling of brass and copper. This city also manufactures motorcycles and sewing machine needles. Danbury is the center of the fur-felt hat industry of the state. Naugatuck produces rubber boots and shoes and other rubber goods. Willimantic is noted for its thread manufactures, cottoo cloth and silk mills. Norwalk manufactures hats, corsets and hardware, while Middletown concentrates on suspenders, garters and elastic woven goods, cotton, silk, rubber boots and shoes, foundry and machine shop products. Bristol is noted for the extent and variety of its metal products. New Britain has for its chief industries hardware, cutlery and tools.

Summary of State's Wealth

The Group Interests of Connecticut may be summarized roughly as follows:

Trade and Commerce—Number of retail proprietors, 15,892; number of wholesale firms, 500; investment, including buildings, $250,000,000.

Maoufactures—Company proprietors, 3,468; personal proprietors aod salaried officials, 19,611; capital invested, $517,547,000.

Insurance and Banking—Insurance companies, 30; assets, $577,627,000; banks, all classes, 215; assets, $712,848,000.

Agriculture — Proprietors or operators, 26,815; investment, $159,339,771.

Public Utilities—Electric companies, 31; assets, $21,056,000; gas companies, 12; assets, $19,026,000; gas and electric, 16; assets, $16,494,000; railroads 5; assets in Connecticut, $61,000,000; street railroads, 20; assets, $121,133,000; telephone companies, 7; assets, $18,081,000; water companies, 82; assets, $27,194,000.

Total assets of groups, $2,501,345,000.

Newspapers Reflect State's Prosperity

The newspapers of Connecticut reflect in striking fashion the general business prosperity of the state. Dailies in the larger cities are running from twenty to thirty-eight page issues, carrying an unprecedented volume of local and foreign advertising. The amount of store advertising running in these dailies just now affords an impressive testimonial to their effectiveness as advertising mediums and to the flourishing trade conditions prevailing throughout the state.

Connecticut people are producing

THIS PICTURE IS NOT WHAT IT SEEMS—NOT AT ALL!

This sylvan lake, bordered by semi-tropical foliage, is not a pleasure resort. It is a powder magazine! Screened by the trees are scores of concrete and steel structures for the storage of powder. It is the property of one of Connecticut's great industrial concerns.

wealth at a steady and increasing pace. and they are buying everything they want. That, in effect, is the answer to the national advertiser who is considering an expansion of his distribution in this busy state.

PANORAMA OF CITY AND HARBOR OF NEW LONDON

At the left is shown the $1,000,000 state pier which has contributed so greatly to the development of the port. The harbor of New London is one of the largest and finest in America.

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER — SPACE BUYERS CHART —

Stamford, Conn

Population

1910 Census	25,636
A. B. C. Mar. 31/19	40,000
A. B. C. City and Suburban	75,000
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City	40,000
Chamber of Commerce, City and Suburban	75,000

City Classed as Industrial center and summer resort.

Native Whites	78%	English Reading	90%
Foreign Born	22%	Industrial Workers	25%
Negroes	3%	Home Owners	2,536
Students	None	Summer Residents	3,000

Banks

Savings	2	Resources	$13,944,409
Trust Companies	2	Resources	7,350,585
National	1	Resources	4,861,330

Schools

Public grade	12	Pupils	4,096
High	1	Pupils	1,200
Trade	1	Pupils	100

2 Catholic schools, 2 business colleges, 6 private schools.

Theatres

4 motion pictures, 1 legitimate and burlesque, 1 vaudeville and moving picture. Seating 5,000.

Churches

Baptist 2, Italian Baptist 1, Congregational 5, Episcopal 4, Roman Catholic 3, Methodist 5, and 11 other churches.

Location

Main line N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. New Canaan Branch same road. Connecticut Co. trolleys to Norwalk and New York. Boat line to New York City. Auto freight to New York City.

Principal Industries

Chemicals, Children's Clothing, Iron Fences, Carpets, Wire and Cables, Bronze, Score Boards, Typewriters, Thread, Artificial Leather, Brass, Celluloid, Women's Waists, Electric Specialties, Carriages, Pumps, Pianos, Awnings, Shoes, Steel Boats, Marine Motors, Fur Cloth, Machinery, Toys, Rubber Goods, Oil Engines, Rolled Plate Metal, Motorcycles, Chocolate, Gloves, Dresses, Yale Locks, and Paper Boxes.

Special Information

One of the fastest growing industrial centers in New England. High wage scale.

Stamford being a city of beautiful homes undoubtedly has a greater wealth per capita than any other city in its size in the state.

The homes and the atmosphere of the business section are of such character that the visitor immediately realizes that the city is a live center of industry. The opportunities for the conduct of successful local advertising campaigns are many and foreign advertisers are generous users of the local paper.

Suburban and Farm Residents

Within twelve mile radius Darien, 4,000, Greenwich, 18,000, New Canaan, 4,000, several New York State towns and villages, prosperous farms and live shore resorts.

Wholesalers

Beef	1
Butter, Eggs and Cheese	1
Confectioners	2
Grocers	4
Meats	2
Paper	2

Excellent delivery service throughout Stamford trading territory. Nearness to the New York markets enables them to be completely stocked at all times.

During the summer months a big business is done among the nearby shore resorts.

Retail Section

Principal shopping section about a mile and a half on Park Row, Atlantic St., Main St. and Bank St. One of most interesting sections of kind in state.

Small neighborhood centers in exclusive residential sections of Springdale and Glenbrook. One Italian and one Polish neighborhood section.

Residential Features

Mostly one family houses. Few apartment houses. One of most beautiful and wealthiest residential sections in state. populated principally by business men of New York and their families.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Products

Auto. (Passenger)	34	Delicatessen	2	Garages	7
Auto. (Truck)	6	Dress Makers	25	Grocers	44
Auto. (Tires) Agcys.	22	Druggists	11	Hardware	7
Auto. (Parts) Agcys.	7	Dry Goods	31	Hats and Caps	4
Bakers	16	Department Stores	2	Jewelry	11
Cigar Stores	13	Electrical	3	Ladies' Tailors	6
Cloaks and Suits	11	Florists	7	Meat Markets	12
Clothiers	16	Furniture	10	Men's Furnishings	7
Confectioners	34	Furriers	2	Merchant Tailors	9
Milliners	10
Opticians	4
Photographers	6
Pianos	4
Plumbers	21
Restaurants	41
Shoe Dealers	20
Sporting Goods	2
Stationers	4

Trading Area

Stamford's trading area extends to the state line on the west and then north well into New York state. Lewisboro, Vista, Poundridge, Scott Corner and Banksville are all New York towns contributing business to Stamford.

On the east the territory extends to Darien. Bridgeport shares some of the Darien business. There are about twenty-five prosperous towns in the Stamford territory and several live shore resorts.

To cover this section it is necessary for national advertisers to use the local publications, as the territory CANNOT be classed as suburban New York.

NOTE: Sources from which figures and facts were secured—Chamber of Commerce, tax collector, board of education, banks and other reliable sources.

Newspapers { The Daily Advocate (Evening) / Free Press (Weekly Labor Paper)

National Advertisers MUST Use

THE DAILY ADVOCATE

To Reach the Homes of Stamford, Conn.

The idea of trying to "cover" this city of wealth, beautiful homes and giant factories through the use of New York newspapers has been PROVEN FALSE AND UNPROFITABLE.

The people of Stamford are "FOR" Stamford in every respect; including trade for the Stamford merchants who advertise in the Stamford newspaper—The Daily Advocate.

Scattered circulation of many New York dailies does not have the "pulling" power of CONCENTRATED effort in the ONLY DAILY in this territory.

Stamford stands out as an individual city of wealth and industry—a fertile field for National Advertising.

Its well patronized columns are the best arguments in favor of national advertising concentration in—

THE DAILY ADVOCATE

Member of A. B. C. The Gillespie Bros., Inc., Publishers

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SPACE BUYERS CHART

WELCOMED BY THE MEN WHO CONTROL BIG APPROPRIATIONS

"This chart is going to help us answer quickly and reliably many a question that heretofore has required time to look up.
"All that we can say is keep up the good work be cause it is really worth while."

F. M. Lawrence, Secy.
George Batten Co., Inc.

"I did not realize how much help it would be to an agency until I saw the finished product today.
"I want to congratulate you—we will most decidedly keep it on file."

Charles Presbrey, Vice-Pres.
Frank Presbrey Co.

"—are, in our opinion, of value to space buyers and will be of assistanee to us in the preparation of newspaper lists and estimates."

Calkins & Holden

"—you may be sure every one of these analyses will be much appreeiated. The more you give us and the faster they come, the better.
"The newspaper advertisements that run on these pages will be sure to have a good long life.
"EDITOR & PUBLISHER is to be highly commended for the way in which they have gone after this as well as other necessary improvements in the business."

A. M. Lewis,
Mgr. of Media Dept.
J. Walter Thompson Co.

"—this material will be of great value to us in our study of local conditions."

Riehard Webster,
Statistical Dept.
George Batten Co., Inc.

During the coming year more money will be spent with newspapers than ever before in the history of national advertising and in arranging these appropriations the Space Buyers will refer to the Editor & Publisher Space Buyers' Chart time and time again.

Publishers who co-operate with EDITOR & PUBLISHER in these surveys are investing in advertising that reaches the space buyer—is kept by the space buyer—is used by the space buyer Newspaper announcements accompanying these surveys are assured longer life than any other single advertising investment that the publishers can make.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

WORLD BUILDING, NEW YORK CITY

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SPACE BUYERS CHART

Survey in 2 Parts.....PART 1

Meriden, Conn.

Population

1910 Census	32,066
A. B. C. March 31, 1919, City	37,500
A. B. C. City and Suburban	78,000
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City	38,000
Chamber of Commerce, City and Suburban	70,000

Native whites	75%
Foreign born	24%
Negroes
less than 1%
Students	none
English reading	85%
Industrial workers	33 1/3%
Home owners	5,600
Summer residents	300

Suburban and Farm Residents

Within an eight mile radius are the prosperous towns of Wallingford..12,000, Southington..6,516, Cheshire..3,000, and ten smaller towns and villages. Most of the farm produce raised in this territory is consumed by the people of Meriden, although a limited amount is shipped to the markets of Hartford and New Haven.

City Classed As

One of the fastest developing manufacturing centers in Connecticut.

Location

On the main line of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Connecticut Company trolley lines throughout the city. Suburban trolley lines connecting with New Haven, Middletown, Cheshire, Southington and New Britain.

Banks

Savings	2	Resources..$13,465,000
Trust Companies	2	" 585,000
National	3	" 6,500,000

Schools

18 Public grade schools	No. of pupils	4,634
1 High schools	No. of pupils	666
1 State vocational school	No. of pupils	800

There are two private schools, five Catholic schools and one business college.

Total school enumeration 7,386

Theatres

7 moving pictures exclusively.
One has 800 seats and the other 1,600.

Churches

Baptist..5. Congregational ..2. Episcopal..2. Jewish..1. Evangelical Lutheran..1. Lutheran..1. Swedish Lutheran..1. Methodist..3. Negro..1. Roman Catholic..7. Undenominational..1. Universalist..1. Christadelphia ..1. Christian Science..1.

Principal Industries

Silverware.—This branch of Meriden industry stands out conspicuously and the products from the Meriden factories in this line are sold the world over.

Table Cutlery.—There are few homes in the United States where some article in this line made in Meriden, cannot be found.

Cut Glass.—Some of the finest in the world is made here.

Other important industries are piano players, jewelry, silverplaters' supplies, brass goods and gas fixtures, electrical supplies, auto supplies, cabinet hardware, lamps and lighting fixtures, nickel-plated ware, machine tools, clocks, paper boxes and china.

Special Information

There are nearly 9,000 families in Meriden, and it is quite common to find two and three members of many of these families working in the local factories.

The average wage for unskilled labor is $22.50 per week.

The average wage for skilled labor is $40.00 per week.

The factories are among the finest in New England in point of comfort for the employees and other features.

There have been practically no labor troubles in Meriden, and the workers are of a class which has a tendency toward owning their own homes.

Nationally advertised goods meet with favor and even "try-out" campaigns have proven very profitable in this territory.

Merchants are inclined to co-operate fully with all manufacturers of dependable goods entering this market.

NOTE: Sources from which these figures and facts and those of Part 2 were secured: Chamber of Commerce, latest A. B. C. Report to date, Board of Education, Bank Statements, Merchants and other dependable sources.

THE MORNING RECORD

MERIDEN, CONNECTICUT

50,000 POPULATION in Meriden and Wallingford, made up of the best paid working people in the United States and their families.

Meriden is the home of the International Silver Co., and many other large manufacturing concerns, almost all of which are owned by local capital, thus giving this city an unusually large percentage of wealth to population, and making MERIDEN WORTH MORE TO THE AVERAGE NATIONAL ADVERTISER than are some cities of double its population.

Very, VERY few of the daily papers of other Connecticut cities are sold in Meriden.

The Record is THE ONLY Meriden newspaper that is a member of the "AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS."

93% of all The Record's circulation is in Meriden and Wallingford; 6 miles from center of city to center of Wallingford—practically all one field.

90% of The Record's circulation goes into the homes, making it A FAMILY newspaper in the fullest sense of the term.

About 75% of the high-class national advertisers use The Record, and most of them The Record EXCLUSIVELY in Meriden.

The Record declines all but the better class of medical advertising.

ALL EASTERN advertising handled direct from the HOME OFFICE; Gilman, Nicoll & Ruthman, Western Representatives, Tribune Building, Chicago.

Digitized by Google

Survey in 2 Parts.....PART 2

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SPACE BUYERS CHART

Meriden, Conn.

Wholesale Houses

Beef	2
Butter, eggs and cheese	3
Cigars and tobacco	2
Fruits	2
Grocers	2
Flour, grain and feed	1
Feed	2
Flour	4

These houses cover the entire Meriden trading territory and in one instance in a branch of large wholesalers with headquarters in New Haven. Wholesale houses from New Haven and Hartford also serve Meriden and the merchants of the city are rendered prompt service in all lines.

The excellence of transportation facilities and the motor delivery maintained by practically all of the houses doing business in this territory have made it possible to quickly and completely establish all lines of goods backed by any advertising campaign in the local field.

Retail Section

The shopping district of Meriden is located on Main, Colony, State and Pratt streets and is about three miles long.

There are no neighborhood trading districts of consequence.

The demand for stores in the retail section was emphatically proven by the fact that within a few weeks after prohibition went into effect there was a great demand by all lines of business for locations formerly held by liquor stores.

Residential Features

There are no apartment houses or tenement districts. Most of the well paid employees of the city own their own homes, which are attractive one and two family structures.

The climatic conditions are very healthful, and this fact, combined with excellent educational features, including the nearness to Yale and other of the advanced educational institutions of the state, has developed a standard of modern Americanism that makes Meriden one of the finest home cities in the east.

All these features spell success for the sales of everything modern for home and personal comfort that is promoted by the national advertisers.

Farm implements and dairy necessities have been promoted successfully in this field due to the high character of the nearby farms.

Trading Area

Although Meriden is so situated that its residents are frequent visitors to Hartford and New Haven, the city has a definite trading area of its own.

The size and character of the stores indicate that neither New Haven or Hartford effect the business of the local merchant to any marked degree. And the bulk of business done by the Meriden merchants shows plainly that neighboring towns contribute to their support in no small manner.

The Meriden trading area extends to Wallingford and East Wallingford on the south. These two places divide their outlet-town business between Meriden and New Haven, but because of the nearness of Meriden it is safe to state that city attracts the larger share.

On the west the trading area extends Cheshire, Millidale, Plantsville and Southington. Berlin marks the northern boundaries and the eastern limits are Smiths, Middlefield Center and Durham Center.

Being in the heart of one of New England's most prosperous manufacturing centers, the city is favored with an unusually large retail trade from the thousands of local people and those of nearby towns who find that the margin between living costs and wages still leaves them a generous sum for the purchase of everything desired for their personal comfort and entertainment.

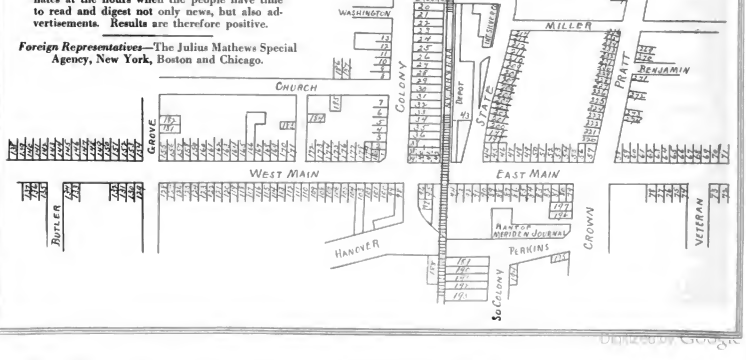
The trading area of Meriden is greater in standard of wealth than most territories of equal size anywhere in the eastern part of the United States.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Product

Automobile (Passenger) Agencies	22	Delicatessen	5	Garages	11
Automobile (Truck) Agencies	7	Dressmakers	58	Grocers	139
Automobile (Tires) Agencies	14	Druggists	11	Hardware	6
Automobile (Parts) Agencies	24	Dry Goods	34	Hats and caps	6
Bakers	19	Department stores	2	Jewelers	6
Cigar stores	13	Electrical supplies	3	Ladies' tailor	6
Checks and suits	5	Florists	7	Meat Markets	55
Clothiers	12	Furniture	8	Men's Furnishings	8
Confectioners	46	Furriers	3	Merchant Tailors	11
Milliners	12
Opticians	7
Photographers	5
Pianos	5
Plumbers and gas fitters	11
Restaurants and Lunch Rooms	12
Shoe Dealers	18
Sporting Goods	4
Stationers	4

Morning Newspapers
Meriden Morning Record

Evening Newspapers
Meriden Daily Journal



Miscellaneous Publications
Due to the absence of any large foreign element there are no miscellaneous publications.

The Meriden Daily Journal

Has completed a Graphic Commercial Survey of all lines of trade in Meriden, Conn., a map of which is presented herewith. A key to this map will be sent on request, together with a list of those who have signed a Trade Agreement to co-operate in advertising campaigns by reputable concerns in the Meriden field.

The Meriden Daily Journal is the only evening newspaper in a field which it absolutely dominates at the hours when the people have time to read and digest not only news, but also advertisements. Results are therefore positive.

Foreign Representatives*—The Julius Mathews Special Agency, New York, Boston and Chicago.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SPACE BUYERS CHART
New London, Conn.

Population

1910 Census	19,659
A. B. C. Mar. 31/19. City	35,300
A. B. C. City and Suburban	40,400
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City	35,000
Chamber of Commerce, City and Suburban	60,000

Native Whites	89%
Foreign Born	10%
Negroes	1%
Students	500

English Reading	92%
Industrial Workers	38%
Home Owners	4,500
Summer Residents	15,000

City Classed

GS

Industrial center, shipping port and summer resort.

Banks

Savings	2	Resources	$20,346,950
Trust Company	1	Resources	1,857,500
National	2	Resources	4,419,330

Schools

Public grade schools	8	No. Pupils	4,040
High schools	2	No. Pupils	700
Trade school		No. Pupils	120

There is one business college and the Connecticut State College for Women has a student body of about 500.

Theatres

2 motion pictures, seating 1,300, 1,100 and 800. One house playing road shows, motion pictures and vaudeville, seating 1,200.

Churches

Baptist 3, Congregational 1, Episcopal 1, Methodist 3, Roman Catholic 1, and 7 other churches.

Location

On main line of N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. (Shore Line division, New York to Boston). Terminal of Central Vermont and Grand Trunk. Two miles up Thames River from Long Island Sound, one of widest and best harbors in the world. Three boat lines to New York City, one to Greenpoint and Sag Harbor, Long Island; one boat line to Block Island. Has 1,900 ft. Connecticut State Pier and freighter and lighter service of Central Vermont R. R. and N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.

Principal Industries

Silk thread and yarn, printing presses, baskets, bed comfortables and cotton goods, boilers and plates, wooden ships, steel ships, copper and brass tubing, broaching machines and tools, doors and sashes, hats and caps, carpet lining and stair padding, cleansing fluid, chemicals and medicines, children's waists, chucks, paper boxes, electrical specialties, wash silks, bras and cotton ducks, rubber specialties, paints, poultry specialties, marine engineering and ship wrecking, fertilizer and glue, sizes, polish, marine freight and shipping, electrical news bulletins, mattresses, pants and overalls, rubber stamps, submarine engines, shoe laces, vises and clamps and heating apparatus.

Special Information

New London enjoys big business from government Army and Navy stations nearby. Coast Guard Academy and an unusually large number of summer residents, thousands of vacationists, excursionists and tourists.

6,700 employees are for the most part skilled workers receiving large salaries.

Shipping adds a tremendous business to the bulk of retail trade.

Suburban and Farm Residents

Within ten mile radius Waterford....4,000, East Lyme ....2,000, Groton....7,000, Lyme....700, Old Lyme....1,101, Montville....2,000, and several smaller towns and villages, prosperous farms and several shore resorts.

Wholesale

Beef	4
Cigars & Tobacco	2
Confectionery	6
Engineers' Supplies	1
Flour, Grain and Feed	1
Fruits	1
Groceries	3
Provisions	3

These houses not only do a big business throughout New London trading territory but several larger houses have trade throughout entire eastern part of state and beyond border into Rhode Island.

Retail Section

Principal shopping center about a mile and a half long on State, Bank and Main streets. Here are local department stores, specialty houses and exclusive shops. There are three small neighborhood sections located on Broad street, Montauk ave., and Jefferson ave.

Residential Features

Mostly one and two family houses. No tenement quarter and only a few apartment houses.

In the summer resort section of Eastern Point and The Pequot are many of the finest estates and most beautiful mansions on the Atlantic Coast.

There is being completed a $750,000 housing project that will rival any in New England. There are 200 residences in course of construction.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Products

Auto. (Passenger)	24	Delicatessen	4	Garages	17
Auto. (Trucks)	14	Dressmakers	57	Grocers	135
Auto. (Tires)	30	Druggists	9	Hardware	4
Auto. (Parts)	25	Dry Goods	24	Hats and Caps	7
Bakers	9	Dept. Stores	2	Jewelry	13
Cigar Stores	9	Electrical	5	Ladies' Tailors	2
Cloaks and Suits	10	Florists	3	Meat Markets	37
Clothiers	15	Furniture	8	Men's Furnishings	10
Confectioners	10	Furriers	5	Merchant Tailors	8

Millinery	13
Opticians	8
Photographers	7
Pianos	3
Plumbers	22
Restaurants	35
Shoe Dealers	13
Sporting Goods	5
Stationers	6

Trading Area

New London has one of the most prosperous trading areas in the state and during the summer season there is more wealth in circulation in this part of Connecticut than any territory of equal size in New England. The demands of the summer residents are many and varied.

To the north the trading area extends to Salem and Montville. A part of the trade of the latter place is shared with Norwich.

To the west the trading area extends to the Connecticut River and includes many wide awake shore resorts.

To the south the area extends across the Long Island Sound: much trade being derived from Block Island, Fishers Island and Long Island.

To the east the territory extends to Stonington. A part of the latter trade is shared with Westerly, R. I.

NOTE: Sources from which figures and facts were secured: James G. Hammond, secretary Chamber of Commerce, Board of Education, Tax Collector, Bank Statements, A. B. C. Reports, etc.

Newspapers
The Day (Evening)
New London Telegraph (Morning)
New London Globe (Evening)

To "Cover" the Southeast Corner of Connecticut
National Advertisers Always Use

THE DAY

More than 10,500 Daily at 3c per Copy

No city in the state offers opportunities such as New London presents for the successful marketing of nationally advertised goods.

It is a city of big industries,
A seat of education,
An important shipping port,
A vital military and naval station,
A popular summer resort,
A center of great wealth.

New London boasts of more wealth and more magnificent summer mansions than any other city in Connecticut.

There is buying power among the people.

Necessities and luxuries are in great demand.

National Advertisers develop big business through the columns of the one paper that has a greater circulation in the city and suburbs than there are homes.

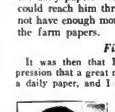
THE NEW LONDON DAY

THEODORE BODENWEIN, Publisher. FRANK R. NORTHRUP, 303 Fifth Ave., New York City, Representative

Digitized by Google

INQUIRY SHOWS MOST FARMERS READ THE DAILY NEWSPAPERS

A National Space Buyer Tells Why He Now Ranks Them First in His List—Finds an Amazing Lack of Statistics.



By H. P. MEULENDYKE
Advertising Manager, United States Cartridge Company

SOME months ago I spent several weeks among farmers in different parts of the country. I went from farm to farm seeking information that would be useful in my work. Among other things that impressed me was the fact that so many farmers read a daily paper.

At the time, I had no particular interest in the subject, so my impressions on that point were simply stored away for future use. But recently we happened to have a special message that we wanted to deliver to as many people as possible in certain sections of the country. So far as the city dweller alone was concerned, there was no difficulty. We could reach him through the daily paper. There was no greater difficulty in reaching the farmer. We could reach him through the agricultural press. The trouble was, we did not have enough money to advertise adequately in both the daily papers and the farm papers.

Finds it Impossible to Get Statistics

It was then that I recalled my impression that a great many farmers read a daily paper, and I asked myself: "If the farmer really does read a daily paper, why can't we use it to reach him as well as the city man?

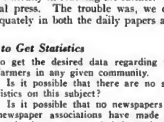
H. P. MEULENDYKE

I immediately sought statistics. We wrote directly and indirectly to agencies and agency associations, newspapers and newspaper associations, advertisers and advertising associations, and we found practically no statistics on the subject.

Newspapers were able to tell us what percentage of their circulation went to points outside the cities where they were published.

For instance, we learned that in Alabama, 24½ per cent. of all newspapers are mailed to "R. F. D." addresses.

In California the percentage is 7½; in Connecticut, 49½, etc.



But in almost no case were we able to get the desired data regarding the farmers in any given community.

Is it possible that there are no statistics on this subject?

Is it possible that no newspapers or newspaper associations have made investigations to get such information as this?

Wouldn't such data be valuable to

BRIDGEPORT HARBOR

Panorama View Showing Part of Factory District.

advertisers and wouldn't it be a powerful selling factor in the hands of the newspapers?

Be that as it may, I wanted such data and I was unable to get it. As I have already stated, we wrote to a great many sources that we thought might throw light on the subject. Although we did not succeed in getting much in the way of statistics, we did get some definite information that could be used as a guide, and we received a great many expressions of opinion pro and con from men who sell to the farm field.

What Space Buyers Knew

The digest of this information may be helpful to the reader who is interested in the subject.

We wrote, among others, to 26 advertising managers who sell the farm market. Of the 26, just 18 replied with an admission that they had absolutely no information on the subject, although most of them seemed to be of the opinion that the up-to-date farmer does read a daily paper no matter where he may be located.

The following statement is typical of the replies received from these 18:

"We have no definite information on the subject, but our observation would indicate that progressive farmers will read a daily city newspaper."

Two or three of the 26 advertising managers had a more definite impression, but were not able to state any facts to sustain it. The following is a typical letter from this class:

"The writer was raised on a farm and managed one up until recently, and I can think back over a period of fifteen years at which time practically all of our neighbors and my father took the nearest county seat daily paper.

"I would not go so far as to say that they read the metropolitan daily, but they do read the paper from the largest trading point near them, as well as their weekly town paper, as a rule."

Guessed 50% to 75% Read Dailies

"The question is of vital interest to us, as well as yourself and the writer will appreciate any confessions to which you may come on this respect if different from what our belief is, and which we assume is in keeping with the reports you have been getting and have perhaps verified in your own experience."

Another letter of a similar nature reads as follows:

"The sales manager of a well-known farm paper, who has been a subscription solicitor for some years and is out on the territory most of the time now with his men or twelve men, says that most of the farmers on whom they call take a daily paper. The local postmaster's offhand guess was 50 to 75 per cent. of the farmers.

Many of the newspapers with which we corresepond on the subject were as little able as the advertisers to give us any real data.

From a few newspapers and from one or two advertisers we did get some really definite information. For instance, one advertiser of farmers' supplies wrote as follows:

"Several times we have taken various states and used all of the papers in that state—the weeklies every week for eight weeks and the dailies every second and third day for the same period. In no instance have we been able to obtain any considerable number of catalogue applications and such as we did receive were almost, without exception, from the newspapers in the large cities. But at the end of the season we have always found that the amount of business we did in that particular state was larger than in the states immediately adjoining.

"Several years ago I took a number of thousands of our customers (and to be sure they were thoroughly distributed), took a certain number commencing with A in our list, selected by the state, and sent out to these customers a questionnaire as to the periodicals they read, enclosing a stamped envelope and with a letter signed by myself. We received a very high percentage of replies, but the only result we had from it was to confirm the results as shown on our reply schedule for the same year. In the questionnaire we asked whether they read their local paper each day, and as I remember this was practically a 100 per cent. 'yes.' I believe that any farmer who reads one of the better class of farm papers will also read a daily newspaper."

Records of the R. F. D.

Another as follows:

"Our local postmaster reports that the number of subscribers to daily newspapers on rural routes, June 21, is:

Route No. 1, 110 papers out of 132 boxes
Route No. 2, 125 papers out of 144 boxes
Route No. 3, 73 papers out of 101 boxes
Route No. 4, 107 papers out of 113 boxes
Route No. 5, 110 papers out of 135 boxes
Total—425 papers out of 625 boxes, or approximately 75 per cent.

"This county, being quite German, he adds the comment:

"Quite a number derive their news from weekly German papers."

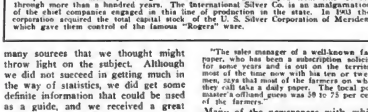
And still another:

"In talking with the advertising manager of a farm paper, I learned that among other questions in a questionnaire sent out some four years ago to several thousand of their subscribers, the question was asked as to whether they subscribed for a daily newspaper.

"I do not know the exact number of replies, but it was over 2,000. Seventy-five per cent. subscribed for a daily paper.

"Doubtless, the percentage would be much higher at this time, as these subscribers are about the average farmer in progressiveness and intelligence."

Minnesota Daily Most Definite



Perhaps the most definite information that we received from any source came from a Minnesota daily paper, and was summarized as follows:

(Continued on page 80)

GENERAL OFFICES AND FACTORY "E" PLANT OF THE INTERNATIONAL SILVER COMPANY, MERIDEN, CONN.

The Silverware and Plated Ware Industry, in the value of annual product, ranks seventh among the classified industries of Connecticut. The great factory group shown here is the largest unit of the corporation which maintains factories in six Connecticut cities and several Canadian branches. Meriden is the "Silver City," the plated ware industry having been born here and developed from this center through more than a hundred years. The International Silver Co. is an amalgamation of the chief companies engaged in this line of production in the state. In 1913 the corporation acquired the total capital stock of the U. S. Silver Corporation of Meriden, which gave them control of the famous "Rogers" ware.

Modern stock barn, provided with electric lights and all comforts, at Westport.

STOCK RAISING DE LUXE

WORKMEN OF WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO., NEW HAVEN, LISTENING TO A PATRIOTIC ADDRESS.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SPACE BUYERS CHART

Norwich, Conn.

"The Rose of New England."

Population

1910 Census 29,919
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City 32,000
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City and Suburban 50,000

Native Whites..... 79%
Foreign Born..... 20%
Negroes 1%
Students ..... Few

City Classed as Industrial

English Reading 95%
Industrial Workers 30%
Home Owners 4,547
Summer Residents ..... Few

Banks

Savings ..... 3 Resources $31,744,583
National ..... 3 Resources 6,777,379

Schools

Public grade ..... 19 Pupils 3,328
High ..... 1 Pupils 600
Training ..... 1 Pupils 100

4 Catholic schools have 1,076 pupils. Several private, 1 art school, 2 business and 1 private school for children.

Theatres

3 theatres with total seating capacity 2,650.

Churches

5 Baptist, 6 Congregational, 4 Episcopal, 6 Roman Catholic, 2 Methodist and 7 other denominations.

Location

Norwich and Worcester Division of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., Southern Division of Central Vermont. Head of Thames river, direct boat connections with New York City. Headquarters of Shore Line Electric Railway Co. operating south to New London and points west, east to Westerly, R. I., and north to Willimantic and Webster, Mass. Express service over all these lines.

Principal Industries

Woolen, Box Board, Thermos bottles, paper boxes, pipe couplings, Dyeing and Converting Cotton Goods, Silk Goods, Braids, Firearms, Cotton Goods, Cutlery, Envelope Machinery, Velvets, Belts and Belting, Display Fixtures, Brass Castings, Thread, Fire Extinguishers, Hosiery, Paint, Radiators, Yarn, Carriages, Springs and Mattresses, Cork, Shoddy, Roll Coverings, Furniture Trimmings, Stoves and Auto Accessories.

Special Information

Average yearly volume of business $40,000,000.
Demand for skilled labor increasing. Average weekly wage for skilled labor is $25. Average wage for unskilled labor is $24 per week.
Local retail business has been helped in no small manner by the establishment of such large institutions as the State Hospital for the Insane and The State Tuberculosis Sanitarium.

Suburban and Farm Residents

Within ten-mile radius Jewett City, Griswold and Glasgo....5,000, Montville....3,000, North Stonington....1,100, Preston....1,000, Sprague, Baltic and Hanover....3,000. Further north Danielson....6,000, Plainfield....7,000 and smaller towns and villages. Rich farming and dairy district north.

Wholesalers

Druggists 3
Dry Goods 2
Fruits and Produce 2
Grocers 4
Hardware 2
Meat 2
Shoes 3

These wholesalers supply the trade throughout the Norwich area and in several instances do business far beyond the territory recognized as the Norwich retail trading zone.

One druggist does business as far distant as Worcester, Mass.

Retail Section

Principal shopping center Main street, Franklin street and Broadway. About two miles in length and every kind of a store is represented.

Neighborhood section about ½ mile long in the eastern or Greeneville section.

West Main and Thames streets pass through Hebrew shopping district about ½ mile long.

Residential Features

One family houses predominate. No tenement section, few apartment houses. The tendency of the people is to own their own homes.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Products

Auto. (Passenger)....	16	Delicatessen	2	Garages	5
Auto. (Trucks).....	8	Dressmakers	72	Grocers	107
Auto (Tires) Agcys.	16	Druggists	20	Hardware	4
Auto. (Parts) Agcys.	12	Dry Goods	21	Hats and Caps.....	2
Bakers	12	Dept. Stores	2	Jewelers	7
Cigar Stores	11	Electrical	5	Ladies' Tailors	4
Cloaks and Suits.....	8	Florists	10	Meat Markets	46
Clothiers	11	Furniture	8	Men's Furnishings ...	11
Confectioners	20	Furriers	2	Merchant Tailors	8
				Milliners	14
				Opticians	5
				Photographers	4
				Pianos	7
				Plumbers	22
				Restaurants	16
				Shoe Dealers	17
				Sporting Goods	3
				Stationers	2

Trading Area

To the north it extends nearly to Putnam.

To the northwest and west the territory extends to Colchester and Willimantic. However, the latter city has a decidedly strong local claim on business and evenly divides business in territory between Willimantic and Norwich.

To the south the territory reaches to Montville. The trade of that village is about evenly split with New London, but thriving farms and villages closer to the city contribute big business.

To the east territory extends to North Stonington, Pendleton Hill and Voluntown.

NOTE: Sources from which figures and facts were secured,—Louis M. Crandall, secretary Chamber of Commerce, bankers, merchants, board of education and others.

Newspapers { Norwich Bulletin (A. M. Daily)
Norwich Record (P. M. Daily)
Cooley's Weekly
Weekly Courier

Founded 1888—Still Growing Eight to Sixteen Pages Bright and Independent

Norwich Evening Record.

THE ONLY EVENING NEWSPAPER IN THIS FERTILE FIELD

Norwich, "the Rose of New England," is the trade and trolley centre of Eastern Connecticut and hence is well worth cultivating.

With its Associated Press service, complete local news and snappy features, the Record is read and liked by everybody, going right into the homes of all classes every night.

Satisfied with rates and results, live Norwich advertisers use the Record regularly and freely—some exclusively—because they know by long experience that Record ads bring more cash buyers than any other medium they can use. What pays home advertisers is also bound to pay the general advertiser, and it goes without saying that

YOU CANNOT COVER THIS FIELD WITHOUT USING THE

Norwich Evening Record.

PULLEN PUBLISHING CO. Norwich, Connecticut 101-103 Broadway

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Thursday—forms closing at two P. M. on the Wednesday preceding the date of publication—
by The Editor & Publisher Co., Suite 1117, New York World Building, 63 Park Row,
New York City. Private Branch Telephone Exchange, Beekman 4330
James Wright Brown, President

TO ADVERTISERS
ADVERTISING AGENTS
SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVES
NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS

NEW YORK, SEPT. 18, 1919

Seven years ago when I assumed charge of EDITOR & PUBLISHER I did so with a firm conviction that there was some real work for a trade paper covering the daily newspaper field.

I was firmly convinced that there was a practical way of showing advertisers that it is more effective and less expensive for them to use the columns of the daily newspapers than it is to use national magazines.

This was questioned, not only by magazine people, but by advertising men—yes, and even by newspaper publishers themselves.

I found nothing to prove my contention and plenty to disprove it—but I thought I was right, and I was determined to find out, somehow, whether I was or not.

I found that, in the advertising circles, the theory of magazine advertising was very strong, indeed—almost impregnably intrenched.

This was due partially to the fact that apparently no one had handed advertisers any real data to prove the supremacy and economy of the daily newspapers, and no one seemed inclined to investigate except by comparing figures and statistics furnished by outsiders.

Why should they? It is admittedly true that magazines are easier to use than are daily newspapers—easier and pay some agencies better—for the rates are higher; there are few of them to check; they are less frequent than daily newspapers; they admit of finer (and more expensive) art work.

I questioned daily newspaper publishers, daily newspaper representatives and executives of daily newspaper associations.

Some of them frankly admitted that they were overshadowed by magazines; some of them doubted this, but were not sure—and apparently could not or would not make sure.

No one had any real basic figures—no one knew—few even guessed.

I was told that I was an altruist, that my theories were interesting—if true—but how was I going to prove them?

Some daily newspaper publishers listened and caught some of the spirit—and jumped into the fight.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER has proved beyond any question of doubt that daily newspapers are less expensive—much less per line per thousand, than all magazines.

We have spent lots of money and time and energy digging up statistics of all kinds—comparing tables of verified figures, gathered from the entire country—and embracing both daily newspapers and magazines and have proved our case thoroughly.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER has supplied to the national advertisers of the country statistics so vital they cannot be ignored.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER has smashed traditions, proved the case of the daily newspaper and furnished incontestible proof of not only the superiority, but the economy of daily newspapers.

Going into fields hitherto deemed impossible for a newspaper of the character of EDITOR & PUBLISHER it has attracted as regular readers many national advertisers who, while placing their business through agencies, keep abreast of advertising matters themselves.

This work—service if you please, has not been easy. The research work has been both extensive and expensive—but there is a great sense of satisfaction in doing something that has never been done before.

May EDITOR & PUBLISHER not be pardoned for taking pride in this achievement?

We lay no claim to having discovered anything. We have uncovered rather than discovered. All this information—all the facts, figures and statistics heretofore published in EDITOR & PUBLISHER were available, at any time, to any one who would gather them together.

The credit due EDITOR & PUBLISHER is for having done that which should have been done, and which could have been done if anyone had taken the trouble to do it.

Year by year daily newspaper publishers have recognized the value of this great work and have supported and backed it by ever increasing patronage.

Year by year advertisers and space buyers have recognized the value of this work in ever increasing numbers—and have added their names to the subscription list—thereby enabling EDITOR & PUBLISHER to doubly serve the advertisers, and year by year EDITOR & PUBLISHER has prospered because it has served.

Every man in the publishing and advertising business should be a regular reader of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

Most of the big ones are.

If you are not you should be.

JAMES W. BROWN

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SPACE BUYERS CHART

Norwalk, Conn.

Population

1919 Census 24,211
A. B. C. March 31, 1919 25,000
A. B. C., City and Suburban 30,000
Present Estimate, City 30,000
Present Estimate, City and Sub 35,000

Native Whites 79%
Foreign Born 20%
Negroes 1%
Students ..... None

City Classed as

Industrial and Summer Resort

English Reading 99%
Industrial Workers 25%
Home Owners 4,000
Summer Residents 4,000

Banks

Savings ..... 3 Resources $10,100,000
Trust Companies ..... 3 Resources 4,000,000
National ..... 3 Resources 4,100,000

Schools

Public grade ..... 19 No. Pupils 3,200
High ..... 1 No. Pupils 1,150
Manual Training ..... 1 No. Pupils 300

There is one business school and one Catholic school. Also a preparatory school for boys and another for girls.

Theatres

1 moving picture, seats 300. 1 movie and vaudeville, seats 1,200. 1 legitimate, seats 1,200.

Churches

Baptist 5, Congregational 3, Episcopal 3, Methodist 5, Roman Catholic, 3, and 6 other churches.

Location

On main line of N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Terminal of Danbury and Norwalk R. R. Freight service daily to New York City, trolley freight to New Haven and motor car and boat line to New York, in addition to railroads.

Principal Industries

Corsets, men's shirts, women's waists, underwear, hats, silk garments, lace, silks, shoes, automobile tires, motor trucks, marine motors, electric motors, government air compressors for submarines, stapling machines, grinding compound, builders' hardware, stoves and furnaces, brass novelties, newsprint paper and paper towels.

Special Information

Industries are so varied that no one trade is able to sway labor opinion. "There are no dull times in Norwalk" is a local slogan.

Weekly payroll totals more than $200,000.

Suburban and Farm Residents

Within a twelve-mile radius are the thriving towns of Georgetown and Branchville ... 4,000, New Canaan ... 4,000, Weston ... 800, Wilton ... 1,000, Saugatuck and Westport ... 8,000, Darien ... 4,000, and five or six smaller settlements.

Wholesalers

Beef 1
Fruit 1
Grocers 1
Produce 1

The business of these houses is restricted within the limits of Norwalk's trading area.

The nearness to New York markets enables wholesalers to always have on hand a large and fresh stock of products. New advertising introducing their goods find it a simple matter to solve all distribution problems.

Retail Section

Two shopping centers. Uptown or Norwalk section about a mile in length on Main, Wall and Water streets.

Downtown section or South Norwalk shopping streets are North Main, South Main and Washington.

In the Italian and Hungarian section of city there is a neighborhood trading center about a mile long.

Residential Features

Most of the residents own their own homes. There is no tenement or slum section or large apartment house district. In suburbs, beautiful homes of wealthy class and many summer residences.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Products

Auto. (Passenger)	16	Delicatessen Stores	7	Garages	10
Auto. (Truck)	2	Dressmakers	61	Grocers	111
Auto. (Tires)	11	Druggists	8	Hardware	7
Auto. (Parts)	7	Dry Goods	12	Hats and Caps	5
Bakers	12	Dept. Stores	2	Jewelers	8
Cigar Stores	14	Electrical	5	Ladies' Tailors	7
Cloaks and Suits	10	Florists	6	Meat Markets	36
Clothiers	12	Furniture	7	Men's Furnishings	9
Confectioners	34	Furriers	2	Merchant Tailors	7
Milliners	17
Opticians	4
Photographers	4
Piano Stores	3
Plumbers	17
Restaurants	21
Shoe Dealers	19
Sporting Goods	4
Stationers	1

Trading Area

Norwalk as surveyed here is the heart of a prosperous trading area. Both Norwalk and South Norwalk, which are two sections of the one city under one government, although often charted on maps as two distinct places, are connected from a down town like little towns nearly every one of which boasts of at least one thriving industry.

On the west Norwalk draws trade from New Canaan, Springdale and Darien about six or eight miles distant. On the northwest and the north the trading area extends twelve and fifteen miles respectively. At the Branchville and Georgetown corner of the trading area Norwalk shares some out-of-town business with Danbury and Bridgeport.

NOTE: Sources from which figures and facts were secured,—Prominent business men, banks, school board, tax collector and others.

Newspapers

- Norwalk Hour (Evening)
- South Norwalk Sentinel (Evening)
- Westporter Herald (Weekly at Westport)
- Darien Review (Weekly at Darien)
- Advertiser (Weekly at New Canaan)

"In Norwalk, Connecticut, it is The Hour"

THE NORWALK HOUR

(Member Audit Bureau Circulations)

Circulates in one of the wealthiest and most prosperous townships in southwestern Connecticut.

Besides being a wealthy community it has many diversified industries, so that there are really no dull times in this thriving city.

Mechanics largely own their own homes and the savings deposits indicate the prosperity of the working classes.

Advertisers in the columns of THE NORWALK HOUR get results

This newspaper has the full leased wire service of the United Press and operates a battery of four Intertypes, Ludlow Typograph, and a 24-page Hoe Press. It is an up-to-date newspaper with a metropolitan equipment.

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER — SPACE BUYERS CHART — Middletown, Conn.

Population

1910 Census	20,749
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City	27,000
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City and Suburban	48,000

Native Whites	86%
Foreign Born	13%
Negroes	1%
Students	650

Banks	7
Schools	4
Wesleyan College
Theatres	2
Churches	26

Classed As

Industrial

English Reading	98%
Industrial Workers	82%
Home Owners	3500
Summer Residents	None

Reserves	$25,000,700
Pupils	1,950
	650
Total Seats	2,300

Location

Valley Division of N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Boat to New York City.

Principal Industries

Silks, cotton and rayon, pumping machinery, enameled ware, bone goods and fertilizers, boots and shoes, soaps, chemicals, silver plated ware, rope, webbing, hoist articles, arby belts, typewriters, marine motors, hardware.

Special Information

Output of factories $6,000,000. Monthly payroll $250,000.

Suburban and Farm Residents

Within five mile radius..Portland..5,000, Cromwell.. 2,000, Middlefield..2,000, Durham..1,000.

Wholesale Houses

Grocers	1
Meats	1
Druggists	1
Produce	1
Stationers	1

Retail Section

Mile long on Main street.

Residential Features

No slum section; homes one and two family structures.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Goods

Auto. (Passenger) Agcys.	18	Bakers	6	Dry Goods	10	Hardware	3
Auto. (Truck) Agcys.	6	Cigar Stores	5	Department Store	1	Hats and Caps	1
Auto. (Tires) Agcys.	6	Cleaners and Dyers	6	Electrical Supplies	5	Jewelers	3
Auto. (Parts) Agcys.	7	Clothiers	14	Florists	6	Ladies' Tailors	4
		Confectioners	17	Furniture	9	Meat Markets	26
		Delicatessen	3	Furriers	1	Men's Furnishings	11
		Dressmakers	39	Garages	7	Merchant Tailors	5
		Druggists	16	Grocers	80	Millinery	7

Opticians	2
Photographers	3
Pianos	3
Plumbers	6
Restaurants	16
Shoe Dealers	14
Sporting Goods	5
Stationers	3

Trading Area

Northern boundaries Rockyhill, west pierces Meriden territory a few miles; sharing business of Berlin, Smiths, Middlefield and Durham with Meriden. South Connecticut River Valley towns, East Millington, Westchester, Colchester, Hebron, Turnerville and other towns.

Newspapers—Middletown Press (P. M. Daily)

Miscellaneous

Wesleyan Argus — Wesleyan Literary Monthly

EDITOR & PUBLISHER — SPACE BUYERS CHART — New Britain, Conn.

Population

1910 Census	43,916
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City	68,000
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City and Suburban	68,000

Native Whites	39%
Foreign Born	60%
Negroes	1%
Students	500

Banks	6
Schools	17
Theatres	4
Churches	23

Classed As

Industrial

English Reading	79%
Industrial Workers	69%
Home Owners	6,000
Summer Residents	None

Resources	$27,495,824
Pupils	9,667
Seats	48,000

Location

Waterbury division, N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.; connection at Berlin with main line.

Principal Industries

Hardware, clock-registering machines, underwear, machine tools, portables, shades, electric line hardware, bricks, ball bearings, cutlery, machine castings, builders' hardware, skirts, silk wastes, blacksmiths' hardware, chucks, paper goods, metal lockers, jewelry, cold rolled steel, spring beds, radios.

Special Information

Average yearly total of business $95,000,000.

Suburban and Farm Residents

Berlin 3,728, Southington..6,516, Bristol..20,000. Rich farming territory.

Wholesale Houses

Beef and Provisions	1
Butter, Eggs and Cheese	2
Cigars and tobacco	1
Fruits	1
Grocers	5

Retail Section

Main shopping section mile on Main, West Main and East Main sts. Polish neighborhood section.

Residential Features

No slum or tenement sections. Houses one and two family.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Goods

Auto. (Passenger) Agcys.	9	Bakers	14	Dry Goods	20	Hardware	6
Auto. (Truck) Agcys.	6	Cigar Stores	20	Department Stores	1	Hats and Caps	3
Auto. (Tires) Agcys.	6	Clothiers	21	Florists	9	Ladies' Tailors	11
Auto. (Parts) Agcys.	21	Confectioners	19	Furniture	7	Meat Markets	19
		Delicatessen	7	Furriers	1	Men's Furnishings	12
		Dress Makers	32	Garages	8	Merchant Tailors	6
		Druggists	20	Grocers	220	Millinery	8

Opticians	4
Photographers	10
Pianos	3
Plumbers	23
Restaurants	25
Shoe Dealers	25
Sporting Goods	11
Stationers	6

Trading Area

Well marked trading area south to Berlin, southwest to Plantsville, west to Bristol (sharing part of this territory's business with Waterbury) and north to Clayton.

Newspapers

New Britain Herald (Evening)
New Britain Record (Evening)

Miscellaneous

Swedish Weekly
Polish Weekly

EDITOR & PUBLISHER — SPACE BUYERS CHART — Ansonia, Conn.

Population

1910 Census	15,152
Present Estimate	17,561

Native White	49%
Foreign Born	50%
Negroes	1%
Students	None

Banks	2
Schools	6
Theatres	2
Churches	16

Classed As

Industrial

English Reading	80%
Industrial Workers	60%
Home Owners	1,000
Summer Residents	Few

Resources	$9,873,947
Pupils	1,500
Seats	1,200

Location

Naugatuck division, N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., Waterbury-New Haven branch of Connecticut Co. trolley.

Principal Industries

Brass and copper, webbing, metal novelties and machinery.

Special Information

Mechanics well paid, business has steady growth.

Suburban and Farm Residents

Derby..10,079, Shelton..8,573, and Seymour..8,381.

Wholesale Houses

Beef	1
Fruit	1

Retail Section

1/3 of a mile on Main St.

Residential Features

One and two family houses.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Goods

Auto. (Passenger) Agcys.	—	Bakers	8	Dry Goods	19	Hardware	4
Auto. (Truck) Agcys.	—	Cigar Stores	7	Department Store	—	Hats and Caps	4
Auto. (Tires) Agcys.	—	Cleaners and Dyers	4	Electrical	2	Jewelry	2
Auto. (Parts) Agcys.	5	Clothiers	4	Florists	2	Ladies' Tailors	—
		Confectioners	27	Furniture	10	Meat Markets	15
		Delicatessen	—	Furriers	—	Men's Furnishings	5
		Dress Makers	22	Garages	3	Merchant Tailors	3
		Druggists	7	Grocers	80	Millinery	7

Opticians	2
Photographers	4
Pianos	1
Plumbers	4
Restaurants	13
Shoe Dealers	11
Sporting Goods	1
Stationers	—

Trading Area

Confined almost exclusively to the towns of Ansonia, Derby, Shelton and Seymour.

Newspaper

Ansonia Sentinel (Evening)

EDITOR & PUBLISHER — SPACE BUYERS CHART — Danbury, Conn.

"The Hat City"

Population

1910 Census	23,592
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City	35,000
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City and Suburban	35,000

Native Whites	79%
Foreign Born	20%
Negroes	less than 1%
Students	None

Banks	4
Schools	10
Theatres	2
Churches	17

Classed As

Industrial

English Reading	90%
Industrial Workers	60%
Home Owners	5,985
Summer Residents	Few

Resources	$10,578,496
Pupils	3,107
Seats	1,950

Location

Danbury Branch and Central New England division of N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., Danbury and Bethel St. R.R.

Principal Industries

Auto supplies, ball bearings, boxes, brass, carpet, rugs, cement blocks, felt, hats, knitting, hat blocks, hatter's fur, machine tools, silk ribbon, tents, underwear.

Special Information

Thirty-six hat factories. Daily output nearly 4,000. Wages more than $100,000 per month.

Suburban and Farm Residents

Bethel 6,000, Brookfield 1,200, Redding..1,000, and Ridgefield 3,500. Other smaller towns and villages.

Wholesale Houses

Grocers	1
Fruit and Produce	5
Confectionery	2
Supply Danbury area

Retail Section

1½ miles on Main, White and Elm streets.

Residential Features

Large proportion of inhabitants own homes. No slum or tenement district.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Goods

Auto. (Passenger) Agcys.	27	Bakers	6	Dry Goods	13	Hardware	4
Auto. (Truck) Agcys.	16	Cigar Stores	11	Department Stores	2	Hats and Caps	6
Auto. (Tires) Agcys.	17	Cleaners and Dyers	4	Electrical	7	Jewelry	11
Auto. (Parts) Agcys.	27	Clothiers	11	Florists	6	Ladies' Tailors	3
		Confectioners	12	Furniture	10	Meat Markets	31
		Delicatessen	2	Furriers	1	Men's Furnishings	8
		Dress Makers	44	Garages	4	Merchant Tailors	5
		Druggists	16	Grocers	80	Millinery	10

Opticians	4
Photographers	2
Pianos	3
Plumbers	14
Restaurants	20
Shoe Stores	9
Sporting Goods	4
Stationers	2

Trading Area

On west extends beyond state line, south to Branchville. To the east and north the boundary lines extend beyond New Milford and as far as New Preston.

West boundaries extend to Bulls Bridge, Pawling and thence south to Golden Bridge.

Newspapers

Danbury News (Daily P. M.)

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER SPACE BUYERS CHART — Willimantic, Conn

"The Thread City"

Population

1910 Census 11,330
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City 14,000
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City and Suburban 25,000

City Classed as Industrial

Native Whites	74%	English Reading	85%
Foreign Born	25%	Industrial Workers	39%
Negroes	1%	Home Owners	1,800
Students	150	Summer Residents	Few

Banks

Savings	1	Resources	$940,461
Trust Co.	1	Resources	1,850,000
National	1	Resources	1,300,000

Schools

Public grade	6	No. of Pupils	1,311
High	1	No. of Pupils	425
State Normal Training	1	No. of Pupils	90

Two Catholic schools and a few miles north of the city, at the village of Storrs, is situated the Connecticut Agricultural College.

Theatres

3 theatres with total seating capacity 2,400.

Churches

Baptist, 1, Congregational & Episcopal, 3, Methodist, 1, Roman Catholic, 2, and five other churches.

Location

Main line of N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. between Poughkeepsie and Boston. "The Air Line" division of same road and Grand Trunk (Central Vermont) line from Brattleboro to tide water at New London. Trolley connections with Norwich and thence to Worcester, Mass., Westerly, R. I., and New London, Conn. Also to Coventry and points west.

Principal Industries

Thread, prints and twills, weavings in lence and lappets, cotton-yarn, cotton thread, sheetings and cotton cloth, silk thread, silk dress goods, braids and fish lines, dress-finishing goods and silk ribbons, silk machinery, velvet, wire novelties, plumbers' tools, paper bags, small tools.

Special Information

More than 5,000 industrial workers. Well paid, and many own attractive homes.

Total yearly business of factories more than $10,000,000.

The location of the city makes it an ideal manufacturing center and rapid growth is assured.

The solid character of Willimantic business houses may be confirmed by reference to the records of commercial agencies, which show that business failures are remarkably rare in this city.

Suburban and Farm Residents

Within ten mile radius ..Chaplin.. 800, Hampton.. 800, Scotland.. 800, Franklin..700, Lebanon..1,700, Columbia ..800, Hebron..1,800, Mansfield..2,000, Coventry..1,000 and several large produce and dairy farms. The stock of the produce farms is consumed entirely by the markets of Willimantic but the products of the dairy farms are shipped as far distant as Boston and Providence.

Wholesalers

Grocers	2
Provisions	1
Fruits	1
Confectioners	1

These houses not only supply the immediate Willimantic territory, but they maintain deliveries to towns as far north as Putnam and west to Manchester.

National advertisers are guaranteed the distribution facilities their products demand.

Retail Section

There is one busy shopping center located on Main, Union, Church and North streets. There are no neighborhood trading centers.

Residential Features

Mostly one and two family houses. Some of these homes are exceptionally fine and indicate wealth of the owners. There are two large housing systems maintained by the American Thread Co. and Quidnick Windham Co. These are fine homes and no housing system in the country is better cared for. Each system is under the strict supervision of doctors and are given weekly inspections, thus maintaining perfect sanitary conditions and a high standard of health for the residents in these homes.

Retail Outlets for Nationally Advertised Products

Auto. (Passenger)	11	Delicatessen	0	Garages	2
Auto. (Truck)	9	Dressmakers	20	Grocers	55
Auto. (Tires)	14	Druggists	8	Hardware	3
Auto. (Parts)	6	Dry Goods	8	Hats and Caps	4
Bakers	7	Department Stores	1	Jewelers	3
Cigar Stores	9	Electrical	4	Ladies' Tailors	3
Cloaks and Suits	6	Florists	2	Meat Markets	16
Clothiers	9	Furniture	5	Men's Furnishings	4
Confectioners	23	Furriers	0	Merchant Tailors	2
				Milliners	13
				Opticians	2
				Photographers	3
				Pianos	1
				Plumbers	7
				Restaurants	12
				Shoe Dealers	8
				Sporting Goods	2
				Stationers	5

Trading Area

Willimantic has wide trading area due to good roads and several trolley and steam lines entering city.

Part of its eastern trading area is shared with Norwich but boundaries of Willimantic territory extend fully as far as Central Village.

To the north Eastford and Willington mark boundaries and on west territory extends just beyond Coventry.

On southwest and south Willimantic trading zone shares its business with Norwich and Middletown, but an important amount of out-of-town trade is attracted to "The Thread City."

NOTE: Sources from which figures and facts were secured—Mayor Charles A. Gates, bank statements, tax collector, and others.

Newspapers { Daily Chronicle (Evening) / Weekly Chronicle

The Willimantic Daily Chronicle

The only Daily Newspaper published in Windham County

The Willimantic Daily Chronicle offers a field to the advertiser that is unsurpassed by any publication when the number of people it serves is taken into consideration.

As stated above it is the only daily publication in the county in which it is located and it is issued in Willimantic, a thriving industrial city of about 13,000 population.

Willimantic is surrounded by manufacturing villages containing from 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants, and is also the center of a rich agricultural region. The Willimantic Daily Chronicle for many years has been the only home paper and its territory cannot be successfully invaded by any other publication.

Owing to the position it holds in the lives and homes of its subscribers its value as an advertising medium cannot be successfully challenged.

The manufactories of the city and surrounding towns are diversified, the employes prosperous, in short it is a busy section of a busy state. Those who use The Willimantic Daily Chronicle for advertising purposes may rest assured they are not duplicating expenditures in a given territory.

The Willimantic Daily Chronicle is the only logical publication for the advertiser contemplating doing business in the section it supplies.

THE CHRONICLE PRINTING COMPANY

26 Church Street — Willimantic, Conn.

Digitized by Google

NEW ENGLAND NEWSPAPERS

WITH CO-OPERATIVE SPIRIT

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
MASSACHUSETTS—Population, 3,605,522
Boston Advertiser and American .....(S)	365,660	.25	.35
Boston American ....(E)	301,270	.40	.40
Boston Globe .....(ME)	293,781	.30	.30
Boston Globe .....(S)	329,781	.35	.35
Boston Post .....(M)	459,603	.45	.45
Boston Post .....(S)	367,074	.35	.35
Boston Record .....(E)	50,650	.15	.15
Boston Transcript ....(E)	29,820	.20	.20
Fall River Herald ....(E)	9,419	.025	.025
Fitchburg Daily News.(E)	5,605	.025	.025
Fitchburg Sentinel ...(E)	6,912	.025	.01785
*Haverhill Gazette ...(E)	13,819	.035	.025
Lynn Item .....(E)	15,121	.05	.0333
Lynn Telegram-News .....(E&S)	15,000	.04	.04
Lowell Courier-Citizen .....(ME)	16,780	.035	.035
New Bedford Standard-Mercury .....(ME)	26,674	.05	.05
Salem News .....(E)	10,355	.055	.04
MAINE—Population, 762,787.
Portland Express ....(E)	25,263	.06	.045
Portland Telegram ...(S)	21,846	.045	.035
RHODE ISLAND—Population, 591,215
Pawtucket Times ....(E)	23,752	.06	.04
Providence Bulletin...(E)	55,300	.12	.12
Providence Journal (M*S)	32,882	.075*10	.075*10
Providence Tribune ..(E)	28,156	.07	.07
Westerly Sun .....(E)	4,223	.02	.015
Woonsocket Call-Reporter .....(E)	11,888	.04	.03
VERMONT—Population, 361,205
Barre Times .....(E)	6,765	.0214	.0143
Burlington Daily News(E)	8,200	.02	.02
Burlington Free Press .....(M)	10,489	.025	.025
CONNECTICUT—Population, 1,114,756
Bridgeport Post-Standard-Telegram .....(M&E)	45,463	.095	.09
Bridgeport Post ....(S)	13,205	.045	.04
Hartford Courant ..(MS)	24,745	.06	.05
Hartford Times .....(E)	36,055	.07	.07
New Haven Journal-Courier .....(M)	15,101‡	.04	.035*
New Haven Register.(E)	26,959	.065	.055
New London Day.....(E)	11,636	.03	.025
New London Telegraph .....(M)	4,830	.0128	.0128
Waterbury Republican .....(MS)	10,762	.035*	.025

*Rate on 3,500 lines.
Government Statements, April 1st, 1919.
‡A. B. C. April 1st, 1919.

Two Hundred and Seventy of the Six Hundred and forty-one Manufacturing towns of New England make textiles,—woolens, cottons or both.

To One Hundred and seventy-eight of them, it is the chief industry. They have other business, of course, but the people engaged in textile making are the chief PURCHASING power and TRADE exists for THEM.

Every New England State has some of these textile towns:

Connecticut - - - - - 45
Maine - - - - - - - 34
Massachusetts - - - - 91
New Hampshire - - - 47
Rhode Island - - - - 30
Vermont - - - - - - 23

Every town of this sort is a good market for good goods; BIG consumers in the aggregate, with a fair average of opulence.

And alive national business makes the most of it!

NEW ENGLAND GOOD WILL

—the opinion and purchasing power of workers in these Textile Towns—

SECURED BY THESE NEWSPAPERS

After an involuntary suspension of six days, when all the Tacoma Union printers struck, following the refusal of the publishers to pay a wage scale of $9.25 and $10.00 for a six and a half hour day

The Tacoma Ledger

and

The Tacoma News Tribune

resumed publication Friday, September 12th.

Employees of the mechanical department came back to work on the old scale and under the old working conditions.

Existing contracts with the Typographical, Stereotyping, Pressmen and Mailer's Unions have been extended in all their own terms, and a new clause inserted, by which a method is provided for arbitrating any new grievances which may arise.

Arbitration has always been refused the publishers by the local Unions heretofore. Tacoma was already paying the highest scale in the United States; $7.00 and $7.50 for seven hours day and night scale respectively. The demands made by the Unions were beyond reason and confiscatory in their nature.

The Ledger and the News Tribune regret having inconvenienced their readers and advertisers but feel that the sacrifices made in suspending publication for this period of time were justified by the issues at stake, results achieved and the overwhelming victory won when the printers came back to work at the publisher's terms.

The Tacoma Ledger

and

The News Tribune

Frank S. Baker, President and Publisher

Charles B. Welch, Editor and General Manager

Digitized by Google

Gloom Cast Over Cleveland by "Ben" Allen's Death

Men Who Knew and Worked With Him Tell of His Big Heartedness and Ability

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 17.—The death of "Big Ben" Allen, Washington chief of the Plain Dealer bureau, in an auto accident on the Pacific Coast, September 15, while he was a member of President Wilson's party, has cast a gloom over the home office. Mr. Allen "grew up" as a reporter in the office and was sent down to Columbus several years ago to look after the Columbus news bureau of his paper. He filled the job so well he was promoted to the Washington bureau and became its head.

His work was always of the best. His acquaintanceship was national among the political leaders of Washington. Big, good-natured, always a great reader of current events, Mr. Allen was liked by all who knew him.

Old employes of the Plain Dealer recall that when "Ben" was a "mere reporter" he always managed to get "somewhere" and read the Plain Dealer thoroughly before he reported for duty to the city editor, thus familiarizing himself with the paper's daily contents. This practice made him a "live man" for any assignment.

"Ben was sure some glutton for reading the daily papers and devouring their news contents," remarked Charley Henderson, for many years city editor of the Plain Dealer, but now engaged in the publicity business. "Ben's work promoted him all the way up to the Washington bureau."

Many expressions of regret were heard about the Plain Dealer office when the news of Mr. Allen's death was flashed over the wire.

He "knew Ohio and its political lights like a book," and his place will be hard to fill in Washington. He was married and had one child, who lives in Washington. Mr. Allen had been a Plain Dealer employe about 15 years.

DEATH OF BEN ALLEN SHOCKS MANY

(Continued from page 11.)

friend and exponent of public thought, whose life will always stand out as an example to his profession. Ben Allen may be dead, but he lives in the hearts of his friends."

Men Knew Him to Love Him

Marlen Pew, editor and manager of the International News Service, said:

"Ben Allen loved the truth.

"He put his great strength into a sincere and effective effort to give accurate information to the public. Shady, loose, or politically and economically interested newspaper reporting was to him monstrously wrong and shameful. He was a reporter who walked with his head up and looking forward. Men knew him to love him.

"For years I had admired him as a man, and during the war, at Washington, where I was much in his company, I came to recognize in him one of the best types of the newspaper craft. His untimely leave-taking has immeasurably saddened his host of friends of the press and of public life."

Narrow Escape for Others

Mr. Small was cut slightly and bruised badly, but wired the Public Ledger that he was continuing with the President's party and would resume writing within a few days. Mr. Reynolds suffered a broken shoulder.

Both Mr. Small and Mr. Reynolds are prominent in Washington newspaper and official circles, the former being one of the most prominent in the country, due to his long connection with the Associated Press. His description on the departure of the United States fleet on the famous trip around the world having been such a fine bit of descriptive writing that it was signed by the New York office.

Mr. Small was with the British armies in France for two years, covering all of the major operations, and was with Pershing from the time of the general's arrival in France until Small returned to the United States in January, 1918, to become acting news manager of the A. P. He became Washington correspondent of the Public Ledger in March, 1918.

(Copyright, Harris & Ewing.)
STANLEY M. REYNOLDS.

Mr. Reynolds has been engaged in Baltimore and Washington newspaper work for many years. He joined the Washington forces of the Sun at the opening of the present Congress, leaving the New York Tribune Bureau. During the war he was for a time manager of the I. N. S. Bureau, a position he left to join the forces of the Committee on Public Information. He handled all of the publicity for the second draft registration and later was with Bernard Baruch at the War Industries Board.

O'Connor Killed in Storm

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Sept. 17.—F. W. O'Connor, so far as known, was the only newspaper man killed in the tropical hurricane which swept this section early Sunday morning, claiming hundreds of victims and causing property damage of millions of dollars. O'Connor's body was found among those brought to the morgue yesterday.

"Bulldog" for Hartford Post

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 17.—The Post has inaugurated a "bulldog" edition which appears on the street at noon. The paper contains largely early telegraph news and skeleton city stories. The Post is using both the United Press and the International News Service for telegraph news.

"SS Editor" Makes Trial Trip

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 16.—Seattle newspapermen were guests of the United States Shipping Board and the Skinner & Eddy Shipbuilding Corporation in the trial trip of the "S. S. Editor," launched recently while the National Editorial Association was convened here.

Have You Tried Telephone Directory Advertising?

Merchants use it to build sales.

Business men, in general, use it to build good-will.

Publishers use it to build circulation.

You can use it to good advantage if you have a message for the big buyers of the Big City.

The NEXT ISSUE
NEW YORK CITY TELEPHONE DIRECTORY
Goes to Press
Thursday, October 2, 1919

Advertising Forms Close Thursday, Sept. 25, 1919

Ask for particulars to-day—it's not a day too soon.

NEW YORK TELEPHONE COMPANY
Manager—Directory Advertising
15 Dey Street, New York City Telephone Cortlandt 12000

Digitized by Google

THE COX MULTI-MAILER COMPANY

mailed a circular on June 2nd advising of its petition in voluntary bankruptcy. We take pleasure in announcing the purchase by us of all the physical assets, patents, good will, accounts receivable and unfilled sales contracts of that company.

It may be a matter of interest to you as it is a matter of gratification to us that every creditor of that company (except eight note-holders, all of whom were at some time directors of the company) has been paid in full for his claim. Also that every stockholder of that company has been invited to come into this company on exactly the same basis as every other stockholder and that no profits nor commissions have been made by anyone out of the sale of the new stock.

A pleasing number of the old stockholders have taken their full quotas or more in the new undertaking, among whom are Mr. Victor F. Lawson and Mr. Delavan Smith. The management of the old company comes over bodily to manage the new company.

With business in 1918 over four times what it was in 1917 and promising (in spite of a removal, a strike and this reorganization) nearly twice as much in 1919 as in 1918, with double the old space and machinery equipment, with largely increased working capital and with no debts beyond current accounts, the courage and optimism which have carried this enterprise forward are now greatly strengthened.

We deeply appreciate the consideration and courtesy both of customers and suppliers during this period of change and count it as proof of continued cooperation.

Yours cordially,

the Speedaumatic Company
MANUFACTURING
THE MULTI-MAILER SYSTEM

817-825 W. Washington Boul.
Chicago, Ill.
September 20, 1919.

Digitized by Google

TIPS FOR AD MANAGERS

ATLAS AGENCY, 450 Fourth avenue, New York, has started to handle a national advertising campaign for the Biddle Motor Car Company, Philadelphia.

GEORGE BATTEN COMPANY, McCormick Building, Chicago, has just obtained account of the Samson Tractor Company, Janesville, Wis.

CAMPBELL-EWALD AGENCY, Marquette Building, Detroit, Mich. National campaigns in large space are now being prepared for the American Hammered Piston Ring Company, Baltimore (a new account), and the Federal Adding Machine Company, New York.

VANDENHOOF & Co., 140 South Dearborn street, Chicago, has obtained accounts of Walton School of Commerce, Chicago, advertising correspondence courses in law and accountancy; Commonwealth Traetor Company and Atkinson, Mentzer & Co., also of Chicago.

GREEN-LUCAS COMPANY, Hanover and Fayette streets, Baltimore. Planning a national campaign for the Citizens' National Bank, Baltimore, and has been appointed to handle the mail order accounts of the Macnair Chicken Powder Company and the Baltimore Mail Order Company, both of Baltimore.

WOOD, PUTNAM & WOOD, 111 Devonshire street, Boston. Will hereafter place advertising of the J. A. Bokel Company, maker of "Cherry Pepsin" and "Cherry Pepsin Tonic" (a new account) through its Baltimore office.

CITY OF LAKELAND, FLA. The city commissioners have decided to raise $5,000 to advertise Lakeland to tourists of the North and West.

BERAS ADVERTISING AGENCY, Flatiron Building, New York. Sending out new business for the "C. S. R. Corporation," dog supply specialist, New York, to leading Cuban society papers; campaign to run for 13 weeks.

BANNED "COMPLIMENTARY" ADS

Rochester Business Houses Profit by Horse Show's New Policy

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 16. — That business houses here should not be held up this year for "complimentary" advertising for the horse show program was the decision of the executive committee, which extended the rule to include all publications issued by the exposition.

"This decision in regard to the exclusion of advertising," said Secretary Edgar F. Edwards, "meant a loss of revenue to the association, but the officials believed that the exposition would gain in goodwill. It had never been intended that there should be advertising in the catalogue other than by those who might profit by it, but each year there has been an increasing number who took advertising space just to show their goodwill and their desire to contribute something to the support of the exposition."

Ad Man Stays in Army

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 16.—A. H. Harrison, formerly in the advertising business in Detroit, who served as a captain overseas in the war and was twice decorated for valor and who, incidentally, came into an inheritance recently of $40,000, has elected to remain in the service. He is in charge of recruiting for the San Francisco army district, and is publishing a magazine, "The U. S. Army Recruiter," which has the endorsement of the War Department.

Busy Days for Louisville Advertising Men

Members of Kentucky Club Preparing for Auspicious Part in New Orleans Program

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 17.—These are busy days for Bert N. Garstin, president of the Advertising Club of Louisville, who is putting in a lot of time getting up a booster delegation of Louisville advertising and business men, which he proposes to take to New Orleans next week when the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World meet.

Literature being sent out by the Associated Clubs headquarters, is being distributed here in quantities and the merchants, Mr. Garstin says, are favorably impressed with the argument that judicious advertising should always be backed up by store service.

The bow and why of this service will delight the eyes of both retailers and manufacturers, Mr. Garstin said, in exhibits to be found at the world's greatest advertising show.

Harry W. Riehl, manager of the Better Business Bureau, is also boosting for a big Louisville delegation and nobody will be surprised if a special train pulls out of Louisville for the Crescent City some time Saturday night.

URGES DRUGGISTS TO ADVERTISE

Robert P. Fischelis Delivers Address on Subject at Annual Convention

Advertising by drug stores was urged by Robert P. Fischelis in an address at the recent annual convention of the American Pharmaceutical Association in New York. He said:

"Advertising is so tremendously cumulative in its effect that it should not be regarded as an expense. You want to educate your patrons and get them to think in terms of your store. Make them understand that they can do as well in your store as they can downtown or uptown."

The Elwell Advertising Agency of Great Falls, Mont., has moved into larger quarters in the Dunn Block there. Ben R. Smith, a well-known Western advertising man, has been added to the copy staff.

Schweiser Starts Own Agency

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 15.—William H. Schweizer, who for the past year has been connected with the advertising department of the Times-Advertiser, has opened an advertising agency at 38 West State street. Before joining the Times-Advertiser staff, Mr. Schweizer was merchandise manager for the Gilchrist Company of Boston and was with L. P. Hollander & Co., also of Boston, as sales manager and foreign buyer. He has plans under way to complete an organization that will handle national as well as local accounts.

Texas Ad Men Form Club

CORSICANA, Tex., Sept. 16.—An advertising club, associated with the Chamber of Commerce, has been organized here with Lloyd Kerr, chairman; W. N. Johnson, vice-chairman, and David Daniels, secretary-treasurer. It will affiliate with both the Texas and International A. A. C.'s.

Boardman Comes to New York

W. J. Boardman, vice-president and Boston manager of the George Batten Company, has transferred his office to the New York headquarters and is succeeded in Boston by Nat W. Emerson. Howard D. Taylor goes to Chicago.

Owned and Occupied by The Daily Argus

The only A.B.C. newspaper in Westchester County, N. Y. is

The Daily Argus

MOUNT VERNON

Facts of Vital Importance

Westchester County Is the fourth richest county in the State of New York. Westchester County has a Population of Over 400,000 People

Of the 34 newspapers in this county, the Argus leads all, and invites the attention and confidence of the advertiser, with its position as the only paper in this great section submitting its circulation to A. B. C. audit.

Experience has already convinced many advertisers that the only way to reach Mount Vernon people is through The Daily Argus.

Established 1892

STILES & MERRIAM, PROPS.

Foreign Representative: Geo. B. David & Co., 171 Madison Ave., New York

KARL VON WIEGAND

LEADING AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT IN GERMANY

Now writing of the vital happenings in the new German Republic with the impartiality and graphic power that distinguished his work during the war.

His brilliant letters will be available for American newspapers through Universal Service

THE GREATEST AND BEST NEWS FEATURES

All Universal Service stories are headliners. Von Wiegand scored the biggest news beats of the war as correspondent of The New York World and The Sun.

He is but one of a remarkable body of feature writers for

UNIVERSAL SERVICE

WORLD BUILDING, NEW YORK

M. KOENIGSBERG, General Manager GEO. T. HARGREAVES, Editor and Manager

Digitized by Google

SWEDEN HAS A REAL FLYING REPORTER

Oscar Soderlund Has Been on the Job Since War Opened—Has Covered All Fronts—First Man to Write Story in Airplane

"THE flying correspondent of Sweden" is the popular title Oscar Soderlund of Stockholm's Tidningen, Stockholm, is getting throughout Europe. Soderlund is a newspaperman with all the "pep" that marks an American newsgatherer, and he has lately been getting all sorts of headlines on the other side over his aerial exploits.

OSCAR SODERLUND

Soderlund is said to have been the first man in the world to write a story in an airplane. This happened on November 12, 1918, on a flight from Venice to Piave and back, when he was the guest of the Italian Government.

First Air Written Story

This story was published in "Vecko-Journalen," Stockholm, a few weeks later.

When Soderlund left Stockholm for a visit to the battle fronts on the invitation of the British, French, and Italian press bureaus, he carried his trusty typewriter with him, and took it in the Italian airplane with him.

Soderlund heralded his return to his own haunts by being the first one to fly from Stockholm to Copenhagen after the war. He used his own hydroplane for this purpose.

This Swedish writer has a great sense of humor and his friends among the American journalists in Europe regard him as a real exception to the usual type of foreign scribe.

Reported "C. P. I." in Sweden

He writes English picturesquely. In a letter to E. H. Palmer, who was the representative of the Committee on Public Information in Sweden during the war, Soderlund wrote recently:

"I have not exactly been aeroplaning all over Europe, but I have indeed knocked about a little, sometimes to Copenhagen and a month ago over to London, where I led the Swedish athletic team to great successes at the English championships. Eight boys scored four firsts and four seconds—that's fine! Our Crown Prince was over there, and was very delighted, and had me to luncheon to express his gratitude for the excellent manner in which we represented our country, so now I am living in great anxiety that he will bestow upon mine unworthy person some kind of masquerade button which won't do to come over to the States with.

An Authority on Sports

"The American football team is over here, but honestly speaking, I do not think very much of them. They are better football players than the last bunch, but in every other respect they are not the same good old guys, but a rather dull lot. When they have finished their kicking, they stand very little punch (the Swedish national drink), and I am sorry to say, they do not go out evenings and kick policemen or make any other fun worth mentioning. And they cannot sing, which is the worst of all. Williams (of the American Legation) is a grand opera tenor compared with them, although I don't think more of his voice than of Hopper's (American Consul) when he bellows for a taxi."

During the war Soderlund was one of the most active pro-Entente newspapermen.

He is considered an authority on sporting subjects and writes articles for various English athletic journals.

Finds Europe's Publicists Have Nothing on U. S.

C. N. Mullican Brings Some Ideas Back from France to Use in Advertising Agency Field

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 17.—C. N. Mullican, formerly sales and advertising manager for the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company, has just returned from France after several months in the service. Mr. Mullican will return to the advertising field in Louisville, but this time with the Stark-Lowman Advertising Agency, which has offices in the Crutcher & Starks Building.

While serving with the A. E. F. Mr. Mullican said he had found opportunity to study European advertising methods and while here and there he gleaned an idea he does not think, on the whole, that Europe's publicists have anything on the American brand. Yankee "pep," force and brilliancy are all lacking in the overseas methods, he asserts.

"But America," he added, "is not yet fully cognizant of the vast agency for accomplishment that lies in advertising that has been carefully planned. Big things lie ahead both for government and business if the right kind of publicity is used to turn the trick."

CITY EDITOR WAS "GAME"

Henry Wrote Own Story of Air Sensations from Personal Experience

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Sept. 10.—In order that the readers of his paper "might know how it feels for a ground lubber to tumble around in the air several thousand feet above the city," John M. Henry, city editor of the Nonpareil, allowed himself to be strapped into the airplane of A. J. Nielsen, local "daredevil" aviator and looped the loop, tail spun, nose spun and flew upside down with the bird man.

The stunt was pulled off on a day when the city was filled with persons for a merchants' celebration, and the antics were performed several thousand feet above the center of town. The flight was made Saturday afternoon, and the Sunday Nonpareil carried big features written by Henry on his sensations.

Sim's Duty Enlarged

DETROIT, Sept. 10.—The board of directors of the Timken-Detroit Axle Company have accepted the resignation of Frederick C. Gilbert, vice-president and director, and appointed P. W. Hood, assistant secretary, to be sales manager. He will be assisted by Frank Sim, who will also remain advertising manager. C. G. Rowlette, assistant treasurer, has been elected treasurer to succeed C. W. Dickerson, who will continue as secretary and credit manager.

Remodeling in Houston

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 17.—The Houston Post is remodeling its editorial rooms and when completed they will be up to date in every feature. An art and engraving room is being built in addition to the other new improvements.

The Wisconsin Instrument

The "Wisconsin Instrument," so-called, is truly and surely anti-submarine. It has no bearing on the advertising situation except to furnish a further vista of the broadening horizon of Wisconsin's specialized industrial efforts, where skill is remunerated.

The instrument was completed and tried out in Lake Mendota in the summer of 1918, in time to get in some work against the lurking under-sea fleet of the late German Empire, which has become a matter of history.

And now to the point. By advertising in these papers, you will reach the Brain and the Brawn of Wisconsin, — good trade; none better!

Papers	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 lines
†Appleton Daily Post (E)	5,010	.0143
Beloit News (E)	6,593	.025
Eau Claire Leader-Telegram (M&E&S)	9,043	.027
†Fond du Lac Commonwealth (E)	6,017	.025
†Green Bay Press Gazette (E)	11,011	.025
Kenosha News (E)	5,221	.0129
La Crosse Tribune-Leader Press (E&S)	13,567	.035
Madison, Wisconsin, State Journal (E)	†14,689	.035
Madison, Wisconsin, State Journal (S)	†10,891	.03
Milwaukee Wisconsin News (E)	*68,431	.10
Milwaukee Journal (E)	113,830	.14
Milwaukee Journal (S)	92,830	.14
Milwaukee Sentinel (M&E)	81,752	.11
Milwaukee Sentinel (S)	67,162	.11
Racine Journal News (E)	7,666	.03
Sheboygan Press (E)	6,693	.0214
Superior Telegram (E)	15,152	.035
Wausau Record-Herald (E)	5,353	.01785

Government Statements, April 1, 1919.
*Publisher's Statement, April 1, 1919.
†A. B. C. Statement, April 1, 1919

Digitized by Google

CARDINAL MERCIER

The Martyr of Belgium

In His Preface to the Greatest Human Document of the World War

Writes:

"Here are my war experiences in their most tense and vivid reality, all the issues I fought with the occupying power, their methods and mine clearly defined, undeniably fixed in black and white."

Form 1204

CLASS OF SERVICE	SYMBOL
Telegram
Day Letter	Blue
Night Message	Nite
Night Letter	N L

If none of these three symbols appears after the check (number of words) this is a telegram. Otherwise its character is indicated by the symbol appearing after the check.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM

NEWCOMB CARLTON, PRESIDENT — GEORGE W. E. ATKINS, FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

CLASS OF SERVICE	SYMBOL
Telegram
Day Letter	Blue
Night Message	Nite
Night Letter	N L

If none of these three symbols appears after the check (number of words) this is a telegram. Otherwise its character is indicated by the symbol appearing after the check.

RECEIVED AT

25. 45 collect

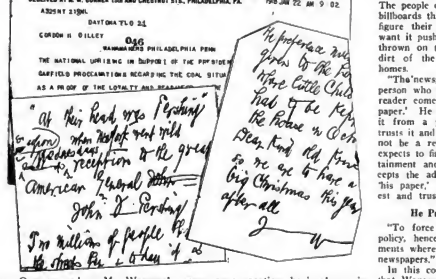
Baltimore Md 805pm Sept 15 1919

David Smiley,

Evening Public Ledger, Phila

I have closed with Public Ledger Company for the entire publication rights in English speaking countries to my forthcoming book covering my experiences with the German authorities in Belgium and any other work announced as coming from me through any other source is unauthorized.

Cardinal Mercier.



9.20 p.m.

For Terms for Your City's Rights
IN ADVANCE OF BOOK PUBLICATION
Write or Wire

THE LEDGER SYNDICATE

INDEPENDENT SQUARE PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Digitized by Google

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM

RECEIVED AT N. W. CORNER 15th AND CHESTNUT STS., PHILADELPHIA, PA. FEB JUN 22 AM 9 02

ASBURY PARK

DAYTONA FLO 24

GORDON H OILLEY

WANAMAKERS PHILADELPHIA PENN

THE NATIONAL WORKING IN SUPPORT OF THE PROPOSED GARFIELD PROCLAMATION REGARDING THE COAL SITUA

AS A PROOF OF THE LOYALTY AND READINESS

"At this Read-Pershing's reception to the great American General John J. Pershing"

"I'm telling you, Mr. Wanamaker, I'm a big Christmas fan, after all"

"I'm Millions of people like me made this a day to honor it"

NO matter where Mr. Wanamaker goes on a vacation, he is always in daily touch with his advertising department. Above is the reproduction of a telegram sent from Florida on January 22, the contents of which appeared over Mr. Wanamaker's signature in Philadelphia and New York newspaper advertisements the following day. At the left is one of those scraps of paper, with a thought jotted down by Mr. Wanamaker that became an advertisement the day after the Pershing and First Division parade in New York. To the right is his "J. W." and a thought of little children and Christmas, one of the things that keeps him young at 81.

JOHN WANAMAKER, MASTER MERCHANT

(Continued from Page 5.)

"One Price—Cash Payment—Cash Returned—Full Guarantee."

In the early nineties, John Wanamaker attracted the attention of the entire business world and the public in general as the result of a story carried by the Associated Press announcing that he had entered into a contract to use one page in the Philadelphia Record daily for one year at a cost of $100,000. That was the first full-page contract that had ever been entered into with a daily newspaper, and the largest amount involved in an advertising contract up to that time.

Now Largest Space Buyer

Today the Wanamaker store, Philadelphia, is the largest retail user of advertising space in the world, and it uses newspaper space exclusively. Three to four full pages are used daily except Sunday in the newspapers of Philadelphia and three ½ pages are used weekly in twenty nearby towns. The Wanamaker stores never use Sunday newspapers.

The Wanamaker style of advertising is distinctive and has been widely copied, not only in this country, but in England, France and Germany. What is meant by Wanamaker style is well illustrated by a story told in connection with the early efforts of Gordon H. Oilley, advertising manager of the John Wanamaker store at Philadelphia.

A large purchase of rugs had been made at a price that warranted a special sale. Great plans were made for the rug sale, and Mr. Cilley gave his own attention to writing the advertisement announcing the event. Mr. Cilley put the best that was in him into the effort as it was really his first big sale after taking his new position. He put every bit of salesmanship and all his advertising and editorial knowledge into the work of making that advertisement. When he had finished he was proud of the results, and well he might have been, for from every advertising angle it was a masterpiece.

When every correction had been made, as is the practice, Mr. Cilley took the advertisement into Mr. Wanamaker for his approval. The great merchant read it through. He praised it—he even did better than that, and in effect said that he did not see how any person could read that advertisement and resist going to Wanamaker's and buying one of those rugs—and then tore down the carefully built structure with seven words:

—"but it's too much like an advertisement."

Then Mr. Wanamaker, who writes rapidly but with great care, began to mark out the most telling selling sentences and rewrite new ones in their places. When he had finished he had before him the story of how and why Wanamaker's had purchased those rugs; why a sale was to be held, and why purchasers should be interested in that sale.

"J. W.'s" Orders

Mr. Cilley has been advertising manager of Wanamaker's for eleven years now, but he confesses that that was the last time he attempted to write an advertisement. Since then he has been satisfied, he says, to write the daily news of the Wanamaker store for the public.

In keeping with this there is even now hanging above Mr. Cilley's desk a framed order signed by John Wanamaker, which reads:

"Your sole business as a writer of our advertising is to find out the truth regarding the merchandise and tell it in plain words, and as briefly as you can."

Being a leader in advertising as well as a leader among the merchants of the world the policy that governs John Wanamaker in placing advertising as well as his advertising style should be of interest to every merchant, big and small, throughout the world. Ten years ago the Wanamaker Philadelphia store began to gradually withdraw from all forms of media except newspapers.

This was decided upon after careful investigation of every form of advertising and results.

In explaining this, Mr. Cilley said: "We believe people have the right to have advertising where they want it. The people do not want advertising on billboards that obstruct their view, disfigure their community; they do not want it pushed in under their door or thrown on their stoop, to add to the dirt of the street that passes their homes.

"The newspaper is the property of the person who purchases it. The regular reader comes to look upon it as 'his paper.' He looks upon everything in it from a personal view point. He trusts it and believes in it or he would not be a regular reader. Therein he expects to find news, instruction, entertainment and advertisements. He accepts the advertisements as a part of 'his paper,' which increases his interest and trust.

He Protects the Publisher

"To force an advertisement is bad policy, hence we place our advertisements where people want them—in the newspapers."

In this connection it may be stated that Wanamaker's give no complimentary advertisements, no matter what cause they are solicited for. Mr. Cilley even goes so far as to say such advertising is unfair to the newspapers, as the amount in the end comes from the merchant's advertising appropropriation and would otherwise go to them.

Many persons wonder when a young man at 81 does his best work. Mr. Wanamaker's activities are many. He is in one way and another connected with probably sixty institutions, charitable, religious and financial—and for him to be connected means that he is into their affairs "over his head" all the time.

Best at 5-6 A. M.

When in Philadelphia Mr. Wanamaker is always at his office each day receiving the reports of his various managers and giving interviews to people whom he has requested to call upon him. As stated before a major part of his attention is given to the Wanamaker advertising. He works wherever he happens to be, and never loses an opportunity to add to the scraps of paper in his pockets that carry generally, advertising thoughts.

But his friends and those who know him best agree that he does his best writing between 5 and 6 o'clock in the morning.

He is in the best of health and is always out of bed before the sun comes up. The first thing he does is to eat a big juicy apple.

John Wanamaker and General John J. Pershing, immediately after the planting of "Pershing's Tree" in Independence Square, Philadelphia, on September 12.

PRESSMEN OPPOSE ZONE LAW

New York League Convention Considers Standardization of Wages

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Delegates representing 8,000 members of the League of Printing Pressmen and Assistants of New York State, in their semi-annual convention here Saturday, placed themselves on record as opposing the provisions of the postal zone law covering second class mail. A committee was appointed to arrange details of moves for joining with other organizations in obtaining the repeal of the law.

Forty-six delegates, many of them newspaper pressmen, were present from all parts of the state. Plans were made to divide the state into zones for the enforcement of a scheme of standardized wage scale. R. B. Nelson of Syracuse was elected president.

TO INVESTIGATE ARREST

Gov. Olcott of Oregon Looking into Case of Kantzman

SALEM, Orc., Sept. 17.—Governor Olcott, acting upon a request from the State Editorial Association, has instructed the assistant attorney general to make a complete investigation of the circumstances connected with the arrest and conviction of Ham Kantzman, editor of the Houlton Herald, for criminal libel. Kantzman is now serving a jail sentence.

The association believes that Kantzman committed the offense of which he was convicted, but intimates that he was the object of persecution by District Attorney Metzker of Columbia County. A committee of the Editorial Association cites a number of incidents to show that Metzker had dealt unfairly with the editor.

Digitized by Google

TEN STATES

473,962 Square Miles—Twenty Million People

60.47% Native Born White 38.04% Negroes 1.49% Foreign Born

Less than one-eighth the area of the United States.

One-fifth the population of the United States.

Plenty of room to turn round in.

Plenty of people to get acquainted with.

Plenty of money, too.

The South, as visualized here, is a market worthy of the most intensive cultivation commercially.

28,516 Retail Grocers and Delicatessen stores.

5,655 Hardware Stores in this territory.

Rich in tradition, rich in natural resources, rich in industries, this section of the country is now developing faster, progressing more rapidly than any other part of our land.

Send your goods to these people. Co-operate with the southern merchants in presenting your claims through the columns of the local daily newspapers—identify yourself with their individuality and you will find yourself amply repaid.

These daily newspapers can and will carry your story to the right people.

Southern Daily Newspapers with Cooperative Spirit

		Net Paid Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
NORTH CAROLINA
Asheville Citizen	(M)	11,420	.025	.025
Asheville Citizen	(S)	9,744	.025	.025
Asheville Times	(E)	10,087	.025	.02
Charlotte News	(E&S)	11,808	.025	.025
Charlotte Observer	(M)	19,217	.045	.04
Charlotte Observer	(S)	19,214	.045	.04
Durham Sun	(E)	8,000	.02	.02
Greensboro Daily News	(M)	16,805	.035	.035
Greensboro Daily News	(S)	22,488	.06	.04
Greensboro Record	(E)	8,481	.035	.035
Raleigh News and Observer	(M)	21,240	.05	.04
Raleigh News and Observer	(S)	21,240	.05	.04
Wilmington Dispatch	(E)	5,505	.02	.02
Wilmington Dispatch	(S)	5,505	.02	.02
Winston-Salem Journal	(M&S)	6,447	.022	.02
Winston-Salem Sentinel	(E)	7,600	.025	.02
SOUTH CAROLINA
Anderson Mail	(E)	4,698	.0173	.0173
Charleston American	(M)	7,388	.025	.025
Charleston American	(S)	10,451	.025	.025
Charleston Evening Post	(E)	13,740	.03	.03
*Columbia Record	(M)	11,170	.03	.02
*Columbia State	(S)	24,876	.05	.05
*Columbia State	(S)	24,876	.05	.05
*Greenville News	(M&S)	15,116	.035	.02
Greenwood Index Journal	(E)	3,245	.02	.02
Spartanburg Journ. & Car. Spartan	(E)	2,973
Spartanburg Herald	(M)	4,398	.02	.02
Spartanburg Herald	(S)	5,473
TENNESSEE
*Chattanooga News	(E)	17,262	.04	.04
*Chattanooga Times	(M)	30,408	.06	.06
*Chattanooga Times	(S)	26,868	.06	.06
Knoxville Sentinel	(E)	24,022	.05	.045
*Knoxville Journal-Tribune	(M)	24,838	.05	.045
*Knoxville Journal-Tribune	(S)
Memphis Commercial Appeal	(M)	29,774	.12	.12
Memphis Commercial Appeal	(S)	118,148	.17	.15
Nashville Banner	(E)	49,500	.07	.07
Nashville Banner	(S)		.08	.08
Nashville Tennessean	(M)	24,918
Nashville Evening American	(E)	15,196	.08	.08
Sunday Tennessean & American	(S)	24,051
VIRGINIA
Bluefield Herald-Courier	(M&S)	11,001	.04	.04
Danville Register and Bee	(M&E)	10,009	.03	.03
*Newport News Times-Herald	(E)	12,087	.04	.04
*Newport News Daily Press	(S&M)	8,375
Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch	(E)	46,380	.07	.06
Norfolk Times-Herald	(M&S)	31,000
Norfolk World-News	(S)	17,258	.06	.04
GEORGIA
Atlanta Georgian	(E)	48,441	.08	.08
Atlanta Sunday American	(S)	97,818	.12	.12
Augusta Chronicle	(M)	12,248	.03	.03
Augusta Herald	(E)	11,014	.025	.025
Augusta Herald	(S)	17,418	.035	.035
Columbus Enquirer	(M)	12,762	.035	.035
Columbus Ledger	(E&S)	7,362	.0275	.0275
Macon Telegraph	(M)	20,140	.04	.04
Macon Telegraph	(S)	10,321	.04	.04
Savannah News	(M&S)	20,120	.04	.03
Savannah Press	(E)	16,200	.04	.04
ALABAMA
Birmingham Age-Herald	(M)	28,980	.07	.06
Birmingham Age-Herald	(S)	30,705	.06	.06
Birmingham Ledger	(E)	38,422	.07	.07
*Birmingham News	(E)	40,171	.06	.06
*Birmingham News	(S)	49,588	.10	.10
*Mobile News Item	(E)	10,740	.03	.03
Mobile Register	(M)	25,179	.05	.05
Mobile Register	(S)	15,948	.05	.05
Montgomery Advertiser	(M)	24,258	.06	.04
Montgomery Advertiser	(S)	24,258	.06	.05
LOUISIANA
New Orleans Times-Picayune	(M)	78,417	.12	.12
New Orleans Times-Picayune	(S)	84,494	.12	.12
New Orleans Daily States	(E)	41,504	.10	.08
*New Orleans Item	(E)	37,778	.12	.10
*New Orleans Item	(S)	97,588	.12	.12
FLORIDA
Jacksonville Metropolis	(E)	19,117	.045	.045
Florida Times-Union, Jacksonville	(M&S)	30,423	.06	.06
Pensacola Journal	(M)	5,810	.0172	.0172
Pensacola Journal	(S)	6,097	.0172	.0172
Pensacola News	(E)	5,000	.02	.02
KENTUCKY
*Louisville Herald	(M)	52,956
*Louisville Herald	(S)	48,747	.08	.06
Paducah News Democrat	(M&S)	7,004	.0225	.018

Government Statements April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. statement, April 1st, 1919.
†Publisher's statement, April 1st, 1919.
Un-index Bristol, Tenn.

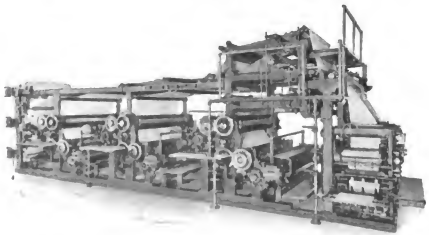
Digitized by Google

AGENTS RECOGNIZED BY A. N. P. A.

List Prepared by the American Newspaper Publishers' Association—Corrected to Sept. 18, 1919

Advertising Agcys. Corp., 163 Metropolitan Tower, N. Y. C.
Acme Adv. Agency, Third Nat. Bank Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
Advertising Service Co., Inc., 16 California St., San Francisco, Cal.
Advertising Service Co., Ltd., Drummond Bldg., Montreal, Can.
Allen Adv. Agency (Inc.), 470 Fourth Ave., N. Y. City.
American Sports Pub. Co. (Inc.), 45 Rose St., N. Y. City.
Amsterdam Agency (Inc.), 1180 Broadway, N. Y. City; 35 Congress St., Boston, Mass.
Anfenger-Jacobson Adv. Co. (Inc.), Board of Education Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Arkenberg-Macheo-Dowd Co. (Inc.), Produce Exchange Bldg., Toledo, Ohio.
Armstrong, Collin, Inc., 1457-63 Broadway, N. Y. City.
Atlas Adv. Agency (Inc.), 450 Fourth Ave., N. Y. City.
Ayer, N. W., & Son, 300 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.; Fifth Ave., Bldg., N. Y. City.
Ayres, H. E., & Co., 164 Federal St., Boston, Mass.
Baer, Joseph E. (Inc.), 366 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.
Baker Adv. Agency, Ltd., 184 Bay St., Toronto, Ont.
Banker-Martin Co. (Inc.), Owen Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
Barber, J. W., Adv. Agency (Inc.), 80 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.
Barker, Duff & Morris (Inc.), 323 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.
Barnes, Jean Dean, 354 Fourth Ave., N. Y. City.
Barrows & Richardson, Drexel Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.
Barton & Durstine Co (Inc.), 25 West 45th St., N. Y. City.
Basham, Thomas E., Co. (Inc.), Inter-Southern Life Bldg., Louisville, Ky.
Bates, J. D., Adv. Agency, 292 Main St., Springfield, Mass.
Batten, Geo., Co. (Inc.), 381 4th Ave., N. Y. City.
Baxter Adv. Co., Commerce Trust Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.
Benson, Campbell & Slaten, Corn Exchange Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
Berg Adv. Agency, Rowell Bldg., Fresno, Cal.
Berrien Co. (Inc.), 19 W. 44th St., N. Y. City.
Birch-Field & Co. (Inc.), 110 W. 40th St., N. Y. City.
Blaauw, John, National Realty Bldg., Tacoma, Wash.
Blackburn Adv. Agency, 32 South Jefferson St., Dayton, Ohio.
Blackman-Ross Co. (Inc.), 95 Madison Ave., N. Y. City.
Blaine-Thompson Co (Inc.), Fourth Nat. Bank Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Bloomingdale-Weiler Adv. Agency, 1420 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Blum, Charles, Adv. Corporation (Inc.), 608 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Bondi, Arthur T., 29 Central St., Boston, Mass.
Boston News Bureau Co. (Inc.), 30 Kilby Street, Boston, Mass.
Botsford, Constantine & Tyler (Inc.), Henry Bldg., Seattle, Wash., Spalding Bldg., Portland, Ore.
Boswell-Frankel Agency, 1457 Broadway, N. Y. City.
Bowers, Thos. H., Adv. Agency (Inc.), S. W. Cor. Jackson St. and Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Brandt Adv. Co (Inc.), 3 So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.
Brearley-Hamilton Co. (Inc.), Michigan Trust Bldg., Grand Rapids, Mich.
Bromfield & Co. (Inc.), 45 West 34th St., N. Y. City.
Brooke, Smith & French (Inc.), Kresge Bldg., Detroit, Mich
Brooks, S. M., Adv. Agency, Boyle Bldg., Little Rock, Ark.
Brown Adv. Agency, Inc., 110 W. 40th St., N. Y. City.
Buchanan, John, Adv. Agency, 10 High St., Boston, Mass.
Burnet-Kuhn Adv. Co. (Inc.), 39 So. La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.
Cahill Adv. Co., Pacific Bldg., San Francisco, Cal.
Calkins & Holden (Inc.), 250 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.
Campbell-Ewald Co. (Inc.), Marquette Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
Canadian Advertising Agency, Ltd., 284 Lagauchetiere St., West, Montreal, Canada.
Capehart's Malkwon Methods (Inc.), Times Bldg., N. Y. City.
Cecil, Barreto & Cecil (Inc.), Mutual Bldg., Richmond, Va.
Chambers Agency (Inc.), Maison Blanche Bldg., New Orleans, La.
Chappelow Adv. Co. (Inc.), International Life Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Charles Ads Service (Inc.), 23-25 E. 26th St., N. Y. City.
Chesman, Nelson & Co. (Inc.), 1127 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.; Goddard Bldg., Chicago, Ill.; 341 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City; Times Building, Chattanooga, Tenn.
Churchill-Hall (Inc.), 50 Union Square, N. Y. City.
Clark-Whitecraft Co. (Inc.), 1328 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Clarke, E. H., Adv. Agency (Inc.), Steger Building, Chicago, Ill.; 37 W. 39th St., N. Y. City.
Clough, John L., Adv. Agency, Merchants Bank Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Cochrane, Witt K., Adv. Agency (Inc.), Boyce Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
Colton, Wendell P., Co. (Inc.), 165 Broadway, N. Y. City.
Cone, Andrew, Geo. Adv. Agency (Inc.), Tribune Bldg., N. Y. City.
Conner Adv. Agency, Mercantile Bldg., Denver, Colo.
Conover, C. A., 24 Mile St., Boston, Mass.
Coolidge Adv. Service, Davidson Bldg., Des Moines, Ia.
Corman Co. (Inc.), 19 West 44th St., N. Y. City.
Corning-Erickson Adv. Agency (Inc.), Merchants Nat. Bank Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.
Cowen Co. (Inc.), 50 Union Square, N. Y. City; John Hancock Bldg., Boston, Mass.
Cramer-Krasselt Co. (Inc.), 354 Milwaukee St., Milwaukee, Wis.
Critchfield & Co. (Inc.), Brooks Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
Croot & Denhard (Inc.), 44 E. 23rd St., N. Y. City.
Crosby-Chicago (Inc.), 63 East Adams St., Chicago, Ill.
Cross, J. H., Co. (Inc.), 214 South 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Crumrine, Arthur M. Co. (Inc.), Columbus Savings & Trust Bldg., Columbus, Ohio.
Dake Adv. Agency (Inc.), 814 South Spring St., Los Angeles, Cal.; 121 Second St., San Francisco, Cal.
Daken Adv. Agency (Inc.), Eitel Bldg., Seattle, Wash.
Danielson & Son, 96 Westminster St., Providence, R. I.
D'Arcy Adv. Co. (Inc.), International Life Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Darlow Adv. Co. (Inc.), World-Herald Bldg., Omaha, Neb.
Dauchy Co. (Inc.), 9 Murray St., N. Y. City.
Davis, J. W., Railway Exchange Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
Decker, Henry, Ltd., Fuller Bldg., N. Y. City.
Desharats, Adv. Agency, Ltd., Unity Bldg., Montreal, Canada.
Dietz, Ottomar, Adv. Bureau, 140 Nassau St., N. Y. City.
Dippy & Aitkin, 12th & Filbert Sts., Phila., Pa.
Dobbs, William F., Danbury, Conn.
Dollenmayer Adv. Agency (Inc.), Lincoln Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.
Donovan & Armstrong, Commonwealth Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.
Dooley-Brennan Co. (Inc.), Harris Trust Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
Doremus & Co. (Inc.), 44 Broad St., N. Y. City.
Dorland Adv. Agency, Preston Bldg., Atlantic City, N. J.; 366 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.
Doughty, Chas. L., 621 Main St., Cincinnati, O.
Dukelow & Walker Co. (Inc.), 246 Washington St., Boston, Mass.
Dunlap-Ward Adv. Co. (Inc.), Union National Bank Bldg., Cleveland, Ohio; Kresge Bldg., Detroit, Mich
Dunne, Desmond, Co. (Inc.), 30 E. 42d St., N. Y. City.
Dyer, Geo. L., Co. (Inc.), 42 Broadway, N. Y. City.
Eddy, Louis O., Marshall Field Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
Edwards, Geo. W., & Co., 328 Chestnut St., Phila., Pa.
Elliott, A. R. (Inc.), 66 W. Broadway, N. Y. City.
Elliott Adv. Service (Inc.), 262 East Avenue, Rochester, N. Y.
Ellis, A. W., Co., 40 Central St., Boston, Mass.
Erickson Co. (Inc.), 381 Fourth Ave., N. Y. City
Erickson, E. N., Adv. Agency, 21 Park Row, N. Y. City.
Erwin & Wasey Co. (Inc.), 58 East Washington St., Chicago, Ill.; Kresge Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
Evans & Barnhill (Inc.), 33 W. 42nd St., N. Y. City.
Fairfax, H. W., World Bldg., N. Y. City.
Fawcett, Adv. Agency, Bennett Bldg., Colorado Springs, Colo.
Federal Adv. Agency (Inc.), 6 East 39th St., N. Y. City.
Ferry-Hanly Adv. Co. (Inc.), 1120 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo., Hibernia Bldg., New Orleans, La.
Fettinger, Theodore S., Adv. Agency, 790 Broadway St., Newark, N. J.
Field Adv. Service, State Life Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Finch, L. J., Adv. Agency (Inc.), 1358 Broadway, N. Y. City.
Finney, R. B., Adv. Co. (Inc.), 918 Grand Ave., Kansas City, Mo.
Fisher-Ruebel-Brown Adv. Agency (Inc.), 162 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.
Foley, Richard A., Adv. Agency (Inc.), Terminal Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.
Frank, Albert, & Co. (Inc.), 26 Beaver St., N. Y. City.
Freeman Adv. Agency (Inc.), Mutual Bldg., Richmond, Va.
Frizzell Agency Dispatch Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.
Fuller, Chas. H., Co. (Inc.), 623 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.; Morgan Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y.
Fuller & Smith & Ross, Guardian Bldg., Cleveland, O.
Gardiner & Wells Co. (Inc.), 150 Madison Ave., N. Y. City.
Gardner Adv. Co. (Inc.), 1627 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.
Geyer-Dayton Adv. Co. (Inc.), City Natl. Bank Bldg., Dayton, O.
Globe Adv. Agency (Inc.), 85 Washington St., South Norwalk, Conn.
Goldsmith, L. S., 244 Fifth Avenue, N. Y. City.
Goldsmith Co., 207 Market St., Newark, N. J.
Gormley, Smith & Peiler (Inc.), Gazette Bldg., Atlantic City, N. Jersey.
Gould, M. P., Co., 60 West 35th St., N. Y. City.
Goulston, Ernest J., Adv. Agency (Inc.), 18 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.
Gray, A. D., Co. (Inc.), 14th and Oak Sts., Kansas City, Mo.
Green, Fulton, Cunningham Co. (Inc.), Free Press Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
Green-Lucas Co. (Inc.), Hanover and Fayette Sts., Baltimore, Md.
Greenleaf Co. (Inc.), 41 Mt. Vernon St., Boston, Mass.
Greig & Ward (Inc.), 104 South Michigan Blvd., Chicago, Ill.
Greve, S., Agency, Oppenheim Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.
Guenther, Rudolph—Russell Law (Inc.), 25 Broad St., New York City.
Guenther-Bradford & Co. (Inc.), 64 W. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.
Gundlach Adv. Co. (Inc.), Peoples Gas Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
Hall & Enzinger Agency (Inc.), Gasco Bldg., Portland, Ore.
Hamilton, J. R., Adv. Agency (Inc.), 326 Madison St., West, Chicago, Ill.
Handl-Metzger (Inc.), 95 Madison Ave., N. Y. City
Hannah, Henry King, 150 Nassau St., N. Y. City
Hauser Agency (Inc.), 601 Broad St., Newark, N. J.
Haulenbeek, G. H., Adv. Agency (Inc.), 2 W. 45th St., N. Y. City.
Haven, Edwin H., 5 Beekman St., N. Y. City.
Hawley Adv. Co. (Inc.), 19 W. 44th St., N. Y. City
Hass Adv. Agency, 196 Main St., Burlington, Vt.
Heagstra, H. Walton (Inc.), 25 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.
Henri, Hurst & McDonald (Inc.), Peoples Gas Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
Hibson & Bro., 116 Nassau St., N. Y. City.
Hicks Adv. Agency (Inc.), 217 Broadway, N. Y. City.

(Continued on Page 68.)



Digitized by Google

THE ESSENTIAL AGENCIES

in Producing Newspapers

ARE THE PRINTING PRESS AND ADVERTISING

With the New HOE Superspeed Press Newspapers can distribute to their Constituents in the least possible time and under the most economical condition the enormous volume of Advertising now being prepared by the Agencies of the World.

One of the five Hoe Superspeed Sextuples printing the New York Sun

Actual Running-Speed Capacity
80,000 papers per hour of 4 to 12 pages
40,000 papers per hour of 14 to 24 pages
20,000 papers per hour of 28 to 40 pages

Speediest and Most Efficient Newspaper Press Made

Hoe Superspeed and Unit-Type Presses of Sextuple, Octuple, or Decuple capacity are in course of construction, or have been recently installed, for the Philadelphia Bulletin (7), Philadelphia Public Ledger (5), New York Sun (5), New York Times (3), Baltimore Sun (3), Pittsburgh Post (3), Boston Globe (2), Boston Post (2), Cleveland Plain Dealer (2), Toronto Telegram (2), Toronto Globe, Binghamton Republican-Herald, Columbus Dispatch, Bronx Home News, Cleveland News-Leader, Des Moines Register & Tribune, Hamilton Spectator, Hartford Times, Jacksonville Times-Union, Los Angeles Times-Mirror, New Orleans Times-Picayune, New York Tribune, Richmond Times-Dispatch, Rochester Democrat & Chronicle, San Francisco Chronicle, Seattle Times, Spokane Spokesman-Review, Washington Star, Wilmington Journal, London Daily Mail (3), Paris Daily Mail (2), Politiken of Copenhagen (2), and others.

R. HOE & CO.

504-520 GRAND STREET, NEW YORK CITY

544-546 South Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

7 Water Street, Boston, Mass.

109-112 Borough Road, London, S. E. 1, Eng.

Digitized by Google

AGENTS RECOGNIZED BY A. N. P. A.

(Continued from Page 66.)

Hill, Albert P., Co. (Inc.), Peoples Bank Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa.
Hill, W. S., Co. (Inc.), Vandergrift Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa.
Holmes, Frances, Adv. Agency, Van Nuys Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
Honig-Cooper Co. (Inc.), 74 New Montgmery St., San Francisco, Cal.
Hoopes, Edgar M., Adv. Agency (Inc.), Equitable Bldg., Wilmington, Del.
Hoops Adv. Co. (Inc.), Tribune Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
Howard, E. T. Co. (Inc.), 432 Fourth Ave., N. Y. City.
Howe, Murray & Co. (Inc.), 30 E. 42nd St., N. Y. City.
Howland, H. S., Adv. Agency (Inc.), 20 Broad St., N. Y. City.
Hoyt's Service (Inc.), 116 W. 32nd St., N. Y. City; 14 Kilby St., Boston, Mass.
Hull, W. H., & Co. (Inc.), Tribune Bldg., N. Y. City.
Humphrey, H. B., Co. (Inc.), 581 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.
Husband & Thomas Co. (Inc.), 58 East Washington St., Chicago, Ill.
Ireland Adv. Agency (Inc.), 136 S. Fourth St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Ironmonger, C., Adv. Agency, 95 Madison Avenue, N. Y. City.
Izzard Co. (Inc.), Times Bldg., Seattle, Wash.
Jacobs, Dillard, Agency, Candler Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
Joerns, Arnold, Co. (Inc.), 14 F. Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.
Johnson-Dallis Co. (Inc.), Greenfield Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
Johnson Read & Co., (Inc.), 202 So. State St., Chicago, Ill.
Johnston-Ayres Co. (Inc.), 525 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
Jones-Morton (Inc.), 348 Main St., Johnstown, Pa.
Jones, Wylie B., Adv. Agency (Inc.), Binghamton, N. Y.
Joseph, Jesse M., Adv. Agency, Union Central Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Kastor, H. W. & Sons, Adv. Co. (Inc.), Lytton Bldg., Chicago, Ill.; Mercantile National Bank Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Kay, J. Roland, Co. (Inc.), 111 W. Washington St., Chicago, Ill.
Keane, N. W., 95 Nassau St., N. Y. City.
Kelley, Martin V., Co. (Inc.), Second National Bank Bldg., Toledo, Ohio; 171 Madison Ave., N. Y. City.
Kiernan, Frank, & Co., 135 Broadway, N. Y. City.
Kirtland-Engel Co. (Inc.), 14 E. Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.
Klau-Van Pietersom-Dunlap (Inc.), 131 Second St., Milwaukee, Wis.
Kobbe, Philip Co. (Inc.), 208 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.
Koch, Otto J., Adv. Agency (Inc.), University Bldg., Milwaukee, Wis.
Kollock, Edward D., 201 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.
Lake & Dunham Adv. Agency (Inc.), Porter Bldg., Memphis, Tenn.
Lamport-MacDonald Co. (Inc.), J. M. S. Bldg., South Bend, Ind.
Lawyers' Adv. Co. (Inc.), 140 Nassau St., N. Y. City.
Leddy, John M., 41 Park Row, N. Y. City.
Lesan, H. E., Adv. Agency (Inc.), 440 Fourth Ave., N. Y. City; Old Colony Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
Le Vene, Nate, 26 O'Farrell St., San Francisco, Cal.
Levey, H. H., 1328 Broadway, N. Y. City.
Levin, Chas. D. (Inc.), 1269 Broadway, N. Y. City.
Lewis Agency (Inc.), Evening Star Bldg., Washington, D. C.
Lewis & Coffin Adv. Agency, Third National Bank Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
Lord & Thomas (Inc.), Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill., Times Bldg., N. Y. City.
Loudon & Hanford Co. (Inc.), Cutler Bldg., Rochester, N. Y.; 200 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.
McAllister, Malcolm Co., McIntyre Bldg., Salt Lake City, Utah.
McCann, H. K., Co. (Inc.), 61 Broadway, N. Y. City; 401 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
McCornell & Fergusson, London, Can.
McFarland Publicity Service (Inc.), Harrisburg, Pa.
McGuckin, Eugene, Co., 1211 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.
McJunkin Adv. Co. (Inc.), 5 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
McKee, Homer, Co. (Inc.), Kahn Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
McKim, A., Ltd., Lake of the Woods Bldg., Montreal, Can.
McLain-Hadden-Simpers Co. (Inc.), 210 W. Washington Sq., Phila., Pa.; 331 Madison Ave., N. Y. City.
McMullen, Robert M., Co. (Inc.), 334 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.
Maclay & Mullally (Inc.), 198 Broadway, N. Y. City.
MacManus, Theodore F. (Inc.), Kresge Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
MacMartin Adv. Agency (Inc.), Security Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.
Macpherson-McCurdy, Ltd., Bell Block, Winnipeg, Can.
Mallory, Mitchell & Faust (Inc.), Security Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
Matteson-Fogarty-Jordan Co. (Inc.), 140 No. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.
Mattern'ach Co. (Inc.), 74 Union Place, Hartford, Conn.
Mason, C. Henry, 136 East Avenue, Rochester, N. Y.
Massengale Adv. Agency (Inc.), Candler Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
Mathews, R. A., Adv. Corporation, 140 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.
Matos Adv. Co. (Inc.), Bulletin Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.
Mertz, Lewis H., Ontario, Cal.
Metropolitan Adv. Co. (Inc.), 6 Wall St., N. Y. City.
Meuser, Bernhard, Adv. Agency, 140 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.
Michaels, Harry C., 404 Fourth Ave., N. Y. City.
Mitchell Adv. Agency (Inc.), Abbay Bldg., 8th St. & Mary Place, Minneapolis, Minn.
Mix, J. Rowland, 381 Fourth Ave., N. Y. City.
Moon, Byron G., Co. (Inc.), Proctor Bldg., Troy, N. Y.
Morgan, John J., Adv. Agency (Inc.), 220 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.
Morgan, Tuttle & Jennings, 44 E. 23d St., N. Y. City.
Morris, Herbert M., Adv. Agency (Inc.), 400 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Morse International Agency (Inc.), 449 Fourth Ave., N. Y. City.
Moser & Cotins, Paul Bldg., Utica, N. Y.
Moses Adv. Service, Munsey Bldg., Baltimore, Md.
Moss-Chase Co. (Inc.), 170 Franklin St., Buffalo, N. Y.
Muller, J. P., & Co. (Inc.), 220 West 42d St., N. Y. City.
Munro-Romer Co. (Inc.), 568 E. Broad St., Columbus, O.
Murray Hill Adv. Agency, 200 E. 23d St., N. Y. City.
Murray, John F., Adv. Agency (Inc.), 17 Battery Place, N. Y. City.
Newell-Emmett Co. (Inc.), 120 W. 32d St., N. Y. City.
Nichols, Charles F. W., Co. (Inc.), 20 E. Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.
Norris-Patterson Ltd., 10 East Adelaide St., Toronto, Can.
Northwestern Adv. Agency, Essex Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.
O'Keefe, P. F., Adv. Agency, 45 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.
O'Malley Adv. & Selling Co., 262 Washington St., Boston, Mass.
Ostenrieder Adv. Corporation, 25 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.
Page, C. W., Co., Chamber of Commerce Bldg., Richmond, Va.
Patterson, W. A., Co. (Inc.), 1 Madison Ave., N. Y. City.
Payne, W. Hancock, Adv. Agency, Drexel Bldg., Phila., Pa.
Pearsall, C. Montague, 41 Park Row, N. Y. City.
Pelletier, E. Le Roy, Fine Arts Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
Philadelphia News Bureau, Independence Square, East, Philadelphia, Pa.
Picard & Co. (Inc.), 50 East 42nd St., N. Y. City.
Pierre, George H., Du Pont Bldg., Wilmington, Del.
Plattner, M., 95 Nassau St., N. Y. City.
Porter, Harry, Co. (Inc.), 18 East 41st St., N. Y. City.
Potts-Turnbull Adv. Co. (Inc.), Graphic Arts Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.
Power, Alexander & Jenkins Co. (Inc.), Madison Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
Power, Edward M., Co. (Inc.), Oliver Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa.
Powers, John O., Co. (Inc.), 461 Fourth Ave., N. Y. City.
Powers-House Co. (Inc.), Illuminating Bldg., Cleveland, O.
Powning, Geo. G. (Inc.), 600 State St., New Haven, Conn.
Presbrey, Frank, Co. (Inc.), 456 Fourth Ave., N. Y. City.
Procter & Collier Co. (Inc.), Commercial Tribune Bldg., Cincinnati, O.
Randall, Fred M., Co. (Inc.), Ford Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
Rankin, Wm. H., Co. (Inc.), 104 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.; 50 Madison Ave., N. Y. City.
Read-Miller Co. (Inc.), 120½ South Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal.
Reardon Adv. Co. (Inc.), Quincy Bldg., Denver, Colo.
Redfield Adv. Agency (Inc.), 34 West 33rd St., N. Y. City.
Remington, E. P., Agency, 1280 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.
Richards, Joseph, Co. (Inc.), 9 East 40th St., N. Y. City.
Ritter, Philip, Co. (Inc.), 63 Park Row, N. Y. City.
Roberts & MacAvinche, 30 No. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.
Rogers-Baker Co. (Inc.), Guardian Bldg., Cleveland, Ohio.
Rogers & Smith, Adv. Agents (Inc.), 64 East Van Buren St., Chicago, Ill.
Rose, Irwin Jordan, 116 W. 32d St., N. Y. City.
Rowland Adv. Agency (Inc.), 1790 Broadway, N. Y. City.
Rowlatt F., Albany; 26-28 Adelaide St., West, Toronto, Can.
Ruland, C. W., Co., 70 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.
Ruthrauff & Ryan (Inc.), 404 Fourth Ave., N. Y. City.
St. Clair, Wm. G., Co., Witherspoon Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.
Sandlass, A., 7 Clay St., Baltimore, Md.
Savage, Geo. M., Adv. Agency, 82 Griswold St., Detroit, Mich.
Scheck Adv. Agency, 9 Clinton St., Newark, N. J.
Schermerhorn Adv. Co., Gunter Bldg., San Antonio, Texas.
Scovil, Medley (Inc.), 25 Pine St., N. Y. City.
Schiele Adv. Co. (Inc.), Central National Bank Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Seaman, Frank (Inc.), 470 Fourth Ave., N. Y. City.
Seeds, Russel M., Co. (Inc.), 330 University Square, Indianapolis, Ind.
Seelye-Hoolser-Brown (Inc.), 110 West Fort St., Detroit, Mich.
Sehl Adv. Agency, 139 No. Clark St., Chicago, Ill.
Shaffer, J. Albert, Star Bldg., Washington, D. C.
Sharpe, W. W., & Co. (Inc.), 206 Broadway, N. Y. City.
Shaughnessy, Wm. A., & Co., 35 West 39th St., N. Y. City.
Sherman & Bryan (Inc.), 79 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.
Sherwood, B. R., 367 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
Shumway, Franklin P., Co. (Inc.), 453 Washington St., Boston, Mass.
Sidener-Van Riper Adv. Co. (Inc.), Merchants Bank Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Simpson Adv. Service Co. (Inc.), Syndicate Trust Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Singleton Adv. Co. (Inc.), Citizens Bldg., Cleveland, Ohio.
Smith, C. Brewer, Adv. Agency, 161 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.
Snitzler Adv. Co. (Inc.), Garland Bldg., Chicago Ill.
Sommer, Fred. N., 810 Broad St., Newark, N. J.
Southern Adv. Agency, Candler Annex, Atlanta, Ga.
Southwestern Adv. Co. (Inc.), Oklahoma Bldg., Oklahoma City, Okla.
Spafford Co. (Inc.), 10 Post Office Square, Boston, Mass.
Sparrow Adv. Agency (Inc.), American Trust Bldg., Birmingham, Ala.
Stack Adv. Agency (Inc.), Heyworth Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
Standish, G. S., Adv. Agency, Union Trust Bldg., Providence, R. I.
Stevens, Hermon W., Agency, Globe Bldg., Boston, Mass.
Stewart-Davis Adv. Agency, Kesner Bldg., Chicago.

(Continued on Page 74.)

Digitized by Google

WHY PENNSYLVANIA DAILY NEWSPAPERS?

The accompanying list of Pennsylvania daily newspapers gets closer to the buying public than does any other media possible for advertisers to use.

Pennsylvania daily newspapers reach the buying public oftener than does any media possible to use.

Pennsylvania daily newspapers permit daily change of copy and the localization of every advertisement—something tremendously important and impossible to procure in any other way.

Pennsylvania daily newspapers permit co-operation with local dealers—a vitally important adjunct to any selling campaign and something unobtainable through other media.

Pennsylvania daily newspaper advertising does not need any supplementary medium to make it go—it is self starting—and goes all the way on its own momentum—something which cannot be said of other kinds of advertising.

The managers of any of these newspapers on request will be glad to give facts and figures about the trading areas covered by their circulations.

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Allentown Call (M)	22,175	.04	.04
*Altoona Mirror (E)	23,676	.04	.04
Altoona Times (M)	14,940	.025	.025
Bethlehem Globe (E)	6,766	.025	.025
*Chester Times & Republican (M & E)	14,177	.04	.03
Connellsville Courier (E)	6,888	.015	.025
*Easton Express (E)	11,096	.02	.02
Easton Free Press (E)	15,455	.0285	.0285
Erie Herald (E)	8,632	.02	.02
Erie Herald (S)	8,491	.02	.02
Harrisburg Telegraph (E)	28,910	.045	.045
Johnstown Democrat (M)	9,841	.03	.025
Johnstown Leader (E)	8,039	.015	.015
Lancaster Intelligencer & News-Journal (M & E)	22,018	.05	.05
Lebanon Daily News	8,349	.0179	.0179
New Castle News (E)	13,411	.025	.025
Oil City Derrick (M)	6,135	.023	.018
Philadelphia Record (M)	123,277	.25	.25
Philadelphia Record (S)	133,680	.25	.25
Pittsburgh Dispatch (M)	54,810	.12	.08
Pittsburgh Dispatch (S)		.19	.14
Pottsville Republican (E)	10,797	.04	.03
Scranton Republican (M)	27,130	.08	.07
Scranton Times (E)	36,861	.08	.07
West Chester Local News (E)	11,926	.03	.03
Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader (E)	19,376	.05	.035
*Williamsport Sun (E)	16,110	.05	.035
York Gazette (M)	15,026	.03	.03
Total	678,802	1.6323	1.4418

Government statement April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. statement April 1st, 1919.

Digitized by Google

PRINGLE TO PROTECT THE PUBLISHERS

At Resumption of Canadian Government News Print Inquiry He Demands Records of Mills—Next Session Set for October

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 17.—When the government newsprint investigation was resumed today, it was announced that some Canadian papers are having difficulty in obtaining necessary supplies of newsprint. In making this statement Commissioner R. A. Pringle said: "So long as I am Paper Controller, I am going to see the Canadian press supplied with paper. There is a lot of it in this country and if Canadian mills have been making contracts outside the country, I can't hold that it is a secondary question."

Mr. Pringle said he was going to ask each manufacturer to furnish him with a statement of the amount of oewsprint being exported and the amount being supplied to Canadian buyers. He remarked that it was hardly fair that some companies should be called on to supply a large quantity to Canadian papers in excess of their percentage, while others supply very little. He said the Eddy Company, working at capacity and selling its entire product to Canada, could not supply its own customers.

George H. Montgomery, mill counsel, explained that most U. S. customers had chosen to make long term contracts and that Canadian mills were thus tied up to contracts for their whole capacity.

Mr. Pringle said he was aware that the Abitibi Mill had even bought paper in the open market at a loss in order to fill contracts. He stated that some smaller papers, which use sheet news, were badly off for it.

The inquiry was postponed until the second week in October, when it will consider the effect of the paper control tribunal's reduction of the price of newsprint by $3 per ton for the five months, beginning July 1, 1919.

Dishonest Reporters Gone Now, Says Mayor Hylan

Declares Those He Referred to As in Pay of Vice Leaders Are Not of Today

Whatever concern there may have been caused by Mayor Hylan's tirades against New York "newsgatherers" was somewhat dispelled by the Mayor's qualification of his previous statements that police reporters had been found on the payrolls of gamblers and vice leaders.

In answer to a demand by the reporters for the names of the men referred to the Mayor now states that there are no reporters at Police Headquarters at the present time who are open to suspicion.

"In past administrations," said Mayor Hylan at the Police Campfire last night, "the Commissioner of the Department was very close to the newsgatherers. It was a common thing to see newsgatherers in close touch with affairs of the Police Department. Because of this the police officers felt that they, too, had to be friendly to the newsgatherers, and also, in return, the newsgatherers would seek favors for their police friends and get them easy details.

"Newspapermen, as a class, are honest, but there are some who were on the payroll."

SEES BOLSHEVISM IN STRIKES

Editor of Louisville Times Points to Dream of "Labor Utopia"

[BY TELEGRAPH]

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 15.—The editor of the Times today appended the following editorial note to the Associated Press dispatch, detailing the news of newswriters strike at New Haven:

"The dispatches do not specify but the only newswriters union formed hitherto has been at Boston and like its police union is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. It is part of the same system of a labor utopia, in which the newspapers, police, firemen, soldiers and government officials are all enlisted in the ranks of organized labor—the Russian Bolshevik theory.—Editor."

The story was printed on page one.

Alaskan Quits as a Daily

SKAGWAY, Sept. 14.—The Alaskan, the oldest daily in the Northland, was recently converted into a tri-weekly, leaving this town without a daily for the first time since the stirring days of 1898 and 1899. In those days, when the gold seekers left the Seattle steamers here and climbed the Chilcoot pass Skagway had a population of about 20,000. Now there are only a few hundred left.

New Feature for N. Y. Commercial

The New York Commercial is running a new feature three times a week entitled "The Man at the Desk," written by Paull Hayden, who is connected with the publicity department of the Columbia Graphophone Company. This is Mr. Hayden's first venture in newspaper writing and his work is receiving a lot of favorable comment.

Ask I. T. U. Charter in Bay Cities

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11.—The San Francisco Newswriters' Association has applied for a charter from the International Typographical Union. The entire editorial staff of the Daily News Letter as charter members of the union. The union includes a majority of the newspapermen of San Francisco and the bay cities.

Lovejoy Retires from Y. M. C. A.

On his return from Y. M. C. A war work overseas, Frederic H. Lovejoy has been appointed to the production staff of the Hanz-Metzger Advertising Agency, New York. Before going to France, Mr. Lovejoy worked for N. W. Ayer & Son and the Tracy-Perry Company in Philadelphia.

Issues Real Estate Booklet

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—The Chicago Herald and Examiner has distributed free 25,000 copies of a large booklet entitled "Our Home," about half of which is taken up with advertising of building materials and house furnishing and the rest, with photographs and designs of residences.

Clark to Direct Eiseman Ads

The Eiseman Magneto Corporation announces the promotion of E. Stanley Clark to be manager of advertising. Mr. Clark has been connected with the Eiseman organization for the past two years, in connection with its printing and publicity work.

Strike Hits Tokyo, Too

Virtually all the newspapers of Tokyo have suspended publication, owing to the demands of the printers for higher wages, which the owners refuse to grant.

DAILY PAPERS RANKED FIRST BY CLOTHIERS

Their Advertising Space Is "Most Vital Sales Stimulant," Agrees National Retailers Convention—Permanent Bureau of Records Formed

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Herman Black, publisher of the Chicago Evening American, delivered an address tonight on "The Newspaper in Retail Merchandising" before 1,500 clothiers at the sixth annual convention of the National Retail Clothiers' Association.

A feature of the convention exhibits was a special room set aside for displays of creditable retail newspaper ads. Many of these were reproduced on slides for lecture purposes on certain days during the sessions, it being formally agreed that daily newspaper space is the merchant's "most vital sales stimulant."

The ads of this exhibit, it was announced, will mark the first step toward the establishment of a permanent bureau of records to be known as the American Institute of Retail Clothing Advertising.

Relying on Newspaper Ads to Start New Markets

Community Plan Being Established in Cleveland by Pool of All Interested in Advertising

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 17.—Cleveland newspapers are obtaining quite a bit of display advertising from the promoters of a "Community Market." The backers of this experimental form of private market hope to induce to erect 40 of them in this city and suburbs.

Instead of permitting competition among retailers in these market houses, one firm, whether a chain of stores or market house stalls, has the exclusive sale of special lines of foods. The backers of the movement assert the stall owners buy in car lots and sell direct to consumers and reason that first class sales people are in charge of these booths. The first of these market houses opened August 30 is a success.

Community advertising is adopted, all the firms operating in the market house, pooling their business in big display ads in the daily papers.

Appeals $1,000 Verdict

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 6.—As an outcome of a $1,000 verdict returned in favor of the plaintiff by a Herkimer County jury in the suit brought by Daniel F. Strobel, Herkimer County politician, against the Press Company, publishers of the Knickerbocker Press in Albany, for alleged libel, the defendants have filed an appeal with Newell C. Fulton, clerk of the Appellate Division, fourth department. In March, 1915, Strobel brought suit for $50,000.

R. D. Richmond Made Manager

INDEPENDENCE, Kan., Sept. 16.—Mrs. H. J. Richmond, widow of the founder of the Free Press, has made R. D. Richmond manager of the paper.

Daily Buys Out Weekly

BAXTER SPRINGS, Kan., Sept. 16.—The News weekly, has suspended publication, its assets being taken over by the Citizen, a daily.

Frank Synakowski of Utica, N. Y., has been appointed editor of the Polish Leader, Hartford, Conn.

WILL STUDY OUR SCHOOLS

Japanese Newspaper Editor Coming Here for Tokio Women's University

TOKIO, Sept. 12.—Miss Miyorke Kobashi, proprietor and editor of the Fujin Shuho, the woman's weekly, is on her way to the United States for a three-year stay for the purpose of investigating the courses in journalism in the leading American universities, representing the founders of the new Tokio Women's University. Upon her return she will be in charge of the course of journalism in that school.

Miss Kobashi is quoted as saying that Japanese women should awaken to their opportuities in vocations which are adaptable to them, especially journalism. She expects to be present at the International Labor Conference in Washington next October, and the International Women's Council which will be held in Berne, Switzerland, next spring.

COURT REVERSES ELMER VERDICT

Editor, Convicted of Espionage Act Violation, Wins Appeal

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 16.—The United States Court of Appeals, sitting here, has reversed the conviction of William F. Elmer, publisher of a Salem (Mo.) newspaper who was found guilty by a jury in the United States District Court in St. Louis November 20 last and fined $1,000 by Judge Munger on a charge of violating the Espionage Act by permitting articles against the selective draft law to appear in a newspaper at Salem which he owned.

The court bases its action on the ground that improper remarks were made by Federal counsel at the trial of the case.

Memorial to H. W. Scott

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 16.—Harvey W. Scott, noted editor of the Portland Oregonian, who died in 1910, is to be the subject of a memorial tablet that will be placed in the new women's building of the University of Oregon at Eugene. Mr. Scott's family are among the large donors to the building fund.

Goes to Milwaukee Agency

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 17.—The Klau-Van Pieterson-Dunlap Agency announces the addition of O. C. Grigg, formerly advertising manager of the Harley-Davidson Motor Company, to the position of manager of the production department.

Robinson Joins General Motors

PONTIAC, Mich., Sept. 8.—L. T. Robinson, formerly connected with the copy staff of Ruthrauff & Ryan Company, and later department of the Green, Fulton, Cunningham Company, Detroit, is now assistant advertising manager of the General Motors.

Fawcett Elected Vice-President

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 16.—W. J. Fawcett has been elected vice-president of the Staples & Staples Advertising Agency, Mutual Building. He was formerly with the Cecil, Barretto & Cecil Agency, Richmond, and N. W. Ayer & Son, Philadelphia.

Now With Fairbanks & Co.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—J. A. Robertson is now with the advertising department of N. K. Fairbank & Co., transferring from Wilder & Co., where he was in charge of advertising since the death of Robert W. Sullivan.

Digitized by Google

MISSOURIANS EXPECT LARGE ATTENDANCE

Practical Discussions on Practical Newspaper Problems Compose Program for Annual Convention in Springfield, September 25-27

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 13.—The complete program for the fifty-third annual meeting of the Missouri Press Association, which will be held here September 25-27, calls for some very practical discussions of practical newspaper problems that every Missouri newspaper publisher and owner is interested in.

The Springfield Chamber of Commerce will assist in the entertainment of the guests. The largest attendance in the history of the association is predicted.

On Thursday afternoon an informal reception to the visiting newspaper men will be held at the Colonial Hotel, following which they will be taken on a sightseeing tour of the city.

An "All-Star" Session

At 7 o'clock that night the Chamber of Commerce will give a "Victory Dinner" to the guests. Dean Walter Williams of the University of Missouri School of Journalism will preside as toastmaster. The speakers will be W. Y. Morgan, editor of the Hutchinson (Kan.) News, just returned from Y. M. C. A. service overseas, who will speak on "The Newspaper After the War." Other speakers will be Lee Shippey, Kansas City Star; E. Lansing Ray, president St. Louis Globe-Democrat; George S. Johns, editor St. Louis Post Dispatch; E. G. Lewis, St. Louis Star, and Paul W. Brown, editor of "America at Work."

The opening session will be held Friday morning at 9:30. After the invocation by Rev. E. F. Leake, Hon. Perry T. Allen of Springfield will welcome the editors. Charles D. Morris, St. Joseph Gazette, will respond. President Stonebreaker will deliver his annual address and the committees will be appointed.

Work and Play for Editors

At 10:30 a round table discussion of "The Circulation of a Newspaper," led by C. M. Harrison, editor Sedalia Capital, will be held.

E. E. McJimsey, editor Springfield Republican, will be toastmaster at the noonday luncheon, and a five minute talk on "Recreation for the Editor" will be given by F. S. E. Amos, representing the Oklahoma Press Association, as a prelude to a discussion of experiences.

At 2:30 J. F. Hull, Maryland Tribune editor, will lead a round table discussion on "The Advertising of a Newspaper."

At 2:30 George W. Eads, D'Arcy Advertising Agency, will talk on "The Opportunity with the National Advertiser." This will be followed by a general discussion.

The Friday night session will be an open one, with Governor Frederick D. Gardner as the speaker.

Contents of Newspapers

Saturday morning William Sothern, Jr., editor Independence Examiner, will speak on "The Contents of a Newspaper," following which there will be a general discussion of the contents of newspapers.

At the noonday luncheon, at which H. S. Jewell, editor Springfield Leader, will preside; W. A. Black, Ozark Press Association; Mrs. S. E. Lew, Northeast Press Association, and O. W. Chilton, Southwest Press Association, will talk on "Our District Associations."

At 2:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon "The Business Methods of a Newspaper" will be discussed by E. S. Bronson, president Oklahoma Press Association. Followed by an informal discussion.

The closing session, reports of treasurer, business bureau, unfinished business and election of officers will be held.

More News Print Produced During August

Service Bureau Statistics Show Slight Increase in Mill Stocks at Western Canadian Points

The 39 manufacturing companies reporting to the News Print Service Bureau produced 158,534 tons and shipped 155,708 tons during August. Production exceeded shipments by 2,826 tons. Production figures include 1,298 tons of hanging, of which 129 tons were made in Canada.) The average daily production of news print paper by the mills reporting for August amounted to 100.5 per cent of the average daily output during the three months of greatest production in 1919. The comparisons for 1919 with 1918 are based upon the same identical mills.

Production by the United States mills during the first eight months of 1919 was 39.546 tons or 6 per cent greater than during the same months in 1918.

Canadian production during this period exceeded that of the same eight months in 1918 by 25,582 tons, or more than 5 per cent making combined production of the 39 reporting companies 65,128 tons, or nearly 6 per cent greater than in the first eight months of 1918.

Stocks during August decreased 966 tons at United States mill points and increased 4,212 tons at Canadian mills, making total stocks 3,246 tons more on August 31, 1919 than on July 31. The increase in Canadian stocks was at British Columbia mills which do not have facilities for rail shipments.

The total of 37,737 tons on hand at all m lls August 31 amounted to slightly more than 6 days production.

Maine Farmers to Have a Paper

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 16.—Articles of incorporation of the Organized Farmer of Maine, a corporation formed to publish an agricultural journal which will establish headquarters here, have been filed at the Registry of Deeds. The new magazine will be published from the plant of the Loring Print here. A. W. Hall of that concern will be editor and publisher. The first edition will appear in about six weeks.

Recalls First "Death Chair" Story

AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Charles F. Rattigan, state superintendent of prisons, recalled recently that it was just 29 years ago this month that as a reporter on Auburn newspapers he wrote the story of the first electric chair execution ever carried out.

Peguillan Goes Abroad

The Collin Armstrong Company of New York has sent Ralph Peguillan of its foreign department to Paris to spend an entire year in the study of new French advertising and business conditions. He will work with the Paris office of the agency.

$10,000 to Advertise Oklahoma

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 16.—Plans made at a special meeting of secretaries of Oklahoma Chambers of Commerce, held in Oklahoma City, call for the expenditure of approximately $10,000 to advertise Oklahoma resources. Most of it will be spent in newspapers.

Think of the many things in which this territory ranks one, two, three or better!

Take pottery for instance as an illustration of the growing achievements of West Virginia:

"All West Virginia potteries are well filled with business both for immediate and future shipment."

Within the year West Virginia expects to establish itself in the second place in the production of pottery wares.

As an advertiser you must be alive to the advantage of getting a foothold in a growing territory and developing good will for your goods. A little money spent with these newspapers will make you a big advertiser in West Virginia, where factories are coming in all the while to be convenient to fuel and power and basic material.

	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 lines.
Bluefield
*Telegraph ....(M)	5,463	.02142
Charleston
‡Gazette .....(M)	14,300	.03
‡Gazette .....(S)	14,500	.03
‡Mail .....(E)	9,336	.025
Clarksburg
†Telegram ....(E)	7,864	.02
†Telegram ....(S)	8,351	.02
After Feb. 1st, 1920..... .025 line flat.
Fairmont
*W. Virginian.(E)	5,192	.02
Grafton
*Sentinel .....(E)	2,275	.014
Huntington
†Advertiser ....(E)	8,524	.02
†Herald-Dispatch ....(M)	11,165	.02
†Herald-Dispatch ....(S)	11,599	.02
Martinsburg
†Journal .....(E)	3,240	.0129
Moundsville
*Echo	1,730	.0115
Parkersburg
*News .....(M)	6,239	.02
*News .....(S)	6,239	.02
†Sentinel .....(E)	6,695	.017
Wheeling
†Intelligencer .(M)	10,139	.0325
†News .....(E)	14,749	.04
†News .....(S)	17,800	.05

*Government statement, April 1, 1919.

†A. B. C. statement, April 1, 1919.

‡Publishers' statement, April 1, 1919.

File the Facts for reference.

EDITORIAL

INFORMATION FOR SPACE BUYERS

WITH this issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER there is included an exhaustive space-buyers' survey of the state of Connecticut and of its principal cities.

This survey affords to advertising agencies, national advertisers and space-buyers generally detailed information as to Connecticut as a market for nationally advertised products. It answers the questions manufacturers ask concerning market possibilities and opportunities in a state which has come to rank high among the industrial commonwealths of the union.

Nowadays national advertisers find it increasingly necessary to study market units, to analyze prevailing industrial and business conditions and to form accurate estimates of the earning and buying power of the people. This Connecticut survey represents the most painstaking effort yet made by anybody to furnish data of this character to space buyers.

An impressive feature of Connecticut industrial life is the steady and systematic creation of new wealth through the processes of turning raw materials into finished products. In fact the chief sources of this state's wealth are in these creative processes. They overshadow her agricultural interests, her supremacy in the insurance field and all other trade activities. Connecticut is essentially a manufacturing state. The bulk of her invested capital is placed in her industries. The earnings of her people come from the same sources. It is a state of thrift, good living, Americanism, home life, a high degree of general culture and evenly divided prosperity.

In area so small that it may claim precedence over but two other states of the union, Connecticut leads all other states in many important lines of industry. With what is essentially an urban population, largely composed of native born Americans, the energy and genius of her people find an outlet in the task of manufacturing products which are used in every quarter of the world.

Yet, in spite of Connecticut's widely diversified manufactures her people are ready buyers of all worth while products offered to them by nationwide sources. They are critical buyers, being themselves expert judges of good workmanship and the quality of materials employed. But they are appreciative customers for merchandise that is standard.

This space-buyers' survey of Connecticut, and of her chief cities, will serve as a guide to all advertisers contemplating ventures in that field, as well as for those who desire to expand their present volume of distribution there.

THE organization of news writers, reported from many cities, is an inevitable incident of the economic stress under which the world is struggling. In a period when wage earners generally have won increased pay more or less commensurate with increased living costs, the news writers in many instances have lagged behind. Publishers grant the contention that these men should receive at least, as high pay as printers, and it must be admitted that as a class, under present conditions, they do not. The remedy for the whole matter must be found in a policy of charging for the newspaper product a price which will meet manufacturing costs. Business men in all other lines find this policy fundamental.

GENERAL PERSHING is often referred to as "a man's man." It may be proper to add that he is, too, "a newspaperman's man." For, under the greatest stress to which an American soldier of our time has been placed, he never lost his poise, never ceased to be simple and human, never underestimated the functions of the press.

THE Des Moines Capital has recently printed four pages of ads by coal dealers. Is this a presage of the time when manufacturers of news print shall once more resort to advertising? EDITOR & PUBLISHER can guarantee a maximum of reader-interest in such advertising.

SIGNS AND PORTENTS

FRIENDS of organized labor have natural misgivings when they consider such a situation as that which developed a few days ago in Tacoma. Here the union printers employed by the newspapers demanded a wage higher than any existing scale and, without the authority of the I. T. U., called a strike, tying up the publication of the newspapers.

Ordered to return to work, on penalty of expulsion from the union, the Tacoma printers refused to respond. This action is, from the standpoint of unionism, a form of mutiny. It strikes at the vitals of the organized labor movement.

It has not often happened in the printing industry that local chapters of the I. T. U. have elected to defy the central authority. When such instances have occured it has usually happened that a sharp order from headquarters served to bring the insurrectionists to their senses quickly.

Publishers of the country have reason to feel great confidence in the integrity and intelligent leadership of the I. T. U. officials. They have found it possible to deal with them frankly and in good faith, assured that contracts would always be respected and that their authority over the radical elements among the unionists would be salutary. When it comes to pass that local chapters openly defy their leaders and their governing organization, and no effectual remedy is found, the confidence of employers in the integrity of collective bargaining is naturally shaken.

The disposition to flout the orders and policies of their leaders is not, of course, widespread among printers. It may be assumed that the Tacoma instance is a sporadic outburst of radicalism, sometimes called Bolshevism, and that the sober common sense of union printers generally will be found to be proof against a spread of this menace.

Is it not reasonable to expect that publishers who deal in good faith with the unions should be able to rely upon the officials of such unions to prevent arbitrary "direct action" by the men when new wage demands are in question? Men who are anxious to earn more should understand that the poorest possible method by which to win is that involving the injury or destruction of the business in which they are employees.

"THE weekly and the daily minister to different needs of the reading public and in no sense are competitors," says John Z. Demarest, editor of the Tenafly (N. J.) Record. This is equally true as to the small-city daily, covering its local field, and the big-city daily which reaches that field. They are not competitors.

THE New York State Press Association favors charging advertising rates for all political matter. As a good deal of such matter is, in reality, advertising this action of the New York newspaper makers seems merely consistent.

September 18, 1919. Volume 52, No. 16.
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
Published weekly by
THE EDITOR & PUBLISHER Co.
1117 World Building, 63 Park Row, New York.
H. D. Shoemaker, editor; John F. Redmond, managing editor; Don E. Mellett, News; Ben Mellett, Features.
James Wright Brown, publisher.
J. W. Ferguson, advertising; Fenton Dowling, circulation.
London, Herbert C. Ridout, 42 Kimberly Gardens, N. 4.
Paris: F. B. Grundy.
Toronto: W. A. Critch.
Chicago: D. F. Cass.
San Francisco: H. C. Bernstein.
Boston: M. J. Staples.
Washington: Robert T. Barry.
10 cents a copy; $3 a year; foreign postage, $1.00; Canadian, 50c.

AGAIN THE CIRCULATORS MAY HELP

IN putting into effect the notable war-time paper economies the circulation managers of our newspapers rendered unforgettable services to their employers and to the public. They stopped waste at every point. They merchandised the press run, day by day, with energy and watchfulness. They cut off returns, free copies; they utilized press waste, after reducing it to a minimum. They helped greatly in "saving the situation" for their papers in a great crisis.

Since the signing of the armistice the disposition has been in evidence in some quarters to revive the old circulation fights, to wink at returns and to stimulate by every possible method the volume of distribution. No great harm could result from these practices, perhaps, if newsprint were both cheap and plentiful. But that is not the case.

If the fall advertising is to be cared for it is necessary that war-time measures for the saving of paper should be followed again. The paper of the country are in a prosperous condition. Advertising is developing in unprecedented volume. True, advertising rates have not advanced in proportion to publishing costs—for a new advertising rate card cannot be put in force overnight. The process of establishing new rates often requires months of time. So that, even with a great volume of advertising offered them, the newspapers cannot afford to buy excess newsprint tonnage at fancy prices. The problem must be solved mainly through conservation.

This conservation cannot be made wholly at the expense of the news and feature matter of a newspaper. There is a line of danger plainly marked, beyond which the curtailment of reading matter becomes suicidal. The newspapers must retain their vitality, their broad appeal, their service features—or they will lose their prestige and their value as advertising mediums.

The circulators must again come to the rescue, as in the past. Happily, if we rightly interpret the spirit shown at the Scranton convention of last week, they realize this and mean to hew to the line. More power to them!

OUR friends of the British press are showing admirable initiative in the matter of carrying out the suggestion for an interchange of staff men between English and American newspapers. According to a cable dispatch to EDITOR & PUBLISHER individual publishers of London are proceeding to negotiate exchange arrangements with American publishers. Thus the broad-visioned plan of Ralph D. Blumenfeld, first outlined in EDITOR & PUBLISHER, has passed the stage of debate. All friends of Anglo-American unity will be glad.

THE editor of a small-city daily, the Hollister (Cal.) Free Lance, found twenty-one columns of press agent copy in one mail. He says this is a fair average, and that most of this stuff is camouflaged advertising or propaganda." He finds an occasional legitimate item of news or information in the mass of matter proffered and urged for publication, but argues that the cost of a major part of it would soon lead to bankruptcy.

PUBLISHERS who are inclined to pessimism foresee in the trend toward organization among news writers the gradual passing of control of newspapers—so far as the presentation of news is concerned—from the owners to men who, as they visualize it, will always be spokesmen for labor unionism. Class control of our newspapers, even in this manner, would of course be disastrous. It will not come to pass.

LOTS of talk about profiteering nowadays and rather a good thing is presented in humorous style in a recent Mutt and Jeff cartoon. Because the price of salt goes up 15 cents a barrel, the little fellow declares he must get 10 cents instead of 5 cents for a tiny package of salted buttered-popcorn.

Digitized by Google

PERSONALS

DAVID R. FRANCIS, owner of the Republic, when he returns to St. Louis for the first time since he went to Russia as American Ambassador, will be the guest of honor at a dinner to be given September 26 at the Missouri Athletic Association. He is now in his country on a leave of absence.

M. E. Foster, president of the Houston Chronicle, was honored September 5, by the Mitchell Transportation Company, which christened a new 2,000-ton barge the M. E. Foster of Houston.

V. S. McClatchy, publisher of The Sacramento Bee, after spending several months at his summer home overlooking Lake Tahoe, is back at his desk.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOM

Alfred O. Elden, associate editor of the Portland (Me.) Express-Adviser, and writer of magazine articles, especially on marine subjects, is passing his vacation in automobile trips about the state.

John Thompson, late of the Sioux City (Iowa) Journal, and Gleu Townsend from North Dakota are doing general assignments for the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Miss Katherine Ann Porter, who got her start on the Houston Chronicle, is back in Houston on a visit before leaving for New York, where she will take up magazine writing. She has resigned as dramatic critic on the Denver Rocky Mountain News.

Edgar Thomas, for several years reporter on the Seattle Times, has become publicity director for a big mining firm with headquarters in New York City.

E. J. Dies, formerly chief of the Twin City Legislative bureau and connected with Des Moines papers, has left the central division mail department of the Associated Press in Chicago to take up advertising work.

Woodruff F. Howe has completed his duties as assistant sporting editor of the Portland (Me.) Express-Adviser, and has taken up his new work as assistant athletic director at New Hampshire State College at Durham.

Henry A. Farnham of the New York Sun is visiting his old home at Bangor, Me., where he formerly was identified with the Commercial.

George C. Schnetzer, day telegraph editor of the Houston Post, is busy getting material for the annual trades edition of that publication. It will be known as the "Intercoastal Numier" and it is expected to be issued about September 24.

E. J. Walthall, night telegraph man on the Houston Post, has taken a position with the Austin Statesman.

Fred T. Harris, telegraph editor of the Rochester (N. Y.) Post-Express, has been granted a leave of absence to take up publicity work for the Rochester Patriotic and Community Fund, Inc., official organization of the Community Chest.

Luther W. Mendenhall of Pittsburgh, who edited the Daily Orange at Syracuse University two years ago, and Miss Edith F. Valley of Binghamton, N. Y., were married at Binghamton, September 8.

John Morgan of the Spokane Chronicle has been appointed head of the Washington State Health Department's new publicity department.

Alfred Prather, Seattle newspaper man, has been appointed associate editor of the Mississippi Valley Magazine, with offices at Chicago. Mr. Prather was formerly on the editorial staff of the Railway and Marine News.

Edgar Markham, former Kansas City Star reporter and now of the St. Paul Pioneer-Press, recently married Miss Frances Hart of Washington, D. C. Mr. Markham is Washington correspondent of his paper.

Harold Hutchison, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch editorial staff, was recently married to Miss Nora Billingsley of St. Joseph.

Frederick J. Nash, managing editor of the Charlottetown (P. E. I.) Patriot who was elected to the Legislature at the recent Prince Edward Island provincial elections, has joined the new liberal governmentas minister without portfolio.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

S. J. Russell of Chicago, recently a manufacturers' representative in Minneapolis, has been appointed manager of the St. Paul Daily News service department.

A. V. ("Verd") Napier, former publisher of the Blue Mound (Kan.) Sun, and later business manager of the Iowa Register, has been made business manager of the Santa Ana (Cal.) Register.

Charles H. Shannah has been appointed western manager of the Illustrated Review, with headquarters in Chicago, to succeed James A. Young, resigned.

M. J. Hutchinson, business manager of the Edmonton (Alta.) Bulletin, has been attending organization meetings in Toronto in connection with the approaching victory loan campaign.

J. F. MacNamara has been appointed classified advertising manager of La Prensa, New York, succeeding M. J. Klein, who will enter the export advertising business for himself.

Charles H. Rogers has left the Grand Rapids News to succeed P. S. Johnson as advertising manager of the Periodical Publishing Company, that city. The latter takes charge of advertising for the Concrete Publishing Company, Detroit.

John D. Dewild has resigned as assistant advertising manager of the Minneapolis Tribune to take charge of service bureau for the Northwest Commercial Bulletin of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

John H. Treuper, formerly in charge of the advertising contract department, has been made assistant advertising manager of the New York Times to succeed the late Ezra M. Wilkins.

WITH THE AD FOLKS

H. W. Thomas has left the Hamman Advertising Agency, Oakland, to become connected with the San Francisco office of the H. K. McCann Company.

Sergt. J. E. Hasty of the Marine Corps has been appointed to the advertising staff of the B. F. Goodrich Company in San Francisco.

A. Allen Walker of Los Angeles is now in charge of advertising for the Kahn Department Store, Oakland, Cal.

D. B. S. Stannard, formerly of the Los Angeles Express, is now with the Crank-Paris Advertising Company, Los Angeles.

Charles Proner, Robert L. Lloyd and Miss Delia Wells have returned to the Wales Advertising Company, New York, after war service.

O. C. Leiter, former Portland newspaper man, has become advertising manager of the Brownsville Woolen Mills, Portland.

Robert E. Coffee has opened an advertising service office in the Berry Building, Richmond, Cal.

Capt. Carroll J. Swan, of the famous Yankee Division, and one of the best known advertising men in New England, has returned to his home near Boston from an automobile trip to Bar Harbor, Me. He recently published a book dealing with the history of his regiment.

W. T. Thomsou, director of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, returned Monday from a two weeks' vacation spent in the Maine woods.

George H. Thornley, formerly of the sales force, has been promoted to have charge of sales in the N. W. Ayer & Son organizatiou, Philadelphia.

John E. Cosgriff, for the past five years art director of Hoyt's Service, Inc., and recently in charge of art production for Meyer-Both Company's New York office, has joined the Wildman Magazine & News Service, Inc., New York, as director of the advertising art department.

Alan R. Wile has returned to the Knill-Burke organization in New York, after two years' service with the 33d division overseas.

Frederick C. Gilbert has resigned as vice-president and director of sales and publicity of the Timken-Detroit Axle Company. He has not announced his future plans.

Karl Kilby, former head of the Kilby Advertising Agency, has returned to Wichita, Kan., after fifteen months' service overseas as a Y. M. C. A. secretary.

James W. Booth has resigned as a member of the advertising department of the Roberts, Johnson & Rand branch of the International Shoe Company, St. Louis, to devote his time to the candy and confectionery business which he and his associates opened in April. Before the war he was advertising manager of the Missouri Pacific Railroad and is a former president of the Advertising Club of St. Louis.

David M. Botsford, vice-president of Botsford, Constantine & Tyler, of Portland and Seattle, has been visiting New York and other Eastern cities to complete arrangements with several new men to become associated with his advertising agency.

M. D. Salisbury has succeeded R. C. Coffin as advertising manager of the Edison Storage Battery Company, Orange, N. J.

Miss Sophie Alexander has succeeded Mrs. Bertha L. Darling as advertising manager of Flint & Kent, Buffalo, N. Y.

L. D. Gibbs, superintendent of the advertising department of the Edison Electric & Illuminating Company, at Boston, and chairman of the advertising and publicity service bureau of the commercial section of the National Electric Light Association, will be in charge of the evening classes in advertising at the Boston Young Men's Christian Association, announced to begin on November 7.

WAR PAPER CHIEF GETS HIS $1 CHECK

G. J. PALMER, vice-president of the Houston Printing Company and formerly with the Houston Post, received his pay check for war services from the Government September 9, and is believed to be the first of the $1 per year men in Houston to have his service settled.

G. J. PALMER.

Mr. Palmer served the government as chief of the newspaper section of the pulp and paper division of the industries board. His division was also authorized to oversee the distribution of print paper to all the daily and weekly newspapers in the United States. Mr. Palmer spent three months in Washington on this war work.

The Flint Daily Journal, The Cedar Rapids Gazette, and The Janesville Daily Gazette have each signed a contract for the Haskin Service for one year.

Digitized by Google

"ST. LOUIS PLAN" MAY BE SOLUTION OF WRITERS' DISCONTENT

Association of Journalists, Unaffiliated, Attains Objects and Is Approved of by Publishers — Scranton Plan Also Satisfactory — Their Organizations

IN the organization idea adopted by news writers of St. Louis, termed "The St. Louis Plan," both newspaper executives and the workers of that city see the possible solution of the unrest problem now prevailing throughout the country in relations between these classes of capital and labor.

As represented to EDITOR & PUBLISHER, it is especially significant to note that with perhaps one exception, every newspaper publisher in St. Louis has given the plan his whole-hearted endorsement, albeit he realizes that the plan means higher wages for his editorial staff.

Not Affiliated with the A. F. of L.

Instead of forming a union and affiliating with the American Federation of Labor, the news writers of St. Louis, to the number of nearly 150, formed "The Association of Journalists." It is the plan of this organization to operate under a dignified manner and to, in time, achieve the same distinction which is accorded the associations of physicians, lawyers or other professional clienteles.

RICHARD STOKES, President of St. Louis Association of Journalists.

The association has by no means overlooked the economic problems. As one of the first results, "memorials" were presented by the members of the Post-Dispatch "chapter" and those of the St. Louis Times "chapter," asking that the publishers note the discrepancy in the advance of prices for living and the advance in salaries.

As a direct result of that came a 20 per cent bonus, retroactive in its effects for the Post-Dispatch with an average raise in addition of ten per cent for each man and a substantial raise for the Times men.

The Star and Republic are to follow suit while the Globe-Democrat men, although they have a chapter, are as yet a bit wary lest they spring their bolt before the individual chapter is strong enough to have weight. The Globe-Democrat is the only English-speaking daily which has more or less officially recognized the association.

The city of St. Louis is apparently in sympathy with the plan since Mayor Kiel and other officials generously donated the use of a room in the city hall for the meetings of the association, some of which have also been held in one of the assembly rooms of the Public Library.

The avowed purpose of the "association" is to "better the condition of newspaper writers and to raise the standard of all men employed in the editorial offices or on the street."

Method of Procedure

There was nothing secret about its organization, nothing that could be construed as a threat and yet the publishers were diplomatically and courteously made to understand that hereafter the news writers of St. Louis would deal as a body not as individuals, although it is expressly stated in the by-laws of the new association that there shall be no restriction placed upon the dealing of an individual with his employers provided he wishes to deal in that way.

Richard Stokes, dramatic critic of the Post-Dispatch, is president and William R. Hutchins of the Star is secretary.

Women as well as men are admitted to membership in the association. Copies of "The St. Louis Plan" have been printed for the men to be sent to every metropolitan city in the way.

Contemplate Convention in 1920

Already the organizers are contemplating calling a National Convention of the National Association of Journalists in 1920.

Sam Heilman, managing editor of the St. Louis Republic, gave EDITOR & PUBLISHER his opinion of the "St. Louis Plan" as follows:

"The association of journalists here is an excellent organization of a vast majority of working newspaper men. It has cordial support of the publishers and is not affiliated with the A. F. of L."

The association is divided into chapels, each chapel dealing independently with affairs in its newspaper office—except in matters affecting general welfare of all newspaper men.

"The object of the association is the betterment of journalism and improved conditions for newspaper workers. St. Louis newspapers invited the writers of the men to organize and bargain collectively. The organization here is well handled, sane, fair and conservative."

Scranton Plan Also Succeeds

Scranton, Pa., is another city where the newspaper writers have been unionized for years and yet have no trouble with their employers. A description of conditions there, too, may be of interest to other cities faced by organization."

While Newswriters Union No. 3 of Scranton is not the oldest one in the country in point of age, it has enjoyed fourteen years' existence.

In 1905 it became a branch of the International Typographical Union, and embraced every active newswriter employed on the four daily and one Sunday newspaper in existence in the city at that time. Within a week after organization a scale had been adopted and shortly afterwards negotiations were opened with the publishers.

As a result agreements were signed with all offices, in which the men benefitted to a considerable extent. The first agreement covered a three-year period and at its expiration another was negotiated. This has been the history of the intervening years, the publishers and the scale committee of the union meeting in amicable conference and agreeing on the expiration of each agreement.

Raised Quality of Work

During all the time the union has been in existence there has not been the least trouble and publishers are authority for the statement that the organization has been responsible for bringing newspaper work in Scranton to a higher level than it was formerly.

At the present time the scale of wages paid in Scranton is identically the same as the one recently granted the newly organized union in Boston, reporters receiving $36 per week for day work and $38 per week for night work. with copy readers receiving $38 and $40 respectively and city editors $43 and $45 respectively.

None but men in the news departments are members of the union, editorial writers and advertising men not being included.

Under the organization plan of the Scranton union, a man entering the newspaper business is regarded as a apprentice the first two years he works as a reporter the next two years, being ranked as a journeyman reporter at the completion of four years' servtee. His pay meanwhile is based accordingly.

For the first year an apprentice on a Scranton paper is paid $31, on a morning paper $12. The second year he is paid $16 afternoons and $17 mornings, the third year $22 afternoons and $23 mornings, the fourth year $27 afternoons, $29 mornings; thereafter $35 afternoons and $38 mornings.

Some Paid Over Scale

There is nothing in the agreement to prevent a publisher paying more than the scale if a man in any class shows ability enough to earn more, and quite a number of men in Scranton city are being so paid.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER is informed that newspapers in Baltimore, Md., and Waterbury, Conn., have recently written to Scranton for copies of the Scranton scale and probably other cities will be equally interested.

DEADLOCKED IN NEW HAVEN

Publishers and Striking Writers Say They Will Fight to Finish

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 17.—The strike of the New Haven reporters over their wage scale, which started Saturday, continued today. Their daily newspapers, however, appeared as usual, the three afternoon papers were also published.

No prospect of early reconciliation is in sight. Local labor organizations have issued an appeal for the striking reporters, who deny they are affiliated with any other organization.

The publishers say they will fight the strikers to a finish and denied emphatically to EDITOR & PUBLISHER a rumor that they had offered to arbitrate.

Little Progress by Chicago Union

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Comparatively small progress has been made with the organization of Chicago reporters and desk men in Local 5 of the International Typographical Union, which—as previously reported—was chartered with eight signers about a month ago. Organization meetings continue to be held at about fortnightly intervals and propaganda work, it is said, is being actively carried on among the newsmen.

LIST OF ADVERTISING AGENCIES RECOGNIZED BY THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION

(Continued from Page 68.)

Stockman, A. M., Adv. Agency, 271 Broadway, N. Y. City.

Storm, J. P., 35 W. 39th St., N. Y. City.

Strang & Prosser Adv. Agency, Empire Bldg., Seattle, Wash.

Street & Finney (Inc.), 171 Madison Ave., N. Y. City.

Sweyd, A. M., Co. (Inc.), 347 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

Swisher Adv. Service, Mears Bldg., Scranton, Pa.

Thielecke Adv. Co. (Inc.), 327 S. La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

Thomas Adv. Service (Inc.), Heard Bldg., Jacksonville, Fla.

Thompson, J. Walter Co. (Inc.), 242 Madison Ave., N. Y. City; Lytton Bldg., Chicago, Ill.; 201 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.

Tourain, Chas. H., Agency (Inc.), Kesner Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Tracy-Parry Co. (Inc.), Lafayette Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

Trades Adv. Agency, 13 Astor Pl., N. Y. City.

Tuthill Adv. Agency (Inc.), 1133 Broadway, N. Y. City.

Urmy, Louis V., 41 Park Row, N. Y. City.

Vanderhoof & Co. (Inc.), 140 So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Van Haagen Adv. Agency, 1420 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Van Patten (Inc.), 50 East 42d St., N. Y. City.

Volkmann, M., Adv. Agency, World Bldg., N. Y. City.

von Puentgen, Carl S., Kresge Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

Vreeland, E. E. (Inc.), 344 West 38th St., N. Y. City.

Wade Adv. Agency, Old Colony Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Wales Adv. Co., 110 W. 40th St., N. Y. City.

Walker Adv. Agency, 165 Kearny St., San Francisco, Cal.

Walker, Dudley, & Co., Peoples Gas Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Walton Adv. & Ptg. Co., 141 Milk St., Boston, Mass.

Weil, Joseph, Co., Jenkins Arcade Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Weil-Biow-Weil (Inc.), 116 W. 32d St., N. Y. City.

Wertheim, J. L., 14 Avenue A, N. Y. City.

Western Adv. Agency (Inc.), 523 Main St., Racine, Wis.

Wetherald, Jas. T., Adv. Agency, Inc., 142 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass.

Williams, Fred C., 108 Fulton St., N. Y. City.

Williams & Cunningham (Inc.), 6 No. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Wilson, Edwin Bird (Inc.), 68 William St., N. Y. City.

Winburn, M., 576 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

Winningham, C. C., Book Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

Wood, Putnam & Wood Co. (Inc.), 178 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.

Woodwards Incorporated, 900 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Digitized by Google

LONDON SPECULATES ON TWO EVENTS

Editor Gardiner's Resignation from Daily News and Appearance of "The Future" Furnish Food for Thought —Political Significance Seen

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Two newspaper field happenings here this week have caused excited speculation as to their political significance. One is the resignation of A. G. Gardiner of the Daily News and the other is the appearance of a publication called "The Future," which is described as "a national publication issued with Premier Lloyd-George's authority.

Mr. Gardiner, editor of the Daily News for seventeen years, resigned September 10. Although Mr. Gardiner leaves the editorial chair, he will still be connected with the Daily News as a member of the board of directors and will continue his contributions to the Saturday issue.

Mr. Gardiner will go to America next month. It will be his first visit. Throughout the war Mr. Gardiner was one of the staunchest supporters of President Wilson and his elucidation to the British public of the President's policies early attracted Mr. Wilson's attention. He is well known to Col. House and other friends and associates of President Wilson. Mr. Gardiner has no definite plans other than that he contemplates visiting New York and several other big cities.

Mr. Gardiner's change is regarded as a journalistic event of the first moment, and excites the liveliest speculation respecting its cause. It is understood that friction has existed for some time owing to his attitude toward the peace treaty, and that his article Saturday in which he asked what would England say if Germany imposed such a peace on her, brought things to a head.

However, as he remains on the board of directors, and will continue contributing his Saturday article, his resignation does not indicate a change of policy.

New Paper Is a Sensation

The Future is something quite new in political literature and special importance is attached to it since Premier David Lloyd-George presented, through its first issue on Monday, his appeal to the nation, in which he pleads for the building up of a new world. It was distributed gratis to more than 4,000,000 of the electorate.

The Future also contains statements on national needs, specially contributed by members of the government. The advent of this publication and its precise significance excite intense curiosity. It is generally supposed that light may be thrown upon it in the premier's international brotherhood speech Wednesday.

See Lloyd-George in Daily News

"The Future" is dated September 13. It has the appearance of a newspaper, but is not marked No. 1, and there is no indication that there will be an issue No. 2. Immediately under the title is the following: "A government statement of national needs and of national policy."

It is published in the same office as the Evening Standard and the Sketch. Its editorial office is 50 Parliament street, where a government propaganda department was recently installed. Its editor is Walls Meyers, hitherto known as a lawn tennis reporter. Meyers refuses to disclose the financial backing of "The Future," but says that no government or party funds are being employed.

The contributors to the edition are Mr. Lloyd-George, Sir Auckland C. Geddes, minister for national service and reconstruction; Sir Eric Geddes, minister without portfolio; Dr. Christopher Addison, president of the local government board; Viscount Milner, secretary for the colonies; Sir Worthington Evans, home minister for pensions; George Nicoll Barnes, minister without portfolio, and others.

Political wiseacres interpret the issue of the future as confirmation of the gossip that Lloyd-George, realizing the weakness of his present position and of the Coalition Government, is preparing to play for his own hand in the general election which, it is expected by his opponents, will come within twelve months.

In this connection it may be remarked that in newspaper circles the report is current that recent changes in the editorship of the Daily News are due to the fact that Mr. Lloyd George has acquired an interest in the paper.

WIRE TOLLS UP 150% IN GERMANY

Correspondents Will Be Forced to Reduce Volume of Information Sent Out of That Country to Rest of World

BERLIN, Sept. 15.—Today foreign telegraph rates were advanced 150 per cent. This is in spite of the fact that the service has been very bad and that it has been necessary usually to pay three times the ordinary tolls for urgent service, which has even then been slow and unreliable.

The decision chiefly concerns foreign correspondents, who must now pay 25 instead of 10 pfennigs per word to Denmark and Switzerland, 35 to France and Sweden, 40 to Norway, 45 to Italy, 50 to Finland, 110 to Spain, and 100 to Portugal. With this increase telegraphing will be costly in spite of the advantage of foreign exchange possessed by the correspondents.

Telegraph service authorities were not warned in advance of the proposed increase in price. They have demanded from all correspondents deposits double their monthly telegraph bills, and have held up dispatches until such deposits have been made.

The Ministry of Posts and Telegraphs, which is responsible for the order, has found that the plan is unpopular with other branches of the Government, which realize that correspondents will be forced to reduce the volume of information about Germany which they telegraph to the world's newspapers.

Capt. Davis Returns to Agency

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 17.—S. L. Sholley has resigned from the Davis & Armstrong organization to become advertising manager of the Babson Statistical Service, Wellesley Hills, Mass. He will be succeeded by Capt. H. G. Davis, who was with the Davis & Armstrong Agency before going overseas as an artillery officer.

Sues for Advertising Debt

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 15.—The Bridgeport Life Publishing Company has started a civil action in the Common Pleas Court against J. Framson asking $250 damages for alleged indebtedness for advertising to the amount of $150.

William H. Dow, business manager of the Portland (Me.) Express-Advertiser, has returned to his duties after a vacation passed at Kearsarge, N. H.

It's This Way About ILLINOIS

Illinois is the home of six percent of the population of the United States.

76.7% of these people are native born whites.

74.4% of the population of the United States are native born whites, making Illinois 2.3% above the average on that score.

21.4% of the people of Illinois are foreign born.

14.9% of the people of the United States are foreign born, making Illinois 6.5% above the average on that score.

1.9% of the people of Illinois are negroes.

10.7% of the people of the United States are negroes, making Illinois 9.8% below the average on that score.

The total population of the cities in which this list of daily newspapers are published is 2,832,515, which is a fraction over 46% of the population of the state of Illinois.

The total circulation of this list of daily newspapers is 1,892,793, about 67% of the population of the cities represented.

This is divided into 306,307 morning, 989,635 evening and 596,851 Sunday.

The combined rate for all these daily newspapers is $2.3304 per agate line.

Here is a market and a means of reaching it.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
Aurora Beacon News (E).....	16,000	.04	.04
Bloomington Pantagraph (M)	17,213	.035	.035
Champaign Daily Gazette (E).....	4,605	.0129	.0129
Chicago American (E)	326,998	.40	.40
*Chicago Herald-Examiner (M)	289,094	.38	.31
*Chicago Herald-Examiner (S).....	596,851	.53	.46
Chicago Daily News (E).....	886,498	.43	.43
Chicago Journal (E)	116,807	.22	.18
Chicago Post (E)	55,477	.25	.12
Danville Commercial News (E).....	15,086	.03	.03
*Elgin Courier (E)	8,173	.02	.02
Moline Dispatch (E)	10,113	.03	.03
Peoria Star (E)	22,738	.045	.04
Quincy Journal (E)	*8,591	.025	.025
Rockford Register-Gazette (E).....	13,677	.03	.03
Sterling Daily Gazette (E).....	5,072	.02	.02

Total Circulation 1,892,949. Rate per line, $2.3304.
Government Statement, April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. Report, April 1st, 1919.

Digitized by Google

CHICAGO TRIBUNE PLANS NEW BUILDING

Construction Corporation Organized with Capital of $500,000—For Time Being Will Act as Overflow Location for Stereo and Press Rooms

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—The Tribune Building Corporation was incorporated September 8 at Springfield under the laws of Illinois and capitalized at $500,000, to specifically undertake the erection of the new quarters for the Chicago Tribune. The incorporators named are Joseph Medill Patterson, Jarvis Hunt and Joseph B. Fleming.

Plans for the building, says Col. R. R. McCormick, co-editor of the Tribune, will not be ready before October 15, they having been delayed by labor conditions and other exigencies.

The new building is, for the time at least, intended as merely an overflow location for half of the stereotyping plant and press rooms, the other half of which will remain, with the entire executive and business department in their present quarters in the Tribune building at Madison and Dearborn streets. It is intended to remove the editorial department to the new building, although not for another twelve month at least.

The Tribune now operates its entire colortyping department in still another outside building.

Creating "Buy-at-Home Ads" for Community Welfare

Lewiston (Me.) Sun Starts Series of Civic Pride Advertisements That Promises Fine Results

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 16.—"Buy in Lewiston-Auburn" is the slogan of a series of advertisements which are being published by the advertising department of the Lewiston Sun.

This civic advertising campaign was launched, the Sun explains, with the hope of bringing to the citizens of these two cities and of the adjacent trading territory a realization of their community obligations to the end that the entire community will profit.

These advertisements were very carefully planned, the Sun explains, and with a view of full realization of the responsibility which such a campaign involves. They will bring out the advantages of trading in Lewiston and Auburn and of patronizing home merchants.

An attempt will be made to point out the fallacy of sending money away from the two cities and to awaken a feeling of community obligation. The theme of all advertisements is "A community can prosper only by the support of its people."

The advertisements are not sentimental pleas, the Sun says, but it is the purpose to show wherein it is more advantageous to spend money made in Lewiston and Auburn with local firms.

The campaign is being conducted by the advertising department of the Sun and the copy used is protected for exclusive use in that paper.

The Advertising Men's Bureau of the Lewiston Chamber of Commerce has voted to back the "Buy at Home Campaign" and to make the State Fair Week a "Buy in Lewiston-Auburn" week also.

NEW BRITISH NEWS AGENCY

Manager and Director Towson Arrives to Represent Cross-Atlantic Service

W. Orton Towson has arrived in New York in the interest of the Cross-Atlantic Newspaper Service, Ltd., of London, recently organized as an Anglo-American news service. Mr. Lewis is manager and director and he intends opening a New York office and arranging for the American publication of H. G. Wells' forthcoming book, "An Outline of European History."

His temporary office is with Daniel Mayer, 1148 Aeolian Hall Building, 33 West 42nd street. Associated in the formation of the Cross-Atlantic service are G. H. Mair, Lieut.-Col. A. N. S. Strode-Jackson, D. S. O., and Hannen Swaffer, whose headquarters are at 184 Fleet street, London.

NEWSPAPER MAKING

(Continued from Page 12.)

of men primarily interested in their own concern than as an organized group of poorly advertised men.

In a large city like New York, for instance, organized relations through our publishers' associations with organized labor work both injustice to employer and employee. It is grossly unfair for one of the smaller newspapers to be compelled to pay the same scale as one doing twenty times as much work per working hour as the other.

For instance, in the simple matter of the delivery of newspapers, taking the case of the New York Evening Post with 30,000, as compared with that of the Evening Journal with 700,000. One set of carriers go forth with routes of fifty papers and the other 1,400 copies, and both pay the same scale.

Then, again, labor stands in its own light when it permits one large manufacturer of newspapers engaging in side lines, so to speak, and putting the standard of compensation on the higher plane, beyond the sound economic possibilities of a smaller concern. This works to the disadvantage of all other offices and the men working hardest do not get as much money as if they were paid separately for the delivery of the newspaper and for outside units separately.

A Basic Wage

Such a policy tends to limit the possibility for growth for the smaller newspapers and thus prevents the creation of many new positions to care for increased volume of business in many offices.

A basic wage based on possibilities of the smallest manufacturer with increases pro rated for heavier traffic from those enjoying it would be more productive of more jobs and larger earnings to labor. Likewise regarding all other details, the little fellow is compelled to pay flat rate per day with the big fellow utilizing the labor more effectively and to maximum advantage.

All of such matters should be adjusted by the adoption of a sane, honest-to-God profit sharing basis in individual manufacturing units. Our employees and fellow sharers in the profits would not be so intent on set-to to create more situations, but would do an honest day's work confident of deriving a part of the additional profit earned through their greater productivity.

Increased Efficiency

Instead of having labor ever seeking to cut down the efficiencies of improved labor-saving machinery, we would find them interested in multiplying the increased profits made from the investment of their own labor and money, just as much as that of the employers.

General organization of all workers in similar lines into local and national unions for mutual protection, collective bargaining, and consideration and decision of underlying principles would be desirable.

Unless we have organized labor keenly and vitally interested in maintaining the validity and sanctity of contract, we will have lost all of the great advantages secured after many years of development toward better relations and sounder business.

American labor concedes that if we remove the inducement of financial reward, the whole structure of civilization falls into chaos, as it has in Russia. If it were otherwise, what inducement is there for constructive effort? If the simple little home representing the savings of a lifetime cannot be passed on to our children, why thrift at all?

From my observations, unless labor recognize the danger of unjustified demands killing the goose that lays the golden eggs by becoming interested and associated in responsibilities of management, there will continually be vastly more of them out of work than would be produced by some constructive programme which I have indicated.

I sincerely believe that a limit may eventually be placed on the total annual profits that can be made by a corporation or an individual, and that excess profits beyond this limit shall revert to the workers, or to the state, in lieu of other taxation.

Limit on Profits

Labor in our country concedes the necessity and usefulness of management and direction. While probably our best managers have undoubtedly been recruited from the ranks of practical workers, the workers in any organization seldom have in their ranks men with sufficient initiative to jump in over night to finance and manage the affairs of any considerable industrial plant. This has been conceded in Russia after disastrous experimentation.

If what I have written is out of line with either side, employee or employer, I can only apologize for thinking out loud, so to speak, with sole intent to produce something which may have in it the germ of constructive result.

Signs of the Times

A large store located on Chambers street, New York City, not far from Park row, is featuring clothes in their window display, and advertise the fact that they carry a complete line in stock.

Elected to A. N. P. A. Membership

The Wichita Falls (Tex.) Daily Times has been elected to active membership in the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

U. S. P. O. Report
For the period ending April 1, 1919, Average Daily and Sunday Circulation 76,652
New Orleans Item
Enjoys the largest afternoon and Sunday net paid circulation of any newspaper published in the entire South.

Advertisers guided by A. B. C. reports, know that in Detroit, the News has more circulation than all competitors combined weekdays, and on Sundays a 40% lead over its only competitor.

supremacy
The Indianapolis News carries practically as much space both from local and national advertisers as all other Indianapolis papers combined including Sunday editions. It has been doing this for fifty years.
THE INDIANAPOLIS
Charter Member A. B. C.
NEWS
For 50 years a Newspaper.

During the seven months ending July 31
614,922 agate lines
of national advertising were published in
The Clarksburg Telegram
a gain over the same period of 1918 of 74.5%
It pays to advertise in "West Virginia's Leading Newspaper."

The Congregationalist
is not read for fun; it is read seriously; therefore it is well read.
Broad-minded advertisers know
THE CONGREGATIONALIST, 14 Beacon St. BOSTON, MASS.

The circulation of
The Evening Star
in Washington, D. C., and suburbs, is believed to be about three times that of the corresponding edition of its afternoon contemporary in the same territory.

The Pittsburgh Post
has the second largest morning and Sunday circulation in Pittsburgh.

Digitized by Google

Chicago Backs Mrs. Strohm for A. A. C. W. Office

Delegation 100 Strong Will Also Aid Indianapolis In Winning the 1920 Convention

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Mrs. Olivia B. Strohm, vocational director of the Chicago Women's Advertising Club, will be a candidate for vice-president of the A. A. C. W. The Chicago delegation is solidly behind Mrs. Strohm. If elected, she will be the first woman ever to win an executive place on the board of the international organization. Mrs. Strohm's work on the Liberty Loan campaigns won her national recognition.

Clinton P. Lampman, president of the Chicago Advertising Association, says he anticipates an attendance of more than 100 members at the convention. At least two special cars will be provided for the Chicago delegation, which will leave Saturday night so as to arrive in New Orleans in time for the first special meeting Sunday afternoon.

The Chicagoans are going South with the fixed idea of securing the next annual convention for Indianapolis.

AD MEN AIM TO HELP BRING LABOR PEACE

(Continued from page 9.)

Then in the evening the seep of time will bear those admen in to the present and future.

Wednesday evening, September 24, at the New Orleans conclave, the New Orleans of today and tomorrow will be shown in a graceful, dignified pageant.

Modern lighting will shed its clear glow about the grounds. Wireless telegraph and telephones will send and receive messages from all parts of the world. Brilliantly lighted aircraft will circle and swoop above the scene, before specially painted background on a huge stage, the pageant of modern commercial and industrial New Orleans will pass.

And with this setting of past and future with dance and banquet staged in formal fashion, Mayor Martin Behrman in an address to the delegates will outline the work New Orleans has done in the past two decades, the work she is doing today and the work she plans for the future to achieve the city's destiny.

Record Attendance Expected

Officials who have been receiving last minute reports from all the clubs that compose its membership, predict that the attendance at New Orleans will be record-breaking.

Little cities as well as big ones will be represented, they all say, by delegations of which they will be proud numerically as well as personally. Also, officials of the organization report, the convention will be more of an international affair than it ever has been before.

In fact, quite a few advertising men will travel half way around the world to attend it, as, for instance, the delegation from the Advertising Men's Institute of Brisbane, Australia.

A late announcement of particular interest to Latin-Americans is that the officials of the organization have, on the recommendation of Director-General John Barrett of the Pan-American Union, decided to hold two special Pan-American sessions.

A Pan-American Session

These will take place on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and will be featured by addresses of noted Latin-American publishers and discussions by representative newspaper men of North America interested in Pan-American trade relations.

Invitations in Spanish and Portugese, accompanied by copies of correspondence between Lewellyn Pratt, first vice-president of the Associated Advertising Clubs, and Director General John Barrett, were sent out over a month ago to nearly all of the directors of newspapers in Latin-America to be present or send representatives, and many of these have sent acceptances.

The program for the two Pan-American sessions, which has not been completed, is in charge of a special committee, consisting of Albert S. Houston, of Doubleday, Page & Co., Lewellyn Pratt, and P. S. Florea, executive manager of the Associated Advertising Clubs, with the co-operation of Mr. Barrett.

Newspapers and Ad Agents

Newspaper advertising will be discussed from many angles, the program of the daily newspaper department, as now perfected, indicates.

Jason Rogers, publisher of the New York Globe, will discuss "Necessity for a Greater Standardization of Newspaper Advertising"; Frank D. Webb, advertising manager of the Baltimore News, will talk on "Selling the Local Representative for Nationally Advertised Goods on His Use of the Newspapers in His District," and James W. Brown, publisher of EDITOR & PUBLISHER, will have as his subject, "Proper Advertising Rates."

James O'Shaughnessy, executive secretary of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, will talk on "The Relation of the Advertising Agency to the Newspaper and Advertiser"; Fred Millis, assistant advertising manager of the Indianapolis News, on "Building Steady Business," and Herman Philipsson, of the Dallas Times-Herald, on "Converting National Advertisers to the Use of Daily Newspapers."

The number of other pertinent topics will be discussed by men who have made a study of them.

PREMIUMS
That Are Real Subscription Producers
S. BLAKE WILLSDEN
Manufacturers and Publishers Representative,
1606 Heyworth Building
29 E. Madison St. CHICAGO

110 NEW YORKERS TO GO

Delegation to New Orleans Will Include Ten Ad Women

The New York City delegation will number 110. There will be a two-section train for them, leaving Friday afternoon. At Baltimore fourteen delegates from that city will board the train, and ten from Philadelphia will be fellow passengers. Ten members of the League of Advertising Women of New York will make the trip. Some members of the New York City delegation sailed by the Southern Pacific steamer "Momus," Wednesday noon.

Coming back, forty members of the New York City delegation will take a Southern Pacific steamer on Saturday, September 27. Many will travel back home by way of St. Louis and Chicago, or will make various other stops on their way home.

For General Discussion

The Daily Newspaper Department also has prepared a list of the following topics for general discussion at its sessions:

The value of co-operation with national advertisers, and to what extent should it go?

Should newspapers sell merchandise in order to obtain advertising?

Flat rate versus sliding scale.

Should the local and foreign rates be equalized?

Uniform rate card.

The movie and vaudeville rates.

The best plan for notification of local and foreign rate in rates.

Should the newspaper or the advertiser pay the agency commission?

Amusement publicity.

Automobile publicity.

Why questionable advertising of all kinds should be eliminated—and what is considered questionable?

How best to regulate compensation of advertising solicitors, in view of increased cost of living. Bonus versus salary increase. (A very definite plan which has been in successful operation for more than a year, and which has resulted in 1,500,000 lines local gain, will be disclosed.)

Should newspapers furnish free art work and cuts?

Should there be a free or paid exchange of mats and cuts?

The use of news style heads on advertisements.

Should newspaper contracts be made for one year or more?

Uniform style of makeup.

The value, if any, of special editions.

Do scheme pages lower the standing of a newspaper?

Best methods to build up classified advertising.

Truth and Fair Deal

Every other branch of advertising will also have its own sessions and will take a part in the general proceedings.

One whole general session will be devoted to truthful advertising, and running through every session of every department meeting will be evidence of the power of truth and square deal to build good will, as has been clearly indicated in the programs for each that have been printed in past issues of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

The conventions of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World are about as far away from a Roman holiday as anything which a business man or woman could imagine, yet there will be entertainment features at the New Orleans convention, and they will be of a character not soon to be forgotten. Mornings and afternoons will be for business.

The entire South, which has made such marvelous strides within the last

(Continued on Page 81.)

THE INTERNATIONAL NEWS BUREAU, Inc.
15 SCHOOL STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
C. J. BOSDAN, Editor

More than 120 American and Canadian newspapers subscribe to our service

Each week our subscribers receive between 30 and 50 columns of copy. Authoritative articles by men of international calibre on matters international, human interest stories from all lands and climes, revelations of European courts, speeches and addresses of men and women whose words influence the thought of nations, translations from every important foreign newspaper; these and numberless other items day after day are sent to our subscribers.

IN SHORT, MR. EDITOR—ESPECIALLY MR. SUNDAY EDITOR —WE CONSTANTLY SPREAD THE WORLD BEFORE YOU FROM ALL ANGLES.

You will find our monthly subscription rates surprisingly low.

WE SPEND MORE THAN $500,000
per year to produce the features which have created the greatest newspaper following in the world.
"Hearst's Features Always Lead"
Write for booklet.
"Half Million Dollar Feature Service"
The International Feature Service
246 West 59th Street

The True News
FIRST
Always—Accurately
International News Service
World Bldg. New York

New Era Features
30 East 42nd St., New York City
Forty Leading Papers
Print Our Service.
Send for our Headline History of the World War

PRESTIGE
The standing of your newspaper in your city is measured directly by the extent of your service to your readers. There is little difference in the news—sometimes only slight differences in editorial opinions. The service to your readers is largely a matter of entertainment and information, aside from the news.
On this principle, the service of The Associated Newspapers has been built. The association helps every member to a better standing in its community.
Write or wire for rates.
The Associated Newspapers
170 Broadway New York

NEWSPAPER Feature Service
GET THE FEATURES THAT HAVE WON THE BIGGEST AUDIENCE
Write us for samples of our colored comics, daily and Sunday pages in black and white.
Newspaper Feature Service
M. KOENIGSBERG, Manager
261 WEST 37TH ST. NEW YORK

Digitized by Google

D. O. McCARTHY DEAD IN LOS ANGELES

His Morning Paper, The American Flag, Was Factor in California's Refusal to Secede from Union in Civil War—Noted Fighter

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 15—The recent death of Daniel O'Connell McCarthy in this city marked the passing of one of the most picturesque figures in American journalism and particularly on the Pacific coast, where most of his activities had been confined in the last half century. It has been said that he never missed voting in California since the state was admitted to the Union.

He was long editor of the American Flag, which was established in Sonora, Tuolumne County, in 1860, as not only the first morning newspaper in the state but the first radical Union newspaper in California, and during the Civil War it was considered a deciding factor in the refusal of California to secede with the Southern states.

Due to the influence of the then Senator Leland Stanford, Mr. McCarthy was induced to remove from Tuolumne County and re-establish his paper in San Francisco. It was during the publication of the American Flag in San Francisco that the owner started one of the first newspaper agitations in the United States.

It was at the time that an attempt was being made to pass the Pacific contract law. Corruption was charged against the state legislature. This resulted in the arrest of Mr. McCarthy. He was later released and was feted by hundreds of supporters. It was the American Flag that first published the news of the assassination of Lincoln in California.

Mr. McCarthy was on the personal staff of General Barstow during the Mexican war, and following his release of control in the American Flag went to San Diego, where he established the Victoria in 1892, this paper later being absorbed by the San Diego Union.

He also established what is now the San Diego Water Company. In 1901 he came to Los Angeles, and until a short time ago was engaged in the real estate business. He is survived by his son, J. Harvey McCarthy, and a daughter, Mary B. McCarthy.

Obituary

BENJAMIN LINGLE, 74, postmaster of Warsaw, Mo., and editor of the Henry County Democrat, died recently in Kansas City. A widow and four daughters survive.

CHARLES P. DOWNS, telegraph editor of the El Paso Times, is dead from a fractured skull, the result of being struck by a street car.

W. E. KING, editor of a Dallas (Tex.) negro publication, was killed by a negro woman August 21. He was shot in the heart.

MRS. GEORGE L. WILLSON, mother of Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, died at Seagate, N. Y., Sunday after a long illness.

LEONID ANDREYEFF, Russian author and contributor to newspapers, died September 12 at Mustinotchki, Finland.

GEORGE ANCEL CLEMENT, who in 1873 was editor of the Port Jervis (N. Y.) Gazette and recent years was noted lawyer and author of legal works, died in New York, September 13, aged 69 years. He was editor of "Court Rules" and author of "The Fire Insurance Digest."

JAMES MELBOURNE PATTERSON, 83, died at Marshall, Mo., August 26. Born in 1836 in Virginia, he went to Missouri in 1848 with his father, who founded the Lexington Express. He entered the shop as an apprentice printer in 1848. In 1879, he moved to Marshall and with his son, the late John Lee Patterson, founded the Democrat-News. He remained with this paper until a few months before his death. Two sons and a widow survive.

MOSES HARNSTEIN, for 36 years the idol of Omaha newsboys, died recently from a bullet wound in his head, which the police declare gave evidence of self-destruction. He conducted a store and restaurant frequented by newsboys. His family declares he was killed.

CARL JULIUS BRAUN, father of Arthur E. Braun, president of the Pittsburgh Post and Sun Publishing Company, died a few days ago in Pittsburgh, aged 72 years. He was born in Germany, served an apprenticeship as printing trade and was foreman of a small newspaper at the age of 15. He served in the American civil war and later was prominent as a wholesale leather dealer.

GEORGE F. SCHUTT, at one time connected with the Fort Wayne (Ind.) Journal-Gazette, died recently at Providence Lake, N. H. For nine years he had been proprietor of the New Ebbett Hotel in Washington, D. C.

JOHN T. CALHOUN, aged 53, city editor of the Bradford (Pa.) Morning Era, died September 4. He was a native of Forestville, N. Y., and previous to entering the newspaper profession was a druggist. For a time, beginning in January, 1918, Mr. Calhoun served as a deputy revenue collector with headquarters in Connellsville, Pa.

"I. E. A." WANTS SUBSCRIPTIONS

Soliciter in New York Looking for $500 Contributions for Home

A solicitor for the International Editorial Association, Bedford, Va., has made his appearance in New York and is endeavoring to obtain $500 subscriptions for "associate life membership" in support of a home for newspaper workers which the I. E. A. is represented to be opening in Bedford.

The solicitor is giving the name of Davey O'Connor. A number of people approached by him have turned the matter over to the special agencies for investigation. Clyde P. Steen, who, as former president of the National Association of City Editors, attempted to raise a fund of $1,000,000 several months ago to fight Bolshevism and was stopped by the New York District Attorney, is listed on the subscription blank as superintendent of the "national home."

"WE HAVE WITH US TO-DAY"

New Feature by Grantland Rice and "Ding" Attracts Wide Attention

The new illustrated topical page of Grantland Rice and J. N. Darling ("Ding") which is appearing as a regular Sunday feature of the Colorgraphic Section of the New York Tribune, and is being syndicated by that newspaper, is a new departure in Sunday laugh producers and really belongs to the class of comics de luxe.

The pages are being released both in colors and in black and white. "Golf" and "The High Cost of Living" have already been released. Others announced are "The Servant Problem," "President Wilson," "The Movies," "Poker" and "Bolshevism." The pages are non-political, being a humorous review in the best vein of the author and the artist.

Italy Shuts Down on News

ROME, Italy, Sept. 15.—The Government has prohibited publication of any news concerning the military events at Fiume. A special official has been appointed to supervise this censorship. He is armed with authority to sequestrate all editions of newspapers contravening the Government order.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Relative to H. N. Moore

Editor & Publisher:

Your paragraph on page 37 of the Editor & Publisher of September 4, in which you try to correct misstatements in the death notice of H. N. Moore, the Washington Correspondent of the Montreal Star, was being transferred to the London Office of that publication has failed miserably to fully enlighten some of us who have not seen H. N. Moore, better known among us who knew him well as "Mike" Moore—just because he claimed Irish ancestors—since he went to Europe two years or so ago with a Menlo College contingent.

My use of the word "enlightenment" is well used, if it is H. N. "Mike" Moore, he has the journalistic habit of rushing in a specialty and wears a congenial smile all over his face when not engaged in serious work on the news story. Now let us know after investigation whether it is Grantland H. N. or just plain (H. N.) "Mike" Moore who is again going across the big pond.

A SUBSCRIBER.

[It was just plain "Mike" Moore who went to England. He served three years with the C. E. F. Covered the opening of the Peace Conference for the Montreal Star, then returned to Canada about three months ago, and was appointed Washington correspondent. He sailed for London from Montreal, on September 16.—EDITOR.]

J. H. Moore Wins Nomination

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—Representative J. Hampton Moore, former newspaper man, today was nominated by the Republican party as its candidate for Mayor by a majority of 1,736 out of a total polled vote of 296,326. Mr. Moore was supported by Senator Penrose. Mr. Moore was supported by all the newspapers and had the indorsement of many civic organizations. Against them the administration pitted officeholders.

The Mount Vernon, N. Y. DAILY ARGUS carries more display advertising than any newspaper in Westchester County

This is an acknowledgment of its power that the advertiser should heed, if desirous of reaching the people of Mount Vernon.

GEO. B. DAVID & CO.
Foreign Representative
171 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

The Newark (N. J.) Ledger is a 7-day Morning Associated Press Newspaper and is the only morning newspaper in industrial centre with a million population.
Morning Edition, 2c.
Sunday Edition, 5c.

You can reach
Albany, Troy and Schenectady with one paper
The Sunday Telegram
Albany, N. Y.
Circulation, 28,000

The Pittsburg Dispatch has been a potent factor in the success of Pittsburg's big stores.
WALLACE G. BROOKS
Brunswick Building, New York
THE FORD-PARSONS CO.,
People's Gas Building, Chicago
B. C. BOOK
Real Estate Trust Building, Philadelphia

The Ten Town of the Country for the National Advertiser
Beloit, Wisconsin
It's one paper—the Daily News—has the finest plant in any city of 25,000 in the United States and prints one of the ablest and handsomest news papers in the middle West. Why?
Beloit is rich in factories and agriculture, is highly educated; has $2,000,000 in local banks. Workmen own their homes. City is 100% American.
The Daily News alone serves this splendid population. Circulation over 7,400. Rate, 2½ cents per agate line.

When the East Reaches the West
LOS ANGELES
EVENING HERALD
The greatest week-day advertising medium on the Pacific coast
DAILY CIRCULATION 127,773

The McCLURE Newspaper Syndicate supplies continuous daily and weekly services that make and hold home circulation
ALSO
Big Special Features on Timely Topics by Leading Writers
Send for our complete list and particulars of our star features, including Frank H. Simonds, Montague Glass and Sewell Ford.
N373 Fourth Ave., New York

New Orleans States
Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.
Sworn Net Paid Circulation for 6 Months Ending April 1st, 1919
43,70 Daily
We guarantee the largest white home delivered evening circulation in the trade territory of New Orleans.
To reach a large majority of the trade prospects in the local territory the States is the logical and economic medium.
Circulation data sent on request.
The S. C. Beckwith Special Agcy.
Sole Foreign Representatives
New York Chicago St. Louis

Digitized by Google

TIPS FOR AD MANAGERS

N. W. Ayer & Son, 300 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. Placing orders with newspapers for Warner Brothers.

George Batten Company, Fourth Avenue Bldg., New York. Placing orders with some New York City newspapers for B. F. Sturtevant Company; making 5,000-line contracts with newspapers for U. S. Cartridge Company; placing 180-line 2-time orders with newspapers for E. A. Mallory & Sons.

Nelson Chesman & Co., 1127 Pine street, St. Louis. Making 10,000-line contracts with newspapers for Easyhold Company.

Critchfield & Co., Brooks Bldg., Chicago. Again placing orders with Western newspapers for Black Silk Stove Works.

George L. Dyer Company, 42 Broadway, New York. Again placing schedules with newspapers for Remington Arms-Union Metallic Cartridge Company.

Federal Agency, 6 East 39th street, New York. Placing orders with New York City newspapers for "Duke of York Cigarettes."

Richard A. Foley Agency, Terminal Bldg., Philadelphia. Again placing copy with newspapers for W. H. Luden; placing orders with Pennsylvania newspapers for University of Pennsylvania.

Guenther-Bradford & Co., 64 W. Randolph street, Chicago. Again placing orders with newspapers for Dr. R. Newman.

Hoyt's Service, 116 West 32d street, New York. Usually make up list during March using newspapers, for Billings-Chapin Company.

H. W. Kastor & Sons Agency, Lytton Bldg., Chicago. Again placing orders with large city newspapers for "O. R. S. Company."

Otto J. Koch Agency, University Bldg., Milwaukee. Again placing orders with newspapers for Phoenix Knitting Work; placing 420-line, 3-time orders with newspapers for Mueller Furnace Company.

Mallory, Mitchell & Faust Security Bldg., Chicago. Placing orders with newspapers in cities where Lin-a Time Manufacturing Company has branches.

Morse International Agency, 449 Fourth avenue, New York. Again placing orders with newspapers for Hall & Ruckel.

Moss-Chase Company, 170 Franklin street, Buffalo. Placing orders with a few newspapers on Pacific Coast for Buffalo Specialty Company.

Ostenrieder Advertising Corp., 25 East Jackson Blvd., Chicago. Making 2,000-line contracts with Middle West newspapers for Schoenhofen Company.

W. Hasbrook Payne Agency, Drexel Bldg., Philadelphia. Placing orders with Pennsylvania newspapers for Pennsylvania Tire Stores.

Philip Ritter Company, World Bldg., New York. Placing orders with newspapers for Young & Griffin Coffee Company.

Schuck Agency, 9 Clinton street, Newark. Placing orders with New York City newspapers for Hudson County Tobacco Company.

Stavrum, Thompson & Bennett, 14 East Jackson Bldg., Chicago. Will handle advertising for Kellogg Products, Inc.

Street & Finney, 171 Madison Avenue, New York. Placing orders with newspapers in New York City and vicinity for Sweet, Orr & Co.

Thielecke Advertising Company, 327 South La Salle street, Chicago. Placing orders with newspapers for Dodge Sales & Engineering Company.

J. Walter Thompson Company, 242 Madison avenue, New York. Again placing copy with newspapers for the Andrew Jergens Company.

HARVEY FREED BY COURT

Judge Rules Evidence of Parole Violation Has Been Outlawed

David M. Harvey, promoter of a reception scheduled to have been given to General Pershing in New York last week and who was arrested on its eve on a warrent charging him with violation of a parole, was discharged from custody by Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions on the ground that the evidence against him was outlawed by the statute of limitations. The promoter had been arrested in 1909 charged with passing worthless checks, but escaped with a suspended sentence. In 1912 a warrant was issued charging him with breaking his parole.

The aim of the George Washington Memorial Association, in behalf of which the reception was planned, were approved by Assistant District Attorney Talley after he had questioned Mrs. Henry L. Dimock, the head of the association. She said she had an agreement with Harvey by which he was to receive for his services "not exceeding 5 per cent" of the money raised. As the campaign was for $10,000,000, Harvey would have received $500,000, if the amount had been raised.

BISHOP SUCCEEDS DEVINE

Will Be Business Manager and Treasurer of Clarksburg Telegram

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 12.—Albert J. Bishop has been appointed to succeed James J. Devine, former general manager and treasurer of the Telegram, who has purchased the Fitchburg (Mass.) Daily News. Mr. Bishop will act in the capacity of business manager and treasurer.

Frash Made Copy Chief

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Poole Brothers have appointed O. T. Frash as copy chief of their service department. Mr. Frash recently was the Klaivan Piettsom-Dunlap Agency, Milwaukee, and was formerly connected with the Indianapolis Star and Chicago newspapers.

Reorganization Is Effected by Brotherton-Knoble Co.

Takes Over Tremaine Advertising Service and Its Accounts — Burnett Vice-President, Tremaine Treasurer

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 16.—In a recent meeting of the Brotherton-Knoble Company several new officers were elected and changes made in the organization. Norton T. Brotherton was reelected president and will continue the active direction of the agency. C. V. Burnett, who returned from France in the spring, was elected vice-president. Mr. Burnett held a commission as lieutenant in the aviation section of the Marine Corps.

Wallace B. Blood has sold out his intetests in Blood & Wright to become secretary of the Brotherton-Knoble company.

The G. C. Tremaine Advertising Service has also been combined with the Brotherton-Knoble Company. Mr. Tremaine is now treasurer of the Brotherton-Knoble Company and will specialize on analytical and research work.

PAPER CAME OUT ANYWAY

Trouble in Plant Cannot Stop Laredo (Tex.) Record's Editor

When trouble broke in the composing room of the Laredo (Tex.) Record, August 29, J. Guy Burr, the editor, was not to be feazed by misfortune. He just put all the type he had set and miscellaneous cuts in the shop into the forms, blocked out the holes, and went to press.

The result was a most unusual American newspaper reminding one of a Russian paper after the censor has gone over it. The only explanation Mr. Burr makes to his readers is "Most of telegrams omitted on account of breakdown."

Tulsa Advertising Increasing

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 17.—Shelby Tracy of the Southwestern Advertising Agency has made preliminary plans for the establishment of a branch office in Tulsa, Okla., to handle the increasing volume of business coming from that city.

Low Tide

When the tide runs out
Strange things come into view:
The flotsam and the jetsam of the sea—
Drift timber riven from a long lost ship
And rootless blooms that grained their growth
In far Sargasso.
The prickly urchins and the dum molluscs
Amid the pebbles and the pearly sands,
Wrinkled to fit the waves,
Lie waiting for the turn,
While mow and then,
Contemptuous,
The vast breaker
Tosses to the shore
A sodden, shapeless something
That was once
A man!

Don C. Seitz, in the New York Sun.

Sale of Southern Magazine

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 17.—The Southern Woman's Magazine of this city and St. Louis, has been sold to Russell Raymond Voorhees of New York, who has moved the offices to New York. The magazine will be representative of the women of the Southland, as heretofore. The sale was negotiated through the newspaper brokerage agency of H. F. Henrichs, Litchfield, Ill.

The Tidings Becomes a Daily

Ashland, Ore., Sept. 16.—The Tidings, established in 1876 and for several years past printed semi-weekly, has entered the daily field. It will issue evenings. B. R. Greer is editor.

Rev. James C. Reid has been named publicity chairman of the Interbay Church Federation, Oakland, Cal.

THE NORTH JERSEY SHORE
offers a solidly developed market for all practice of general demand. The territory is responsive and values there receive big returns.
This field is thoroughly covered and dominated by the
ASBURY PARK EVENING PRESS
and
THE SHORE PRESS
Sunday
These are strictly high-class papers that go into the homes of the most prosperous people in the country districts.
Standard Rate Card. Member A. B. C.
Frank R. Northrop, Special Representative,
1003 Tribune Building, New York City.
Association Building, Chicago.
J. Lyle Kinmouth, Publisher, Asbury Park, N. J.

PUBLISHERS!
"The S & M Insured Agency Delivery Service—on Checking Copies" means to you what the A. B. C. means to Advertisers and Agencies:
Definite Proof Of Insertion
GUARANTEED Payment
[In Full and On Time]
Send for List of Subscribers
Co-operative Sales Service of Mandel Inc
450 Fourth Ave, N.Y. 7705-7200 Mad.Sq.

The Dominating Force
in a manufacturing territory famous for its hustle, thrift and prosperity where a million dollars are expended weekly in wages.
The Bridgeport Post
Standard-Telegram
Not only dominates this field, but they offer advertisers the lowest rate obtainable in New England. Keep them on your list.
FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVES
I. A. Klein,
Metropolitan Bldg., New York.
John Glenn,
Peoples' Gas Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Perth Amboy, N. J.
More than 50,000 and going strong.
Thoroughly Covered by
Evening News
Member A. N. P. A. A. B. C., A. P.
Reasonable requests for trade information given prompt attention.
F. R. Northrup, 303 5th Avenue New York City

Summer In New London, Conn.
is the season of social activities and big business that ensure success for the advertiser who uses
The New London Telegraph
Advertise your goods at dawn and sell them before dark.
JULIAN D. MORAN, Pres. and Mgr.
Foreign Representatives
Payne-Burns & Smith, New York—Boston
J. Logan Payne Co. Chicago—Detroit

The Shortest Route From Dealers' Shelves to Consumers' Homes.
Is Via BOSTON AMERICA
301,270
Govt. Statement For Six Months Ending April 1st.
This is the LARGEST home-going circulation in New England—a vast market with limitless possibilities.

1,193,243 Lines Lead
Over the second paper is the standing of THE PLAIN DEALER for the first seven months of 1919.
A steadily increasing monthly gain keeps THE PLAIN DEALER well ahead of the other Cleveland paper and clearly indicates that continued use makes advertisers even more appreciative of
The Plain Dealer
Largest Morning Circulation Between New York and Chicago.

Digitized by Google

SUPPLIES & EQUIPMENT

For Newspaper Making

WANTED AND FOR SALE

NEW ORLEANS ITEM PLANS TO ERECT HIGHEST BUILDING IN THE CITY

"THE Item's management has such confidence in the future growth of New Orleans that we desire to make adequate provision for the increasing growth of the paper in the years ahead," said James M. Thomson, publisher, in speaking to EDITOR & PUBLISHER of his intentions of creating one of the finest mechanical plants in the country and the highest office building in the city for his newspaper. It will cover from Perdido street, clean through the block, to Union street, right in the heart of the financial and shopping districts, where New Orleans is at its commercial busiest.

The rear building in the foreground of this drawing is now being erected. The office building will probably be put up a year or two later. The mechanical department will be housed immediately in the new structure, and the business office and editorial departments will occupy a first-rate building now located on the sites of the proposed office "sky-scraper."

Mechanically the Item in its new plant will have two octuple presses, a most modern and complete Linotype and composing room outfit, and an entire and new stereotype equipment, including auto-plate machinery of the very newest and latest character.

The pressroom will be on the first floor, the mailing room and circulation department on the second; the composing room, the stereotyping and photo-engraving plant on the third floor. The entire ground floor space to be occupied by the Item is in excess of 14,000 square feet.

The new equipment, facilities and extra space in the new fire-proof, ferro-concrete plant structure will for the first time in years permit the Item to be issued without the crowded sensation that comes to a husky youngster of 21 wearing his 14-year old clothes.

While the plant is being erected, the architect and newspaper management will work out plans for remodeling the building now on the Union street side of the site, which the Item will occupy for business and editorial office purposes until its new "sky-scraper" home is completed.

The latter will have every business convenience for working and comfort, including baths, rest-rooms and a library. The site was selected with the idea of obviating the necessity of establishing a downtown office for the paper's business.

Will Counsel on Art and Type

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—The firm of Perley, Bertsch & Cooper has been established as an art and typographic service by C. Perley, Fred S. Bertsch and Oswald Cooper. For the past three years Mr. Perley has been art director for the Erwin & Wasey Advertising Agency.

New Home and Owner

SHAWNEE, Okla., Sept. 17.—The Morning News is being published from its new home. H. G. Spaulding is now publisher, succeeding O. B. Weaver.

Miss Edith Gennett has joined the staff of the Albany (N. Y.) Times-Union.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE

Advertisements under this classification, thirty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

World's Series

Only 2 Base Ball Player Boards unsold. (Sept. 13, 1917.) $300. Sale outright $100 a year for lease for size 6 x 8.

$450. NEW board—8 x 12—or leased, for $125 a year.

Guaranteed best made. Wire at once as next year's prices will be double.

Standard Ball Player Corp., New Bedford, Mass.

Hoe Sextuple Press

Will sell a Hoe right angle sextuple press, which was dismantled some time ago but not re-erected. Has two folders; will print 7 or 8 column papers of 22" column length; 15" diameter cylinders; will print per hour 24,000, 4-4-4-10-12-14-16-18-20-22 or 24 page papers; in excellent condition and can be purchased at a bargain. Address: Mechanical Sup't., The Courier-Journal, Louisville, Ky.

For Sale

Three platen or triple Goss steam table with apron and gas heated steam generator, in first class condition, for sale, $225. F. O. B. Scranton. Times, Scranton, Pa.

EQUIPMENT WANTED

Advertisements under this classification, thirty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Magazine Press Wanted

We are in the market for a magazine press which will print up to 48 pages, size 10¼ x 14⅛ or larger. Press must have capacity of 10,000 to 12,000 or more papers per hour and be equipped with paster or stitcher. Color attachment for 3 colors on cover pages and one or two colors on several inside pages is desirable. If you have such a press communicate with: Mechanical Sup't., Courier-Journal, Louisville, Ky.

Wanted

Will pay cash for Model 1 Linotype or Model A Intertype if machine is in good condition, and price right. Address H. W. W., care of Editor and Publisher, World Building, New York City.

INCORPORATIONS

Herbert S. Wetzler; advertising; $5,000; W. S. Bowker, J. S. Murphy, H. S. Wetzler, 1820 75th street, Brooklyn.

George D. R. Hubbard Company; printing, engraving, lithographing; $25,000; G. D. R. Hubbard, F. E. Webb, E. F. Hills, 154 Nassau street.

Klopper-Cirrkus, Inc., printing; $5,000; E. and R. Klopper, S. Cirrkus, 280 Bradford street, Brooklyn.

Thompson Feature Service; printers and publishers; $30,000; R. S. Thompson, A. L. Fowle, W. P. McLean, 45 West 111th street.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. Veterans Publishing Company; $75,000; W. H. Avis, Michael J. Quinn, Bernard Cuiler, Paul Barnett.

Issued an "Anti-Bolshevik Edition"

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 16.—A special number of the Times, called the "Anti-Bolshevik" Edition, was recently issued with 138 pages. Stories detailing the trend of the movement and designed to stamp out the taint of extreme radicalism were featured. It carried an abundance of advertising.

FOR SALE

Hoe Matrix Rolling Machines in good condition.

Can be shipped at once.

Scott Flat Plate Casting Boxes casts plates 18 x 24 inches. Send for prices.

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY
Plainfield New Jersey

Take It To

POWERS

Open 24 Hours out of 24
The Fastest Engravers on Earth

Powers Photo Engraving Co.
154 Nassau St., Tribune Bldg.
New York City

For Prompt Service

TYPE
Printers' Supplies
Machinery

In Stock for Immediate Shipment by Selling Houses conveniently located

"American Type the Best in Any Case"

AMERICAN TYPE FOUNDERS CO.

Boston	Pittsburgh	Kansas City
New York	Cleveland	Denver
Philadelphia	Detroit	Los Angeles
Baltimore	Chicago	San Francisco
Richmond	Cincinnati	Portland
Atlanta	St. Louis	Spokane
Buffalo	Minneapolis	Winnipeg

Printing Plants and Business BOUGHT AND SOLD

Printers' Outfitters

American Typefounders' Products
Printers and Bookbinders Machinery of Every Description
CONNER, FENDLER & CO.
96 Beekman St. New York City

Makes Vicious Paper Quit

ASTORIA, Ore., Sept. 16.—The News, published by the Central Labor Council, has suspended publication as a result of the campaign made against its radical utterances by the Astoria branch of the American Legion.

Start a Comic in Butte

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 15.—The Saturday Pink has been started here as a humorous publication by Leo F. Reardon, lead of the Butte Miner, who is editor, and George Weatherhead of the Anaconda Standard, business manager.

Digitized by Google

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING COLUMNS

Through the classified columns of EDITOR & PUBLISHER you may find a buyer for any slightly mechanical equipment for which you have no present need. A "For Sale" ad of thirty cents per line may thus turn into cash something which now merely requires storage room—and which would be of real service to somebody else.

SITUATIONS WANTED

Advertisements under this classification, ten cents per line, each insertion. Count six words to the line. For those unemployed, not to exceed 30 words, two insertions FREE.

Advertising Salesman
Seasoned, capable and reliable producer available for well rated publication. Experienced in general, local, trade and export fields; has successfully managed department, also branch office. Large acquaintance New York and Eastern territory; best credentials as regards past letters confidential. Address A-872, care of Editor and Publisher.

Mr. Publisher or Business Manager
Are you satisfied with your present circulation? Do you contemplate a campaign for increased business this fall? This is your opportunity to engage the services of an expert to direct the renewing of your circulation department. Over fifteen years as circulator on morning and evening and Sunday papers east and west. Experienced in every form of circulation development among newsboys, carriers, and city and country dealers. Wide experience in P. E. D. work and contests of every description. Am seeking assistant connection as circulation director, but would consider proposition for special work or city department. Address A-828, care of Editor and Publisher.

Editor-Manager
Will consider position on independent or Republican daily. Now publisher of afternoon paper in small industrial city. In present position since 1914, except 26 months in service as infantry officer, 9 months in France. Result getter. Good business builder. Will produce figures to prove it. Age 34, married, college graduate. Will go anywhere. Salary $5,500 to $6,000, depending on location. Given $600 increase upon return from France, but prefer to locate elsewhere. Age 29; widower. Go anywhere on 60 days' notice, but prefer not. Write A-871, care of Editor and Publisher.

General Reporting
Energetic Christian young man, 32, one time newsboy, seven years high school, National institution, nine months as reporter with aerial publication while in the Army, desires position as reporter on New York City daily. Will definitely go to work there and all the time, know no hours, can furnish excellent references. Address, Live Wire, care Editor and Publisher.

Literary Editor
Wanted—Position as literary editor, or assistant in dramatic or publishing office. Applicant was educated at Harvard, has travelled widely and has a working knowledge of international literature, supplemented with two years training as newspaper man and politician. He is the author of one book and numerous articles. Address A-818, care of Editor and Publisher.

Experienced Copy Editor
Wishes permanent position in New York or Philadelphia; 27 years old, college graduate; can write headlines in any style; will come on probation. C. J. T., care Editor & Publisher.

Editor
Twenty-eight years old; student and special article writer of versatile style; 3 years editor two years; on streets and city desk several years; edited smaller dailies before coming to city; can serve as editorial writer on Southern Democratic paper; salary $40 a week. Address A-872, care of Editor and Publisher.

Newspaper Pressman
wants position as foreman of Pressroom of reference. Address A-872, care of Editor and Publisher.

Circulation Manager
with 12 years' experience desires to make change with daily in good location by October 1st. Thoroughly experienced in all kinds of circulation work. Married. Best of references. Address A-865, care Editor and Publisher.

Circulation Manager
A first class circulation manager who now has charge of that department on a well known paper, desires a change for the best of reasons. For further information address A-876, care of Editor and Publisher.

Webb Pressman
Wanted position as foreman of press room; best of references from well known newspapers. Address A-867, care of Editor and Publisher.

SITUATIONS WANTED

Cartoonist
Young man wants position with Western daily—highest references—political toons and comics. Address A-821, care of Editor and Publisher.

HELP WANTED

Advertisements under this classification, twenty-five cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Wanted
Advertising Copywriter
and Good Salesman
Must be experienced and willing to work. Communicate at once with Louis Fisher, Advertising Manager, Virginian Pilot, Norfolk, Va.

Classified Advertising
Wanted—Man to manage and develop classified advertising for oldest and only evening paper in New York State, city of 100,000 population. Address A-866, care of Editor and Publisher.

Advertising Solicitors and possibly men who can write copy on the evening daily newspaper in large city on Great Lakes. In answering give experience; age; married or single and salary expected to start. Address A-879, care Editor and Publisher.

Reporter
wanted for day work in city of 25,000 population. Experience necessary. Apply immediately. Leader-Republican, Cloversville, N. Y.

Syndicate Manager
to join well known fiction writer to new syndicate enterprise. A-874, care of Editor and Publisher.

Circulation Manager
First-Class Foreign Language Daily Newspaper; the only one in a big, rapid, circulating in the United States and South America; has a splendid opportunity for a first-class experienced circulation manager. This man must be thoroughly capable of handling his department and increase the circulation long enough to assure him the right man can make a permanent connection with the newspaper from this point of both present and future. Address in confidence, A-881, care of Editor and Publisher.

FEATURE SERVICES

Advertisements under this classification, thirty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Pulling Features
Mr. Gunning's booklet information services for dailies and Vital Washington News for weeklies are pulling features. Rates, $1.00 monthly for five features. Raymond Lecraw, 4035 New Hampshire Ave., Washington, D. C.

AD MEN AIM TO BRING LABOR PEACE

(Continued from Page 77.)

few years, has joined with New Orleans in extending a welcome to the convention visitor, and many of the delegations will stop en route to or from the meeting to study its markets.

A. A. C. W. ELECTION UNCERTAIN

F. A. Seiberling Favored for Presidency—Indianapolis for 1920

The election of officers of the A. A. C. W. for the ensuing year is a matter that is exciting much interest. President William C. D'Arcy, of St. Louis, is understood to have declined a renomination and there is no regular slate in the field. F. A. Seiberling, president of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, is being talked of quite widely as the man for the presidency, but he has not signified up to date whether he would accept the nomination.

It looks like Indianapolis for the 1920 convention. It has made the only wholehearted campaign for the honor, although Minneapolis, it is said, would like to win it, too.

Indianapolis has planned and prepared for a big campaign at the convention to convince delegates that the next annual gathering should be held in their city. C. D. Murta, president of the Indianapolis Advertising Club, is chairman of the committee that is fostering this ambition, and the other members of it are Paul Richey of the Russell M. Seeds Agency and federal advertising manager of the Indianapolis News; Merle Sidener, president of the Sidener-Van Riper Advertising Company, and Ernest Cohn, secretary of the Homer McKee Company.

Dallas Ad Men to Be 100 Strong

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 17.—One hundred members of the Dallas Advertising League have signed up to attend the convention of the Associated Ad Clubs of the World, in New Orleans. A special train for the Dallas delegation will leave for Houston Friday before the convention meets. At Houston the train will be joined by other delegations from Texas, and one extension special will be run from Houston to New Orleans.

Texas Relief Map is Shown

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 17.—Much money was expended in the construction of the Texas relief map, which was designed by the publicity department of the Houston Chamber of Commerce, which is now complete and on its way to New Orleans to be exhibited at next week's convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs. Mayor Behrmann has assigned it a prominent place for its exhibition.

New School in Journalism

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17.—Journalism has been added to the course of St. Ignatius' College, this city. Three hours a week will be given to the study, which will be under the direction of Lionel S. Carreon, a scholastic in the Society of Jesus and Professor of English. Thirty sophmores will make up the first class and the course will include several several branches of newspaper making.

Sherman Joins Hartford Times

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 16.—Clifton L. Sherman, who was managing editor of the Courant for about 30 years, has come to the Times in a similar capacity. Capt. Roland F. Andrews, who has been assistant manager of the Times for the past three years, becomes an editorial writer.

Porter to Edit Western Recorder

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 17.—Dr. J. W. Porter of Lexington has been named as managing editor of the Western Recorder, a Baptist religious publication controlled by 250,000 Kentucky Baptists. Dr. E. B. Hatcher of Louisville becomes news editor.

Stops His Paper to Rest

SHERIDAN, Cal., Sept. 8.—Elmer Stoddard, editor of the Advertiser, recently announced that he is planning to suspend publication for two weeks while he takes a vacation.

Ben S. Allen, publisher of the Sacramento Union, recently spoke before the local Ad Club on the subject of gathering news for the Associated Press in London and other foreign cities.

$50,000 for investment in a New York state daily newspaper property. Either politics. Proposition T. F.

Charles M. Palmer
Newspaper Properties
225 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

CONSOLIDATION
is the recognized route to large returns in nearly every line of commercial industry.
We believe that publishing properties offer one of the most attractive of all the fields for merger and consolidation.
We have a record of results in this difficult work that you should investigate.

HARWELL & CANNON
Newspaper and Magazine Properties
Times Building New York

MEN WANTED
by Southern Newspapers
Opportunities are open on southern daily newspapers for competent newspaper men who desire to come south. Men are wanted for positions in all departments.
Address W. C. Johnson, Sec'y, Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association, Chattanooga, Tenn.

San Antonio's New Ad Club Will Fight Fakers

City Needs Cleaning Up in Interests of Honest Advertising. Members Declare in Outlining Purposes

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 15.—A systematic effort to stamp out fraudulent newspaper advertising will be made by the San Antonio Advertising Club, recently organized.

At a meeting held to outline the purposes of organization, R. P. Schermerhorn, who was elected president, cited "fake" oil promoters as having reflected not only on local advertising but on the city.

A representative from the Chamber of Commerce, who was present and offered the help and co-operation of that organization, declared that a vigilance committee should be appointed to put frauds out of business here. He declared that San Antonio has not, in the past, made as big a fight on frauds and crooks as other Texas cities.

L. E. Baldwin, advertising manager of the Saul Wolfson Company, said that honesty should be the watchword of the new organization.

"San Antonio needs a cleaning up in the interests of honest advertising," he said, "and that is going to be one of the duties of our club."

The Greensboro (N. C.) News and the Lancaster (Pa.) New Era have appointed Conc, Lorensen & Woodman as advertising representatives in the United States and Canada.

Digitized by Google

PROMOTIONS REWARD SCRIPPS MEN

D. H. Canfield Made Managing Director of Newspapers—A. O. Andersen Elected President and General Manager of the N. E. A.

(By Telegraph)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 17.—Several promotions and changes have been made in the Scripps newspaper and allied organizations.

At the recent Scripps meeting in San Diego, Cal., D. H. Canfield was promoted to be assistant chairman of the board, with the duties of managing director of the Scripps newspaper concerns.

Upon announcement of this promotion the Newspaper Enterprise Association trustees elected as its president and general manager A. O. Andersen, publisher of the Southwest group of Scripps newspapers. Mr. Andersen took charge of his office today.

Mr. Canfield will establish offices in Cleveland, in the Union National Bank building, where he will be close to the general offices of the more eastern Scripps newspaper group, the Scripps-McRae league. However, it is assumed that his managerial duties will also take him frequently to the Pacific Coast and other points of Scripps newspaper activity.

Clarence M. Cook has resigned as N. E. A. advertising solicitor.

George A. Riley is on a business visit to New York in his capacity as general manager of the Publishers' Autocaster Service Company, which is also a Scripps organization.

MOST FARMERS READ DAILY NEWSPAPERS

(Continued from Page 50.)

1916.

322 farmers received their mail through the local office, of which
308 took the only local paper published here.
124 took one farm paper, 68 English, balance German and Scandinavian.
103 took two farm papers.
91 took three farm papers.
44 took four farm papers.
39 took five farm papers.

1917.

328 farmers received mail through local post-office, of which 312 took local paper.
102 took one farm paper, 72 English, balance foreign languages.
66 took two farm papers.
41 took three farm papers.
33 took four farm papers.
9 took five farm papers.

Another daily paper, this one published in Ohio, stated that the average number of farmers on the R. F. D. route in that section is from 100 to 150, and that the local deliveries of the semi-weekly paper average from 80 to 125 per route.

An Iowa paper stated that its local postoffice had nine rural routes, with an average of 95 boxes to the route and that 746 papers went out regularly on the nine routes.

A Missouri paper wrote:

"There are four rural routes which carry a total of between 400 and 450 mail boxes, and we are putting 284 papers on these routes daily."

The amalgamation of the two leading progressive Jewish newspapers of New York

THE DAY
and
THE WARHEIT

brings into being the most powerful advertising medium in the Jewish field.

דער טאג

The National Jewish Daily

Another Iowa paper expressed itself as follows:

"I am just a little surprised at this day and age that a big concern should ask such a question. There are 20 rural routes in ——— County, in which we are located, with an average of over 100 boxes to the route, and I will venture to say that on all these routes there are not 20 people who do not take a daily paper."

Nearly every newspaper we heard from (and we heard from a large number) testified to the fact that the farmer does read a daily paper, but we were obliged to regard newspapers as prejudiced witnesses, and I have therefore quoted them only in cases where they give us some definite facts to back up their statements.

In citing these facts about the newspaper and the farmer, I do not want to seem to minimize the influence of the agricultural press. I believe in it heartily and we use it regularly. Where the size of our appropriation permits, we use both daily newspapers and farm papers.

Daily Newspapers Ranked First

In the particular instance I have mentioned, we did not have money enough to use both, and we concluded that we could reach the farmer through the daily press.

If we had been interested in the farmer only, the daily press would, of course, have been out of the question. Being interested equally in the city man and the farmer, it appeared ideal for our purpose.

It seems as if there must be somewhere more definite data on this subject than I have been able to secure. If anyone has such information, I know that it would be of great value to us, and I haven't any doubt that it would be of equal value to many other advertisers.

If such data does not exist in definite and tabulated form, perhaps some organization, probably a newspaper association, might see fit to consider making an investigation to secure it.

Notables at Salesmen's Dinner

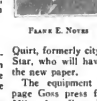
CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Jack Lait, celebrated playwright and colyumist of the Chicago Tribune, together with Sidney Smith, the Tribune's nationally-familiar cartoonist, were speakers and guests of honor at the annual banquet of the Associated Chicago Salesmen of Men's and Boys' Wear, last evening. Wilbur D. Nesbit, of the Rankin Advertising Agency, was toastmaster for the occasion.

William B. Maroney, of the Amsterdam (N. Y.) Recorder, has been placed in nomination for the office of mayor at the election in November.

R. J. Bidwell Co

Pacific Coast Representative

Daily Newspapers
of
"Advertising Value"



Rates, Circulation, Special Data,
Promptly Upon Request

PACIFIC COAST OFFICES
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SAN FRANCISCO SEATTLE
742 Market St. 1302 L. C. Smith Bldg.

F. E. Noyes Plans to Start a Daily in Michigan

Well Known Publisher of Marinette (Wis.) Eagle-Star Sees Bright Future in Town of Ironwood

IRONWOOD, Mich., Sept. 15.—The Globe Publishing Company has been formally organized to give this city a metropolitan daily newspaper. The company is stocked by $42,000, the building held by Frank E. Noyes and H. C. Hanson of the Marinette (Wis.) Eagle-Star, and the Eagle Printing Company of that city, with a working interest by Howard A. Quirt, formerly city editor of the Eagle-Star, who will have editorial charge of the new paper.

FRANK E. NOYES

The equipment consists of the 32-page Goss press formerly used by the Milwaukee Free Press, together with four late models of Linotypes and other up-to-date equipment. Ironwood is the metropolis of the Gogebic Iron range, the richest iron district in the world, and has a population of over 18,000, while the population within a radius of thirteen miles is over 45,000. The nearest daily publication is at Ashland, Wis., forty miles away, while the other metropolitan papers do not reach here until late at night for evening and late in the afternoon for morning papers.

The new paper will be served by the Associated Press and will appear about the middle of October.

Form Bureau to Cover Legislature

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 17.—The special session of the Minnesota legislature in St. Paul is being covered by the Twin City Legislative bureau for the St Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press and Minneapolis Journal and Tribune. The bureau comprises W. T. Bell of the Dispatch-Pioneer Press (in charge), Theodore Lawrence of the Journal and Don Stetson of the Tribune.

Food Medium
of
New Jersey
Trenton Times
A. B. C.
2c—12c Per Week
KELLY-SMITH COMPANY
20 Fifth Avenue Lytton Building
NEW YORK CHICAGO

Canadian Press Clippings

The problem of covering the Canadian Field is answered by obtaining the service of

The Dominion Press
Clipping Agency

which gives the clippings on all matters of interest to you, printed in over 95 per cent. of the newspapers and publications of CANADA.

We cover every part of Canada and Newfoundland at our head office,

74-76 Church St., Toronto, Can.

Price of service, regular press clipping rates—special rates and discounts to Trade and Newspapers.

OREGON IS PLANNING TO ADVERTISE

Newspaper Space Throughout Nation Will Be Used in Campaign Now Being Organized Among Counties of State

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 17.—Oregon's agricultural resources probably will be given publicity in a nation-wide newspaper advertising campaign financed through the individual counties of the State. A plan of campaign has been mapped out by the State Chamber of Commerce and has received the approval of Governor Olcott and other state officials. It will be presented at a state meeting of county commissioners, who will refer it to their respective counties for action.

Each county court will be asked to appropriate a minimum of $1,000 to be placed in a general fund and expended by a central committee. It is expected that at least $50,000 will be raised.

Had Mayor at Tea

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 16.—An editorial dinner, indulged in by the Dispatch-Pioneer Press staff in the Dispatch room, the speaker was Laurance C. Paitch tea room, the speaker was Laurence C. Hodgson ("Larry Ho"), mayor of the city and former member of this staff.

Allen Returns to Oregon

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 15.—Eric W. Allen has resumed his duties as head of the department of journalism of the University of Oregon after filling a similar position at the summer school of the University of California.

BUFFALO NEWS
EDWARD H. BUTLER
Editor and Publisher
"The only Buffalo newspaper that censors its advertising columns. Many of our advertisers use our columns exclusively. The above is one of the many reasons why."
MEMBER A. B. C.
Foreign Advertising Representatives
KELLY-SMITH COMPANY
220 Fifth Avenue Lytton Building
NEW YORK CHICAGO

We can increase your business—you want it increased.

You have thought of press clippings yourself. But let us tell you how press clipping can be made a business-builder far you.

BURRELLE
145 Lafayette St., N. Y. City
Established a Quarter of a Century

Hemstreet's
PRESS
CLIPPINGS
Tenth Avenue at 45th Street
New York

Digitized by Google

Win New York State

—and you are Half Through with a National Campaign

Co-operate With Local Dealers

Co-operation is a great word! Expresses a wonderful idea! Visualizes a tremendous thought! Spells great opportunities! Great! Great!! Theoretically.

Co-operation between manufacturers and retailers—theoretically—has been the means of building a number of fortunes for publishers of national media.

Co-operation between manufacturers and retailers—theoretically has been the means of killing a great number of potential advertisers because while it is a most alluring proposition—theoretically it rarely works out practically.

This however is not the fault of the theory. It is rather the fault of the way manufacturers have tried to work it.

The cart has been put before the horse!

A prominent National Advertiser in speaking of the theory of co-operation once said "Co-operation is all right if the retailers would only co-operate with the manufacturers."

He is right—absolutely right. And by the same token "Co-operation is all right if the manufacturers would only co-operate with the retailers." Retailers—home holks—making the final sale to other home folks go to these home folks through the columns of their daily newspaper.

These same retailers can and will co-operate if the National Advertiser will only localize his sales appeal through the local newspaper so that the local retailer may get the full benefit from advertising. This is practical co-operation.

The accompanying newspapers will properly introduce your goods at the firesides of Home Folks where the buying habit is usually created.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
Albany Knickerbocker Press (M)	33,559	.07	.07
Albany Knickerbocker Press (S)	43,957	.07	.07
*Batavia News (E)	8,458	.0225	.0225
Binghamton Press-Leader (E)	26,546	.07	.06
*Brooklyn Daily Eagle (E)	46,902	.18	.18
*Brooklyn Daily Eagle (S)	69,046	.18	.18
*Brooklyn Standard-Union (E)	53,264	.15	.15
*Brooklyn Standard-Union (S)	58,929	.15	.15
Buffalo Courier & Enquirer (M&E)	70,626	.15	.12
Buffalo Courier (S)	115,359	.17	.15
Buffalo Evening News (E)	103,634	.16	.16
Buffalo Evening Times (E)	56,961	.10	.10
Buffalo Sunday Times (S)	71,435	.10	.10
*Corning Evening Leader (E)	7,077	.03	.025
Elmira Star-Gazette (E)	25,889	.06	.05
Glens Falls Post-Star (M)	8,045	.0214	.0214
Gloversville Leader-Republican (E)	6,275	.02	.02
Gloversville Morning Herald (M)	6,345	.03	.02
Ithaca Journal (E)	8,791	.025	.025
*Jamestown Morning Post (M)	9,131	.025	.02071
*Mount Vernon Daily Argus (E)	7,193	.02	.02
Newburgh News (E)	10,513	.04	.03
New York American (M)	305,241	.50	.41
New York American (S)	917,270	.75	.65
New York Globe (E)	179,906	.39	.36
†New York Herald (M)	107,642	.40	.36
†New York Herald (S)		.50	.45
New York Evening Journal (E)	675,118	.75	.75
New York Post (E)	32,369	.25	.20
New York Sun (E)	194,695	.39	.36
†New York Sun (M)	117,414	.39	.36
†New York Sun (S)
†New York Telegram (E)	190,681	.342	.315
†New York Telegram (S)		.266	.225
New York Times (M)	350,598	.50	.485
New York Times (S)	500,000	.55	.5335
New York Tribune (M)	108,011	.32	.28
New York Tribune (S)
New York World (E)	355,069	.50	.50
New York World (M)	333,513	.50	.50
New York World (S)	569,762	.40	.40
Niagara Falls Gazette (E)	12,454	.035	.035
Poughkeepsie Star (E)	9,920	.03214	.025
*Rochester Times-Union (E)	67,121	.14	.12
Rochester Herald (M)	35,826	.06	.06
Rome Sentinel (E)	5,353	.0179	.0157
Schenectady Union Star (E)	17,660	.08	.04
Syracuse Journal (E)	45,030	.08	.08
Troy Record (M&E)	25,537	.04	.04
Yonkers Daily News (E)	3,640	.0178	.0178
*A. B. C. Statements April 1st, 1919. Government statements April 1st, 1919.
Total Circulation			6,886,236
10,000 Line Rate			9.4266
2,500 Line Rate			10.1597

†Seven-day average.

Digitized by Google

New York Advertising Situation

A Summary of the Use of Space by the Twenty Leading Retail Shops in the Daily Papers During August.

Evening Newspapers

	World	Journal	Globe	Mail	Sun	Telegram	Post	Total
Abraham & Straus	—	6,680	6,300	—	6,300	—	—	19,280
Altman	5,394	5,829	5,418	5,426	5,444	5,371	5,414	38,296
Arnold, Constable	—	—	7,200	7,080	7,200	—	7,128	28,608
Best	4,041	4,110	3,956	—	3,290	—	—	15,397
Bloomingdale	12,260	12,274	8,650	9,265	—	—	—	42,449
Bonwit Teller	244	543	840	538	550	—	—	2,414
Gidding	—	860	1,835	600	4,152	700	1,402	9,349
Gimbel	—	33,404	23,290	—	31,985	—	—	97,688
Hearn	18,029	17,871	12,619	14,694	15,629	14,716	—	96,558
Loeser	—	7,425	1,770	—	3,292	—	—	12,487
Lord & Taylor	16,234	—	13,492	3,570	15,607	—	1,300	50,103
McCreery	19,697	—	14,572	16,152	18,054	2,074	2,630	74,519
Macy	24,185	23,935	25,101	24,685	—	14,430	9,626	121,962
Oppenheim, Collins	6,265	6,320	5,686	—	3,614	—	800	22,685
Franklin Simon	570	570	—	—	570	—	—	1,710
Stanley & MacGibbons	—	—	3,248	—	3,280	—	—	6,528
Stern	9,753	840	9,312	6,993	9,111	—	4,395	40,404
Stewart	—	2,480	1,626	—	2,140	—	—	6,246
Worth	10,500	10,500	10,530	—	—	—	—	31,530
Wanamaker	23,265	19,350	25,139	—	25,425	17,616	—	110,795
Total	150,437	152,990	193,443	89,003	155,643	54,907	32,585	829,008

Morning Newspapers—Six Days, Excluding Sundays

	World	American	Herald	Times	Sun	Tribune	Total
Abraham & Straus	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Altman	1,948	2,286	1,000	2,266	1,105	1,105	9,800
Arnold, Constable	—	—	—	—	—	7,089	7,089
Best	2,976	—	—	3,088	—	3,012	9,076
Bloomingdale	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Bonwit Teller	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Gidding	1,868	1,360	3,560	4,230	—	3,824	14,842
Gimbel	1,675	420	—	7,512	—	950	10,557
Hearn	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Loeser	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Lord & Taylor	708	—	580	4,862	—	700	6,850
McCreery	330	—	300	2,468	1,986	—	5,084
Macy	8,733	—	—	—	9,398	8,656	26,787
Oppenheim, Collins	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Franklin Simon	1,854	—	1,125	2,563	1,325	1,498	8,365
Stanley & MacGibbons	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Stern	5,939	—	—	5,840	—	—	11,779
Stewart	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Worth	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Wanamaker	—	—	27,350	—	24,600	24,190	76,140
Total	26,031	4,066	34,005	32,829	38,414	51,015	186,360

Sunday Newspapers

	World	American	Herald	Times	Sun	Tribune	Total
Abraham & Straus	3,920	10,080	3,990	6,546	4,080	5,225	33,841
Altman	5,600	5,600	5,880	4,920	6,000	5,900	33,900
Arnold, Constable	—	6,720	7,056	—	7,200	—	20,976
Best	2,752	1,200	—	7,117	—	—	11,069
Bloomingdale	3,945	14,111	—	9,872	—	—	27,928
Bonwit Teller	—	—	5,596	6,682	4,280	5,730	22,288
Gidding	2,080	2,300	3,128	2,574	2,966	2,710	15,758
Gimbel	16,623	16,045	—	18,550	—	14,700	65,918
Hearn	16,399	16,362	5,985	—	—	10,225	48,971
Loeser	3,640	8,680	3,420	7,400	4,000	4,400	31,540
Lord & Taylor	10,826	—	10,702	11,671	1,523	3,108	37,830
McCreery	13,540	—	10,182	12,514	11,775	—	48,011
Macy	17,396	10,430	9,300	—	9,600	9,440	49,876
Oppenheim, Collins	5,666	5,647	4,264	4,537	—	—	20,054
Franklin Simon	6,785	—	9,724	12,191	1,859	10,669	41,228
Stanley & MacGibbons	—	200	—	1,162	—	—	1,362
Stern	7,280	4,752	6,350	8,120	4,843	—	31,345
Stewart	300	—	940	6,655	1,556	—	9,451
Worth	7,500	—	—	—	—	5,090	12,590
Wanamaker	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Total	117,102	102,127	86,517	120,511	59,682	77,107	563,046

Member A. B. C.

THE NEW YORK GLOBE
JASON ROGERS, Publisher

180,000 a Day

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 — The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America — 1919

SUITE 1117 WORLD BUILDING, NEW YORK

Entered as second-class matter May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879

Weekly: $3.00 a Year; 10c Per Copy. NEW YORK, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1919 Vol. 52, No. 18

Stanford University Library OCT 14 1919

One Page Ad in the Chicago Sunday Tribune consumes ten thousand eight hundred (10,800) pounds of paper, and one hundred and fifty-four (154) pounds of ink —about five and one-half tons of raw material.

And it reaches one-fifth of the families of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin — the world's most desirable market.

There are several hundred newspapers in the Dominion of Canada. According to the Canadian Export Paper Company, they use approximately two hundred and fifty (250) tons of news print per day.

From six to seven hundred tons of paper are used in printing each issue of The Chicago Sunday Tribune — the world's greatest newspaper.

A new book entitled TANGIBLE CIRCULATION pictures the circulation of The Chicago Tribune from every angle in forty-four pages closely packed with maps and statistical tables. It will be sent free on request to any agent or advertiser.

The Chicago Tribune

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Digitized by Google

PENNSYLVANIA

Now is a particularly propitious time for all of us to realize that the steel industry is not all there is to Pennsylvania—not by a long shot.

While the people of that state are attempting to adjust labor difficulties in that industry the people will go right on producing 150,000,000 tons of bituminous coal.

95,000,000 tons of anthracite coal.
22,000,000 tons of coke.
8,000,000 barrels of petroleum.
63,000,000 bushels of corn.
35,000,000 bushels of oats.
30,000,000 bushels of potatoes.
25,000,000 bushels of wheat.
12,150,000 bushels of apples.
6,500,000 bushels of buckwheat.
4,425,000 bushels of rye.
4,500,000 tons of hay.
60,000,000 pounds of tobacco.
$80,000,000 worth of woolen goods.

These products alone are stupendous enough to make any state a great state. They are all of them produced just now to go into a receptive market, a market where prices are high and the demand brisk.

Pennsylvania, industrially is a veritable keystone state, and no one branch of industry can put the state out of the running as a commercial prospect.

Now, perhaps, more than ever, the daily newspapers of Pennsylvania will be productive, for the people, no matter what line of work they follow, will be intensely interested in the industrial situation, and daily newspapers, local daily newspapers, will have the first call with everyone.

National advertisers using local daily newspapers in Pennsylvania will keep right in the front rank of interest.

These daily newspapers are doing splendid co-operative work for many national advertisers. You will profit by a liberal use of their space.

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Allentown Call (M)	22,175	.04	.04
*Altoona Mirror (E)	23,676	.05	.05
Altoona Times (M)	14,940	.025	.025
Bethlehem Globe (E)	6,766	.025	.025
*Chester Times & Republican(M & E)	14,177	.04	.03
Connellsville Courier (E)	6,888	.015	.025
*Easton Express (E)	11,096	.02	.02
Easton Free Press (E)	15,455	.0285	.0285
Erie Herald (E)	8,632	.02	.02
Erie Herald (S)	8,491	.02	.02
Harrisburg Telegraph (E)	28,910	.045	.045
Johnstown Democrat (M)	9,841	.03	.025
Johnstown Leader (E)	8,039	.015	.015
Lancaster Intelligencer & News-Journal (M & E)	22,016	.05	.05
Lebanon Daily News	8,349	.0179	.0179
New Castle News (E)	13,411	.025	.025
Oil City Derrick (M)	6,135	.023	.018
Philadelphia Record (M)	123,277	.25	.25
Philadelphia Record (S)	133,680	.25	.25
Pittsburgh Dispatch (M)	54,810	.12	.08
Pittsburgh Dispatch (S)		.19	.14
Pottsville Republican (E)	10,797	.04	.03
Scranton Republican (M)	27,130	.08	.07
Scranton Times (E)	36,861	.08	.07
West Chester Local News (E)	11,926	.03	.03
Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader (E)	19,376	.05	.035
*Williamsport Sun (E)	16,110	.05	.035
York Gazette (M)	15,626	.03	.03
Total	676,862	1.6323	1.4418

Government statement April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. statement April 1st, 1919.

If the Sphinx Could Speak

The Answer To Your Newspaper Problems Would Be

NEA

WRITE OR WIRE

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSOCIATION

A SERVICE — NOT A SYNDICATE

CLEVELAND, O.

Digitized by Google

Philadelphia

What is the best newspaper in which to advertise reliable financial announcements?

The newspaper which reaches the most investors, of course!

"The Bulletin" is the favorite newspaper of Philadelphia's financial and commercial executives.

Its reliable market reports issued immediately on the close of the New York and Philadelphia exchanges are sought for daily by both the "big" and "little" investors and traders.

Practically every important stock, bond or other financial announcement intended for the Philadelphia investing public usually appears in "The Bulletin."

Dominate Philadelphia

Create maximum impression at one cost by concentrating in the newspaper "nearly everybody" reads—

The Bulletin

Net Paid Average for August 448,246 Copies a Day

No prize, premium, coupon or other artificial methods of circulation stimulation have ever been used by "The Bulletin."

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Thursday--forms closing at 2 P. M. on the Wednesday preceding the date of publication--by The Editor & Publisher Co., Suite 1117, N. Y. World Bldg., 63 Park Row, N. Y. City. Private Branch Telephone Exchange, Beekman 4330. James Wright Brown, President; Fenton Dowling, Secretary

Vol. 52 NEW YORK, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1919 No. 18

BLAZE WAY FOR CLOSER RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE THREE AMERICAS

Pan-American Conference Is Established by A.A.C.W.—Editor & Publisher's Advocacy of Closer Brotherhood Between Newspaper Makers and Advertisers of All Nations Is Given Great Impetus at New Orleans.

AMERICA'S extended hand of international business brotherhood, world understanding and help was grasped sincerely and great impetus was given EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S advocacy of a "World League of Newspapers" last week by the establishment of a Pan-American Advertising Conference by the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, meeting in convention at New Orleans.

With a full realization of America's new place as a world leader, advertising men from every section of the country—men whose very business it is to know the heartbeats of the nation—who earlier in the week indorsed President Wilson's League of Nations, reached out the welcome to members of their craft from Mexico, South America, Canada and England and asked them to join in helping make printed words blaze truth.

In more ways than one the new order of things was felt at the meeting in the southern metropolis. Newspapers—the nerve centers of communities and nations—took their place, first.

New Responsibilities

John Barrett, director-general of the Pan-American Union, sounded a note of awakening to the new Latin-American responsibilities that demand our immediate consideration, which met applause of approval and immediate action that will mean bringing together annually the leaders whose thoughts are expressed in printed words—leaders from all of North America, South America, Central America, England and probably other countries at future conventions.

One morning session of the convention was given over almost entirely to consideration of international and more especially Pan-American affairs, a number of Latin-American delegates addressing the meeting.

Chairman Herbert S. Houston, speaking on the significance of initiative, paid his respects to the Latin-Americans present, and then said that American advertising men had recognized their world obligations and had assumed them. He said in part:

"We have here created for the first time in the history of this organization a definite international organization and body to be closely co-ordinated and articulated with this organization, for I have great pleasure to announce that yesterday there was formed the Pan-American Advertising Conference, made up of representatives of all of the republics in the Western Hemisphere and that Pan-American Advertising Conference represented on this platform this morning by distinguished journalists and business men of Latin-America is de facto organization now articulated and a part of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World."

At the conclusion of his remarks, John Yavasour Noel, executive secretary of the Pan-American Conference, read the resolution which had brought that division into being at the special session held on Wednesday afternoon.

Telling Points

John Barrett made the principal address at the general session and aroused the delegates to their new responsibilities in world fellowship, especially in its relationship to the three Americas. The telling points of his address were:

1—Representation, upon invitation, of Pan-American delegates at future meetings of the American Newspaper Publishers Associations, the Associated Press and other press association meetings and meetings of other organizations pertaining to newspaper making and advertising, and the setting aside of one or more days to discuss Pan-American questions.

2—Co-operate for and encourage representative publishers, editors and advertising men of Latin-America to visit the United States.

3—Have American publishers, editors and advertising men become acquainted with Latin-American conditions and viewpoint by organized pilgrimages into the other Americas.

4—International newspaper makers' organizations with North, South and Central America membership.

5—Establishment of a Pan-American section and Latin-American information bureau in the New York headquarters of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

6—Greater exchange of news between the Americas.

7—Holding of a great meeting of editors and shapers of public opinion of the Americas at an early date to discuss frankly Pan-American friendship, politics, commerce, co-operation and all other matters of common interest.

Probably no other single action, relative to general affairs, since the organization of the A. A. C. W. has attracted such wide-spread attention as the step into world affairs in full accord with the progress of our time.

The resolution, adopted at the Pan-American meeting Wednesday afternoon and read before the convention by Mr. Noel, first provides for a Pan-American Commercial Conference to be held the next annual convention at Indianapolis, when the permanent form purpose and ways and means of support and direction of this Pan-American Conference will be determined, as well as its relationship to the general organization of the Associated Advertising Clubs.

Aims Set Forth

These aims in the form of a resolution were read by the secretary at the Wednesday meeting, and in order to be discussed, were duly accepted, upon motion of Ira Enrique Gil, representing La Nacion of Buenos Ayres, and seconded by Senor Massagner, publisher of Social.

During the discussion that followed Senor Felix F. Palavicini, editor of El Universal of Mexico City, approved fully the excellently prepared resolutions, and called attention to the wisdom of preparing Latin-American publishers for the advertising that will come from the United States and from European nations in competition with them now that the world war is over.

Senor Emilio Garisa, representing La Revista de Yucatan, speaking for himself and his colleague, Senor Arnar, also supported the motion, as well as Dr. Enrique Gil, who spoke about the good will being a valued asset desired by all, and which the present initiative had greatly helped. Senior Massaquer also gave his full support to the resolution and related some of his experience with advertising conditions in Cuba.

Pan-American Ideals

Senor Manuel I. Levada, vice-president of El Heraldo de Mexico, in approving the resolution, added that the committee was carrying out real Pan-American ideals, that his will advertise in Latin America the spirit of the United States and vice versa, tell the public of the United States something about people of Latin-America.

Mr. Hussey, who is publisher of La Revista del Mundo, of New York City, discussed the question in general and introduced Mr. Sidener, Chairman of the National Vigilance Committee of the A. A. C. W., who stated that with the co-operation of the Pan-American Committee, the Vigilance Committee had become a great international organization, all aiming to preach the great doctrine of honesty in advertising.

He spoke at length about the methods followed in this country which could be in a general way adapted to Latin-American conditions for the purpose of eliminating fraudulent advertisers.

Senor Rafael Aldrein, managing editor of Excelsior, read a very able paper on the general subject under discussion and gave some interesting facts and valuable suggestions.

The secretary read a telegram from Ernest Y. Simonovitz of New York, a noted authority on Latin-American publishing matters, who expressed his regret at not being able to be present, and sympathized fully with the aims and purposes of the conference.

Dr. Enrique Gil submitted an interesting paper on Argentine advertising conditions, and also a cable message from Senor Jorge Mitre, publisher of La Nacion, of Buenos Ayres, who expressed his full sympathy with the work of the organization, and wished it success. Dr. Gil also offered a constructive resolution, which was duly approved, asking Mr. Sidener, chairman of the National Vigilance Committee to help

(Continued on page 28).

LATIN-AMERICAN newspaper makers and advertising men, with some of their American friends, attending the laying of the corner stone for the new Times-Picayune building at New Orleans. William D'Arcy, retiring president of the A. A. C. W., was master of ceremonies. In the picture are:

Top row, left to right: Jose J. Pesquer, Consul-General of Mexico at New Orleans; Herbert S. Houston, vice-president, Doubleday-Page Company; Lamar C. Quintero, Consul-General of Costa Rica and dean of New Orleans Consular Corps; Manuel Cornejo, editor, El Heraldo, Mexico City; Felix Palavicini, editor, El Universal, Mexico City; D. D. Moore, editor and manager, New Orleans Times-Picayune; Enrique Gil, Buenos Aires representative, La Nacion, Buenos Aires. Lower row, left to right: Jaime Baccarrus, Havana; C. W. Massaguer, Havana; Manuel J. Zevada, Mexico City; John Barrett, director general, Pan American Union; Martin Behrman, mayor of New Orleans; Lic Emilio Garcia Fajardo, La Revista, Yucatan.

Digitized by Google

TOLEDO ADVERTISING CLUB IS DECLARED WINNER OF TROPHY FOR BEST WAR WORK

A. A. C. W. Committee Also Makes Awards to Cleveland Club for "Better Business" Activities and to Chicago Women's Club.

THE HANDSOME TROPHY which, it was announced at the San Francisco convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World last year, would be awarded to that club which led in service to the nation during the war, was presented to the Toledo Advertising Club, during the convention last week at New Orleans. The trophy, which was the gift of the Advertising Club of St. Louis, was won by the Toledo Club by excellent work in advertising war loans.

Two other awards were made. A "Truth" trophy, offered by the Advertising Club of Baltimore, for the best work done for the "truth-in-advertising" movement by any of the sixteen clubs having "Better Business Bureaus," was won by the Cleveland Advertising Club. A trophy offered by the Los Angeles Women's Advertising Club for the best work done during the year by any women's club in the national organization, was won by the Women's Advertising Club of Chicago.

Advertising Helped Toledo Go "Over the Top"

In awarding the St. Louis trophy for war work to the Toledo Club, Herbert S. Houston, chairman of the committee on awards, said the advertising copy prepared for war loans by the Toledo organization was "full of a patriotic fervor and a moving sentiment that were simply irresistible."

"I think it is quite in order to state," he continued, "that seasoned advertising men though the judges were, not a single man read these advertisements prepared by the Toledo Club without tears coming to his eyes and a quick beat to his pulse and a feeling that he would immediately respond up to his last dollar had he been a citizen of Toledo. The committee was in no degree surprised that, largely as a result of these remarkable advertising campaigns, that Toledo was the first American city to go 'over the top' in reaching its quota in the fourth and fifth government loan campaigns—the only two campaigns that came within the scope of this competition. It is proper to remark, however, that Toledo was the first to go 'over the top' in the third campaign as well.

Paved Way for Salesmen

"In speaking of the campaign having a creative quality, the committee wishes to direct special attention to a most effective and unusual feature. The Toledo Club prepared and sent to France a full-page advertisement for the 'Stars & Stripes,' the famous paper of the American Expeditionary Forces and arranged to have this page advertisement held awaiting cable advices to release it. This advertisement had this striking caption—'Toledo Once Again Leads All United States Cities on Fourth Liberty Loan.' Then a striking page advertisement was used in the Toledo papers urging Toledo to make the insertion of this advertisement possible.

"The campaign did not merely consist of newspaper copy, but it was in the truest sense a broadly conceived campaign that took advantage of every advertising medium, billboards, street cars, direct-by-mail advertising, and motion pictures.

"The Toledo Club modestly and properly does not take all the credit for the success of the city in being the first to fully subscribe its quota in these first two loans, but it does lay proper stress on the fact that the advertising was so well conceived, co-ordinated and executed that it prepared the way for the Toledo Liberty Loan organization of 6,000 salesmen so that this organization was able to sell $18,600,000 worth of bonds in just five days' time from the date the loan started on September 28. While this was considerably beyond its quota, an effort was made to set a new quota of 95,000 subscriptions which, due largely to the close relationship between the advertising and the selling, the effort was reached and exceeded before the end of the drive.

Reproduction of trophy won by the Advertising Club of Toledo for having done the most valuable Government co-operation work from June 1, 1918, to June 1, 1919. This bronze plaque, presented by the St. Louis Advertising Club, is 33 by 28 inches in size. The flags are enameled in red, white and blue. The base is of mahogany.

An After-War Campaign

"The condition made by the St. Louis Club in awarding this trophy stipulated that the committee should take into consideration after-the-war advertising during the period of readjustment precisely as it took into consideration war advertising. This consideration was carefully respected by the Toledo Club, and in the complete exhibit made after the war of its claims in the contents, it submitted the advertising that was done in the 'after the war period.'

"After the signing of the armistice, the Toledo Club inaugurated an advertising campaign that appeared in all the daily newspapers of Toledo under the caption—'Toledo, Let's Go,' and bearing the slogan, 'Double Your Effort in Double-Nineteen.' This campaign definitely resulted in creating the right kind of optimism for starting the New Year after the war. The Toledo newspapers were unanimous in their reports that the club's campaign had this remarkable feature in producing confidence, resiliency and courage to go forward.

"This was a climax to this wonderfully rounded out campaign the club erected at Union station in Toledo a large welcome sign as a greeting to the boys as they arrived home from the war. This sign, which was brilliantly illuminated at night, bore this legend—'You Have Done This Job. Welcome Home, Boys. Toledo Will Not Forget.'

"The committee in making this award wishes to not merely express its unanimous opinion as to the character of this campaign, but it wishes to express a deep sense of pride on behalf of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World that an Advertising Club and its membership should have conceived and executed a campaign that represented the very highest standards of advertising and that produced results even beyond 100 per cent."

Truth Trophy Award

In awarding the Baltimore Truth Trophy to the Cleveland Club, the chairman of the trophy committee called attention to the fact that the club had obtained subscriptions of $33,000 to finance the work of its Better Business Commission, and that from the time of the founding of this commission only two subscribers had been lost—these being public service corporations.

"In the work along financial lines," the chairman's report continued, "the plan developed in Cleveland in respect to work against 'get rich quick' concerns was so effective that it was adopted by the Capital Issues Committee in Washington and applied in all the Federal Reserve districts of the country. The essential feature of this work was the immediate sending of an extremely comprehensive questionnaire to every concern that offered stock in the Cleveland district by advertising. This questionnaire is a model which the committee would like to commend for general adoption among all the clubs.

"The banks of Cleveland, the merchants of Cleveland and the newspapers of Cleveland have united in bearing most convincing witness both to the entire fairness of the work of the Better Business Commission and the great results which that work secured."

Under the stipulations governing the award of the Women's Club Trophy, it was provided that service to the Government should be made the first condition and that the committee should also take into consideration the work done by these clubs in educating women to the appreciation of advertising; to establish greater co-operation between dealer and consumer, to developing efficiency of individual members; and to increasing the size, prestige, and influence of the clubs.

In awarding the trophy to the Women's Advertising Club of Chicago, the chairman of the award committee reported:

"While this club submitted evidence under each one of these conditions, the committee feels that it should particularly refer to what was done in support of the Women's Liberty Loan Committee of the Seventh Federal District. This committee made an appeal for volunteers to write a booklet to be used in connection with the government loan and for bond saleswomen in the Liberty Loan campaign.

"As a result of this two booklets were produced by the Women's Advertising Club of Chicago, one of which, 'The First Service Star,' published in Chicago for the Third Liberty Loan, was adopted by the Treasury Department and 3,000,000 copies of it were published and distributed throughout the nation in connection with the Fourth Loan, and, in addition to this, some valuable work was done in preparing copy for advertisements in the daily newspapers, which were handed to the Liberty Loan Advertisement Department and adopted.

"The general work of the club in respect to building up efficiency in its membership and in regard to the other conditions named, was of a high order

Praise For Competitors

"But while the committee awards the Los Angeles trophy to Chicago, it must not forget this opportunity to speak of the varied and effective work done by the League of Advertising Women of New York. In particular, the League must be commended for the extremely excellent character of its bulletin. It has done in building up the efficiency and technique of its members, and the League should be further commended for what it has done in increasing the size and influence of its own organization and women's clubs in general.

"While the Women's Advertising Club of St. Louis did not cover so wide a range of activities, it is a great pleasure for the committee to say that its work was along good lines and that much that was accomplished is deserving of high praise."

PROMOTION FOR C. B. TRAVIS

Made District Traveling Representative in Southwest for Hearst

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 28.—Charles B. Travis, for the past five years bureau manager of the International News Service in Kansas City, has been made district traveling representative of the Hearst interests, both news and feature, with headquarters here. Mr. Travis is well known in newspaper circles of this section, because of his long connection with newspapers in the midwest. His territory is one of the largest in the country, including the entire Southwest, a part of the Central west and the Northwest.

O. K. Morrison, former telegraph editor of the Leavenworth (Kans.) Times, and for a number of years with the Associated Press, has been made assistant manager of the Kansas City I. N. S. bureau and will have charge of the I. N. S. office in the absence of Mr. Travis from the city. J. S. Lewis will remain in charge of the Universal bureau. The promotion of Mr. Travis is a tribute to his long and efficient service with the I. N. S.

Attacked by Negroes

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 26.—Edward J. Webster, former publicity agent for the Oklahoma State Health Department and later with the State Corporation Commission, was found wounded on the streets here, where he said he had been attacked by negroes. He is well known to Oklahoma newspapermen.

Digitized by Google

BASIS FOR NEW STANDARDS OF PRACTICE FORMED BY NEWSPAPER DEPARTMENTAL

New Orleans Session Most Beneficial Ever Held — President Miller Will Have Board of Noted Workers to Help Him—Vice-Presidents Will Organize State Bodies—Co-operation the Keynote of 1920 Program

(BY TELEGRAPH)

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 25.

THE Newspaper Departmental program of the A. A. C. W. convention was a tremendous success from every standpoint and members return to their homes with a new vision and clear idea of what they are going to do in the coming year and with a definite program.

The keynote of this new order is co-operation with each other for the establishment of standardization on the right business lines for publishing daily newspapers.

The sessions throughout were marked by a large attendance and intense interest in discussions looking to standardization of practices. About 200 newspaper and advertising men, with some Southern and Eastern newspaper publishers and proprietors, were in attendance. All sessions were executive, and Secretary Miller, provoked a smile on Monday by delaying the opening nearly an hour in order that he might collect dues—$10 per member covering expenses of postage, stenographic work, etc. His insistence resulted in the collection of $450. The department now has a membership of 154.

Officers for 1920

Walter G. Bryan, of Atlanta, who has just been made publisher of the New York American, was chairman of the departmental and Charlie Miller of the Birmingham News, was secretary and treasurer.

The feature was easily the earnest discussions of twenty topics, suggested by a questionnaire, recently published in EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

The officers and directors were elected at the closing session today, as follows:

President, Charlie Miller, Birmingham News; secretary and treasurer, Fred Mullis, Indianapolis Star.

Vice-presidents, representing territorial divisions: Pacific Coast, W. J. Hoffman, Portland Oregonian; South Atlantic States, A. J. Knight, Richmond Times-Dispatch; Middle Western States George M. Burbach, St. Louis Post-Dispatch; North Atlantic States, Elmer S. Horton, Providence Journal; South, Lawrence A. Foley, Memphis Commercial-Appeal; Canadian, George B. Cooper, Edmonton Journal.

Directors: Burt Garstin, Louisville Courier-Journal and Times; A. L. Shuman, Fort Worth Star-Telegram; C. H. Brockhagen, Oakland Enquirer; John B. Woodward, Chicago Daily News; Frank D. Webb, Baltimore News, and W. A. Beatty, Lexington Herald.

Representatives on National Commission: Arthur G. Newmyer, New Orleans Item, and Walter G. Bryan, New York American.

President William H. Johns, of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, addressed the departmental with respect to the Navy's advertising campaign to secure 25,000 recruits of high standard—physically, mentally and morally—between October 1 and January 1. He said that 7,000 daily and weekly newspapers would be used and that the campaign would be confined to newspapers.

He made it clear that the Navy was not seeking any free publicity, but rather earnest, active patriotic co-operation of newspaper men in order that the campaign might go away over top to the extent of 50,000 recruits, instead of the 25,000 asked for. "Patriotism is lagging," he said, "in the readjustment period and it is necessary to recruit the Navy up to the highest possible standard."

The topics were twenty in number and the concensus of opinion was as follows: The newspaper departmental favored and recognized the value of co-operation with national advertisers in providing advertisers with broadsides, letters, marked copies, etc. The department went on record as opposing selling merchandise in order to obtain advertising. The department favored the flat rate in foreign advertising and the sliding rate for the local field. It decided there should be some difference between the local and the foreign rates, due to the commission paid to agencies and foreign representatives, also because foreign advertisers secure the advantage of every edition of newspapers, while local advertising often appears only in the city edition. The department unanimously decided in favor of a uniform ratecard, as advocated by the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

It was decided that theoretically the advertiser should pay the agency charge, but that the practice is not practicable at present.

It was the sense of the department that amusement and automobile publicity should be dispensed with, except where the news department decided that such publicity was real news.

It was unanimously decided that questionable advertising of all kinds is undesirable.

Opposed to Free Art Work

It was the sense of the meeting that bonuses should be paid solicitors on increased business, thus enabling them to share in their increased production.

It was decided that it was not a good practice for newspapers to furnish free art work and cuts.

It was the sense of the department that newspapers should co-operate in every way possible, and especially in the exchange of mats and cuts. It was left to each individual newspaper to decide whether that exchange should be on free or nominal charge basis.

It was unanimously decided that it was bad practice to put news style heads on advertisements.

It was the sense of the meeting that in view of the constantly increasing cost of production, it was poor policy and bad business to make contracts for more than one year.

It was decided that newspapers should adopt the uniform advertising makeup, the departmental being practically unanimous in favor of pyramid style.

It was decided that special editions, in the general acceptance of that term, are not desirable.

It was also decided that scheme pages —"one time flashes"—lowered the standing of newspapers.

It was the sense of the members of the departmental that classified advertising could be best developed through developing reader interest.

May Form New Standard

Though there was nothing binding upon anyone in any of the votes taken to ascertain the concensus of opinion, yet the belief is that this book of proceedings will present the best judgment of representative groups of men and may ultimately form the basis for a standard of practice with respect to fundamental principles for the advertising department of the newspapers.

The Wednesday session, by far the most important of the week, was held in the magnificent hall of the Elks' Monastery and lasted from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., with the exception of a brief recess to partake of a light repast provided by Messrs. D. D. Moore and Arthur G. Newmyer.

Resolutions were adopted thanking the New Orleans publishers for their helpfulness and kindness, also thanking Messrs. W. G. Bryan and Charlie Miller for their devotion and enterprise in providing and carrying through such constructive program.

The principal duties of the vice-presidents will be to organize state bodies of local daily newspapers. These state organizations will elect delegates to the next convention. It means practically rewriting the charter of the organization.

It is proposed that the secretary and treasurer's office be a sort of clearing house for business building ideas, distribution of mats and cuts and the hundred and one co-operative ideas that immediately suggest themselves.

Magazines of national circulation are put on notice that they have a fight on hand, as one of the delegates remarked that the magazines buy circulation in the newspapers at the rate of one-fifth of a cent per line per thousand, and sell their own space to the national advertisers at three-fifths of a cent.

Another delegate remarked that he had increased his "publishers'" rate from 30 to 60 cents per line.

"I have attended every convention since the third, which was held in Kansas City twelve years ago," said retiring President Walter G. Bryan to EDITOR &

(Continued on page 11.)

President Wilson Thanks Advertisers for Their Peace Treaty Endorsement

PRESIDENT WOODROW WILSON sent the A. A. C. W. a telegram, thanking the convention for the resolution adopted in favor of a League of Nations. The message was:

"May I not express to you my very deep and hearty appreciation of the resolution unanimously adopted by the Associated Advertising Clubs, in favor of the acceptance of the Treaty and the Covenant of the League of Nations? It is an added illustration of the public spirit and wide statesmanlike view of the Advertising Clubs.

(Signed) WOODROW WILSON."

The complete text of the treaty ratification resolution, which was presented by James Schermerhorn, editor of the Detroit Times, follows:

"The Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, upon the threshold of this, their Victory Convention, to express their gratification that the United States Senate is giving uninterrupted consideration to the one matter upon which hang the settlement of gravest business and industrial problems and the assuagement of the agonies of the whole world.

"Pledged in the printed word, as it helped to rally the patriotic man power and financial strength of the nation in a war against wars, this body feels impelled by good faith as well as by its desire to hold to the high vision that made America invincible, to reaffirm its unanimous advocacy of the Peace Versailles and the League of Nations at the earliest possible moment, without amendment or reservations involving the re-negotiations of the treaty with Germany.

"To hold companionship with Truth, with which it has linked the business ideals of two hemispheres, the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World would speedily evoke Peace, Covenanted Peace, so that the economic world—now divided and discordant—may catch the inspiration of the wiser way of composing its differences, and that this Republic may garner the full fruitage of its wartime unity, heroisms and sacrifices."

Digitized by Google

ADVERTISING MEN FINISHED THEIR WAR WORK WITH COLORS FLYING

New Opportunities for Service Pointed Out by James Schermerhorn, Editor of Detroit Times—Aided All Branches of Government

ADVERTISING MEN, who "helped fill with printed matter the places of millions of men called to war," seem to be the only persons engaged in war work who came out of it unscratched by unjust censure, James Schermerhorn, editor of the Detroit Times, told delegates to the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World at a general session. He said, in part:

"According to some of our newspapers, our European comrades in arms were arch conspirators in aims, the world savers were world wasters, the battle cry of business should have been 'bring forth the royal divided,' patriots were only profiteers, and the red triangle bled the boys in the trenches at every angle. The Hall of Mirrors at Versailles, these prints would have us believe, was no attempt of justice, but was a torture chamber where unprotected little states had to walk on the fourteen points in their bare feet.

Advertising Men Alone "Unscathed"

"If Germany has any time to turn from the contemplation of the wages of sin, she may have a measure of consolation from the deduction from the American press reports that the war which did nothing her way besmirched everyone of us. She called it a 'Peace of Death,' but all that was killed was her hope of a merciful indemnity, while we, the victors lost our peace of mind and our reputations.

"All but the admen. These are they who have come up out of the great adventure unscathed. Let partisans rage and propagandists imagine vain things, for 'his their selfish nature to! but for the publicity host there is no back swing of the spiritual exultation that made us unified and unconquerable while the shade of Prussian despotism lay across our threshold.

"Advertising enlisted and served for the entire period of the war. There was more printers' ink than munitions at the beginning of the war. And the winged word was the real liberty in the matter of productions. Through advertising, we pressed Wilson's word forth that it would be 'force without stint' until a triumph of righteousness was achieved, and so it was.

A Versatile Medium

"Through advertising, Mr. McAdoo solicited our complaints so persistently at every retiring and waking hour in the Pullman posters that we had to complain about his invitations to complain.

"Through advertising, Mr. Hoover pronounced grace and denounced waste, at every meal, taking for his text that portion of Scripture that declares 'Better a meal of herbs where harmony is than a stalled ox and strife therewith.'

"Mr. Garfield verified, through advertising, the Lincoln slogan that you can 'fool all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time.'

"Through advertising the American ships sang again, 'Build me straight, O, worthy master, safe and strong against the tempest'; capital and labor were aligned, and womankind was classified and registered.

"The marines, through advertising, proclaimed in a manner to give the impression that there was not much for other branches to do but to stand on the side lines and look on; aviation was urged as offering the best opportunity to see the country with the privilege of dropping out if dissatisfied.

"The navy was not to a college fraternity in personnel, culture and scholarship. The tanks called to molly-coddles to become devil dogs, and treat 'em rough. The public libraries were beseeched to jump in and win the war.

"Advertising was one branch of the service with two extra presses, General Pershing and Billy Sunday counting it a great distinction to be enrolled among the copy makers.

"Advertising was the alert and the clarion, sounding warnings and saving cries. It was the wig-wag from the hilltop, the white arc on the star shell, the flash of the heliograph, the only Allied invader that got to Berlin through the President's classified copy under the heading, 'Wanted—someone to speak for the German people.'

Peace-Time Service

"Heralds of a happier time—men of the puisent pen—the hemisphere wait for another symbol, fairest sister of the one you have engarved upon the globe. It is Peace! It is conventated peace, companion of the truth, which makes men free. You who called the country to save, to serve, and to succor, in order that self-government might encircle the globe, speak to the country again, lest it forever lose the vision that made us so unified and so sacrificial.

"Let peace hold companionship with truth, speedily, so that great industrial problems and world agonies may have attention, and the martyrdom of the fallen dead may not be in vain—enduring peace, through the League of Nations, linked with the legend of truth which you have upraised.

English Visitors Return Home

A. R. Linforth and A. B. Blayney, of the Amalgamated Press, London, who have been inspecting publishing plants in the United States for several weeks, sailed for home on Saturday last. Mr. Blayney is manager of the printing department of the Amalgamated Press, not general manager of that corporation as was erroneously stated in last week's issue. Sir George Sutton is general manager.

KAUFMAN HAS ONE "HUNCH" HE ALWAYS PLAYS

TRAVELING around with a hunch that there is more to learn than he knows, there is every indication that Charles K. Kaufman, first advertising manager of the comparatively new Du Pont Chemical Company of Wilmington, Del., will some day arrive.

The Du Pont Chemical is something new and has several unique business problems to solve, not only in operation but in its advertising As a short cut, it might be called "an industrial department store." Its present advertising policy is to use the trade and technical press. They have much machinery for sale that was built for war uses that are now being offered to plants for the manufacturer of peace products.

"This company, we feel, is doing a practical part of the actual transition of the world from a war to a peace basis," said Mr Kaufman to EDITOR AND PUBLISHER recently.

Mr. Kaufman, who, by the way, is only 33 years of age, secured his first advertising experience as a classified solicitor for the New York American. From 1909 to 1915 he sold real estate and summer resort clothing for that paper. In 1916 he was special copy writer for the Knapp Company, Inc. Later he was connected with the Arkenberg Special Agency, where he helped to handle classified advertising for American and Canadian newspapers.

In 1918 Mr. Kaufman joined the Du Pont Company as assistant to E. F. Carley, advertising manager of the Explosives Division.

Francis Is Welcomed Home to St. Louis

Ambassador to Russia Guest of 1,000 Business Men—Praised by President Wilson

ST LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 29.—Upon his return to St Louis after three and a half years of service as Ambassador to Russia, former-Governor David R. Francis, owner of the St. Louis Republic, was the guest of honor at a banquet, attended by a thousand of the city's leading professional and business men. The hosts were members of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Exchange.

A letter of regrets was read from President Wilson, as follows:

"I wish with all my heart that I might be present at the reception and banquet to be given Ambassador Francis in Saint Louis so as to impossible for me to be there, will you not convey my sincere congratulations to the Ambassador? He has merited the admiration and gratitude of the country. No one could have been more steadfast, more courageous or more consistently guided by principle than he was in all of his dealings with a situation which was difficult to the point of impossibility."

Governor Francis reviewed his experiences in Russia and pointed out the dangers of Bolshevism in this country.

George P. Lord Resigns

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 24—George Frank Lord, for nine years advertising director of the Dupont de Nemours Company, tendered his resignation last Saturday to take effect October 20.

Editor Describes Suffering in Corpus Christi

Whitehead, Last to Be Rescued from Spohn Sanitarium, Realized Comfort of Prayer

CORPUS CHRISTI, TEX., Sept. 23.—Col Ben G. Whitehead, editor of the Mc-Allen Sun, was the last patient to leave the Spohn sanitarium on North Beach, which was under several feet of water and badly damaged by the terrible storm that swept life and property in this part of Texas last week. Col. Whitehead was one of 53 patients in the institution, 48 of whom were saved, the other five, including a nurse, are missing and are believed to have been drowned. Describing his experience during the storm Col. Whitehead said:

"It was the most horrible night that can be imagined. Wing after wing of the building was swept away, but we kept clinging to the remaining parts of the structure.

"While I did everything to quell the rising hysteria among the patients and other inmates of the hospital, I continually felt that every minute would be our last, as we were cut off from land and the water was steadily eating away our shelter.

"Once we were all huddled together in the rear portion of the old building over the boiler room. The sisters were all saying their prayers in concert. I did not know how to say them their way, and I was sorry, for it was time to pray.

"At 3 o'clock the last patient was transferred from the new wing to the old portion of the building when the vacated wing dropped into the sea, carrying the chapel with it.

"With the sunlight came hope, and instead of prayers for helpfulness, on every lip came prayers of thankfulness. Finally a boy named McCuistion and another lad waded out to us and in another hour a boat came. During the afternoon we were all taken off and brought to the court house."

Oregonians Favor Taft

SALEM, Ore., Sept. 24.—Some forty-five editors of Oregon Republican newspapers have made public their respective preference, giving their first, second and third choice. Mr. Taft had 15 votes on first choice, Mr. Hughes 12 and General Wood 11. A significant feature of the poll of these editors was fixing the standing of possible candidates, like Borah, Johnson and Poindexter, who have taken a position of open hostility to the league of nations

Former Editor Heads Bank

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 26.—Miles Lasater, at one time owner and publisher of the Paulo Valley Oklahoma Democrat and a prominent Oklahoman, has been made president of the Wichita (Kan.) Federal Farm Loan Bank.

Chicagoan Buys New York Paper

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—The Sporting Goods Sales Journal, of New York, has been bought by the Tradepress Publishing Corporation, of this city, where it hereafter will be published under the name of the Sporting Goods Journal. T. J. Sullivan is the editor.

Digitized by Google

"HUMAN DYNAMO," CHARLIE MILLER, OUTLINES PLANS FOR NEWSPAPER DOMINATION IN 1920

Supported by Secretary-Treasurer Fred Millis and Other Wide-Awake Leaders, He Says Nothing Less Than Departmental Membership of 1,000 Before Indianapolis Gathering Will Satisfy—Has Record for Completing Everything He Starts

By W. H. Hendrix

(Telegraph from Birmingham, Ala.)

NOW THAT YOU are president of the daily newspaper department of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, what are you going to do about it?" was the first question fired at Charlie Miller, advertising manager of the Birmingham News, after he had concluded a conference Saturday with Fred Millis, of the Indianapolis News, newly elected secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Saturday afternoon was the first time "the little human dynamo of Birmingham" had been within reach of an interviewer for days. Arriving home from the New Orleans convention of the advertising clubs, he had brought with him a score of delegates from different sections of the country for a stop-over on their way home, and had been busily showing them the industrial district.

After that was completed, Mr. Miller spent two days fasting in observance of the Hebrew New Year. This period of quiet was followed by a strenuous dive into the campaign to raise $100,000 for the Young Men's Hebrew Association fund. Pausing a moment, he hurried to the News office Saturday for a conference with his colleague in the A. A. C. W., and after that ran into the waiting arms of the first interviewer who had been successful in stopping him for days.

All this is cited as characteristic of Charlie Miller, known in his home town and elsewhere in the South as "the human dynamo." Besides his newspaper work, he is constantly identified with half a dozen other enterprises, which within themselves would use up the energies of many men. But with all his diversified activities he still retains the qualities which have earned for him the title by which he is known to as many persons as by his own name.

Two Leaders Agree

After the conference held by the chiefs of the A. A. C. W., both were elated over plans adopted and the outlook for the year.

"Looks like we are settling down to real business now," Mr. Miller declared.

"Things will hum from now on," Mr. Miller concluded.

Delay in receiving stenographic reports from New Orleans prevented the completion of many details and delayed the perfection of many definite plans. The various topics discussed at New Orleans were taken up in their relative order and plans for increasing the membership were gone over and adopted.

Both men were enthusiastic over the membership prospect and declared that the convention at Indianapolis next year will find more than five hundred newspaper men in session.

At President Miller's suggestion, the country was divided into sections, and a vice-president was elected for each section.

These vice-presidents will call sectional meetings and personally look after the membership in their particular section. Through this method President Miller states that the membership next year should be 1,000.

"I am very fortunate in having such a fine lot of newspaper men elected as my associates for the daily newspaper department for the coming year," he continued. "With men like Frank Webb of Baltimore, Bert Garstin of Louisville, A. L. Shuman of Fort Worth, Carl Brockhagen of Oakland, William Hofmann of Portland, Col. Beatty of Lexington, Walter Bryan of New York, William Woodward of Chicago, Arthur Newmyer of New Orleans and the others, whose names I have unfortunately forgotten for the moment, I feel sure we are going to accomplish great things for the advertising departments of the various newspapers who join our association.

"It was certainly wonderful to see more than 200 live newspaper men in session in New Orleans. It was so many more than we had hoped for that we found ourselves crowded in the space allotted to our department and had to adjourn to the wonderful Elks Club.

"In addition to the vice-presidents for the various sections of the United States we will probably have one or two vice-presidents for Canada, one for England, and one or two for the Latin-American countries We had one Canadian delegate, and there were representatives from two Mexican papers."

"Rowe Stewart of the Philadelphia Record and Arthur Newmyer of the New Orleans Item, two former presidents of the daily newspaper department, told President Walter Bryan that the meetings just closed in New Orleans were by far the greatest in the history of the newspaper department," said Mr. Millis.

"In fact, Mr. Newmyer stated that there were four times as many newspaper men present this year as there have ever been before. President Bryan passed on the credit for the successful meeting to Charlie Miller, advertising manager of the Birmingham News, who was the secretary and treasurer last year, and he personally looked after the campaign to elect Mr. Miller as president to show the convention's appreciation for his wonderful work in assembling such a large number of delegates," he added.

Among the speakers at the Daily Newspaper Department were William H. Rankin of Chicago, James Brown, publisher of Editor & Publisher, New York; Frank D. Webb, advertising manager Baltimore News; A. L. Shuman, advertising manager Fort Worth Star-Telegram; George Creel, former chairman United States Committee on Public Information; Jason Rogers, publisher the New York Globe; Fred Millis, assistant advertising manager, Indianapolis News; A. B. Weitz, advertising manager Tulsa (Okla.) Democrat and Tulsa Morning Times; Herman Philipson, advertising manager Dallas (Tex.) Times-Herald, and William Woodhead, former president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World and now director of advertising for the Sperry & Hutchinson Company, New York.

Important Problems Discussed

Twenty important problems of special interest to the advertising departments of daily newspapers were thoroughly discussed Among them the following:

"The value of cooperation with national advertisers and to what extent it should go." It was the concensus of opinion that newspapers should co-operate with advertisers in sending out broadsides, dressing windows, and in many other ways, but that the advertiser or the advertising agency should bear the expense for such work.

In speaking on this important subject, William H. Rankin stated that he would go on record for his agency and that it would cheerfully pay for the handling of broadsides and other material requested by his agency.

"Should newspapers sell merchandise in order to obtain advertising?" was discussed. It was decided that it was newspaper's province to print advertising and help the advertisers, but that it was unfair to ask them to become salesmen.

"Flat rate versus sliding scale, was the third subjcused. The majority of the delegates present preferred the flat rate for the foreign field and the sliding scale for the local field. It was decided to ask all members to adopt the uniform standard rate card suggested by the American Association of Advertis-

CHARLIE MILLER

(Continued on page 12.)

Digitized by Google

A FEW SIDELIGHTS AT NEW ORLEANS

Newmyer and Florea Get Presents—Newspaper Men Helped Everywhere—Creel Proposes National Bureau of Advertising

(BY TELEGRAPH)

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 25.—Arthur G. Newmyer, associate publisher of the New Orleans Item, was called to the stage at Thursday's afternoon session of the A. A. C. W. Convention and presented with a massive silver loving cup, beautifully engraved in token of the appreciation of his services "to the profession of advertising."

President W. C. Darcy made the presentation in name of the clubs, paying gracious tribute to the untiring efforts of Newmyer and saying in brief: "I want to say that in all the troubles that have come up through the war that related to this business of ours, one outstanding figure in all this finance building and program building and organization work has been A. G. Newmyer. He has been an outstanding lieutenant. I want to grasp him by the hand and express the thought and feeling and admiration on the part of every member of the executive committee and myself personally.

"Advertising used to be misunderstood in local communities and a man with a reputation in advertising could not get that reputation outside the ranks of advertising. To-day he is a marked man with distinction when he is in the advertising business, and Mr. Newmyer is destined for bigger things in business and in advertising."

A good story is told on "Ed" Meredith, new A. A. C. W. president. It runs that back in 1905 he sent for William H. Rankin from Indianapolis to come to Des Moines to see him. At those days Rankin was in the advertising department of the Indianapolis Star, making the magnificent salary of $25 a week. Meredith offered Rankin $40 to go to Des Moines to be advertising manager of Successful Farming. Rankin wanted $45 a week, but Meredith said he was not worth it—and that's the reason Rankin is an advertising agency man and not a farm paper publisher or advertising man today.

Mr. Meredith said today that "Rankin is worth more to me creating farm paper advertising for Successful Farming than he would be on my payroll. He has created thousands of dollars' worth of high-grade business for Successful Farming, and I still maintain that I made money by not offering Rankin $1 more a week to go to Des Moines, and I am sure Rankin feels the same way."

Those two men are fast friends, in business and personally, and it all dates back to 1906 when Rankin made his first visit to Des Moines.

"Making Them See It" is the title of a talk delivered at the financial advertisers' meeting by W. A. Schulte, advertising manager of the Cleveland Trust Company. Cleveland had 12 representatives. Mr. Schulte is one of the most successful publicity men in his city. The home offices of the Cleveland Trust Company occupy a building on the "flat iron" site, at East 9th street and Euclid avenue. A ground space in front is constantly used during good weather for industrial exhibits that are educational in their nature. The exhibits are changed weekly and attract thousands of people daily. A chocolate factory recently showed the process of making chocolate. Farm machinery, drill, chain, wire making and other educational lessons along industrial lines are shown at various times.

Park S. Florea, secretary and treasurer, was presented with a handsomely engraved and monogramed gold watch, chain and gold pencil in recognition of "ten years' faithful service to the Associated Advertising Clubs—1909 to 1919."

New Orleans newspaper proprietors and editors gave freely of their time and effort to the entertainment of the visiting advertisers, advertising agents and advertising men. James M. Thomson and Marshall Ballard of the Item, Colonel Robert E. Ewing and his sons of Daily States and D. D. Moore and Mr. Ehaugh of the Times-Picayune were always in evidence at the shrine, Elks, golf, country and yacht clubs, as well as general sessions.

All three newspapers carried page upon page of paid advertising, this volume of extra business being previously estimated at twenty to $25,000 dollars per paper more for the five days this week than was printed in the same number of days in the same week last year.

As an evidence of true southern hospitality, one of the ladies of the New York delegation, consisting of 117, told the story of the purchase of a pair of shoes. "Shall I charge them," asked the clerk.

"Why, of course," said the lady, giving her New York address. Immediately the shoes were delivered to her hotel. This instance was not unusual and was explained by one of the local publishers, as due in no small degree to prepaid convention advertising in which standing and responsibilities of delegates were stressed.

Official registration totaled about 1,900, of which New Orleans quota was about five hundred.

President Meredith was notified at the Washington Federal Reserve Bank conference by wire of his election and immediately accepted.

George Creel made three addresses, at the general sessions, newspaper department and New Orleans Chamber of Commerce. He was unreserved in his expressions of appreciations of newspaper and advertising work during the war.

He told how America and American ideals had been interpreted to the rest of the world through use of government wireless, under authority of the secretaries of navy and of war; how American advertising had been distributed in millions of lines through the press of the Allies, and into Germany and Austria and even far off Russia; he said all this constructive work had been discontinued since signing of the armistice and now America is right back where she was before—dependent upon Havas and Reuter and other subsidized press associations, which delight to tell of American lynchings and political disagreements and to emphasize the grotesque and bazarre in our national life. Mr. Creel earnestly urged the formation of a national bureau of advertising under the auspices of the department of commerce. This matter has been given due under advisement by the new executive committee, which is also considering promulgation of a definite plan to be utilized as a basis for the elimination of strikes and industrial unrest that is curbing production.

It is the belief of many, however, that no immediate action will be taken in this matter, as the new president, Mr. Meredith, is one of twenty-four Americans called to meet in Washington on October 24 to consider industrial problems.

The cornerstone of the new home of the Times-Picayune was laid Wednesday by President W. C. Darcy. The ceremony took place at five o'clock and a large crowd was in attendance. D. D. Moore, presiding, said that the Times-Picayune's new home would be the south's most modern newspaper plant.

Mayor Behrman said that New Orleans is 200 years old, but in all that time no cornerstone had been laid for a newspaper building. The city records showed that in all that time a building has not been erected for a newspaper home, while there have been many newspapers published here. He said each one was started in a building already erected.

W. H. Rankin of Chicago was the best advertised product outside of paid advertising columns of daily newspapers. Some expression of his, generally a boost for a friend, was always in evidence and generally in the form of an interview or signed story or picture.

The New Orleans Item's prize for the best convention advertisement was won by Mennen's "Jim Henry" copy nationally, and the Grunewald Hotel series locally.

The Financial Advertisers' Association at its final session adopted a resolution thanking the City of New Orleans, the banks, trust companies and investment bankers of the city for their generous hospitality and particularly did the Association express its thanks to Fred W. Ellsworth, R. Hecht, Bruce Baird, and Fred Hamlin for their efforts in arranging exhibits, program, and local details.

The resolution also thanked the financial press and newspapers of New Orleans for their co-operation, and lauded the officers of the association for their splendid work during the past year.

Another resolution was adopted by the financial advertisers establishing what will be known as associate membership to include publishers of financial journals and agencies devoted to financial advertising. Such members must subscribe to the standards of practice of the association.

Annual dues for corporate or individual membership will in the future be $24, and annual dues for associate members $20.

AUSTRALIA CLEANS UP IN ADVERTISING

B. E. Pike, Delegate from Brisbane, Tells of Greater Respect by Business Men in Recent Years for Profession

Advertising and advertising men were in "ill repute" in Australia a few years ago, but conditions in this respect have been greatly improved through efforts of the advertising men themselves, B. E. Pike, representing the Advertising Clubs of Australia, said in an address at the A. A. C. of W. convention at New Orleans. He continued:

"When I first started in business for myself in partnership with another man in Queensland, I remember my first experience as an advertising man, as an advertising service agent.

"I had to call upon the president of one of the largest concerns in Australia. He was a big man, and I am thankful to say that he sent for me—but he had forgotten about it. I sent in my card, and he poked his head out the door, around the corner, and said:

"'What in the hell do you want?'

"I said, 'I think you sent for me, Mr. Smith.'

"'Who are you, anyway?'

"'You have my card, sir,' I said.

"'Oh, advertising man, eh?'

"I said, 'Yes.'

"'I don't want to have anything to do with you damned advertising sharks.'

"That was the position was a few years ago in Australia with regard to advertising men. I am sorry to say that this was, to a very large extent, brought about by the advertising men, but we are going to clean it up, and we have made a good start. We are doing some very good work.

"When a first convention in Australia was floated last year, we had great difficulty in securing first the co-operation of the business men. They looked upon us askance and they were a little suspicious of what we were going to do. The business men, largely, financed that convention. They saw it through.

"I am very glad to be able to tell you that this first Australian convention of advertising men was held in my home city of Brisbane in September of last year. I am also very proud to be able to state that the convention was a large success. We financed it; we paid the fares of the delegates and their hotel bills and their fares back to their homes. We are proud of that, but, of course, that is not to be a precedent of future conventions.

"The next convention will be held in Sydney on my return in January. We want, if we can, to secure co-operation of you American business men and advertising men to help us to work to those ideals which you are now nobly preparing. What I want to get from you gentlemen is the full data of the Better Business Bureau. We want to institute that in Australia from one end to the other.

"I know that I can count upon your co-operation to this end. We want to know more about your system of education along the lines of advertising. We also want, if we can, to get some data with regard to circulation."

Digitized by Google

A. A. C. OF W. MUST CARRY A HEAVY BURDEN IN PEACE AND RECONSTRUCTION

William H. Rankin Says the Organization's Great War-Time Work Must Continue for Good of All America

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23.—The vital part advertising played in winning the war with Germany and the tremendous influence it must exert in continuing to maintain home morale during the period of reconstruction was dealt with at length by William H. Rankin, who was vice-chairman of the National Advertising Advisory Board, speaking before the opening session of the Newspaper Division of the A. A. C. W.

Pointing out that advertising had been a vital necessity in driving home to the people the need for action in every war-winning movement, Mr. Rankin gave full credit to display space and especially that carried in newspapers for the success of the Red Cross, Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, Y. M. C. A. and Liberty Loan Drives.

The Great Plan and Wonderful Accomplishment.

Mr. Rankin said, in part:

"At our war convention in St. Louis in 1917 the question in the forefront of every man's mind was:

"'What part will advertising and more particularly what part will the advertising clubs play to help win the war.' That question was answered at that convention. It seemed that every man there was consecrated to the government—to winning of the war and the devotion of advertising to that one end. At this convention of patriotic advertising men, the plans were laid, and the campaign started, which resulted in the most successful demonstration of the advertising ability of the Associated Advertising Clubs that the world has ever known.

"And let me say, gentlemen, when those definite plans were laid before that great convention, the enthusiastic acceptance was inspiring—a prophecy of the result.

"For those plans, definitely showed how each club, how each paper, how each advertiser could help win the war. Not only to secure through advertising aid for the Red Cross, or to sell Liberty Bonds, but to tell a gripping story that reach down to the hearts and souls of the people, a story that would fire and inspire them to their great responsibility to do the work at home, a story that would reach across the water to the boys over there, and hearten them to endure the black discouragements of the trenches, and fill them with high courage that would make their drives irresistible. That, gentlemen, was the plan, and the accomplishment more than achieved our fondest hope.

A Direct Aid

"In every one of the scores of government advertising campaigns the Associated Advertising Clubs were counted upon. And invariably, the most constructive, the most definite ideas came from members of the Associated Advertising Clubs. And when the campaigns were launched, the clubs themselves backed up the men in immediate charge of these campaigns, and guided them to an unqualifiedly successful conclusion."

But probably the most striking in its direct results and importance of the war work accomplished by advertising, Mr. Rankin said was the great advertising campaign designed to bring home to every man between the ages of 18 and 21, and the ages of 31 and 45, the necessity of presenting himself for registration under the second of the Selective Service law on September 12, 1918, of it he said:

"Because of the fact that the time between the announcement of the date of registration and the date itself was only twelve days, the Provost Marshal General of the United States felt that it would be almost impossible to give adequate notice to every man expected to register under this Selective Service law.

"The Division of Advertising, the Associated Advertising Clubs, and the Newspaper Division of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, were called into action together with the leaders of practically every branch of the advertising profession in the United States. The first registration had fallen several hundred thousand names short of the estimated number who should have registered. This was not attributed to any lack of patriotism but to the fact that the law and its application could not be adequately brought home to the people of the United States in the brief space of time available for this notice.

"I shall never forget a meeting in New York City at which were present the leaders of every branch of the profession of advertising; a group of men who combined, had invested in their business lifetimes hundreds of millions of dollars in advertising. At the outset of this meeting these men were practically unanimous in the belief that no advertising campaign could be formulated and published in the twelve days between the announcement of the new law and the date of registration.

Winning the Time Handicap

"However, the representatives of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World with an irresistible and confident optimism maintained against all objection that the thing could be done.

"It will be a part of the everlasting glory of the advertising profession in America that the thing was done—that the greatest advertising campaign of the war was the campaign for registration under the second Selective Service law. Instead of a deficit of names at the close of the campaign there were over 900,000 more men who had signified their willingness to serve their country under arms than the most optimistic estimate of the Provost Marshal General.

"Of course, we will not have the opportunity to do the work for our government to the large extent that we did in the War Advertising Convention at St. Louis, but we can in the commercial world do just as big work, just as enthusiastic a work, and accomplish as many big things through concentrated effort and co-operative work.

"I am sure advertising men will consecrate themselves as never before to bring about the proper conditions in this country, so that it will eliminate the Bolsheviki, minimize labor troubles, and place advertising and advertising men behind our government so that every country of the world will know the United States stands as a unit for all that is great and good and fair commercially, just as we did when we entered the great war so unselfishly.

"President Wilson realizes, as no other President did, the value of the service of advertising men and of advertising. He created by one stroke of the pen the Division of Advertising which placed the profession on the same high level as banking, the law business or any other high-grade profession. So it is to him after all and through his personal representative, George Creel of the U. S. Bureau of Public Information, we owe the fact that advertising has at last come into its own—a respected, dignified, and vital profession on which the government leans heavily when it desires to reach the 110,000,000 people of this great country in an unbiased and controlled publicity way."

Basis for Standards of Practice

(Continued from page 7.)

PUBLISHER." We accomplished more at New Orleans than we had in all preceding twelve years. This is the first convention I have ever attended that was absolutely devoid of kicks and protests. Prices here have been fair hospitality worthy of the best traditions of the South, every man jack of us leaves satisfied with our work and our reception.

"New Orleans put the daily news department on the international map. It brought forth the gospel we are going to preach.

A Two-Fold Mission Done

"First, to convince newspaper men of the value of their own products, then convince the advertising public.

"We have been like children handling a powerful piece of mechanism. We have oiled it and polished it, but never set our hand to its throttle. The engine is now under way, New Orleans did it.

"The meeting was epochal. Its results will be felt from coast to coast. The Indianapolis convention will show gorgeous on the flower that blossomed first in New Orleans.

"Mr. Bryan left for Atlanta tonight and in two weeks he will take np his new position with the New York American.

"In two weeks after that the daily newspaper department will learn in detail of the result of the work of the most industrious bunch of delegates that ever represented newspapers at any advertising club's convention.

"In two weeks the daily newspaper department has set its feet at work and the race is on. Its slogan is "Daily Newspaper Advertising Is the Highest Force on the Globe." And the department is prepared to prove it. It has looked into its own soul, confessed its faults, remodeled itself and now is in the pink of condition and ready for the fight.

It has the goods and wants one thousand newspapers on the membership roll when the Indianapolis convention is called in 1920.

Miss Martin Gets Silver Cup from Admirers

First Woman on A. A. C. W. Executive Committee Plans Monthly Bulletin and Other Features

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 25.—Immediately after her election as the woman member of the executive committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, Miss Jane J. Martin, advertising manager of the Sperry & Hutchinson Company, was the recipient of a loving cup, given by her associates of the League of Advertising Women, New York. In making the presentation, her friend explained the cup was given in recognition of her services not only in connection with the upbuilding of the League of Advertising Women, but also in behalf of the general movement in behalf of advertising women and advertising women's clubs.

MISS JANE J. MARTIN

The advertising women made plans for intercommunications relative to club activities. A monthly bulletin is to be compiled, out of reports from all the women's clubs, and will be mailed from the headquarters offices of the Associated Advertising Clubs in New York City.

Miss Mary B. Ennis, advertising manager of the Emporium, of San Francisco, was elected president of the conference of advertising women. Miss Ennis will appoint a secretary of the conference, selecting a woman member of the Advertising Club of Indianapolis, the latter being the next convention city.

Parrott Heads Club Secreteries

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 24.—The Conference of Advertising Club Secretaries elected Norman M. Parrott of Baltimore president, and E. A. Guice of Tulsa secretary. The club secretaries are planning to issue a monthly bulletin pertaining to the problems of local club management. Mr. Parrott will have direct charge of this bulletin.

Topekans Wedded

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 25.—Carl P. Bolmar, member of the editorial and art staff of the State Journal, and Miss Jean Nicol of Topeka were married September 20.

Digitized by Google

"HUMAN DYNAMO" CHARLIE MILLER

(Continued from Page 9)

ing Agencies. The newspapers interested will be sent specimens on request to the secretary and treasurer of the daily newspaper department also.

"The use of the news style heads on display advertisements set in imitation of reader," was generally condemned and the newspapers throughout the country will be asked to drop that style of heads.

News Style Ads Condemned

In the disensision of "The Value of Automobile Publicity," it was pointed out that over ninety per cent of the present day automobile publicity was purely personal advertising and was being printed at a tremendous cost to the publishers. Telling how to take care of cars without mentioning the name of cars, featuring good roads for automobiling, are a part of that sort, was decided as being legitimate automobile publicity, but the use of publicity carrying pictures of cars, photos of salesmen, garages, etc., was generally condemned.

A complete digest of the proceedings is now being prepared and a copy of it will be sent to every member of the Daily Newspaper Departmental.

There were many other subjects discussed, many of a confidential nature, which even the trade papers were asked not to print.

Proceedings Available to All

Mr. Miller told the representative of the Editor & Publisher that any daily or weekly newspaper in the United States that could not have a representative present at the convention, but who was interested in reading a digest of the entire proceedings, could secure a copy of this digest by becoming a member of the Daily Newspaper Departmental. The dues for this department are $50 per year and checks can be sent to President Charlie Miller, care the Birmingham News, or Secretary and Treasurer Fred Millis, care the Indianapolis News.

"You know, it is really wonderful when you stop to think of it, that men came from Maine to California and from the Lakes to the Gulf to attend our convention and in spite of the terrific heat sat through our long daily sessions," said Mr. Millis. "On the last day (Wednesday) we had so much to do that we started in at 10 o'clock in the morning and through the kindness of Arthur Newmyer of the New Orleans Item and Daniel Moore of the Times-Pieayune. we were served a splendid luncheon (and did not have to leave the clubrooms) so that we could continue our session right straight through until six o'clock that evening.

Publishers Also There

"Not only were there many advertising managers present, but we had quite a few publishers in spite of the fact that this meeting was particularly for advertising managers," said President Miller. "Such well known publishers as Victor Hanson of the Birmingham News; Jason Rogers of the New York Globe; Col. Wortham, of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram; M. E. Foster, of the Houston Chronicle; and several others accompanied their advertising managers to our sessions.

"And by the way we must not forget that we had several newspaper women present, among them Mrs. Bnrr Ferguson, the famous 'Polly' of the Birmingham News, who was officially adopted as the pet of the convention; clever Bera Morel and a number of other New Orleans newspaper women were in constant attendance at our sessions.

"You know the publishers and editors have their own great organization in the American Newspaper Publishers Association, but we poor little advertising managers have no association and this Daily Newspaper Departmental of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World is designed especially for us. We can meet here every year and thoroughly discuss our problems, the problems that the publishers are not concerned with unless we fail to produce results. At these sessions we can take up the dozens of little things that worry us.

Vital Problems Solved

"For instance one advertising manager announced that he had come to the convention solely to find out the best plan for notifying foreign advertisers of the raise in rates. He said he had written a number of newspapers about it, but that none of them had offered him a good suggestion. He discovered just the right method by attending our sessions.

"Another man came all the way from Los Angeles to find a practical bonus plan, and he found it by having it discussed at our Wednesday session.

"Still another man came from Iowa to find the best means of handling foreign advertising and by discussing it with the various members he secured a satisfactory plan.

Great Plans for Next Year

"In fact, there are no problems that cannot be solved through constant attendance at the sessions of the annual meetings of the Daily Newspaper Departmental and I feel that I am not a bit too optimistic when I say that we will have more than 500 men in attendanee next year in Indianapolis.

"Mr. Millis and I are going to see that the convention committee reserve for our Departmental the largest and most comfortable hall in Indianapolis. We had the largest crowd of any department assembled in New Orleans and therefore feel that we are entitled to the best quarters.

"The daily newspaper departmental of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World is now on the map in a big way, and I predict will lead all other departmentals in the point of importance and attendance.

"I want to take this opportunity to thank EDITOR & PUBLISHER for the liberal space it devoted to the Convention that has just closed. I feel it helped greatly in securing such a large attendance this year and through EDITOR & PUBLISHER I want to tell the newspaper men who read it and who are not yet affiliated with our department that they are missing something by staying out."

Soon after the conference, Mr. Millis left for Indianapolis and Mr. Miller devoted forty-two seconds to the serious consideration of where he could go out and inject a little new enthusiasm into the Kiwanis Club Committee, which he heads, complete his campaign organization plan for the Young Men's Hebrew Association, or go out and corner another advertising contract before eating dinner.

He decided to accomplish all three things in order to make it an average Charlie Miller Day.

Charlie Miller, who for the past four and one-half years has been advertising manager of the Birmingham News, came to Birmingham from the Louisville (Ky.) Herald, where he had served as advertising manager for a number of years. He received his early training on the Chattanooga (Tenn.) News, going from a beginning to a profeicient ad man on that newspaper. He is married and has no children.

In Birmingham, Mr. Miller is active in social, club and business life, a prominent member of the Kiwanis Club and all advertising men's organizations. His activity in eliminating "fake" advertising and establishing more intimate relationship between newspapers and advertisers has attracted wide attention all over the South.

Stockley Leaves Washington

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 1.—The George A. Deatel Company announces the addition of Sherwood C. Stockley, advertising director of Parker, Bridge & Co., Washington, to its agency staff.

PUBLISHERS!

The Secretary of the

A. A. A. A.

(N. Y. Council)

IS SPEAKING!

Schworm-Mandel, Inc., Sept. 19, 1919.
456 Fourth Ave., New York City.

ATTENTION OF MR. G. V. SCHWORM.

Gentlemen:

At your request I have made a personal investigation of the "5 & M Insured Delivery Service" in our agency, and want to congratulate you on the prompt and efficient daily delivery of the newspapers and magazines which you forward. It is absolutely necessary that we check all advertisements before bills are paid and owing to the non-arrival of the out-of-town papers the closing of many accounts is held open for a considerable length of time. Your service overcomes this fault, and we have been enabled to check up our out-of-town advertisements daily as your service has yet to miss a daily delivery.

I trust that your service will be broadened to take in many more publications. The more the merrier and the more help it will be, not only to the agency but to the publisher—it means prompt payment to him of his bills.

Please accept my thanks on behalf of the agency for your good work and I will gladly recommend this service to any doubting Thomas you may refer to me.

Very Truly yours,

MACLAY & MULLALLY, INC.
(Signed) W. T. MULLALLY.

"AMONG US MORTALS" Hill's funny characterizations will be found ON PAGE 17, TMIS SECTION

Des Moines Sunday Capital

Last Edition

VOL. I, NO 22 DES MOINES, IOWA, SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1919

STEEL MEN ... DAY

Labor Test

NO ATTEMPTS MADE TO HALT A WALKOUT

Industrial Struggle Affecting Entire Country Will Result If Claims of Leaders Are Fulfilled.

By FRED S. FERGUSON,
United News.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 28—(Special)—The first gathering of representatives of the steel workers and the steel corporations since the strike was called was the meeting held here today by the committee of the men and the executive committee of the United States Steel corporation.

The meeting was held in the offices of the Carnegie Steel company in the Carnegie building, and was the first meeting between the committee of the men and the executive committee of the steel corporation since the strike was called.

The meeting was held behind closed doors and workers in the steel industry throughout the country are anxiously awaiting the outcome of the conference.

The meeting was called to take up the matter of the right of the men to organize and the recognition of the steel corporation of the organization of the men. The men are demanding the right to organize which the steel corporation has refused to recognize.

There is no thought in Pittsburgh that the meeting today will result in a settlement of the controversy, but it is generally believed that the meeting will be the beginning of negotiations which will result in a settlement of the strike. The fact that the meeting was held at all is taken to indicate that the corporation is willing to meet the men in conference.

EXTRA POLICE FORCE IN.

In the meantime, between now and Monday morning, both sides will be preparing for the conference. The sheriff's office here has increased the police force by 100 men, and the police department has also increased its force by 100 men. Both forces will be used by the corporation in protecting its property and its employes. Chiefs and other officers of the police department have been warned to be prepared to call out the entire force at a moment's notice.

CRIMINAL INTIMIDATION.

Both sides claim intimidation of workers by the other side. The corporation claims that the men are using criminal intimidation to prevent workers from going to work. The men claim that the corporation is using criminal intimidation to prevent workers from joining the union. Both sides claim that the intimidation is being carried on by gunmen employed by the other side.

Reports from various parts of the district indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out. Many mines are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Youngstown indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Cleveland indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Chicago indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Gary indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Wheeling indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Johnstown indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Buffalo indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Bethlehem indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Sparrows Point indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Coatesville indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Harrisburg indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Lebanon indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Reading indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Allentown indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

Reports from Bethlehem indicate that the strike is being effectively carried out there. Many mills are closed down, and the mills are operating with greatly reduced forces.

LAYMAN MODERATOR MEETS WITH BOARD

MAKE LEVIATH

WILSON WOULD TAKE NEW PLAN TO CONFERENCE

ident Declares If Opposition of League Fred Better Plan He Will Take It Europe.

ES OPPOSITION ASED ON REASON

Man Has Right to Constructive Pl He Has a Pe

The Des Moines Capital
Published Evening and Sunday
Circulation 30,000
Largest in the State
Des Moines, Iowa

Lafayette Young
Publisher

September 25, 1919.

Mr. L. C. Earnist,
General News Manager,
United Press Associations,
New York City.

My dear Mr. Earnist-

We are very much pleased with the Saturday night service, and at this time, we have no suggestions or criticisms to make.

In my judgement, this is an ideal service for Sunday morning newspapers. If we should at any time, have any suggestions to make that we believe would improve the service, for our purposes, I will not hesitate to write you.

With kindest regards, I am,

Most cordially yours,

THE DES MOINES CAPITAL.

W. C. Jarnagin
Managing Editor.

W. C. Jarnagin
IDB

United Press Associations

GENERAL OFFICES NEW YORK

Digitized by Google

TELLS HOW TO BEAT STOCK SWINDLERS

Winner of A. A. C. W. Trophy for Constructive Work Says "Investigate Before You Buy"— Presents Questionnaire Form

Cleveland, O., Sept. 30.—Edward L. Greene, secretary of the "Better Business Commission" of the Cleveland Advertising Club and winner of the Baltimore trophy offered for the most constructive advertising during 1919, will be royally received when he returns from New Orleans.

EDWARD T. GREENE

The trophy, first offered in 1913, by the Baltimore Club, is a silver globe of the world, bearing the word "Truth," and was captured by the Indianapolis Club a year ago, but will be held by the Cleveland organization during the next six months.

Mr. Greene is about 35 years of age and came to Cleveland, January 1, 1918, from Chicago, where he had been secretary of the "Better Business Commission" of the Chicago Advertising Club. He won the trophy on a report which he submitted to the New Orleans convention. The report consisted of a large book, uniquely bound, containing a variety of reports. The particular lines which won him the trophy covered merchandise, financial and circulation work.

D. C. Wills, chairman of the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank Board, is chairman of the Ad Club's commission.

Mr. Greene has some very pointed ideas about selling securities, which he recently outlined to the representative of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

"It Looked Good to Me"

Asked why so many people buy this class of securities, Mr. Greene shot back:

"Because they do not know any better and want to get rich quick. It is my belief that this is the reason for the untold millions which are annually dissipated by our people when they see a rosy hue in the 'get-rich-quick' offerings of scheming, heartless and wily promoters.

"How to overcome this evil is a problem that has stumped all of us, from civic organizations that have attempted to give it an honest fight all the way up to the Federal Government.

"After hundreds of interviews with people who have purchased extremely promotional stocks I find without exception these unfortunate buyers have made their purchase without any better information than that given by the salesmen who sold them. When these people were asked the question, 'How did you come to buy this stock?' the usual reply was: 'It looked good to me.'"

Mr. Green said that the most of the people he questioned said they never thought of investigating the securities offered. He has prepared a questionnaire—the basis of which is INVESTIGATE BEFORE YOU BUY.

"The facts presented," he said, "should be driven home to every prospective buyer of securities."

Urges Use of Questionnaire

Mr. Greene urges, when salesmen try to sell "stock," to submit the following questionnaire, to be filled out: "Then tell him you will think it over and return the paper to Mr. ——'s office," says Mr. Greene.

Here is the questionnaire:

You wouldn't buy a pig in a bag, so don't buy any stock until you know all about it.

Name of Company.....
Names of Salesman.....
Total issue of stock.....
Stock given for property.....
Stock given for good will.....
Stock given for patents.....
Are you taking Liberty bonds?
If so, at what price.....
Amount of cash needed.....
Par value of stock.....
Selling price of stock.....
What is company's selling expenses?.....
What are present net earnings?.....
What are expected net earnings?.....
Bank reference company.....
Bank reference representative.....
Names of officers.....
Former occupation.....
(Here are blank spaces for answers.)

SHIFTS ON ST. LOUIS STAR

Polk, Sullivan and Hoskins Change —Hoskins Secretary of "S. L. A. J."

St. Louis, Sept. 30.—John Polk, formerly on the sporting staff of the Star, has been given the circuit court run. Frank Sullivan, a general assignment reporter, has left newspaper work to become associated with the advertising department of the Bell Telephone Company in Missouri.

Tom Rogers, for the past year assistant city editor of the Republic, has joined the staff of the Star as a rewrite man. A. C. Hoskins, of the Star, was elected secretary of the St. Louis Association of Journalists, to succeed Frank Sullivan.

ST. LOUIS PLAN IN PITTSBURGH

News Writers Organize, But Will Not Affiliate with Labor

Pittsburgh, Sept. 30.—At a meeting to-day, attended by 22 men and women news writers, it was voted 12 to 10 to adopt the St. Louis plan of organization and not affiliate with the International Typographical Union or the American Federation of Labor.

Reporter Shot by Mistake

Joplin, Mo., Sept. 23.—James Baugh, a reporter on the Globe, was shot and dangerously wounded during a pistol battle between the police and Charles Adams, a former convict, who was killed, early Tuesday morning. Baugh was mistaken for a member of the gang the officer was sent to arrest. He will recover.

AD MEN'S GOLF POPULAR

Big Day in N. Y. Tournament—Perry Twice Winner

No less than 104 golfers put in an appearance for the usual match and medal combination of the Metropolitan Advertising Golf Association at Sinawoy last week. Hub Fairchild, president of the Western Advertising Golf Association, was the guest.

A. G. Perry of Fox Hills won double honors. He came through in the first flight defeating H. V. Gaines in the final, and also tied with F. J. Barber for the low net. Roy Durstine of Scarsdale won the first consolation trophy, while C. C. Hommann, Jr., won the second flight, and G. P. Eddy of Arcola the consolation award in that division. John Anderson, the Siwanoy captain, had the low gross, a 76.

First American in Budapest

Kansas City, Sept. 30.—Capt. Charles A. Bonfils, former managing editor of the Post and brother of F. G. Bonfils, owner of the Denver and Kansas City Post, is said to have been the first American to reach Budapest after the Rumanians had captured the city. Captain Bonfils commanded a group of American Red Cross workers.

Plan New Paper in Oregon

Astoria, Ore., Sept. 19.—Giving as its purpose the publication of a newspaper and a general publishing business, the Astoria News, Inc., has filed articles of incorporation. The office will be in Astoria. The capitalization of $7,500 and the incorporators are Frank L. Wallace, F. W. Johnson and W. B. Oliver.

Boosters for "R. E. Lee" Highway

Houston, Tex., Sept. 24.—The Robert E. Lee Trans-continental Highway Association, organized here, has elected the following newspapermen to membership: E. R. Millis, of the Houston Post; Frank Noel, of the Houston Chronicle; Jules Elfenbein, of the Houston Press, and Alvin Jones, of the Galveston News.

Hutson Back at the Capitol

Jefferson City, Mo., Sept. 29.—Ace Hutson, political writer for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, who has been doing special work in the home office, is back on duty in this city.

Electra Now Has a Daily

Houston, Tex., Sept. 24.—Jack Stevens and Frank White recently purchased the Electra (Tex.) Leader and have launched a daily for that thriving little town.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Beginning October 1, 1919, The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency will represent the New Orleans Daily States and the Shreveport Times in the Eastern territory, which is all territory East of Pittsburgh and Buffalo including those points.

John N. Branham Company will represent the New Orleans Daily States and the Shreveport Times in the Western and Southern territory (excepting Louisiana and Texas.)

Robert Ewing, Publisher
NEW ORLEANS DAILY STATES and SHREVEPORT TIMES

The difficulty about advertising Advertising is that it cannot be pictured—only described.

Try to imagine a picture of two million people—that's Brooklyn.

Visualize if you can a quarter of a million decent, home-loving men, women and children.

They are the readers of the Standard Union.

Digitized by Google

It Will Pay You to Read This

When an advertiser can saturate a large, concentrated, prosperous territory with one newspaper, his net profit return will be far greater than in many larger population centers which require several mediums for coverage. Many papers claim to dominate alone, although the facts show a logical reason for using two or three newspapers. Indeed, too often space buyers slight a market by not using enough mediums—fearing duplication. One of the exceptional newspaper situations in the entire United States is in

ERIE

Pennsylvania

The Market, 157,000

Erie Population, 105,000; Suburban (35 mile radius), 52,000

That this large prosperous market is absolutely saturated through one newspaper—the Erie Daily Times—is proved by the following facts:

Territory	Population	Number of Homes	Erie Times' Paid Circulation
Erie City	105,000	21,000	18,939
Erie Suburbs (35 Mile Radius)	52,000	10,000	6,718
Country	....	....	1,136
Total			26,793

Erie has three daily newspapers—one morning, two evening. The ERIE TIMES has 50% more than the combined paid circulations of its two daily competitors and over treble the circulation of either.

ERIE DAILY TIMES

(A. B. C. Member)

Paid Circulation 26,793

Line Rate 6c. flat. Evenings except Sunday.

Erie, Pa., and the TIMES are an exceptional combination. The territory is large. The business is mostly manufacturing. Wages are good. Living conditions are well above the average. Erie is already well developed but still progressive, fostering many civic projects. The stores are many with plenty of the very best class of merchandise. The streets are wide and well paved. All these things have attracted a substantial, desirable population with a surprisingly small percentage of foreign element. With more than a living wage, and healthful, attractive, exceptional living conditions, the population is appreciative of the better things in life, and responsive to the advertising of good merchandise. Most of the workers own their own homes; many are mansions.

While Erie today offers a splendid market, its potential possibilities are even greater. The population is growing rapidly. The city is becoming more important as a trade center. The rail and water transportation facilities are adequate, and for growth is the great port of Erie, not yet come into its own. Erie is 88 miles from Buffalo, 95 miles from Cleveland. While a great portion of Erie's jobbing business is controlled from those two cities, from an advertising standpoint Erie stands alone and supreme. So from the consideration of future possibilities, Erie is a substantial market to cultivate.

You see there is no opinion expressed but simply a record of facts. Let us give you more information about this unusual market and newspaper. This message is for you. For our mutual good place the ERIE TIMES on your list now.

The Erie Daily Times for EVERY National Advertiser

Representatives

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

Established 1888

15 East 26th St.	Harris Trust Bldg.	Waldheim Bldg.	Monadnock Bldg.
New York	Chicago	Kansas City	San Francisco

Digitized by Google

MEREDITH IS CHOSEN A. A. C. W. HEAD

Elections, Awards of Trophies and Passage of Resolutions Mark the Closing of Session—John Barrett Soon to Retire

(By Telegraph)

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 25.—The Associated Advertising Clubs, before adjournment today, unanimously elected E. T. Meredith of Des Moines president. He was placed in nomination eloquently by W. H. Johns of the George Batten Company, New York, who is president of the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

The following vice-presidents were also elected to serve with executive jurisdiction over the affairs of the organization in their respective districts.

Rowe Stewart, of the Philadelphia Record; R. H. Donnelly, Chicago; E. Lyell Guntz, Baltimore; John Ring, Jr., St. Louis; Rollin C. Ayers, San Francisco; F. W. Stewart, Montreal, Canada; Charles F. Higham, London, England; and Benjamin J. Lee, Minneapolis.

Miss Jane J. Martin of New York enjoys the unique distinction of being the first woman ever elected to membership on the executive board. She says she "will try to sell woman's advertising league to men and the Executive Committee and the clubs idea to women."

Florea Re-elected

P. S. Florea was re-elected secretary, treasurer and executive manager.

The usual resolutions of thanks and appreciation were adopted assertive that New Orleans redeemed every promise it made and thanking the Nobles of Mystic Shrine and the Elks, ex-presidents Dobbs, Coleman, Woodhead and Houston "for the splendid interest"; the local newspapers, the New Orleans Club and the gracious women of the South, fraternal and social organizations, retiring officers, Mayor Behrman, and Tulane University, besides hailing with delight the formation of the Pan-American Division, with John Barrett president and John Vavasour Noel of New York, recording secretary.

Herbert S. Houston presented the report of the Awards Committee made by three former presidents of the clubs—Messrs. Coleman, Woodhead, and himself.

The "Melvin A. Taylor Cup," for the best financial advertising exhibit, went to the Irving National Bank of New York.

Endorse U. S. Chamber of Commerce

The St. Louis Club's trophy for war service to the nation went to the Toledo Club.

The Los Angeles Women's Club Trophy for the best work done by women's clubs went to the Women's Advertising Club of Chicago.

The Baltimore trophy for vigilance and better business went to the Cleveland Ad Club.

President D'Arcy awarded a prize to Lewis Carol, 6, of New Orleans, for writing the best essay on advertising in a contest among the 40,000 school children in the city.

Boston and Dallas banners for mileage and attendance were awarded to the San Francisco club.

The incoming executive committee, of which retiring president D'Arcy is also member, was authorized to designate five delegates from the clubs to attend the International Conference of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce at Atlantic City this month.

Pan American departmental delegates learned with regret of coming retirement from the Pan-American Union of John Barrett, Director General, who has done so much to cement international friendship.

As told by Epsros & Publishing last week, the 1920 convention will be in Indianapolis.

Telegrams Read

Among the telegrams read by President D'Arcy was one from Secretary Crawford, of the Thirty Club, London—which is the advertising club in London affiliated with the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World—in which Mr. Crawford sent the greetings of The Thirty Club, adding: "And may the new era of advertising be a bigger, cleaner, more truthful one."

President D'Arcy also read a telegram from Walter B. Cherry, of Syracuse, formerly vice-president of the Associated Advertising Clubs, saying: "I shall always remember the honors the organization bestowed upon me, and ever cherish the loyal friendship of those days. I regret exceedingly my inability to be with you at this time."

S. S. Wilson in Hospital

Arthur M. East, director of the National Thrift Week, January 17 to 24, wired the convention concerning the purposes of the Thrift Week. "Thrift Week," he said, "has for its purposes the education of the public to present economic conditions, showing how the individual can help. Thrift Week will teach sound economies, increasing industrial co-operation and production, decreasing radicalism and educating against wild-cat promoters. Scientific advertising is necessary for success of the National Thrift Week campaign."

Another telegram was received from Irwin F. Paschal, advertising manager of the Farm Journal, Philadelphia, who has long been active in the work of the Associated Clubs. Hay fever prevented Mr. Paschal from attending this convention.

Edmond A. Whittier, secretary-treasurer of the American Fair Trade League, wired cordial greetings, and expressed warm appreciation for the co-operation of the clubs in the cause of honest merchandising. "We are gaining steadily by public education," he said, "but victory can only be won by continuance of earnest individual work."

Sidney S. Wilson, of Cleveland, a vice-president of the Associated Clubs, wired "that attendance at the convention has been made impossible from the fact that he has had an automobile accident and was in the hospital.

A Message from Australia

President D'Arcy read a cable from William Hughes, Prime Minister of Australia. It was as follows:

"On behalf of the Government and people of Australia, I wish your convention well. We who have fought side by side with the soldiers of America and cemented our relationship with the ties of blood, only desire that our friendship shall continue—that the bonds forged by war shall be strengthened, bonds of mutual self-interest, and that in the field of commerce we shall stand as loyally by each other as we did in the field of battle. Regarding your convention as one of those things which lead to better understanding amongst the people of the earth and so promotes the peace of the world, I wish it all success."

Gets Half Interest in L. I. Paper

McHaig Davenport, for a number of years with the Atlas Advertising Agency, New York, has become half owner of the Glen Cove, (N. Y.) Echo issued continuously in that village since 1875. Mr. Davenport will be business manager and associate editor. During the war he was overseas with the 27th Division, and was recommended for the Croix de Guerre receiving this decoration from Marshal Petain.

Nichols Takes Charge

DEAVER, Wyo.—The Sentinel will in the future be edited by S. I. Hooker, a son-in-law of the late M. M. Nichols. Mr. Hooker and Mr. Nichols were partners in the real estate business before the latter's recent death.

Keeping up With The Times
A FACT A WEEK

First came May with a gain in net paid daily circulation of 501 over April.

Then came June, with an additional gain of 1,868.

Next July, with an increase over June, of 5,605.

And, finally, August, which overtopped the July figures by 1,308.

That is the circulation history of The Times in the summer months—a total gain of 9,282 in a period when newspaper circulations customarily decline.

The Washington Times
WASHINGTON, D.C.

Sales and Service

A branch office has been opened in Cleveland, in the Hickox Building, in charge of Mr. Samuel Bravo, secretary of the Cosmopolitan Club, comprising all of the leading publications of Cleveland and vicinity.

A branch office has been opened in Boston, in the Little Building, in charge of Mr. William H. Putnam, formerly advertising manager of the New York Herald.

Our Chicago office in the Peoples Gas Building was the first one organized in pursuance of the policy of daily personal contact with publications, dealers and buyers. We shall extend this system to every large immigrant center in this country in order that our clients may have the best possible advertising and merchandising service.

Our four offices now cover the largest immigrant buying centers in America.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE NEWSPAPERS, Inc.

NEW YORK	CHICAGO	BOSTON	CLEVELAND
Woolworth Bldg.	Peoples Gas Bldg.	Little Bldg.	Hickox Bldg.
Frances A. Keller President	Frank D. Gardner Vice President and	William H. Putnam Vice President and	Samuel Bravo Vice President and
Adolph B. Landau Sales Manager	Chicago Manager	Boston Manager	Cleveland Manager

THREE BIG ONES

Texas—Houston—The Chronicle

Here are 76 of the 125 Leading National Advertising accounts that the Chronicle carries exclusively:

Hart, Shaffner & Marx
Stellenberg Clothing Co.
Packard Motor Car Co.
Bayley Motor Car Co. (Roamer)
Selden Motor Car Co.
Essex Motor Co., Miller
Miller Rubber Co.
Reo Motor Car Co.
Garford Motor Truck Co.
Geo. W. Davis Motor Car Co.
Lexington Motor Co.
Swanson Tractor Co.
Harley-Davidson Motor Co.
Diamond Tires
Goodrich Tires
Silvertown Tires
Cinderella Dye Soap Co.
Lament, Corliss & Co. (Pond's Creams)
Alfred H. Smith & Co. (Djer-Kiss)
Lever Bros. (Lux)
R. L. Watkins Co. (Mulsified Cocoanut Oil)
The Pompeian Co. (Pompeian Cream)
Freeman Perfume Co.
Splenius Company
Lucky Tiger Dandruff Co.
Herpicide Company
Lohn & Fink (Pebeco)
P. & G. White Naphtha Soap
Post Bros. (Crystal White Soap)
Universal Cleanser Co. (Nifty)
Tarrytown Cigarettes
Norris Candies
Fuerst & Kraemer Candies
Wiley's Candies
King Chocolates
Orange Crush Co.
Aladdin House Co.
Hofstra Manufacturing Co.
Ralston Purina Mills
Durham Duplex Razor Co.
Autostrop Razor Co.
Gillette Razor Co.
Aunt Jemima Mills
C. A. Gambril Mfg. (Pat-A-Cake)
Good Housekeeping
Ladies' Home Journal
G. Washington Coffee Co.
New Orleans Coffee Co.
American Coffee Co. (Tulane Coffee)
Eagle Hat Co.
Mallory Hat Co.
Crown Corset Co.
Redfern Corset Co.
Geo. P. Ide Co.
Charter Oak Stove & Range Co.
American Radiator Co.
Buffalo Specialty Co.
D. M. Ferry Co.
Lykns Polish Mfg. Co.
Devoe & Reynolds Co.
American Paint Works
Boor Cal-Products Co.
Quaker Oats Co.
Famm Company
Franklin-Carv Co.
Phoenix Hosiery
Kansas City Chamber of Commerce
Aluminum Cooking Utensils Co.
F. M. Hoyt Shoe Co.
Graham-Brown Shoe Co.
Wichita Mill & Elevator Co.
Nunn Electric Company
Burroughs Adding Machine Co.
F. O. Stone Baking Co.
Purity Extract & Tonic Co.
Lone Star Brewing Co.

Houston and all Texas is Tremendously Prosperous.

It is a Rich and Cultivated Field for the Advertiser.

The Chronicle led the Houston papers, 2,284,644 agate lines the first eight months of 1919.

It carried nearly Twice as much National advertising as any other Houston paper and led the second Houston paper by 929,794 agate lines the first eight months of 1919.

989,016 agate lines was its lead in local advertising for the first eight months of 1919.

It gained 63 per cent in classified advertising and led the second paper by 365,835 agate lines in eight months.

It Gained 2,814,918 agate lines the first eight months of 1919 over 1918 and led all Texas papers in 1918.

It carried exclusively 125 Leading National Advertising accounts, some of which are given herewith.

It carries exclusively 75 per cent of the advertising accounts of Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

Its Lead in Circulation is 35 per cent.

It has more circulation in Houston and 100 miles than any other Houston paper has in 150 miles.

Lead in Circulation 35%

THE CHRONICLE'S CITY CIRCULATION is 35 per cent larger than that claimed by the second paper. More than a paper per Houston Home.

In Houston and a radius of 100 miles, THE CHRONICLE has more circulation than any other paper in a radius of 150 miles.

THE CHRONICLE'S NIGHT EDITION reaches six hundred Texas towns early in the morning and from three to twelve hours ahead of the morning papers, where it is delivered by carrier or agent.

Circulation — Net Paid
Daily	52,117
City Daily	23,129
Sunday	60,253
City Sunday	23,730

Bureau of Research and Business Promotion

In this bureau are men who have had actual merchandising experience. They not only investigate the market for the advertiser, but assist him in getting dealer co-operation, dealer link-ups and displays of merchandising during the life of the advertising.

This department is carrying on a systematic campaign to educate the dealer to the importance of handling, properly displaying and pushing Nationally Advertised articles. To create a good will relation between National Advertiser and Dealer.

THE HOUSTON CHRONICLE

M. E. FOSTER, President
J. E. McCOMB, Jr., Manager National Advertising

HOUSTON, TEXAS

JOHN M. BRANHAM COMPANY, Representatives

Mallers Building — Chandler Building, Atlanta — Chemical Building, St. Louis — Kresge Building, Detroit — Brunswick Building, New York

Digitized by Google

ADVERTISING IS ALLY OF EDUCATION

Two Have Become Closely Related in Recent Years, President of Tulane University Tells Convention

"Two of the greatest forces in the world today are Educational and Advertising. These two forces have until recently appeared to be entirely dissimilar in plan and purpose, but in the development which each has had in recent years we find that they are approaching constantly nearer to a common idea. Each has still much to learn from the other, but so closely have they come to be related that neither can afford to ignore the other," said Dr. A. B. Dinwiddie, president of Tulane University of New Orleans, in addressing delegates to the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World at the inspirational meeting.

Truth and Honesty

"Without doubt Education can learn much from Advertising in its modern scientific development," he continued. "The policy and plan and purpose of Advertising today are becoming systematically organized with the highest ideals in view.

"The slogan of Advertising today is Truth. The slogan of Education should be Honesty. There is no more reason that an inferior quality of education should be given to the people in return for the money appropriated from the public treasury than that an inferior article of commerce should be sold to a purchaser for the money offered.

"Though Education has had a long history as compared with Advertising, it has no reason to boast of its progress in purifying its ideals as compared with Advertising. Witness this convention! What a magnificent thing it would be to have a similar convention of educational authorities based upon the outstanding, dominant ideal of Honesty in Education.

Greater Force for Good

"Education was in the past suspicious of Advertising and there have been even in recent years certain schools which regard Advertising as an undignified appeal to the public, a lowering of academic ideals, a commercialization of the intellectual and spiritual. There is no doubt that excessive and often illegitimate advertising of other schools had much to do with this attitude.

"But bigger than Advertising, and including it, is the great principle of Publicity; humanly speaking, the greatest force for good and the greatest corrective of evil now working in the world. Advertising as it is now understood by its friends and champions is Publicity, the force which will finally eliminate vice, purify politics, and bring men to believe that Honesty is not merely the only sound policy but the only safe policy in every line of human activity.

"The principle of Truth for which the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World are fighting is a principle of universal application. It seems to me of tremendous significance that representatives of government, education, and business organizations should meet here jointly to celebrate the progress of the Associated Advertising Clubs in this fight and to receive an inspirational impulse of lasting value toward that common ideal of Truth and Honesty for which we are all striving.

MRS. WILSON ENTERTAINS

Pours Tea for Correspondents Who Were With Presidential Party

Washington, Sept. 30.—Following her return to the White House from an automobile ride with President Wilson yesterday, Mrs. Wilson entertained the newspaper correspondents who were members of the President's party on the Western tour at tea.

Owing to illness, President Wilson was unable to be present.

Veteran Brooklynite Dead

Thomas F. Sands, 82, who for many years was connected with the Scottish-American and Frank Leslie's in New York, died in Brooklyn September 19. After leaving the publishing business, Mr. Sands took up real estate and was one of the developers of the New Utrecht section of Brooklyn.

Toured Western Canada

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 23.—Eastern newspapermen who have recently toured Western Canada are Tom Blacklock of the Montreal Gazette and Roland Hill of the publicity branch of the Canadian Government, Ottawa. Both served as Canadian correspondents overseas during the war.

Higgins in Lumber Business

Portland, Me., Sept. 24.—Ruggles S. Higgins, formerly a well-known newspaperman here, is now superintendent of the purchasing department of a large Massachusetts lumber concern. He had been connected with the installation plant of the Cumberland Shipbuilding Company for the past year.

THE crowded condition of our offices at 250 Fifth Avenue, has made it necessary for us to move to larger quarters at 95 Madison Avenue, (Corner of 29th Street) where we are now located. This is just around the corner from the old location.

Lane Bryant Inc.

Same Telephone Number, 2100 Madison Square

NAME POST FOR LIEUT. MILLS

New York Sun Veterans Honor Fellow Workers' Memory

Quincy Mills Post, 412, composed of the members of the staffs of the New York Evening Sun and the Sun, has been chartered by the State organization of the American Legion. The post is named in honor of Lieut. Quincy Sharpe Mills, who left his work on the Evening Sun as a reporter and editorial writer to enlist and was killed in action near Epieds, France, on July 26, 1918.

Ninety-four Sun men served with the American and allied forces. Five were killed in the line of duty, Lieut. Mills, Lieut. Conrad Crawford, Lieut. Stuart Edgar and Lieut. James R. Crowe, in the American Expeditionary Forces, and Frank D. Byrnes while serving with the Royal Dublin Fusileers before the declaration of war. Several others were wounded in action.

Hyde Takes Case to High Court

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 27.—Dr. B. Clark Hyde, whose recent suit for $2,500,000 against the Star was dismissed because of the statute of limitations, has filed an appeal bond with the county clerk, thus transferring his case to the Missouri supreme court.

Miss A. C. Browne Married

Miss Alice C. Browne, dramatic editor of the Columbus (Ohio) State Journal, and Edward Mackay were married at All Souls' Church, New York, September 18. The bride is a daughter of ex-Senator Browne of Utah.

Sellers of "Liberator" Arrested

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Men selling copies of the Liberator, a Chicago alleged Socialist newspaper, were arrested this week on charges of loitering and disorderly conduct when they attempted to canvass employees leaving the clothing shops of Hart, Schaffner & Marx's downtown factory. The clothing manufacturers have a permanent injunction against picketing or other labor agitating demonstrations.

Scranton Men Make Changes

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 24.—Lieut. James G. Macklin has resigned from the Republican news bureau. Frank P. Toohey, another Republican newsman, has taken up publicity work for the International Correspondence Schools. Max Myers and Wilbur Williams are new additions to the Republican reportorial staff. Bryan Powell has been assigned to the correspondence desk.

Libel Trial Postponed

Concordia, Kan., Sept. 27.—The trial of Ray Green, editor of the Blade-Empire, and Fred Cook, former editor of the Jamestown Optimist, on charges of alleged criminal libel, were postponed, owing to the absence of a witness. The two men were sued by Rev. F. R. Berry, following the publication of a certain "fable" in the two papers, concerning a "parson" which Rev. Berry construed to mean himself.

Briscoe to Sell Autos

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 26.—Howard S. Bisscoe has retired from newspaper work to become special representative of the Lambert Automobile Company, distributor of Hudson and Essex cars.

Orr-Wray Wedding Celebrated

Leechburg, Ohio., Sept. 25.—Stanley M. Wray, editor and publisher of the Advocate, and Miss Pauline C. Orr were married September 12, and are now on a honeymoon trip to the East.

LATE NEWS

Guardian Advertising Corporation has been formed in New York, capitalized at $250,000, by Robert Adamson, Dr. John A. Harriss, Washington Lamar, Emmett S. Hamilton and B. C. Owen. William C. Freeman will be field manager. Headquarters are at 511 5th Avenue.

William Gow, former business manager of the Troy (N. Y.) Press, is dead.

Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser dropped its afternoon edition, September 30, after less than a year's operation.

New Orleans States and Shreveport Times have appointed the S. C. Beckwith Special Agency and the John M. Branham Company as national advertising representatives.

U. S. Circuit Court in New York, on October 6, will begin review of Federal Trade Commission's newsprint prices on application of American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

Paper Controller Pringle has set October 9 as date for next hearing in Canadian inquiry into newsprint industry.

Pulitzer School of Journalism opened September 30 with Director Emeritus Talcott Williams as speaker. It has the largest enrollment in its history.

Rochester (N. Y.) news writers have withdrawn their application for an I. T. U. charter.

Sir Edward Tyas Cook, for years an active British newspaper man and until recently head of the Press Bureau, died in London October 1, aged 62 years.

Lord Northcliffe declares he will suspend publication rather than permit strikers to censor or in any other way control his news, editorial or advertising columns, as they have attempted to do.

Attempt is being made to organize the Hartford news writers into a union, according to reports.

"A. P." Divides a Circuit

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 30.—The long circuit of the Associated Press, which extended from Chicago to Grand Forks, N. D., serving the papers of Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota, has been divided. A new circuit has been created which, under the direction of the St Paul office, of which R. L. Tennis is manager, will serve the papers of Minnesota, North Dakota and Superior, Wis. The old circuit will serve all Wisconsin papers except those of Superior.

Digitized by Google

The Newspaper

AN ALWAYS WELCOME MESSENGER, IN INSTANT AND CONSTANT READINESS, THROUGH WHICH YOU MAY QUICKLY AND ECONOMICALLY REACH EVERY WORTH-WHILE HOME, OFFICE, STORE, SHOP AND FACTORY IN THE LAND, OR IN ANY DESIRABLE SECTION YOU SELECT.

Newspaper reading has come to be regarded almost as important a part of the daily life of every intelligent man or woman as food or sleep.

You, personally, are one of the many millions of people who prove this statement.

The quickest, surest, most direct way to tell all of the people of a community the thing you want them to know is through the columns of its newspaper. Newspaper readers accept and regard the advertising columns of a newspaper as a legitimate part of the paper, and not intrusive. Good advertising is news.

The newspaper is made up of units, each under its own name, with its own individuality, serving its own circle of readers, clearly defined either by geographical boundaries, or because constructed to appeal to a special interest.

There need be no guesswork. You can use one of those units knowing exactly what you cover with it, or multiply it by tens or hundreds with equally definite knowledge.

Like a wise farmer, you may, if you choose, develop a convenient field, then add one after another until you bring a vast territory under intensive cultivation.

You may select your territory so as to take advantage of sectional prosperity or needs, and of transportation or manufacturing facilities.

While the real development has only begun, hundreds of so-called national advertisers are users of extensive newspaper space today, as compared with dozens a few years ago.

Time was when anyone, everyone, or no one, looked after "the advertising." Now advertising is usually close under the keen eye and careful direction of the head of the house.

For a while it was the tendency of many men with decisive voices to visualize their audiences as numerous duplicates of themselves, with similar habits and tastes, and to select media accordingly. Vanity often ruled. Pretty pictures, some of them exquisite, and fine, dainty printing had full sway.

All this is changing. The direct, short-cut, quick, frank appeal or argument, vibrant with confidence and consequently with conviction, has come into great favor and use.

Advertising men have learned how even to construct illustrations for newspaper reproduction that are strikingly beautiful.

Merchandising and advertising plans are now rightly considered inseparable, and this has emphasized the value of the opportunity to select reachable and responsive territory for sales work, and to concentrate in a most intensive and thorough manner therein whatever advertising is then being done.

We do not decry the value of any other legitimate form of advertising, but we are convinced of, and enthusiastic over the superior advantages of newspaper advertising for every form of masses merchandising appeal, information or argument.

Properly done, newspaper advertising leads wherever speed, thoroughness, economy of cost, and result, both immediate and cumulative, are considerations.

We represent, in the national advertising field, a list of progressive newspapers in prosperous cities. We are the advertising field forces of those newspapers, thoroughly informed concerning the publications themselves and the territories in which they respectively circulate. We have gathered and are prepared to place before you, at any time, anywhere, all sorts of statistical trade information.

In conjunction with the publishers we serve, we have eliminated as far as these publications are concerned, the old bugbears of uncertainty of rates and of circulation.

We have earnestly striven for many years to make the "Known Circulation" seal and the name, "The John Budd Company," synonyms of accuracy and honesty. We are confident those who know us will say we have not failed.

"We are at your service, any time, anywhere"

THE JOHN BUDD COMPANY

National Advertising Representatives of Newspapers

Burrell Building, New York Tribune Building, Chicago Chemical Building, St. Louis

Digitized by Google

ADVERTISING BUILDS PUBLIC MORALE

Helping to Develop Element of Personal Contact and Harmony Between Capital and Labor, Dickinson Finds

"If advertising was necessary during the war to help in interpreting men to each other and the individual to his work at a time when the common purpose was well understood, how much more necessary is its force of suggestion needed today when the gospel of work and production is actually more important than it was during the war if we are to escape an international calamity in the alternating increase in wages and living cost," said Major Roy Dickinson, associate editor of Printer's Ink, in an address at the A. A. C. W. convention.

Major Dickinson, who was head of the Department of Industrial Morale for the Chief of Staff of the U. S. Army during the war, had as his topic "The Relation of Advertising to Industrial Morale in War and Peace."

Personal Contact

"Increased efficiency of production, better methods of management, and decreased profit per unit of production mean that the manufacturer must eventually make his profit through an increased volume of business, and must keep production cost low by gaining the co-operation of the men who invest their muscle in the business," he continued.

"In both these main heads, increased efficiency of production and greater sales volume, quicker turnover to make up for lower profits per unit, advertising has always played a most important part, and also in standardizing retail prices of package goods at the retailer's counter.

"In literally hundreds of factories, advertising methods are today attempting successfully in more and more cases to bring back the elemcnt of personal contact, when the worker was Mike Flynn, on a side street, with two kids, known to the boss by name instead of number 1867 on the time clock list.

It is the old spirit of the days when the boss rubbed elbows with the men which advertising can help bring back, just as it has perpetuated the personality of an individual, and built up in the minds of people in far off places a definite mental attitude and good-will, a realization of a corporate character in a company whose factory they have never seen.

Co-operation on Plans

"Every new plan of profit-sharing, the wage dividend, the bonus system, a voice in the management through shop committee representation, and all the present attempts to reach the heart of the lack of personal contact depend for their success upon the spirit in which they are presented. No plan can be permanently successful unless a desire has been created for it, and when it takes into consideration the age-long instincts of the human mind which resents and is suspicious of anything tossed down from above.

"Co-operation takes two people, and presupposes absolute sincerity and explanation before it is possible. Poor presentation—the 'now, I am going to do something handsome for them' attitude—has wrecked scores of so-called profit-sharing plans, insurance ideas and the like.

"It is my opinion that the advertising manager in each plant should be consulted always to put in salable form any new plan, and to build from the bottom up, not from the top down, and as a selling idea presupposes good merchandise to sell, he should inform himself on the mind of that very important market, the men in his own plant, and discover in advance their likes and their prejudices.

"There is no time to enumerate the many factories where frank, honest advertising methods are now being used to prevent and make real the company's purposes and interest in the men's future or where they have cut down labor turnover tremendously by working in close contact with the personal manager. Employees' house organs, posters, moving pictures, envelope stuffers, newspapers, magazines, street cars, all sorts of mediums for corporate expression are being used.

"To increase production without decreasing American standards of living for the great 90 per cent of our fellow citizens, the customers for our goods, to help all men express themselves more fully to each other and in their work so that it becomes a really worthy part of a man's life for the good of his company and his country, to get men to think of making men happier, as well as making profits in business, these are tasks worthy of the best efforts of all men in all businesses.

"The advertising business has before it the chance to dedicate its great power intelligently to the service of humanity at a time of great crisis in the world's history. It can and will surely find a positive practical way to make its power a living influence in this task."

FORMER OWNER OF PINE KNOT BECOMES FLORIDA MANAGING EDITOR

GROVER BALDWIN

GROVER BALDWIN, a Yankee trained newspaper man, has been appointed managing editor of the Pensacola (Fla.) Journal. His newspaper activities have been largely confined to the state of Maine, and it is not known whether it was the winters or not that caused him to make such a long jump at this time of the year.

Baldwin's first newspaper experience was gained in 1907, during his high school days, as the staff on occasion of a little paper at Island Falls, Me., owned by Judge Ray Sanborn, which had a short and unhappy life. With great daring he then launched a paper of his own, called the Pine Knot—it, too, pined away.

While at Bates, Baldwin served as college correspondent of the Lewiston (Me.) Daily Sun, and in 1913 became a regular member of the staff, finally becoming Auburn city editor. While on the Sun he also did considerable work for the Boston Herald and Springfield Republican.

In 1915, when Baldwin believed that war with Germany was certain, he joined the Navy. He was successively seaman, electrician and chief electrician. In 1917 he was on the U. S. S. Saumee in French and British waters. He was transferred to the aviation service in 1918 and became a seaplane pilot, which duty he was performing when he resigned to accept his present position.

He is aged 26 and married.

Take Talcum Powder into

ILLINOIS

What is your ready made market?

Well, to begin with, you have 304 department stores, one of them the largest in the world.

Then you have 2,000 dry goods stores, 6,650 general stores and 3,200 drug stores —12,154 outlets

You have 73 cities of over 5000; 32 cities of over 10,000; 25 cities of over 15,000; 16 cities of over 25,000; 5 cities of over 50,000, and one city of over 2,500,000 people.

You have 6,152,257 people who are prospective customers and by using this list of daily newspapers you have a daily distribution of advertising amounting to 1,892,449 copies at a rate of $2.3304 per line.

It's an open door.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
Aurora Beacon News (E)	16,000	.04	.04
Bloomington Pantagraph (M)	17,213	.035	.035
Champaign Daily Gazette (E)	4,605	.0129	.0129
Chicago American (E)	326,998	.40	.40
Chicago Herald-Examiner (M)	289,934	.38	.31
*Chicago Herald-Examiner (S)	590,851	.53	.46
Chicago Daily News (E)	386,498	.43	.43
Chicago Journal (E)	116,807	.22	.18
Chicago Post (E)	55,477	.25	.12
Danville Commercial News (E)	15,086	.03	.03
*Elgin Courier (E)	8,173	.02	.02
Moline Dispatch (E)	10,113	.03	.03
Peoria Star (E)	22,738	.045	.04
Quincy Journal (E)	*8,591	.025	.025
Rockford Register-Gazette (E)	13,477	.03	.03
Sterling Daily Gazette (E)	5,072	.02	.02

Total Circulation 1,892,449. Rate per line, $2.3304.
Government Statement, April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. Report, April 1st, 1919.

NEWS PRINT PINCH HITS MISSOURI

Press Association Urges Suspension of Sunday Features and Magazines Until Crisis Passes—May Have Summer Resort

(By Telegraph)

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 27.—The fifty-third annual session of the Missouri Press Association closed here this afternoon with the adoption of a resolution urging the larger newspapers of the State to dispense with the publication of their Sunday feature and magazine sections until the crisis in the news print shortage situation is passed.

The association also favors the establishment of a resort in the Ozarks, where newspapermen may spend their vacations. A committee to devise ways and means was named.

The following officers were elected: President, William H. Zorn, West Plains Gazette; first vice-president, Dwight Brown, Popular Bluff Citizen; second vice-president, Mrs. Cora B. Stufflebaum, Bolivar Citizen; secretary, Fred Hull, Maryville Tribune; treasurer, W. H. Winter, Warrenton Banner.

Burgess Heads Gray Agency

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 1.—A reorganization of the F. A. Gray Advertising Agency has been effected, by which Warren W. Burgess becomes president, Allan Smith, vice-president, and Ward H. Webb, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Burgess was formerly with the W. B. Finner Company and his officer associates were connected with the old Gray Company.

Parsons Shifts Headquarters

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 29.—The advertising department of the Mills Restaurant chain has been moved here from Cleveland, Le Roy Parsons continuing in charge.

TIPS TO AD MANAGERS

N. W. Ayer & Son, 300 Chestnut st., Philadelphia. Placing orders with large city newspapers for Youth's Companion; again renewing orders with newspapers for Funk & Wagnalls.

Barrows & Richardson, Drexel Bldg., Philadelphia. Again placing orders with newspapers for Autocar Company; placing advertising with newspapers for Duplex Lighting Works.

Thomas M. Bowers Ad Agency, Jackson st. and Wabash ave., Chicago. Placing orders with newspapers in large cities for Vitanola Talking Machine Company.

E. H. Clarke Ad Agency, 28 E. Jackson Blvd., Chicago. Reported will make up a list of newspapers during November for James S. Kirk & Co.

Andrew Cone Agency, Tribune Bldg., New York. Again placing orders with newspapers for Charles A. Stoneham & Co.

Critchfield & Co., Brooks Bldg., Chicago. Placing advertising in rotogravure sections of newspapers for J. L. Kraft & Bros. Co.

Danielson & Son, 96 Westminster st., Providence. Placing orders with New England newspapers for United Lace & Braid Manufacturing Company.

Federal Advertising Agency, 6 East 39th st., New York. Placing copy with newspapers for Runkel Brothers' chocolate.

Ferry-Hanly Advertising Company, 1120 Walnut st., New Orleans. Usually make up lists during November for H. D. Lee Mercantile Agency.

Charles H. Fuller Company, Morgan Bldg., Buffalo. Placing orders with some New York State newspapers for Empire Texas Oil Company.

Gardiner & Wells Co., 150 Madison ave., New York. Reported will make up list of newspapers during early part of November for Kelly Springfield Tire Co.

Greenleaf Company, 41 Mt. Vernon st., Boston. Again placing orders with some Eastern newspapers for Williams, Clark & Co.

Lamport-MacDonald Company, J. M. S. Bldg., South Bend, Ind. Reported will make up a list of newspapers during November for Majestic Company.

Ford & Thomas, Times Bldg., New York. Again placing orders with some newspapers for Tyrell's Hygienic Institute.

Robert M. McMullen Company, 334 Fifth ave., New York. Again placing orders with newspapers for American Cranberry Exchange.

Herbert M. Morris Agency, 300 Chestnut st., Philadelphia. Making contracts with some Pennsylvania newspapers for Crossingham Knitting Mills.

Morse International Agency, 449 Fourth ave., New York. Again placing orders with some New York, New England and Pennsylvania newspapers for Weir Stove Company.

Frank Presbrey Company, 456 Fourth ave., New York. Placing orders in rotogravure sections of newspapers for Brokaw-Eden Company.

William H. Rankin Company, 50 Madison ave., New York. Placing the advertising for Pelman Institute of America; placing orders with newspapers in cities where Monroe Clothes Shops are located.

Roberts & Macavinche, 30 N. Dearborn st., Chicago. Again placing orders with newspapers for Albodon Company.

Fred N. Sommer, 810 Broad st., Newark. Placing orders with some New England newspapers for Jo-La Products Company.

Stark-Lowman Company, Crutcher & Starks Bldg., Louisville. Placing orders with some Pacific Coast newspapers for Magic Keller Soap.

Stroud-Brown, Inc., 303 Fourth ave., New York. Placing orders with New York City newspapers that have rotogravure sections for E. C. Rich, Inc.

Tracy - Parry Company, Lafayette Bldg., Philadelphia. Again placing orders with some Pennsylvania newspapers for Frishmuth Bros. & Co.

Williams & Cunnyngham, 78 East Madison st., Chicago. Again making contracts with newspapers for Morris & Co.

Chambers Agency, Inc., 612-618 Maison Blanche Bldg., New Orleans. Sending out orders to Southern newspapers and farm journals for the Williams Mill Manufacturing Company of Arkansas, mill machinery; to Southern farm papers for the East Birmingham Iron Roofing Company, fencing and roofing; and to poultry journals for the Liberty Manufacturing Company, electric incubators.

Kingly Shirt Company, Chicago, has just begun a newspaper advertising campaign through the Central Western cities, simultaneous advertisements appearing in Chicago, Indianapolis, Detroit, Kansas City (Mo.), St. Louis, Omaha, Cleveland and Pittsburgh. The company already is oversold for all of next season and desires merely to cooperate with its Middle Western dealers.

Peck Agency, 347 Fifth ave., New York. Recent new advertising accounts include the American Legion Weekly, New York; the Peel Company, Brooklyn, manufacturer of elevator doors; Merrill-Hartford Clothes, New York; and T. I. Mitchell & Co., New York, silk manufacturers.

Cement Products Company, Wilmington, N. Y. Planning a national advertising to cover one year for "Sanitet," a portable sewage disposal system.

Berrien Company, 19 West 44th st., New York. Will place advertising for Holmes & Edwards Silver Company, Bridgeport, Conn.

Green-Lucas Company, Hanover & Fayette sts., Baltimore. Will use newspapers in 51 Southern cities to advertise Gibbs Preserving Company's food products.

To All Newspapers

As part of a plan to induce all Presbyterian churches to do paid advertising in their local newspapers, James B. Wootan, Director of Publicity of the Presbyterian Church, has just issued a pamphlet on "Church Advertising," which he will be glad to send free to any newspaper editor, manager or publisher addressing him 156 Fifth Ave., New York City.

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO
THE BILLION DOLLAR CITY

The Vindicator
DAILY AND SUNDAY

Owing to increased cost of production, the display advertising rate will be

6c PER LINE FLAT RATE
In effect November 1, 1919

All contracts made before that date will be at the old rate up to November 1st. No contract made for more than twelve months from date of first insertion, which must be within thirty days from date of contract.

MEMBERS OF A. B. C.
ARE YOU USING OUR SERVICE DEPARTMENT?

The Vindicator
YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO
Foreign Representatives
La COSTE & MAXWELL
New York, Monolith Building — Chicago, Marquette Building

ADVERTISING SECURED
Advertising for Special Issues of Daily Papers and Magazines. Souvenir Programs of big events, Publicity campaigns conducted. If you have a legitimate reason for producing something special I have the men and means to do it.
J. L. Le BERTHON
2 RECTOR STREET NEW YORK CITY

Digitized by Google

EDITORIAL

SOUNDING CLEAR NOTE OF AMERICANISM

WHEN James Schermerhorn proposed a resolution, placing the Associated Advertising Clubs on record as favoring the immediate ratification, without amendments or reservations, of the peace treaty and the league of nations covenant, he evoked a response so electric and unanimous that it should serve as a warning to small Americans in the senate that they have about exhausted the public patience.

The men and women who attended the New Orleans convention are representative of American sentiment. They came from all sections of the country. They return to their homes pledged to work for the ratification of the treaty and covenant. They are in touch with the people—as all advertising men are. They are moulders of opinion, men who sell ideas and ideals—and they will play a part in the quick mobilization of American sentiment which is so essential if we are to avoid wreckage the great structure of international amity and sanity, in the building of which the President has taken so great a part.

The rejection of the treaty and covenant by the Senate would constitute a national disaster unmatched in our history. That partisan opposition to the President should have developed to such proportions that such a result becomes even thinkable, not to say possible, shames all Americans of broad vision.

In contrast to this admirable action of the Associated Clubs in assuring the President of the full support of the membership in his battle for American ideals and world welfare, a New York evening newspaper took occasion a few days ago to congratulate the people on the fact that the illness of Mr. Wilson brought his great tour to a premature close. If petty partisanship has ever had a more vicious expression than this editorial the instance has never been brought to our attention.

We are talking earnestly in these times of the need for Americanization work among our aliens and illiterates. It would seem that the need is not confined to the classes name. It would be profitable for some of our statesmen and a few of our editors to read again the history of our country prior to approaise, in the light of this later day, the parts played by reactions, stand patters and men of narrow horizons in the great drama of the Republic's life. The Tories of '76 were just as sure that Washington and Franklin were following a mad vision as are the little Americans of to-day that Wilson would lure us to destruction. This brood of obstructionists comes to the fore in every time of real impotent struggle against progress in every great crisis of the nation's life—then fades out of the picture, forgotten of mankind.

Our little Americans who have us a craven nation, shrieking our duties as a member of the great family of free peoples, evading all but purely selfish responsibilities are returning to the answer of Cain to the question, "Where is thy brother?" Truly, there are days of destiny. "He is sifting out the hearts of men before His Judgment Seat."

JOHN SULLIVAN, Secretary-Treasurer of the Association of National Advertisers, who has been on vacation, will shortly resume his page of news and views of the field of national advertising in EDITOR & PUBLISHER. This feature, which Mr. Sullivan has conducted for EDITOR & PUBLISHER for the past year, has been one of the most interesting and helpful ever carried by a trade newspaper in this field. It has contributed materially to a better understanding on the part of the publishers of daily newspapers of the viewpoint of the national advertiser, and has promoted closer co-operation. Mr. Sullivan is one of the most forceful writers on all topics connected with advertising in the country, and his analyses of advertising problems have always commanded close attention and interest.

MERLE THORPE, editor of The Nation's Business, published by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, writes: "You are showing all leaders how to get out a trade journal—as you should —for all editors and publishers are primarily teachers. I am strong for EDITOR & PUBLISHER."

SOUND DOCTRINE!

THE publishers and advertising managers who attended the Daily Newspaper Department sessions of the A.A.C.W. convention set some new records for rapid-fire discussion of live issues and for the adoption of many sensible policies.

They decided, for example, that certain rational limitations should be placed on the "service" rendered to advertisers by newspapers. They drew the line against "selling merchandise" for advertisers. This expression of opinion and policy was timely and progressive.

Perhaps the most important decision at which these men arrived had to do with the problem of publicity for amusements and automobiles. They declared that the free readers, the puffs, the press agent stuff ordered for free publication which this class of advertisers have come to look upon as due them, should be discontinued. If that policy prevail with all daily newspapers it would mean the conservation of great aggregate of space—and it would mean that advertising would always appear as such, and not masquerade as "news."

These publishers and managers recognized the fact that there is such a thing as legitimate news in these fields, and that it should be sought and used. The same thing holds true of all other lines of business. But, it was pointed out, the editor should decide as to the news interest attaching to happenings in the amusement and automobile fields and should be the sole judge of the admissibility of such matter to the news columns.

It must be remembered, of course, that the average space grafter exerts his principal effort to convincing the editor that is essentially straight advertising should be used as news. And, unhappily, many editors lack somewhat in that keen sense of advertising values which should govern such decisions. Editors have the news-instinct so strongly developed that they often disregard the element of advertising involved in some proffered story.

As EDITOR & PUBLISHER has frequently pointed out, there is a fertile new closer relations between the editor and the advertising manager—for that better mutual understanding as to where the line is to be drawn between spot news and spot advertising. Amusement managers have been known to scorn the arguments of an advertising solicitor on the ground that they can secure all the space they need through the news columns. Indeed, their attitude is logical. Few people will buy a commodity if they can secure it without pay.

"Upstairs" and "downstairs" should have in common a settled policy as to the treatment of press agents' copy. There should be no conflict of opiuion or of practice between the editor and the advertising manager.

If there are good and bad press agents, as some editors allege, it by no means follows that they are easily segregated.

October 2, 1919. Volume 52, No. 18.
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
Published weekly by
THE EDITOR & PUBLISHER CO.
1117 World Building, 63 Park Row, New York.
H. D. Wheeler, editor; John F. Redmond, managing editor, Dan E. Muller, News; Ben Mellon, Features
James Wright Brown, publisher;
J. W. Ferguson, advertising; Fenton Dowling, circulation.
London: Herbert C. Ridout, 44 Kimberly Gardens, N. 4.
Paris: F. B. Grundy.
Toronto: W. A. Craick.
Chicago: H. E. Cass.
San Francisco: H. C. Bernstein.
St. Louis: M. J. Meyers.
Washington: Robert T. Barry.
Issued on each week; $1 a year; foreign postage, $1.00; Canadian, 50c

SAD LIFE OF A RICH MAN

J. PIERPONT MORGAN has been trying earnestly to have a nice, quiet hunting trip in Scotland. The New York Illustrated Daily News tells about it in a cable dispatch. He was in London, where a "personal intelligence section" was "doing its best to keep his plans dark so he can get a little rest."

"Once before," said one of his secretaries, "Mr. Morgan left it be known where he was spending his vacation. What happened? He was shot." The dispatch adds: "Mr. Morgan is just as inaccessible to correspondents as he is to shoestring peddlers or indigent inventors."

The president of the United States found it possible to tour the country in the full light, accompanied by a group of newspapermen whose work consisted in telling all about his and what he was doing and saying. The heir-apparent to the English throne mingles with the people freely, and newspaper men are of his party, telling of his every move and expressing the feeling of the people. The Belgians comes to visit us without seeking the cover of mysterious scenery. These types of the conspicuous men of the world do not find it necessary to class newspapermen with shoestring peddlers.

But Mr. Morgan is fearful. We assume that Mr. Morgan is the victim of "nerves," over-appraising his personal importance in a world which has come to place more rational valuations on men than were the rule in the days when financial leaders were supposed to form a class apart, inaccessible to all except trusted members of their clan.

OUR NEIGHBORS OF THE SOUTH

THE Pan-American conference at the New Orleans convention should mark a long forward stride toward better acquaintance and closer relations between south America and our neighbor-Republics of Central and South America.

These men of the press who came to visit and to confer with us are pioneers of that new day when political, racial and commercial animosities between American Republics shall have been buried and forgotten. That day will be hastened through the development of close contact and friendly co-operation between the newspapers of the Americas.

MR. WILLIAM H. RANKIN does not place $125,000,000 worth of advertising annually, in spite of the fact that some refractory type in last week's EDITOR & PUBLISHER blazed forth those stupendous figures. Mr. Rankin, however, has won his way into the select class, now ranking well up among the leaders in the volume of agency business placed. His effective advocacy of newspaper space for national advertising has constituted real service to the cause of advertising.

TRADE newspapers are not in the habit of scoring news beats of international interest. It seems, therefore, worthy of comment that EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S exclusive interview with Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., who has become a reporter, was cabled to the London Daily Express, whose New York correspondent evidently does not restrict himself to the usual sources of news.

THE advertising managers at New Orleans, in declaring that the logical development of the classified must be through the cultivation of reader-interest and responsiveness, reaffirmed, in a timely way, a very old truth. Upon that policy have been built a majority of the great classified mediums.

WE are climbing steadily to "the peak" of newsprint consumption—without an adequate supply in sight. Conservation should now cease to be a preachment. It should be a day by day policy.

PERSONALS

ROBERT E. HUGHES, business manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times, sailed from New York last week on a month's vacation trip to the West Indies, Republic of Colombia and the Canal Zone.

F. A. Miller, editor of the South Bend Tribune, and Mrs. Miller have returned from a four-weeks' visit in Atlantic City.

Fitz-Hugh McMasters, managing editor of the Columbia (S. C.) State, was luncheon guest of Hartford (Conn.) newspapermen when he recently visited that city to attend the insurance convention. At one time Mr. McMasters was insurance commissioner for South Carolina.

H. P. Nerwich, publisher of the Patka (Fla.) Morning Post, has been spending a few days in New York.

J. R. Moore has been made business manager of the Blackwell (Okla.) Daily Tribune.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOM

Miss Mary Margaret Peterson, former society editor of the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times, and John Richard Gray of the editorial rooms of the Leader, were recently married and have just returned from an Eastern honeymoon.

Capt. William J. Tucker, former editor of the Brenham (Tex.) Daily Press and later editor of the Taylor Press, has returned from overseas. Capt. Tucker is at present engaged with two other officers in writing a history of the Rainbow Division.

Claud Callan, feature writer for the Kansas City Star, has been visiting his old home in Texas. Formerly Mr. Callan wrote "Tampering With Trifles" for the Fort Worth (Tex.) Star-Telegram and was editor of the Menard Messenger.

C. W. Johnston, of Warren, has become managing editor of the Kane (Pa.) Daily Republican, succeeding Porter L. Benson, who died recently.

Arthur E. J. Reilly, a former member of the New Haven Register staff, has resigned as editor of New Poland, a Polish newspaper published in Chicago, to become the assistant to the consul representing the new Polish Republic in New York City.

R. M. Archer, head of the News-Paper Feature Bureau and news editor of the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer, accompanied by Mrs. Archer, is spending a four-weeks' vacation at Petersburg after completing and seeing published in more than four hundred newspapers his population survey for 1919 of all United States cities of more than 5,000.

Capt. Archie K. Rupert, former Kansas City (Mo.) Journal reporter, is visiting in Kansas City, while endeavoring to return to the regular army service as an officer, following his discharge after war service.

Harold A. Lockhart, a Kansas City star reporter, has left the newspaper field to become sales manager of the Art-Lusig company, in which he holds interest.

Charles Gorther, late of the St. Louis Globe Democrat, has taken the City Hall run for the Republic.

Judge W. K. Irwin, formerly president of the St. Louis Press Club, is doing free lance work for the St. Louis evening newspapers.

E. B. Garnett, Sunday editor and dramatic critic of the Kansas City Star, has spent the past two weeks visiting friends in New York and viewing the new stage offerings on Broadway.

William B. Ruggles, formerly sports writer of the Houston (Tex.) Post and later of the Galveston News, has arrived at Camp Merritt, N. J., after overseas service.

Claude McCaleb, former Fort Worth (Tex.) newspaperman, is now employed in the legal department of the Gulf Production Company, Fort Worth.

Frank A. Briggs, former managing editor of the Dallas (Tex.) Morning News, has become editor of the oil and financial department of that paper, succeeding George McQuaid, resigned.

Harrison R. McGill, reporter on the Dallas (Tex.) Evening Journal, has been transferred to the News.

Angus S. McKay, of the Bridgeport (Conn.) Standard-Telegram, has been admitted to membership in the Chamber of Commerce.

Gerald Breitagam has resigned from the New York Globe staff to engage in publicity work for the Methodist Centenary. Russel M. Crouse has left the Globe and is now on the staff of the American Legion Weekly.

Glendon Allvine, of the New York Tribune's Sunday staff, is spending his vacation in the Green Mountains of Vermont.

Miss Betty Lloyd has become social editor of the Bristol (Conn.) Press.

Albert Hawkins, editorial writer on the Portland Oregonian, and Miss Anne Barratt were married recently.

Nelson Harding, cartoonist for the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, has undergone a slight operation at the Brooklyn Hospital. He is reported to be recovering rapidly.

Lt. Leonard Smith, Jr., of the staff of the New York Times, son of Brig. Gen. A. L. Smith, retired, and Miss Margaret Pemberton McLean, of Glen Ridge, N. J., have announced their engagement.

Capt. Harry R. Gimbal and Sergt. Harry Hoskins, recently discharged from the American Expeditionary forces, have returned to their old positions on the editorial staff of The Sacramento (Cal.) Bee.

H. R. McLaughlin, city editor of The Sacramento (Cal.) Bee, has returned from a month's vacation spent in the mountains.

H. B. Guest, formerly parliamentary correspondent at Ottawa for the Montreal Mail, recently returned from overseas and has joined the editorial staff of the Winnipeg Free Press.

E. H. Scott has left the editorial staff of the Winnipeg Telegram and is now doing special work in Western Canada for the J. B. McLean Publishing Company of Toronto.

Capt. Claude R. Collins, aviation editor of the Philadelphia Press, has been elected president of the Aviators' Club of Pennsylvania, composed of 300 former service fliers.

WITH THE AD FOLKS

Charles E. Howe, senior partner of the Beek Advertising Agency, Houston, Tex., is motoring to Chicago and Detroit and giving talks en route on Houston and her ship canal.

Paul Wing, advertising manager of the Empire Cream Separator Company, Bloomfield, N. J., has resigned to establish an advertising, art and editorial service for agencies and advertisers at No. 50 Union Square, New York, which will be known as the "Studio of Paul Wing, associate, Raymond L. Thayer." The name of Mr. Wing's successor at Bloomfield has not been announced.

Paul H. Hildreth, for four years connected with the Rand Company, North Tonawanda, N. Y., as a department manager, has been appointed advertising manager, with former Lieut. F. Edgar McGee as assistant.

Lieut.-Col. George E. Hoth has joined the staff of Wales Advertising Company, New York, where he will specialize in research work. Before entering service he was executive director of civic organizations in Philadelphia, a special editorial writer for the Public Ledger and a contributor to magazines.

KUNSMAN BACK IN TOWN WHERE HE STARTED

BEING a loyal citizen, G. W. Kunsman always liked Reading, Pa., and now after a business absence of seven years he is back—and happy. He is the new business manager of the Reading Telegram and Reading News-Times, succeeding Dudley H. Miller. The latter, however, retains his interest in the Reading Printing Company, publisher, and continues as treasurer.

G. W. KUNSMAN

Mr. Kunsman was originally a Reading man and was for several years connected with the advertising and circulation departments of the Telegram. Later he was made advertising manager of the Reading News. Seven years ago he went to the York (Pa.) Dispatch as advertising manager and shortly afterward was made business manager.

Howard F. Eyster, circulation manager of the Harrisburg Telegraph, succeeds Mr. Kunsman as business manager of the York Dispatch.

Frank C. Scott, late of Rogers & Co., is now art director of the Wales agency.

J. W. Fiske, advertising manager of Bannon's, St. Paul, made the opening address for a Y. M. C. A. advertising class, his theme being "Making Good in Advertising." Mr. Fiske was instrumental in organizing the World's Salesmanship Congress in Detroit a few years ago. The advertising class at the Y. M. C. A. school is scheduled to cover two terms of fifteen weeks each. The St. Paul Advertising Club is co-operating with Mr. Fiske in the conduct of the class.

Joseph A. Resk, formerly with the George Batten Company, has joined the Beers Advertising Agency staff in New York, and will devote his time exclusively to the Latin-American field.

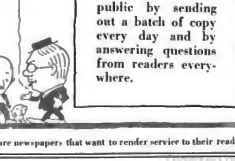
W. S. Winslow has been appointed sales and advertising manager of the A. M. Collins Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, a paper house. He has been with the J. E. Linde Company, New York.

M. S. Hatcher has been appointed advertising manager of the Doyle-Kidd Dry Goods Company, Little Rock, Ark. He has been with Montgomery, Ward & Company, Chicago.

Rev. James C. Reid has been named publicity chairman of the Interbay Church Federation, Oakland, Cal.

Lester H. Butler, late of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, is now with the Akron Advertising Agency, Akron, O.

R. H. White has resigned as advertising manager of the Domestic Engineering Company, Dayton, Ohio, to become manager of the new Dayton office of the Power, Alexander & Jenkins Advertising Agency. He is succeeded by E. D. Doty.



H. Robinson has been appointed advertising manager for the J. Swartz & Sons' Company, clothing manufacturer, Chicago.

Lee Mero of Minneapolis is a new addition to the Charles Daniel Frey Company's illustrating staff in Chicago.

Howard V. O'Brien is now with the service department of Husband & Thomas, Chicago.

S. A. Small, formerly advertising manager of the L. A. Young Industries, Inc., has joined the staff of the Betsford, Constantine & Tyler Advertising Agency, Portland, Ore.

The Rock Island Argus has signed a contract for the Haskin Service for one year

Frederic J. Haskin is at hone in the National Capitol.

He informs the public by sending out a batch of copy every day and by answering questions from readers everywhere.

His subscribers are newspapers that want to render service to their readers.

Digitized by Google

INLAND MEN PLAN ROUSING PROGRAM

To Discuss All Phases of Publishing and Advertising in Chicago, October 16-17—Consider "I. D. P. A." and Illinois Association Merger

CLINTON, Ia., Sept. 29.—Secretary W. V. Tufford announces that the autumn meeting of the Inland Daily Press Association will be held in Chicago, Thursday and Friday, October 16 and 17, 1919, in the Red Room of the LaSalle.

The Illinois State Association will meet at the same time to discuss with the Inland the question arising regarding its consolidation with the Inland.

The Inland Convention will open the 16th with a luncheon in the Red Room at noon, and the first day's program will be taken up at the table immediately thereafter.

The time of other meetings will be decided at this session.

There will be a luncheon also at noon of the 17th in the Red Room followed by program.

Early Presence Urged

Daily newspapers not members are invited to be represented at this really important meeting. The meeting call says:

The members are urged to be at Hotel LaSalle for the luncheon, October 16, even if they cannot remain for the second day, as "very welcome to publishers needing composing room help and who find difficulty in obtaining it."

"The program has been arranged by Frank H. Burgess, of the LaCrosse Tribune; I. U. Sears, Madison Journal, and H. H. Bliss, Janesville Gazette. This is a special committee appointed by the president for such duty.

"The Zone Law will have a special place in the program, with Lee P. Loomis, Muscatine (Iowa) Journal-News, as chairman of the committee in charge. The remainder of the Zone Committee are Joseph H. Pearson, Grand Forks Herald; D. B. Worthington, Beloit News; A. S. Leckie, Joliet Herald-News; F. C. Smith, Waukegan Sun; F. W. Harris, Macomb Journal.

"The program will be filled with splendid features—the discussion of which will be worth money to all who attend.

Program in Detail

"Chairman Frank H. Burgess, of the program committee, has arranged a decidedly strong program.

"Among the really leading numbers will be an address by F. P. Mann, president of the North Dakota Retail Merchants' Association, of Devil's Lake, N. D., who has made a great success in building up a very large business in a small city by advertising. His subject will be 'Advertising.' Then will follow the luncheon October 16.

"A. M. Brayton, publisher of the Madison State Journal, and the La-Crosse Tribune and Leader-Press, will give an address on The Editor and the Manager.'

"Lee P. Loomis of the Muscatine Journal will have charge of the presentation of the 'Zone' subject in all its forms and will make an address on that subject. He has given the question much thought, and is becoming an authority on the Zone law. He will have the data collected by the secretary in the ballot on the Zone and A. B. C. questions, authorized by the president, to add to the importance of his part of the program.

"It is hoped that ex-President William C. D'Arey of the A. A. C. W. will be present.

"Governor Lowden has consented to be present, if possible, but it is not quite sure now that he can do so.

"W. C. Johnson, general manager of the Chattanooga News and secretary-treasurer of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association, will be present, it is expected, both days."

Membership Applications

The secretary has on file, to be acted upon at the October meeting, the following applications for membership in the Inland:

Richmond (Ind.) Palladium, E. H. Harris.

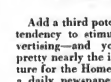
Oelwein (Iowa) Register, H. V. Hover, R. Simson.

Paris (Ill.) Beacon, F. A. Feare.

Lebanon (Ind.) Reporter, S. Neal.

Vincennes (Ind.) Commercial, C. W. and Thomas H. Adams.

Cedar Rapids (Iowa) Republican and Times, Luther A. Brewer.



Litchfield (Ill.) News-Herald, E. E. Burson.

"Features that sell newspapers"

Two Kinds of Reading Attract Women—

1:—That which entertains.
2:—That which informs.

Add a third potential—a tendency to stimulate advertising—and you have pretty nearly the ideal feature for the Home Page of a daily newspaper, morning or evening. We think we have this in Chatty, cheery daily talks on good taste in the home, decorating, refurnishing. Written for women by a woman who understands women. The men will like her stuff, too, for she takes a good-natured whack at mustache cups, jim-cracks on the mantlepiece, musty bedrooms and spindle-legged chairs. A short article daily, six days a week, with special illustrations. And they are good illustrations.

These newspapers began publication of "Your Home and You" on Monday, September 29th: The New York Evening Post, the Kansas City Star, the Louisville Courier-Journal, the Pittsburgh Dispatch, the Youngstown Vindicator, the Omaha World Herald.

We should like to send you sample proofs and quote you terms.

The Metropolitan Newspaper Service
432 FOURTH AVENUE, N. Y.

You will get the BIGNESS of the little State of West Virginia by CLOSE Inspection!

Mile for Mile, West Virginia compares in resources with any locality in the world. By its Resources and the Intelligent Industry of its People it is growing in importance not only in mineral production but in MANUFACTURING.

In a world confronted with a serious shortage of coal, the potential influence of West Virginia's bituminous coal fields, reckoned to be the largest continuous fields in the world, becomes apparent.

It takes power to run factories, and West Virginia has it, in coal, in natural gas, in waterways. Hence, West Virginia will bring FACTORIES to its mines and its wells and its rivers.

And if you are wise in your generation you will bring your advertising into these dailies and ESTABLISH a good will here for your goods.

	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 lines.
Bluefield
*Telegraph ...(M)	5,463	.02142
Charleston
‡Gazette .....(M)	14,300	.03
‡Gazette .....(S)	14,500	.03
‡Mail .....(E)	9,336	.025
Clarksburg
‡Telegram ....(E)	7,864	.02
‡Telegram ....(S)	8,351	.02
After Feb. 1st, 1920..... .025 line flat
Fairmont
*W. Virginian.(E)	5 192	.02
Grafton
*Sentinel ....(E)	2,275	.014
Huntington
‡Advertiser ...(E)	8,524	.02
‡Herald-Dispatch ....(M)	11,165	.02
‡Herald-Dispatch ....(S)	11,599	.02

	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 lines.
Martinsburg
‡Journal .....(E)	3,249	.0129
Moundsville
*Echo	1,730	.0115
Parkersburg
*News .....(M)	6,239	.02
*News .....(S)	6,239	.02
‡Sentinel ....(E)	6,695	.017
Wheeling
‡Intelligencer .(M)	10,139	.0325
‡News .....(E)	14,749	.04
‡News .....(S)	17,800	.05

*Government statement, April 1. 1919.
‡A. B. C. statement, April 1. 1919.
†Publishers' statement. April 1. 1919.

File the Facts for Reference

Digitized by Google

FIRST

In September The New York Times published 1,785,816 agate lines of advertisements, the greatest volume ever printed by a New York newspaper in a single month and a greater gain (545,759 agate lines) over September, 1918, than any other New York newspaper.

In nine months of this year, The New York Times published 13,509,130 agate lines of advertising—a gain over the corresponding peroid of 1918 of 4,810,327 lines—the greatest volume ever printed by any New York newspaper in any nine months of any year.

Last Tuesday, September 30, The New York Times Published 207 columns of paid advertisements—the greatest volume of advertising ever printed in a weekday issue of a New York morning newspaper.

Sunday, September 21, the New York Times published 609 columns of advertisements, the greatest volume ever printed in a single issue of a New York Newspaper.

The New York Times

Digitized by Google

M'KERNAN'S PLANS FOR N. Y. CONVENTION

Much Interest Centers in Election of Officers by State Circulation Managers' Association—Three Cities Wont 1920 Convention

By James McKernan

Arrangements have been completed for the semi-annual meeting of the New York State Circulation Managers' Association, which will be held at the Woodruff Hotel, Watertown, N. Y. An invitation has been sent to the association by Floyd L. Carlisle, president of the St. Regis Paper Company, for a trip to Deferiet and a visit to the paper mill, which is one of the finest equipped plants in the state of New York.

Charles H. Congdon, publisher of the Watertown Times and an officer of the association, is chairman of the local committee of arrangements and the members who attend will be sure of having an interesting and enjoyable program after the business of the convention is over.

A. W. Cockerill, circulation manager of the Utica Press, second vice-president and chairman of the program committee, has prepared a most interesting program for discussion and papers will be read by members on the various problems that are confronting circulation managers in the cities and towns throughout the state.

75 Members Wanted

W. C. Nixson, of the Syracuse Post Standard, one of the directors and the chairman of the membership committee, is making a strong drive to bring the membership up to the 75 mark.

In addition to the important matters of interest to be discussed at the convention, there will be addresses by prominent people connected with the local newspapers and Board of Trade.

There will be an entirely new board of officers elected, including directors.

Chairmen of various committees have practically completed their programs and as there is important business to be taken up in relation to the handling of newspaper circulation at the present time, a big attendance is expected.

Members from the lower part of the state will leave New York on Sunday, October 19, at 11:30 p. m., arriving in Watertown on a through train in time for the opening of the convention at 9:30 a. m., Monday, October 20.

All Officers' Terms Expire

An invitation is extended to business managers and circulation managers who are not members of this organization to attend the Watertown convention and join the association.

An invitation is also extended to members of the I. C. M. A., the New England and the Tri-state Association who are located near enough to attend.

The following are the officers and directors of the association whose terms expire at this meeting.

James McKernan, president, New York World.
M. J. Burke, first vice president, Brooklyn Eagle.
A. W. Cockerill, second vice president, Utica Press.
J. M. Annenberg, secretary-treasurer, Albany Knickerbocker Press.

Directors

William M. Henry, New York American.
A. J. Geiler, Syracuse Journal.
M. D. Treble, Buffalo Times.
W. C. Hanson, Syracuse Post-Standard.
F. A. Roberts, Rochester Times-Union.
Charles H. Congdon, Watertown Times.
R. B. Goble, Lockport Union-Sun & Journal.

Interest is centered in the election of president. The association was practically unanimous at a previous meeting in outlining a policy of alternating for the office of president on a down-state and up-state candidate. Under this plan, R. D. M. Decker, formerly with the Albany Knickerbocker Press, and who went into another line of business, resigned the office of vice-president during the past year. He would have been eligible for the office of president, thereby continuing the plan, but as matters now stand both the president and vice-president are from Greater New York, so that the above policy would be upset if the unwritten rule of nearly all organizations of the vice-president succeeding the president was adhered to.

Three Invitations for 1920

This point is expected to bring out a friendly rivalry in the association resulting in a full attendance.

The Merchants Association of New York City has extended an invitation to the New York State Circulation Managers to hold its next convention in New York City. Rochester and Utica have also invited the association.

This will be decided by a vote of the members at the meeting in Watertown.

CIRCULATION NOTES

The Liberty Loan Newsboys' Association of Boston has received from William J. Bryan a check for $25 for a memorial to be erected for Albert E. Scott, the 15-year-old Brookline newsboy (the youngest member of the 101st Infantry), who died heroically near Chateau-Thierry a year ago. The memorial is to be erected at Coolidge Corner, where "Scotty" was a newsboy. The contribution to the "Scotty Memorial Fund" was given to a committee of newsboys who called on Mr. Bryan at the Hotel Bellevue with a request that he deliver an address at an entertainment they are to give for the fund.

The Winnipeg Telegram is conducting a voting contest based on subscriptions secured by contestants; $16,000 is offered in prizes, including automobiles, pianos, chance to enter the movie field, etc.

L. V. Vancleave, for the past four and a half years circulation manager of the Rockford (Ill.) Daily Republic, has resigned and will leave about the middle of October to make his future home on the Pacific Coast.

"Al" White, who has been circulation manager of the Cheyenne (Wyo.) State Tribune since it was first established, over twenty years ago, has resigned and is planning to go to California for a rest. Thomas Middlemas succeeds him.

Every carrier of the Little Rock (Ark.) News is a member of the Boys' Club which is maintained by the Y. M. C. A., Clyde Martin, circulation manager for the News, giving each a membership if he is unable to pay for it. The boys make the club their headquarters until press time, and Mr. Martin says they have shown an improvement in sales and route carrying work.

★ ★

—Nor is Wisconsin laggard in the big new field of Chemistry.

Here is indeed opportunity for specialization, for science and skill, and with large rewards.

Within the year a Wisconsin Company with one thousand acres begins the manufacture of serum on a large scale, showing the trend of the times.

N. B.—Alert, curious for INFORMATION on all progressive movements—AND PROSPEROUS—Wisconsin people are easily educated to goods of merit by daily newspaper advertising.
Try them.

These few papers will start you right.

Papers	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 lines
†Appleton Daily Post (E)	5,010	.0143
Beloit News (E)	6,593	.025
Eau Claire Leader-Telegram (M&E&S)	9,042	.027
†Pond du Lac Commonwealth (E)	6,017	.025
†Green Bay Press Gazette (E)	11,011	.025
Kenosha News (E)	5,221	.0129
La Crosse Tribune-Leader Press (E&S)	13,567	.035
Madison, Wisc., State Journal (E)	†14,689	.035
Madison, Wisc., State Journal (S)	†10,891	.03
Milwaukee, Wisconsin, News (E)	*68,431	.10
Milwaukee Journal (E)	†13,830	.14
Milwaukee Journal (S)	93,830	.14
Milwaukee Sentinel (M&E)	81,252	.11
Milwaukee Sentinel (S)	67,162	.11
Racine Journal News (E)	7,666	.03
Sheboygan Press (E)	6,693	.0214
Superior Telegram (E)	15,152	.035
Wausau Record-Herald (E)	5,353	.01785

Government Statements, April 1, 1919.
*Publisher's Statement, April 1, 1919.
†A. B. C. Statement, April 1, 1919.

EXTENSION OF "TRUTHFUL" AD MOVEMENT THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

Work of National Vigilance Committee and of Better Business Bureaus Is Described by National and Local Officials.

PLANS of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World for an extension of its "Truth-in-Advertising" movement call for an increase in the number of its local "Better Business Bureaus" until the number of these—now sixteen—includes one in every city of the United States of 50,000 or more population. Other plans include the organization of volunteer "vigilance committees" in cities where there are advertising clubs but no "Better Business Bureaus" and the co-operation in all cities of chambers of commerce, merchants' clubs, and commercial associations.

These plans were outlined at a morning session of the Associated Advertising Clubs' convention at New Orleans, given over to the "vigilance" work of the organization, at which Merle Sidener, president of the Sidener-Van Riper Advertising Agency of Indianapolis, and chairman of the national vigilance committee; H. J. Kenner, secretary; and William P. Green, organization secretary; and Richard H. Lee, special counsel of the organization, were speakers. The formal addresses of these men were followed by three-minute reports by Kenneth Barnard, secretary of the Better Business Commission of Toledo; E. J. Brennan, manager of the Better Business Bureau of St. Louis, and representatives of similar local organizations on the work accomplished by these during the past year in promoting honesty in advertising.

2,000 Investigations

H. J. Kenner, secretary of the National Vigilance Committee, said that approximately two thousand cases of advertising suspected of being false or misleading, have been investigated by local bureaus and committees. "So definite and practical does such bureau work become that advertisers in the communities in which bureaus operate have increased greatly their financial and moral backing of the work," he said.

In many cities subscriptions from leading advertisers and from newspapers have been doubled and trebled in order to place the bureaus in position to meet greater demands and opportunities arising from the expansion of business. In the city of Detroit one newspaper is giving $1,000 and one merchant $1,300 annually to the local work.

Business Men Aid

A short time ago, the committee directed letters to representative advertisers asking for an expression of their policy with respect to placing copy with newspapers and other periodicals which are known to carry misleading or fraudulent advertising. About two hundred advertisers replied to the effect that they would not knowingly use space in publications which carried confidence-destroying advertising. These letters are being preserved and will play an important part in the work of the committee in the coming year.

The committee also wrote to representative newspapers throughout the country and asked what they were doing to protect their readers and legitimate business from confidence-destroying advertising. The committee asked for specific information regarding the rules which newspapers used to bar objectionable advertising from their columns. This information has been analyzed and published for the guidance of other newspapers desiring definite data and looking to the censorship of the advertising submitted to them for publication. These letters are also being preserved for the information which they contain.

William P. Green, organization secretary of the National Vigilance Committee, said local business houses were supporting Business Bureaus because they had come to appreciate the cash-drawer value of vigilance to the individual advertiser. "Now and then we find a business man who says that his advertising is clean and that he is not interested in the man whose advertising is deceptive," he said. "That man fails to realize the destructive effect of misleading advertising on all advertising. His attitude is that of the storekeeper who would refuse to pay taxes for the support of a Police Department because he felt that his individual place of business would not be robbed during the coming year.

"You cannot get away from the fact that every piece of fraudulent advertising that appears strikes, either directly or indirectly, at all other advertising.

"There isn't anything destructive in this work. When a local Bureau criticises an advertisement, it makes a constructive suggestion of material value to the advertiser. We are not what a stenographer called us in our office at Indianapolis a few years ago, when the secretary asked her to go out into the stock room and get a supply of letterheads. She went to the office manager and said that she wanted some stationery for the 'National Violence Committee.' In other words, we rely on suggestion, or repeated suggestion, if necessary, and on prosecution only as a last resort."

Truth Is Economy

Richard H. Lee, special counsel for the Associated Advertising Clubs, said that a business house that paid a high salary to an advertising manager and then permitted him to indulge in untruths was not practising economy.

"It takes brains to make the truth attractive," he said. "Any liar of ordinary ability can write the other kind of copy, and that type of man can be hired cheaply.

"It does not require much brains or ability to get a crowd of people into a store with the statement that they can buy silver dollars for fifty cents, but getting them there today and having them come back tomorrow and the day after and all the succeeding days is a very different matter.

"Now, how are you who are making a profession of advertising, you advertising managers, going to protect your profession? How are you going to raise the level of the business that you have chosen? How are you going to make the place you occupy worth more money to you and of untold value to your boss?

"I'll tell you how. Bend backwards in your insistence on truth. Place a value on the good name of your institution, that is exceeded by no other consideration connected with your business. Drive home in no uncertain fashion to your executives that the printed word which goes from them through your fingers to the public reaches the public as their representative and as that printed word is known, so are they and their business known.

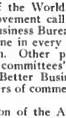
"If that printed word is flamboyant, bombastic, unreliable, misleading, deceptive, untruthful or false, that is the measure of your institution and the men who stand behind it.

Local Officials Talk

"When a house sends out a salesman with a red necktie, it should bear in mind that the public who meets the salesman comes to think the house wears red underwear. If he is clever, or perhaps over-clever, glib-tongued and impudent, you might as well have that kind of a house behind him, but if he rings with truth, with logic and fair dealing, even though he fails to sell you, the very impression he creates is an asset to the house that sends him out—an asset that cannot be measured by dollars—an asset that may create sales from unknown sources for years and years to follow—and advertising is a salesman."

Kenneth Barnard, secretary of the Better Business Commission of Toledo, said:

"Up until this very moment, we have been merely wishing that advertising be clean and truthful and reliable. My message today is to tell you that the time is here to stop wishing and be financially willing and morally anxious to put our backbones to the task. In other words your duty is to invest—invest in a cause which pays intangible dividends and will continue to pay them as long as advertising remains a force in the commercial intercourse of mankind."



E. J. Brennan, manager of the St. Louis Bureau, said:

"The advertiser who directly or indirectly belittles a competitor, either by means of the written word, advertising, or by the spoken word, merchandising, person has planted in the public mind the seed of distrust. He has caused to arise suspicion, not only against his competitor, but against business methods in general and particularly against advertising and its progeny—good-will.

"Ever after, that seed is beyond his control. Its growth and its ability to propagate more distrust can be reached by only one agency—continued propaganda based on reality, a propaganda that has for its end and aim the increase of reader confidence.

D. B. MILLER IS MODEST —ABOUT HIMSELF

MODESTY is a half-way fact with D. B. Miller, advertising manager of the Cleveland (Ohio) Cadillac Company—it stops when he gets off the subject of D. B. Miller and starts to talk interestingly, usually in paid for newspaper space, about things like Cadillac and Dodge automobiles and Victrolas.

D. B. Miller.

Advertising is not a hobby with him—it is a lifework and was selected after consideration of every other field of endeavor. Sales promotion also interests him, but merely as a natural result of good advertising. He started as a "cub" as a member of the advertising staff of the Philadelphia North American, went from there to the Pittsburgh Leader and finally left that paper to join the combination staff of the Pittsburgh Post and Sun.

A call from the General Fireproofing Company attracted him to Youngstown, Ohio, as assistant advertising manager, which position he held until called to his present post. He does concede that he now has unusual opportunities and everyone else looks at it in the same way.

Mann Elected Vice-President

The board of directors of the H. K. McCann Company, New York, has elected E. W. Mann to the office of vice-president.

"Features that sell newspapers"

Give a thought to the kids

Join The Brooklyn Eagle, The Boston Globe, The Pittsburg Dispatch, The Detroit News The Louisville Courier-Journal, The Youngstown Vindicator, The Dallas Journal, The Meriden Morning Record in presenting Arthur Scott Bailey's popular children's stories.

The Tale of Cuffy Bear
The Tale of Jolly Robin
The Tale of Jemmy Rabbit
The Tales of 20 other furred or feathered folk

Note from the list above the morning newspapers. Evening papers have no "copyright" on home page features.

This series combines delightful text and quaint pictures every day in the week.

Wire or write for samples

The Metropolitan Newspaper Service
432 FOURTH AVENUE, N.Y.

Digitized by Google

A. A. C. W. Blazes the Way for Closer Relationship

(Continued from page 5.)

the Latin publishers by furnishing them names of undesirable United States advertisers.

The committee moved upon the suggestion of Mr. Zavala to be seconded by Mr. Gil to extend the cordial thanks of the conference to the A. A. C. W. officers, Chairman Lamar C. Quintero of the entertainment committee, and its other members, and to all those who have so kindly co-operated toward the success of the meeting,and the encouraging steps that had already been taken toward the formation of a definite and helpful organization.

A Practical Ideal

In declaring the session closed, Chairman John Barrett expressed his sincere appreciation for the cordial co-operation of all those present for the splendid feeling that had been shown in the pursuit of a practical ideal, and hoped that all those interested in this subject would give suggestions to him, either at the Pan-American Union or at the headquarters of the A. A. C. W. in New York City.

He said he felt that the effort had been well worth while, and that with the co-operation of both officers of the Associated Clubs and the enthusiastic pioneers in this movement, the Pan-American gathering at Indianapolis next year would surely be a great success, and mark a definite starting point for a vigorous and persistent campaign in Latin America, for truth in advertising.

Senor Manuel Carpio, representing El Heraldo de Mexico, was the first speaker among the Pan-American delegates at the general session of the convention at which the establishment of the new department was under discussion. He placed the affairs of the country before the delegates in new light and won many new friends for it among them.

Mexico's Faith

Declaring that Mexico was today trying to quench the thirst for crime, he moved the great assembly to applause by a plea for support that will make Mexico sure that faith and hope for liberty and justice has not been in vain. Continuing, Senor Carpio said:

"We have heard that this idea of the advertising clubs of the United States started to be a national organization. It was going to be the uniting of the forces for a definite purpose within this country. It was a happy moment when you changed that name and made it 'The Advertising Clubs of the World.' That is where we came in. We found a chance to come in.

"Last night, at a dinner offered by us to this great man who seems sometimes a child, because there is no genius who does not look like a child some time, my friends, Mr. Palavicini, of Mexico City, made a wonderful remark. He said to him: 'John Barrett, you have done more for the ideals of union and friendship than anybody I know. You have not only succeeded in bringing this idea of Pan-Americanism for long, long years, but you have succeeded in something that no one ever succeeded in before, and that is in bringing us—the Mexican editors—who are always disagreeing with each other, to be friends here and to form a union.'

What a Man Did.

"That is what this man did. We came in different trains. We were even trying to see if the other fellow wouldn't stop at a different hotel so that we might not have the chance to meet each other. Finally, we came together. We had to assist in the Pan-American section of this conference, and we started to get each with the other and talk and greet each other with certain courtesies, and finally we are friends.

"We are going back to Mexico to establish there the Mexican Club that depends directly and immediately and will work with the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. We are going to do that as soon as we arrive in Mexico, and we are going to have this opportunity that we consider of an enormous value to use every means of publicity in the Republic of Mexico in order to carry to the Mexican people the American message of what we and how we, you all the time through these wonderful channels of advertising and publicity, the message of Mexico. We hope that after this conference in Indianapolis that is going to be held next year, there will be a chance for us to send a mighty representative delegation in order to see if we cannot convince you that at a latter conference and convention we would like to have you all go to Mexico City."

Argentina's Support

Senor Enrique Gil, a brilliant young lawyer of the Argentine Republic, and the United States representative of La Nacion of Buenos Ayres, brought out several telling points in a well-delivered address in terse and clear English.

He told of the wonderful resources and trade possibilities of Argentine, and in closing said:

"I am authorized to pledge the unlimited co-operation and assistance of the Argentine press, editors and publishers, in so far as I have the honor to represent them, to carry on the efficient and praiseworthy program of your organization."

The next speaker was Senor Conrad W. Massaguer, a noted cartoonist and publisher of Cuba, who has by his own efforts successfully developed three publications. Senor Massaguer, though suffering from a cold, was able most wittily to interest the audience in relating the troubles of a publisher in Cuba with advertisers and especially with those in the United States ignorant of the needs of the markets.

He said that there was much misunderstanding as to the kind of copy that was required and pledged the cordial co-operation of the advertising club of Cuba which is affiliated with the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, and of which he had the honor to be president.

Chairman Houston stated that as the opening session had been honored by the reading of a message from the Premier of Australia, that therefore this Pan-American session should close most fittingly with a message from the executive of one of the most interesting of the Latin-American countries.

A Message from Peru

Mr. Noel of New York and Peru then read the following message from President Leguia:

"President and members of the Associated Advertising Clubs:

"Always a firm believer in the efficacy of the press as a civilizing factor, I send you my best wishes for the success of the Pan-American section of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, which has been formed. It will have my cordial co-operation, as I shall always support and encourage legitimate American initiative to help in the social and material development of my own country.

"Augusto B. Leguia."

Other visitors to speak during the Latin-American conferences were Rafael Alberto, managing editor of Elcelsior of Mexico City, and Arthur Liehes, of El Mundo of Havana.

Cuba's Invitation

The latter read the following message from President Mario G. Menocal of Cuba:

"To the Manufacturers of the United States:

"It affords me genuine pleasure to accept this opportunity to tell the merchants of the United States of the wonderful opportunities Cuba affords them. First, to invest their capital; second, to sell their wares, and third, but not least, of the desire of the Cuban people to do an ever-increasing business with our good friends the United States, and to further cement the friendly relations already existing between the two republics.

"Cuba, though occupying but a small space geographically, and having less than three million people, has shown itself capable of making tremendous purchases in the United States. We are now probably one of the best customers of your country, but there is still much room for improvement.

"The picture you are about to see will give you a graphic idea of the industrial importance of Cuba and of the opportunities it affords. May append, in conclusion, a hearty and sincere invitation the promise that you will receive at the hands of the Cuban people a hearty welcome."

Proud of Work

Satisfaction with its step forward to help in the greater brotherhood of man is compiled in the following resolution, adopted at the closing session of the 1919 convention of the Advertising Clubs of the World, meeting in general session:

"The Associated Advertising Clubs of the World hail with the greatest satisfaction the convention at this convention in New Orleans of the Pan-American conference which will represent advertising and publishing interests of the Latin-American republics.

"This conference, immediately upon its formation, resolved to undertake vigilance work, thus giving most convincing evidence of its spirit and purpose.

"Under its general guidance, as a part of the Associated Advertising Clubs, clubs will be formed throughout the Latin-American republics, spreading the principles of truth-in-advertising and developing through mutual understanding the good will and friendship which will be an enduring basis of friendly trade relations among all the republics in the hemisphere."

U. S. P. O. Report

For the period ending April 1, 1919, Average Daily and Sunday Circulation

76,652

New Orleans Item

Enjoys the largest afternoon and Sunday net paid circulation of any newspaper published in the entire South.

The Congregationalist

is not read for fun; it is read seriously; therefore it is well read.

Broad-minded advertisers know

THE CONGREGATIONALIST, 14 Beacon St. BOSTON, MASS.

The Detroit News

Is Oversold on Thursday and Friday

The circulation of

The Evening Star

in Washington, D. C., and suburbs, is believed to be about three times that of the corresponding edition of its afternoon contemporary in the same territory.

try-out market

The Indianapolis Radius can be covered with minimum expense. It is dominated by one paper which can create consumer demand, and command dealer and jobber co-operation. Try out your product in the Indianapolis Radius through

THE INDIANAPOLIS NEWS

Charter Member A. B. C.

Foreign Representatives

Dan A. Carroll, Tribune Bldg., New York
J. E. Lutz, First Nat. Bank Bldg., Chicago

During the seven months ending July 31

614,922 agate lines

of national advertising were published in

The Clarksburg Telegram

a gain over the same period of 1918 of 74.5%

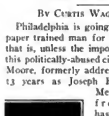
It pays to advertise in "West Virginia's Leading Newspaper."

The Pittsburgh Post

has the second largest morning and Sunday circulation in Pittsburgh.



Digitized by Google

SEE MOORE'S ELECTION AS CERTAIN

"Close-Up" View of Newspaper Man and Member of Congress, Who Is Looked Upon as Philadelphia's Next Mayor

By Curtis Wager-Smith

Philadelphia is going to have a newspaper trained man for its next mayor—that is, unless the impossible happens in this politically-abused city—for "Hampy" Moore, formerly addressed for the last 13 years as Joseph Hampton Moore,

HAMPTON MOORE.

Member of Congress from Philadelphia, has won the Republican nomination from Judge John M. Patterson. The victory was not won by a landslide, but by enough votes to make it safe, which usually assures office in this election in Pennsylvania. Congressman Moore had the whole-hearted support of all the newspapers in the city except one.

Army of Writers Backed Him

Congressman Moore is still an active newspaper man, inasmuch as he writes a column twice a week for the Evening Ledger. Playing no small part in organizing his campaign was a small army of newspaper men, many of them former fellow workers. "Joe" Costello, newspaper man and chairman of the Emergency Fleet Censorship Board, was Mr. Moore's publicity manager. The campaign was one of the bitterest contested in many years.

Personally, J. Hampton Moore is a bundle of well-controlled nervous energy; is 55 but does not look it; is keen-eyed, straight speaking, not given to easy promises or secret deals. He has a sense of humor and is an eloquent and ready debater. He has written books and some excellent poetry. He opposed America's entrance into the war, but had one son at Metz, the married ones in the shipyards and two daughters training in hospitals. He tends toward conservatism, which once led the fiery North American to dub him "Safety-Pin" Moore. He attributes his many successes in life largely to his newspaper training.

His Greatest Asset

"My two greatest assets when I went o Congress," says Mr. Moore, "were my newspaper experience and my knowledge of law."

Congressman Moore began his career t 13 as a clerk in a law office. He got 12 a week. A year later he successfully assed an examination as "student at aw." His employer was associated with he Court Combination. One day he was sent to court to "find out what was going on." To his surprise he read his report in the evening paper, and this marked his debut in journalism at the age of 15. He was put on the regular staff of the Court Combination, and when 18 was offered a job on the Public Ledger, where George W. Childs then held the reins.

"From him," he says, speaking of that famous Philadelphian, "I learned newspaper principles of fairness and justness in public dealings. He was a bulwark of honest journalism. I should like to erect a memorial to his memory and to the honor of the profession which he adorned."

Under Mr. Child's personal eye he was made labor editor with two assistants, and friendly terms with many of the leaders and was entrusted by Mr. Childs with much of the business of promoting the International Typographical Union project for the Printers' Home at Colorado Springs. He went through the strike troubles of the 80's under Mr. Child's instructions, playing fair to both sides, was sent to many labor conventions, on one occasion was intermediary in settling a dispute which would have called out 50,000 textile workers and on another helped arrange a conference which sent the striking miners on the Reading Railroad system back to their jobs.

Mr. Morris did brilliant newspaper work during the Homestead riots and then won lasting fame as a newspaper man through his covering of the Johnstown flood. Reaching Johnstown by a circuitous route a full day later than other local newspaper men "Hampy" got the first wire out.

First Young Republican Club

Hampton Moore's interest in politics began early. His first activity was in forming young Republican clubs. Here he developed his skill in organization as in his newspaper experience he had learned to dig for facts and to study his sleuth in question. He left newspaperdom to become chief clerk of the City Treasurer, failed to get a nomination for the office itself (to which he was later elected), and in between was secretary to Mayor Ashbridge.

He claims he was the first McKinley boomer in the city, bucking Quay, who opposed the plan; met Roosevelt at the National convention here when McKinley was renominated, and after getting himself elected as president of the National Republican League over Cornelius Vanderbilt and Gov. Lowden of Illinois was given his first Washington post by the colonel as chief of the Bureau of Manufactures in the Department of Commerce.

Mr. Moore came back to Philadelphia to act as receiver of the City Trust Safe Deposit Company, which he liquidated dollar for dollar and then returned to the capital as Congressman with a wife, 8 children and plenty of varied experience but still very young in appearance.

Perhaps the pinnacle of his achievement has been the brilliant work he has done as president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association. Within a week after he was sworn in, a big river and harbor bill came up. Few knew or cared much about the Delaware River, and Philadelphia as a shipping center was a joke, but Moore took the floor and won a plea for a 35-foot channel which went a long way to restoring this city o its old maritime standing.

Since then by organizing the interests of the entire Atlantic seaboard, during a ten-year campaign, the association has secured a free canal from Hampton Roads through to the ocean beyond Hatteras, has brought into Government ownership the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal and has in hand a ship canal across New Jersey.

Moore is an advocate of preparedness and sees in the connecting chain of inland waterways not only a needed carrier for commerce but a vision of its value in time of war.

Upheld Newspaper Interests

As a member of Congress, Moore has been a staunch upholder of newspaper interests, and in the newspaper profession it will be remembered he called for a Congressional investigation in 1917 of the wild charges brought by Representative Callaway of Texas, who stated that the J. P. Morgan Company, representing British interests, had bought up 25 American newspapers which were to spread allied propaganda. A tale of the Ledger being purchased by Lord Northcliffe was part of this canard.

Incidentally, while Col. Theodore Roosevelt was President, Congressman Moore introduced the bill which kept "In God We Trust" on the coinage of the country.

WE SPEND MORE THAN $500,000

per year to produce the features which have created the greatest newspaper following in the world.

"Hearst's Features Always Lead"

Write for booklet.

"Half Million Dollar Feature Service"

The International Feature Service

246 West 59th Street

PREMIUMS

That Are Real Subscription Producers

S. BLAKE WILLSDEN

Manufacturers and Publishers Representative,

1006 Heyworth Building

29 E. Madison St. CHICAGO

THE INTERNATIONAL NEWS BUREAU, Inc.

15 SCHOOL STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

(J. J. BOSDAN, Editor)

More than 120 American and Canadian newspapers subscribe to our service

Each week our subscribers receive between 30 and 50 columns of copy. Authoritative articles by men of international calibre on matters international, human interest stories from all lands and climes, revelations of European courts, speeches and addresses of men and women whose words influence the thought of nations, translations from every important foreign newspaper; these and numberless other items day after day are sent to our subscribers.

IN SHORT, MR. EDITOR—ESPECIALLY MR. SUNDAY EDITOR—WE CONSTANTLY SPREAD THE WORLD BEFORE YOU FROM ALL ANGLES.

You will find our monthly subscription rates surprisingly low.

The True News FIRST

Always-Accurately

International News Service

World Bldg. New York

PLAN RAILROAD PUBLICITY

American Electric Association May Organize Bureau at Annual Convention

A proposal that the American Electric Railway Association organize a publicity bureau in New York will be submitted at the convention of the association at Atlantic City on October 6-11. The matter will be placed in the hands of J. H. Pardee, president; Leake Carraway of Norfolk, Va.; John W. Colton of New Haven, Conn.; Luke Grant of Chicago; F. W. Hild, of the Denver Tramway Company; Z. V. Taylor, Southern Public Utilities Company, Charlotte, N. C.; and W. Dwight Burroughs, Union Railways Company of Baltimore. The proposed bureau would be under the direction of E. B. Burritt, the executive secretary, 8 West 40th st, New York.

Training Teachers in Publicity

Kearney, Neb., Sept. 23.—Normal School has established a "rural press and teacher" course especially prepared for teachers' institutes and like gatherings. Paul W. Kieser, a former newspaper man in Omaha, Aberdeen and Bismarck, is in charge. The course aims to give teachers new ideas about the importance of school publicity and how to prepare school news for publication.

Psychology and Advertising

Chicago, Sept. 24.—At the first Fall session of the new Engineering Advertisers' Association, the speaker of honor was Prof. J. H. Picken, of Northwestern University. He talked on "Problems of the Advertising Man," dealing principally with the application of psychological principles to advertising copy.

New Era Features

30 E. 42nd St., New York City

Forty Leading Papers Print Our Service

Send for our Headline History of the World War

Time and Money

the World War

Both time and money are saved by members of The Associated Newspapers who are securing a most effective feature service at a saving over former feature expense. Besides, they are building up for themselves a service of increasing value.

Write or wire for terms of membership. Only a few cities now open.

The Associated Newspapers

170 Broadway New York

NEWSPAPER FEATURE SERVICE

GET THE FEATURES THAT HAVE WON THE BIGGEST AUDIENCE

Write us for samples of our colored comics, daily and Sunday pages in black and colors.

Newspaper Feature Service

M. KOENIGSBERG, Manager

241 WEST 38TH ST NEW YORK

Digitized by Google

LIKENS A TRADE MARK TO "U. S." GUARANTEE

Chicago Advertising Man Gives Maine Grocers a Heart-to-Heart Talk on Importance of Heading Nationally Advertised Goods

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 23.—P. J. Sodergren, of the Mallory, Mitchell & Faust Company, Chicago, one of the biggest advertising firms in the United States, was the speaker here Thursday evening before nearly 50 members of the Portland Retail Grocers' Association, giving an informal talk on "Benefits to a Grocer in Selling a Standardized Advertised Brand of Goods."

He told of the importance of having on their counters certain goods that are advertised nationally, especially bringing home the true value of the trade mark. He gave for an example the following:

Take a Silver Dollar

Taking a silver dollar from his pocket, he said the piece of silver was worth 100 cents on the dollar anywhere, and that of course it could be sold to anyone or in any place for 100 cents, but if the same piece of silver were disfigured, that is to say, if the engraved emblem were rubbed off smoothly on both sides, and the weight of the piece of silver still remained at its original amount, a person could not sell that dollar on the streets for ten cents. The people would be afraid of it and would consider it worthless. He said that showed the value of a standardized trade mark.

It is the same way, said Mr. Sodergren, with any brand of goods that the grocer sells—the public is acquainted with a certain trade mark or name through its national advertising, and when it wants a certain article, it asks for or picks out one that is remembers having been advertised.

The speaker spoke of all the various well-known standard brands of products and advised the dealers if they wished to reap success to stock up on the product that was nationally known or was being nationally advertised. He also offered many helpful hints to the grocers, who were especially pleased with the evening's talk and will doubtless derive much benefit from it.

DALLAS PICKS A LABEL

Will Be Used in Big National Advertising Campaign Planned

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 24—In the contest conducted by the Chamber of Commerce and Manufacturers' Association for an emblem to be used in advertising Dallas, Frank H. Calder (with the inscription "Dallas—Where Men Are Looking Forward") was selected as the winner. An effort will be made to have the emblem officially designated as the city trade-mark and for its manufacturers.

The Test Town of the Country for the National Advertiser

Beloit, Wisconsin

Beloit is in the heart of the richest agricultural and dairy region of the United States. But this thrifty factories. Beloit is highly educated; Beloit has wealth well distributed.

One paper the Beloit Daily News alone serves this splendid American population.

Circulation, over 7,00
Rat . 2 cents per agate line

BALL GAME STILL IN DOUBT

"Mulligan Stew" and Publishers' Speeches Feature Topeka Outing

TOPEKA, Kas., Sept. 24.—Whether the "Mulligan Stew" prepared by George Ellis, of the Topeka Typographical Union, was the cause or not, no one seems to know, but the fact is true, nevertheless, that who won the baseball game between the Topeka Capital composing room nine and the Capper Publications nine, is still a mystery. Both sides claim—by a score of 6 to 5.

Anyhow, the printers and publishers had a glorious time at their annual outing here, and after the "stew" had been stowed away by the men and their families, Frank P. MacLennan, of the State Journal; T. A. McNeal, of the Mail and Breeze; George Holmgren, president of the union, and others, made short speeches.

British Correspondent on a Visit

George Herbert Perris, who during the war was a correspondent on the western front for the London Daily Chronicle and the New York Times, has arrived in this country to deliver a series of lectures on the war and to describe for the Chronicle post-war conditions in America. Mr. Perris arrived in New York Monday and expects to remain until Viscount Grey returns to England next spring.

Newspaper Boosts Ad Club

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 24.—The Sunday Capital has just issued a special 8-page section devoted to news pertaining to the activities of the Des Moines Advertising Club. Pictures of all the club's delegates to the New Orleans convention were published, in addition to special articles by members. Advertising emphasized the truth in advertising movement and the value of the coming A. A. C. W. convention.

First W. Va. Air Delivery

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 19—The Exponent on September 16 published the first "airplane edition" ever issued by a West Virginia newspaper. Delivery of the edition was made by airplane to Buckhannon; a distance of thirty miles.

Greene Hurt in Auto Accident

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Harry Irving Greene, ex-newspaperman, novelist and active members of the Press Club, who has been severely injured in an automobile crash, is in a South Side hospital. Two ribs were broken and serious internal injuries sustained.

Change on American Banker

William G. Beecroft has been appointed editor and general manager of the American Banker, New York.

Have you considered the desirability of including the NORTH JERSEY SHORE in your advertising appropriation?

With the growing acuteness of the housing problem in New York hundreds of families are making their homes in the NORTH JERSEY SHORE SUBURBS. These new citizens, for the most part, are prosperous business men with three children and they offer a wonderfully responsive and reliable market.

If you would reach these prospective customers thoroughly cover this section of New Jersey you can do so by using

THE ASBURY PARK EVENING PRESS

and

THE SHORE PRESS (Sunday)

These papers dominate in their field and their past performance inspires the confidence of their readers.

Standard Rate Card Member A B C
Frank R. Northrup, Special Representative, 3d Fifth Avenue, New York City.
Association Building, Chicago, Illinois.
J. Lyle Kenmouth, Publisher,
Asbury Park, N. J.

M. A. Taylor Trophy Won By Irving Bank

Every Part of Country Was Represented in Display of Financial Advertising—Cleveland Second

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 25.—The Melvin A. Taylor cup for the best financial advertising exhibit at the New Orleans Convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs was awarded to the Irving National Bank, New York. The Guarantee Trust Company, New York, was given second place; the Cleveland Trust Company, Cleveland, O., won third place in this competition.

This is the third successive year in which the Irving National Bank exhibit has won first prize. Additional interest was lent to the contest this year by the great number of competitors, the financial advertising exhibits occupying much more than half the entire space allotted to displays in the lounge of the Grunewald Hotel.

Coast to coast, every part of the country was represented in the display of financial advertising.

In the classification, for the best single advertising display, the Guarantee Trust and Savings Bank, Los Angeles, was given first place. The First National Bank, St. Louis, second place, and the Hibernia Bank & Trust Company, New Orleans, third place.

For the best individual piece of copy, the Bank of Italy, San Francisco, won first place, the Union Bank, Newark, New Jersey, second place, and the Merchantile Trust Company, St. Louis, Missouri, third place.

The cup won by the Irving National was offered by Melvin A. Taylor, president of First Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago. The award was the closing feature of the final session of the Financial Advertising Association, and was received with much applause.

Atwood Under Operation

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 23.—Stanley B. Atwood, sports editor of the Sun and during the war one of the editors of a newspaper issued by the Signal Corps of the Army at Washington, has undergone a successful operation for appendicitis at the Ste. Marie Hospital. He is reported as getting along finely.

The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

supplies continuous daily and weekly services that make and hold home circulation
ALSO

Big Special Features on Timely Topics by Leading Writers

Send for our complete list and particulars of our star features, including Frank H. Simonds, Montague Glass and Sewell Ford.

N373 Fourth Ave., New York

LOS ANGELES

Evening Herald

The all-the-year-round automobile advertising medium in the land of sunshine. Complete motor section each Saturday.

DAILY CIRCULATION
127,773
Charter Member A. B. C.

CAR AD PEOPLE LOSE

Court Rules U. R. C. Receiver in St. Louis Can Break Contract

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 22.—"The receiver of the United Railways Company had the power to abrogate the contracts with the Western Advertising Company for advertising in the company's cars, and the contract should be abrogated. As a matter of equity, however, a new contract should be made by the receiver with the Western company for two years at the rate of $80,000 a year, an increase of $16,000 over last year's payment."

This is the ruling of Judge Dyer in the United States District Court in the suit for injunction brought by the Western Advertising Company when the receiver sought to abrogate the contract. A Philadelphia concern had offered $104,000 a year for the privilege.

Potter Attended "U.T.A." Convention

M. Bruce Potter, general manager of the Rochester (N. Y.) Herald, was a delegate to the United Typothetae convention in New York last week. The Herald has a complete photo-engraving and job printing plant, and Mr. Potter was looking for ideas for its improvement.

Building at Lake Charles

LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 24.—The American Press Publishing Company has awarded the contract for the erection of a two-story brick building to cost $14,000. It will be specially arranged and fitted for a newspaper publishing plant and will be ready about January 1.

The Mount Vernon, N. Y.

DAILY ARGUS

carries more display advertising than any other newspaper in Westchester County

This is an acknowledgement of its power that the advertiser should heed, if desirous of reaching the people of Mount Vernon

GEO. B. DAVID & CO.
Foreign Representative
171 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

The Pittsburg Dispatch

has always been a big factor in the successful exploiting of good merchandise.

WALLACE G. BROOKE
Brunswick Building, New York
THE FORD PARSONS CO.,
Peoples Gas Building, Chicago
H. C. ROOK
Real Estate Trust Building, Phila

New Orleans States

Member Audit Bureau of Circulation

Sworn Net Paid Circulation for 6 Months Ending April 1st, 1919

43,701 Daily

We guarantee the largest white home delivered evening circulation in the trade territory of New Orleans.

To reach a large majority of the trade prospects in the local territory the States is the logical and economic medium.

Circulation data sent on request.

The S. C. Beckwith Special Agcy.
Sole Foreign Representatives
New York Chicago St. Louis

Digitized by Google

CAN PROMOTE THRIFT BY ADVERTISING

Economy Developed During War-Time Can Be Made a Habit—Ellsworth Heads Financial Department in New Orleans

Financial advertising has improved immensely during the last few years, and its high purpose from now on must be to popularize constructive and continuous thrift, begun during war-time. R. S. Hecht, president of the Hibernia Bank and Trust Company of New Orleans, told members of the Financial Advertising Association of the A. A. C. W. of W., in an address at the New Orleans convention. He said:

"The so-called bank advertising of twenty and fifteen and even ten years ago, with a very few brilliant exceptions, was so absolutely inane as to be positively pitiful. I have heard it described as 'tombstone' advertising, and certainly no more appropriate adjective could be used, for it produced just about the same results as to the inscriptions that you read in the average well-organized and well conducted cemetery.

A Bigger View

"With the birth of the Financial Advertisers' Association there was sounded the death-knell of the 'Eteenth-Nation-al-Bank-Capital-and-Surplus-$500,000-Transacts-a-General-Banking-Business' style of bank advertising, and there was ushered in the modern twentieth century style now employed by practically all live banking and investment institutions.

"With the birth of our Association, there was born also a bigger, modern, more human conception of the duty which the banking institutions owe to the community. Perhaps this fact is best exemplified by the wonderful manner in which the members of our Association, not as members, but as individual patriotic American citizens, set aside everything of a personal and private nature in order to give of their knowledge and of their experience and of their ability in helping Uncle Sam and his Allies everlastingly to crush the greatest foe of righteous and fair and square publicity which the world has ever known.

"Not all of our people, unfortunately, were prepared when war came upon us, but when there came the great, big job of raising billions of dollars in order to successfully wage our war against mediaeval arrogance; the members of the Association were prepared, and to you and your associates in the Financial Advertisers' Association, in no small degree, belongs credit for the remarkable success of our government financing.

"But our work is just begun. The people of our country, inspired by just patriotism and encouraged by intelligent publicity, learned during the past few years what it means to sacrifice and save. Our big purpose from now on must be to still further popularize constructive and continuous thrift, and to convert into a permanent habit that temporary practice developed during war-time."

The Financial Advertisers' Association elected the following officers:

President, Fred. W. Ellsworth, Hibernia Bank & Trust Co., New Orleans; first vice-president, H. A. Marsland, Irving National Bank, New York City; second vice-president, Lloyd H. Mattson, Commercial Exchange Bank, Omaha; third vice-president, H. B. Grimm, St. Joseph Alloy Bank, Elkhart, Ind.; chairman, W. R. Morehouse, Guaranty Trust Company, Los Angeles; secretary, Walter Bramman, St. Louis; treasurer, Carl A. Gode, Merchants Loan & Trust Company, Chicago.

New directors: F. D. Conner, Illinois Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago; F. C. Adams, National Bank of Louisville, Ky.; W. W. Douglas, Minnesota Loan & Trust Company, Minneapolis; Frank Wilson, Scandinavian and American Bank, Tacoma; M. A. Schulte, Cleveland Trust Company, Cleveland.

THOMPSON RE ELECTED

Succeeds Self for Seven-Year Term on Federal Trade Commission

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The reappointment of Commissioner Huston Thompson, of the Federal Trade Commission, to succeed himself in office for a further term of seven years, was confirmed yesterday by the Senate. Mr. Thompson was originally appointed last spring to fill out the unexpired term of former Commissioner William J. Harris, of Georgia, resigned.

Previous to his appointment to the Commission, Mr. Thompson, who is a Coloradoan, was assistant attorney general of the United States, assistant attorney general of Colorado, and for long prominently identified with legal and public affairs in that state. The distinction is claimed for him of being the only man who has been tendered three appointments by President Wilson.

Thomas Teaching Journalism

OKMULGEE, Okla., Sept. 23.—Burnis H. Thomas of the Times Staff, has been made head of the journalism division of the vocational department at the Sand Springs (Okla.) high school.

HAVAS OFFICIAL DEAD

Henri Houssaye Was Managing Director for Over Twenty Years

PARIS, Sept. 25.—Henri Houssaye, administrator and former director of the Havas Agency, the semi-official French news distributing organization, died today. He was born February 24, 1848, and was a member of the Legion of Honor. He was managing director of the Havas Agency for more than twenty years and was still active in its control during the war.

Mr. Houssaye's nephew, Charles Houssaye, was sent to the United States by the Government on several special missions during the hostilities.

Obituary

MRS. SADIE N. GANNETT, wife of William H. Gannett, publisher of monthly and weekly periodicals at Augusta, Me., died last week at the Augusta General Hospital of neuritis. Besides her husband she leaves two daughters and a son.

MAJOR GOLIN WALLER, former editor of the Sullivan County Republican, published in Monticello, N. Y., and believed ot be the oldest newspaper in the state, died in Monticello September 24, aged 94 years. Major Waller served three years in the civil war, and was wounded at Cedar Mountain. He served as postmaster under President Taylor, Lincoln, Grant and Morrison. He established the Republican in 1854, continuing to publish it until a short time ago, when he retired owing to his health.

WILLIAM P. H. PROUT, for many years connected with the Troy and Albany (N. Y.) newspaper, died last week.

PHILLIP WELLS, editor of the New Milford (Conn.) Gazette, died September 28 of pneumonia, aged 66 years. He was a former Milwaukee newspaper man.

HERMAN GERALD CHAPIN, a former editor of the American Lawyer, died at Chappaqua, N. Y., September 28, aged 43 years.

MICHAEL F. DEVER, who years ago was a prominent figure in Boston newspaper circles, died of pneumonia in Boston on September 14, aged 60 years. Mr. Dever was editor of the Boston Sun 35 years ago. He left the Sun to become advertising manager of the Republic when that paper was being published by the late Patrick Maguire. His next venture was the insurance business, and for the past 25 years he engaged in this line, representing many large companies.

Making Money in Oil

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 30.—Oscar Stauffer, editor of the Peabody (Kan.) Gazette-Herald is said to have made a small fortune since entering the oil "game" a year ago. Mr. Stauffer recently closed a deal for a large lease and paid $10,000 for it. He said he started in the oil as a "side line," but now his newspaper is his "side line."

Nemethy Leaves Franklin Press

DETROIT, Sept. 26.—The advertising service department of the Chope-Stevens Paper Company is now in charge of Joseph G. Nemethy, formerly assistant general manager of the Franklin Press.

667,352
LINES GAIN

The Plain Dealer's August gain of 667,352 lines—the biggest gain ever made by any Cleveland page in one month shows how experienced advertisers are spending their Cleveland money.

The Plain Dealer
Largest Morning and Sunday Circulation Between New York and Chicago

Photogravure Advertising
25c line
8 page supplement
Every Sunday
Des Moines Sunday Register
70,000 Net Paid Circulation
I. A. Klein, New York John Glass, Chicago

Food Medium
of
New Jersey
Trenton Times
A. B. C.
2c—12c Per Week
KELLY SMITH COMPANY
20 Fifth Avenue Lytton Building
NEW YORK CHICAGO

The Newark (N. J.) Ledger
is a 7-day Morning Associated Press Newspaper and is the only morning newspaper in industrial centre with a million population.
Morning Edition, 2c
Sunday Edition, 5c

The Dominating Force
In a manufacturing territory famous for its hustle, thrift and prosperity where a million dollars are expended weekly in wages.
The Bridgeport Post
Standard-Telegram
Not only dominate this field, but they offer advertisers the lowest rate obtainable on New England. Keep them on your list.
FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVES
I. A. Klein,
Metropolitan Bldg., New York.
John Glass,
Peoples' Gas Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Perth Amboy, N. J.
Most Rapidly Growing City in East
Thoroughly Covered by Only Daily in Field.
Evening News
Member A. N. P. A., A. B. C., A. P.
Reasonable requests for trade information given prompt attention.
F. R. Northrup, 303 5th Avenue
New York City

Summer In New London, Conn.
is the season of social activities and big business that assure success for the advertiser who uses
The New London Telegraph
Advertise your goods at dawn and sell them before wark.
JULIAN D. MORAN, Pres. and Mgr.
Representatives
Payne Burns & Smith, New York-Boston
J. Logan Payne Co. Chicago-Detroit

3 OF A KIND
New England Market Merchandising
BOSTON AMERICAN
Service Department
To cover the first effectively you need the other two.
Govt. Statement for Six Months Ending April 1st Shows
301,270

The Pittsburg Press Has the Largest
Daily and Sunday
CIRCULATION
IN PITTSBURG
Member A. B. C.
Foreign Advertising Representatives
Metropolitan Tower, Peoples Gas Bldg.
I. A. KLEIN, JOHN GLASS,
New York. Chicago.

Digitized by Google

SUPPLIES AND EQUIPMENT

New Trade Paper Planned for Paper Industry

Business Growing so Fast in Canada as to Warrant It, Montreal Backers Say

MONTREAL, Sept. 24—The following announcement in the form of a display advertisement appeared in today's Montreal Gazette:

"Canada's Pulp and Paper Industry shows such great growth and future possibilities that a new weekly paper devoted to this field will make its appearance within a few days. The new paper hopes to render a service that will make it indispensable to the industry."

Up to the present time Canada has had only one publication devoted to the pulp and paper industry, though it is now Canada's greatest export industry and is growing very rapidly.

A quarter of a century ago Canada exported $12t worth of paper per year. Last year she exported over $99,990,000 worth of pulp and paper products.

At the present the International Paper Company are building a $6,000,000 plant at Three Rivers, while a half score or more of paper companies are enlarging their plants, installing additional machines or otherwise preparing to take advantage of the growth and expansion of the industry.

On the stock markets shares of paper companies are booming while the annual reports of the companies show that phenomenal earnings have been made during the past few years. D. C. Macarow, general manager of the Merchants' Bank of Canada, who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast accompanied by several directors and bank officials, in speaking of the pulp and paper industry on the Pacific Coast said, "the pulp and paper industry has made rapid strides in recent years. Five large plants are now operating in the province of British Columbia and another is in the course of construction."

Pacific Cable Plans Progress

Arrangements for laying the new American Pacific cable are going forward without a hitch, according to George Edward Ward, vice-president of the Commercial Cable Company, who arrived home from England last Thursday. He said things would move rapidly as soon as the Japanese Government provided for the landing of the cable in Japan. Clarence H. Mackay, president of the company, who went abroad recently, is in negotiation with the Japanese Government relative to landing the new line.

Kling Agency Formed

CHICAGO, Sept. 25—Roy A. Kling, Harry C. Phipps, R. W. Althoss and William D. Stewart have established the Roy A. Kling Advertising Company.

Eastman Is Head Space Buyer

CHICAGO, Sept. 27—The William- & Cunningham Agency has appointed C. J. Eastman as head of its space buying department.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE

Advertisements under this classification thirty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

For Sale

At sacrifice for immediate acceptance—Sextuple Goss press with color attachment, eight columns, twelve ems, 2¼ inch cut; factory rebuilt two years ago; perfect condition. Also semi-autoplate, pot and pump. This press has been in use on the Bridgeport (Conn.) Post and can be seen standing. Subject to prior sale. Address J. H. B., Box 1677, Boston, Mass.

EQUIPMENT WANTED

Advertisements under this classification thirty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Wanted To Buy

12 foot steel make-up table, with overhead fixtures, or several make-up tranks and steel stereotype chases. The Mail, Charleston, W. Va.

NO PAPERS FOR YOUNG JAPS.

Withheld Until 18th Year, Except in Unusual Case of a Prince

It has been the inflexible custom in the imperial family of Japan, says a writer in the East and West News, to withhold all newspapers and magazines from its members until they attain their eighteenth year; but the rule was waived in the case of Hirohito, the present crown prince. Four months before his imperial highness entered upon the eighteenth year he was allowed to begin reading a specially prepared journal.

This curious newspaper was edited by an official of the imperial household and printed in the imperial printing office. It was set in special type and printed on thick Japanese paper. The reading of it did not require a great deal of time, for it was of small size and on a single sheet.

ADOPT FOUNDLING BABY

Chicago Advertising Man Finds Child on Porch of Home

CHICAGO, Sept. 24—William D. McJunkin, head of the advertising agency of the same name, this week adopted a luxuriously outfitted baby, mysteriously left on the porch of his home with a note from the unknown mother, who asserted that the infant's father was killed overseas, that she did not now dare announce her secret marriage to her parents, and that her father at one time was a client of the McJunkin agency.

All of the McJunkin children now having married and left home, Mr. and Mrs. McJunkin have accepted their unforeseen responsibility gladly and generously.

In Training for a "Special"

E. W. Conklin, son of Thomas E. Conklin, is now on an extended western trip and is not expected to return to New York for at least six months. While in the West his headquarters will be the Chicago office of Verree & Conklin. E. W. Conklin is associated in the advertising business with his father and for the purpose of broadening his business knowledge, he is making this Western pilgrimage.

For Prompt Service

TYPE Printers' Supplies Machinery

In Stock for Immediate Shipment by Selling Houses conveniently located

"American Type the Best in Any Case"

AMERICAN TYPE FOUNDERS CO.

Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Richmond, Atlanta, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Spokane, Winnipeg

Printing Plants and Business BOUGHT AND SOLD

Printers' Outfitters

American Typefounders' Products
Printers and Bookbinders' Machinery of Every Description

CONNER, FENDLER & CO
18 Beekman St. New York City

FOR SALE

Hoe Matrix Rolling Machines in good condition.

Can be shipped at once.

Scott Flat Plate Casting Boxes casts plates 18 x 24 inches. Send for prices

WALTER SCOTT & CO.,
Plainfield New Jersey

Take It To

POWERS

Open 24 hours out of 24
The Fastest Engravers on the Earth

Powers Photo Engraving Co.
154 Nassau St., Tribune Bldg.
New York City

—GOSS—

the name that stands for
SPEED, DEPENDABILITY, SERVICE

THE GOSS
"High Speed Straightline" Press
Used in the largest newspaper plants in U. S. A. and Europe.

THE GOSS
Rotary Half Tone and Color Magazine Press
Specially designed for Mail Order, Catalogue and Magazine Work.

THE GOSS
"Comet" Flat Bed Web Perfecting Press
Prints 4, 6 or 8 page newspaper from type forms and roll paper.

GOSS STEROTYPE MACHINERY
A complete line for casting and finishing flat or curved plates.

DESCRIPTIVE LITERATURE CHEERFULLY FURNISHED

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.

Main Office and Works:
1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago

New York office:
220 W. Forty-second St.

Digitized by Google

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING COLUMNS

"through the classified columns of Editor & Publisher you may find a buyer for any useful mechanical equipment for which you have no present need. A "For Sale" ad at thirty cents per line may thus turn into cash something which now merely requires storage room—and which would be of real service to somebody else.

SITUATIONS WANTED

Advertisements under this classification, ten cents per line, each insertion. Count six words to the line. For consecutive insertion to exceed 50 words, two insertions FREE.

Assistant Advertising Manager

Young man with executive ability, experienced as publisher and assistant advertising manager of a New York weekly magazine, wants to connect with advertising department of some live wire three New York City. Seven years experience as advertising writer and assistant to handle magazine from make-up to circulation, and space and correspondent. Excellent references. Address A 886, care of Editor and Publisher.

Advertising Solicitor Desires Position

Only recently I was discharged from the military service, after serving a year in France. I desire to become connected in the newspaper field, preferably in the Eastern or southern daily who desire their advertising space sold. Formerly Advertising Manager of New York State daily in city of 30,000. Am experienced, can make collections and get the ads—all of which means more business for the paper. Age 28, married, no children. Best of references furnished. Address A 886, care of Editor and Publisher.

Advertising

Young man, 26, high school education, just out of army, would like position with advertising department or as advertising specialization department of some publication. Middle west preferred. Address A 894, care of Editor and Publisher.

Business Manager
Advertising Manager

Two live producers want to connect with some good daily. At present business manager and advertising manager of prosperous daily. Can produce results. Want place with future and opportunity to have interest in business. Address A 896, care of Editor and Publisher.

Mr. Publisher or Business Manager

Are you satisfied with your present circulation? Do you contemplate a campaign for increased business this fall? This is your opportunity to secure the services of an expert to direct the energies of your circulation department. Over fifteen years as circulator on morning and evening and Sunday papers east and west. Experienced in every form of circulation development among newsstand, department, and city and country dealers. Wide experience in R. F. D. work and contests of every description. Desires to make permanent connection as circulation director, city circulator or other prominent circulation work in any department. Address A 828, care of Editor and Publisher.

Two Live Newspapermen

Wanted—to get in touch with good county seat weekly by two live newspapermen. Will present one to business manager and the other to advertising manager of live daily. Both are practical men and know the business from the bottom up. Both are good producers. Can take hold and produce a real buyer in any field. Address A 889, care of Editor and Publisher.

Editorial Writer

Young man, twelve years' experience, five as editor in Canada and Michigan, desires position on Michigan daily. Cover City Hall beat, preferring to night work excepting Council. Salary, forty dollars week. Write 2509 Grattot Avenue, Port Huron, Michigan.

Newspaper Man

Experienced daily newspaper man is open for engagement as editor, editorial writer or telegraph editor of Republican daily, central or western states. Address A 893, care of Editor and Publisher.

Copy Editor

A capable copy editor; good general writer; strong; original; judicious; experienced in make-up, proofreading; reliable. Address A 883, care of Editor and Publisher.

Stenographer-Secretary

Stenographer-secretary, thoroughly efficient and aggressive; capable of doing things; address A 892, care of Editor and Publisher.

SITUATIONS WANTED

Experienced Copy Editor

wishes permanent position in New York or Philadelphia; 27 years old, college graduate; can write heads to suit your style; will work on probation. C. J. T., care Editor and Publisher.

Business Manager

A producer who really knows the daily newspaper game wants to advance to larger field where business ability and integrity are appreciated. Address A 890, care of Editor and Publisher.

Trained Newspaperman

Night work and cost of living in Washington, D. C., prompts trained newspaperman to seek another field on afternoon newspaper. Capable of managing small daily. Would invest later. Married, aged about 30. Address A 898, care of Editor and Publisher.

Advertising Salesman

Seasoned, capable and reliable producer available for large trade paper or magazine. Experienced in general, class, trade and export fields; has successfully managed department; also branch office. Large acquaintance New York and Philadelphia; best credentials given. Details to replies; letters confidential. Address A 677, care of Editor and Publisher.

HELP WANTED

Advertisements under this classification, twenty-five cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Advertising Man

Wanted—Experienced advertising man of brilliant attainments for high class monthly commercial publication with field cover five states. Will be expected to take charge of advertising with ability as well on contract basis of salary and commission which will prove most profitable. Only bankers, manufacturers and similar high class concerns to be dealt with. Must have gilt-edge credentials bearing closest investigation and for man of this character, attractive. Exceptional opportunity for such a man. Assurance will be absolutely provided both as to satisfied, must be forthcoming. Address 237 Plymouth Building, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Experienced Special Edition Solicitors

Wanted—Publishing newspaper Special Edition solicitors to work on an exceptionally good proposition in one of the best territories in the middle west. Must have good appearance, be clean cut, have business commission basis, transportation advanced and small drawing account. Address Special Edition, Reply in own handwriting giving full details, references and last employer. Replies held confidential here requested. John L. Gallagher Co., 9th Floor, Dexter, Bldg., Boston, Mass.

Classified Man

Wanted—Energetic man, whose experience proves he is capable of building up a classified department to a monthly income of paper in a city at 100,000. Applicants must have unquestionable record for results desired. Address A 862, care of Editor and Publisher.

Experienced Circulation Manager

Wanted—experienced circulation manager; mid-western city of 85,000; growing town evening paper; must be reliable and well recommended. Address A 897, care of Editor and Publisher.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

Advertisements under this classification, forty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Publishers—Attention!

We supply literary material of all kinds for newspapers or magazines at very reasonable rates. Everything is original and by competent writers. Write us your needs and we can furnish it. Will take advertising in exchange for all or part. Address Literary Bureau, M O J 4, Hannibal, Mo.

FEATURE SERVICES

Advertisements under this classification thirty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Poetry and Humor Column

New and original every day. My private rates are low. Shall I supply you with one a week for one year? Address A 896, care of Editor and Publisher.

NOTICE

INTERNATIONAL PAPER CO.
New York, September 29, 1919.

The Board of Directors have declared a regular quarterly dividd nd ol one and one-half per cent. (1½%) on the preferred capital stock of this Company, payable October 15th, 1919, to preferred stockholders of record at the close of business October 7th, 1919.

OWEN SHEPHERD, Treasurer.

Publications Closed Down in Seattle

Master Printers and Paper Manufacturers Unite to Fight Job Printers' Demands

SEATTLE, Sept. 25.—Strike of several hundred printers, pressmen and bindery men in Seattle's job printing shops reached a climax this week when the Master Printers' Association obtained the backing of the local paper manufacturers and distributors. The paper dealers declared a boycott against the few plants who have yielded to the union demands for $7 for a seven-hour day, refusing to sell them any paper.

The last majority of Seattle's plants have been virtually shut down since September 2 when the men walked out after they are planning to re-open soon on an open-shop basis. As a compromise the master printers offered the strikers $7 for an eight-hour day, but the offer was rejected. The strikers have maintained a defiant attitude, refusing to submit the question in dispute to arbitration.

Because of the paper boycott declared by the plants that are operating and the closing down of the other plants, weekly publications and monthly journals published in Seattle have for the most part suspended, or rather, after publication, until the strike is settled. The Business Chronicle, a financial publication published weekly, came off the press this week in miniegraphed form in a reduced size of a single page.

FREE COURSE IN TYPOGRAPHY

Arnold Levitas to Direct Studies in Stuyvesant High School

The Stuyvesant Evening Trade School, New York, announces evening conrses for printers, lithoiral workers, advertising men and women, and other aspirants, for the coming season, in hand-reading and printers' technical English; typography and advertising layout; and estimating and cost-finding for printers.

The courses are to be conducted by Arnold Levitas and are to be given on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, between 7:30 and 9:30. They are open to men and women alike. Application for admission should be made at the office of the principal of the school, Fifteenth street, near First avenue.

Denver Strike Settled

DENVER, Sept. 30.—The printers' strike in Denver, which lasted three weeks, has been settled in favor of the striking compositors. They had asked for $39 a week for day work and $3 extra for night work, but the scale adopted was $37 for the first month, $38 for the second, and $39 a week thereafter.

Ollendorf Elected to Office

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—The J. A. Snyder Company announces the election of C. J. Ollendorf as secretary-treasurer. Mr. Ollendorf recently has been assistant treasurer of the Henri, Hurst & McDonald Agency and formerly was with Erwin & Wasey and Lord & Thomas.

NOTICE

$5 0,000 for investment in a New York state daily newspaper property. Either politics. Proposition T. F.

Charles M. Palmer
Newspaper Properties
225 Fifth Ave. New York

CONSOLIDATION

is the recognized route to large returns in nearly every line of commercial industry.

We believe that publishing properties offer one of the most attractive of all the fields for merger and consolidation.

We have a record of results in this difficult work that you should investigate.

HARWELL & CANNON
Newspaper and Magazine Properties
Times Building New York

T. B. SHERMAN COMES TO N. Y.

Al Harris Succeeds Him on Birmingham Ledger—Melton Marries

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 22.—Thomas B. Sherman, sports editor and columnist on the Ledger staff, has resigned and is now in New York doing special features for a number of syndicates and "breaking into" the fiction game. He is succeeded by Gus Al Harris, who left the Atlanta Georgian. Al Harris, late of the Atlanta Constitution staff is now doing special features and is a humorous columnist on the Ledger. Paoli Smith, who returned from service one week ago, has been appointed publicity director for the Liberty Loan campaign. Quimby Melton, former city editor of the Atlanta Constitution, and recently assistant to associate editor of the Birmingham Ledger, is spending a two weeks' honeymoon in the East, visiting Atlantic City and other resorts. He recently married Miss Mary Davenport of Americus, Ga., thus bring to a climax a romance which had its beginning at the Constitution copy desk.

Jermane Welcomed Home

SEATTLE, Sept. 25.—Seventy newspapermen of Seattle from all the daily newspapers and weekly and monthly journals attended a banquet last night in honor of A. W. Jermane, in charge of of the Washington bureau of The Seattle Times, who is visiting his city on his vacation. The banquet was given by William Pigott, a Seattle business man.

Seven Sons Pall Bearers

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 27.—The funeral of H. W. Kastor, retired founder of the H. W. Kastor & Sons Advertising Company, took place Wednesday, with his seven sons acting as pallbearers. Services were held at the family residence and the body was cremated. The sons are Louis, Ernest, Richard, William, Benjamin and Arthur of Chicago, and Fred of St. Louis.

Texas Publishers Incorporate

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., Sept. 30.—The Record-News Company has been organized with $90,000 capital by W. H. Bagley and J. P. Allison, of Fort Worth and A. P. Oakes of Wichita Falls, who recently purchased the Record-News.

Digitized by Google

BIG LAWN BOWLING FIELD IN TORONTO

Fourteen-Year Feature of Toronto Globe Attains Greater Popularity in 1919 Than Ever Before—250 of Best Players in Canada Take Part

TORONTO, ONT., October 1.

Few recreative or sporting features developed by newspapers have acquired the permanent popularity of "The Globe Scotch Doubles," a lawn bowling tournament inaugurated by the Toronto Globe fourteen years ago, which draws together the cream of the bowling fraternity of Canada during the first week in September each year.

It is a fifteen-end game of lawn bowls consisting of two players to a side, each bowler playing four bowls in each end. The tournament is limited to four players from any one bowling club affiliated with any of the recognized bowling associations of Canada. It thus provides intensely interesting local elimination contests throughout a wide territory running through the bowling season, in order to make the club selection for the big Globe event.

It has been described as the "World Series" in lawn bowling.

Valuable prizes are given. A bull sea lion 18 inch club bag, and four pairs of silver mounted bowls, engraved with the names of the winners, go to each member of the victorious pair, and four ivory mounted bowls, also engraved, to each of the runners-up.

Increase in Popularity

The tournament has increased in popularity from year to year, the 1919 entry surpassing any previous year—250 of the best lawn bowlers in Canada taking part. The importance of the Globe-Scotch Doubles can best be appreciated when it is taken into consideration that only four bowlers can enter from any one club; whereas entry to all other bowling tournaments is unlimited.

By way of comparison, the entry for the 1919 Dominion Scotch Doubles tournament was in the neighborhood of one hundred pairs, against the entry of one hundred and twenty-five in the Globe Scotch Doubles.

The play generally in this year's tournament possibly eclipsed that of any of its predecessors. This particularly applies to the final round when the last bowl in the last end won.

The 1919 winners were: F. N. Allen and F. L. Willgoose, London, Ontario. Thistles, with R. S. Fleming and Dr. Gowland, of Milton, Ontario, run comers-up.

MINOR URGES REVOLUTION

Man Released by Army Preaching Bolshevism in Native Land

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 29.—When Robert Minor, former newspaper man, was prevented from delivering a soapbox oration, urging the Bolshevising of the United States at Kansas City, Kan., followed by about fifty men and women, he moved to the Missouri side today and exhorted his followers to turn America upside down by what a revolution to begin on October 8.

Minor was arrested on a charge of spreading Bolshevism in the ranks of the armies of the French and Coldens during the war, but was released for reasons never fully explained. Today he declared that the Bolsheviki had the best government on earth. In a guarded plea for his revolution, Minor said that the time to strike is on October 8, and urged everyone to strike on that day. He disguised the plea as an "economic strike" in protest against the Mooney conviction. He demanded that all people convicted of anarchy, sdition and sabotage be released. The Soviet should seize the Government, he said.

Converse at Iowa University

AMES, Ia., Sept. 30.—Blair Converse, former assistant professor of journalism at the University of Wisconsin, has been made assistant in the Iowa State College journalism department here, succeeding Harry O'Brien. Mr. Converse served in the army and then joined the Milwaukee Journal staff as telegraph editor. F. W. Beekman, head of the Iowa school of journalism, who has been doing educational work with the A. E. F. in France and Germany, has returned and taken up his duties.

Bradley Back on Old Job

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 24.—Lieut. Leon C. Bradley, former city editor of the Age-Herald, who returned three weeks ago from France, has been reinstated at his former post at the Age-Herald's copy desk. A "welcome home" party was tendered Mr. Bradley by the commission and members of the newspaper staffs. The entire personnel of the Birmingham newspaper fraternity who have returned from service were feted with special ceremonies of appreciation.

Col. Bigelow a Rotary Speaker

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 19.—Col. Harry M. Bigelow, of the 3rd Maine Infantry and managing editor of the Daily Press, delivered an address today at the weekly meeting of the Portland Rotary Club. He urged upon Rotarians the importance of taking an interest in the proper makeup of the National Guard.

Selling Church Advertising on "Liberty Loan" Plan

A. G. Fegert Suggests Starting a World-Wide Campaign for Gospel of Christ

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 25.—A world-wide continuous advertising campaign to supplement all the present means of preaching the Gospel of Christ was suggested and plans outlined to conduct such a campaign, in a speech given by A. G. Fegert, connected with the Army Y. M. C. A. at San Antonio, before the church section of the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. His subject was "Harnessing the Press." Mr. Fegert outlined in detail how a general interest could be organized and financed which would prepare the copy for such advertising.

He said advertising managers of newspapers and magazines, with portfolios of advertisements suitable for different size spaces, could then interest church organizations, firms and individuals in paying for the insertion of the advertisement as they induced firms and individuals to pay for the insertion of the Liberty Loan, Red Cross, and Y. M. C. A. advertisements during the war.

He expressed the idea that the publishers would then devote more space in their papers to church news. It is not my idea that the advertising should be limited to telling the general public that they can hear good sermons and music at a particular time and place, but the advertisements in their illustrations and text should show that the men and women can't get along in life as they ought to, unless they heed Jehovah and that those who do obey Him in accordance with the Scripture, will receive the fruits of the Spirit, which according to St. Paul in the Fifth Chapter of his letter to the Galatians, are love, joy, peace and other desirable things of life."

Prior to Mr. Fegert's entering the war work of the Army Y. M. C. A. in Texas, two years ago, he was a newspaper man in Chicago and active in church campaigns.

Oppose Women as Voters

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 24.—Oliver L. Hall, editor of the Commercial, is a member of the executive committee of the Maine Men's Anti-Suffrage Association, which recently sent a letter to all members of the Maine Legislature asking them not to vote for the ratification of the national suffrage amendment at a special session of the Legislature to be held next month.

ENCOURAGING HOME BUILDING

Kansas City Star Conducting Contest for Attractive Plans

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 1.—The "Attractive Home" contest, conducted by the Star, closed October 1. The contest was divided into three classes of three awards each, and are as follows:

Class A—For homes costing less than $7,500 $100 first prize, $60 second and $40 third. Class B—For homes costing between $7,500 and $15,000: $100 first prize, $60 second and $40 third; Class C—For homes costing more than $15,000: $100 first prize, $60 second and $40 third.

Photographs or drawings, plans of the first and second floors, and a statement of the materials used, cost, etc., together with photographs of the interiors, if available, were solicited. The number responding is said to be very heavy.

To Promote Oregon Products

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 24.—The Portland Press Club has joined with the Associated Industries of Oregon to promote the sale and use of products that are grown and manufactured in Oregon. Resolutions to aid in popularizing Oregon products have been adopted and a committee has been named, with O. C. Leiter at its head, to promote the movement.

Opening for an Editor?

OSSINING, N. Y., Sept. 22.—The gates of Sing Sing prison have closed upon Emory Hartsig, a prisoner from Kings county, whose term has expired. Hartsig has been editor of the Star-Bulletin, the prison paper. The publishers are reported to be looking for a new editor to succeed the retiring prisoner.

BUFFALO NEWS
EDWARD H. BUTLER
Editor and Publisher
"The only Buffalo newspaper that censors its advertising columns. Many of our advertisers use our columns exclusively. The above is one of the many reasons why."
MEMBER A. B. C.
Foreign Advertising Representatives
KELLY-SMITH COMPANY
220 Fifth Avenue Lytton Building
NEW YORK CHICAGO

We can increase your business—you want it increased.

You have thought of press clippings yourself. But let us tell you how press clipping can be made a business-builder for you.

BURRELLE
145 Lafayette St., N. Y. City
Established a Quarter of a Century

The amalgamation of the two leading progressive Jewish newspapers of New York

THE DAY
and
THE WARHEIT

brings into being the most powerful advertising medium in the Jewish field.

The National Jewish Daily

Canadian Press Clippings.
The problem of covering the Canadian Field is answered by obtaining the service of The Dominion Press Clipping Agency
which gives the clippings on all matters of interest to you, printed in over 95 per cent. of the newspapers and publications of CANADA.
We cover every line of Canada and New England at our head office.
74-76 Church St., Toronto, Can.
Price and service, regular press clipping rates on coal rates and discounts to Trades and Newspapers.

R. J. Bidwell Co.
Pacific Coast Representative
Daily Newspapers
of
"Advertising Value"
Rates, Circulation, Special Data, Promptly Upon Request
PACIFIC COAST OFFICES
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SAN FRANCISCO SEATTLE
742 Market St. 1002 L. C. Smith Bldg.

Hemstreet's
PRESS CLIPPINGS
Tenth Avenue at 45th Street
New York

Digitized by Google

An Empire in Itself

Southern Markets

Well Worth Winning

Do You Know Any "Quality Folks" Down South?

Have you ever been entertained by them in their own homes?

If you do, and have, you have reached the apex of knowledge, of hospitality and aristocracy.

If you have observed you probably realize that the charming people are inclined to be mighty clannish—powerfully partial to their own "home folks" and are inclined to read their own home newspapers and buy from their own home merchants.

Frank P. Glass' opinion goes a heap further in Birmingham, Alabama, than does the opinion of George Horace Lorimer. Colonel Glass is "home folks," you understand.

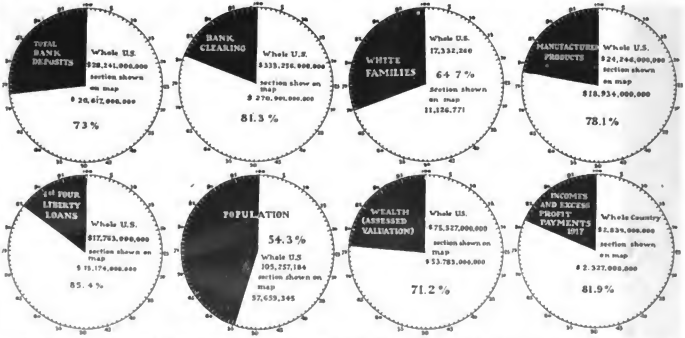
It's that way all over the South—socially, in business, every way. Get the co-operation of Southern Daily Newspapers and Southern merchants (who, by the way, get their business from these selfsame Southern Daily Newspapers) and you can see your business go ahead by leaps and bounds.

The papers listed here gladly co-operate with national advertisers in putting meritorious merchandise "through the works" and getting it into the homes of the very best people in the South. Co-operation in a local way pays.

		Net Paid Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
ALABAMA
Birmingham Age-Herald	(M)	22,560	.07	.06
Birmingham Age-Herald	(S)	29,795	.08	.06
Birmingham Ledger	(E)	38,022	.07	.07
*Birmingham News	(E)	46,121	.08	.08
*Birmingham News	(S)	48,338	.08	.10
*Mobile News Item	(E)	10,766	.03	.03
Mobile Register	(M)	23,179	.05	.05
Mobile Register	(S)	33,068	.06	.06
Montgomery Advertiser	(M)	24,258	.06	.04
Montgomery Advertiser	(S)	24,258	.06	.05
FLORIDA
Jacksonville Metropolis	(E)	19,117	.045	.045
Florida Times-Union, Jack'v'e (M&S)		30,423	.06	.06
Palatka Morning Post	(M)	1,450	.0122	.0122
Pensacola Journal	(M)	5,810	.0172	.0172
Pensacola Journal	(S)	6,687	.0172	.0172
Pensacola News	(E)	5,090	.02	.02
GEORGIA
Atlanta Georgian	(E)	49,441	.08	.08
Atlanta Sunday American	(S)	50,918	.12	.12
Augusta Chronicle	(M)	12,248	.03	.03
Augusta Chronicle	(S)	10,851	.035	.035
Augusta Herald	(E)	17,413	.035	.035
Augusta Herald	(S)	12,812	.035	.035
Columbus Ledger	(E&S)	7,362	.0275	.0275
Macon Telegraph	(M)	12,450	.04	.04
Macon Telegraph	(S)	19,321	.04	.04
Savannah News	(M&S)	20,120	.04	.03
Savannah Press	(E)	16,360	.04	.04
KENTUCKY
*Louisville Herald	(M)	52,456	.08	.08
*Louisville Herald	(S)	48,767
Paducah News Democrat	(M&S)	7,004	.0225	.018
LOUISIANA
New Orleans Times-Picayune	(M)	78,417	.12	.12
New Orleans Times-Picayune	(S)	94,624	.15	.15
New Orleans Daily States	(E)	52,000	.10	.08
New Orleans Daily States	(S)	27,675
*New Orleans Item	(E)	73,966	.12	.12
*New Orleans Item	(S)	67,588	.15	.15
NORTH CAROLINA
Asheville Citizen	(M)	11,420	.025	.025
Asheville Citizen	(S)	9,734	.025	.025
Asheville Times	(E)	10,907	.025	.02
Charlotte News	(E&S)	11,398	.03	.025
Charlotte Observer	(M)	19,217	.035	.03
Charlotte Observer	(S)	19,727	.045	.04
Hickory Sun	(E)	3,000	.02	.02
Greensboro Daily News	(M)	16,955	.045	.035
Greensboro Daily News	(S)	22,466	.06	.04
Greensboro Record	(E)	3,401	.045	.035
Raleigh News and Observer	(M)	21,209	.05	.04
Raleigh News and Observer	(S)	21,209	.05	.04
Wilmington Dispatch	(E)	5,915	.02	.02
Wilmington Dispatch	(S)	5,915	.02	.02
Winston-Salem Journal	(M&S)	6,447	.025	.02
Winston-Salem Sentinel	(E)	7,000	.025	.02
SOUTH CAROLINA
Anderson Mail	(E)	4,693	.0178	.0178
Charleston American	(M)	7,390	.025	.025
Charleston American	(S)	10,451	.025	.025
*Columbia Record	(E)	13,700	.03	.03
*Columbia Record	(S)	13,789	.03	.03
*Columbia State	(M)	24,615	.05	.05
*Columbia State	(S)	24,680	.05	.05
*Greenville News	(M&S)	16,316	.035	.03
Greenwood Index Journal	(E)	5,245	.02	.02
Spartanburg Jour. & Car. Spartan	(E)	2,970
Spartanburg Herald	(M)	4,388	.03	.03
Spartanburg Herald	(S)	5,423
TENNESSEE
*Chattanooga News	(E)	17,362	.04	.04
*Chattanooga Times	(M)	30,498	.06	.06
*Chattanooga Times	(S)	26,868	.06	.06
Knoxville Sentinel	(E)	24,018	.05	.045
*Knoxville Journal-Tribune	(M)	24,838	.05	.045
*Knoxville Journal-Tribune	(S)
Memphis Commercial Appeal	(M)	82,375	.14	.12
Memphis Commercial Appeal	(S)	11,000	.17	.15
Nashville Banner	(E)	49,596	.07	.07
Nashville Banner	(S)		.07	.08
Nashville Tennessean	(M)	34,349
Nashville Evening American	(E)	13,196	.08	.08
Sunday Tennessean & American	(S)	34,631
VIRGINIA
†Bristol Herald-Courier	(M&S)	11,094	.04	.04
Danville Register and Bee	(M&E)	10,669	.03	.03
*Newport News Times-Herald	(E)	13,087	.04	.04
*Newport News Daily Press	(S&M)	9,461
Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch	(E)	43,595	.07	.06
Roanoke Times	(M&S)	11,315	.06	.04
Roanoke World-News	(E)	11,288

Government Statements April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. Statement, April 1st, 1919.
†Publisher's Statement, April 1st, 1919.
‡Includes Bristol, Tenn.

Digitized by Google



THE GREAT BEATING HEART OF THE NATION

More People With Money to Buy Advertised Goods Live in These States Than Anywhere Else on Earth

	Whole U. S.	In Above States
Population	105,257,184	57,659,345
White Families	17,332,260	11,126,771
Bank Deposits	$28,241,899,000	$20,617,571,000
Mfd. Products	$24,246,435,000	$18,934,045,000
Assessed Valuation	$75,527,381,000	$53,783,451,000

	Whole U. S.	In Above States
Newspaper Circulation	28,625,041	20,522,463
Magazine iculation	20,971,552	10,815,836
Income Tax, 1917	$2,839,083,585	$2,327,226,021
1st 4's Liberty Loans	$17,763,232,000	$15,174,562,000
Bank Clearings	$383,256,000,000	$270,901,000,000

Member A. B. C.

THE NEW YORK GLOBE

JASON ROGERS, Publisher

180,000 a Day

V

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1919

SUITE 1117 WORLD BUILDING, NEW YORK

Entered as second-class matter May 31, 1906, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Weekly: $3.00 a Year; 10c Per Copy. NEW YORK, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1919 Vol. 52, No. 19

BUNCHED BUYERS

7-out-of-10 Chicago Families Read The Daily News

In Chicago, The Daily News does what you have so often wished you could do—bunch an enormous number of buyers so that you can sell them all at once.

With a population of 2,544,229 to work with, The Chicago Daily News delivers to you 77.7 per cent. of the English speaking people.

That is certainly "bunching buyers" with a vengeance. It's about as nearly 100 per cent. as you can find in any community, large or small.

The combined population of Milwaukee, Pittsburg, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Cincinnati and Kansas City is slightly less than that of Chicago—to cover them even partially you would have to use at least six of the many papers published in these cities.

The Daily News delivers an equal market with one paper and at one cost.

The average daily net paid circulation of The Daily News during the period October 1, 1918—March 31, 1919 (the latest A. B. C. figures available), was 386,474. 94 per cent. or 364,445 was city and suburban—a lead of 107,555 over the week-day city and suburban circulation of the second paper, a morning paper.

Does that leave any doubt over which paper most nearly "bunches" Chicago?

The total circulation of a paper governs its advertising-rate. The people it reaches governs its advertising effectiveness.

The advertiser who wants to reach Chicago's 2,544,229 people with one stroke can come more nearly doing it with The Daily News than with any other medium.

If he has a large enough appropriation, he can indulge in repetition, and profitably use one or more of the other good Chicago newspapers.

But if he sticks to proven, economical methods he will bunch Chicago and sell the bunch through

THE DAILY NEWS

FIRST in Chicago

New York State

A prominent sales manager, well known in the National Advertising Field, in addressing the Representative's Club, at the McAlpin Hotel, New York City, on September 15th, in the course of his remarks said: "Give us market information."

That is just the very little thing that we do.

It is pleasing, indeed, for these big space buyers to come right out and say, in so many words, that we are performing the very service they so much desired.

Now, Mr. Sales Manager, Mr. Advertising Manager and Mr. Space Buyer, read this:

No doubt you, as well as many other sales and advertising managers have found a great deal of valuable information in these advertisements, information which has been helpful to you in planning your advertising campaigns.

Regarding your own proposition, and the State of New York, for instance.

You have been told that there are 10,646,989 people in the state; that there are 50,326 square miles; that there are 378 Department Stores, 3,920 Retail Dry Goods Stores, 4,515 Retail Druggists and 8,815 General Stores, all of which are prospective distributors of your products.

This means nearly three distributing points per square mile.

The Daily Newspapers co-operating in collecting and furnishing this information (as listed here), are published in cities having a combined population of 7,157,506 people, 67 per cent. of the state's population.

Such information as this—vital, up-to-the-minute statistics, are, as you say, a great help to national advertisers in determining relative value of media and we take great pleasure in furnishing them to you week by week.

May we not hope that in the future, as in the past, you will find much help in your work by keeping thoroughly posted on these advertisements.

Yours sincerely,
EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

Forty-Seven Magazines

Life	Boy's Magazine
System	Current Opinion
Sunset	Popular Science
Century	House Beautiful
Outlook	Literary Digest
McCall's	Pictorial Review
American	Women's Magazine
Red Book	Theatre Magazine
Harper's	Physical Culture
Leslie's	Field and Stream
Hearst's	Modern Priscilla
Designer	Christian Herald
Munsey's	Atlantic Monthly
McClure's	Popular Mechanics
Photoplay	Review of Reviews
Collier's	Mother's Magazine
Scribner's	Good Housekeeping
Delineator	Scientific American
St. Nicholas	Ladies' Home Journal
Everybody's	Saturday Evening Post
Metropolitan	People's Home Journal
Cosmopolitan	Women's Home Companion
American Boy	Motion Picture Magazine
World's Work

These magazines have been chosen for comparative purposes, first because they are standard and, second, because they have A. B. C. circulations.

Their total combined circulation is 20,971,552 copies per issue—their combined agate line advertising rate is $122.90.

The New York State circulation of these magazines is 511,157 copies—41 per cent of their entire circulation.

41 per cent of $122.90, the agate line rate, is $49.16 per line.

Now, these papers give you a circulation, you will notice, of 6,886,236—over twelve times the New York State circulation of all of these magazines at $9.4266 an agate line—less than one-fifth the cost per line.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
Albany Knickerbocker Press (M)	33,559	.07	.07
Albany Knickerbocker Press (S)	43,957	.07	.07
*Batavia News (E)	8,458	.0225	.0225
Binghamton Press-Leader (E)	26,546	.07	.06
*Brooklyn Daily Eagle (E)	66,902	.18	.18
*Brooklyn Daily Eagle (S)	69,046	.18	.18
*Brooklyn Standard-Union (E)	53,264	.15	.15
*Brooklyn Standard-Union (S)	58,929	.15	.15
Buffalo Courier & Enquirer (M&E)	70,626	.15	.12
Buffalo Courier (S)	115,359	.17	.15
Buffalo Evening News (E)	103,634	.16	.16
Buffalo Evening Times (E)	56,861	.10	.10
Buffalo Sunday Times (S)	71,435	.10	.10
Elmira Star-Gazette (E)	25,889	.06	.05
Glens Falls Post-Star (M)	8,045	.0214	.0214
Gloversville Leader-Republican (E)	6,275	.02	.02
Gloversville Morning Herald (M)	6,245	.03	.02
Hudson Register (E)	6,791	.025	.025
*Jamestown Morning Post (M)	9,131	.025	.02071
*Mount Vernon Daily Argus (E)	7,193	.02	.02
Newburgh News (E)	10,613	.04	.03
New York American (M)	305,241	.50	.41
New York American (S)	947,270	.75	.65
New York Globe (E)	179,906	.39	.36
†New York Herald (M)	107,642	.40	.36
†New York Herald (S)		.50	.45
New York Evening Journal (E)	675,118	.75	.75
New York Post (E)	32,369	.25	.20
New York Sun (E)	194,695	.39	.36
†New York Sun (M)	117,414	.39	.36
†New York Sun (S)
†New York Telegram (E)	190,681	.342	.315
†New York Telegram (S)		.246	.225
New York Times (M)	350,598	.50	.485
New York Times (S)	500,000	.55	.5335
New York Tribune (M)	100,011	.32	.28
New York Tribune (S)
New York World (E)	355,069	.40	.40
New York World (M)	331,513	.40	.40
New York World (S)	569,762	.40	.40
Niagara Falls Gazette (E)	12,454	.03	.03
Poughkeepsie Star (E)	9,930	.03214	.025
*Rochester Times-Union (E)	67,121	.14	.12
Rochester Herald (M)	35,826	.06	.06
Rome Sentinel (E)	5,353	.0179	.0157
Schenectady Union Star (E)	17,666	.04	.04
Syracuse Journal (E)	45,030	.08	.08
Troy Record (M&E)	25,537	.04	.04
Yonkers Daily News (E)	3,640	.0178	.0178

*A. B. C. Statements April 1st, 1919.
Government statements April 1st, 1919.

Total Circulation	6,886,236
10,000 Line Rate	9.4266
2,500 Line Rate	10.1597

†Seven-day average.

Digitized by Google

New York American

Advertisers will be interested in these facts about last Sunday's New York AMERICAN:

1. The AMERICAN carried a total of 518¼ columns of advertising—the greatest volume of business in its history.
2. The AMERICAN showed a gain of 220¼ columns over the same Sunday last year—a greater comparative gain than ever before.
3. The net paid circulation of last Sunday's AMERICAN was 946,627—the largest Sunday circulation in America, and an increase over the same Sunday a year ago of 160,520.

The New York AMERICAN, daily and Sunday, is growing rapidly in advertising and circulation because it is a newspaper that Most People Like.

New York American

Largest Sunday Circulation in the United States.

Daily and Sunday the Advertising Medium of Greatest Efficiency in the Metropolitan Field.

Digitized by Google

Philadelphia

an attractive field for selling big things

Philadelphia's 16,000 manufacturing plants are big buyers of raw and fabricated articles and materials.

Power plants, electrical equipment, automatic machinery, fire fighting apparatus, liability and fire insurance, motor trucks and service equipment of all kinds are constantly being bought.

Are they buying yours or your competitor's?

Dominate Philadelphia

Create maximum impression at one cost by concentrating in the newspaper "nearly everybody" reads—

The Bulletin

Net paid average for first 6 months ending September 30, 1919 446,311 Copies a day

No prize, premium, coupon or other artificial circulation stimulation methods have ever been used by "The Bulletin"

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Thursday--forms closing at 2 P. M. on the Wednesday preceding the date of publication--by The Editor & Publisher Co., Suite 1117, N. Y. World Bldg., 63 Park Row, N. Y. City. Private Branch Telephone Exchange, Beekman 4330. James Wright Brown, President; Fenton Dowling, Secretary

Vol. 52 NEW YORK, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1919 No. 19

SERIOUS NEWSPRINT SHORTAGE CALLS FOR DRASTIC CONSERVATION POLICIES

S. S. Carvalho Suggests 3-Cent Daily and 10-Cent Sunday Prices, With Substantial Increase in Advertising Rates---Present Conditions Menace to Every Newspaper in Country---Many Publishers Have Only Day-by-Day Supply

[EDITOR'S NOTE: Realizing the gravity of the newsprint situation confronting our newspapers, EDITOR & PUBLISHER has sought the views of S. S. Carvalho, generally regarded as the ablest newspaper executive in America, as to the methods and policies best calculated to meet the present crisis. In the interview presented herewith Mr. Carvalho offers timely suggestions. He believes that publishers must immediately bring about conservation of paper through substantial increases in both subscription and advertising rates. His analysis of present conditions is clear and convincing and of vital interest to every publisher.]

THE consumption of newsprint paper is greater at present than ever before known in the newspaper industry. The predictions made last summer, and at the time characterized as 'alarmist' by some who should have known better, are now realized to be conservative. The shortage of paper is felt everywhere, and as a result there is a runaway market in the matter of price. Circulations are generally higher than they were a year ago, and the size of newspapers, especially in the larger centers, have grown out of all proportion to the amount of paper that is being manufactured."

This sums up an interview on the newsprint situation given to EDITOR & PUBLISHER by S. S. Carvalho, noted newspaper authority, this week, in which he most emphatically impressed that a grave situation faces newspaper publishers and most radical protective measures are needed to meet it. Mr. Carvalho declared:

What Is to Be Done

"It is no exaggeration to say that there is being used from 15 to 30 per cent. more newsprint than the mills can turn out. And there is little or no reserve to make up the deficiency.

"Unless there are found ways of curtailing paper consumption some of the bigger publications will soon find difficulty in getting out at all.

"Advertising is pouring into the business offices with little or no solicitation. The publishers cannot afford to reject it, as they need all the revenue they can get to meet the extraordinary expenses and costs they are up against.

"Indeed, if this wave of advertising should subside, scores of papers would have to go out of business altogether.

"The problem is what is to be done? "The frame of mind of some of the publishers who wrote to me after my analysis of the newspaper situation given you last summer, is indicated in the following extract taken from one of the many letters received since that time:

Editor & Publisher Gave Warning

"'Your interview in EDITOR & PUBLISHER awoke newspapermen to the danger of the situation that many did not understand. I believe you would be justified in following that statement up with another to the effect that if the publishers all over the country do not go to a 3c. basis, they stand a chance of being forced into bankruptcy as a result of the high price of print paper.

"'Nobody can tell how long advertising revenue will remain at the present high tide. You are aware that many corporations, availing themselves of deductions from the excess profit tax, are now spending enormous sums in advertising, from which they do not expect to receive direct results in the form of increased business. It is 'good-will' advertising and may be stopped any day. Apart from that, business generally sags in a campaign year.'

"This statement, however, does not take into consideration the more than likelihood of shortage of white paper on which to print this excess advertising if it does continue.

"The publishers will have to raise their selling price and do a good many other things, if they want to come out whole.

Higher Prices Must Come

"In my opinion, in addition to the daily papers going to 3c., the price of the Sunday papers should be raised to 10c. This does not mean 10c. in the country and 7 or 8c. in the city, but 10c. in the city and in the country.

"Paper will have to be saved by condensing the reading matter from ten to twenty-five percent. Any story by intelligent editing can be so reduced. Much will have to be rewritten, until the staff grasps the situation. Even good features must be eliminated, if they can possibly be done without. Department news must be briefer, and the waste paper basket for everything that is not essential. Mr. Dana's office cat must be brought back and multiplied.

"No return free papers or samples. I am sorry to say that some metropolitan papers still take returns. Press room waste, both white and black, must be curtailed. Office advertisements must be reduced to a minimum. Indeed, all these and other economies which will occur to the individual publisher should be put into effect at once.

Shortage Was Predicted

"It might be well to here make a brief presentation of the newsprint situation as it stands today. Newspaper publishers are face to face with the shortage in print paper which was predicted early in the summer. More paper is being used than is manufactured, and the mills have little or no reserve. Indeed, the demand is so far ahead of the supply that many paper manufacturers, taking advantage of the shortage, have already raised the price of spot paper far beyond anything in the minds of the most pessimistic.

"The squeeze was predicted for November and December, but it began ahead of time in September, and is daily growing more serious. The paper companies are making contract deliveries to the best of their ability, but many of them are behind; and besides this, there is hardly a big newspaper in the country that is not using a great deal more newsprint than its contract calls for.

(Continued on page 28)

By Editor & Publisher Photographer.

S. S. CARVALHO

Digitized by Google

ADVERTISING AGENTS TO CONVENE IN BOSTON, OCTOBER 14-15

A. A. A. A. and A. N. P. A. Advertising Bureau Committee to Discuss Mutually Important Matters at Joint and Separate Sessions—Banquet by Boston Publishers.

MANY matters of great interest to advertising agents and to newspaper publishers are to be discussed at two joint meetings between representatives of the daily newspapers and the advertising agencies, to be held in connection with the annual convention of the American Association of Advertising Agencies in Boston on October 14 and 15. It is expected that 100 or more agencies will be represented.

The meeting of the executive board will be held at the Copley Plaza Hotel at 10 o'clock, Tuesday morning, and in the evening there will be a dinner, given by the Pilgrim Publicity Association, the local advertising club and the Lantern Club, composed of magazine representatives.

Johns Will Tell of Advertising Agencies Corporation

At this dinner, William H. Johns of the George Batten Company, president of the A. A. A., will speak on "The Advertising Agencies' Corporation," which is composed of the entire membership of the Association and organized for the especial purpose of handling Government Advertising.

Paul E. Faust of Mallory, Mitchell & Faust, vice president of the Association, will speak on "The Future Development of Advertising;" Stanley Resor, of the J. Walter Thompson Company, will discuss "Better Methods in Advertising;" O. H. Blaekman of the Blackman-Ross Company, will talk on "The Use of the Newspaper as a National Advertising Medium," and William H. Rankin will have as a subject, "Interesting Phases of the Advertising Agencies Corporation."

Joint Session with Ad Bureau

At noon on October 15, the committee in charge of the Bureau of Advertising, A. N. P. A., will meet in executive session with the executive committee of the A. A. A. A. At this meeting there will be a full and free discussion of the various relations between publishers and agencies, and it is expected that plans will be matured looking toward a greater development of newspaper advertising.

In the afternoon, there will be a meeting of the stockholders of the Advertising Agencies Corporation, which, as previously mentioned, comprises the entire membership of the Association.

On the evening of October 15, the agents will be the guests of the Boston Newspaper Publishers Association and the Bureau of Advertising at a dinner to be given in Young's Hotel, and to which have also been invited officials of the A. N. P. A. and the newspaper publishers of New England.

Concerns Future Relations

Louis M. Hammond, publisher of the Boston Transcript and president of the Boston Newspaper Publishers Association will preside, and William A. Thomson, director of the Bureau of Advertising, will act as toastmaster. William H. Johns, president of the A. A. of A. A. will speak in behalf of the agents, and Col. G. Edward Buxton, Jr., of the committee in charge of the Bureau of Advertising will speak for the publishers.

The dinner will bring the agents and publishers of New England together in an informal way and will undoubtedly be productive of future newspaper advertising activity from the great New England industrial centers.

On the morning of October 15, the committee in charge of the Bureau of Advertising will hold a meeting in the office of Chairman William F. Rogers, at which plans for the enlargement of the bureau and the opening of a Chicago office will be discussed.

The financial statement to be presented at this meeting indicates that the bureau is making wonderful progress and is well on its way toward the developments it has so long had in mind.

CHARLIE MILLER JOINS THE GEORGIAN

He Will Be Business Manager of Hearst's Atlanta Newspaper Under Buford Goodwin, Former Associate on Birmingham News

(By Telegraph.)

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 8.—Charlie Miller, at present advertising manager of the Birmingham (Ala.) News, will come here November 1 to assume the duties of business manager of the Georgian & American. Mr. Miller is the newly appointed president of the Newspaper Departmental of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

In his new position Mr. Miller will be associated with Buford Goodwin, who recently resigned as general manager of the Birmingham News, to become publisher of the Georgian & American, succeeding Walter G. Bryan, now publisher of the New York American.

CIRCULATIONS SHOW INCREASES

More Newspapers Sold Daily in Past Six Months Than in Same Wer Time Period of 1918—New York's Record

The often-heard prediction early this year that newspaper circulations would decrease with the end of the war is shown by the October 1 publisher's government statements to have been rudely shattered. From everywhere comes the same report—more newspapers have been sold every day during the past six months of this year (at higher prices in many cases) than in the same period of 1918, when reader interest was supposed to be at its zenith owing to war news.

For instance in the New York publishers' sworn statements, a total daily average increase of 198,989 copies is shown by the same 18 newspapers that were represented in the October, 1918, reports. Besides, there is to be added to this year's figures the circulation of the new Illustrated Daily News, which brings the total average newspaper sales for the six-month period for 19 publications to 221,140 copies per day more than a year ago.

The 1918-1919 Government report figures for the Greater New York dailies for the six months prior to October 1 follow:

EVENING PAPERS

	Oct. 1, 1918.	Oct. 1, 1919.
Journal	657,912	665,428
World	325,745	328,219
Globe	177,344	188,790
Mail	109,008	153,180
Sun	178,437	198,491
Post	11,224	13,076
Telegram	186,817	181,519
Brooklyn Eagle	86,068	91,458
Standard Union	50,942	55,360
Brooklyn Times	26,254	25,480
Brooklyn Citizen	24,864	29,586

MORNING PAPERS

American	384,424	383,366
World	340,312	370,289
Times	360,492	362,921
Tribune	89,428	117,053
Sun	117,872	131,941
Herald	108,952	109,267
Telegram	31,829	34,000
Illustrated News		22,151

SOUTH GIVES BRYAN WARM SEND-OFF

Atlanta Advertising Men and Publishers and S. N. P. A. Members Tender Wind-ups and Leaving for New York

(By Telegraph.)

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 7.—Walter G. Bryan, former publisher of the Atlanta Georgian, who leaves Wednesday for New York to become publisher of the New York American, was tendered a farewell luncheon today by the Atlanta Advertising Club. Three Southern publishers were present as guests of the club. These were Walter W. Johnson, of the Chattanooga News, W. A. Elliott, of the Jacksonville Times-Union, and Charles Allen, of the Montgomery Advertiser.

The Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association presented Mr. Bryan with a silver tea service, the presentation speech being made by Major John S. Cohen, publisher of the Atlanta Journal.

The Advertising Club presented Mr. Bryan with a watch fob and the staff of the Georgian presented him with a gold watch.

B. C. Broyles, of the Advertising Club, paid a tribute to the service rendered to advertising clubs and to the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association by Mr. Bryan.

New Ad Service Starts

A new advertising art service known as the Star Aderaft Service has just been produced by the King Features Syndicate, New York, as an advertising promotion aid. Harry S. Bressler, formerly editorial cartoonist on the New York American and later on the advertising staff of the New York Times, is the director.

Changes Edition Time

The New York Evening Sun on October 6 changed the publication time of its "Home Edition" to the middle of the afternoon, instead of issuing it in the morning, as in the past. The first edition of the Sun now is "The Bulletin Edition" and the second is "The Midday Edition."

BOOTH COMPANY ADDS SEVENTH DAILY

Purchase of Ann Arbor Times-News Negotiated—Plan of Co-operation with Michigan University to be Worked Out.

(By Telegraph)

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 7.— Ralph H. Booth, president of the Booth Publishing Company, announces the purchase of the Ann Arbor Times-News, including its handsome modern building. This makes the seventh daily newspaper owned and controlled by this company. Plans for co-operation with the Michigan University School of Journalism and editorial relationship between the faculty of the University and the Times-News are under consideration.

HENRY M. ALDEN DEAD

Editor of Harper's Had Aided Many Young Writers

Henry Mills Alden, editor of Harper's Magazine since 1869, died October 7 in New York, aged eighty-two. He was the eldest direct descendant of John and Priscilla Alden, of the Mayflower. Mr. Alden was active almost until the time of his death. His counsel and encouragement helped many young writers to success.

He was born at Mount Tabor, Vt., November 11, 1836, and as a boy worked long hours in a cotton mill. He entered Wesleyan College when he was sixteen, and supported himself by teaching and doing other jobs. Later he studied for three years at the Union Theological Seminary. He began his literary career at that time by publishing two stories in the Atlantic Monthly. He lectured at a young women's school, and supplemented his income by contributing to the New York Evening Post and the Times.

In 1862 Mr. Alden was made an assistant editor of Harper's Weekly, and seven years later beame editor of Harper's Magazine.

Printing Troubles in New York

Many New York commercial and job printing offices are still shut down beeause of working differences with their pressmen, necessitating delay in the issuance of a number of periodicals. The lockout of pressmen, effected October 1, is being further extended by the tendency of members of the Typographical Union No. 6 to go on "vacations," in spite of orders from their officers to remain at work.

Hartford Union Chartered.

(By Telegraph.)

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 8.—Officials of the Hartford Typographical Union announced to-day that the charter by which they are affiliated with the International Typographical Union has been received. The newspapers have recently made increases in wages and it is not expected that the union will make further demands at present.

E. F. Draper, Ad Man, Dead

Binghamton, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Ellis F. Draper, who has been connected with the Mylie B. Jones Advertising Agency, died here this morning.

R. V. Oulahan Marries

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8.—Richard V. Oulahan, Washington correspondent for the New York Times, and Miss Sue Courts were married here today.

Digitized by Google

NEWSPAPERS PROVIDE SOLUTION OF AN OLD PROBLEM

Advertising Agent for "Ostara" Scores Unequalled Success in Introducing Products, Nationally, Through Columns of Rotogravure Sections, in $60,000 Campaign.

By WILLIAM RICH CROSS of the Wales Advertising Company.

WHEN the C. S. Welch Company, manufacturer of "Bathasweet," decided to put out their new lines of "Ostara" toilet preparations—complexion powder, talcum and rouge—they faced the question of waiting until the goods had been quite generally stocked by dealers, before beginning their national advertising, or adopting some plan whereby the goods could be advertised sectionally as soon as they were placed on sale in each part of the country being covered by the sales force.

Their established product, "Bathasweet," having general distribution, had been regularly advertised in the magazines for several years, but magazines would not serve the purpose in the case of the "Ostara" line, because it did not have sufficient distribution for a general campaign.

Point Could Not Be Attained in Any Other Way

It was planned to offer dealers more than ordinary co-operation in selling the "Ostara" family, in order to induce them to stock it at once and push sales intensively right from the beginning. With this end in view, the sales representatives began visiting dealers in the principal cities over the country, soliciting orders and promising an immediate local and sectional advertising campaign to move the goods as soon as they were on display.

In addition it was agreed that the dealers' names should appear in the advertising in their locality and its vicinity and that the copy would run every week for a year.

As the "Ostara" preparations appeal to refined women of all ages, it was essential not only to select media of a general nature but also to display the announcements in an atmosphere of artistic surroundings that should distinguish these goods from their lesser competitors.

Careful Selection Needed

In order to permit the inclusion of the dealers' names locally, it was decided to use newspapers exclusively, for the time being, as this important point could not be attained in any other way. At first there seemed to be some disadvantages to this plan, as there are several newspapers in each of the larger cities and the best selection would be difficult to make in many cases. To use all would require a larger amount than the appropriation available.

It was finally decided to use the rotogravure sections of the Sunday papers so as to get the benefit of artistic and attractive reproduction of illustration and decoration, possible only in the rotogravure process. At the same time this plan automatically selected the best papers, since those with the graphic sections are pretty apt to be the leaders in their fields. Also, the Sunday editions with graphic (rotogravure) sections generally have larger circulations, covering wider territory at a lower basic advertising rate than their daily editions.

The experience of many "direct-return" advertisers having shown that rotogravure inquiries continue to come in for about seven weeks after publication of the advertising, it was assumed that the Graphics, with their usually fine illustrative possibilities, would give these "Ostara" announcements distinctive appearance and attention value similar to magazine inserts, and that their "life" or period of pulling returns would be greater than ordinary newspaper space.

At the same time the local dealers' names could be listed and the copy released in one locality or section at a time in exact co-operation with the progress of the sales force over the country and with a maximum of wasted advertising investment covering places where none of the goods were yet on sale.

The practical details include fifty-two insertions aggregating two and three-quarter million circulation, the combined rate being about $7.25 per line on a basis rate of a shade over a quarter of a cent per line per thousand circulation. It happens that the general average base rate of all the daily newspapers, for five thousand lines on contract, is about two-tenths of a mill less.

The general magazine basic rate is over half a cent per line per thousand circulation or about double the base rate of the "Ostara" campaign.

The selling effect on dealers, of this campaign has proven stronger than any previous experience of this advertiser. The promise of a local Rotogravure campaign clinched many an order for the field salesmen because dealers knew by experience that the advertising would move the goods and that's the thing in which we are all most interested.

Some After-Thoughts of New Orleans

A. L. Shuman, advertising manager of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, made a hit at New Orleans through his attitude toward the fight for the honor of entertaining next year's convention. He distributed a card on which was printed in big, black type, "Fort Worth, 1919. Too crowded now."

One of the distinctive souvenirs of the convention was a copy of "Monitenr de la Louisiane," the first newspaper printed in New Orleans, "revived by Katherine Krebs for the New Orleans Item." The fashion illustrations and notes of an older day presented a delightful contrast to the modern woman's page.

The Orange (Tex.) Ad Club distributed pictures of a large ship under construction at the Orange ship yards.

Mrs. R. C. Glover, president of the Dallas Woman's Advertising League, delegate-at-large, announced a campaign will be started to raise funds for building a girls' home at Dallas.

J. Howard Payne, president of the Dallas Advertising Club, went to New Orleans in advance of his club members. He travelled by airplane and enroute distributed advertising matter about the merits of his city.

The Fort Worth (Tex.) Advertising Club was recently presented with a steer by the stockyard company. It was auctioned off and brought $360, which was used in advertising Fort Worth at the New Orleans convention.

Miss Ethel D. Bryant, who was a delegate from Cleveland, is the vice-president of the Women's Advertising Club of Cleveland, the youngest in the association of clubs. She is the editor of a country newspaper, the Willoughby Republican, which is very successful, and is the only woman member of the Willoughby Chamber of Commerce.

Copies of La Nacion, of Buenos Aires, of July 28, were distributed at the convention and were examined with curious interest. It was a 20-page issue, carrying many illustrations of local news matter and a large volume of advertising, displayed well as classified. La Nacion is a newspaper of the metropolitan type and is one of the leaders of the South American press.

The Atlanta Georgian issued a special A. A. C. W. Extra for distribution at the convention in which the invitation of that city to the Associated Clubs to meet there in 1921 was supplemented by a mass of interesting data concerning the city. This effort of enterprise attracted wide attention and Walter G. Bryan, who conceived and executed it, was the recipient of many compliments.

New Canadian Paper

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 4—The Canadian Nation, edited by D. M. Leliourdais, has made its debut as a new publication here and will be issued semi-weekly. It is devoted to consideration of current events from a Liberal standpoint, and comprises 20 pages, 6 by 9 inches. The Nation originally had its inception in Calgary, last March, but the management found that city too far removed from the seat of politics for their purpose, and consequently moved to the capital.

In Honor of Miss Martin.

Advertising men and women have been invited to attend a testimonial dinner to be given to Miss Jane Martin by the members of the League of Advertising Women on Tuesday, October 21, at the Advertising Club in New York, in honor of her election to the executive committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. Reservations may be sent to Miss Edith V. Righter, 244 Madison Avenue, New York.

Petit Back in the Fold

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 7.—L. J. Petit, one of the best known of the old-time newspapermen in Texas, who for the last several months has been secretary of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce, is now connected with the Morning News as oil fields correspondent.

Adopts 8-Column Page

Portland, Ore., Oct. 3.—The Portland Oregonian on September 22 changed to an eight-column newspaper, retaining, as closely as possible, its old make-up.

"A National Service to cause of Journalism"

St. Louis Newspapermen Thank Editor & Publisher for Impartial Presentation of their Plan of Organization

ST. LOUIS ASSOCIATION OF JOURNALISTS

St. Louis, October 2, 1919.

TO EDITOR & PUBLISHER:

The Executive Committee of the St. Louis Association of Journalists, by formal resolution adopted to-day, has instructed me to extend to EDITOR & PUBLISHER the warmest thanks of the Association for its generous and invaluable service in giving complete publicity to "The St. Louis Plan."

The publication of the Rules and Regulations, virtually in full, together with your keen and faithful interpretation of our ideals in your editorial columns, constituted, as we believe, no less than a national service to the cause of journalism, and will go far toward realizing the aim of an American Journalists' Association, covering the entire country.

You may be interested to know that your editorial was republished in yesterday's St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Faithfully yours,

ARTHUR C. HOSKINS, Secretary.

Digitized by Google

A. N. A. NEWS AND VIEWS

A WEEKLY FEATURE COMPILED AND EDITED BY JOHN SULLIVAN

SECRETARY-TREASURER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF NATIONAL ADVERTISERS

HERE WE ARE AGAIN!

A. N. A. Has Been Sawing Wood and Then Some All Summer

HERE We Are Again!" was the regular greeting to his audience of a man more famous and acceptable than any mere business man ever can be; but it fits the present re-entry into the pages of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

The A. N. A. and its doings have been for some weeks out of that section of the public eye represented by the readers of Editor & Publisher, but I hope that, on that account, it has not been assumed that the work of the Association has been at a standstill.

On the contrary, it has been going at a greater rate than ever. The summer was the busiest we have had. Not much going in the way of news certainly, but we have been "sawing wood"—and then some. For instance, our General Data Department handled four times as many inquiries from the members during August as during the same month last year.

There were summers once when the A. N. A. office was closed for two weeks during which the office staff had their vacations—the summers of 1915 and 1916. And that vacation plan had great advantages—then; but today it would have the outstanding disadvantage that it would take us a month or two—or even three—to deal with arrears of work. Even as it is, we sigh with relief when everyone has had his or her vacation, for the A. N. A. office is a very busy place, and we can scarcely afford to have even one person absent at any time.

WHY SO BUSY?

IT used to be thought that the headquarters offices of all associations were invariably leisurely places wherein, even if they were not exactly like the land where the Lotus-Eaters lived and reclined "On the hills like gods together, careless of mankind," anything that could be done tomorrow need not be done today.

I am glad to know that the A. N. A. office did its full share in breaking the tradition.

As has been mentioned in these columns from time to time, the A. N. A. office is the clearing house of information in the field of business outside actual finance and production for nearly 300 manufacturers. Not only is there a vast volume of individual and almost infinitely-differentiated service given, but reports covering generally-required information are frequently issued; and the protective and standardizing work inevitable to an influential and authoritative body carried on.

There are conferences frequently with men representing bodies of selling interests, resulting in guarding the advertising manufacturer and helping equally the seller; and speeches to be made at conventions of sellers of advertising or groups of other business men—not platitudinous speeches, but speeches packed full of information. Somehow, strangely enough, people won't stand for platitudes and high-falutin' from anyone representing the A. N. A.

PRESIDENT M'DERMID AT THE REPRESENTATIVES CLUBS

FOR instance, a week or two ago, President McDermid spoke at the first-meeting-of-the-season of the Representatives Club of New York, held at the Hotel McAlpin.

Did he tell the representatives what fine fellows they were?

Or did he talk about the blessings to civilization of advertising and its being the sovereign remedy for all human ills?

Or assure the men that he hoped with them that the volume of advertising next year would be double that of this year, and indulge in mystic references to the "advertising cause,"—whatever that may be?

He certainly did not.

The President of the A. N. A. told the men of the Representatives Club real facts about the purposes and the work of the Association; how that work was actually helping them; how the headquarters office functioned and on what it functioned; what the representatives should do in view of the increasing competence of the buying advertising man, and what he should sell in addition to that bromidic package—the "circulation."

And the men listened—with both hemispheres of their heads and marvelled and said, in response to Mr. McDermid's invitation, that they would visit the A. N. A. office and see how it worked—and haven't been yet!

A. N. A. OFFICE A FACTORY

IT is a factory, not an association office—is tradition. We have our planning, preparing, production, inspection and delivery arrangements just like any factory.

We produce service; we sell service; we deliver service.

And if anyone thinks that service is not a substantial, tangible commodity, he ought to see how tired sometimes our factory people are—just as tired as those factory people who relieve themselves occasionally by striking.

Only our people don't strike, because they have a real incentive to work and an opportunity to realize themselves.

AND TRAVELING SALESMEN

YES, some of us travel among the members of the Association, selling or re-selling the service, seeking to understand members' business and requirements better, or gathering information on selling and advertising practices.

Two of us went on a trip through New England a few days ago, jumping from city to city, getting acquainted not only with membership affairs as mentioned, but also with newspaper conditions, outdoor advertising conditions, city and population matters, etc. And all that results in improved service. When you have visualized (visualized is the great word in advertising circles today), a man and his surroundings, you can write to him more confidently and serve his company better.

One of the two who went through New England got so enthusiastic over his experiences that he wants to be on the road all the time!

THE ANNUAL MEETING

THIS will be held at Lakewood, N. J., on December 3, 4 and 5. As a rule, our winter meetings are held in New York City, but the prior preference is for a small and secluded locality. There we are free from regular business distractions and free to devote ourselves to business study and consideration.

Meetings are more uniformly attended and discussions are of a more catholic character. We can, with more assurance of success in doing so, put out our sign to selling zealots —"This is Our Busy Day—Keep Out."

And the A. N. A. brand of good fellowship is more readily and naturally promoted.

The Program? Well, the Program Committee has been conferring—and confiding—for some weeks past, and it is not yet ready to tell. But the program as a whole, for after years of study we graduated in making programs at the Cleveland Meeting last May.

And then, you see, we fit in with a quiet place. All our work is done without ostentation or trumpeting. We are, on the whole, self-sufficient. We go into a city for a meeting and go out; and the inhabitants scarcely know we have been among them.

We attend strictly to business—our own business. Out in Dayton, Ohio, in May, 1916, the city representative came to the hotel to ask President Shuey what Dayton could do for us. "Nothing," said Mr. Shuey.

"What, nothing! responded the Dayton man, like the sailors in H. M. S. Pinafore; "What kind of a convention is this? Every convention we have ever had here wants Dayton to do something for it. What kind of people are you?"

Said President Shuey, "Just business men minding our own business and attending to it and not desirous of any favors or entertainment. All our sessions are purely business sessions."

A. N. A. CHAPTER MEETINGS

SOME of the A. N. A. Chapters suspended their meetings during the hot months and are now resuming.

Newark Chapter met last week and Chicago went off with a big gathering Tuesday, October 7.

The secretary expects to be in Chicago soon, taking in visits during his trip to many members in the Middle West.

PLAYING GAME LIKE NATIONAL ADVERTISER PLAYS IT

THERE is just a little tendency it shows itself now and then for sellers of space or material or service to charge "all the traffic will bear," and a little bit more; get the money while the going is good.

And this spirit has usually underlying it an idea that the medium represented is indispensable.

Now, no advertising medium is indispensable to the national advertiser. If the monetary demands of a medium encroach too far upon the margin of safety as between production and marketing costs and the price at which the goods must be sold, then another advertising medium must be found.

Wherever there is anything approaching marketing ability, it will be found to be, not stereotyped and timid, but elastic and courageous. And sellers will be well-advised not to be too chesty in these days of grade and space-demand. The advertising jag will not continue indefinitely.

Speaking at Atlantic City a short time ago to members of the Poster Advertising Association, an A. N. A. officer representative said:

"There is a definite relationship between the price of the goods—of nationally advertised goods—and what can be spared in marketing the goods. When a manufacturer goes into national advertising he accepts the condition of his prices being thereby established in return for securing stability of sales and quantity production.

"If you are going to co-operate with the national advertiser you have got to play the game the way he has to play it, and maintain a similar relativity between your costs and the price at which you sell your service. In stabilizing your costs you will stabilize your sales, and you will keep down your unit cost by securing quantity production—keeping all your boards filled all the time."

NEW MEMBERS

THE following firms have recently been elected to membership in the Association:

The Hoover Suction Sweeper Company, North Canton, Ohio, Martin L. Pierce, merchandising manager; Auto Strop Safety Razor Company, N. R. Maas, vice-president and advertising manager, New York; Indian Packing Company, Green Bay, Wis., and Chicago, Arthur Raff, advertising manager; Pyrene Manufacturing Company, G. E. Rogers, general sales manager, New York; George W. Blabon Company, Walter L. Weeden, Philadelphia.

MEMBERSHIP CHANGES

THE Fisk Rubber Company has appointed Miss M. G. Webber as advertising manager, succeeding George L. Sullivan. Miss Webber will act as the accredited representative in the A. N. A.

Digitized by Google

ENGLISH JOURNALISTS MAKE DEMAND FOR 100 PER CENT PAY INCREASE

Thirty-fourth Annual Convention of Writers' Scale Includes 46-Hour Week, Day and a Half Off and Three Weeks' Vacation with Pay

By HERBERT C. RIDOUT

BIRMINGHAM, Sept. 30, 1919.

ONE of the most successful conferences of the British Institute of journalists has just concluded here. There was an excellent attendance of members from all parts of the country to take part in this the thirty-fourth annual convention.

They were welcomed officially by the Lord Mayor of the city who remarked that in no single instance had he known any journalist break the confidence reposed in him, or seek to escape from an honorable obligation entered into. During the war the newspapers had fostered and encouraged the very best characteristics of the British people.

President Hinde Reviews Work in War

In the course of his address, the president, F. Hinde, of London, claimed that during the period of the war the profession as a whole did well, not merely in the matter of self-denying work at home, but, in the case of the younger members, in splendid work at the front. The position of journalists who remained at home was one of great difficulty and responsibility. From being the freest press in the world, newspapersdom in England became the most severely regulated.

The splendid way the newspaper press acquiesced in this state of affairs, he said, had been a matter of appreciation and thanks from the highest placed statesmen, but he very much questioned whether many people, including newspaper proprietors, had realized how much individual journalists suffered.

Wages Chief Subject

One of the chief subjects for the consideration of the conference related to remuneration, a question which had never loomed so large as during the last few years. In view of the falling value of the sovereign, and the fact that newspaper workers, other than journalists, had obtained increases in pay proportionately far beyond anything accorded to journalists, President Hinde said he anticipated that members would readily agree that the minimum should be revised.

He urged that the time had come when the Newspaper Society should be invited to co-operate with the Institute in the formation of a Joint (Whitley) Council for the journalistic side of the newspaper industry, leaving it for the other bodies to join when they desired to make application.

A discussion on the question of salaries and conditions of employment occupied the conference for the remainder of the session. In regard to the former subject the opinion was generally expressed that the minimum adopted by the institute eighteen months ago urgently called for revision.

All Writers to Benefit

At the next session on the motion of J. Horton, of Birmingham, seconded by Arthur Walter, of London, it was unanimously resolved:

"That, in view of the greatly increased cost of living, and the decreased purchasing power of money, this conference strongly represents to newspaper proprietors that the salaries of journalists should be raised 100 per cent on the pre-war rate paid to them or to men in the same position, and that lineage rates and pay for outside contributions and part-time service be raised in the same ratio."

The subject of working conditions, it was proposed by W. R. Fowkes, of Dewsbury, seconded by F. Johnson, of Ulster District, and unanimously resolved:

"That in view of the opinion of the Council of the Institute that there are great difficulties connected with the proposed Government inquiry into salaries, and working conditions, the further consideration of the matter to be deferred until the result of negotiations with the proprietors' organizations as to higher minimum wages is ascertained and that in the event of a satisfactory settlement not being secured, the Executive Committee be requested to give the earliest possible consideration to the taking of action, in accordance with the Minimum Wages Bill; also that each district be recommended to enter into local negotiations with newspaper proprietors with a view to giving effect to the principle of the Birmingham resolution and to the new scale of minimum salaries, as well as the recognition of a normal working week of forty-six hours with one and a half day off duty, and three weeks' holiday on full pay in each year."

The conference confirmed the election of George Caldwell, of London, as president for the coming year. In acknowledging his appointment he expressed the opinion that it ought to be possible for every man in the service of a newspaper to be also a shareholder.

L. G. Robbins Promoted

Cornell, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Lee G. Robbins, advertising and sales manager of the A. J. Deer Company, has been elected vice-president and a director of the company.

Outstanding Quality of American Newspaper Man in Europe Is Character, Says One of World's Greatest Benefactors.

By HERBERT HOOVER.

Written exclusively for Editor & Publisher.

THERE is one group of Americans "Near" the Peace Conference in Paris (as they say of Ambassadors "Near" the Court of St. James) of whose personalities very little is known at home. These are the newspaper correspondents.

HERBERT HOOVER

From the day the European newspaper world was thrown into a series of alarms through the reports that the entire ship load of newspaper men had landed in France, to the moment when this group of Americans had become the friends and confidants of foreign newspaper writers, with a hearty welcome in the various government officers in Paris, they have conducted themselves with a squareness and a dignity which has given the people among whom they worked a very much higher opinion of American journalism than they ever could have had without his personal contact.

My own department in Paris never had a press division, for the simple reason that we were able to tell the American correspondents everything we knew, to show them our documents, and to ask their advice and assistance, in the full knowledge that outside the three-mile limits, from New York we were all nonpartisan Americans together, all doing our best and all anxious to make a fine showing for our country.

Various members of the American Correspondents organization were experienced in European affairs, and in several cases had specialized to an extent that made them authorities on certain subjects. One would be sought in relation to Russian affairs, another German affairs, another in Roumanian or Hungarian questions and so on. If I were asked to specify the particular quality which gave these men their strength, I should use the one word "Character," with perhaps the addition "and personality."

PAPER PRICE ADVANCE IS CERTAIN

So Declares Canadian Security House —Dominion Exports Increase— Bothwell Writes Optimistically on Future Prospects

Montreal, Oct. 4.—A local security house which has specialized in pulp and paper securities for some years has the following to say in the September issue in regard to paper securities:

"That it should have followed immediately on the decision of the Paper Tribunal to reduce the controlled price of paper in Canada for the period of July to November, 1918, from $69 per ton to $60 per ton is interesting, as showing that investors in Canadian pulp and paper securities are too well informed to be disturbed by what might, with a less intelligent clientele, have been represented as a setback to the business. As a matter of fact the decision, by affording grounds for appeals against the unduly low prices both before and after the period dealt with, was in an important respect favorable to the paper companies.

"The present strength of the pulp and paper securities, however, is due to much more vital considerations than a few dollars per ton in the domestic market—considerations arising out of the tremendous growth in the world's demand for newsprint, the improvement of many sources of supply and the unrivalled capacity of the Canadian mills for cheap and satisfactory production.

"A sharp advance in the world's price for newsprint appears to be a certainty of the near future."

Rosy Outlook, Says Bothwell

"The Financial Post of Toronto and Montreal has just issued a special edition dealing with the Canadian pulp and paper industry. Valuable statistics have been compiled showing the expansion of the industry, while articles by such authorities as J. A. Bothwell, president of the Canada Pulp and Paper Association, are features of the number. Mr. Bothwell concludes his interesting article with the following observation:

"Given a reasonable free hand and the ordinary sympathetic treatment accorded all other Canadian manufacturing industries, and, divorced from the political influence to which it has in the past been subjected, there is no reason why it should not continue in the future, as it does just at present, to lead all other Canadian manufacturing industries in the volume and value of its export business."

Exports Run High

Canadian exports of paper continue to make new high records. Exports of paper and paper products of all kinds for July show an increase in value of $1,007,000, as compared with July of a year ago. On the other hand, the value of pulp and pulpwood show a decrease of slightly over $1,000,000.

The paper exports for July amounted to $4,639,000, while paper exports for the four months of the fiscal year ended July 31, amounted to $17,532,000. These figures compare with $14,400,000, over the same period in 1918 and $11,200,000 for the corresponding period in 1917.

The fact that paper exports show a decrease is regarded as a favorable omen, as it means that more raw material is being worked up into paper in Canada, and less of the raw material exported to foreign countries.

To Build in Brenham

Brenham, Tex., Oct. 8.—The Banner-Press plans to erect a two-story home

Google

MAYBORN APPOINTED BUSINESS MANAGER

Placed in Charge of Dallas Dispatch and Houston Press—Has Made a Fine Record in Scripps Organization

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 3.—Ward C. Mayborn has been appointed general business manager Dallas Dispatch and the Houston Press. In Dallas he succeeds Paul C. Edwards, who becomes editor-in-chief of the Dallas Dispatch and associated Scripps newspapers.

For a young man, Mr. Mayborn has a number of notable newspaper achievements to his credit. He was one of the founders of the Evansville (Ind.) Press. Mr. Mayborn also helped breathe the first breath of life into the Terre Haute Post, a sister paper to the Evansville Press.

He was general manager of the Memphis Press and started that young publishing property on the road to its present successful position. He then extended his operations westward and took over the business management of the Denver Express. This paper, with the other three mentioned above, formed a group of which he was general business manager.

Later Mr. Mayborn was entrusted with the entire responsibility of the Denver Express in the capacity of publisher.

TIPS FOR AD MANAGERS

WILLIAM H. RANKIN COMPANY, 104 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago. Advertising contract for the B. F. Goodrich Company, Akron, Ohio, has been renewed for seventh consecutive time.

BUCK & HAMMESFAHR, Astor Trust Bldg., New York. Have secured advertising account of the "Warner Lens" from the Warner-Patterson Company, Chicago.

COLLIN ARMSTRONG COMPANY, 1463 Broadway, New York. Has been appointed American advertising agent for Thomas J. Lipton, Inc., treas.

GUNDLACH COMPANY, People's Gas Building, Chicago. Has obtained account of the Babson Statistical Organization, Wellesley Hills, Mass.

THOMAS M. ROWERS COMPANY, 25 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago. Now handling account of the Vitanola Talking Machine Company and sending orders to newspapers for the Consolidated Utilities Corporation, Chicago.

HUMMERT-HATFIELD AGENCY, Railway Exchange Bank Bldg., St. Louis. Will place advertising of the Keyes Piston Ring Company, St. Louis, appropriation increased over last year.

ROGERS-BAKER COMPANY, Guardian Bldg., Cleveland, has secured the account of the Granger Vacuum Rubber Heel Company, Cleveland; big city newspapers will be used to advertise "Doe Boy" rubber heels.

CHAMBERS AGENCY, 612-618 Maison Blanche Building, New Orleans. Again sending out copy to magazines for De Lis Infant Wear; also to trade papers and magazines for Steer Warms; also for Evangeline Pepper Products, which account it has lately secured.

JOHN RING, JR., Advertising Company, St. Louis. Mercantile Trust Company, St. Louis. Placing full-page copy in dailies of Texas and Oklahoma—also some investment copy in magazines of national circulation.

SCOTT & SCOTT, Inc., 220 West 42d street, New York. Placing 10,000 line contracts for Blosser Company (cigarettes for catarrh), 82 North Pryor street, Atlanta, Ga., in leading newspapers of eleven Southern states (more to be added); also combination mail-order and store copy in weeklies and monthlies.

Patrick Goes to Fort Worth

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 7.—W. K. Patrick, for the past seven years cartoonist on the New Orleans Times-Picayune, has joined the Fort Worth Star-Telegram as current event cartoonist. Patrick enjoyed a wide following in New Orleans and throughout that portion of the South where the Times-Picayune has a large circulation, and incidentally his cartoons have been widely reproduced in national publications.

Laundries Will Advertise

Seattle, Oct. 4.—Stimson has already been subscribed for a national exclusive newspaper advertising campaign to explain a plan to do finished laundry work for an average family of five for an amount not exceeding $3 a week, according to President Otto Rice of Chicago, president of the Laundry Owners' Association of America, at a convention of Washington, Oregon, British Columbia and Idaho laundrymen.

Will Regulate Billboards

Boston, Mass., Oct. 4—The special commission appointed to investigate the regulation of billboards and other advertising devices on public ways, public places or private property within public view, which is made up of the Attorney General, the Chairman of the Highway Commission and the Chief of the State Police, will conduct hearings and report to the next Legislature, with drafts of bills to regulate billboard advertising

Salem Has $6-$6.50 Scale

Salem, Ore., Oct. 3.—Under a new scale Salem printers will receive $6 for day work and $6.50 for night work based on a shift of 7 hours and 35 minutes. Both the night and day scales include pressmen. The printers and pressmen asked for $1 an hour and the agreement was reached through a newly-organized district mediation board.

For 37

Consecutive Months:—

The St. Louis Star has published more Local Display Advertising week days than the Globe-Democrat, the Republic or the Times.

don't say Paper
Say "STAR"

THE ST. LOUIS STAR

Member Audit Bureau of Circulations

STAR BUILDING STAR SQUARE ST. LOUIS, MO.

Foreign Advertising Representatives:

STORY, BROOKS & FINLEY

CHICAGO
People's Gas Bldg.

PHILADELPHIA
Colonial Bldg.

NEW YORK
Fifth Ave. Bldg.

MORE THAN 38,000 IN USE

© TRADE LINOTYPE MARK ©

THE MACHINE THAT LASTS

Digitized by Google

C. P. A. HANDLING LOAN ADVERTISING

Committees Appointed to Cover All Departments of Publicity Under Direction of Messrs. Taylor, Scroggie and Imrie.

TORONTO, Sept. 29.—The organization of the publicity work in connection with the approaching Victory Loan campaign, which starts on October 27, has now been completed. It is similar in general plan with the organization that contributed as much to the success of the 1918 loan.

As before, the Canadian Press Association has assumed full responsibility for all newspaper advertising and press publicity and will administer the fund provided for the purpose of paying for these services A general executive committee consisting of W. J. Taylor, Woodstock Sentinel-Review; George E. Scroggie, Toronto Mail & Empire, and John M. Imrie, manager Canadian Press Association, controls the whole publicity organization.

There are two special committees, one for handling the paid advertising and the other for providing a news and feature service. The former, under the chairmanship of Mr. Scroggie, is composed of P. Geo. Pearce, Waterford (Ont.) Star; Eugene Tarte, La Presse, Montreal; John Weld, Farmers' Advocate, London; Henri Gagnon, Le Soleil, Quebec; W. B. Preston, Brantford Expositor; H. B. Muir, London Free Press; W. J. Taylor, Woodstock Sentinel-Review; and John M. Imrie, Toronto

Eleven Divisional Committees

The Dominion Press News and Feature Committee has as its chairman, W. J. Taylor, and is made up of the chairmen of eleven divisional committees, which are entrusted with the task of handling the publicity work in various sections of the country. Its headquarters are in Toronto and Nelson Wilkinson, a well-known Canadian newspaperman, is acting as editor.

The chairmen of the various divisions are as follows: John Nelson, Vancouver World, for British Columbia; M. R. Jennings, Edmonton Journal for Northern Alberta; J. H. Woods, Calgary Herald, for Southern Alberta; W. F. Kerr, Regina Leader, for Saskatchewan; Robert Lipsett, Winnipeg Telegram, for Manitoba; F. D. L. Smith, late editor Toronto Times, for Ontario; E. F. Slack, Montreal Gazette, and Fernand Rinfret, Le Canada, Montreal, joint chairmen for Quebec; F. B. Ellis, St. John Globe, for New Brunswiek; A. F. Macdonald, Halifax Chronicle, for Nova Scotia, and J. R. Bennett, Charlottetown Guardian, for Prince Edward Island.

OLIVER COX OPENS AGENCY

Well-Known Advertising Man of Birmingham Enters Business

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Oct. 14.—Oliver Cox, who has been secretary for the Sparrow Advertising Agency for the past two years, has resigned to establish the Cox Advertising Agency with headquarters in the American Trust Building.

Mr. Cox is one of the best known advertising men in Birmingham and has a large following.

STRIKE CALLED OFF IN OKLAHOMA

Typographical Union, Ordered Back by International, They Accept $37-$40 Scale—Newspapers Resume Publishing.

(By Telegraph.)

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., Oct. 5—After being on strike since Monday night, the printers of the several newspaper offices returned to work late yesterday. By taking this action the local saved its International charter and also received a slight increase. The new scale is $40 for night work; $37 for day.

The News issued a small paper today and the Oklahoman appeared today as usual.

Intercity Golf on October 14

The New York Advertising Club's next match with the Poor Richard Club of Philadelphia will be held at Merian, Philadelphia, on October 14.

ST. LOUIS TIMES RENOVATING

New Editorial Management Also Makes Some Staff Additions

St. Louis, Oct. 5.—The Times editorial rooms have been enlarged, partitions removed and a general renovation has taken place throughout the various departments.

Norman Williams, formerly with the Post-Dispatch and Globe-Democrat, and the Kansas City Star in Kansas City, has become political editor. Miss Caralee Strock, until recently on rewrite for the Star, has joined the Times editorial staff in a similar capacity, also doing a bit of dramatic criticism now and then.

Presbyterians Favor Advertising

Atlantic City, Oct. 5.—The executive committee of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, in session here, strongly recommended that the 300-odd Presbyteries in the country make special financial appropriations for systematic advertising in the newspapers, it having been found that such methods largely increase the church attendance. The commission is also considering plans for the establishment of a publicity bureau for the church as a whole.

663

The New York Times Sunday, October 5, printed 663 columns of advertisements, the greatest volume ever published in a single issue of a New York newspaper.

218

Tuesday, October 7, The Times published 218 columns of advertisements, the greatest volume ever printed in a week day issue of a New York morning newspaper.

The Star League of Indiana

The largest combination of quality circulation in Indiana reaching able-to-buy readers in each and every one of Indiana's ninety-two counties

Eastern Representative: Kelly-Smith Co., Marbridge Building, New York
Western Representative: John Glass, Peoples Gas Building, Chicago

THE SHAFFER GROUP OF NEWSPAPERS

Indianapolis Star—Terre Haute Star—Muncie Star—Louisville Herald
Rocky Mountain News—Denver Times—Chicago Evening Post

—domination and elasticity

If you want a medium which dominates from the standpoint of influence, of world-wide force, the newspaper is that medium.

If you want a medium that domintes from the standpoint of circulation—both concentrated and national—the newspaper is that medium.

If you want a medium that is elastic, flexible, one that you may confine to your channels of distribution, one that may be applied with equal force simultaneously or at intervals, over much or little territory, adjacent or distant, that medium is the daily newspaper.

If you want the only advertising medium which is an absolute necessity to modern civilization, the newspaper is that medium.

Newspapers are a great institution, a formidable unit, so elastic as to be at once world-wide or sectional.

What a privilege that a medium of such incomparable qualities is available to increase your sales!

Invest in Newspaper Advertising

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

Established 1888

Publishers' Representatives

New York
Chicago
Kansas City
San Francisco

Digitized by Google

REPORTERS MARVELED AT PRES. WILSON

Newspaper Men on His Tour Wondered How He Could Stand Strain. He Won Admiration of All Regardless of Policies

"President Wilson is so darned human. I think that's the principal reason why he's a newspaper man's man," said an American correspondent at the Peace conference, recently. There's a sidelight on that observation in a dispatch by Charles H. Grasty, treasurer of the New York Times and its representative on the President's train, telling of the illness which has sent him back to Washington.

In this dispatch, one visualizes a man who is and has been for long under the greatest physical and mental strain, who is on the verge of collapse and knows it, in real distress at the moment, yet determined to go through with a set program, rising to make a speech at Pueblo, but remarking beforehand in a conversational way to the boys in the press seats:

Thinking of "Other Fellows"

"You fellows must be sick and tired of this."

The President was sick and tired himself but he was thinking of the other fellows.

"All the correspondents on his train," writes Mr. Grasty, "have realized by what a narrow margin, if at all, the full speaking tour would be accomplished. No matter what their personal views on the treaty, or the policies of their papers, they have had a sense of comradeship, and have all entered into the sporting question of whether a man of nearly 63 years, slender of frame, and living more on his nerves than on his physique, could go the distance that he had set for himself.

"He himself would discuss the question with them very frankly and always smilingly refuse to pull a long face over his difficulties. The physical man began to rebel at overwork ten days ago, when a headache set in, that has since defied all Dr. Grayson's cunning.

"The President made jokes, saying that his constitution might be exhausted, but he still had his by-laws left, and he could live on them for a while.

Almost Collapsed in Denver

"At Denver, where he made such a fine speech, to a splendid audience, he was very doubtful when he rose whether he could go on.

"Later, at Pueblo, many of the correspondents watched him closely. They could see from Mrs. Wilson's expression that she was most anxious. There was a long wait before former Governor Adams rose to pay his noble tribute. The President sat apart in the middle of the platform, only a few feet above the newspaper men. They noticed that his expression was somehow different. He did not look about the audience and smile in the usual way. Just before the speaking began he remarked in a conversational voice to some of those in the press seats:

"You fellows must be sick and tired of this."

When he began his address those near him could notice slight signs of distress, but he finished strong. In none of the big meetings did he make a better impression than at Pueblo.

CLEVELAND "P.-D." CHANGES

Kirkpatrick, Marsh, Roberts and Mrs. Thompson Affected

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 30.—In addition to shifting Walter S. Buel, Columbus correspondent of the Plain Dealer, to the head of the Washington bureau and promoting W. C. Howells, local political writer to the Columbus bureau, Managing Editor E. C. Hopwood has transferred C. L. Kirkpatrick, chief "make-up" editor in the composing room, to the Sunday department, where he succeeds Ward Marsh.

Mr. Marsh has been given the photo play department and will co-operate with Harlow H. Hoyt, the dramatic editor. Mr. Kirkpatrick is succeeded by James F. Kirby of the local staff.

"Duke" (E. Arthur) Roberts, one of the local staff stars, is covering local politics temporarily.

Mrs. Emma Thompson, who was "doing the movies," has resigned and joined the staff of the Detroit Journal. She writes under the name of "Marjery Daw."

Circulations Haven't Fallen Off

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—The new semi-annual government circulation reports of the Post-Dispatch, Globe-Democrat, Republic and Star show that there are more readers of those newspapers now than there were during the war, although the prices were raised from one to two cents and the price of Sunday editions raised from 5 to 7 cents outside of St. Louis. The Times going through a process of readjustment, under which the German language paper, the Westliche Post (formerly owned by the same company) was sold, has also more than held its own and is now increasing.

Librarians Value Ads Highly

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 6.—Dr. Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian of the St. Louis Public Library, told the members of the Junior Advertising Club of St. Louis that advertisements in newspapers are considered by reference librarians to be the most reliable and up-to-date information for files

MORE HONORS FOR ADLER

Times Man Made Chevalier of French Legion of Honor

Major Julius Ochs Adler of the New York Times received through the War Department Monday his appointment at the behest of the President of the Legion of Honor. At the same time he received a citation from Marshal Petain, a translation of which follows:

Army Citation. April 19, 1818.

Major J. O. Adler, 306th American Infantry Regiment.

Reconnoitering with another officer, and finding himself face to face with a group of 150 enemy soldiers, he gave proof of the greatest presence of mind in shooting down the foremost enemy soldiers, thus making possible the capture of fifteen prisoners.

General Headquarters, Marshal, Commander in Chief. (Signed) PETAIN.

Major Adler already has received the American Distinguished Service Cross, the French Croix de Guerre, and the Italian War Cross for Merit.

"Newspaper Night" in Des Moines

DES MOINES, Sept. 26.—The Iowa Press and Authors' Club entertained Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Parker Butler of Flushing, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. John Kenrick Bangs of New York on "Newspaper Night" September 22. After dinner Mr. Butler kept the crowd in an uproar with "Laughs is Laughs," and Mr. Bangs followed him with a fifteen-minute address given in his inimitable manner. W. C. Jarnagin, managing editor of the Capital and chairman of "Newspaper Night," was toastmaster.

Globe-Democrat Disclaims Circular

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—The Globe-Democrat disclaims any knowledge of circulars being sent broadcast over the city and state, entitled "A Petition for the Impeachment of Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States," many of which have been mailed in Globe-Democrat envelopes.

Waters Goes to Washington

HOUSTON, Oct. 8.—George B. Waters, with the Press for the past six years, has gone to Washington, D. C., where he will be correspondent for the Press, Dallas Dispatch and Memphis Press, taking the place of Harper Leech.

Winnipeg Soldiers Return

WINNIPEG, Oct. 6.—George Stephen and Maj. J. W. Siston have rejoined the sports staff of the Winnipeg Free Press after service overseas. Sergt. J. G. Stevenson, formerly of the Press and the Edmonton Bulletin, has the C. E. F. Sergt. Stevenson won the Military Medal for gallantry in action.

ADVERTISING SECURED

Advertising for Special Issues of Daily Papers and Magazines. Souvenir Programs of big events, Publicity campaigns conducted. If you have a legitimate reason for producing something special I have the men and means to do it.

J. L. Le BERTHON
2 RECTOR STREET NEW YORK CITY

$300,000 in Daily Newspapers To Sell Our First 1,000 Trucks

We are definitely committed to a campaign, thru the Shuman Advertising Company, of Chicago, which will give daily newspapers $300 per truck sold to local dealers. This means $300,000 for our first 1,000 trucks.

Help Us Get a Local Dealer and Help Yourself to a Fine Advertising Contract

Our contract with dealers provides for the joint expenditure of $300 per truck in local newspapers. As we will not look with favor upon a dealer who is not strong enough to contract for at least TEN trucks, $3,000.00 can be taken as the minimum local newspaper appropriation for a Mutual Agency.

MUTUAL TRUCK
America's Greatest

is built in 2-ton, 3½-ton and 5-ton capacities—all good for a 50% overload; as the whole machine is over-sized and over-powered, in order to meet the most extreme haulage conditions.

So absolutely true is it that this IS America's Greatest Truck, that the local truck dealer, backed by this whirlwind newspaper campaign, will soon find himself in command of the heavy-haulage truck business of his community.

Send for literature to show to the strongest and livest dealers in your Community.

MUTUAL TRUCK COMPANY
SULLIVAN—INDIANA, U. S. A.

Star-Telegram Supremacy in West Texas

(Including all the New OIL FIELDS)

ABSOLUTELY and CONCLUSIVELY PROVEN by RECENT AUDITS

LOOK AT THE SQUARE ON THE MAP

In that section of West and Northwest Texas and Southwest Oklahoma shown in the square, THE NET PAID CIRCULATION OF THE FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM IS GREATER BY FAR THAN THE COMBINED CIRCULATION OF THE NEXT TWO LARGEST DAILY NEWSPAPERS CIRCULATING IN THAT TERRITORY.

This statement can be verified by a check of recent audits of papers circulating in the territory referred to.

FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM CIRCULATION TERRITORY

100%
ON THE SQUARE

The square shown in the map represents Fort Worth's trading territory and embraces some of the best developed sections of Texas and Oklahoma, besides including all the new Texas oil Fields.

95%
IN THE SQUARE

The territory included in the square is more accessible to Fort Worth than to any other city. Practically all the railroads in that territory enter Fort Worth and many of them have their terminus in that city.

FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM

MEMBER A. B. C.

OVER 65,000 DAILY — OVER 70,000 SUNDAY

AMON G. CARTER, V. P. & Gen. Mgr. — A. L. SCHUMAN, Adv. Mgr.

Digitized by Google

NEWSPAPERS SHOULD GIVE BIGGEST ADVERTISERS BEST RATES

Differentials for Concerns Advertising Over the Names of Local Dealers and Those Making Direct Sales Advocated.

By JASON ROGERS

ENTIRELY aside from the basic necessity for fixing advertising rates at a point where the average net will produce cost plus a reasonable profit, by the formula previously described or other method for producing such result, there are other factors which it may be well to consider.

My investigations of many rate cards and many situations in real life among the newspapers, show we are too soft hearted in spots and permit transient and seasonal advertisers to exploit us.

Figure on Cost Plus Ten Per Cent.

It is well to establish a flat rate for general advertising for purposes of simplicity, but I incline to the belief that any flat rate should be fixed at a point higher than that charged advertisers using heavy volume of space regularly throughout the year or even small space regularly.

For purposes of sound business I would suggest the fixing of the basic rate with the largest advertisers at cost plus 10 per cent. If, for instance, I had a concern able to use 100,000 lines a year I would make the rate cost plus 10 per cent to, say, 28 cents per inch net.

Then to the next group of perhaps 12 concerns using, say, 50,000 lines in the year or 500 lines every week in the year, I would make my rate cost plus 12½ per cent.

Probably next after these I would perhaps make a net rate of cost plus 15 per cent for concerns able to use 20,000 lines in a year or 250 lines every week in the year.

At this point I would establish a flat net rate for all advertising aside from special classifications at cost plus 20 per cent, which is about as narrow a margin as it is safe to operate on without suddenly finding yourself in red ink after some period of recession.

The advantage of this process of establishing rates is obvious. In most cases it will be found to produce an average profit of from 14 to 16 per cent on all business, and yet it can be defended as logical and fair to all.

I likewise believe that newspapers generally make a mistake in selling space to people or industries which demand extra service such as theatres, automobiles, moving pictures, politicians, etc., etc., at ordinary commercial rates regardless of the volume they use.

In New York City, for example, we charge the theatres 60 cents a line flat, regardless of how much they use, as compared with a commercial rate of 50 cents a line which might earn a discount on volume of, say, 25 per cent, making 37½ cents to a retail shop using the same volume space.

Likewise we make the politicians who only use our space transiently for a few weeks in the year, and even then in a season when we are running to standing room only, pay us 60 cents a line flat.

If our newspapers would but do the same to those engaged in promoting professional sports, such as baseball, boxing matches, horse racing, billiards and such, instead of permitting themselves to be worked by press agents who jolly our sporting editors, we would all be better off.

It is all well enough for our friends in the theatrical and sporting business to say that there is circulation for our newspapers in playing them up, but such stuff would not be taken at the box office or gate by them in place of real money.

According to my theory and judgment any enterprise conducted for ordinary commercial profit should be compelled to pay a certain percentage for the advertising which makes it a success. Five per cent of gross receipts for advertising should be compulsory.

Newspaper space is a commodity requiring continuous publication 312 or 365 days in a year. The one time or transient advertiser who gets us when he wants us should pay a much higher rate than concerns using our space continuously.

The continuous advertiser, of course, secures most profitable results, through the cumulative value established in creating good will and institutional recognition. We should do all in our power to create as many such concerns in our territory as we can.

A very well-known and successful newspaper publisher, now dead, had a theory that ordinary foreign mail order advertising was a menace to the business of his town. He told me that he believed that a concern seeking to reach into a town for direct trade that did not come through local dealers should be compelled to pay double rate.

Innocently and far in the dark regarding the broader evidence of his conclusion this great newspaper man was sounding a truth which is just commencing to be generally recognized. Foreign advertising not linked up to the names of local dealers is wasteful advertising. Localized national advertising, by which is known advertising linked up to local dealers, is just arriving and is generally conceded as the most effective sort of advertising.

Foreign advertising which creates traffic in our local stores is good for the industrial progress of our city or our town, while advertising that seeks trade by suggestions to "write for catalogue" or "remit to" is merely a device to take money and trade from our midst like the roving circus does.

Our newspapers constitute the only effective medium for "localized national advertising," which is an impossibility for the magazines or general mediums, because they cannot print the names of all dealers.

All of this is far removed from the matter of the fixing of advertising rates, but I would not be surprised to see our newspapers establish differentials in rates for concerns advertising over the names of local dealers and those seeking to get trade away from them.

Such a process would act as correction force to make general advertising more effective.

Under the rate card is constructed in some such plan as I have indicated there is apt to develop a point at which a general advertiser can make money by doing his advertising through local dealers at low local rates and deprive the advertising agent of the compensation he is entitled to for working on the account, preparing the copy and such.

In the case of the New York Globe we allow agents a commission on any and all business, reckoned above the net rate. We do not quote or give any advertiser a net quotation until he be comes a wholesale buyer and is able to use 30,000 or more lines in a year.

It does not matter to us whether one of our large customers deals on the services of an advertising agent or not. The net rate is the same to the agent as to the customer, who must add his commission or service charge. As a matter of fact one or two of our large local stores have taken an agency service and it has never led to confusion.

We feel that agency service is desirable to all except concerns doing enough business to warrant creation of a well organized advertising department. Even when they grow to that stage we prefer the agency refusing our rates until the customer can use over 30,000 lines.

All advertising goes on our books at the net figure. We never count commission as an expense, for the advertiser pays both our net rate and the agent's commission. The two items together make the gross rate which he must pay if the agent exacts his full commission. If he does not, it is item less.

We make no effort to keep track of what commissions to agents amount to. It only loads your revenue side with a fictitious item to enter advertising at the gross figure, and likewise bolsters up your expenses to charge commissions on the other side.

New York Tribune

led all New York morning newspapers in net paid circulation gain for the year ending September 30, 1919:

TRIBUNE	gained	27,575
TIMES	lost	5,521
SUN	gained	14,144
WORLD	gained	23,977
AMERICAN	lost	1,048
HERALD	gained	295

(FIGURES BASED ON PUBLISHERS' SWORN STATEMENTS)

New York Tribune's net paid circulation as shown in its last three reports to the United States Government:

Average, Six Months Ending

September 30th, 1919,	117,053
March 31st, 1919,	108,011
September 30th, 1918,	89,478

H. B. Law Resumes Business

Chicago, Oct. 8.—After two years in the army air service H. B. Law has resumed his advertising service business in this city.

"Features that sell newspapers"

Ever see a dog laugh?

"Dickey's Dogs" do, and with them laugh thousands of newspaper readers from New York to Idaho, from Massachusetts to Oklahoma.

They appear seven days a week in a humorous strip, now featured in twenty representative American newspapers. London has just made a bid for them.

Robert L. Dickey, their creator, made a name for himself, doing dog pictures for Life. Now he is devoting his entire time to his new strip. You will always find a chuckle in it, and now and then a touch of pathos. It appeals to men, women and children alike.

If your territory is open we should like to quote you terms.

The Metropolitan Newspaper Service

432 FOURTH AVENUE, N.Y.

THE BIRMINGHAM NEWS "will go the limit" in Endorsing the Monotype for the Ad Room

READ what Mr. T. B. Goodwin (General Manager) writes about the Monotype Equipment in the "News" composing room

The Birmingham News

THE SOUTH'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

August 9, 1919.

Lanston Monotype Machine Co.
Philadelphia, Pa.

Gentlemen:

The Birmingham News inaugurated the Non-Distribution System with two type, lead and rule casters on September 1st, 1917.

The best evidence of how successfully the system and the machines have worked out under the most exacting service conditions is the fact that, in March of this year, The News installed the third type, lead and rule caster to take care of its greatly increased business.

We have found the Monotype a great labor and money saver in our ad room and make-up department and we feel that we can go the limit in recommending similar installation to any other daily newspaper in proportion to its needs.

This method of handling these departments of newspaper work is the last word in efficiency and economy.

Very truly yours,

THE BIRMINGHAM NEWS.

(Signed) T B Goodwin

TBG/EF General Manager.

LANSTON MONOTYPE MACHINE COMPANY

NEW YORK: World Building PHILADELPHIA CHICAGO: Plymouth Building
BOSTON: Wentworth Building TORONTO: Lumsden Building
MONOTYPE COMPANY OF CALIFORNIA: SAN FRANCISCO

251

This advertisement is composed in Monotype No. 8b, 861, 164 and 72L Series and Monotype Rule

PUBLISHERS RETRACT

Morris Libel Suit Against Denver Post Is Settled

DENVER, COLO., Oct. 4.—The $375,000 libel suit brought in the District Court by Ernest Morris against the Denver Post has been dismissed upon stipulation between the attorneys for both sides, the consideration being a full and complete retraction of its charges by the Post and payment by the publishers of $10,000 to local charities.

The Post published its retraction conspicuously in its issue of September 21, stating that the attacks upon Mr. Morris, in which he was accused of unpatriotism, were written by the owners while they were laboring under "great indignation and excitement."

Wyoming Derrick Wont Appear

CHEYENNE, WYO., Oct. 8.—The Wyoming Derrick, of which Jack A. Bristol is editor, has forfeited its articles of incorporation because the paper never was issued. Plans were completed to issue a weekly in Cheyenne devoted to oil news west of the Mississippi river, giving special attention to Wyoming, Kansas and Texas. The high price of print paper, says Bristol, crippled the publication and finally finished it before it was born.

Ad Agencies Use Dailies

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Local advertising agencies were heavy users of newspaper advertising space during the past week. Among the noteworthy advertisers were the Rankin Company, Buck & Hammesfahr, Erwin & Wasey and Lord & Thomas, the last named using full pages. Perley, Bertsch & Cooper and the Charles Daniel Frey Company, both special illustrators for advertisers, also have been doing consistent advertising.

Buffalo Rotogravure Changes

BUFFALO, Oct. 8.—The Commercial, which for the past eight months has issued a Thursday rotogravure supplement, announced the section will be discontinued, "due to circumstances over which it has no control." The Sunday Express, whose Sunday halftone supplement for more than a quarter of a century has been considered one of the best in the country, has substituted a rotogravure section for this old feature.

Argument Breaks Up Ball Game

HARTFORD, CONN., Oct. 2.—The baseball game between the Times and the Courant broke up in a row last Sunday over a misunderstanding about the score. In the seventh inning Umpire De Ridder of the Globe called the score 6 to 5 in favor of the Times, but Scorekeeper Green of the Courant said it was 6 to 6. The argument waxed so vehement that the game was called.

Hankins Agency Organized

TOLEDO, OHIO, Oct. 8.—The W. B. Hankins Company has been incorporated to conduct an advertising and merchandising business in this city, with offices at 120 Erie street, by S. G. Vrooman, W. B. Hankins and O. M. Fehn, who are president-treasurer, vice-president and secretary, respectively. Mr. Hankins was for a number of years promotion manager for the Miller Agency and has been identified with advertising and sales promotion work in the Toledo territory. At one time also he was with the O. J. Mulford Agency, Detroit.

Col. Moore Here on a Visit

After war service covering five years of active duty, Lieut.-Col. Harold A. Moore, a well-known British advertising man, has come to the United States to study American post-war conditions. He plans to spend about six weeks on a tour of the principal business centers of this country and Canada. Col. Moore is British director of Collin Armstrong, Inc., New York, and a member of the agency firm of Smith, Denne & Moore of Toronto, Montreal and London.

Wood Honored

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Junius B. Wood war correspondent of the Daily News, was honored at a banquet at the Elks Club. Among the speakers was Chas. H. Dennis, managing editor of the Daily News.

ESTABLISHED 1868

J.W. BARBER ADVERTISING AGENCY

SUCCESSOR TO BOODY AGENCY

Little Building, Boston, Mass.

Sept. 26, 1919

Mr. William F. Rogers,
Boston Transcript,
Boston, Mass.

My dear Rogers;

Taking up my Transcript as usual last Saturday evening, (Sept. 20) in which as near as I could estimate there were 240 columns of advertising: I was reminded of a remark that I made at the Executive Board meeting of our American Association of Advertising Agencies. The discussion turning upon circulations and advertising rates, I said:

"Gentlemen, the Boston Transcript enjoys the unique distinction of having the highest rate for advertising per thousand circulation of any metropolitan Daily in America, furthermore, it gets by and makes good."

You are certainly to be congratulated on the success that the Transcript has, maintaining as you do, a well printed, fearlessly edited and clean journal, both in reading and advertising columns.

Very truly yours,

J. W. BARBER ADV. AGENCY

JWB/T

The Transcript greatly appreciates this letter from the Dean of American Advertising Agents

OHIO FIRST

If you were to buy space in this list of Ohio daily newspapers as newspaper space, pure and simple you would make a pretty good buy.

But you buy more than that. You buy Ohio as a market—a dandy market. You buy dealer influence and co-operation. You buy home circulation. You buy local influence. You buy the good will and help of these newspaper men. You buy space along side of the dealers who are to sell your goods.

You buy concentrated circulation.

These daily newspapers work with you to get your goods over in Ohio—and you need them for that purpose.

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Akron Beacon-Journal (E)	31,110	.06	.06
*Akron Times (E)	20,454	.03	.03
Bellaire Daily Leader (E)	3,446	.02	.0125
*Cambridge Daily Jeffersonian (E)	8,117	.0179	.0179
Chillicothe News-Advertiser (E)	3,055	.00714	.00857
Cincinnati Enquirer, 5c. (M&S)	62,911	.12	.12
Cleveland Plain Dealer (M)	168,440	.24	.24
Cleveland Plain Dealer (S)	208,024	.27	.27
Columbus Dispatch (E)	75,402	.135	.105
Columbus Dispatch (S)	71,117	.135	.105
Columbus (O.) State Journal (M)	53,155	.10	.09
Columbus (O.) State Journal (S)	27,147	.10	.09
*Dayton News (E)	37,340	.065	.065
*Dayton News (S)	29,533	.045	.045
East Liverpool Tribune (M)	6,138	.015	.015
Lima Daily News (E&S)	12,549	.0286	.0214
Lima Republican Gazette (M&S)	10,008	.02	.02
Middletown Journal (E)	4,174	.0115	.0115
Newark American-Tribune (E)	6,217	.0179	.0179
New Philadelphia Daily Times (E)	4,413	.0129	.0129
Piqua Daily Call (E)	4,019	.0114	.0114
*Springfield News (E)	14,331	.03	.03
*Springfield News (S)	10,777	.03	.03
Toledo Blade (E)	82,973	.17	.15
Warren Daily Chronicle (E)	5,200	.02	.02
Youngstown Telegram (E)	21,601	.05	.05
Youngstown Vindicator (E)	24,558	.05	.05
Youngstown Vindicator (S)	22,222	.05	.05
Zanesville Signal (E)	10,704	.025	.025

Government Statements, April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. Report, April 1st, 1919.

Digitized by Google

Pulitzer School Has Record Enrollment for 1920

Director-Emeritus Williams Makes Opening Address—Of 117 Students, 40 Are Women

At the formal opening of the Columbia University School of Journalism last week, Dr. Talcott Williams, director emeritus, addressed the students on the subject, "The League of Natinns and the Journalist."

Dr. Williams has been at Washington during the past seven weeks representing the League to Enforce Peace in its campaigu for the League and told the students of the part which the newspapers of the country are playing in moulding public opinion in favor of the League covenant

Dr. Williams faced the largest group of students ever enrolled in the School of Journalism. The total number of students is 117, of whom forty are women. The increase in the number of women students is particularly noticeable because during the seven years of the school's existence only thirty-two women have been graduated.

The professional work of the school is now given in two years, the preliminary courses formerly given in the school being now under the complete jurisdiction of Columbia College.

Charles P. Cooper, formerly night city editor of the New York Times, has been added to the faculty this year, taking the position formerly held by the late Franklin Matthews. The other members of the faculty are: John W. Cunliffe, professor of English and acting director of the school; Roscoe C. E. Brown, Albert W. Atwood, of the staff of the Saturday Evening Post; Robert E. MacAlarney, formerly city editor of the New York Tribune, and Edwin E. Slosson, literary editor of the Independent.

Walter B. Pitkin, who has been a member of the faculty since the school started, is absent on leave during the first semester.

Following the opening address, an informal reception was held at which the students met Dr. Williams and members of the faculty. Many former students, now empoyed on New York City newspapers, attended.

LADD MANAGING EDITOR

New City, Sports and Telegraph Editor Also in St. Joseph Gazette

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 5.—Walter Ladd has become managing editor of the Gazette, succeeding Fred Barkhurst, who will do syndicate work in New York. Herbert McDougall, former political writer, is now publicity commissioner for the Pershing Highway.

Robert Deming Lewis is the new sports editor, succeeding Ross Wheaton, who takes another editorial job on the same paper. Lewis has been with the Gazette and News-Press for several years. I. K. Fagan is now city editor and Luther Bowman is telegraph editor.

Spanish River Re-elects Mead

Toronto, Oct. 4. — At the annual meeting of the Spanish River Pulp & Paper Mills, T. H. Watson of Toronto was elected a director, and Col. Thomas Gibson, former secretary, was made a vice-president; Joseph G. Gibson, acting secretary, was permanently appointed. George H. Mead of Dayton, Ohio, was re-appointed president, and P. B. Wilson of Sault Ste. Marie, vice-president. The directors are developing a plan which they expect to submit to the shareholders in the near future, by which the matter of back dividends will be taken care of.

Ad Man Works Up New System

Philadelphia, Oct. 5.—C. M. Strieby, advertising manager of the Fulton Motnr Truck Company, has organized for that company a sales promotion department which will take care of a system of sales promotion and follow-up to aid the salesmen and to develop the territory, to be used in conjunction with an elaborate sales campaign, a statistical and research department. There has been gathered a vast fund of information regarding one and one-half to two-ton hauling costs in every line of business.

Wilson Enters Movie Field

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 7.—Frank R. Wilson, formerly publisher of the Daily News, has signed up with the Griffith Film Company as press agent at a salary of $15,000 a year. The Daily News was taken over a year or two ago by the Sioux City Journal and the Tribune. Mr. Wilson has been handling publicity for the various war funds. The German Helmet souvenir for Victory Loan workers was his idea. It was through this scheme that the Griffiths offered him the position.

U. S. Ad Man Touring Canada

Winnipeg, Oct. 2.—O. Barclay of the staff of Vanderhoof & Co., Chicago, has been touring Canada for feature copy to be used across the line. He started at Halifax and is taking six weeks to cross the continent to Vancouver. Mr. Barclay spent several days in Winnipeg and made a trip to the new gold regions in Northern Manitoba.

Fougner Resigns

G. Selmer Fougner, manager of the press bureau government loan organization for the Second Federal Reserve District, New York, has resigned. Mr. Fougner served as head of the bureau during the Second, Third, Fourth and Victory Loan campaigns and supervised the preparation and distribution of all publicity material.

McAlpine Reported Killed

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—Donald McAlpine of Warren, Pa., who was employed on the editorial staff of the North American at the time of his enlistment in the British Royal Flying Corps, was killed in England while on duty. Details of his death have just been received.

Kilby Resumes Work

Wichita, Kans., Oct. 7. — Karl E. Kilby is the new advertising manager of the Coleman Lamp Company. At one time Mr. Kilby conducted an advertising agency in Wichita and during the war he served as a Y. M. C. A. overseas secretary.

Indiana

Visualize Indiana this way.

Three million people—good, bad and indifferent—but averaging up a bit above the average.

If you want something to find fault about with the people of Indiana you will probably find it in their smug satisfaction with Indiana.

They know that Indiana is the state of states.

They know that there is more health, happiness, home life and harmony in Indiana than anywhere else.

They know, too, that there is nothing too good for Hoosiers—and they know that their own daily newspapers, their own cities, their own merchants are the best in the world.

They are easy to get acquainted with, if you go at it the right way—and the right way is via the usual Indiana channels of trade—through local dealers and local daily newspapers.

	Circulation	5,000-line rate
Elkhart Truth.....(E)	8,300	.025
Evansville Courier.....(M)	*23,893	.04
Evansville Courier.....(S)	*20,987	.04
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette.....(M)	29.236	.05
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette.....(S)	24,350	.05
Indianapolis News.....(E)	123,473	.16
Indianapolis Star.....(M)	92,851	.11
Indianapolis Star.....(S)	106,381	.14
Kokomo Dispatch.....(M)	5,400	.0171
Lafayette Courier.....(E)	*9,994	.02
Lafayette Journal.....(M)	10,415	.02143
La Porte Herald.....(E)	3,376	.0179
Logansport Pharos-Reporter.....(E)	6,621	.015
Muncie Press.....(E)	9,646	.01786
Muncie Star.....(M)	26,858	.05
Muncie Star.....(S)	16,818	.05
Richmond Item.....(M)	8,225	.03
Richmond Palladium.....(E)	11,096	.03
South Bend Tribune.....(E)	*17,436	.035
Terre Haute Star.....(M)	26,945	.04
Terre Haute Star.....(S)	19,422	.04
Terre Haute Tribune.....(E)	24,845	.04
Terre Haute Tribune.....(S)	19,192	.04
Vincennes Capital.....(E)	1,049	.01071
Total Daily Circulation and Rate.....	444,261	.71396
Total Sunday Circulation and Rate.....	207,150	.36
Total Daily and Sunday.....	651,511

*A. B. C. Report, April 1st, 1919. Government Statement April 1, 1919.

From 43 to 80 In Less Than 60 Days

On August 11th we published a list of 43 representative newspapers that had purchased "ONE-SET" Automatic Suction Ink Distributing Rollers. Today, less than 60 days from August 11th, the list has grown to 80, showing an increase of 86%—and the list is growing daily.

You'll say "that's building business fast." It is, but behind it there's a big, powerful reason. Goodrich "ONE-SET" Rollers are the ideal ink distributing rollers for which publishers have long been looking. These rollers mean for them money saving, more profits and greater efficiency. They were convinced of these facts by actual press-room tests.

Goodrich "ONE-SET" Rollers need no re-adjustments from time to time. They resist the most radical temperature changes—hot or cold weather, slow or fast speed, long or short runs, they remain unaffected, functioning and distributing perfectly. They need no washing. They have the right properties of "tack." They are not affected by water. They're long-wearing, and save trouble, worry and money.

Install Goodrich "ONE-SET" Rollers in your plant because you need them, and because it is good business for you to do so. The standing and calibre of the newspapers that have adopted them should convince you of their merits.

Why not send us a core to be recovered and let "ONE-SET" prove its practical worth? At least write for prices, stating core diameter, finished diameter and length of cover face.

Look at This Partial Line-Up of Newspapers That Have Ordered "ONE-SET"

Akron Evening Times
Boston Post
Buffalo Courier
Buffalo Evening News
Chicago Tribune
Cleveland Press
Dallas News
Detroit News
Houston Chronicle Publishing Co.
Indianapolis News
Kansas City Star
New York Tribune
Philadelphia Inquirer
Portland Evening Publishing Co.
Public Ledger
Inter-Mountain
Washington Daily Phoenix
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph
Post Publishing Co.
Reading Eagle Sentinel
Sioux City Journal
Wheeling Register
York Gazette
Daily Pantograph

Akron, Ohio
Boston, Mass.
Buffalo, New York
Buffalo, New York
Chicago, Illinois
Cleveland, Ohio
Dallas, Texas
Detroit, Mich.
Houston, Texas
Indianapolis, Ind
Kansas City, Kan.
New York City
Philadelphia, Pa.
Cleveland, Ohio
Philadelphia, Pa.
Elkins, W. Va.
Wenatchee, Okla.
Parkersburg, W. Va.
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Jamestown, N. Y.
Reading, Pa.
Sioux City, Iowa
Wheeling, W. Va.
York, Pa.
Decatur, Ohio

Charles C. Fatten Co.
Newark Advertiser
Times Revelator Company
Repertory Publishing Company
Springfield News
Times Publishing Company
Pittsburgh Gazette Publishing Co.
Philadelphia Press
Atlanta Journal
Atlanta Constitution
Ashville Times
Akron Beacon
Cleveland Company
Columbian Dispatch
Tennent Company
Evening Bulletin
Fairmont Times
Huntington Advertiser
Pittsburgh Publishing Co.
Dallas News
Aurora Beacon Publishing Co.
Morgantown Post
World Herald
The Sun
Omaha Daily News

Baltimore, Md.
Newark, Ohio
Zanesville, Ohio
Canton, Ohio
Springfield, Ohio
Erie, Pennsylvania
Wilkes-Barre, Pa.
Philadelphia, Pa.
Atlanta, Ga.
Atlanta, Ga.
Ashville, N. C.
Akron, Ohio
Cleveland, Ohio
Columbus, Ohio
Charleston, W. Va.
Philadelphia, Pa.
Fairmont, W. Va.
Huntington, W. Va.
Wheeling, W. Va.
Dallas, Texas
Aurora, Ill.
Morgantown, W. Va.
Omaha, Neb.
Baltimore, Md.
Omaha, Neb.

THE B. F. GOODRICH RUBBER COMPANY
The City of Goodrich—AKRON, OHIO

GOODRICH
"ONE-SET"
Automatic Suction ROLLERS

EDITORIAL

A WORD TO NEWSPRINT MANUFACTURERS

DO you know of any other great industry in which the attitude of the manufacturers toward their customers is so arbitrary and hostile as that exhibited by you toward the publishers? Who profits thereby?

Have not your counsel, at various hearings before the Federal Trade Commission, stated in effect that the publishers were a group of profit-thirsty business pirates, operating through the powerful weapons at their command to coerce the manufacturers into furnishing them paper at an actual loss?

Is not your attitude toward the publishers even now one of cynical unfriendliness and suspicion? Do you not proclaim that the present shortage and high prices for newsprint are due entirely to the wasteful practices of the publishers and their folly in bidding against each other for excess tonnage in the "open market?" Have you not tried to convey the impression that there is ample paper for all legitimate uses—and that, therefore, a real paper shortage is non-existent?

Gentlemen, the fates have placed in your hands for the moment grave issues affecting the press of America. Will an attitude of criticism and sinister condemnation of your customers help you to meet those issues?

Whatever your grievances, fancied or real, your prosperity is linked with that of the newspapers. You stand or fall with them. You share their responsibilities to the public.

Sometime you must restore the normal relations that should exist between a manufacturer and his customers. Sometime you must re-establish that basis of friendly co-operation with the newspapers upon which your industry stood for so many years previous to the war. Sometime you must realize that your problem is merely a part of the publishers' problem, not to be solved by economy wars but by mutual concessions and understandings. Sometime you must realize that it is a good thing to have a customer for your product and that it is the part of business wisdom to co-operate with that customer in every way possible.

In short, sometime you will have to come and wine to meet your customers and to discuss with them in a mutually friendly way policies of active co-operation. Why not now?

CRAFT ORGANIZATION

IN every new movement, such as that of the organization of news writers, experimental and mistaken steps are apt to be taken. Radical elements, whose dearth of numbers is balanced by an excess of fighting spirit, are likely in many instances to gain temporary ascendancy. But, in due time, the rule of reason prevails. The men who write our newspapers are, as a class, too sane and poised to submit to dangerous leadership in any organization movement to which they may commit themselves. They recognize that their work is one carrying high and imperative obligations to the whole public, and that it must always be free from bias and from the influence or control of class interests, however worthy these interests may be of themselves. Based on sound principles, safeguarding the interests of the newspapers with which they are connected, news writers may very properly organize under forms of craft fellowship which will assure for all of them greater accomplishment and higher achievement. Yes, even the assuring of that sort of wage which present living conditions make imperative. For, as has been well said, "the day of the impecunious reporter has passed." It is folly to assume that editors and reporters are the one class that is immune and exempt under the present reign of high costs of living. And it must be said to the credit of the publishers that not many of them try to deceive themselves with any such folly. In fact, the movement for normal salaries for news writers under present conditions has made rapid strides lately and this is due to a recognition by publishers of the principle of a fair wage for everyone who has a part in the making of a newspaper.

WHEN MEN GET ACQUAINTED

SOME newspapermen of Mexico decided to attend the A.A.C.W. convention. For the most part, these men were competitors and political antagonists. Their thought, as freely admitted by one of their number, was to make the journey to New Orleans and to take part in the sessions of the convention without coming into personal contact with each other. They were at pains to travel by different trains, to secure quarters at different hotels.

But the spirit of comradeship at the convention caught them in its strong currents. They met. They found themselves interested in common purposes and ideals. They fraternized, and return to their homes good friends. For the first time the wisdom, the sanity, of co-operation appealed to them. They are now determined to work together to promote better press relations between their country and ours and throughout North and Central and South America. And better press relations mean better political and business relations, closer unity of ideals among all who call themselves Americans.

Groups of publishers in many of our own cities may find in this incident food for thought. Petty hatreds, rivalries and mutual distrust often serve to prevent competing newspapermen from adopting common sense policies. They stand in the way of effective conservation of resources. They are responsible for suicidal circulation "fights." They are the source of waste and extravagance.

If rival publishers in every city in the country would get acquainted, get together for helpful discussion of their common problems, and then adhere to standards which their collective common sense dictates as wise and progressive, many of the difficulties facing them would disappear.

It often happens that, in a city where there are three or four daily newspapers, one publisher is considered by his competitors as "a bad actor." Perhaps, in his fight for business, he cuts rates or bribes away some part of the circulation of the rival papers. In retaliation the other papers adopt some wholly unsound policy, reasoning that they must fight him with his own kind of weapons. Thus one "bad actor" in a city demoralizes other publishers who would much prefer to follow sound methods.

The remedy is: Get together. Show the erring publisher a better way. If he is still bent upon a rule or ruin policy, let him understand that he will have a united opposition and that he cannot set standards of practice for that opposition. In a short time he will either return to sound standards or he will eliminate himself from that field.

October 9, 1919. Volume 52, No. 19.
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
Published weekly by
THE EDITOR & PUBLISHER CO.
1117 World Building, 63 Park Row, New York.
W. D. Wheeler, editor. John F. Redmond, managing editor; Dan F. Miller, News; Ben Mellen, Features.
James Wright Brown, publisher; J. W. Ferguson, advertising; Fenton Dowling, circulation.
London: Herbert C. Ridout, 42 Kimberly Gardens, N. 4.
Paris: F. B. Grundy.
Toronto: W. A. Leach.
Chicago: P. C. Eaton.
San Francisco: H. C. Bernstein.
Boston: M. J. Staples.
Washington: Robert T. Barry.
In cents a copy; $3 a year; foreign postage, $1.00; Canadian, 50c.

DIFFICULTIES OF THE FLAT RATE

WHEN James O'Shaughnessy, executive secretary of the A.A.A.A., in his message to the daily newspaper advertising managers at New Orleans, said that the adoption of the flat rate would bring to publishers at once an additional volume of national business amounting to $300,000 a year, and would eventually turn to the newspapers an increased volume ten times as large, he used "brass tacks" language. It had the effect of putting the managers present on record as favoring the flat rate for national, or "foreign," business, while they still adhered to the contention that the flat rate is not equitable or practicable for local business.

There are some disturbing problems to be considered in connection with the adoption of the flat rate for national advertising. There is a very real overhead expense in handling advertising, and this varies greatly according to the size and nature of each contract. If one contract calls for a full page of space, to be used once a week for a year, and another calls for three inches of space, 52 insertions, it usually happens that the clerical expense involved in taking care of these two accounts is practically the same. The same process must be followed in scheduling publication dates, in bookkeeping, billing, checking and collecting in the one as in the other account. The amount of correspondence involved in regard to lost checking copies, discounts, claimed adjustments, etc., is likely to average the same for the smaller as for the larger account.

On a flat rate basis it would require about fifty of the smaller accounts to amount to as much as the one larger account. Assuming that the matter of agency commissions takes care of itself automatically in either case, it remains true that the clerical work in handling fifty small accounts, amounting in the aggregate to the total revenue from the one larger contract, must be multiplied by fifty. Is it just to the newspaper, which must take into account selling costs? Is it just to the big advertiser, who relieves the newspaper of the need to negotiate and execute fifty contracts in order to sell fifty-two pages of space? Should not that wholesale buyer of space be entitled to a fair concession? Would not the flat rate inflict upon him a real penalty? For, would it not be true that, in fixing such a rate, the publisher would have to consider as a part of his selling costs a big overhead which the buyer of big space has no part in creating?

It must be confessed that the idea of the flat rate is an alluring one. It appeals, in theory, to advertisers and newspaper publishers alike. It is urged, always, as a progressive policy. But, in spite of all this, the difficulties enumerated above persist in intruding into the problem, and we fear that the solution for them will not be found through simply ignoring them.

HAVE I noticed Editor & Publisher's space-buyers' charts and market survey of Connecticut, I have studied this feature from every angle and have discussed it with all of my associates." Thus spoke, the other day, the advertising manager of one of the largest concerns using space in the daily newspapers of the country

---

AN artificially created volume of classified advertising never holds—for only reader-interest, carefully and patiently developed, assures results from these little ads.

A MAN who feels that he is merely holding "a job" on a newspaper is never worth more—rarely as much—as the "job" pays.

Digitized by Google

PERSONALS

FRED L. BOALT, editor of the Portland News, is recovering at a local hospital from a serious operation he underwent as the result of a recent accident.

Robert Lipsett, former news editor, has been appointed business manager of the Winnipeg Telegram.

Charles K. Blasser, who was circulation manager of the York (Pa.) Dispatch before he entered war service, has returned and taken his old position. Howard F. Eyster, who was circulation manager in the interum, has been made business manager.

B. E. Woolston, manager of the Butte (Mont.) Miner, and Leonard G. Diehl, business manager of the Great Falls (Mont.) Tribune, were visitors in New York last week.

George W. Norton, editor-in-chief of the Portland (Me.) Express-Advertiser, and member of Governor Carl E. Milliken's Executive Council, left this week for a month's vacation at Roach Pond in the Moosehead Lake region.

J. S. Crate, managing editor of the Ottawa (Ont.) Jonrnal, has been named chairman of the central publicity committee in Ottawa for the Victory Loan campaign.

Percy Hurd, member of the British House of Commons, well-known writer, and London correspondent (Winder mere) of certain Canadian papers, is now touring Canada.

Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, editor of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader, addressed the National Bank section of the American Bankers' Association in annual convention at St. Louis, on "Some Unconsulted Ledgers."

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOM

Clement L. Manning, police reporter for the Chicago Herald and Examiner, was married recently to Miss Sadie Gill, of Chicago. "Carnation Dan" O'Leary, dean of the police press, cut the cake and acted as toastmaster at the wedding breakfast.

John E. Bierck has left the Hartford Conn.) Times staff to go into business in the Panama Canal Zone.

Joseph A. Reilly, for many years associated with the Brooklyn Daily Eagle and who was its war editor, has resigned to take up the practice of law in Brooklyn.

James Leonard Lee, one-time editor of the Evanston (Ind.) News-Index and later connected with Chicago newspapers, is now athletic director at Northwestern University.

Frederic C. Nelson, editorial writer on the Hartford Post, is handling the Connecticut publicity for the Harvard $11,000,000 Endowment Fund Drive. Mr. Nelson graduated from Harvard in 1916.

Leon M. Block has been appointed business manager and editor of Feeding Stuffs, New York. He is a former daily newspaper man.

Helen Rowland, formerly of the Evening World, is now contributing her features to the Wheeler Syndicate clients.

Gilbert S. Costello, Seattle newspaper man, has been appointed private secretary to Mayor Fitzgerald, who recently ascended to the executive chair upon the resignation of Ole Hanson.

Miss E. Cora Hind, agricultural editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, was one of the western delegates to a conference of Canadian women at Ottawa, where the problems of the women living on the farms in Canada were discussed.

F. Eugene Ackerman, former newspaper man, is editor and publisher of a book in Spanish which will be one of the instruments used to combat German propaganda in Latin-American countries. Mr. Ackerman has been with the Omaha Herald and the New York Herald. He toured the country with Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson and went around the world with the American fleet.

Gilbert B. Outhwaite, assistant secretary of the Troy (N. Y.) Chamber of Commerce, and formerly a reporter on the Troy Record, has resigned to engage in other work in New York City.

William D. O'Brien, former police reporter for the Bridgeport Telegram, has just been released from war service and has gone back to the paper of his apprenticeship, the South Norwalk (Conn.) Evening Sentinel. He was a sargeant in the Marine Corps.

Wallace T. Bassett is back on the desk of the Bridgeport (Conn.) Standard Telegram for the winter, editing telegraph copy. Bassett conducts a delightful summer resort during the summer at Walnut Beach, but may annually be expected in newspaper work between Fall and Spring.

Lee J. Mantell, who served with the American Expeditionary Forces in France for a year, has returned and joined the staff of the Albany (N. Y.) Argus.

Shannon Leintz, Sacramento correspondent of the Associated Press, has resigned to enter business with his brother in Los Angeles to take effect as soon as he is relieved.

E. W. Murphy of the Portland Telegram spent a few days of his vacation in Sacramento.

Will W. Watson is now on the copy desk of the Sacramento Bee.

Miss Jacque Wilson and Captain Darwin Smith have announced their engagement. Both are members of the editorial staff of The Sacramento Bee.

Miss Sara Blanche Wrenn, a newspaper woman, who for the past 18 months has been a special investigator for the Department of Labor, has sailed for Japan to join the staff of the Trans-Pacific, and American trade journal in Tokio.

Mrs. Grace Gallop, former city editor of the Blackwell (Okla.) Tribune, and Blaine Harris were married September 4.

Guy Goodwin, city editor of the Concordia (Kan.) Blade-Empire, has resigned to become principal of the Concordia High School.

Miss Ila Montgomery, for two years editor of the children's section of the Winnipeg Free Press, has resigned to enter the matrimonial state. She is succeeded by Miss Doris Metcalfe, late of the reportorial staff.

Hill Cocke has resigned from the reportorial staff of the San Antonio (Tex.) Evening News to resume studies at the University of Texas.

John Liscomb, formerly of the Portland (Me.) Daily Press staff, has moved to Boston to enter Boston Law School.

Ernesto Ocampo Herrera y Cairo, editor of La Prensa, a Tampico, Mexico, daily paper, has married Senorita Maria Concepcion Cardenas of Tampico.

TWO NEW REMINGTON MEN

Finley H. Greene is the New General Manager of Buffalo Agency

FINLEY H. GREENE

Finley H. Greene, the new general manager of the E. P. Remington Advertising Agency, of Buffalo, is known as an authority on marketing conditions as a result of the many years that he has devoted to investigation in many lines as the foundation for selling campaigns. Mr. Greene joined the Remington Agency on September 1, and prior to that was seeretary and sales manager of the Mathews-Northrup Works. His experience has included the preparation and handling of every branch of advertising. Clarence J. Monro, formerly of the Niagara Lithograph Company, is the new art director of the Remington Agency.

John W. Shaver, formerly of the Portland Oregonian, has joined the editorial staff of Engineering News-Record, New York. He served as a first lieutenant of engineers, in the army under Capt. Tomlin, now managing editor of Egnineering News-Record.

Ettore Patrizi, managing editor of L'Italia, San Francisco, is on his way to Italy, where he will study conditions of Italian emigration and look into economic, financial and political conditions. He will also visit France.

WITH THE AD FOLKS

George Warner of Scranton, Pa., former advertising writer for Stoehr & Fister, that city, has resigned from the Ryan Advertising Company of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

F. A. D. Seelye has been appointed advertising manager of the Packard Motor Company of Pittsburgh, succeeding P. W. Stearn, who is now with the Parker, Duff & Morris Advertising Agency, same city. Mr. Seelye was formerly with the sales promotion department of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company and later was automobile editor of the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Charles G. Reed, for 15 years automobile editor and writer of motor news, has joined the Dunlap-Ward Advertising Company, Cleveland. He will also look after sales promotion interests of large auto and accessory concerns which are clients of the company. Mr. Reed began as an automobile editor in Cleveland "when Cadillacs had but one lung and curve dash Olds were steered with a stick." For the last four years he has been on the Detroit Journal. Before taking this position he spent a year studying factory methods in the Dodge Brothers plant, Detroit.

W. R. Warren, former advertising manager of the Westfield Manufacturing Company, Westfield, Mass., and more recently assistant advertising manager of the Corticelli Silk Mills, has been appointed advertising manager of the Sexton Manufacturing Company, Fairfield, Ill., maker of men's and children's athletic underwear and nightwear.

Clarence L. Fisher, president of the Fisher-Knebel-Brown Advertising Company, St. Louis, and Mrs. Fisher celebrated the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary recently. Among the gifts was a handsome silver water set from the families of the officers of the company.

H. R. Baker has been placed in charge of the Goodrich Tire & Rubber Company's department of honse organs, in Akron, Ohio, and will be assisted by H. G. Wilson. Mr. Baker succeeds Lester H. Butler, resigned.

Graham Lee Hemminger, formerly with the Richard A. Foley Advertising Agency of Philadelphia, has taken a position with the Massengale Advertising Agency, where he will charge of the copy and plan department.

Jacob Pfeffer, who has been connected with Jewish newspapers, is the founder of a new advertising agency in New York, which will handle Jewish advertising and publicity, exclusively.

L. G. Robbins, general sales and advertising manager of the A. J. Deer Co., Inc., of Hornell, N. Y., has been made an officer and director of the company.

The Rockford Morning Star has signed a contract for the Haskin Service for one year

IT keeps its subscribers abreast of the times on the important issues of the day

It operates with Washington, D. C., as a base.

Digitized by Google

J. L. EBAUGH GOES TO BIRMINGHAM

Well-Known Business Manager of New Orleans Times-Picayune Appointed Successor to Buford Goodwin

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Oct. 5.—John L. Ebaugh will become general manager of the Birmingham News on October 20. Mr. Ebaugh, now business manager of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, will succeed Buford Goodwin, who left The News October 1 to become publisher of the Atlanta Georgian. He is one of the best known newspaper men in the South.

JOHN L. EBAUGH

Mr. Ebaugh was born in Houcksville, Carroll County, Maryland. He lived on a farm until he was 18, when he became a machinist's apprentice in the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad shops in Baltimore, and for four years he worked by day and attended school at night to learn mechanical and architectural drawing. He then worked for a year with the original Mergenthaler Linotype Company in Baltimore, going to the old New Orleans Times-Democrat in April, 1892, and remaining there until May, 1898, as linotype machinist.

He volunteered for service in the Spanish-American war and served as first sergeant of Company A, 1st Louisiana Volunteer Infantry. After being mustered out in November, 1898, he went direct to the Mergenthaler Company again and traveled for that corporation.

After the death of Mr. Mergenthaler, Mr. Ebaugh resigned and went back to the New Orleans Times-Democrat in November, 1899, as mechanical superintendent. In January, 1910, he was made foreman of the composing room and in 1915 became business manager of the Times-Democrat. Four months later the paper consolidated with the Picayune and was continued as business manager of the combined papers, from that time on known as The Times-Picayune. Mr. Ebaugh's entire time and energy for the past five years has been devoted to the business affairs of the Times-Picayune, which has achieved splendid growth under his direction.

Hartford Men Change Positions

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 5.—Clarence L. Moody, until recently telegraph editor of the Post, has gone to Brockton, Mass., to enter the employ of the Times in a similar capacity. Geo. Vennart of the Post's city staff, a veteran of the 26th Division, is handling publicity in Connecticut for the American Legion membership drive. Eugene Kelsey has resigned as staff photographer of the Post to accept a similar position on the Courant. Mr. Kelsey served in the war as a member of the photographic section of the A. E. F. in France. Harold M. Newsome has resigned from the Courant as staff photographer to take a rest which his health requires.

CIRCULATION NOTES

John Wood has become circulation manager of the San Antonio (Tex.) Express. He will be assisted by William K. Meyers and August Small, circulators, succeeding William K. Meyers.

The Cheyenne (Wyo.) State Leader is now in the midst of a circulation campaign, which is being managed by F. P. Shaughnessy, representative of Blair & Austin, of Louisville, Ky. Four automobiles and a piano and other prizes valued at $8,000 are being given away to the successful members of the Leader's "salesmanship club."

The Kansas City (Mo.) Post is devoting a page each Sunday to news from the high schools of Greater Kansas City. The news items are collected and edited by journalism students. Thomas Parry, Jr., is editor of the page.

Three hundred Omaha and Council Bluffs newsboys attended the annual picnic of the Omaha World-Herald. Circulation manager M. B. McMechen had charge of the program, which included a "feed" and a series of races and contests. $150 in prizes were given.

W. H. Russell Breaks Into Movies

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 7.—W. H. Russell, former editor of the Palo Alto Times and also the Stanger News in both the California cities, is now director of publicity for the American Film Company at its Santa Barbara studios.

Gale Blocki on Payne Staff

Chicago, Oct. 4. — The C. Logan Payne Company has added to its local soliciting force Gale Blocki, Jr., who for the past six months has been with Erwin & Wasey. Mr. Blocki's first advertising experience was with one of the University of Chicago papers while a student at that institution.

Daddy Stratton Meets His Boy

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 5.—Lieut. Cliff Stratton of the Capital staff, on returning from a year overseas met his son, Cliff Stratton, Jr., whom he had never seen, the boy having been born while his father was in the service. Mrs. Stratton was Miss Lenore Moore, formerly Capital society editor.

William Floto Marries

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 4.—William Floto, head of the automobile department of the Post, and Miss Mary McClurg, society editor of the Leavenworth Post, were married in Leavenworth Wednesday.

New Jersey's Drive For a Million B. & L. Shares

There are states in which the building and loan association is almost an unknown factor in the economic and financial program of the rank and file of the population.

New Jersey has 871 building and loan associations—by far the largest number in proportion to population of any state in the country.

The number of shares carried by the people of the state of New Jersey runs beyond four millions.

And now there is a drive on to secure a million more shares in a week—and the associations are confident they will double the figure set as a goal.

Just ponder this, Mr. Advertiser, and ask yourself whether you can afford to omit a state with such proclivities for thrift from consideration in an advertising campaign.

Consider This List of New Jersey Newspapers

	Circulation	Rate 5,000 lines
†Asbury Park Press (E)	7,651	.0225
Atlantic City Press (M) Union (E)	14,871	.035
Elizabeth Journal (E) (A. B. C.)	17,656	.04143
Hackensack Record	4,879	.0178
Hudson Observer (Hoboken)	43,000	.08
Passaic Herald (E)	8,535	.025
Passaic News (E)	8,427	.025
Paterson Press-Guardian (E)	12,686	.03
Perth Amboy Evening News (E)	*8,723	.025
Plainfield Courier-News (E)	7,908	.0214

Government Statement, April 1st, 1919.
* A. B. C. Report, April 1st, 1919.
† Government Statement, October 1st, 1919.

Canadian Commerce

Always an important factor, Canadian commerce is looming up stronger, more important and more valuable than ever before.

Canadians always were friendly toward us, but since Canadian men and men from the United States have fought shoulder to shoulder, in the great war, since Canada and the United States did their bit so splendidly, we are no longer merely friends—we are Buddies—and Canadians are more willing than ever to buy from us what they do not manufacture.

However, they still stick to their own merchants and their own daily newspapers, and are best reached through cooperation with Canadian daily newspapers and Canadian merchants.

These daily newspapers can and do reach the buying power of Canada. They tell your story where you want it told—economically and effectively.

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO

Population 2,523,274

	Circulation	Lines 2,500	Lines 10,000
Border Cities Star (Windsor)	12,403	.03	.03
†Brantford Expositor	(E) 10,100	.025	.025
†Brockville Recorder-Times	(E) 4,225	.0179	.0107
Chatham Daily News	(E) 2,472	.01	.0071
*Galt Reporter	(E) 3,955	.015	.0125
†Guelph Mercury	(E) 3,877	.015	.01
*Hamilton Spectator	(E) 31,058	.055	.05
Hamilton Times	(E) 11,200	.035	.03
†Kingston British Whig	(E) 6,328	.025	.02
*London Free Press	(MN&E) 41,000	.07	.06
*Peterborough Examiner	(E) 5,329	.0193	.015
*St. Catharines Standard	(E) 7,632	.0275	.0175
†St. Thomas Times-Journal	(E) 9,016	.0275	.02
*Toronto Globe	(M) 86,388	.15	.11
*Toronto Star	(E) 86,157	.14	.11
*Toronto Star	(E) 86,157	.14	.11
*Toronto World	(M) 27,437	.09	.06
*Toronto World	(S) 87,655	.12	.09

Government Statement, April 1, 1919.
*A. B. C. Report, April 1, 1919.
†Publishers' Statement.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC

Population 2,002,731—English 397,392
French 1,605,339

	Circulation	Lines 2,500	Lines 10,000
*Montreal Gazette (3c-$8 yr.)	(M) 32,140	.085	.07
*Montreal La Presse (2c per copy)	(E) 147,127	.13	.11
*Montreal Star	(E) 111,151	.13	.11
*Quebec Le Soleil	(E) 39,356	.06	.06

Digitized by Google

GUARDIAN AGENCY IS FORMED IN N. Y.

Robert Adamson, Dr. J. A. Harris, W. Lamar, E. S. Hamilton, B. C. Diven Incorporate Firm—Freeman Field Manager

A new advertising agency organization has just been formed in New York, to be known as the Guardian Advertising Corporation, with offices at 511 Fifth Avenue and a group of well-known financial, advertising and newspaper men at its head.

Robert Adamson, former fire commissioner of New York City, and who made his start on Atlanta newspapers and was afterwards with the New York World, is president.

Dr. John A. Harriss, a notably successful New York business man and who is now serving without pay as a deputy police commissioner in charge of traffic, is chairman of the board of directors, and he announces that a number of other well-known men shortly will be associated with him.

Washington Lamar, of Atlanta, a young and widely experienced business man, is vice-president; Emmett S. Hamilton, an active figure in financial and banking circles, is secretary, and B. C. Owen, who was for years head sales manager of the Babbitt Soap Company, is treasurer.

William C. Freeman, than whom there is no one better known in the American advertising field, is field manager of the new corporation, which is capitalized at $250,000 under the laws of the State of New York. It begins operations with no clients, but with bright prospects, it is announced.

Mr. Adamson will be actively in charge and Dr. Harris will take an active interest in connection with his many other business affairs. The latter says he has been keen for years to engage in advertising, which he regards as a most important industry.

William C. Freeman resigns from the service of Paul Block, Inc., to enter on his new duties, which will consist of creating business for the Guardian Agency.

Publishers Complain of Invasion

Lawrence, Kan., Oct. 4.—The University Daily Kansan, student paper at the University of Kansas here, is not being operated for profit, State officials declared, following a conference with local newspaper publishers, who complained that, with the announcement of a telegraph service and a report that last year closed with a profit, they felt their field was being invaded. They conferred with Governor Allen and the State Board of Administration, who stated that their only business efforts are for sufficient revenue to pay for the operating expenses in teaching journalism, and they will not compete with the local papers in the commercial field.

Pennsylvanians Take to Flying

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 7.—Joseph Gorman of the Evening News has the distinction of being the first newspaper man to fly over this city. He made the trip with a government aviator. John Ruddy of the Scranton Times; Morton Piper of the Scranton Republican, and James Gibbons, editor of the Scranton Board of Trade Journal, are other newspaper men who have made flights in their section.

Chinese Student Wins Bennett Prize

The James Gordon Bennett prize at Yale has been awarded for the year 1918-1919 to Chien Chun, of Krashing, China, for his essay on "The Railway and the Government." The prize, which consists of the income from a fund of $1,000, was established in 1893 by the late James Gordon Bennett, proprietor of the New York Herald. It is given for the best essay upon a subject of contemporaneous interest in the domestic or foreign policy of the United States Government.

British Correspondent on a Visit

George Herbert Perris, who, during the war, was a correspondent on the western front for the London Daily Chronicle and the New York Times, has come to this country to deliver a series of lectures on the war and to describe for the Chronicle post-war conditions in America. Mr. Perris arrived in New York Monday and expects to remain until Viscount Grey returns to England next Spring.

Competition in Green River

CHEYENNE, Wyo, Oct. 6.—A new weekly newspaper, the Sweetwater County Chief, is to be published in Green River, Wyo., by E. R. Clayton, formerly of Portland, Ore. Associated with him in the undertaking will be J. E. LeMere, formerly of Brighton, Colo. The Chief will be republican in politics and is starting up in Green River as a competitor of the Green River Star.

In Involuntary Bankruptcy

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 7.—An involuntary bankruptcy petition, with an application for the appointment of a receiver, has been filed against the Middlebourne News-Star, a weekly, in the United States District Court here. Charles Ashcraft of Middlebourne was named receiver. The petition was filed by the West Virginia Printing Company of Wheeling, the Central Ohio Paper Company of Columbus, O., and W. H. Carter of Middlebourne.

Harley-Davidson Ad Personnel

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 4.—Laey Crolius has resumed charge of the Harley-Davidson Motor Company's advertising on returning from military service, and O. Grigg, who was in charge during his absence, is now connected with the Klau-Van Pietersom-Dunlap Advertising Agency. T M. Agnew is now handling the publicity and newspaper advertising for the company.

Lawrence Syndicate Moves

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 1.—Offices of David Lawrence, Inc., have been moved from the Home Life Building to 503 Commercial National Bank Building.

Iowa Ad Clubs to Convene

OTTUMWA, Ia., Oct. 1.—The Associated Advertising Clubs of Iowa will hold their eighth annual convention and business course in this city.

Iowa

Daily newspapers in Iowa compare in advertising rates very favorably to daily papers in general per line per thousand, but the ADVERTISER GETS the MAXIMUM for his money.

The farmer who reads one paper BUYS usually for a NUMBER of people.

And he buys in TOWN.

He buys for HIS percentage of a state with an income from farm crops of over $400 per person; that has nearly 700,000 savings bank depositors; and nearly one auto per family.

In fairness to Iowa rates, which are all right anyhow, consider WHAT kind of circulation its papers give you.

YES, think of the PRICE!

If you are a daily newspaper advertiser in Iowa you GET CLASS circulation for your money, not just circulation to delicatessen customers and OTHERS, but to BUYERS who live wholesale and keep the pantry FULL.

	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 Lines
Boone News-Republican.....(E)	3,636	.0143
Burlington Hawkeye .....(M)	10,908	.03
Burlington Hawkeye .....(S)	12,116	.03
Council Bluffs Nonpareil.....(E & S)	16,228	.035
Davenport Times .....(E)	25,643	.05
Des Moines Capital.....(E)	60,655	.10
*Des Moines Sunday Capital.....(S)	46,668	.10
Des Moines Register and Tribune.....(M & E)	111,517	.16
Des Moines Sunday Register.....(S)	70,745	.14
Fort Dodge Messenger and Chronicle.....(E)	8,763	.03
†Iowa City Daily Press.....(E)	3,280	.015
Mason City Globe-Gazette-Times.....(E)	9,602	.03
Muscatine Journal and News-Tribune.....(E)	8,331	.02
†Sioux City Journal.....(E)	31,083	.08
†Sioux City Journal.....(S)	28,281	.06
Ottumwa Courier .....(E)	13,606	.035
Waterloo Evening Courier.....(E)	14,484	.03

Government Statements, April 1st, 1919.
* Publisher's Statement.
†A. B. C. Report April 1st, 1919.

NEWS IN BRIEF of the NEWSPAPER AND ADVERTISING WORLD

A state-wide campaign of newspaper advertising is proposed by the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League. The idea, sponsored by Joshua B. Merrill, treasurer of the Roger Conant Co-operative Bank of Salem, at the 31st annual convention held in Pittsfield last week, was very generally favored.

In celebration of the passing of his fiftieth anniversary in the newspaper profession Nathaniel H. Taylor of the Boston Globe, better known by plain "Nat" among his associates, was tendered a banquet and reception and presented with a purse of gold by his newspaper friends at the Boston City Club.

The Brookline (Mass.) Chronicle, one of the oldest town papers in the State, has purchased the Brookline Townsman, and henceforth the two papers will be merged and published as one.

President Stokes and Arthur Hoskins, president and secretary, respectively, of the St Louis Association of Journalists, are visiting various cities explaining the St. Louis Plan, with the idea that everything possible should be done at once to make the association a national affair. Each member is to be assessed a small sum to create a fund to bring together the newspaper men of the entire country in a general convention here in St. Louis early in the coming year. Some plan of protection for men who are thrown out of a position through illness or by an arbitrary dismissal is now being worked upon and will soon be submitted.

Lee Casey, editorial writer on the Denver Times and formerly of the Kansas City Star, has become head of the department of journalism at the University of Colorado.

Topeka Press Club members were guests Sunday of Clyde M. Reed, secretary to Governor Henry J. Allen and Mrs. Reed at the executive mansion. Mr. Reed is owner of the Parsons Sun.

Maurice E. Votaw has been named dean of journalism at the University of Arkansas.

The new home of the Little Rock (Ark.) Daily News has been completed.

The city of Lindsborg, Kan., has appealed to the State Utilities Commission to release it from complete Sunday isolation. No mail or rural mail or rail service are given it by the McPherson branch of the Union Pacific railroad, and the residents desire to avail themselves of these necessities.

An advance of 75 cents per day has been made by Kansas City (Mo.) newspaper publishers to 300 members of the I. T. U. The new scale is $6.50 for night work and $6.25 for day work.

Cleveland's newspaper printers are now receiving $41.40 per week of six days for night work and the day wage is $38.30 per week. The I. T. U. contract, made about four years ago on a five-year basis, calls for a night scale of $33 a week and $30 for day workers, but the publishers from time to time voluntarily have increased the pay to the present scale.

The 163d dinner of the Sphinx Club will be held October 14, at 7 p. m., at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York. Speakers will be Bainbridge Colby and Frank Crownenshield.

The Topeka State Journal has offered four prizes for the best ideas combating the high cost of living in a contest which closes October 25. Letters submitted will be printed for the benefit of all the readers.

James E. Edmonds has been appointed managing editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune on his return from three years' Army service as an officer. Mr. Edmonds was formerly associate editor of the New Orleans Item and president of the Baton Rouge (La.) State-Times Publishing Company.

David Lampe has been appointed advertising manager of Parker, Bridget & Co., Washington, D. C. He was formerly retail service man with the Banker-Martin Company, Detroit, and advertising manager of Isaac Hamberger & Sons, Baltimore.

W. G. Bowdoin, art critic of the New York Evening World, is a contributor to the photographic exhibition of the Joan of Arc Statue, which is being held this month at the Camera Club, New York.

Both the Fort Smith (Ark.) Southwest American and the Times Record temporarily suspended publication Saturday night, following a strike of mechanical forces. The publishers claim the printers refused to arbitrate their demands, which included an increase of $10 a week, making the Fort Smith wage larger than those of Kansas City, Chicago and other larger cities. When the publishers saw that an agreement could not be reached, they issued their Sunday editions late Saturday afternoon.

Laura Becktenwalt has been elected president of the Buffalo (N. Y.) League of Advertising Women, to succeed Bertha L. Darling, resigned.

The Buffalo (N. Y.) Advertising Club has voted to affiliate with the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

The largest newspaper ever printed in Kansas was the September 28th edition of the Wichita Eagle, 124 pages. The Wichita Beacon on Saturday also issued a special Industrial Edition of 114 pages.

The Baseball Writers' Association has presented Joe Jackson of Detroit, who was president of the association for the first ten years of its life, with a handsome traveling bag. The association also passed resolutions thanking August Herrmann and the Cincinnati Chapter of the Association for the excellent care that had been taken of the baseball writers.

James R. V. Forrest, for many years editor of the Montreal Daily Witness and later on the editorial staff of the Weekly Witness, has just died in his 78th year.

Hon. Smeaton White, proprietor of the Montreal Gazette, entertained a trainload of Dominion Senators over the week-end at Shawinigan Falls and Grand Mere.

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas has been elected president of the International Farm Progress. He is well known to farmers all over the Middle West as an advocate of progressive and up-to-date farm methods.

Randolph Leigh, editor and manager of the Cheyenne (Wyo.) State Leader, has just been named chairman of the committee in charge of an intensive navy recruiting campaign in the Cheyenne district.

John Fleming, advertising manager of the Cheyenne (Wyo.) State Tribune, has just taken his first vacation in several years.

H. C. Mellinger, for several years Wichita (Kan.) representative of the Capper Engraving Company and later with the Bickford, Constantine & Tyler Advertising Company, of Portland and Seattle, has returned to Wichita, where he has joined the staff of the Southwestern Advertising Company.

F. E. Long has resigned from the board of directors and executive committee of the Audit Bureau of Circulation, following his retirement from the presidency and active interest in the National Stockman and Farmer, Chicago. Action on filling the vacancy will be taken up at the next meeting of the A. B. C. executive committee. New newspaper members of the A. B. C. are the Durham (N. C.) Morning Herald, Madison (Wis.) Capital Times, and Pensacola (Fla.) Journal.

The name of the Binghamton (N. Y.) Republican-Herald has been changed to the Morning Sun.

Miss Mary Archer Glass, daughter of Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass, is publisher of the Lynchburg (Va.) News and Daily Advance, is to be married November 1 to John G. Boatwright of Danville, Va. The ceremony will take place in Washington, D. C.

The Illinois Circulation Managers' Association will meet in Joliet, October 13, and the New England Association in Springfield, Mass., on October 15.

The Inland Daily Press Association's Chicago meeting will be held October 16 and 17.

The Western New York Newspaper Publishers' Association will meet in Rochester, October 18.

Albert Andrus has been promoted to be advertising manager of the Holyoke (Mass.) Transcript.

Roy V. Crawford, of Kokomo, has been added to the advertising staff of the Peoria (Ill.) Journal & Transcript.

William H. McDonald, recently discharged from the army, has joined the New York advertising staff of the Survey Magazine.

James M. Conklin, manager of the merchandising bureau for the Milwaukee Sentinel, is back on the job after a honeymoon trip through northern Wisconsin and Minnesota. He was married on August 27 to Miss Edna A. Blank, of Mellen, Wis.

W. A. Bower, who for the past twenty years has been business manager of the Anaconda (Mont.) Standard, has resigned and will take a vacation of two or three months before again engaging in business.

Edward E. Patton, who has been with the overseas division of the Y. M. C. A., is now connected with the advertising staff of the New York Commercial.

The Astoria (Ore.) Budget has been sold to the owners of the Pendleton East Oregonian, Messrs. Aldrich, Drake, Lampkin and Chessman. It changed hands on October 1. The Budget is an evening paper.

The Greybull (Wyo.) Standard has just changed owners and may become a daily. Under J. H. Harris, the paper was Democratic, but since its purchase by P. P. Anderson and F. F. Bristow, of Basin, Wyo., it is Republican. Mr. Bristow is business manager. Mac McCarthy, veteran newspaper man of Montana, is editor.

Declared "unfair" because they refused to quit their posts in the plants of the Bellingham (Wash.) Herald and American-Reveille after the building housing the two newspapers had been placed on the general "unfair" list growing out of a two-year-old dispute with the carpenter's organization, the printers and pressmen have demanded that the Central Labor Council rescind its action and offer a public apology to the Typographical Union. Unless their demands are complied with, the officers of the Bellingham typographical union declare they will withdraw from the central body.

Though John Ring, Jr., manager of publicity for the Mercantile Trust Company, St. Louis, has engaged in the advertising agency business, he will continue to handle the Mercantile's advertising. As yet no successor to Mr. Ring has been appointed.

Hazen Conklin has resigned as magazine editor of the New York Evening World to become managing editor of the Thompson Feature Service, New York.

C. F. Ridenour and J. A. Chew of the Xenia (Ohio) Gazette have purchased the Piqua (Ohio) Leader-Dispatch and Press. They will probably consolidate them into one paper on November 1. At present the two papers are Democratic. Mr. Ridenour will remove to Piqua to be editor and general manager. Mr. Chew will remain at Xenia as general manager of the Gazette.

Digitized by Google

Newsprint Shortage Calls for Drastic Consertation

(Continued from page 5.)

"The prediction of five cent paper for this fall looks rather small now, considering that in the past fortnight the cheapest paper that I have any record of is 5.35. Some has been sold for 5.50 and 5.75, and one lot at 6c. All of this is f.o.b. mill. Add freight, cartage and insurance and the figures are staggering.

"This is, of course, spot paper. A fair estimate of the contract price delivered on sidewalk is around 4.20. It is impossible to accurately calculate what the big papers are now really paying, owing to their using contract paper and spot paper, but 4.25 seems a conservative estimate. I know of one big newspaper whose average cost in September ran close to 4.50.

The 1920 Problem

"But more important than all this is the really obtaining a full supply for 1920.

"At this writing there are grounds for belief that there will not be enough to go round.

"The large majority of paper manufacturers will not fix any price for 1920. They will contract for a limited tonnage, not what the publisher wants, but what the manufacturer is willing to furnish him. At the beginning of each quarter a price will be fixed for the ensuing three months. The only protection the publisher gets is a clause in the contract that he shall have as low a price as anyone else.

"What the average price of contract paper will be for 1920 nobody knows—not even the manufacturer.

"The price fixed in this variety of contract for October, November and December of this year is 3.90 f.o.b. mill. Some manufacturers admit privately that the first quarter of 1920 will be around 4 cents with a possibility of 4.10. They estimate that there will be increases over these figures for the second, third and fourth quarters of 1920.

Limiting Contracts

"Some of the smaller mills will not contract for more than 60 per cent. of their prospective output for 1920, hoping to get runaway prices for the remaining 40 per cent. which they will sell as spot paper.

"Personally, I do not think that the mills are justified in either their contract or spot paper prices. The bulk of the manufacturers should be able to produce newsprint anywhere from $55 to $65 a ton, which includes all overhead, interest and everything else except dividends. Some of the big modern mills can cut considerably under these figures. The cost sheets of one large paper company, whose mills are not of very modern equipment, shows an average per ton conversion cost of $16 and of prepared wood at the mill of $26, which impresses me as high.

"I mention this, because it means that in the instance of a curtailment of consumption, which ought to be brought about in some way, the price of newsprint will automatically drop."

The small publications will proportionately suffer most. Many of these do not and cannot make contracts and have to pay the mills or middlemen whatever they ask. If the consumption continues to increase these papers will be lucky to get their paper as low as seven cents.

"My experience has been that when the print paper supply exceeds the demand these smaller publishers have always got better prices than the large contractors. The situation is now being reversed, and the mills are not likely to be over merciful.

All Publications Are Bigger

"Practically all the newspapers in the country are putting out bigger publications than ever before, due to the unusual advertising, which in measure reimburses them for the enormous cost of white paper over circulation revenue. Here are some illustrations: One important New York paper's Sunday issue a week ago was 124 pages, and the print paper cost was between $20,000 and $25,000 more than its circulation revenue. Its daily ran as high as forty pages and averages for the week thirty-four pages which made an excess of $12,000 paper cost over the circulation revenue. Total for week nearly $35,000 more spent for white paper than was received from the sales of the publication. Another instance is a Chicago afternoon paper, which far-sightedly made a no-fixed-price contract some time ago for 40,000 tons of paper for 1920 delivery. I was surprised to hear of this tonnage for a paper without a Sunday edition, and on inquiry learned these facts: This paper has been putting out a paper around thirty-six pages, and was arranging to equip its presses to put out a forty-page daily. This means a loss on circulation of $3,000 per day on present prices.

"The same thing is happening in more or less degree all over. Last Monday's afternoon papers in New York, which formerly ran twelve and fourteen pages, were twenty-four and thirty-six pages, and the other days of the week also showed startling increases. Most of the morning papers and Sunday papers are running twenty-five to fifty per cent. larger than they used to. Consider from this the enormous increase in paper consumption. What is the end going to be? Here is what an executive of one of the large paper-making concerns told me a few days ago:

Crucial Situation

"We have oversold our product. Every publisher is making demands for additional paper which we cannot meet. It is the same with other manufacturers. The most crucial situation that has ever been in the newsprint industry has arisen. There is little new production in America, and the small amount of new Canadian paper will be used for export. The Canadian exporters are after the higher prices which the European and South American and other countries are offering.'

"I am not sure that raising dailies to three cents, and Sunday papers to ten cents, would ease the situation. It should reduce consumption somewhat. It will give the publishers additional revenue to help meet the higher cost of print paper, but another extraordinary increases, which they are up against.

"I also recommend substantial increases in advertising rates, not a cent or two a line, but increases based on the increased cost of producing the publication. This may reduce the volume of advertising a little, but even that would help the print paper situation.

Value of a Dollar

"The advertisers could not justly complain. The value of a dollar compared with several years ago is around fifty cents, and even if the rates were doubled the advertiser would really pay no more than formerly. The publisher is now bearing the burden.

"There is no certainty of how long this 'good-will' advertising will last. When it stops, other conditions remaining the same, anyone can see the disastrous results.

"Therefore, I cannot reiterate too strongly the necessity of both a raise in the selling price of newspapers, a substantial increase in advertising rates, and the other economies suggested.

"Unfortunately, there are important papers in some of the big centers, which will obtruct the raise in circulation price from selfish reasons. If all the publishers in a community could be got to work together for the general interest, any reasonable proposition could be put through. In San Francisco recently the publishers, who are there all working together, decided on an advertising raise, and as a body so notified the advertisers. Their demands were promptly acceded to. The same thing was done in raising the price of the Coast Sunday papers to ten cents. There was a slight falling off at first, but now the circulations are about what they were before the advance."

Brown Edits N. Y. Commercial

Walter B. Brown is now editor of the New York Commercial, succeeding the late Daniel Kendall. Mr. Brown has had wide experience in the business field and is a writer of authority on business, financial and economic subjects. Fred E. Crawford, Jr. has been appointed Western advertising representative of the New York Commercial, with headquarters in Chicago. He is the son of F. E. Crawford, Chicago representative of the New York Evening Journal, and was formerly with Ryan & Inman.

Ousting Billboards From Houston

Houston, Tex., Oct. 8.—A proposed anti-billboard ordinance now being considered by the City Council would put billboards ont of existence within the city limits. If the ordinance is passed the billboard men say they will contest it in the courts.

(300 ft. x 280 ft.)

The Detroit News

is the only Detroit paper which publishes its circulation figures every day. Why?

Members Audit Bureau of Circulation

40.6% GAIN

in August, 1919, over August, 1918, shows that the PLAIN DEALER is more than holding its own as the leading medium of Cleveland and Northern Ohio.

The PLAIN DEALER not only carries the most of Cleveland's advertising but grows the fastest.

A healthy sign for observant space buyers.

THE PLAIN DEALER

Largest Morning and Sunday Circulation Between New York and Chicago

dominance

You can absolutely dominate one of the most easily cultivated markets in U. S. A. through its dominant paper.

THE INDIANAPOLIS News

Charter Member A. B. C.

Foreign Representatives

Dan A. Carroll, Tribune Bldg., New York
J. E. Lutz, First Nat. Bank Bldg., Chicago

Reason Results

The merchants of Washington, D. C., usually use more space in

The Evening Star

than in the other three papers combined.

The Congregationalist

is not read for fun; it is read seriously; therefore it is well read.

Broad-minded advertisers know

THE CONGREGATIONALIST,
14 Beacon St. BOSTON, MASS.

During the seven months ending July 31

614,922 agate lines

of national advertising were published in

The Clarksburg Telegram

a gain over the same period of 1918 of 74.5%

It pays to advertise in "West Virginia's Leading Newspaper."

U. S. P. O. Report

For the period ending April 1, 1919. Average Daily and Sunday Circulation

76,652

New Orleans Item

Enjoys the largest afternoon and Sunday net paid circulation of any newspaper published in the entire south.

The Pittsburgh Post

has the second largest morning and Sunday circulation in Pittsburgh.

Digitized by Google

MAINE PRESS MEETS IN PORTLAND TODAY

Don Seitz, Business Manager of the New York World, Will Deliver Address on "The Newspaper and the Community"

Portland, Me., Oct. 7.—One of the finest sessions in the history of the Maine Press Association is expected at the annual meeting to be held in City Hall today and tomorrow. In addition to Don C. Seitz, business manager of the New York World, who is to deliver an address, John C. Koons, first assistant postmaster general, will speak, and also Carter B. Keene, of Freedom, Me., director of Postal Savings Banks, Francis M. Joseph of Waterville will talk on "A Standard Price for the Maine Job Printer."

Will Revise Costs

As the association includes in its membership job printers and the weekly papers, and as several of the daily newspapers have job printing establishments in connection with their newspaper business, part of the time at the annual meetings will be given over to discussion of subjects of interest to the printing craft.

It has been proposed to ask from all Maine job printers whether or not members of the Maine Press Association, a fee of $3 to have a paid secretary revise job printing costs and selling prices, and report publicly to the printers who share this expense.

A banquet will be held this evening at the Elks' Club, with an address by Mr. Seitz.

Guests of Newspapers

Out-of-town members of the association and members of their families will be guests of the three local daily papers, the Express-Advertiser, the Argus, and the Press. The details are in charge of a Portland committee consisting of E. C. Bowler of the Argus, chairman; George E. Lefavor, William H. Dow, publisher of the Express-Advertiser, John H. Dooley and Bartley A. Connolly, business manager of the Press.

Friday morning, a paper will be read on "Advertising Costs for the Country Weekly," by a speaker to be announced later. All addresses will be followed by a roundtable discussion. In the afternoon members of the association will be guests of the Chamber of Commerce and will be given an automobile trip to Cape Elizabeth and other points of interest.

Organize Advertising Service

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—Frederick Kammann, Jr., Maurice Kammann and Carleton A. Kammann, brothers, have become associated in the rendition of the Kammann Advertising Service. Frederick Kammann resigns as head of the advertising service department of the Bureau of Engraving, Inc., to take up his new work and is succeeded by Harry P. Harper, from the Cramer-Krasselt Company.

Obituary

HARRY IRVING GREENE, novelist, short story writer, ex-newspaperman and member of the Press Club of Chicago, died September 25 at the Sheridan Park Hospital from injuries suffered in an automobile accident. Mr. Greene, who was 51 years old, spent most of his life traveling and camping in the less settled portions of the continent, although always making the Chicago Press Club his headquarters. He was a man of remarkable physique and has for years past been popularly known to all western and middle western newspapermen.

HENRY BROPHY, manager of the Toronto branch of the American News Company, died suddenly of heart disease while visiting in New York, September 23. He was 58 years old.

MRS. HORRITT CALISTA C. MCCABE, for many years editor of the Women's Home Missions, a Methodist Episcopal Church paper, died in Delaware, Ohio, September 25, aged 92 years. She was chairman of the committee which in 1877 formed the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

CHARLES ROSS DALE, age 48, financial editor of the Kansas City Journal, died September 26 following a three months' illness. Mr. Dale as a young man was well known as a singer. A widow, mother and two brothers survive.

ROBERT C. SORBY, age 45, for many years in the composing room of the Kansas City Star, is dead at the Union Printers' home, in Colorado Springs, Colo.

MRS. LOUISE S. BRITTON, wife of Mason Britton of the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company and a director of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, died suddenly, September 26, aged 37 years.

ALBERT BANCROFT BAILEY, financial editor of the Philadelphia Record, died October 6 after a year's illness. At various times he was also connected with the Newark (N. J.) News and the Tacoma Ledger. Mr. Bailey was the son of the late John W. Bailey, a leader in American journalism 25 years ago. The elder Bailey was managing editor of the Philadelphia Record for a number of years.

MRS. CAROLINE A. PLUMB, widow of former U. S. Senator Preston H Plumb, one of the pioneer newspaper men of Kansas, died September 29 at Emporia. Senator Plumb established the Emporia News shortly after the city was founded.

ROSCOE CONKLIN MASSENGALE, head of the bill-posting department of the Massengale Advertising Agency, Atlanta, died October 1 after several months' illness. He was one of four brothers in the Massengale firm. One, Gordon B, Massengale, died a year to the day of Roscoe's death. St. Elmo and W. R. Massengale are the surviving brothers.

WILLIAM GOW of Johnsville, N. Y., formerly business manager of the Troy (N. Y.) Press, who later owned and conducted street car advertising in New York City, and other cities of the country, as a member of the firm of Ward & Gow, is dead, after a brief illness. He retired to his farm a few years ago and engaged in the production of certified milk.

MRS. MARY JENNY REDGTON, widow of John M. Redington, who was for many years marine reporter for the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, died October 3, in Brooklyn, aged 62 years.

WILLIAM V. SLOCUM, who died in Providence October 1, in his 83d year, was about 25 years ago editor-in-chief of the Phenix (R. I.) Gleaner, editorials from which were printed throughout the country.

CHAUNCEY K. SANDERS, one of the best known newspapermen in western New York, died September 22. He founded the Nunda News, and organized the Livingston Press Association, serving as its first president in 1893. When Mr. Sanders went to Nunda, his possessions were in a one-horse wagon. Oscar Woodworth of the Dansville Express was with him and they worked together on the first issue of the Nunda News. Mr. Sanders is survived by three children, one of them, Walter B. Sanders, at present is editor of the News.

EDWARD J. CUDDIHY, brother of Robert Cuddihy, who is treasurer of the Literary Digest, died in New York, September 29.

JOHN ELEAZOR REMSBURG, aged 71, a pioneer Kansas author and lecturer, died at Portsville, Cal., September 23. Born in Ohio in 1848, he served in the Civil War and came to Kansas in 1870. A son, C. B. Remsberg, editor of the Kansas City (Kan.) News, survives.

MRS. LETTIE JAMLET NUNN, wife of J. E. Nunn, owner and publisher of the Amarillo (Tex.) Daily News, died at Colorado Springs September 22.

W. H. EDMONDSON, aged 80, father of C. W. Edmondson, advertising manager of the Coffeyville (Kan.) News, died in Chetopah, Kan., September 21, from paralysis.

Want An Ad Club in Jackson

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 8. — Business men are considering the formation of an advertising club. They believe the people of Jackson and surrounding country could be saved yearly thousands of dollars, which they now spend unprofitably, if there were an organization to teach them how to advertise and how to spend their appropriations wisely.

Profit Sharing in Little Rock

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 5. — The News is working out a plan whereby its mechanical department employes may secure stock in the company and have a representative on the board of directors. The News' new home is almost completed. A new press is expected late in October.

PREMIUMS
That Are Real Subscription Producers
S. BLAKE WILLSDEN
Manufacturers and Publishers Representative,
1806 Hayworth Building
29 E. Madison St. CHICAGO

THE INTERNATIONAL NEWS BUREAU, Inc.
15 SCHOOL STREET, BOSTON, MASS.
(J. J. ROSDAHL, Editor)
More than 120 American and Canadian newspapers subscribe to our service
Each week our subscribers receive between 30 and 50 columns of copy. Authoritative articles by men of international calibre on matters international, human interest stories from all lands and climes, revelations of European courts, speeches and addresses of men and women whose words influence the thought of nations, translations from every important foreign newspaper; these and numberless other items day after day are sent to our subscribers.
IN SHORT, MR. EDITOR—ESPECIALLY MR. SUNDAY EDITOR—WE CONSTANTLY SPREAD THE WORLD BEFORE YOU FROM ALL ANGLES.
You will find our monthly subscription rates surprisingly low.

WE SPEND MORE THAN $500,000
per year to produce the features which have created the greatest newspaper following in the world.
"Hearst's Features Always Lead"
Write for booklet.
"Half Million Dollar Feature Service"
The International Feature Service
246 West 59th Street

The True News FIRST
Always-Accurately
International News Service
World Bldg. New York

New Era Features
30 E. 42nd St., New York City
Forty Leading Papers Print Our Service
Send for our Headline History of the World War

Time and Money
Both time and money are saved by members of The Associated Newspapers who are securing a most effective feature service at a saving over former feature expense. Besides, they are building up for themselves a service of increasing value.
Write at once for terms of membership. Only a few cities now open.
The Associated Newspapers
170 Broadway New York

NEWSPAPER Feature Service
GET THE FEATURES THAT HAVE WON THE BIGGEST AUDIENCE
Write us for samples of our colored comics, daily and Sunday pages in black and colors.
Newspaper Feature Service
M. KOENIGSBERG, Manager
241 WEST 38TH ST. NEW YORK

Digitized by Google

EMPLOYES CAN'T BOSS NORTHCLIFFE

Will Stop His Papers Before He Will Be Dictated to on Strike Stand, He Tells Protesting Machine Managers

London, Oct. 3.—In reply to a letter addressed to him, saying: "We wish to enter a strong protest against the treatment meted out to the National Union of Railwaymen in the columns of your press, Lord Northcliffe has published the following declaration in the Mail:

"I am entirely satisfied with the attitude of my journals toward this national calamity, and rather than be dictated to by anyone or any body of men I will stop the publication of these newspapers, and have so informed the Newspaper Proprietors' Association."

Compositors and pressmen on the London newspapers have taken to themselves the right to censor expression of opinion in the newspapers.

Recently the compositors and pressmen held up the publication of The Daily Sketch until an editorial, strongly criticising the railway strikers, was deleted.

In another newspaper office publication was delayed by a demand by the workers that a Government advertisement, appealing to the public to help resist the strike, be thrown out, but the union leaders persuaded the men to withdraw their demand and remain at work.

The distribution of newspapers has been operated by motor truck, but the transport union men running the trucks and newspaper packers have placed every possible difficulty in the way.

Mahoney Admitted to the Bar

Chicago, Oct. 5.—"Eddie" Mahoney, formerly of the editorial staff of the Evening American, has just been admitted to the Illinois bar. He is taking a vacation before entering upon practice. He graduated the valedictorian of his class.

Bradley With Presbrey Agency

L. M. Bradley, well known veteran of the automotive industries until recently general manager of the Motor Accessory Manufacturers' Association, has been appointed to the representatives' staff of the Frank Presbrey Company, New York.

Tells of Casualty Division's Work

WILKES-BARRE, PA., Sept. 30—Col. Ernest G. Smith, general manager of the Times-Leader, who recently obtained his discharge from the army, described the work of the Army's Casualty division to the Kiwanis Club members recently. He said that although at one time 40,000 men of the A. E. F. were unaccounted for a recent report showed that the records of all but two soldiers, who had been reported missing in action, had been cleaned up.

NEW OVERTIME RULING

I. T. U. Orders Defined Law to Dispose of Controversies

The following order by President M. Scott, effective September 15, in newspaper chapels of the International Typographical Union governed by arbitration agreements with the A. N. P. A., is to dispose of controversies arising over the rate to be paid to men holding situations on seven-day papers who may be required to work on their designated day of rest:

"Local contracts made under the 1917-1922 International Arbitration Agreements require that situations shall be given out on a six-day or six-and-a-half basis, and under this rule foremen should designate the regular day or shift each week on which each employee shall not be required to report for duty. Necessary changes in this arrangement of the composing room force should be posted at the beginning of the financial week. Regular employes required to work more than two days in one financial week or on their designated day of rest should be paid overtime rates for such work.

"The above decision is not to be construed as giving approval to any evasion of any laborate law, nor shall it be construed as in any way affecting existing customs or working conditions or acts of foremen or verbal understandings covering double shifts on Saturday and Saturday nights.

"This decision to become effective September 15, 1919, and shall not be construed as upholding any claims prior to that date.

"The above decision to become effective on the date specified, and no claims for overtime paid for such work performed prior to that date will be sustained."

"What Went Ads Mean to Me"

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 2.—The Post-Intelligencer is collecting little stories on "What Ads Have Meant to Me," giving true accounts of positions it has gained by answering a newspaper classified advertisement. Prizes totaling $250 will be awarded to those submitting the best letters.

Woodhouse in "Big League" Movies

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 5.—J. Stewart Woodhouse, former dramatic critic for the Register and Tribune, has broken into the "big league" of the movie world. Mr. Woodhouse recently sold a screen story, "Speed Car," to the Famous Players-Lasky Company, thereby causing that firm to depart from an old custom of adaptations from printed books in favor of an original story.

Will Supervise the Census

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 5.—Three Kansas City newspaper men have been made supervisors of the census for their respective districts by the Department of Commerce. They are Capt. Ben S. Hudson, editor of the Fredonia Herald, Third District; W. C. Lansdon, publisher Salina Union, Fifth District, and J. Sidney Nye, telegraph editor Newton Journal, Eighth District.

New Cheyenne Daily Rumored

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 8.—It is rumored here that plans are being laid to start a labor daily in Cheyenne. The Wyoming Labor Journal, published here, is a weekly. Whether the new venture would be a step on the part of the weekly into the daily field or an entirely new enterprise was not intimated.

Salem Men Hold Re-union

Salem, Ore., Oct. 3.—George Putnam, who recently purchased the Capital Journal, was the guest of honor of the local newspaper colony at a recent luncheon. Frank Davey, pioneer newspaperman who wrote the first editorial for the Capital-Journal when it was established 31 years ago, presided as toastmaster. Twenty newspapermen attended.

Moulsby Succeeds Reynolds

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 6.—William S Maulsby, assistant city editor of the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, has become the head of the department of journalism at the University of Iowa. He will succeed Prof. Conger Reynolds now on the European staff of the Chicago Tribune.

SIR EDWARD COOK WAS NOTED JOURNALIST

Was Formerly Editor of London Daily News and Pall Mall Gazette, and Until Recently Head of the Press Bureau

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Sir Edward Tyas Cook, whose death was noted briefly in EDITOR & PUBLISHER last week, had a long and active career in English journalism and was until recently head of the Press Bureau, is dead, aged 62.

He was born at Brighton, England, and not long after his graduation from Oxford with first class classics he became a regular contributor to the Pall Mall Gazette, then under Morley's editorship. Later he succeeded to the position of the present Lord Milner as assistant to Mr. Stead, and on Mr. Stead's resignation he became editor in 1890, resigning two years later when the paper was bought by William Waldorf Astor.

There then followed three years as editor of the Westminster Gazette, on the invitation of Sir George Newnes. From 1896 to 1901 he held the editorship of the Daily News. Westminster College made him a Fellow in 1903. King George knighted him in 1912.

Sir Edward, in addition to his journalistic labors, found time to publish a long list of books, which he either edited or wrote himself.

The Test Town of the Country for the National Advertiser

Beloit, Wisconsin

Beloit has the largest oil-engine factory, the largest wood-working machinery plant in the world. It is the disc-grinding center of the United States. It makes great paper-machines. It has a total of 30 factories. Beloit is the heart of the richest agricultural and dairy region of the continent.

The people are highly educated and have $7,000,000 in deposits in local banks.

One paper—the Beloit Daily News. Circulation over 7,100. Rate, 2½ cents per agate line.

LOS ANGELES

EVENING HERALD

CIRCULATION

127,773

DAILY

FIRST IN EVERYTHING

Member A. B. C.

The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

supplies continuous daily and weekly services that make and hold home circulation

ALSO

Big Special Features on Timely Topics by Leading Writers

Send for our complete list and particulars of our star features, including Frank H. Simonds, Montague Glass and Sewell Ford.

N373 Fourth Ave., New York

The Newark (N. J.) Ledger

Is a 7-day Morning Associated Press Newspaper with all the HOME features, serial stories, comics, cartoons, women's pages, etc., usually found in afternoon papers.

DOROTHY DIX and HELEN ROWLAND have recently joined our staff. This gives the HOME folks a full day's reading instead of an hour or so in the evening.

Morning Edition, 2c
Sunday Edition, 5c

Have you considered the desirability of including the NORTH JERSEY SHORE in your advertising appropriation?

With the growing acuteness of the housing problem in New York hundreds of families are making their homes in the NORTH JERSEY SHORE SUBURBS. These new citizens, for the most part, are prosperous business men with their families and they offer a wonderfully responsive and reliable market.

If you would reach these prospective customers and thoroughly cover this section of New Jersey you can do so only by using

THE ASBURY PARK EVENING PRESS
and
THE SHORE PRESS (Sunday)

These papers dominate in their field and their past performance inspires the confidence of their readers.

Standard Rate Card Member A. B. C.
Frank R. Northrop, Special Representative, 30 Fifth Avenue, New York City, Association Building, Chicago, Illinois.

J. Lyle Kinmonth, Publisher,
Asbury Park, N. J.

The Mount Vernon, N. Y.

DAILY ARGUS

carries more display advertising than any other newspaper in Westchester County

This is on acknowledgement of its power that the advertiser should heed, if desirous of reaching the people of Mount Vernon

GEO. B. DAVID & CO.
Foreign Representative
171 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

The Pittsburg Dispatch

with its dominating influence brings advertisers paying results.

WALLACE G. BROOKE
Brunswick Building, New York
THE FORD-PARSONS CO.,
Peoples Gas Building, Chicago
R. J. BIDDLE
Real Estate Trust Building, Phila

New Orleans States

Member Audit Bureau of Circulation
Sworn Net Paid Circulation for 6 Months Ending April 1st, 1919
43,701 Daily

We guarantee the largest white home delivered evening circulation in the trade territory of New Orleans.

To reach a large majority of the trade prospects in the local territory of the States is the logical and economic medium.

Circulation data sent on request.

The S. C. Beckwith Special Agcy.
Sole Foreign Representatives
New York Chicago St. Louis

Digitized by Google

REPORTERS PROVED THEIR METTLE

Mingling With Mobs During Race Riot, Getting Caught in Fired Building, Taking Action Pictures, All in Day's Work

OMAHA, NEB., Oct. 6.—The recent riot in Omaha, when a negro was lynched, Mayor Smith was nearly lynched, the million dollar court house burned, and fifty-six persons wounded, was the biggest event Omaha daily newspapers have been called upon to cover since the great tornado of March, 1913.

The fact that the mob began to gather at 3 o'clock in the afternoon gave the papers ample time to collect their forces of reporters. Both the day and night shifts were called and from the first reporters for the Bee, News, and World-Herald, mingled with the raging mob to be close to the scenes of action.

Right in Center of Trouble

The courthouse stands no more than two blocks from any of the newspaper offices, while it is directly across the street from the Bee. As the Bee building overlooks the courthouse square, its photographer was able to mount his camera on a second story balcony built off the business office and command the finest kind of a view of the whole disturbance.

How closely reporters mingled with the action is illustrated by a few instances. In the raging sea of 15,000 rioters, it chanced to be a reporter who caught the handkerchief flung down from the roof, the officers conveying the message of surrender.

Again a reporter, J. Nash McRea, of the Daily Bee, was assaulted by the fire in the office of the Clerk of the District Court. The clerk himself chanced to be in the office working on his books. Escape was impossible after he mob gathered, for they fired upon anyone who showed himself at doors or windows.

McRea and the clerk were driven from corner to corner by the heat of the burning gasolene which was flung into the building in bucketfuls constantly.

Surprise at Escape

When the heat grew unbearable, they locked themselves into the vault, resigned to their fate, still hoping against hope that in some way the fire would be extinguished.

An hour later when the excitement had died down, they emerged to find the gasolene had burned itself out on the floors of the fireproof structure, that the mob was dispersing, and that the lynching had been accomplished.

With the exception of a little market, sports and editorial, the papers gave over their columns entirely to the riot story and abundant photographs, even succeeding in getting wounded rioters to expose their bullet wounds for the newspaper camera.

Orders to obtain all pictures and plates made by photographers during the riot have been issued by the military authorities. These will be used to assist in identifying those who took part in the lynching.

They Welcomed President

Portland, Ore., Oct. 3.—Portland newspaper men had a prominent part in the reception to President Wilson when he visited this city in his swing around the country. C. S. Jackson was chairman of the local committee on arrangements and also was host to Mr. and Mrs. Wilson at a luncheon attended by 200 prominent Oregonians. Edgar B. Piper, editor of the Oregonian, also was a member of the committee. B. F. Irvine, editorial writer of the Journal, introduced the President to the big audience he addressed in the Portland Auditorium.

Kitchener Papers Are Merged

TORONTO, Sept. 22.—Amalgamation of the two papers published in Kitchener, Ont., is announced, the Daily News-Record and the Ontario Journal, a weekly paper. The controlling interest in the amalgamated newspaper will be held by W. D. Euler, M. P., and W. J. Motz, who have purchased the stock of W. V. Utley, managing editor of the News-Record for many years.

Condemn Alien Papers

Portland, Ore., Oct. 5.—Papers printed in foreign languages are the target of the American Legion in Oregon. At a state convention it adopted strong resolutions demanding that all foreign language papers be required to print English translations in parallel columns.

Bon Voyage to Miss Hemming

Montreal, Oct. 7.—Miss Doris Hemming, a reporter on the Star, was tendered a farewell reception by the Women's Press Club of Montreal on the eve of her departure for Paris, where she will engage in free lance work.

TORONTO GLOBE ADVERTISES

Carries Advertisements in Ontario List to Win Circulation

TORONTO, ONT., Oct. 4.—The Globe is conducting an advertising campaign in all daily newspapers and 5 farm papers in the Province of Ontario to increase its circulation. The confidence of the publishers of the Globe in daily newspaper advertising is such that a schedule of 7,800 lines has been laid out for the daily within the next ten weeks and a schedule of 4,300 lines for the farm list within nine weeks.

Flaherty Went to Norwalk

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 5.—When Norwalk had its Welcome Home celebration for returned service men on September 17 it produced a complex situation in the Bridgeport Times-Farmer office. Thomas E. Flaherty and C. Elliott DeForest are Norwalk residents and service men. Both wanted to attend the celebration, but only one could attend, and Flaherty was the fortunate one. He was a lieutenant with the 76th Division in France.

Aged Editor Honored

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 8.—Friends and associates of George Wurts, associate editor of the Press-Guardian, covered his desk with flowers and sent him many telegrams of congratulation on the recent occasion of his ninetieth birthday anniversary. Mr. Wurts is enjoying fine health and continues his active connection with the paper.

Condemns Censorship

Seattle, Oct. 4.—Vigorous condemnation of the policy of military and civil authorities in placing a censorship on news from the devastated areas of Corpus Christi, Tex., following the flood, was made editorially in the Seattle Times.

"Anything more absurd than a censorship from a devastated area could not be imagined," said the Times. "The whole country was hanging on the news from the stricken region in Texas. The country's hand was in its pocket and it was waiting to be told how much will be needed to succor the unfortunates."

Judd Succeeds Flandrau

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 5.—W. W. Judd, telegraph editor of the Pioneer Press, has been made dramatic and music editor of the Dispatch-Pioneer Press, succeeding Charles M. Flandrau, who is motoring to the Pacific coast. Hamilton Johnson succeeds Mr. Judd as telegraph editor.

Paper for Portland Radicals

Portland, Ore., Oct. 5.—The radical element of the Portland Central Labor Council has established a new paper, the Portland Labor News. Its purpose is to oppose the Portland Labor Press, the official organ of the Labor Council.

Casper Herald Is a New Daily

CHEYENNE, WYO., Oct. 8.—The Casper Daily Herald is a new morning daily. It takes over the plant and equipment of the old Casper Press, which went out of business but a short time ago.

To Handle Yiddish Advertising

H. L. Sternfeld, late of the Day, has organized the Yiddish Publicity Service in New York to handle Yiddish advertising and deal in publications printed in that language.

Food Medium of New Jersey

Trenton Times

A. B. C.

2c—12c Per Week

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY
20 Fifth Avenue — Lytton Building
NEW YORK — CHICAGO

CLINCHING THE CAMPAIGN
The Merchandising Service Department of the
BOSTON AMERICAN
Helps to assure and insure dealer cooperation, the successful clinching of your advertising and sales campaign
Govt. Statement for Six Months Ending April 1st
301,270

TO REACH THE RICH TRADE OF KANSAS
Topeka Daily Capital
Sworn Government Report for 6 Months ending Oct. 1, 1919
33,137
Its sales promotion department is at the service of advertisers. And it really promotes.
Member A. B. C. — Publisher.

THE PEOPLE OF NEW LONDON, CONN. have money to spend for nationally advertised goods. The city was never as prosperous as it is today.
Advertise your goods at dawn and sell them before dark
The NEW LONDON TELEGRAPH
JULIAN D. MORAN, Pres. and Mgr.
Representatives
Payne-Burns & Smith, New York—Boston
J. Logan Payne Co. — Chicago—Detroit

Perth Amboy, N. J.
Most Rapidly Growing City in East
Thoroughly Covered by Only Daily in Field.
Evening News
Member A. N. P. A., A. B. C., A. P.
Reasonable requests for trade information given prompt attention.
F. R. Northrup, 303 5th Avenue
New York City

Des Moines Register and Tribune
104,858 Daily
Morning and Evening
71,240 SUNDAY
Net Paid Average Six Months ending September 30, 1919
Member A. B. C.

The Dominating Force
In a manufacturing territory famous for its hustle, thrift and prosperity where a million dollars are expended weekly in wages.
The Bridgeport Post
Standard-Telegram
Not only dominate this field, but they offer advertisers the lowest rate obtainable in New England. Keep them on your list.
FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVES
J. O. Klein,
Metropolitan Bldg., New York.
John Glass,
Peoples' Gas Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The
Pittsburg Press
Has the Largest
Daily and Sunday
CIRCULATION
IN PITTSBURG
Member A. B. C.
Foreign Advertising Representatives
Metropolitan Tower, Peoples Gas Bldg.
I. A. KLEIN, JOHN GLASS,
New York, Chicago.

Digitized by Google

SUPPLIES & EQUIPMENT
For Newspaper Making
WANTED — FOR SALE

ARGUE NEWS PRINT PRICES IN COURT

A. N. P. A. Counsel Asks Circuit Judges to Admit New Testimony Regarding Production Cost—Alleges Unfair Charges

The contention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association that news print prices established by the Federal Trade Commission as of May 1 and July 1, 1918, in its supplemental findings last October, were exorbitant was argued before the U. S. Circuit Court in New York City, on Monday. The court reserved its decision.

The hearing was on application made by Acting Attorney General Alex C. King, as trustee for the publishers under its arbitration agreement with the Federal Trade Commission and the paper manufacturers. George W. Wickersham appeared for the publishers and Henry A. Wise represented the manufacturers.

It is the desire of the publishers that the Circuit Court set aside the findings of the Federal Trade Commission, fixing prices of $72.25 per ton and $75.05 per ton as of May 1 and July 1, 1918, respectively, and re-establish the price of $70 per ton fixed by the Circuit Judges in reviewing arbitrators, as of May 1, 1918, and thereafter.

The Canadian Figures

To establish the alleged justice of this revision of prices, counsel for the publishers sought at the hearing on Monday to have introduced later as evidence, reports by the Canadian accountant, Geoffrey T. Clarkson, as to manufacturing costs of Canadian manufacturers, subsequent to April 1, 1918. These reports were in evidence in the proceedings in Canada and formed the basis, with respect to costs, for the Paper Control Tribunal's finding of a price of $66 per ton from July 1, 1918, to November 30, 1918.

"If costs had increased subsequent to April 1, 1918, to the extent of $10 per ton, as claimed by the Canadian manufacturers before the Paper Control Tribunal," it was argued for the publishers at the hearing, Monday, "it is inconceivable that the Tribunal, having before it the full record upon which the U. S. Circuit judges had fixed a maximum price of $70 at April 1, 1918, would have established a price of $4 less per ton to apply from July 1, 1918, to November 30, 1918."

Would Stand Expense

In asking the Circuit Court Judges to admit additional evidence showing the cost of production at Canadian mills, counsel for the publishers said that the American Newspaper Publishers' Association was willing to pay the expense of having testimony taken in Canada, if the Government had no money to meet this expense.

"This evidence is material," it was argued, "in that it will establish that, contrary to the representations of the manufacturers, costs, at least as to four of the mills, did not increase after April 1, 1918, but, on the contrary, despite advances in labor and freight, were less than in the months prior to that date.

"This will confirm what has already been pointed out—that the increases upon which new prices were obtained by the manufacturers were not of general application and therefore not of such character as to justify any increase in price.

"Proof that the increases in labor and freight costs are not of general application and in some cases, at least, are of set purpose in order to create aspects will demonstrate that the loss to the publishers from the granting of a horizontal increase in prices without obtaining and averaging the costs of all the mills is actual and substantial and not theoretical only.

It was argued by Attorney Wise, on behalf of the manufacturers, that the American publishers should not be permitted to introduce such evidence regarding manufacturing costs because "they had already had their day in court"—that is, that it should properly have introduced this evidence before the Federal Trade Commission.

In reply to this, counsel for the publishers argued:

Evidence Was Not Obtainable

"No point can be made that there were not reasonable grounds for the failure to adduce this evidence before the Commission.

"The cost figures were not in existence at the time of the hearings before the Commission on July 29 and 30, 1918. They were first used in Canada, we are informed, about the time, late in September, 1918, that Commissioner Finlay fixed the price of $66, effective the preceding July 1. They were not known to the publishers or their counsel until the middle of October, but within two or three days thereafter were placed before the Commission.

"The record of this proceeding shows the further diligent efforts made by the publishers to have this evidence taken before and considered by the Commission. They were unsuccessful and therefore had no alternative but to ask your Honors to receive the evidence pursuant to the power granted by the provisions of the Attorney General's memorandum.

"Furthermore, in considering this application it should be borne in mind that the cost figures of the Canadian mills for the last period, April 1, to November 30, 1918, upon the basis of which the Canadian price just announced was fixed, were not in existence when the Supplemental Findings of the Commission were announced on October 19, 1918.

"Had the Commission withheld decision until these figures were obtained, as it was requested to do, and should have done, the increased prices would never have been granted."

Rhodes Off for Consular Post

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 5.—Russell H. Rhodes, late of the Courant staff, sailed Tuesday on the Cedric for London, England, where he will take up his duties as a United States Vice-Consul. Mr. Rhodes recently passed the American legion and received the first membership card issued in Hartford.

W. G. Vorpe's Mother Dead

Cleveland, O., Sept. 30.—W. G. Vorpe, Sunday and feature editor of the Plain Dealer, was called to Kenton, O., last week by the death of his mother, who had been an invalid for some time.

New Account for Woodwards

Aurora, Ill., Oct. 8.—Advertising of the Allsteelequip Company has been placed in charge of Woodwards, Inc.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE

Advertisements under this classification thirty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Goss Sextuple Press For Sale

At sacrifice for immediate acceptance—Sextuple Goss press with color attachment, eight columns, twelve ems, 21¾ inch cut; factory rebuilt two years ago; perfect condition. Also semi-autoplate, pot and pump. This press has been in use on the Bridgeport (Conn.) Post and can be seen standing. Subject to prior sale. Address J. H. B., Box 1677, Boston, Mass.

For Sale

Alt in good condition. Copper steam boiler for making stereotypers paste. Two platen size steam table with apron. Perfecting Flexitype mat dryer, flat. Small strong upright boiler for steam table. Great bargains. The Evening Day, New London, Conn.

For Sale

We have use of 33 inch rolls; can't use; must have 33½ inch; who will trade? Wire at once. The Herald, Reading, Pa.

INCORPORATIONS

New York.—American-Jewish News, $35,000; M. and S. J. Cohen, L. J. Gribetz, 383 Grand street.

Belknap Display Advertiser; dissolved. B. F. Buck & Co., printers and booksellers; $10,000; W. W. Reeves, P. D. Benson, A. E. Claffey, 154 Nassau street.

Applied Advertising Agency; $20,000; 42 Broadway.

Snodgrass & Gayness; $30,000; H. E. and R. T. Snodgrass, S. Gayness, Forest Hills, N. Y.

New Haven, Conn.—A. & S. Corporation, advertising; $7,000; Harry L. Slover, Edward J. Adams, Clarence G. Willard.

Philadelphia. — Downs Publishing Company; $500,000; George M. Downs, Jr., M. L. Downs and William Spier of Philadelphia; Charles J. Coleman, resident agent in Wilmington, Del. (Delaware corporation.)

Okmulgee, Okla.—Journal Publishing Company; $5,000; O. L. Allen, Z. E. Aiken and L. G. Agard.

Wilmington, Del.—Great America Publishing Society; $75,000; Harry D. Craig, John S. King, George B. Read, all of New York.

Davenport, Ia.—Tribune Publishing Company; $50,000; Walter Braehe, Harold Metcalf.

Alva, Okla.—Review-Courier Publishing Company; $3,000; L. A. and L. E. Willhite, H. A. Noah.

Tulsa, Okla.—Superior Art Printery; $3,000; J. L. Schmidt, V. V. Staats, G. B. Rhodes.

Seguin, Tex.—Co-Operative Publishing Company; $18,000; Edwin Eberhard, W. H. Bryan, Emil Halm.

Co-Operation Now Reigns

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 26.—W. C. Jarnagin, managing editor of the Capital, discussed "An Editorial View of Advertising" before the Advertising Men's Club, September 23. Mr. Jarnagin contended that the antipathy between the editorial and advertising departments, which semed so necessary years ago, has disappeared. In its place has come a general understanding that there must be co-operation between the two. It was the last meeting of the admen before removing to quarters in the New Savery Hotel.

Held Big Golf Tournament

Winnipeg, Oct. 4.—A golf tournament under the auspices of the Free Press and the Manitoba Golf Association has proved a great success at Winnipeg. Two thousand dollars was raised for prizes.

For Prompt Service
TYPE
Printers' Supplies
Machinery
In Stock for Immediate Shipment by Selling Houses conveniently located
"American Type the Best in Any Case"
AMERICAN
TYPE FOUNDERS CO.
Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Richmond, Atlanta, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Spokane, Winnipeg

FOR SALE
Hoe Matrix Rolling Machines in good condition.
Can be shipped at once.
Scott Flat Plate Casting Boxes casts plates 18 x 24 inches. Send for prices.
WALTER SCOTT & CO.,
Plainfield New Jersey

Take It To
POWERS
Open 24 hours out of 24
The Fastest Engravers on the Earth
Powers Photo Engraving Co.
154 Nassau St., Tribune Bldg.
New York City

Printing Plants and Business
BOUGHT AND SOLD
Printers' Outfitters
American Typefounders' Products
Printers and Bookbinders Machinery of Every Description
CONNER, FENDLER & CO
96 Beekman St. New York City

Digitized by Google

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING COLUMNS

Through the classified columns of Editor & Publisher you may find a buyer for any useful mechanical equipment for which you have no present need. A "For Sale" ad at thirty cents per line may thus turn into cash something which now merely requires storage room—and which would be of real service to somebody else.

SITUATIONS WANTED

Advertisements under this classification, ten cents per line, each insertion. Count six words to the line. For those unemployed, not to exceed 10 words, two insertions FREE.

Mr. Publisher or Business Manager

Are you satisfied with your present circulation? Do you contemplate a campaign for increased business this fall? This is your opportunity to engage the services of an expert to direct the energies of your circulation department. Over fifteen years' experience on morning and evening and Sunday circuit of metropolitan newspapers east and west. Experienced in every department among newsboys, carriers, and city and country dealers. Can furnish references in N. Y. P. work and contents of every description. Am seeking permanent connection as circulation director, but would consider proposition for special work in any department. Address A-825, care of Editor and Publisher.

Business Manager and Advertising Man

With a clean record of twenty years' continuous work, having sold interest, would like to connect with paper. Among which time has done work for years as ad-vertising men. Address A-900, care of Editor and Publisher.

Advertising Manager

Thoroughly competent, excellent record, wide successful experience, both metropolitan and suburban, desires change, best of ability, recommended as to ability and character. Address A-926, care of Editor and Publisher.

Opportunity Wanted

Competent editor-manager with unusual record will consider a proposition with or without interest. Foreign of daily in South Atlantic or New England states preferred. University graduate, 34 years old, capable of work from the case to the desk. At liberty now. Reason: ownership sale of property now built up. Address A-901, care of Editor and Publisher.

Two Young Live Newspaper Men

Now employed on one of country's leading morning dailies desire day work. Experienced in all lines of newspaper work and foll of "pep." Either street or desk work on afternoon paper in New England or Pennsylvania will be considered. Will not accept under $40 per week. Address A-899, care of Editor and Publisher.

Editorial Writer

Young man, twelve years' experience, four as down in Dutch and Mid-West, desires position on Michigan daily. Cover City Hall run, preferably no night work excepting council. Salary, forty dollars week. Write 2309 Gratiot Avenue, Port Huron, Michigan.

Mr. Magazine Publisher

Circulation manager at present employed on large metropolitan newspaper desires to make change. Would prefer magazine field. Has always been successful in producing larger circulations on any publication where have been employed. Address A-895, care of Editor and Publisher.

Experienced Copy Editor

wishes permanent position in New York or Philadelphia. Is married, sober, reliable, and can write heads to suit your style; will come on probation. C. J. T., care Editor and Publisher.

Circulation Manager

Now has charge of that department on a well known daily, but desires a change for the best of reasons. Have had 20 years' circulation experience on "big" papers and have always "made good." Familiar with all up-to-date methods of handling circulation. Best of references. Age 38. Address A-904, care of Editor and Publisher.

HELP WANTED

Advertisements under this classification, twenty-five cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Classified Man

Wanted—Energetic man, whose experience proves he is capable of developing a classified department on a morning newspaper in a city of 100,000. Applicants must furnish references and state salary required. Address A-862, care of Editor and Publisher.

Advertising Man, and Cartoonist.

Wanted—Competent advertising man and young cartoonist. Will pay good salary and also want the latter to devote some time to special writing. Clarksdale Daily Register, Clarksdale, Miss.

HELP WANTED

Advertising Solicitor Wanted

Wanted one or two bright, clever newspaper advertising solicitors between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-eight preferred on one of our travelling staffs, soliciting advertising for our permanent "Weekly Industrial" page which we are condensing for many of the large daily newspapers throughout this country and Canada. From one to three months in each city. Single men preferred. Commission basis and money advanced for transportation and drawing accounts for living expenses. Unusual opportunity for the right kind of young men. Offers wonderful education by continually rolling on our big business men. Reply in own handwriting, stating age and past newspaper or selling experience, and salary where last employed. John B. Gallaher Co., Metropolitan Office, Ninth Floor, Dexter Bldg., Boston, Mass.

Composing Room Foreman

Wanted an efficient and experienced composing room foreman in a non-union open-shop city. Must be a hustler, capable of handling help, good details, references and salary expected in first letter. Address A-903, care of Editor and Publisher.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

Advertisements under this classification, forty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Mr. Advertisement

is the advertising business. I wish to secure advertising in Chicago territory for two or more papers to trade or syndicate materials. Only want good ones. I deliver the goods. References given. Address R. Ego, 853 People's Gas Bldg., Chicago.

Wanted

A well equipped newspaper man with highest references desires to lease small daily where there's opportunity to grow. Address Charles Young, 228 Lawrence St., Petersburg, Va.

FEATURE SERVICES

Advertisements under this classification thirty cents per line. Count six words to the line.

Poetry and Humor Column

New and original every day. My private rates are low. Shall I supply you with one week's copy free? Address A F8, care of Editor and Publisher.

NOTICE

INTERNATIONAL PAPER CO.
New York, September 24, 1919.

The Board of Directors have declared a regular quarterly dividend of one and one-half per cent. (1½%) on the preferred capital stock of this Company payable October 15th, 1919, to preferred stockholders of record at the close of business October 7th, 1919.

OWEN SHEPHERD, Treasurer.

Will Promote Harvester Show

Houston, Tex., Oct. 5.—George E. Kepple, formerly publicity man for war work in Houston, has been made the publicity work for the National Rice Harvester Tractor Demonstration to be held here September 30-October 1. A big campaign of advertising will be put on by him for the tractor and the city of Houston.

Benson Chief Space Buyer

Chicago, Oct. 7. — W. V Benson has been appointed chief space buyer in the local office of Nelson, Chesman & Co. Mr. S. W. Nelson will hereafter be in charge of the promotion department. W. A. Wood is a new member of the copy staff.

Parrott Resumes Editorial Work

Clay Center, Kan., Oct. 5.—F. W. Parrott, former editor, has taken the management of the Dispatch-Republican. Mr. Parrott retired four years ago to enter other business. A group of local business men have secured control of the paper.

NEW HOME AND EQUIPMENT

Griffin News and Sun Is One of the Oldest Georgia Dailies

Griffin, Ga., Oct. 7.—The News and Sun has just moved into a handsome new home, occupying the ground floor in the new Drewry-Burn building. It is one of the oldest newspapers in the State, having been established in 1871 as a daily paper.

The present editor and publisher is Robert L. Duke, who has been connected with the newspaper for many years and for the past five years has been in active and complete charge. In addition to moving into a new home the paper has installed a new Whitlock press, cabinets and other modern equipment.

Fine Winter Program Promised

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 7.—The Advertising Club plans to wage a vigorous campaign for new members during the coming winter and some advantageous meetings already programmed these to be addressed by men who are considered experts in advertising. The Scranton club is only a few years old, but ranks with the most active advertising organizations in the country.

McEvoy's Work in Book Form

Chicago, Oct. 5.—J. P. McEvoy, rhyming columnist for the Tribune, has collected the best of his "Slams of Life" output into a volume, which has just been issued from the press. McEvoy's work is of the topical sort, replete with trick phraseology that reminds one of the late W. S. Gilbert developed along modern lines. Prior to joining the Tribune several years ago McEvoy handled a similar column on the old Herald.

Sets New Minnesota Record

St. Paul, Oct. 6.—The South St. Paul Daily Reporter signalized the establishment of an Armour plant in the great packing yards in that city by getting out an "Industrial Edition" of sixty-eight pages in seventen sections. It was the largest paper ever issued in Minnesota outside the three largest cities.

Work Starts on New "I. P." Mill

Montreal, Oct 5. — Over 200 men are already at work on the International Paper Company's new plant at Three Rivers, P. Q. The company has decided to build a plant that will comprise eighteen individual units or buildings, the total cost being in excess of $6,000,000. It is expected that the plant will be completed within two years.

Bleyer and Tuttle Start Agency

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Clifford Bleyer, Roger Tuttle and Donald R. Wegg are the organizers of a new advertising agency in this city, to be conducted under the name of the Clifford Bleyer Company. Mr. Bleyer has been with the Collins-Kirk Company and Mr. Tuttle with Critchfield & Co.

Mason Agency Enlarges Staff

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 4.—The C. Henry Mason Advertising Agency has added Howard K. Hollister, late of System and the J. Walter Thompson Company, to its staff.

$50,000 for investment in a New York state daily newspaper property. Either politics. Proposition T. F.

Charles M. Palmer
Newspaper Properties
225 Fifth Ave. New York

CONSOLIDATION

is the recognized route to large returns in nearly every line of commercial industry.

We believe that publishing properties offer one of the most attractive of all the methods for growth and consolidation.

We have a record of results in this difficult work that you should investigate.

HARWELL & CANNON
Newspaper and Magazine Properties
Times Building New York

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912, of

THE EDITOR AND PUBLISHER

published weekly at New York, for October 1, 1919.

State of New York, County of New York, ss.:

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and County aforesaid, personally appeared James W. Brown, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Secretary of THE EDITOR AND PUBLISHER, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business manager are:

Publisher, J. W. Brown.
224 Valentine Lane, Yonkers, N. Y.
Editor, J. W. Brown.
707 West 179th St., New York, N. Y.
Managing Editor, John Clyde Oswald.
642 West 158th St., New York, N. Y.
General Business Manager, Frederick Roy Martin.
94 West 160rd St., New York, N. Y.
Business Manager, Franklin Matthews.
447 East 4th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

2. That the owners are:

THE EDITOR AND PUBLISHER CO., 63 Park Row, N. Y. City; James Wright Brown, 24 Valentine Lane, Yonkers, N. Y.; Nelson Da Witt, 37 So. Maple Ave., Orange, N. J.; H. Tipper Owens, Ocean Beach, Fire Pl.; George P. Leffler, 31 Bennett Ave., New York City.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent. or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of the bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest, direct or indirect, in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

JAMES W. BROWN

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 30th day of September, 1919.

MADELINE COHEN
(My commission expires April 2, 1920.

Doupree Returns to Work

Indianapolis, Oct. 9.—Herman G. Doupree, home after two years in France where he attained the rank of first lieutenant, has joined the Russell M. Seeds Company. He was formerly assistant sales and advertising manager of the Remy Electric Company of Anderson, Ind., and the first automobile editor of the Indianapolis Star.

Digitized by Google

PRINGLE TO RESUME HEARING TODAY

Canadian Newsprint Inquiry to Be Resumed — Controller Believes Production Will Be Increased 15,000 Tons This Year

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 9—R. A. Pringle, Canadian Paper Controller, will resume readings today in regard to the fixing of Canadian newsprint prices. This date was decided upon after conference between the paper mills and the newspaper publishers. Mr. Pringle favors an abolition of all control of prices as soon as possible, now that the war is over, but it seems likely that there will be a limited control of the pulp and paper industry for some time yet.

Discussing the question of control of prices Mr. Pringle said today:

"So far as paper is concerned there are still serious transportation difficulties and the Scandinavian countries are not able to send their product to America as cheaply as they did before the war.

Wants Control Relinquished

"But both in Great Britain and in the United States state control was a failure and was abandoned. I think it is a fundamental rule that the state should not interfere in any business or enterprise that may be more economically and effectively carried on by private control unless its public character makes it necessary.

"The state should not interfere in prices, rates, wages, hours or any other matters whose proper settlement can only be found in the quotations on a free and untrammelled market. The government has no right to control individual liberty beyond what is necessary for the safety and well-being of society.

"I think that the government was absolutely justified in assuming control owing to the conditions which arose after the war, but I think they should relinquish control as soon as we get back to normal times and conditions.

Sees Big Increased Production

"It has been suggested that prices might be kept down by shutting off exports This would be a disastrous move for the country as the pulp and paper industry is one of the most important Canada has.

"The fixation of profits is an infinitely detailed operation. Wages and other factors are constantly changing and you no sooner get a price fixed than some of the variable factors move to upset its fairness. I think it is an almost impossible task to fix prices on all commodities. It is a question of fact to be determined in millions of different cases.

The amalgamation of the two leading progressive Jewish newspapers of New York

THE DAY
and
THE WARHEIT

brings into being the most powerful advertising medium in the Jewish field.

דער טאג

The National Jewish Daily

Editor & Publisher for October 9, 1919

We have been passing through abnormal conditions with economic chaos and upheavals in nearly every country in the world. All kinds of suggestions to bring down the prices are being tried out, but supply has to catch up with demand."

That there will be an enormous increase in the production of Canadian newsprint mills, which may help to relieve the situation is evident from recent announcements. The estimate of an expert on the subject places the increased production within the next year of 500 tons daily or 150,000 tons a year, which would bring the total production in Canada to 850,000 tons

NEARLY STAYED IN RUSSIA

Morgan Had Job Refusing Officers' Commission from Kolchak

Hutchinson, Kan., Sept. 23—Kansas and the mid-West came very near losing one of its prominent newspapermen when William Y. Morgan, the well-known owner and publisher of the Hutchinson News, was offered a commission as major in the Russian army, fighting under Admiral Kolchak. Only his intense desire to get back to Kansas prevented him from accepting, friends say.

The offer came to Mr. Morgan while he was with the Y. M. C. A. in France, where he did much work with the 35th and 89th divisions, in which were many Kansas boys, and later with the army of occupation in Germany. He professed to having some previous military experience as a private in a Lawrence (Kan.' state militia company and with the Sons of Veterans.

Eaton to Edit Colorgraphic for N. Y. Tribune

Briggs' Book of Cartoons Off Press, Gurnee Retires After 24 Years Service

Lawrence Harris has resigned as editor of the New York Tribune's Colorgraphic Section and Frank A. Eaton, editor of the Tribune Graphic, has been appointed his successor. Mr. Harris is visiting at his home in New Rochelle, N. Y., and will announce his plans shortly.

T. C. Gurnse, who has been connected with the business office for the past twenty-four years, has resigned to become New York manager of "Pacific Ports," an export magazine with headquarters in Seattle. Mr. Gurnse was one of the oldest (in years of service) of Tribune employees.

R. J. Bidwell Co.

Pacific Coast Representative

Daily Newspapers
of
"Advertising Value"

Rates, Circulation, Special Data,
Promptly Upon Request

PACIFIC COAST OFFICES
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SAN FRANCISCO SEATTLE
742 Market St. 1302 L. C. Smith Bldg.

W. C. Johnson isn't satisfied with the big volume of business that just comes rolling into him up in the Tribune Syndicate office. He's gone out after more and is now visiting Kansas City, St. Louis, and other western cities.

Arthur S. Draper of the London office, is home on a vacation and is spending most of his time at Centerport, L. I. Mr. Getty has charge of the London office in Mr. Draper's absence.

Walter Carnahan of the advertising staff was the Tribune's representative at the annual convention of the A. A. C. W. Porter is well known below the Mason and Dixon Line on account of his former connection with the Beckwith Agency, when he represented several Southern newspapers.

Briggs' new book of cartoons, "Married Life," is off the press.

Denies It Is Subsidized

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 4—Charges that the government has subsidized the Veteran, official organ of the Great War Veteran's Association of Canada are given an emphatic denial by the executive of the Association, which says the entire stock is owned and controlled by the veterans' organization. Edward Groves has been appointed business manager and C. G. Campbell, formerly with the Analyst of Toronto, and the New York Times, is now advertising manager.

Gibbs Joins Goodrich Company

Akron, Ohio, Oct. 7—E. D. Gibbs has beco appointed director of advertising of the B. F. Goodrich Company. He will have general charge of all publicity. E. C. Tibbitts, who has been advertising manager for a period of over twenty years, will continue in the same position.

A Publisher's Opinion of S. & M. Service

Mr. B. F. Lawrence,
The Indianapolis Star,
City.

Dear Mr. Lawrence:

The New Standard with the Schworm-Mandel Service July 1st. Up to that time we had a very considerable time with New York advertisers and agencies in getting their advertising billed promptly, because so many agencies and advertisers were complaining about non-delivery and checking copies.

On hand, I should say the Schworm-Mandel Service has reduced such complaints to a minimum, perhaps 10%, and our experience with the organization thus far has been very satisfactory.

The cost is comparatively small, and I believe we have fully that in postage and expense in handling extra copies. In addition, we have an absolute check on the agencies and they are not able to hold up their bills claiming non-receipt of papers or pages.

Very truly yours,
THE INDIANAPOLIS NEWS,
(Signed) F. T. Carroll,
Advertising Manager.

Cooperative Service of Schworm-Mandel Inc
450 Fourth Ave. N.Y. 1705-7200 Madison Sq.

Canadian Press Clippings.

The problem of covering the Canadian Field is answered by obtaining the service of

The Dominion Press
Clipping Agency

which gives the clippings on all matters of interest to you, printed in over 95 per cent. of the newspapers and publications of CANADA.

We cover every foot of Canada and Newfoundland, at our head office,
74-76 Church St., Toronto, Can.

Piece of service, regular press clipping rates—special rates and discounts to Trades and Newspapers.

KING ALBERT THANKS THE NEWSPAPERS

Sends His Message of Appreciation of New York's Welcome Through Press—Bids Reporters Good-bye on Leaving

As King Albert was about to board the train to take him from New York to Boston he shook the hands of several newspapermen and made the following statement, which is the first formal interview obtained from the Belgian ruler since he landed on American soil:

"I wish you would convey through the newspapers, our sincere thanks for the splendid receptions we have received in your wonderful city and the beautiful sense of sympathy your people have shown for our country We have all been impressed with what we have seen of your city.

"I also wish to thank the newspapers for their sympathetic reception."

Hughes—Sandera Wedding

Charles H. Hughes, a member of the New York Times staff, and Miss Kathleen Sanders of Carrothersville, Mo., were married at St. Stephen's Church, New York City, with a nuptial mass September 19. They are spending their honeymoon in the Pocono Mountains until October 15.

New Gary Truck Ad Manager

Cincinnati, Oct. 8.—R. C. Crowthers has resigned as automobile editor of the Commercial Tribune to become advertising manager of the Gary Motor Truck Company, Gary, Ind.

BUFFALO NEWS
EDWARD H. BUTLER
Editor and Publisher
"The only Buffalo newspaper that censors its advertising columns. Many of our advertisers use our columns exclusively. The above is one of the many reasons why."
MEMBER A. B. C.
Foreign Advertising Representatives
"G. LOGAN SMITH COMPANY"
220 Fifth Avenue Lytton Building
NEW YORK CHICAGO

We can increase your business—you want it increased.

You have thought of press clippings yourself. But let us tell you how press clipping can be made a business-builder for you.

BURRELLE
145 Lafayette St., N. Y. City
Established a Quarter of a Century

Hemstreet's
PRESS
CLIPPINGS
Tenth Avenue at 45th Street
New York

Digitized by Google

A Hint to the wise food advertiser!

SELECT LIST of NEW ENGLAND NEWSPAPERS

MASSACHUSETTS—Population, 3,605,522

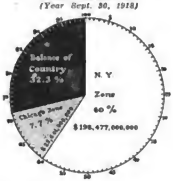
	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Boston Advertiser and American .....(S)	365,660	.40	.40
Boston American....(E)	301,270	.42	.42
Boston Globe.....(ME)	293,781	.30	.30
Boston Globe.....(S)	329,781	.35	.35
Boston Post.....(M)	459,603	.45	.45
Boston Post.....(S)	367,074	.35	.35
Boston Record.....(E)	50,650	.15	.15
Boston Transcript....(E)	29,820	.20	.20
Fall River Herald....(E)	9,419	.025	.025
Fitchburg Daily News (E)	5,605	.0178	.0178
Fitchburg Sentinel....(E)	6,912	.025	.01785
*Haverhill Gazette....(E)	13,819	.035	.025
Lynn Item.....(E)	15,121	.05	.0333
‡Lynn Telegram-News .....(E&S)	15,221	.04	.04
Lowell Courier-Citizen .....(ME)	16,780	.035	.035
New Bedford Standard-Mercury .....(ME)	26,674	.05	.05
Salem News.....(E)	18,355	.055	.04
MAINE—Population, 762,787.
Portland Express....(E)	25,263	.06	.045
Portland Telegram....(S)	21,846	.045	.035
RHODE ISLAND—Population, 591,215
Pawtucket Times....(E)	23,752	.06	.04
Providence Bulletin..(E)	55,300	.12	.12
Providence Journal (M*S)	32,082	.075*10	.075*10
‡Providence Tribune (E)	26,725	.07	.07
Westerly Sun.....(E)	4,223	.02	.015
Woonsocket Call-Reporter .....(E)	11,888	.04	.03
VERMONT—Population, 361,205
Barre Times.....(E)	6,765	.0214	.0143
Burlington Daily News(E)	8,200	.02	.02
Burlington Free Press .....(M)	10,489	.025	.025
CONNECTICUT—Population, 1,114,756
Bridgeport Post-Standard-Telegram .....(M&S)	45,463	.095	.09
Bridgeport Post.....(S)	13,205	.045	.04
Hartford Courant....(MS)	24,745	.06	.05
Hartford Times.....(E)	36,055	.07	.07
New Haven Journal-Courier .....(M)	15,101‡	.04	.035*
New Haven Register...(E)	26,959	.065	.055
New London Day....(E)	11,636	.034	.03
New London Telegraph .....(M)	4,830	.0128	.0128
Waterbury Republican .....(MS)	10,762	.035*	.025

*Rate on 3,500 lines.
Government Statements, April 1st, 1919.
‡A. B. C. April 1st, 1919.

New England is a bigger buyer OUTSIDE, in proportion to its size than any similar territory.

Having seven per cent of the country's entire population, it must purchase three-fourths of its food supply from other states.

That is a big order!



But it can well afford it. It is the most highly organized, densely populated and accumulating territory and makes enough money from what it SELLS to please itself in food specialties.

It is the COVETED market of the specialty manufacturers.

AND THE NEW ENGLAND DAILY NEWSPAPERS HAVE HELPED A HOST OF THEM TO FAME AND FORTUNE.

It Pays Best to Advertise Where There Is Most Money With Which to Buy Advertised Goods

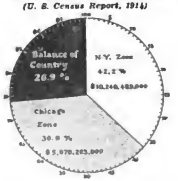
BANK CLEARINGS
(Year Sept. 30, 1918)

THE NEW YORK ZONE

New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

The Richest and Most Prosperous Business Centre on Earth.

TOTAL BANK DEPOSITS
(Special Report from Treasury Department)



VITAL FIGURES

Population	27,648,485
Manufactured Products	$10,240,489,000
Assessed Valuation	$29,178,012,000
Bank Clearings	$198,477,000,000
Total Bank Deposits	$13,032,529,000
First four Liberty Loans	$7,470,587,000
Income Tax Payments, 1917	$1,481,755,748
Resources Federal Reserve Banks	$2,561,789,000
Number Daily Newspapers	490
Daily Circulation	10,448,804
Rate per line (5,000 line contract)	$21.31

(Analysis by States)	Population	Manufactured Products	Assessed Valuation	Total Bank Deposits	Income Tax 1917
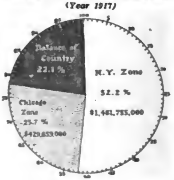
New York	10,646,989	3,814,661,000	$13,160,287,000	$7,138,816,000	$685,265,000
New Jersey	3,084,371	1,406,633,000	2,635,285,000	1,829,964,000	71,811,484
Pennsylvania	8,798,067	2,832,350,000	5,769,777,000	2,522,594,000	495,889,801
Massachusetts	3,832,790	1,641,373,000	5,798,211,000	1,933,922,000	166,598,752
Connecticut	1,286,268	545,472,000	1,814,452,000	607,233,000	62,190,711
Total	27,648,485	10,240,489,000	$29,178,012,000	$13,032,529,000	$1,481,755,748



MANUFACTURED PRODUCTS
(U. S. Census Report, 1914)

WEALTH
(Assessed Valuations as shown in World Almanac and Chicago Daily News Almanac)

Income & Excess Profits Payments
(Year 1917)

MEMBER A. B. C.

THE NEW YORK GLOBE

JASON ROGERS, Publisher

180,000 A DAY

Digitized by Google

D2

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 — The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America — 1919

SUITE 1117 WORLD BUILDING, NEW YORK

Entered as second-class matter May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Weekly: $3.00 a Year; 10c Per Copy. NEW YORK, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1919 Vol. 52, No. 20

University of Illinois Library 1920

DAILY TRIBUNE LEADS

6 DAYS AGAINST 6

During September The Chicago Tribune carried more advertising in its week-day issues alone than the total lineage of any of the other five Chicago newspapers in six days or seven. The totals, in columns, follow:

		Columns
The Chicago Tribune	(Total)	7,345.08
The Chicago Tribune	(Sunday)	2,452.81
The Chicago Tribune	(Daily)	4,892.72
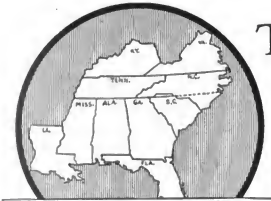
The Daily News	(Total)	4,880.63
The Herald-Examiner	"	2,989.81
The American	"	2,006.81
The Journal	"	1,514.95
The Post	"	1,466.03

4 DAYS AGAINST 26



Note that (as shown by the statistics above) The Tribune printed in its four (4) Sunday issues more than half the lineage of the leading evening paper in its twenty-six (26) issues, and more than any one of the other evening papers in twenty-six (26) issues.

The Chicago Tribune

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Circulation in Excess of 400,000 Daily and 700,000 Sunday

Digitized by Google

An Empire in Itself

Today's Southern Spirit

Georgia is giving New York City a new publisher.

Birmingham is giving Georgia a new publisher.

We are going South to find big men—men who have done big things in a big way—men who have undertaken the impossible and made the impossible possible.

When they leave the South their places are taken by other Southerners who, having made good, are now going to make better.

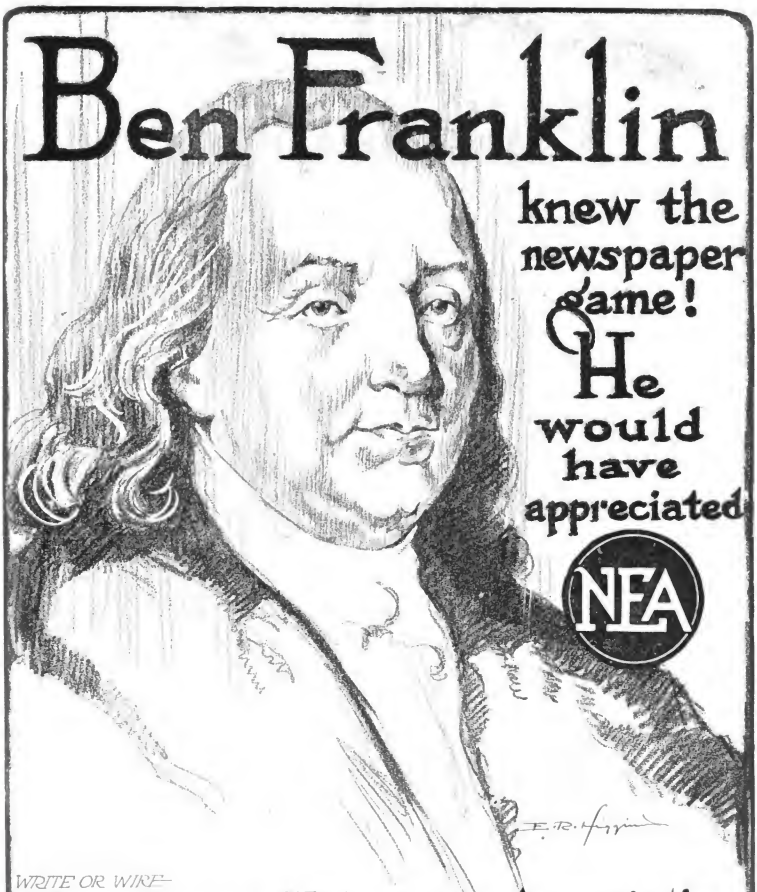
It is the new Southern spirit. It is the spirit of "go to it," of "get there." It is everywhere through the South, and is indicative of the spirit that is doing things—doing big things.

Most of the people now in the saddle down South know the traditions of "the good old days," but they are merely traditions. Southern men and women of today regard the world war as a thing of the past, the Spanish-American War as ancient history, and the Civil War as tradition.

Get in line with these people. Go to them through their local daily newspapers, and local merchants. They are "big people" in every way and always welcome visitors.

		Net Paid Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
ALABAMA
Birmingham Age-Herald	(M)	23,560	.07	.05
Birmingham Age-Herald	(S)	29,795	.08	.06
Birmingham Ledger	(E)	36,022	.07	.07
*Birmingham News	(E)	46,121	.08	.08
*Birmingham News	(S)	46,588	.10	.10
*Mobile News Item	(E)	10,766	.03	.03
Mobile Register	(M)	25,179	.05	.05
Mobile Register	(S)	15,047	.06	.06
Montgomery Advertiser	(M)	24,258	.05	.04
Montgomery Advertiser	(S)	24,258	.06	.05
FLORIDA
Jacksonville Metropolis	(E)	19,117	.045	.045
Florida Times-Union, Jack'v'e (M&S)		30,433	.06	.06
Palatka Morning Post	(M)	1,450	.0122	.0122
Pensacola Journal	(M)	5,450	.0172	.0171
Pensacola Journal	(S)	6,687	.0172	.0172
Pensacola News	(E)	5,096	.02	.01
GEORGIA
Atlanta Georgian	(E)	49,441	.08	.08
Atlanta Sunday American	(S)	92,918	.12	.12
Augusta Chronicle	(M)	12,248	.03	.01
Augusta Chronicle	(S)	10,651	.035	.035
Augusta Herald	(E)	17,413	.035	.035
Augusta Herald	(S)	12,812	.035	.035
Columbus Ledger	(E&S)	7,462	.0275	.0275
Macon Telegraph	(M)	23,430	.04	.04
Macon Telegraph	(S)	19,121	.04	.04
Savannah News	(M&S)	20,120	.04	.03
Savannah Press	(E)	16,360	.04	.04
KENTUCKY
*Louisville Herald	(M)	52,456	.08	.08
*Louisville Herald	(S)	36,767
Paducah News Democrat	(M&S)	7,004	.0225	.018
LOUISIANA
New Orleans Times-Picayune	(M)	78,417	.12	.12
New Orleans Times-Picayune	(S)	94,634	.15	.15
New Orleans Daily States	(E)	41,994	.10	.08
New Orleans Daily States	(S)	27,675
*New Orleans Item	(E)	73,905	.12	.12
*New Orleans Item	(S)	47,585	.15	.15
NORTH CAROLINA
Asheville Citizen	(M)	11,420	.025	.025
Asheville Citizen	(S)	8,734	.025	.025
Asheville Times	(E)	10,087	.025	.02
Charlotte News	(E&S)	11,598	.03	.025
Charlotte Observer	(M)	19,217	.05	.03
Charlotte Observer	(S)	19,217	.045	.04
†Durham Sun	(E)	5,000	.02	.02
Greensboro Daily News	(M)	16,955	.035	.035
Greensboro Daily News	(S)	22,468	.06	.04
Greensboro Record	(E)	7,401	.045	.035
Raleigh News and Observer	(M)	21,209	.05	.04
Raleigh News and Observer	(S)	21,209	.05	.04
Wilmington Dispatch	(E)	5,305	.02	.02
Wilmington Dispatch	(S)	5,305	.02	.02
Winston-Salem Journal	(M&S)	6,447	.025	.02
Winston-Salem Sentinel	(E)	7,630	.025	.02
SOUTH CAROLINA
Anderson Mail	(E)	4,693	.0178	.0178
Charleston American	(M)	7,393	.025	.02
Charleston American	(S)	10,451	.025	.029
*Columbia Record	(E)	13,719	.03	.03
*Columbia Record	(S)	13,719	.03	.03
*Columbia State	(M)	24,614	.05	.05
*Columbia State	(S)	24,085	.05	.05
*Greenville News	(M&S)	10,876	.035	.03
Greenwood Index Journal	(M&S)	3,245	.02	.02
Spartanburg Jour. & Car. Spartan	(E)	2,978
Spartanburg Herald	(M)	4,288	.03	.03
Spartanburg Herald	(S)	5,473
TENNESSEE
*Chattanooga News	(E)	17,362	.04	.04
*Chattanooga Times	(M)	30,458	.06	.05
*Chattanooga Times	(S)	31,960	.06	.06
Knoxville Sentinel	(E)	24,822	.05	.045
*Knoxville Journal-Tribune	(M)	24,838	.05	.045
*Knoxville Journal-Tribune	(S)
Memphis Commercial Appeal	(M)	82,275	.04	.12
Memphis Commercial Appeal	(S)	139,148	.17	.15
Nashville Banner	(E)	49,390	.08	.07
Nashville Banner	(S)		.08	.08
Nashville Tennessean	(M)	34,349
Nashville Evening American	(E)	15,396	.08	.08
Sunday Tennessean & American	(S)	34,031
VIRGINIA
‡Bristol Herald-Courier	(M&S)	11,094	.04	.01
Danville Register and Bee	(M&E)	10,667	.03	.03
*Newport News Times-Herald	(E)	13,917	.04	.04
*Newport News Daily Press	(S&M)	9,463
Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch	(E)	43,395	.07	.06
Roanoke Times	(M&S)	11,815	.06	.04
Roanoke World-News	(E)	11,298

Government Statements April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. Statement, April 1st, 1919.
†Publisher's Statement, April 1st, 1919.
‡Includes Bristol, Tenn.



Digitized by Google

Ben Franklin

knew the newspaper game!

He would have appreciated

NEA

WRITE OR WIRE

Newspaper Enterprise Association

A Service – not a syndicate

CLEVELAND, OHIO.

Digitized by Google

Philadelphia

Edward James Cattell, Chief Statistician of the City of Philadelphia, reports that within the city limits there are :

16,000 manufacturing places
48,000 wholesale and retail stores
392,000 dwellings
700,000 male workers
350,000 female workers

Do you realize the attractiveness and possibilities of such a compact market for large and quick sales of your commodity ?

Are its manufacturing places using your supplies ?

Are its stores distributing your goods ?

Are its dwellings being equipped with your wares ?

Are its workers and their families eating Food ; wearing Clothes or Shoes, or Hats made by you ?

Dominate Philadelphia

Create maximum impression at one cost by concentrating in the newspaper " nearly everybody " reads----

The Bulletin

Net paid average for six months ending September 30, 1919 446,311 Copies a day

No prize, premium, coupon or other artificial circulation stimulation methods have ever been used by "The Bulletin"

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Thursday--forms closing at 2 P. M. on the Wednesday preceding the date of publication--by The Editor & Publisher Co., Suite 1117, N. Y. World Bldg., 63 Park Row, N. Y. City. Private Branch Telephone Exchange, Beekman 4330.
James Wright Brown, President; Fenton Dowling, Secretary

Vol. 52 THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1919 No. 20

AMERICAN JOURNALISTS ASSOCIATION FORMS AS EDITORIAL WORKERS' NATIONAL BODY

Founded on St. Louis Plan, which City's Chapter Takes Out First Charter---Its Officers and Members Volunteer to Bear Organization Responsibilities and Financial Needs---EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S Editorial Used

ST LOUIS, Oct. 15.

THE American Journalists' Association was organized here last Wednesday. At the meeting of the St. Louis Association of Journalists it was decided to nationalize "The St. Louis Plan." The officers and directors of the local association will serve provisionally as such with the national association until men from other cities have been added, which will be done as soon as the progress of the organization permits. It is planned to hold a national convention in 1920.

Editor & Publisher's Editorial

Blank applications for charters now are in the printer's hands and will be ready for country-wide distribution next week to lists of active newspapermen whose names have been in process of collection for some time past.

Along with the charter application will be mailed a 32-page booklet containing (1) the provisional rules and regulations proposed for the new national body, (2) a detailed reprint of the St. Louis plan for the equitable protective association of newspaper editorial workers, (3) a reprint of the September 25th editorial from EDITOR & PUBLISHER, which is regarded as one of the fairest comments on the plan so far given public presentation, (4) and a letter of enthusiastic endorsement of the entire idea from Dean Williams of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, who also is president of the Press Congress of the World.

Three Classes of Chapters

The founders have made it as easy as possible for any eligible newspaper group to secure a charter. Only ten signatures are required and there are no attendant charges for affiliation. The association's St. Louis members have officially voted to give voluntary contributions for nationalizing purposes, consisting of one week's pay of honuses and raises obtained by members since the organization was formed. This, it is estimated, will cover all preliminary exoenses.

Charters will be granted under three forms:

(1) Associate chapters will be organized at schools of journalism, these to comprehend both the instructors and students. Students will enjoy all rights of other members except that they will not be eligible to national association offices nor committeeships. Teachers will have full rights of all other members, including those of holding national offices. It is announced that the first associate chapters will shortly be established at the University of Missouri School of Journalism, of which Walter Williams is dean.

(2) Regular chapters shall consist of ten or more eligible employees of any daily or weekly bona fide newspaper, said eligibility to apply to reporters, copy readers, special writers, re-write men, editors and newspaper artists. Providing ten charter members are not immediately available on a single newspaper, then ten or more persons on two or more newspapers in the same town may form a chapter. If ten are not available in a single town, then ten or more in neighboring communities are privileged to organize an active chapter. This last provision is intended to include the country small town men. It is further intended that eligibility shall be extended to editorial writers and staff correspondents of trade papers and like periodicals, although no active campaign for enlisting their co-operation will be undertaken until the strictly newspaper membership has further progressed.

(3) Local associations shall consist of two or more chapters in any city, organized by themselves for purposes of administration. St. Louis may be taken as an example of this, five chapters here now being associated together. It is agreed that there shall be only one local association in any one city. There furthermore shall be no associate members of any chapter, associate chapter or local association.

RICHARD L. STOKES
President American Journalists' Association

Only One Source of Revenue

The total revenues of the American Journalists' Association and of all its subsidiary bodies will be derived exclusively from dues, fees and assessments paid by the members themselves. This specifically eliminates all possibility of practices of the past, which have crept into and blighted efforts to associate newspaper editorial men.

National officers elected to the A. J. A. this week are as follows: Richard L. Stokes, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, president; William G. Butler, first vice-president; George Y. Henger, second vice-president; Herman M. Hoelke, treasurer; Arthur C. Hoskins, secretary; John T. Rogers, corresponding secretary.

The executive committee consists of the foregoing, together with Edward McE. Lewis, Charles Y. Taylor and Emil Raymond.

It was voted by the local chapter to send its president, Richard L. Stokes, to Ann Arbor, Mich., on October 17 to explain the "St. Louis Plan" or organizing newspaper men to the national convention of instructors in schools of journalism and members of the Michigan Editorial Association, who will meet there at that time.

St. Louis Wants Convention

The School of Journalism of the University of Missouri has applied for the first charter as associate chapter.

One of the educational plans of the association is a course of lectures for its members, to which the public will be invited. Dean Williams will deliver the first lecture some time in November.

Charles F. Hatfield, secretary and manager of the St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau, has pledged his association to assist in every way to promote the convention at

(Continued on Page 20)

LONDON TIMES PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO FRANCE OF PEACE AND WAR

Issues Special Number to Commemorate First Battle of Marne—Practical Propaganda in Lord Northcliffe's Best Vein.

By Herbert C. Ridout

London, Sept. 30, 1919.

A NOTABLE achievement in newspaperdom and one that indicates not merely the power for international good that newspapers wield but the recognition of that fact by the great British publisher, Lord Northcliffe, was the publication of a special French number of the London Times to commemorate the fifth anniversary of the first battle of the Marne which drove back the Germans before Paris.

It was nobly conceived—a tribute to a great nation and a valuable propaganda effort for cementing a fresh l'entente cordiale.

Praises Journalism of France for Part in War

In the fifty pages that made up this (among British papers) monumental number, were authoritative articles on every phase of the war, with a fine record of "What France did."

But of special import was the fact that it more particularly dealt with the France of peace, its place in the League of Nations, its agriculture, its wines, its cities, Paris—"the deathless city," and the world's fashion centre, French labor, architecture, shipping, industry, commerce, fine arts, literature and drama, banking, education, railways and aviation. It gave a survey of the devastated regions of the country, and told what is being done in reconstruction. It told the story of the French Chamber of Commerce in London with its publicity and advisory help to traders with France.

Tribute to French Journalists

Of immense help to British journalists was the story of the French press, its literary qualities and the power of the political journalist. It paid graceful tribute to the felicitous work of French journalists as a whole, describing them as a race of born writers, gifted with the power of a graceful and easy expression and a turn of happy wit.

Even in the most obscure provincial sheet it is of almost daily occurrence to fall upon at least one article of undoubted style. It was pointed out that in recent years there has been a marked tendency in the press, notably in Paris, to adopt some of the features of English and American journalism, which has resulted in a process of industrial realization and in the evolution of those Paris papers which are known as the "Grande Presse."

"The Grande Presse" is as a rule much more concerned with its circulation than with its politics, although it, too, in times of political contamination is mobilized on one side or the other.

Political Attainment

They are the most widely read newspapers in the world, having daily circulations which exceed by many hundreds of thousands the highest figures reached by any English newspaper. This is partly due to splendidly organized systems of distribution, but the chief cause is, perhaps, to be found in the supremebold Paris has on the mind of the whole country.

The political weight of many of the French papers was illustrated by mention of the fact that some of the men at the top in French politics started their career as journalists, and only interrupt their journalistic activity when they are actually in office. Thus, in the present cabinet are some of the best-known journalists of the country.

Clemenceau has been, throughout the whole of his long life, among the most brilliant and ardent political writers in this country of polemic. M. Pichon, Minister for Foreign Affairs, left the editorship of the Petit Journal to join the present Government. Andre Tardieu was foreign editor of the Temps, when the war broke out, and had only just started his political career of rapid success.

The news-agency services of France are not nearly so highly developed as those of America or England, practically the whole of the press relying for its service of news upon the Agency Havas, the French Reuter. The service is by no means as extensive or as modern in its methods of news collection and distribution as is its British associate Reuter.

Indeed, it need only be mentioned that in Paris, with its scores of newspapers and news agencies, the tape machine is almost unknown, and its use practically restricted to the transmission of racing results and closing stock exchange prices to realize that in technical equipment much remains to be done. Havas, together with the rest of the French press, has been struggling with such problems under the tremendous handicap of war conditions.

Best of Advertising

The advertising side of this special issue was interesting because it included some of the best examples of French advertising, which, truth to tell, does not as a whole attain a very high standard.

The great Paris hotels and department stores, French mineral waters and wines, and French bankers, with the advertising agency of E. Arnaud de Masquard, 10 Rue de Colisee, Paris, and French Expansion, 23 Victoria Avenue, Paris, representing advertising interests — these were large users of space, while British advertisers like Dunlop Tyres, Swan Pen, Lincoln Pen (the exact dressmakers), and the Goldsmiths and Silversmiths Co., Ltd., also figured in its pages.

In all, the number was one that evoked general admiration as a remarkable production of high l'entente cordiale value.

"SEE AMERICA FIRST" ADVERTISERS URGE

Resolution Opposes American Bankers' Association Plan—Hon. M. Crutcher Elected President

At the closing meeting of the A. A. C. W. Community Advertising Department of the New Orleans convention Harry M Crutcher of St. Louis was elected president for the coming year. Mr. Crutcher is secretary to Mayor Kiel of St. Louis.

The following directors were also elected: Charles F. Hatfield, St. Louis; Harry N. Burhans, Denver; Thomas J. Hill, New Orleans; Arthur Thomas, Omaha, and Ross W. Kellogg, of Ithaca, N. Y. Representative of the Departmental elected to the National Advertising Commission was Charles F. Hatfield of St. Louis.

Resolutions were adopted endorsing the work of the Bureau of Service of the United States Railroad Administration in developing a broad policy of national publicity to stimulate travel in the United States and developing the "See America First" movement; and disapproving the American Bankers' Association campaign of advertising and publicity to promote European travel as "an injustice to the communities of the United States which are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars to develop their respective communities."

The departmental noted the significant growth of the principle of municipal appropriation in behalf of community advertising."

SHERMAN TAKES UP DUTIES ON HARTFORD TIMES

Clifton L. Sherman

THERE is nothing of the rover about Clifton L. Sherman, the new managing editor of the Hartford (Conn.) Times. Immediately on being graduated from Amherst College in 1888 he entered newspaper work and has been at it steadily ever since. In the thirty-one years spent in this chosen career he changed perhaps three times, having worked for one paper twice.

Mr. Sherman is a native of Vermont, having been born in East Dover, September 1, 1866. In the fall of 1888 he became telegraph editor of the Springfield (Mass.) Union when that paper put out an evening edition only, under the editorship of Deacon Shipley. In January, 1890, he went to the Hartford Courant as telegraph editor, and three years later was made managing editor. His service on the Courant, all told, was twenty-six years, all but three as managing editor. Mr. Sherman's period of service on that paper was interrupted, beginning in 1900, when he served for three and a half years as copy editor of the New York Sun.

He returned to Hartford in 1904 and resumed his old place on the Courant. He again resigned on August 1 of this year, and he already feels at home in his fifth job.

Mr. Sherman is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution; also of the Hartford Club and the Hartford Golf Club.

EMPLOYS AN AIRPLANE FOR CANVASSING

Grand Rapids News Reaches Mark of 100 Per Cent. Efficiency in Delivery of Newspapers—Newsies Stimulated, Too

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 12. — Through a novel subscription campaign inaugurated by the Grand Rapids Press, newsboys and agents for the paper in the larger centers of western Michigan were given an opportunity to ride in an airplane and see their home town from 1,500 feet in the air. The flight was a reward for merit for the boys and was the feature of a week of 100 per cent efficiency in delivering papers by airplane over a 60-mile zone around "The Furniture City."

With the installation of a commercial airplane service in Grand Rapids, the Press grasped the opportunity to experiment in airship delivery and to make the experiment pay dividends in increased circulation. Lieut. Paul O. Sergent, former U. S. Air Service pilot and circulation manager of the Press, sketched out a schedule for six days of flying, and in the various cities where landings were to be made were notified of the airplane delivery program and given special airplane subscription blanks to be distributed among the newsboys.

Boys Worked as Never Before

The boy in each city who turned in the greatest number of subscriptions was to have the privilege of a flight in the big Press Curtiss biplane. There followed a feverish canvassing of territory for the Press. The results were more than satisfactory.

It is rather interesting to learn that in not a single city did the parents of the winning newsboy enter objection to his flight and not an accident or a delay marred this passenger-carrying delivery. Pilot Fish Hassell entered into the spirit of the campaign and with the intelligent co-operation of the editorial and circulation departments of the paper, was enabled to get away on time every day and made his landings on schedule or from three to five minutes ahead of time at every point.

Lieut. Sergent, with his experience as an airplane pilot, went out ahead of the plane every day, picked suitable landing fields, laid a "T" to help the pilot locate the field and arranged for automobile transfer of the papers from the plane to the headquarters of the local Press agent. A representative of the editorial department rode with the plane on each trip.

The plane dipped down close to all intermediate points and circled the town twice, once for dropping souvenir copies of the paper and once for photographs. The stunt was given publicity by spread stories on the first page every day and by the use of pictures taken from the air and at various landing fields.

Edmund W. Booth, editor and manager of the Press, was a passenger in the airplane on one of its flights.

Fear for Ivey's Sight

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 12.—Gus Ivey, pioneer newspaper man of the Indian Territory days before Oklahoma became a state, is reported to be losing his eyesight. He has been at the Mayo brothers' sanitarium in Rochester, Minn., for treatment. Mr Ivey has been engaged in writing a history of the Five Civilized Tribes and of the Mid-Continent oil fields for some time, but was forced to give up his work

FLAT RATE OF 3 TO 4 CENTS A POUND IS PLANNED FOR SECOND CLASS POSTAGE

Congress Against "Digging Down" Into the Treasury to Meet Contemplated $200,000,000 Wage-Increase to Postal Employes, So Making Publishers Pay Difference Is Said to Have Been Decided as Easiest Way

By Robert T. Barry
Washington Correspondent for Editor & Publisher

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—There is a new turn of the wheel in the second-class mail question. This time the issue goes off on a new tangent and it gives evidence of promising important developments.

The situation is this:

A joint committee of Congress is about to recommend a new scale of salaries for postal employes. If the workers get what they ask, it would mean an increase of between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000 annually on the post office payroll.

They are not apt to get all that they ask. They are sure to get substantial increases, so that it is a foregone conclusion that additional revenues will have to be obtained by the postal service or Congress must dig down into the Treasury to meet the defeit.

To "Junk" the Zone System

Congress does not propose doing the latter, while the people are howling against federal expenditures and taxes.

The answer is simple. The postal employes suggest and many members of Congress agree, the additional money should come from second-class mail matter, and the plan is to junk the zone system and to establish a flat rate of 3 or 4 cents a pound.

Those publishers who have contended that they did not object to an increase in postage on a flat rate basis if the inequity of the zone system were removed will get that, but will Congress stop this side of a 4-cent rate?

Your correspondent ventures the prediction that before many more weeks have elapsed there will be a very powerful propaganda in operation to obtain the increased salaries for the postal employes and to have the newspapers and magazines pay the bill.

Reclassification Committee

Senator Bankhead of Alabama is chairman of this joint committee on salary reclassification. Other members are Senators McKellar of Tennessee; Gay of Louisiana; Sterling of South Dakota; and Moses of New Hampshire; and Representatives Moon of Tennessee; Bell of Georgia; Rouse of Kentucky; Steenerson of Minnesota, and Maiden of Illinois.

The committee has held hearings in New York, Boston, Chicago, St. Paul and Cincinnati. It will have a hearing in Washington this week and then will go to Atlanta, Memphis and Kansas City.

The postal employes are asking for very large increases. The clerks want a new scale beginning at $1,800 and running to $2,400 a year, according to length of service, with two additional grades for special clerks.

The carriers want the maximum raised from $1,400 to $2,400. The laborers want increases. The rural carriers want an annual allowance of $600 for equipment.

Cost to Be $600,000,000 Yearly

The annual expenditures of the postal service now are about $380,000,000. If the increases requested are granted the cost of the service will be above $600,000,000 a year. The Madden Bill, which has passed the House, gives all employes an increase of $150 a year as a sort of war bonus until the new scale of salaries is adopted.

Members of the committee stated that in several of the cities where hearings were held, the direct question was asked witnesses as to their suggestions for securing the revenue to meet the proposed increases.

The postal employes invariably have argued in favor of higher rates on second-class matter, it was stated, although in Detroit the business men were represented as being willing to pay a 3-cent rate on letter mail in order to improve the service.

Some members of the committee hold that a return to the 3-cent letter rate is not advisable and that, furthermore, it would not provide the necessary amount of revenue.

Favors Increased Wages

Representative Rouse of Kentucky, a defender of the zone system, declared today that he believed the postal employes of the country will urge an increase in second-class rates in order to meet the advances they expect to obtain from Congress.

"From the hearings we have held, I am convinced that the postal employes should have increases in pay," Mr. Rouse said. "This, it appears to me, is necessary if we are to maintain an efficient postal service by keeping capable men in the post offices, and if we are to attract good men to the service.

"The Madden Bill to give postal employes $150 a year, in the form of a bonus to put them on something like the same scale of other Federal employes, already has passed the House. If enacted into law it would add approximately $15,000,000 to the post office payroll.

"If the increases asked by the postal employes in the permanent revision of salaries is granted it would add, in my estimation, not less than $150,000,000 to the cost of operating the postal service.

For Higher Second-Class Rates

"Where is this additional money to come from?

"A great many of the postal employes believe it should come from higher postage on second-class mail matter."

In view of this situation, it is the belief of many members of the House, both Republicans and Democrats, that the Mondell Bill to repeal the zone law does not appear likely to pass, unless there is coupled with the repeal a provision for a flat rate of 3 or 4 cents a pound.

Mr. Mondell has not abandoned hope for his measure, but it is said that the pressure upon many other members has been such that they do not feel they can vote for it, even though they are cognizant of the injustices of the zone system.

St. Regis Charging 5 Cents

The St. Regis Paper Company, of Watertown, N. Y., is charging its contract customers 5 cents a pound at the mills for news print dating from October 1.

MEMBERS of the California Circulation Managers' Association had the time of their lives at their meeting held recently. A trip to Mexico was a part of the program. The picture above was taken on the border—it is not reported how far over it they ventured. We have here, left to right: A. L. Parker, of the Los Angeles Times; E. S. Simpkins, of the San Jose Mercury; John Grey, of the San Francisco Call; W. F. D. Brown, of the Oakland Tribune; H. C. Noe, of the Los Angeles Express; H. A. Gillis, of the San Diego Sun; A. C. Crawford, of the San Francisco Examiner; George Fisher, of the San Francisco Chronicle; W. O'Farrell, of the San Diego Union; P. Mallory, of the San Francisco Bulletin.

NEWS PRINT SHORTAGE ACUTE IN SOUTH

S. N. P. A. Committee Recommends Raising Advertising Rates—1920 Offers Bigger Problem

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 10.—The paper committee of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association held a meeting October 7, at the call of the chairman, Charles I. Stewart, of the Lexington Herald. The other members of the committee present were Curtis B. Johnson, of the Knoxville Sentinel and Charlotte Observer; W. E. Thomas of the Roanoke Times and World News; and Walter Stouffer, of the Louisville Evening Post.

From the information before the committee it was the unanimous opinion that the abnormal demand for advertising space is primarily responsible for the present abnormal price of news print.

Insufficient Contracts

It was the opinion also that the situation was aggravated by the fact that in making their contracts for this year's consumption publishers did not make sufficient provision for their consumption, with the result that practically all publishers have been forced into the open market to secure the necessary tonnage.

It was the view of the committee that the chief remedies for the situation from the publisher's point of view are:

First, to make contracts, if possible, for a sufficient tonnage to meet next year's demand; and since the demand for advertising space is the big factor in the increased demand for news print, and the present high prices, publishers should advance advertising rates to cover this and other increased costs.

1920 Looks Dark

If Southern publishers only can renew for 1920 the 1919 contracts it will be necessary for many of them to make additional contracts with other mills or depend on the open market, or find producers who will offer adequate tonnage.

The probability that mills with whom Southern publishers have dealt this year will not increase tonnage for next year sufficiently to meet the demand is the most puzzling phase of the situation for the greater proportion of the Southern publishers.

The news print committee of the Southern Association will take steps looking to some sort of co-operative effort on the part of Southern publishers to secure by contract their necessary tonnage for next year.

Covering the "Gold Rush"

Winnipeg, Oct. 13.—Hay Stead of the Telegram has been spending several weeks in northern Manitoba, 500 miles north of Winnipeg, covering the rush to the new gold fields.

A. N. A. NEWS AND VIEWS

A WEEKLY FEATURE COMPILED AND EDITED BY JOHN SULLIVAN

SECRETARY-TREASURER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF NATIONAL ADVERTISERS

NORTH JERSEY CHAPTER

Members Will Act as Hosts at Annual Convention

THE regular monthly meeting of the North Jersey Chapter of the Association of National Advertisers was held at the Downtown Club, Newark, Tuesday evening, September 23, at 6:30 o'clock. Those present were: Arthur J. Palmer, Thomas A. Edison, Inc.; W. A. McDermid, the Mennen Company, George S. Fowler, Colgate & Co.; W. M. Neal, Rubberset Company; W. P. Coghlan, Klaxton Company; Paul Wing, Empire Cream Separator Company; Philip Thomson, Western Electric Company; Paul Sutcliffe, Edison Storage Battery Company; Myron D. Salisbury, Edison Storage Battery Company; Arthur A. Fisk, Prudential Insurance Company.

After an enjoyable dinner the minutes of the previous meeting were adopted as read and President Palmer called upon Mr. McDermid, president of the National Association. Mr. McDermid discussed at length the plans for the forthcoming annual meeting of the association to be held at the Laurel House, Lakewood, N. J., Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, December 3, 4 and 5, 1919.

He stated that plans were well under way for what promised to be one of the most successful annual meetings in the history of the organization, and that the North Jersey Chapter had been selected by the executive committee to act as host at the meeting.

The meeting adjourned until Tuesday, October 14, after President Palmer had requested that suggestions for the next program be submitted to him before that date

GEORGE FRANK LORD

ALTHOUGH, as we hope, the loss of Mr. George Frank Lord from the A. N. A., because of his resignation from the Du Pont Company, may only be temporary, we would rather not have any such loss at all.

Mr. Lord is of the race of strong men in advertising and he has a long record of experience and accomplishment. He is possessed of an enviable all-around knowledge of merchandising, having practised in every kind of field during a period of over twenty years. During his association with E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., the advertising department has steadily grown in importance, in scope and in personnel. Instead of only eleven persons in the department, as when Mr. Lord took charge, there are now around two hundred and the department has an equipment and, consequently, such a control over its functions, that any man with a modern advertising outlook could wish to have.

Last December Mr. Lord was elected one of the vice-presidents of the A. N. A., and, for administration purposes, was in charge of the Atlantic States section. He has been very active in promoting local chapters of the association, and the first Chapter established (that of Philadelphia) is outstanding evidence of his organizing skill and energy.

During the past ten months Mr. Lord has journeyed to New York every other week to attend the meetings of the executive committee, in the work of which his loss will be especially felt. And he has also been serving as one of the members of the consultation committee.

Mr Lord's future plans have not yet been announced. We hope he will soon be back in the A. N. A. as the representative of another company. Certainly the company that secures his services will be fortunate indeed.

GEORGE L. SULLIVAN

GEORGE L. SULLIVAN is another man who has (may we hope also temporarily?) passed out of the councils of the A. N. A. and active, if not entire, association with us. He has been for the larger part of the past year chairman of the executive committee, a chairman of statesmanship, of unfailing resource and balance and humor—to say nothing of the way of adjectives of his wit and felicity as a speaker. The J. Walter Thompson Company is to be congratulated on its having secured George, though in the A. N. A. it will not be too easy to replace him.

My friendship with George L. Sullivan began in the early part of 1915, when we worked together—he on behalf of the advertising agents in promoting the attendance of a large New York delegation to the Chicago convention of the A. A. C. of W. But it is on such bodies as the executive committee of the A. N. A., where men work together continuously and personally for about ten hours a month throughout the year, that one comes truly to know and appreciate a man like George L. Sullivan.

There was one time in the work of the A. N. A.—a conference with the directors in Boston—several years ago—when George, in a scintillating speech, held the absorbed attention of men who are generally supposed to know all that is worth knowing in outdoor advertising. From the remarks I heard after the meeting, they were a little surprised to find that George probably knew, at least, just a little more than they did. And that is also a compliment to the outdoor advertising men, I hurry to say.

FITTING THE SELLING ARGUMENT TO THE MANUFACTURER'S BUSINESS

FROM time to time there has appeared on this page references to, and somewhat sardonic depreciation of, what is a very common practice in selling advertising space—the assumption that there is such a uniformity of practice in merchandising manufactured goods that the refusal of some advertising manager to buy space in a particular publication, or class of publications, is a sure criterion of his unfitness for his position.

But things, and persons, and happenings, and mental workings are seldom what they seem to be. What looks like "nuttiness" from the outside looking in is frequently wise judgment from the inside looking out.

Recently, two A. N. A. office men went on a trip among some members in New England and had a somewhat merry time during one call. I say "somewhat" because really there was also regret that so much mental preparation as the convention of advertising solicitors showed should be futile and, therefore, wasted.

Some of these solicitations were, I happen to know, the result of earnest conferences, or, at least, considerable individual thinking: To be sure, the effect of such preparation must be excellent in the mental development of individuals. But the expense of the lost motion and time to a publication seems regrettable

Instances after instances were related in which, after the preparation of a soliciting attack with Prussian-like meticulousness, and on advance with assurance of victory, the onslaught (if anything so courteous and friendly as the visit of an advertising solicitor can be so ferociously designated) was rendered ridiculously innocuous by some such remark as, "We tried that ten years ago and wasted our money;" or "All the imperative conditions and circumstances of our production and distribution make it impossible for us to do what you propose."

And yet, without a doubt, the solicitors went away quite certain that the buyer—or, rather, non-buyer—of publication space was a monumental ass

AGAIN, SELL THE MARKETS!

IS it possible ever to know a manufacturer's merchandising problems and policies sufficiently well so that an advertising solicitor's "plan" will dovetail into them to a reasonably accurate extent?

"What, then, can the solicitor do? Must he confine his activities to talking about his publication's circulation, or its editorial features and policy?

Or are the greatest number of successes in selling space the result of, as one man said the other day, "using up shoe leather?"

If the solicitor can do only those things, then, if I may speak from an intimate knowledge of the work of the A. N. A. office, his day is already in the late afternoon stage; although there is a system of selling merchandise that has obtained considerable results from merely showing the face and the goods; but advertising space hasn't just the tangible quality of other manufactured goods.

About a year ago, an experienced and sapient farm paper man, in a discussion on this matter, actually ventured to speculate whether the sun of the advertising solicitor had not already set, and whether, having become a bit confused, he were not mistaking the after-glow for the "rosy-fingered" dawn.

They used to say something like that about the manufacturer's sale-man for that matter—a pretty good while ago. But he is alive because in many instances, he has learned new and additional functions, and, in comparison with his former state, is a super-salesman.

Sell the Markets!

That is the new work of the advertising solicitor. Get the outstanding facts concerning the nature of the manufacturer's product and of his distribution; find out therefrom where his markets are—here is room for speculation and imagination; set down the pertinent facts about those markets; establish accurately, truthfully and justly the relationship between the markets and your publication. And then prepare to be disappointed—but not so often as you probably are now.

To apply the advice given to the golfer in his novitiate,—keep your head down —to the facts. Don't keep looking up—into the clouds of "we ought to get that advertising."

If the solicitor will learn to function additionally, there is every reason why he should continue to sell space even as goods are still sold by personal salesmen.

GIVING FACTS, NOT ADVICE OR OPINIONS

WHILE on this subject of selling the markets by giving facts, it may be interesting to repeat what I think has been said on this page at least once —that even the A. N. A. office, the headquarters for marketing information of nearly three hundred manufacturers, is not peculiarly able to talk authoritatively, does not give opinions to the members of the Association, or even advice that may be interpreted as opinion, on the merits or demerits of any publication.

We furnish facts, and much experience enables us to know pretty accurately whether a fact is a "lie and a half," as some old cynic once said. It is the business of the advertiser to judge for himself in the selection of a publication according to the facts

Every now and then—I use a moderate phrase so as not to appear too uncharitable—a solicitor will go to the office and, without interfering with the conduct of an advertiser's business, even telling him he does not know his own business. Of course, I don't mean only publication solicitors; there are several kinds of solicitors

Get the facts and present them as suggested in the item above, "Again, Sell the Markets!"

MEMBERSHIP CHANGES

PAUL WING has resigned from the Empire Cream Separator Company, Bloomfield, N. J., and J. H. Colville, the vice-president and general manager, has been appointed to serve as the company's representative in the Association.

E. D. Copeland is now advertising manager of the Gillette Safety Razor Company, succeeding J. T. Ashbrooke and represents his company in the Association.

The Whitaker-Glessner Company has appointed Selden Irwin as advertising manager, succeeding H. M. Dobson.

Arthur J. Palmer is now the accredited representative of the Insurance Company of North America, succeeding R. T. Gebler.

STANDARDIZATION IS GREATEST NEED SAY ADVERTISING AGENTS

A. A. A. A., Convening in Boston, Deplores Waste of Money Through Varied Page Sizes, Contracts and Information Forms—H. D. Smith President.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 15.—The annual convention of the American Association of Advertising Agencies opened here yesterday and will come to a close this evening. In conjunction with the advertising men's gathering, the committee in charge of the A. N. P. A. Advertising Bureau, of which William F. Rogers of the Boston Transcript is Chairman, is also holding an important meeting. Tonight the agency men will be the guests of the Boston Newspaper Publishers Association at a banquet.

Business meetings, sight seeing and an entertainment in the evening to visiting members of the A. A. A. A. featured the opening day of the convention which is being held in the Copley Plaza hotel.

Charles Defends the Farmer

At the morning session of the Executive Committee H. H. Charles, a member of that body, presented a report on food production and food costs, in which he showed, by a careful analysis of the situation, that the high cost of living it in no wise due to the farmer. Mr. Charles has made a careful study of agriculture and is at present investigating the food problems and profiteering.

"The average net income of all farmers in 1918 (the latest figures available) is given as $1,200," he said. "This represents not only the work done by the farmer himself, but the total income of his entire family."

Guests of New England Council

At the meetings of the Executive Committee, William H. Johns of The George Batten Company, Inc., of New York, president of the association, presided and others present included Harry Dwight Smith of Fuller & Smith, Cleveland; Walter R. Hine of Frank Seaman, Inc., New York; M. P. Gould, of the M. P. Gould Company, New York; Jesse F. Matteson of Matteson, Fogarty & Jordan Company, Chicago; Stanley Resor of The J. Walter Thompson Company, New York; Bayard W. Barton of Critchfield & Co., Chicago; O. H. Blackman of The Blackman-Ross Company, New York; Wesley Winans of the J. W. Barber Advertising Agency, Boston; H. H. Charles of The Charles Advertising Service, New York; W. R. McLain of the McLain-Hadden-Simpers Company, Philadelphia, and William H. Rankin, of the William H. Rankin Company, Chicago.

The Executive Committee members were the guests at luncheon Tuesday noon of the New England Council of the Association, of which Maj. Patrick F. O'Keefe is chairman. The ladies accompanying the delegation were given a luncheon at the Copley Plaza and spent the afternoon for the most part in shopping tours. A dinner party was also arranged for them at the Hotel Touraine in the evening.

Lantern Club Entertains

The entertainment in the evening was given by the Lantern Club, whose members are the Boston representatives of national magazines, at the Boston Athletic association clubhouse. Meta B. Hayes, Governor of the Lantern Club, made it clear at the start that there would be no speaking, shop talk or otherwise, and that the affair was arranged simply to give the visitors a good time.

Vaudeville, boxing bouts, motion pictures and a dinner were provided on the long program.

The dinner was started with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," the hall being darkened and an illuminated American flag fluttering at the end of the hall meanwhile. After that things moved rapidly to the accompaniment of the best jazz efforts of the orchestra.

About 75 members and guests were present, among them Max Delang of Zurich, of the Swiss delegation now visiting America, who thanked the assemblage for the cordial welcome he had received in this country; President William H. Johns and P. M. Hollister of New York, in the day one of the best athletes in Harvard.

Mr. Johns extended the thanks of the visiting delegates to the Lantern Club for the entertainment. The committees in charge of the affair were Tilton Bell, Leon Duteh, and Edward Roys, finance; J. D. Hooley, Walter Anderson, and Ray Walker, entertainment; E. E. Kingman and H. W. Taylor, publicity; N. F. Foote and Irving Wheeler, dinner; and Murray Purves and Edward Steiner, transportation.

Standardization Necessary

Measures for standardizing newspaper and magazine advertising were discussed at this morning's meeting. All the reports of committees were submitted. Stanley Resor, of New York, presented for the Agency Service Committee, a report on the constructive side of advertising with the idea of teaching the fundamentals of advertising to business men. After a revision, this report will be made public.

O. H. Blackman of New York made a report on a cost finding system for advertising and Ben S. Nash of New York told of the reduction to charts of a survey of advertising markets.

Paul V. Troup of the Magazine Committee, reported that there are 72 different sizes of magazines, so that 72 plates are required if all are to be used. In as much as each original plate costs 200 times as much as a duplicate plate this represents a great item of waste.

It was estimated that agencies in the association experience a waste of $100,000 a year due to different newspaper sizes, a loss which inevitably falls on the publisher.

Rankin Lauds Newspapers

W. H. Rankin of Chicago urged the importance of nationalizing newspaper circulation. He emphasized the great importance of newspapers as a medium, since they reach 22,000,000 homes. He said he is preparing charts and schedules for reducing circulation to a single national quantity.

H. H. Charles of New York reported that farm papers are standardizing, and Robert Tinsman spoke in favor of more general use of trade papers.

George C. Sherman discussed outdoor advertising and C. R. Erwin, for the Finance Committee, discussed the stabilization of credits in advertising.

B. W. Burton, chairman of the Export Committee, has finished a survey of Latin-America so that advertising may now be placed there as readily as in New York state. Surveys of England and France are under way and eventually every country with a well developed market will be covered.

The members of the Association commented upon the action of the Boston authorities in their recent police strike as a stirring illustration of Americanism.

High Praise for Boston

James O'Shaughnessy of New York pointed out that this is the first Advertising Agencies' convention of a really national aspect and that the aim of the Association in meeting here is to get a close up view and ideas of the locality and the congested spot of manufacturing, wealth, prosperity and brains. These are the four essential things, he said, in determining advertising possibilities and in New England he felt, more than anywhere else, the possibilities are large.

"The fact that advertising makes more business for manufacturers," Mr. O'Shaughnessy said, "should result in Boston having the largest advertising appropriation in the country. No city in the country has more copy in its papers than Boston has and the growth of the city should follow in the wake of its advertising.

"The Boston and New England manufacturers will learn to advertise in a proper way and to maintain their pace in a proper percentage, Boston will be the biggest city in the world in 25 years. That is the main reason for the convention in this city—to show the possibilities of advertising and to make the advertising budget of Boston what it ought to be."

(Continued on Page 10)

W. N. Record a Vice-President

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of Wyatt, Record & Co., held Tuesday in New York, Willard N. Record, general manager of the Chicago office, was elected second vice-president. Charles F. Wyatt was elected manager of the service department of the Chicago branch, and Lloyd B. Myers was elected manager of the service department of the New York office. The personnel of this department has recently been enlarged by the addition of Frank R. Farnham, Waldo W. Sellew, and Jerome E. Walsh. M. Robert Herman was elected manager of the sales department in the New York office.

T. J. Barry Dies in Detroit

DETROIT, Oct. 9.—Thomas J. Barry, 62 years old, former general manager of the Free Press and for the last ten years president of the Conway Brief Company, is dead of pneumonia.

Starts "Directory Page"

The Ottawa (Ont.) Citizen is running a "Directory Page," signed up for 52 weeks. The spaces are 20 lines deep and 2 columns wide.

Davis Leaves Shelbyville

D. Leslie Davis has resigned as city editor of the Shelbyville (Ill.) Union to go with the Decatur Review. William Pick is now acting city editor.

GOVERNMENT PROBES NEWSPRINT IMPORTS

All Canadian Paper Costing 5 Cents or More Subject to Duty Tax —Customs Officials Active

The mounting costs of news print have started the U. S. Customs officials on an inquiry as to whether or not any paper costing five cents or more a pound has come into this country from Canada without paying duty. If it has, there will be some action taken immediately against the parties participating in the importation, for the Reciprocity Act distinctly provides that only news print paper valued at less than five cents a pound may be imported into the United States duty free.

U. S. Appraisal officials have been making quiet investigation since it recently became known that publishers have been paying "spot prices" as high as five cents and five and half cents a pound for news print paper.

Of course, if the high-priced paper was manufactured in America, it does not concern the authorities, but if imported duty free it would be a violation of the Federal laws and punishable, aside from being taxable on top of the big price paid.

Officials consulted by EDITOR & PUBLISHER would not admit that they knew of a specific case that started the inquiry nor would they venture a reply to a question on whether or not it would be proper for a jobber in America to charge five cents or more for Canadian paper after it has been brought into this country free at a lower price.

But they did emphasize that it would be well for publishers who are in high prices to make proper inquiry about where the news print comes from.

Aside from its legal status, the revenue point has other aspects, chief of which probably is: Will enforcement of the revenue laws serve to keep the price of news print manufactured in Canada and used in the United States below the five-cent mark? Or will the laws be amended to meet higher prices, as was done in 1916 when the free duty limit was raised from less than 2½ cents to less than 3 cents a pound. If not, the importing consumer will have to pay the higher price and the tax on top of it. How many can afford to do it is a question.

The dock and marine strike in New York has had its effect on the city's news print supply. In normal times paper is brought by train to the railroad yards on the Hackensack in the city and floated around to piers nearest the newspaper offices, requiring the minimum trucking haul and time to deliver it to the press rooms.

With the boat and dockmen on strike, the newspapers have had to truck the paper all the way from the far distant yards, a little bit at a time, and their plant reserve stocks have been hard hit. If the strike continues much longer it is considered certain that the shortage of ready rolls will make itself felt.

A "Noon-Hour" Daily

A new daily paper, the Bulletin, has made its appearance at Fort William, Ont. It is published at the noon hour and C. M. Dickinson is the publisher.

Wyoming Meeting Tomorrow

The Big Horn Basin Editorial Association of Wyoming will hold an editorial conference and convention at Worland, October 17 and 18.

Digitized by Google

STANDARDIZATION GREATEST NEED

(Continued from Page 9)

The regular yearly election of officers of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, Incorporated, in executive session late this afternoon, was attended by about fifty important advertising agents.

There were some surprises. Paul E. Faust, of Mallory, Mitchell & Faust, Chicago, who was in line for the presidency and whose election had been forecast by agency men and publishers, declined to serve in that capacity, and Harry Dwight Smith of Fuller & Smith, Cleveland, was unanimously chosen as president for one year, succeeding William H. Johns of the George Batten Company, New York.

O. H. Blackman, of Blaekman & Ross, New York, was elected vice-president.

Herman Groth, of the William H. Rankin Company, Chicago, was elected secretary.

Hallman Treasurer

John P. Hallman of New York City was named treasurer.

James O'Shaughnessy was acclaimed executive secretary and general manager.

The following were chosen to the executive board for three-year terms: William H. Johns, Paul E. Faust, J. Wesley Barber of J. W. Barber Ageney, Boston; W. T. Mullaly of Maclay & Mullally, New York; and Maj. Jesse L. Matteson, of Matteson, Fogarty & Jordan, Chicago.

The election of the following chairmen of divisional councils was duly confirmed: Thomas E. Basham, of Louisville, chairman of Southern Counei; and W. R. McLain, chairman Philadelphia Council.

A. W. Erickson of New York was chosen a member of the executive board to fill out an unexpired term.

The executive committee received invitations to meet next time in Chicago and Philadelphia. No action was taken, however.

O'Shaughnessy Tireless

James O'Shaughnessy, the tireless and efficient executive secretary, told Editor & Publisher late Wednesday night that the conference had been one of the best ever held. The members themselves were amazed, he said, at the betterments in advertising that had been brought about through co-operative spirit. The standard rate card is now in use by over 60 per cent. of the newspapers, he said. In a week or two the new standard order blank will be in general use.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy spoke of the fine spirit shown in the conference with the committee in charge of the Bureau of Advertising of the A. N. P. A. on Wednesday, when the Bureau chiefs were the guests of the agents. He stressed the cash value of good will now in evidence by newspaper men, advertisers and agents.

PUBLISHERS ARE HOSTS TO AGENCY MEN

Banquet Marks Close of A. A. A. A. Convention — Broadar Grounds for Co-operation Outlined— Praise for Newspapers

Boston, Aug. 15.—About two hundred leading advertising agency men and New England publishers attended the dinner at Young's Hotel tonight, tendered to the representatives of the American Association of Advertising Agencies and the daily newspaper publishers of New England by the Boston Daily Newspaper Publishers Association and the Bureau of Advertising of the A. N. P. A.

The menu, prepared after recipes by Charles H. Taylor, Jr., of the Boston Globe, was nothing short of an "old-fashioned" New England gastronomic treat. Every one said so and the chairman and toastmaster gave Mr. Taylor all the credit.

The speakers were Louis M. Hammond, Boston Transcript, president of the Boston Newspaper Publishers Association; William H. Johns, Col. G. Edward Buxton, Providence Journal and Bulletin; Lieut. Commander L. E. Denfeldt, New England recruiting officer for the Navy; Harry Dwight Smith, the new president of the A. A. A. A., and Frank W. A. Thomson of the Advertising Bureau.

Thomson Toastmaster

At the head table were seated W. F. Rogers, Harry Dwight Smith, William H. Johns, Louis M. Hammond, W. A. Thomson, Col. G. Edward Buxton, Jr., Frank P. Glass, Major P. F. O'Keefe, and James O'Shaughnessy.

W. A. Thomson, as toastmaster, added considerably to his reputation as a wit and humorist.

Mr. Thomson stressed the pre-eminence of the newspaper as an advertising medium and the value of newspaper advertising to the purchaser of space. The aim of newspaper men, he said, is to make their product better. Boston, he said, lies in the heart of a territory that teems with advertising prospects, which can keep advertising men busy for a long, long time. Advertising agencies can help better the medium, he said, by giving thought to newspaper copy. Good copy is scarce, he declared, and the possibilities of black and white have been hardly touched.

Louis M. Hammond said that the constructive work of advertising agencies for newspapers was almost beyond estimate. "The publishers are not so broad minded as they should be toward the agencies," he said. "We have lost sight of the fact that the advertising agent is one of our own household. We should do all we can to till the ground—to sow the seed, and we reap the harvest to a great extent."

William H. Johns said that although members of the A. A. A. A. are keen competitors, their competition is based on service, and agencies should be proud to win new custom on that basis. The competition, he felt, should be on such a basis that the loser of a contract would feel free to discuss with the winner just how the latter obtained it and how he lost it. "Co-operation brings all success," he said. "Co-operation is not what you get, but what you give. We are glad to say that magazines and newspapers have met us more than half way."

Standardization Urged

He urged standardization of newspaper columns and pages as a measure of economy and efficiency. Standard rate cards, he said, are a great convenience to advertising agencies, and in return they are ready to offer standard order blanks to the publishers. Now, he said, 60 per cent. of rate cards coming to agencies are on A. A. A. A. standard forms. He expects the percentage to be 100 within a year. He said the first daily newspaper publisher of any standing to co-operate with the agents' association and adopt the standard form was E. E. Smith of the Meriden (Conn.) Record.

"Standardization of newspaper columns and pages," Mr. Johns said, "would mean a million dollars a year more foreign advertising for newspapers, now frittered away in mechanical details." Beginning January 1, 1920, he said, every agricultural paper south of Ohio will be of standard size as a result of the association's efforts.

He also urged the flat rate, to eliminate a sliding scale of discounts and consequent hard feeling between newspapers and agencies. He said that the practice of newspapers in granting the agency commission direct to advertisers is deservedly increasing.

Appeals for Navy Aid

Discussing the Navy campaign, Mr Johns said the thought of profit never had been considered. The aim was to show the Government the value of advertising and he stressed the importance

(Continued on Page 37)

Photographed especially for Editor & Publisher.

NEW OFFICERS OF THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF ADVERTISING AGENCIES

Front row, left to right—H. H. Charles, H. D. Smith, W. R. McLain, Newcomb Cleveland.
Back row—James O'Shaughnessy, W. H. Johns, T. E. Basham, J. F. Matteson, O. H. Blackman, J. W. Barber, Stanley Resor.

Digitized by Google

BRITISH DAILIES AROUSE PEOPLE TO NEED OF INCREASED PRODUCTION

Impress Its Relation to Workers' General Prosperity and Happiness---Bitter Campaign Being Waged on Men Responsible for Government Expenditures---American Visitors Urged to Register with American Chamber of Commerce

By HERBERT C. REDOUT,
London Editor Editor & Publisher.

THE British newspapers are playing their part in the endeavor to increase workspeople here to a sense of the country's industrial position. Facing perhaps the greatest industrial and trade crisis in the history of the country, the commercial leaders of Great Britain are bending every effort to speed up production. One of the latest developments, according to the American Chamber of Commerce in London, is a movement to bring home to the workers the dangerously critical position in which Great Britain is now placed because of her dropping output.

The big business men and commercial authorities of Great Britain know that exports are the life blood of British trade, but many a worker does not seem to grasp the connection between British exports and the price of his daily loaf of bread or his suit of clothes. He seems to fear that the demand for increased output may be a movement started by the employers to increase their own profits at his expense. He also has a tendency to feel that the less he does, the more work there is for the next man. All this talk about maintaining Great Britain's place as a world trader is a rather nebulous consideration to him, which he seems to regard more as a question of national pride than of vital necessity to him and his family.

The new spirit which is being widely urged is that employers should have "heart to heart" talks with their workpeople, and that Members of Parliament, the members of the clergy and financial experts should give their first attention to making the working man understand in his own terms the necessity for raising the country's output in all directions. The London Times is particularly active in this movement.

Another factor, which is receiving attention at the moment, is the profiteering that has been going on, and the steps which are being taken by the Government to check it. At the same time the Government itself is being severely criticised, the newspapers waging a bitter campaign that is already having its effect upon those responsible for national expenditure. The Times for instance has been running daily an important column headed, "The Road to Ruin," under which the huge outlay of Government funds is subjected to examination and given wide publicity.

Lack Advertising "Sense"

BRITISH Chambers of Commerce do good work in their way, and are always ready to respond to any call for concerted action, as, for example, during the Victory Loan "push," when their aid was asked to further the movement and they rendered service which was glowingly commented. But almost all of them are handicapped by their lack of the advertising sense, their ideas of publicity and propaganda for the towns they represent being limited usually to the publication of a local guide book or a volume telling the commercial story of the place. None of them encourages discussion of advertising. None of them has the sense of bigness that belief in advertising brings.

What would be thought of a Chamber of Commerce in an American town that roasted the Postmaster General for inserting advertisements in a telephone directory? That is what the Chamber of one of our biggest cities did a week or two back—and it was duly sat on in consequence.

Our newspapers might well put a little ginger into their local Chambers of Commerce and point out how they could benefit not merely themselves, but the whole community by the adoption of a wider vision. But our newspapers do not altogether realize their power in this direction, although they know how swiftly abuses are remedied when the press takes a hand. At the present time these Chambers of Commerce ought to be very busy in solving local problems of reconstruction, feeding the press with news of their activities, and inspiring all with an admiration for their work and an incentive to greater effort. But because they lack the advertising sense there is merely silence.

Re-construction Publicity

PERHAPS the biggest publicity "drive" to aid in reconstruction from war-production to peace, is that of Messrs. W. G. Armstrong, Wentworth & Co., Ltd., the greatest armament house in Great Britain. They practically own two or three towns in the north of England, and their works at Elswick alone employ over 10,000 hands. To effect a change-over in all their factories, from the manufacture of munitions, guns and shells, warships and aircraft, was problem of incalculable magnitude. But a far-sighted directorate, almost with the drying of the ink on the armistice, decreed that advertising on a wide scale should be employed to assist in the change. Today, that publicity scheme is in full going. Generous spaces of double and single-column width in newspapers and trade papers throughout the country, each announcing a special department upon which the house is concentrating in its reconstruction scheme. Some hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent on this publicity and the campaign has excited widespread attention as one of the sanest endeavors to apply advertising as a mending influence.

Cuts Out "Red Tape"

IF is doubtful whether either British or American business men realize to the full the immense service to Anglo-American commerce and relationships that is rendered by the American Chamber of Commerce in London. That it is not one-sided association is seen by the fact that it cabled New York urging that American houses should not "rush" the British market as soon as the import restrictions were removed, but should only export necessities and thus give Great Britain a chance to recover herself. This generous act was the subject of much newspaper comment and praise.

There are so many American newspaper and business men projecting visits to London that what the Chambers offers them cannot be too widely known. It urges all such visitors to put themselves on record with the Chamber immediately on arrival, so that the Chamber can help him. It points out that there is no trouble about it. He doesn't even have to go to the Chamber if it isn't convenient, although he generally finds it worth his while to do so.

All he has to do is to write or ring up and say, "Hello, I am here, staying at such and such a place, for so many days, and would like to be kept in touch with the following subjects." The Chamber cites many instances where enquiries from British members have been on file for the very line of goods which the American was handling, or where such an enquiry has come in while the American was in town. On the other hand, there have been an unfortunate and entirely unnecessary number of "too lates."

The American Chamber in London is there primarily to put its American in touch with British markets and its British members in touch with American markets. Anglo-American trade currents centres in the Chamber, and American business men are simply furthering their own interests by registering with the American Chamber as soon as they hit town. For the Chamber cuts out "red tape," which is a thing some of our conservative Chambers cannot understand.

OLD FRIENDS MAY MEET AGAIN

Morrison and Whyte Find Each Other After Many Years

WINNIPEG, Oct. 13.—Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, has located an old friend of boyhood days who had dropped out of sight for a score of years. "Jimmy" Whyte of the news room staff of the Free Press, and Mr. Morrison "stuck" type together on the old "Telescope" at Walkerton, Ont., thirty years ago. Then they parted and heard nothing about each other until a few days ago, when Mr. Whyte received a letter from the A. F. of L. secretary asking him if he was the same Jimmy Whyte of Walkerton. He is, so the next time Mr. Morrison comes west he is going to drop up to Winnipeg.

SIGHTSEEING WITH THE PRINCE OF WALES MUST BE SERIOUS BUSINESS! NOBODY SMILES!

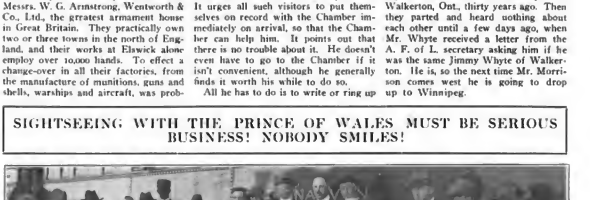

Photo by Courtesy of Canadian Pacific Railway

HERE are the occupants of correspondents' car, "Carnavan," which is attached to the Prince of Wales special train on the Canadian Pacific Railway:

Left to right—Tracy Mathewson of Kinograms Film Co. (with movie camera); J. C. S. Bennett, Canadian Pacific photographer for Canadian Press; Ernest Brooks of London, Royal photographer for English papers; A. K. Dawson (kneeling) of the Publishers Photo Service, New York, for U. S. papers; George Gordon, porter; G. Campbell, London Times; Fred Griffin, Toronto Star and United Press; Joseph Barnard, L'Evenement of Quebec; Everard Coles, Reuter's Service; F. C. Aldham, Canadian Press, Ltd., and Associated Press; Steadworthy, Canadian Pacific Railway; Percival Phillips, London Daily Express; Douglas Newton, London Chronicle, and A. E. Reames, Royal North West Mounted Police.

Why the Presiden

By RAY STANNARD BAKER

An intensely interesting, intimate, non-partisan account of the unceasing struggle of conflicting interests that centered upon the President at Paris and which so absorbed his time and strength as to bring about his present break down.

A series of six articles approximating two thousand words each, released bi-weekly, and written by the one man at Paris who is in possession of all the facts and who can tell the story.

"There can be no doubt that Mr. Baker was closer to the President than any other man in the Peace Conference. He was with him every day. We felt that Baker was upon better terms with the President than any other man in Paris." William Allen White in Saturday Evening Post, Oct. 4th.

Mr. Baker has written a graphic story of how Woodrow Wilson met the five great crisis of the Paris conference; he tells the inside story of each; he gives the details of the President's relations with other delegates, his methods of work and how important decisions were arrived at and how great points were attained or lost. Every article contains facts never hitherto published.

Wire for You

UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE, -

Digitized by Google

Collapsed

"Why the President Collapsed" has been purchased en bloc by the UNITED NEWS SERVICE, the night news-feature wire report of the United Press Associations, and among the papers which will receive the series, exclusively in their cities, via The United News wire are:

Baltimore Sun
Pittsburg Post
Cleveland Press
Detroit News
Chicago Tribune
Milwaukee Sentinel
St. Paul News
Minneapolis News
Omaha News
Kansas City Times

Publication rights on the series for points outside of the above territory are being reserved daily by telegraph.

RAY STANNARD BAKER

Reservation Today

- 318 World Building, New York

Digitized by Google

WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS JOINS I. N. S.

Succeeds John Edwin Nevin as Head of Washington Bureau—Won Fame as War Correspondent

William Philip Simms, one of the most famous of American war correspondents, has been appointed manager of the Washington Bureau of the International News Service, succeeding John Edwin Nevin.

Mr. Simms, who recently returned from Europe, has assumed his new duties. Mr. Nevin, who has been in charge of the Washington Bureau for nearly four years, resigned some time ago. He says he has no immediate plans except to take a much needed rest.

Mr. Simms is probably one of the best known to the public of all American war correspondents who covered the world war. He graduated from the University of Georgia, Department of Law, in 1901, and one year later began his newspaper career as a member of the staff of the Atlanta Constitution.

WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS

Notable Work Before War

Mr. Simms, who became correspondent-in-chief of the United Press at Paris in 1909, and continued in the same position until a few months ago, won fame as a foreign newspaper correspondent even before the outbreak of war. Among the big pre-war stories that he covered were the Parsi floods, the general railway strike, the assassination of Gaston Calmette, the trial of Mme. Caillaux and the champagne riots.

In the spring of 1913, Simms sent a story to the United States saying war seemed inevitable and that if it came at all it would be by July, 1914. This story was considered so improbable that it was little used.

Simms was in the war from start to finish and his big achievements were many. He scored a beat on the general mobilization of the French army and in November, 1914, was officially accredited to the French Army as correspondent representing United States newspapers, one correspondent each from six neutral countries only being thus accredited.

Many Exclusive Interviews

Simms' exclusive interviews with the leaders of France attracted world-wide attention. His interview with Prime Minister Viviani on France's entry into the war was the only one that statesman granted. He was also the first newspaper man to obtain interviews with Premier Briand and Marshal Joffre.

Simms made repeated visits to the French front until the Spring of 1916, when he went to Russia, where he remained until half of the same year. His work in Russia was notable for the number of exclusive stories that he sent out of that country, including interviews with the leaders. His interview with the Czar also sent over signal wires from Imperial General Headquarters at Mogilov and it is said to have been the only time such a thing was ever done.

During a visit to Italy he wrote a story forecasting that country's entrance in the war within 90 days. Italy made her declaration 89 days later.

At Peace Conference

Upon his return from Russia Simms joined the British Army in the Field and continued with it until just prior to the signing of the armistice, when he was ordered to Paris to become in a manner a United Press Chief of Staff, directing that organization's correspondents on all fronts. He continued as chief of the Paris office of the United Press during the Peace Negotiations.

One of Mr. Simms' greatest newspaper achievements during his long stay in the French capital was attained this year when he interviewed President Poiniare. It was the only interview that has been given to an American correspondent by a French president.

Mr. Simms joined the United Press in 1908, going to it from the Cincinnati Post, which paper he joined, first as dramatic critic and later becoming city editor, in 1903, after leading the Atlanta Constitution in 1903.

St. Joseph News-Press Men Return From War

Virgil Jackson, Minus an Arm, Can Operate Typewriter—Saunders Works for Love of It

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 12.—George Maywell Crowson returned from a year's service overseas, is back in his former place on the editorial staff of the News-Press. Virgil Jackson, formerly society editor, who lost an arm in the battle of the Argonne, has returned and taken up work as a general assignment reporter. Jackson has learned to manipulate a typewriter with his remaining hand and arm.

Dewey McDonald has left newspaper work to become associated with the advertising department of a St. Joseph department store.

Joseph Hurst is now handling police, a run long covered by Arthur Burrowes, who is now make-up editor.

Clarence Saunders, of the News-Press, is said to be the wealthiest man actively working on a Missouri pay-rr. He is regularly employed as assistant telegraph editor, working for the love of the game with which he has always been associated—and in which he did not make his money.

Miss Olmeeda Senz was recently married to Luther Seip, a returned soldier. The groom's sister is also a member of the News-Press staff.

"A. B. C." Reports Issued

Chicago, Oct. 14—Audit Bureau of Circulations reports have been issued for the following newspapers: Kalamazoo (Mich.) Gazette, Sharon (Pa.) Telegraph, Streator (Ill.) Free Press and Streator (Ill.) Independent Times.

NEWMYER APPOINTED CHAIRMAN

Will Direct Work of S. N. P. A. Advertising Committee, Succeeding Bryan—Major Cohen Made a Member

New Orleans, Oct. 14—Arthur G. Newmyer, associate publisher of the New Orleans Item and southern vice-president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, has been appointed chairman of the advertising committee of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association, to succeed Walter G. Bryan of Atlanta. Mr. Bryan, formerly publisher of the Atlanta Georgian, has gone to New York as publisher of the New York American.

Mr. Newmyer's appointment was made by J. H. Allison, president of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' association, and associate publisher of the Fort Worth Record.

Major J. S. Cohen, editor of the Atlanta Journal, has been appointed to membership on the advertising committee, in place of Mr. Bryan, to fill the vacancy left by his resignation.

Advertised the South

The other members of this committee are Victor Hanson, publisher of the Birmingham News; W. A. Elliott, business manager of the Jacksonville Times-Union; Charles Allen, vice-president of the Montgomery Advertiser; and C. F. Gadelleter, publisher of the Louisville Herald.

Thousands of dollars are to be invested by the advertising committee of the S. N. P. A. during the coming year, in a national advertising campaign to place before the people of the United States the enormous possibilities of development throughout the South, in all lines of business.

It was five years ago that the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association began in a small way to carry on a campaign in national trade papers and in newspapers in East, North and West, that was planned to advertise the South, and the South's newspapers.

The results of the campaign bore to the business men and advertisers of the United States was that Dixie was prosperous as never before in all her history, and was the best and least developed market for sales of meritorious products.

Only a small amount was spent in this first year of the plan. Each year by year, as the foreign advertising in the South increased, and as sales and prosperity went hand in hand, the newspapers in the S. N. P. A. contributed more largely—and last year a fund of $10,000 was contributed to help the South and the newspapers of the South.

Every cent of it was spent advantageously in a scientific advertising campaign.

Campaign Bears Fruit

During the ten months to come, the committee plans to spend $1,000 a month in carrying on this campaign. Last year, in addition to the advertising through trade papers and newspapers, the committee also issued a booklet called "The South in 1921." That booklet was given wide distribution among national advertisers. It gave complete information on the South and on the southern newspapers in attractively arranged and accurately compiled statistics.

A new edition of this booklet, called "Dixieland of Today" is to be issued this year.

And this five-year advertising campaign of the South and the South's newspapers, carried on conservatively, intelligently, by experts, has borne the inevitable fruit of all intelligent advertising.

There was an instant increase in the amount of foreign advertising carried by those papers after the new policy went into effect. During the first year of the World War, when newspapers throughout the United States sustained decreases of foreign advertising to an extent of 20 per cent. or more, the Southern newspapers lost only about 2 per cent. of the foreign advertising.

In the years since then, foreign advertising has doubled in some and trebled in other sections of the country—and the greatest increase in volume has been shown in the South.

The Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association headquarters are in Chattanooga, in the News Building, in charge of Walter C. Johnson, secretary. At these headquarters is a complete file of information about the South and the newspapers of the South. The offices are regarded as a Southern newspaper clearing house. There are 168 members in the association. And those members represent every newspaper of more than 5,000 daily circulation in the Southern states.

Teaching Better Printing and Advertising

University of Manitoba Will Give Practical Advice for Small Town Improvement

Winnipeg, Oct. 12.—An extension course in better business methods for the small town, directed by the University of Manitoba, in connection with the Manitoba Retail Merchants' Association, has been giving good results Competent authorities on a variety of business subjects tour the province, stopping for two or three days in each town, getting the business men together, studying the community spirit, and discussing with them methods that will make for "Better Business."

The campaign was inaugurated last year and this winter it will be pushed on a more extensive scale. The agenda includes an extension course for the country printer and editor. His experience is sought and practical advice is given toward the solution of the problems that confront him. It is claimed that much of the advertising done by country merchants is useless on account of its poor presentation of the case, its lack of timeliness, and manner of display.

The lecturers sent out by the university and merchants are seeking to overcome this by giving the country merchant and the country printer a short course in modern avertising, showing them where their "ads" are weak and how it would be possible for better advertising to work to the advantage of both the advertiser and the publisher

W. J. Keyes, director of printing at the Kelvin Technical High School, is in charge of the advertising and printing end of the course.

No Ads for Radicals

Minneapolis wholesalers and jobbers have shut down on donations to radical publications and in their place substituted what they call their "Minneapolis Market Fund." All advertising propositions received must be made to the secretary of the American Committee of the Civic and Commerce Association and "strictly on their merits."

Google

in circulation

The POST-DISPATCH is the only St. Louis Newspaper to show a gain

According to the sworn statements filed with the United States Government by the five St. Louis newspapers as required by an act of Congress, the Post-Dispatch is the ONLY St. Louis newspaper to show a GAIN in PAID circulation for the six months prior to October 1, 1919, over the corresponding statements to the Government for October 1, 1918, as proven by the following published figures:

	Post-Dispatch	Globe Democrat	Republic	Times	Star
Oct. 1, 1919	184,957	161,179	76,702	*53,544	*98,545
Oct. 1, 1918	173,959	167,803	87,581	*87,834	*108,657
				(*No Sunday)	(*No Sunday)
GAIN	10,998
LOSS		6,624	10,879	34,290	10,112

The average sale of the Daily and Sunday Post-Dispatch in the city of St. Louis is within only a few thousand of double that of its nearest Daily and Sunday competitor—the Globe-Democrat.

Largest Daily or Sunday Circulation of Any St. Louis Newspaper.

POST-DISPATCH

St. Louis One Big Newspaper

S. C. Beckwith Special Agency, Sole Representatives, Foreign Advertising

NEW YORK CHICAGO ST. LOUIS DETROIT KANSAS CITY

Digitized by Google

PROGRAM COMPLETED FOR CIRCULATORS

Papers and Discussions for Convention Next Week Will Cover Wide Range of Circulation Problems

By Alfred W. Cockerill
CHAIRMAN PROGRAM COMMITTEE N. Y. S. C. M. A.

Here is the program for The New York State Circulation Managers' Association's Watertown convention, October 20-21. For the many helpful suggestions and for the co-operation of brother members the program committee hereby expresses hearty appreciation.

It is our hope that this program completely covers the field, but the success of our efforts, and of those who formally take part depends largely on members' active participation in the discussions at the convention.

Study the program now. Look up matters of interest to you and if there is some topic not on the program in which you are interested make a note of it and bring it up at the meeting for it may be of much interest to others and the interchange of ideas will help us all.

No Dull Hours

Brother Congdon is doing everything possible to prepare a good time for us while in his city and there will be no dull hours between sessions.

You will notice that special rates are extended by the Woodruff Hotel to those who attend our convention—$1.50 for room without bath; $2 and up with bath.

The hotel management has assured the local committee that every attention will be given for the convenience and comfort of all who attend.

The program follows:

MONDAY MORNING, 9:00 O'CLOCK

Secretary's Headquarters, Woodruff House.
Meeting of Board of Directors.
President's Announcements.
Secretary's Announcements.
Report of Local Committee.
General Business.

10 O'CLOCK

Convention Called to Order.
Roll Call.
Address of Welcome.
Reading of Minutes of Previous Meeting.
Report of Board of Directors.
Report of Local Committee.
Auditing Committee's Report.
Secretary's Report.
Report of Legislative Committee.
Report of Membership Committee.
Report of Special Committees.
President's Address.
General, Unfinished or New Business.

Reading and Discussion of Papers

United Co-operation necessary to insure successful distribution and how to secure same.—Daniel W. Tanner, Herald-Dispatch, Utica, N. Y.

Best methods of collecting back accounts on main subscribers discontinued by arrangement order October 1, 1918.—C. S. England, Leader-Republican, Johnstown, N. Y.

Ways to increase mail subscriptions on a morning paper. W. C. Hixson, Post-Standard, Syracuse, N. Y.

For General Discussion

RURAL CIRCULATION

How to build and collect rural circulation without the expense of a traveling representative, what is the best scheme at the least cost?

FEATURES

What new features have you used this year? Should a morning paper use features same as evening and Sunday, what kind would bring results? Advertising features in other newspapers, what is the result? What other methods have you used for advertising them?

CITY DELIVERY

Which is the best plan: Office owned routes, salaried carriers, office owned routes, commissioned carriers, or independent carriers on carrier owned routes?

MONDAY AFTERNOON, 2 O'CLOCK

Reading and Discussion of Papers

Ways in which members of New York State Circulation Managers' Association may co-operate to promote the general welfare of their Publishers.—J. M. Annesberg, Knickerbocker Press, Albany, N. Y.

Practical advantages of a mechanical arrangement for recording, addressing and mailing.—Evarts A. Kunting, Herald, Rome, N. Y.

Should mail subscriptions be a lower rate than papers delivered in City subscribers? —F. Eberle, The Times-Union, Rochester, N. Y.

Absorbing running back into the circulation field, and what can be done to combat them.—J. S. Levy, the Evening Mail, New York City.

For General Discussion

RETURNS

How many allow returns? How many allow discounts on bills in lieu of returns? What can we do when our competitors allow a full return privilege?

PREMIUMS AND CONTESTS

Do you favor the use of premiums or contests? What has been your experience? How many are using premiums? What is the value of straight circulation work as compared to scheme promotion?

SAMPLING

Does sampling on a morning paper bring results in out of town territory? What has been your experience on city sampling both morning and evening?

TUESDAY MORNING, 9:00 O'CLOCK

READING AND DISCUSSION OF PAPERS

A simple system for recording orders and slops for City Carrier and mail subscriptions.—C. E. Diewer, the Press, Binghamton, N. Y.

Successful methods of building rural free delivery circulation for an evening paper.—Frank A. McDuff, the Times-Union, Albany, N. Y.

The increasing costs of production, including the advancing price of Newsprint paper. What can its circulation department do to meet these problems?—M. J. Burke, the Eagle, Brooklyn, N. Y.

SELLING RATES

What is the average daily wholesale rate? What is the prospect of increasing wholesale rates? Is anyone considering raising the price? What are the best methods to increase subscription rates? If the New York Sunday papers increase their price would it be beneficial to the Sunday papers agents to continue their present rate.

AGENTS

Is one agent best in a town or territory, or should there be more than one.

Miscellaneous

Getting to press on time, who has troubles?
Mail room economies, who has any new suggestions?
The mail service, has it improved?
The newsboy age limit, what has been learned it?
Plans to increase street sales on morning and evening papers.
Labor conditions, wages, etc.
Open Meeting for Questions and Answers.
Election of Officers.
Selection of Next Meeting Place.
Unfinished Business.
Meeting of Board of Directors.

Entertainment

A special program of entertainment has been arranged by the local committee. This will include a trip to Deferiet where delegates may observe and inspect the manufacture of newsprint paper at the plant of the St. Regis Paper Company, the finest equipped paper mill in the state. Luncheons will be tendered the members at the close of the morning sessions, when they will be addressed by prominent men of Watertown.

Political Advertising Growing

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 13.—Politicians in northeastern Pennsylvania are learning that advertising in the newspapers is a real effective way of winning votes. In the last primary campaign the percentage of political advertising was far in excess of previous records, and candidates' expense accounts showed that money paid for newspaper advertising was in some cases the biggest item on the list. The established rule on political advertising is "cash in advance."

Robbed Bank with Ad Man's Auto

The automobile of W. L. Dotts, New York advertising agent, was stolen from in front of the New York Athletic Association on September 8, and when later found by the police was identified as the car that had been used by the bandits who robbed the Bronx Borough Bank. A bullet had passed through the machine.

I. N. S. Shifts in Hartford

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 14.—Jack O'Connell, for six years International News Service operator here, has left the Hartford office, expecting to take up similar work in New York. E. T. Samoyden, until recently of the Washington, D. C., office, is handling the Hartford end of the I. N. S. wire.

National Significance

Few newspaper situations in the United States compare with that in

Erie

Pennsylvania

The Market, 157,000

Erie Population, 105,000; Suburban (35 mile radius) 52,000

There one dominant medium, the Erie Times, has 50% more than the combined paid circulations of its two daily competitors and over treble the circulation of either.

Therefore an advertiser in the Erie Times is certain to dominate at small cost a big and prosperous territory.

Erie Daily Times

(A. B. C. Member)

Paid Circulation, 27,079

Line Rate 6c. flat. Evenings except Sunday

Too often a space buyer to guard against duplication will slight a fine market by not using enough mediums. But Erie is one of those rare exceptions. Search the country and you will find few parallels. In fact so exceptional is the combination of prosperous Erie and the dominant Times that you are justified in placing the Times in every campaign.

Your net profit percentage from Erie will be greater than in larger cities where divided newspaper competition makes the use of several mediums imperative. Are you interested?

The Erie Daily Times for EVERY National Advertiser

Representatives

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

Established 1888

15 E. 26th St. New York	Harris Trust Bldg. Chicago	Waldheim Bldg. Kansas City	Monadnock Bldg. San Francisco

Digitized by Google

1,885 COLUMNS

OF PAID ADVERTISING

GAINED IN SEPTEMBER

BY THE

Baltimore Sun

MORNING . EVENING SUNDAY

The Baltimore Sun leads in all fields, Morning---Evening---Sunday—by large margins, and the three issues of The Sun again last month published more advertising than appeared in the five issues of all other Baltimore newspapers.

THE DAILY MORNING ISSUE gained 619 columns and carried 1,350 columns more than the second daily morning paper.

THE SUNDAY ISSUE gained 314 columns (4 Sundays in September, 1919, against 5 Sundays in September, 1918) and published 840 columns more than its nearest Sunday competitor.

THE EVENING ISSUE gained 952 columns and carried 520 columns more than the second evening paper.

The percentage of all newspaper advertising published in Baltimore in September that appeared in The Baltimore Sun was

52.7%

Baltimore advertisers recognize the value of home circulation in this City of Homes, and they know The Sun's exclusive carrier service delivers the kind of circulation that sells advertised goods.

Digitized by Google

PRESS ARRANGEMENTS FORGOTTEN AT INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE

Mrs. Clara Sears Taylor and "Jim" Preston Prevent Serious Complications at Last Moment—List of Accredited Correspondents

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.

AFTER much concern as to the rights of the press at the sessions of the National Industrial Conference, arrangements have been concluded whereby the newspapermen assigned to the story are getting good service in the matter of accommodations.

Difficulties on the opening days of the conference arose from the fact that in this, as in nearly all matters where Federal departments are in the saddle, the press arrangements were about the last thing to be thought of.

Two Weeks' Work Accomplished in One Day

In this instance the efforts of representative Washington newspapermen during the week preceding the assembling of the conference were repaid at the eleventh hour by the activities of Mrs. Clara Sears Taylor, as director of the publicity. Mrs. Taylor did valuable work for the Department of Labor until the publicity organization was disbanded through lack of funds. Prior to that she was with the committee on public information.

Mrs. Taylor undertook to accomplish in a day a task on which she should have had at least two weeks. Her greatest work was that of issuing press tickets to the numerous applicants, and arranging for the transcripts of the proceedings, issued in mimeograph to the correspondents.

The scramble for seats at the press tables—representatives of trade journals taking all of the choice places and leaving the press associations and daily papers to take what was left—led to the ever present "Jim" Preston being summoned from the Senate Press Gallery to prevent serious bickerings.

Accredited Correspondents

The accredited press representatives included the following:

Adams, Geo. ..... Libertator
Alvord, Thos. G. ..... New York Herald
Authier, George F. ..... Minneapolis Journal
Atchison, J. C. ..... Locally News-Record
Baillie, Hugh ..... United Press
Beach, Edward C. ..... Publicity Dept., Community Councils of National Defense
Bell, Samuel W. Philadelphia Public Ledger
Bellamy, Paul ..... Cleveland Plain Dealer
Boyd, Jesse D. ..... Wall Street Journal
Brandenburg, Broadus ..... Brooklyn Daily Eagle
Bockell, R. M. ..... Independent
Brigham, William E. Boston Evening Transcript
Brunner, Milton ..... Scripps Editorial Board
Brown, George Rothwell ..... Washington Post
Brown, Sevellon ..... Providence Journal
Brown, Thomas F. ..... Universal News Service
Cayling, Thos. ..... Canadian papers
Cline, Sheldon ..... Washington Star
Collins, Ralph A. ..... New York Sun
Combs, Gerrie W. ..... Lynchburg News
Cotsch, Ralph F. ..... Central Press
Crawford, W. A. ..... Central News
Daley, William L. ..... Syracuse Journal
Davis, John Eric ..... Washington Star
Deaver, Clayton ..... United States Bulletin
Dougherty, Dennett G. ..... Sioux City Journal
Early, Stephen T. ..... Chamber of Commerce of United States
Easton, Edward C. ..... Philadelphia Inquirer
Emery, J. Fred ..... Baltimore Sun
Evans, Arthur M. ..... Chicago Tribune
Fairbanks, A. B. ..... Troy Record
Feiser, M. L. ..... Iron Trade Review
Fogarty, O. Selmer, ... New York Sun (London Correspondent)
Gill, George H. ..... Daily News Letter
Gardner, Gilson ..... Scripps Editorial Board
Gilbert, Clinton W. ..... Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger
Gowan, Stuart ..... New York Sun
Goodman, Louis L. ..... Detroit News
Greenwood, E. H. ..... La Nacion
Groves, Charles S. ..... Boston Globe
Harrison, Miss Marguerite R. Baltimore Sun
Hert, H. H. ..... American Contractor
Holmes, George ..... International News Service
Hunt, Harry B. ..... Newspaper Enterprise Association
Huerley, T. A. ..... Philadelphia Post
Johns, H. A. ..... Dodge Publications
Johnson, Harold S. ..... Journal of Commerce
Jones, Theodore G. ..... Boston Evening Transcript
Joy, Maurice ..... New York Evening Mail
Keough, F. W. ..... American Industries
Kershner, I. U. ..... Mutual Magazine
Lamm, L. M. ..... Newport Herald
Lane, Harold F. ..... Railway Age
Lawrence, David ..... Syndicate newspapers
Leary, John J. ..... New York World
Loesch, A. M. ..... National Grange Monthly
Low, Fred R. ..... Sun
Lucas, R. E. ..... Merchants Trade Journal
Lyman, Charles A. ..... Clipper Farm Publications
McCain, George N. ..... Philadelphia Evening Ledger
McDonnell, J. P. ..... New News-Record
McKenzie, Justin ..... Universal News Service
Macmanus, J. ..... International News Service
Magnuson, L. ..... Monthly Labor Review,
Manning, T. S. ..... Bureau of Labor Statistics
Manly, Basil ..... Scripps Economic Review
Markham, Edgar ..... St. Paul Paper-Press
Marquis, J. Clyde ..... Country Gentleman
Martinez, J. ..... Boston Herald
Mathews, Francis G. ..... Washington Times
Mayer, E. J. ..... Engineering Pro. Herald
Mehren, Benjamin ..... Jewish Daily Forward
Merchant, Charles ..... New News-Record
Moffett, L. W. ..... Cleveland Daily Iron Trade
Mock, Thomas H. ..... Pittsburgh Dispatch
Morris, Mildred ..... International News Service
Norton, Robert L. ..... Boston Post
Noyes, Newbold ..... Washington Star
Parmalee, H. C. ..... Chem. & Met. Engineering
Pew, George Curtis, ... Republican Publicity Association
Rechter, J. F. ..... Journal of Commerce
Reid, Hugh ..... The Public
Rigby, Cora ..... Christian Science Monitor
Roberts, Roy A. ..... Kansas City Star
Roberts, W. C. ..... American Federationist
Ross, Chas. G. ..... St. Louis Post-Dispatch
Rowe, Mrs. Lily Lykes ..... New York Tribune
Rowell, H. H. ..... Dearborn Independent
Ruth, Carl D. ..... Cleveland News
Schaefer, Arnold H. ..... Leslie's Weekly
Scott, Wm. R. ..... Christian Science Monitor
Shinerl, Arthur J. ..... Newark Evening News
Shubtmer, Allen, ... Automotive Industries & Motor Age
Small, Carl ..... Oregon Journal
Small, Robert T. Philadelphia Public Ledger
Spurr, J. E. ..... Engineering & Mining Journal
Stanley, Donald ..... Portland Journal
Stevens, Harry C. ..... Minneapolis Journal
Strachan, Henry D. ..... Havas News Agency
Steen, Herman ..... Prairie Farmer
Tipper, Harry ..... Motor World
Todd, Lawrence ..... Fargo Courier-News
Tucker, Glenn C. ..... New York World
Turner, Mrs V. B. ..... Monthly Labor Review,
Tuttle, Emmett ..... Federal Statistics
Underwood, J. J. ..... Seattle Times
Wood, Leroy A. ..... Chicago Daily News
Waters, George B., ... Newspaper Enterprise Association
White, William Allen, ... Associated newspapers
Wooten, Paul ..... McGraw-Hill Engineering Papers
Wood, Lewis ..... New York Times
Wright, Orville ..... Standard Corporation
Zachary, R. A. ..... Brooklyn Daily Eagle

Printers Compromise Demands

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 14—The local Typographical Union, which had submitted a wage scale asking increases of $3 a week, effective October 1, has reached an agreement with the publishers of the Capital Times and the Wisconsin State Journal providing for increases of $3 for the next six months and $1 more for the six months thereafter. The printers have been paid at the rate of $27 a week for day work and $29 for night work. Their salaries have been raised 50 per cent in the last eight years.

Political Daily in Yonkers

YONKERS, N. Y., Oct. 12—The Democratic party here has started its own daily newspaper, the Review, for campaign purposes. It consists of four pages, tabloid, and is distributed free. Joseph A. Brady, formerly on the New York Evening World staff, is one of the editors and a candidate for State Assemblyman.

Miss Dodds at Columbia School

CHEYENNE, WYO., Oct. 12.—Miss Clara R. Dodds, society editor on the Wyoming State Tribune, for the past year, is now at the School of Journalism of Columbia University, New York City, taking post graduate work. She is a graduate of the University of Nebraska journalism school. Mrs. Walter L. Larsh, wife of the Cheyenne postmaster, who was formerly society editor on the Tribune, is again filling that position.

Linotype Instruction at U. of O.

NORMAN, OKLA., Oct. 12.—Miss Fannie Inez Bell of Muscogee has been made editor of the University of Oklahoma Magazine, and Otto Brewer of Norman business manager. A new feature in the school of journalism is the installation of linotype instruction for the students.

Snyder Leaves Collar Field

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 15.—George L. Snyder, advertising manager of the C. W. Ferguson Collar Company, has moved to Cincinnati to enter the service of the Monitor Stove Company.

P. H. McMillan Dies in Detroit

DETROIT, Oct. 4.—Philip H. McMillan, secretary-treasurer of the Detroit Free Press, died here today, aged forty-six years. He was born in Detroit, was graduated from Yale in 1894 and from the Harvard Law School in 1898. He was president of the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation Company and a director in a number of financial corporations.

Gill Made Editor

ELMIRA, N. Y., Oct. 13—William C. Gill is the new managing editor of the Telegram to succeed the late John Moore. Alan Gould of the Herald staff is designated chief assistant to Mr. Gill as city editor. Before going to the Telegram Mr. Gill had been reporter and later city editor of the Advertiser, news editor of the Elmira Gazette and manager of the Evening Star. He is a native of Philadelphia.

Completes Study of Northwest

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—F. O. G. Schindler of the copy department of Johnson, Read & Co. has recently returned from a months trip to the Pacific Northwest, devoted in part to a study of business conditions. The cities visited include Spokane, Seattle, Aberdeen, Chehalis, Portland and Salem.

More display advertising of Brooklyn retail stores appears each month in the Standard Union than elsewhere.

"Ask the man who knows."

How Dallas is "Sold" on "Nationally—Advertised"

A Leading Dallas Department Store recently "hung out its sign" and carried an 18-PAGE advertisement in the Dallas Times Herald, devoted entirely to nationally-advertised merchandise. For an entire week the sales force of this great store furthered the doctrine of "nationally-advertised" to shoppers of Dallas and North Texas.

Dallas, first City of Texas, is already "sold" on merchandise that is nationally advertised. Its people believe in and buy nationally-advertised products. They will buy your product if it is advertised in The Dallas Times Herald.

A real Promotion Department awaits the word to furnish trade data or any other reasonable service.

DALLAS TIMES HERALD

REPRESENTED BY THE S. C. BECKWITH SPECIAL AGENCY

New York Chicago St. Louis Detroit Kansas City

Digitized by Google

CANADA IS SHARING IN NEW ERA

Advertising Volume Shows No Decline, and Space Buyers, as in U. S., Show Marked Preference for Daily Newspapers

OTTAWA, ONT., Oct. 13.—While general expectations a few months ago were that the advertising "boom" would let up to a considerable extent once the majority of Canada's fighting men had been returned from over-seas and reassimilated into civil life, this has not been the case.

New high records in lineage continue to be made by the leading papers of the country, and it is notable that this circumstance applies both to "foreign" and local advertising.

Never previously have avertising solicitors found such a ready response from their territories. The agencies have developed many important new accounts, cities experience little difficulty in putting on increase lineage. In the latter regard, it is interesting to note that special editions and "stunt" pages are contributing an important part, a close check of the Canadian press demonstrating that these are now "epidemic."

Whatever opinion may be held respecting this class of advertising, the fact remains that it is now popular with "local" space-users.

Those competent to gauge the situation believe that a let-up is not to be feared, provided the industrial situation does not become a greater factor than at present. They consider that the present situation merely marks the advent of a new era in advertising—and particularly with reference to newspaper advertising.

Pittsburgh Writers Elect

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 12.—Emulative of the St. Louis plan, The Pittsburgh News Writers Association was formally organized at a largely attended meeting today. These officers were elected: President, George B. Carrell, Dispatch; vice-president, James J. Long, Sun; secretary-treasurer, A. S. Friedman, Sun; sergeant-at-arms, Kirk Johnston, Chronicle-Telegraph; trustee, Nicholas Martin, Tri-State News Bureau; Vincent Drayne, Post, and A. E. Mercer, Gazette-Times.

AMERICAN JOURNALISTS ASSOCIATION FORMED

(Continued from Page 5)

the National Journalists' Association. Although the place of the convention has not yet been decided, invitation has been made by both the St. Louis

JOHN T. ROGERS
Corresponding Secretary

Association of Journalists and the local Convention Bureau to hold the first national gathering in this city.

Some idea of what has so far been accomplished in a brief period by the St. Louis plan in the city of its origin may be gleaned from the following abbreviated statement of facts:

The first action taken locally was by the Post-Dispatch chapter, which drafted a memorial to Joseph Pulitzer, Jr., the editor, asking for a 30 per cent general increase in salaries. Mr. Pulitzer replied by distributing a cash bonus of 20 per cent, retroactive to January 1, 1919, with the promise of a second bonus on the same terms to be paid the editorial men on December 31, 1919. That amounts to a flat 20 per cent salary increase to every worker on the paper for the year 1919. It is noteworthy that in addition to the foregoing, numerous individual editorial employes applied for wage increases which, in nearly all cases, were cheerfully granted them.

The St. Louis Star chapter presented a similar memorial to general manager B. E. Bradley, who answered with a proposal of permanent wage increases ranging from $2.50 to $7.50 per week, and averaging $5 per week for between twenty and thirty editorial employees.

HERMAN M. HOELCKE
Treasurer

Mr. Bradley himself figured out the individual apportioning of wage increases and submitted it for the approval of the chapter, which found his estimates entirely satisfactory.

About the same thing happened in the case of the St. Louis Times chapter. S. R. Stanard, the managing editor, set aside a certain sum and the staff men themselves were left to apportion it for individual distribution. The raises thus effected on the Times averaged $5 per week per employee.

The St. Louis Republic chapter, owned by ex-U. S. Ambassador David R. Francis, drew up a memorial, pointing out what had cheerfully been done by the managements of the Post-Dispatch, The Star and the Times, and asking for measures of salary relief. That memorial was endorsed by managing editor Sam Hellman and was by him presented to Mr. Francis on his return to St. Louis from Russia. Mr. Francis in turn announced that readjustments of salaries would be put into effect on the Republic on October 12.

CHARLES Y. TAYLOR
Executive Committee

Both Managing Editors Hellman of the Republic and Stanard of the Times are active members of their respective paper's association chapters.

The really extraordinary thing in the cases of the Star and the Times is that—for the first time in history—a managing editor has personally drawn up a schedule of salary increases and submitted it to an association of his employees for approval.

Adjourn Canadian Hearings

(BY TELEGRAPH)

OTTAWA, ONT., Oct. 9.—The Canadian news print investigation which was to have been resumed today has been adjourned indefinitely because the Government auditor has not completed his examinations of the paper companies' books.

THE NEWS

Greatest Buying Power in the Mountain States

That's the reputation of The Rocky Mountain News among people who know.

The "Greatest Buying Power" because of the class of people who are its readers.

Its readers are the people who have been, and are, responsible for the progress and prosperity of the Mountain States.

These people are readers of The Rocky Mountain News because it has always been found standing for the best interests in its community, and Because its advertising columns as well as its editorial have been uniformly clean and untainted, it has the confidence of the real people of Denver and the Mountain States.

The Rocky Mountain News

Largest Morning Circulation in Denver and the Mountain States

Verree & Conklin, Foreign Representatives, Brunswick Building, New York; Steger Building, Chicago; Free Press Building, Detroit.

The Shaffer Group

Rocky Mountain News — Denver Times
Indianapolis Star — Muncie Star — Terre Haute Star
Chicago Evening Post — Louisville Herald

THE NEWS

The West Virginian

The Evening Newspaper
Published at Fairmont, West Virginia announces the appointment of

ROBERT E. WARD
5 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago
225 Fifth Avenue, New York

as

National Advertising Representative
Member of A. B. C.

Digitized by Google

Signs Infallible

THERE are numerous ways in which prosperity manifests itself in a community. The building of new and better homes, the laying out of parks and places of amusements, the erection of public libraries and the establishment of civic centers are all unfailing signs of a financially thriving community. These are not only concomitant with, but are the surest indicators of prosperity.

Bridgeport has all the ear-marks of prosperity. Its extensive building developments, effected by the Bridgeport Housing Company, under the direction of the Bridgeport Chamber of Commerce, resulted in the erection of a large number of well-built apartment and unit houses, both within the city limits and outside in the cities of Fairfield and Stratford.

Bridgeport's standard of living is continually rising. Employers and employes are making money and are spending it in Bridgeport.

You, Mr. Advertiser, can reach this great purchasing power by advertising in the

Bridgeport Post
(Evening and Sunday Morning)
AND Bridgeport Telegram
(Morning Except Sunday)

Connecticut's Largest Circulation

Only Bridgeport Publishers Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.

I. A. KLEIN
Metropolitan Tower
New York City

Foreign Representatives

JOHN GLASS
Peoples Gas Building
Chicago

Digitized by Google

CHILE OFFERS FIELD TO ADVERTISERS

Wonderful Opportunity Awaits Enterprising American Business Firms, Says a Government Investigator—

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—There is an opportunity in Chile to put to good use America's unrivaled power in advertising.

Trade Commissioner J. W. Sanger, investigator of the advertising situation in Latin-America for the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, states in a report issued today that in Chile alone of the west coast countries, the dealers and importers are beginning to realize the economic function of advertising.

"At present, Chile is passing through a transition period as regards both advertising and merchandising," says the report. "It has not wholly broken away from the old method whereby a small group of strong importing commission houses practically controlled the entire business of the country. These importers used advertising in only a perfunctory way, depending more upon their acquaintance with the trade and their ability to extend credit suitable to the buyer.

"They have buying offices established in all the important buying centers, particularly in Europe, and the consumer found them willing and eager to extend credit on anything from a plow or typewriter to the entire equipment for a factory.

Smaller Merchants Awakening

"Having been established for generations and having filled a want that was met in no other way, they came to occupy a place of marked influence. Today, however, the smaller merchants are coming more and more to buy direct from the factories, placing their orders with the salesmen who make regular visits or with American houses that have established branch agencies."

Whereas, formerly the dealers were sceptical of the wisdom of the huge appropriations made by American manufacturers for domestic advertising, there is now among them, especially among the importers of such lines as automobiles, an enthusiastic acceptance of advertising as a means of reducing selling expense.

The report makes the point that the significance of the advertising situation for the United States lies not so much in the fact that other countries have not used advertising as in the possibilities of developing abroad a power in the domestic use of which we are unrivaled.

In a non-manufacturing country like Chile, with a high ratio of per capita imports and an excellent average of literacy among its virile and aggressive population, advertising deserves a place as a sales-promoting force of far more importance than it holds at present.

Possibilities in Peru and Bolivia are also considered in the report, but are held not to be so promising as in Chile.

INTERNATIONAL ADVERTISING

Arrangement Between Rankin and Higham Completed

By the association arrangement (noted in EDITOR & PUBLISHER last week) between the William H. Rankin Company of Chicago and Charles F. Higham, Ltd., of London, the Rankin Company will solicit accounts for Higham, and Mr. Higham will solicit new business for the Rankin Company in Great Britain. The arrangement was consummated through mutual friends and especially Messrs. Byoir and Hart of New York, who have been the personal representatives of Mr. Higham in this country. Mr. Higham already represents two of the customers of the William H. Rankin Company, namely, Wilson & Co., the Chicago packers, and the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio.

Mr. Higham, who is a member of Parliament, is an American who, after long association with an Eastern advertising agency, went abroad many years ago.

FORT SMITH STRIKE TIES UP PAPERS

Printers Demand Wages of $48-$51 and Refuse Arbitration—Publishers May Adopt "Open Shop"

(BY TELEGRAPH)

FORT SMITH, ARK., Oct. 15.—All newspapers in this city are still completely tied up by a strike of union printers, which began October 4. Job shops are likewise affected. Up to the present time the employing printers and publishers have made no effort to operate. Arbitration of the new wage scale presented by the union was refused by the union and there have been no negotiations since the calling of the strike. The maximum demand of the new scale is $51 for foremen and $48 for machinist operators on morning papers, time and half for overtime and double time after four hours. Most of the printers have sought employment in other cities, while the few who remain are getting out a small daily paper without telegraph, which is called "The Fair Daily" and is devoted mainly to presenting arguments in defense of the union's strike action.

Many business men are demanding that the newspapers resume publication on the "open shop" basis, if the printers do not return to work immediately.

Hardy Moves to Kansas City

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 7.—The C. R. Cook Paint Manufacturing Company has appointed Paul W. Hardy of New York as manager of its advertising department. Mr. Hardy was formerly assistant advertising manager of Valentine & Co.

Mrs. Rose Welcomed Home

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—The Woman's Advertising Club gave a dinner to Mrs Florence C. Rose of Evanston, Ill. The guest of honor recently returned from France, where she had been engaged in canteen work for two years.

Airing a Grievance

MUSCATINE, IA., Oct. 15.—Norman Baker recently had a grievance against the Journal, so he hired a hall to air it. In their paper the Journal publishers commended Mr. Baker for thus voicing his opinions in public rather than doing so in private.

DISPUTE OVER UNION OF NEWSBOYS

Attempt Being Made to Form New Seattle Body to Protect Bona-Fide "Newsie," Exploited by Older Men

SEATTLE, WASH., Oct. 14.—Unanimous request for the revocation of the charter of the Seattle Newsboys' Union on the ground that the organization has come under the control of older men presuming to "own" downtown street corners and exploiting the smaller boys, who actually sell the papers, was made this week by the Seattle Central Labor Council to the American Federation of Labor. The case is of interest because it involves the age-old circulation problem of "corner ownership."

The labor council refused to sanction the agreement which the Newsboys' Union signed with the Seattle Times, Post-Intelligencer and Star, declaring it was not expressive of the will of the majority of the union members. Those alleged to be in control of the union have declared a boycott against the Seattle Union-Record, organized labor's daily paper here, refusing to permit the sale of the paper on "their corners."

The agreement signed by the union with the Times, Post-Intelligencer and Star has been declared void by the labor council.

An attempt will be made to organize a new newsboys' union in Seattle to give full protection to the so-called bona fide newsboys.

Myers Admitted to Bar

SCRANTON, PA., Oct. 12.—Jerome I. Myers, formerly a local newspaper man, was recently admitted to the practice of law in the courts of Lackawanna County, Pa. Mr. Myers was graduated from the Dickinson Law School at Carlisle, Pa.

Raising Fund for Hospital

HARTFORD, CONN., Oct. 13.—M. C. Manternach, president of the Manternach Company, has been appointed advertising and publicity director of the drive to obtain a $500,000 fund for the Hartford Hospital.

Elliott Now a Teacher

WINNIPEG, Oct. 8.—J. Courtland Elliott, formerly a member of the Kingston (Ont.) Whig, has been appointed assistant professor of political economy in the University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon.

Tisch With Robb Motors

Detroit, Oct. 8.—A. L. Tisch, advertising manager of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, has resigned to become a member of the executive staff of the Robb Motor Company, Chicago.

Parks Goes to "Bay City"

ST. PAUL, MINN., Oct. 14.—J. J. Parks, late of the local staff of the Daily News, has taken a place at the copy desk of the San Francisco Chronicle. While in St. Paul, Mr. Parks was adjutant of the local post of the American Legion.

Astor Acquires Another Paper

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The Daily Financial Times and the Drapers' Record have been purchased by Major Waldorf Astor, M. P., for a price said to exceed $2,000,000. Major Astor is the principal owner of the Sunday Observer and is the son of Lord William Waldorf Astor.

Wanamaker Buys Famous Yacht

Vincent Astor has sold his yacht, Noma, reputed to be the fastest private steam yacht in the world, to Rodman Wanamaker, executor of the James Gordon Bennett estate. The purchase price was not made public.

Reynolds Recovering Slowly

Stanley M. Reynolds, correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, who was a member of President Wilson's party and was injured in the same accident that killed Ben F. Allen of the Cleveland Plain-Dealer, is making satisfactory progress toward recovery. Physicians, however, say it will be several weeks before he can leave the Good Samaritan Hospital in Portland, Ore.

Drawing for Mail Syndicate

Harry J. Tuthill, late cartoonist of the St. Louis Star and the Post-Dispatch, will join the forces of the New York Evening Mail Syndicate, October 27th.

Robert F. R. Huntsman, publisher of the Brooklyn Standard-Union, is confined to his home by illness.

ADVERTISING SECURED

Advertising for Special Issues of Daily Papers and Magazines. Souvenir Programs of big events, Publicity campaigns conducted. If you have a legitimate reason for producing something special I have the men and means to do it.

J. L. LeBERTHON

2 RECTOR STREET NEW YORK CITY

Keeping Up With The Times

A FACT A WEEK

What is a good slogan to express the position of The Times as an advertising medium in the Washington field?

The sworn and audited circulation figures of the Washington newspapers show that no single one covers anything like the entire field. Also, that no combination of two papers which excludes The Times covers the field.

Would an effective slogan be "Don't leave the Washington job half done," or "You can't cover Washington without The Times?"

The Washington Times,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Digitized by Google

NEWS IN BRIEF of the NEWSPAPER AND ADVERTISING WORLD

Leonard Webster, an advertising man employed by the Omaha World-Herald, has been arrested for alleged complicity in the lynching of Will Brown, negro, the burning of the Court House and attempted lynching of Mayor Smith on September 28, and according to the police he has confessed.

C. V. Van Anda, managing editor of the New York Times, has been granted a temporary injunction restraining a real estate operator from ejecting him from his apartment where he has lived for many years, because of a disagreement over rental.

Marcus Garvey, editor of the Negro World, which was shot and seriously wounded while in his office Thursday afternoon, by George Tyler, a business associate.

Jack Veiock, sporting editor of the International News Service, who was taken suddenly ill while covering the World Series at Chicago, is confined to his home in New York as the result of an attack of pleurisy which followed a heavy cold.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., of the New York Herald staff, has returned to New York after a trip to the Pacific Northwest, where he interviewed the Prince of Wales and former Mayor Ole Hanson, of Seattle, for his paper.

Speaking about activity in real estate, half a dozen prominent New York news-paper men have purchased dwellings during the last few months—Ruy W. Howard, president of the United Press, bought a beautiful place in Pelham; Frederick Roy Martin of the Associated Press, a home in Bronxville; W. W. Hawkins, general manager of the United Press, a home in South Yonkers; Howard Davis, business manager of the Tribune, a place at Pelham; and James Wright Brown, president of the Editor & Publisher, the house in Yonkers, N. Y., where his family have been living for the last six years.

A. H. Belo & Co., publishers of the Dallas News and Journal, and Galveston Daily News, at banquets tendered their employes in Dallas on October 1 and in Galveston on October 2, announced a free insurance plan for recognizing faithful employes' service. For employes who have been with the company six months, the amount of the policy will be $300 and it increases until for 21 years or longer the policy will be $2,500. In addition the company will pay a cash bonus of 10 per cent. of the preceding three months' salaries to each employe. All editions of the Belo newspapers now carry a copyright line.

At the annual convention of the American Electric Railway Association, at Atlantic City, N. J., organization of a section composed of street railway publicity and public relations men was effected with these officers: Chairman, Leake Carraway, Virginia Railway & Power Company; vice-chairman, Luke Grant, Chicago Elevated Railway; executive committee, the above officers and W. P. Strandborg, Portland (Ore.) Railway, Light & Power Company; Dwight Burroughs, Baltimore United Railways; E. R. Kelsey, Toledo Railways; W. Collins, Connecticut Company, and A. D. B. Van Sandt, Detroit United Railways.

The Charleston (W. Va.) Gazette has been elected to active membership in the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

J. W. Schuler has resigned from the Scranton Times to become circulation manager of the Charleston (W. Va.) Mail.

The McGraw-Hill Publishing Company, New York, has purchased the Journal of Electricity. It will continue to be published from San Francisco.

Secret Service men and detectives guard the courtroom where Gust Alonen and Carl Piavio are being tried on a charge of criminal anarchy before Supreme Court Justice Weller, New York, in connection with publications in The Class Struggle, a Finnish magazine. The unusual precautions are an aftermath of the distribution through the city of a circular "Arm Yourselves."

Acting on the advice of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. D'Arcy, there has been substituted in the service flag of the loving cup selected at the recent A. A. C. W. Convention for presentation to Arthur Newmyer, associate publisher of the New Orleans Item. A suitable inscription was prepared by Mr. D'Arcy and is being cut on the service together with the Truth emblem of the Advertising Clubs.

Secretary Walter C. Johnson has arranged a meeting of the legislative committee of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association to take place in Nashville about October 20.

Dan F. Miller has resigned as news editor of Editor & Publisher to take charge of financial advertising for Troy & Co., an investment securities firm located in the Flatiron Building, New York.

New Paris offices of the United Press have been opened at 32 Rue Louis le Grand. Henry Wood is manager.

The annual election of the St. Louis Advertising Club will take place October 28, the following two slates having been prepared: (1) C. E. Storer, Louis H. Budke, A. W. Paulsen, C. E. Gottschalk and Sam Hewitt. (2) R. Fullerton Place, E. A. Wright, George Barnes, P. M. Fahrendorff and A. J. Gaines.

William McCollum, dean of newspapermen in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., has practically decided to become a candidate for city councilman. The office pays $3,000 a year.

At a banquet given by employees of the Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) Times-Leader as a welcome home from France to Col. Ernest G. Smith, general manager, the publishers announced their decision to place a profit sharing plan in operation. First checks will be given out Christmas. The arrangement will benefit every employee of a year's service. Wage advances are also to be given certain employees. For the first year it is estimated the bonus will be paid on a basis of 5 per cent.

Audit Bureau of Circulations reports have been issued on the Regina (Sask.) Morning Leader and the Regina Daily Post.

Advertising promulgated by the Banker's Trust Company, Seattle, designed to encourage American travel in war-ridden lands of Europe, was condemned in resolutions adopted by the Washington Hotel Men's Association on the ground that tourist travel at home should be urged.

Members of the Scranton Advertising Club have launched a new slogan for their city. It is "Wear a Flower." The idea was proposed at a recent meeting of the club by T. J. Duffy, advertising manager of the Republican, and has already been endorsed by the Kiwanis and the Rotary Clubs. The club also decided to hold its next conference in Wilkes-Barre, where it is hoped to organize a branch to be known as the "Federated Advertising Association of Northeastern Pennsylvania."

With the famous bell back on the job after an absence of many years, the St. Paul Town Criers (Advertising Men's published by the majority of newspapers Club) held its first meeting of the 1919-1920 season with more than seventy-five in attendance. Elliott C. Hensel, president, announced a membership of 193, with two associate members. Regular meetings will be held Wednesday evenings, besides noonday luncheons and educational features. F. G. Shute has resigned as chairman of the vigilance committee and Charles Buckbee was named in his place.

The Jewish Times, a weekly printed in English edited by Rabbi C. A. Rubenstein, has appeared in Baltimore. It is the first Jewish paper in Baltimore since the failure of the Jewish Comment about two years ago.

The Houston (Tex.) Sunday Chronicle's publication of over 1,800 classified advertisements is believed to have made a record for South Texas. The Chronicle was also the first paper in Houston to reach the 1,200, 1,300, 1,400 marks.

Altnow-Singleton-Held, Inc., is a new advertising agency corporation in Seattle, Wash. J. R. Singleton is president, J. F. Held vice-president and George G. Altnow secretary-treasurer.

The Cross of Chevalier of the Order of Leopold was bestowed upon James T. Williams, Jr., of the Boston Evening Transcript, during the visit to Boston of the King and Queen of the Belgians. The decoration is in recognition of "devoted services rendered the Belgian cause during the war."

The Yonkers (N. Y.) Chamber of Commerce has started a drive to raise $10,000 for advertising the advantages of the manufacturing city. The campaign is under the supervision of Harry E. Storm and E. C. Abbot, two New York advertising men. Space will be taken in the real estate sections of most New York newspapers.

Madrid newspapermen are attempting to form a union, and, it is said, will demand a minimum monthly salary of 300 pesetas ($57.90 normal exchange.) They threaten to strike if this rate is refused.

Cisco (Tex.) is to have a morning paper backed by local capitalists, who have taken over the old Roundup plant and will add new equipment.

A resolution thanking the newspapers of the country for the fine spirit of cooperation they have shown in keeping the news of the nation-wide campaign of the Episcopal Church before the public was adopted by the Episcopal Board of Missions at a special session to Detroit in connection with the general convention of the church.

Recent changes on the Burlington (Vt.) Daily News include the appointments of Louis Fenner Dow as managing editor, succeeding A. B. Grimes; Robert H. Washburne as state editor; Ralph H. Marden, city editor; and Francis F. Kellogg, assistant city editor.

D. M. Smith, former mechanical superintendent of the Kansas City Journal and previously with the Topeka Capital as foreman, has taken charge of the composing room of the Fort Smith (Ark.) Southwest American.

"The newspaper is far more than a medium of publicity," said Mrs. Louise F. Brand, director of publicity for the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, in an address on "Social Publicity" at the Institute for Social Service in Milwaukee. "It is an organized social force, as many instances the pioneer socializing agency in the community outside of the school and the church. It is an educator with a vast enrollment of pupils. No other agency does so comprehensive a work, for there is seldom a poject for civic betterment which does not have the newspaper as one of its influential backers."

The Minneapolis Tribune has inaugurated a service department, one of the features of which is a new publication called the "Tribune Merchandiser" devoted to the interests of national advertisers and retail merchants. Willis L. Williams, formerly advertising manager of the St. Paul Dispatch and head of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, Dispatch Service department, is manager, with Thomas A. Boright, of the Tribune's editorial department, as assistant.

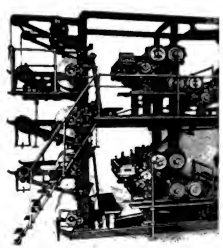
P. W. Hardy, late assistant advertising manager of Valentine & Co., New York, has been appointed advertising manager of the Cook Paint & Varnish Company, (formerly the C. R. Cook Paint Company), Kansas City, Mo. An extension of the advertising program is planned to cover both Middle and Southwestern newspapers, periodicals and trade papers.

The New England Sun is a new paper in Bridgeport, Conn., owned by Italian stockholders. Alfred Stewart O'Brien, for years with the Bridgeport Sunday Herald, is the editor.

"Tillie Altartra," queen of all Holstein cows, was the guest of honor of the Portland (Ore.) Ad Club recently at luncheon. Miss Margery Dana, daughter of Marshal N. Dana, president of the club, crowned Queen Tillie with a wreath of flowers which she promptly ate. Then Mayor Baker donned a milk maid's costume and milked Tillie while all applauded.

There are rumors that a new morning paper is to be established in Winnipeg, Man., in the near future. Liberal politicians in eastern Canada are said to be interested.

Digitized by Google



WHEN A PUI

about all that is best in printing machinery, machines are not only standard, but oc

HOE PRESSES ARE USED BY THE NEWSPAPER AND MAGAZ

HOE Superspeed and High-Speed Presses Have

Philadelphia Bulletin	6 Decuples
Philadelphia Bulletin	1 Octuple
Baltimore Sun	3 Decuples
Pittsburgh Post	3 Octuples
Pittsburgh Post	1 Quadruple
Boston Post	2 Octuples
Boston Globe	2 Sextuples
Cleveland Plain Dealer	2 Octuples
Toronto Telegram	2 Octuples
Toronto Globe	1 Octuple
Binghamton Sun	1 Sextuple
Columbus Dispatch	1 Octuple
Bronx Home News	1 Sextuple
Chester Times	1 Quadruple
Cleveland News-Leader	1 Decuple
Cleveland News-Leader	2 Octuple Decks
Halifax Herald	1 Quadruple
Hamilton Spectator	1 Decuple
Hartford Times	1 Octuple
Indianapolis News	1 Sextuple
Indianapolis Star	1 Sextuple
Jacksonville Times-Union	1 Sextuple
Long Island Star	1 Quadruple
Los Angeles Times-Mirror	1 Octuple
New Orleans Times-Picayune	1 Octuple

HOE Superspeed Four-Section or installed for the SAN

ACTUAL RUN
80,000 papers per hour of 4 to 16 page
20,000 papers

Hoe Rotary Presses now in course of construction or being installed time in the Printing Press Industry and indisputable
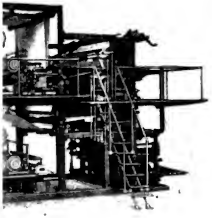
From the Viewpoint of Speed, Net Outpu

R. HO

504-520 Grand
7 Water S

544-546 South Clark St., CHICAGO, ILL.



Digitized by Google

SHER THINKS

surely thinking of Hoe Machinery, for Hoe ı position of Indisputable Supremacy.

\T MAJORITY OF THE PROMINENT PUBLISHERS IN AMERICA.

tly Been Purchased by the Following Newspapers:

Press with two extra Formers just SCO CHRONICLE.

D CAPACITY
0 papers per hour of 18 to 32 pages
5 to 64 pages

New York Sun	1	Octuple
New York Sun	1	Sextuple
New York Times	1	Sextuple
New York Tribune	1	Sextuple
Pontiac Press-Gazette	1	Sextuple
Portland Journal	1	Octuple
Richmond Times-Dispatch	1	Octuple
Richmond Times-Dispatch	1	Sextuple
Rochester Democrat & Chronicle	1	Sextuple
San Francisco Chronicle	1	Octuple
Seattle Times	1	Octuple
Spokane Spokesman-Review	1	Sextuple
Springfield Republican	1	Octuple
Wilmington Journal	1	Sextuple
London Daily Mail	2	Octuples
London Daily Mirror	6	Sextuples
E. Hulton & Co., Ltd.	2	Octuples
News of the World	2	Quadruples
Pictorial Newspaper Co.	2	Sextuples
Birmingham Gazette	4	Sextuples
Sheffield Independent	4	Sextuples
Paris Daily Mail	2	Sextuples
Paris Daily Mail	1	Quadruple
Copenhagen Politiken	2	Sextuples

Besides Many Smaller Machines and Additions ate over four hundred 16-page sections, an absolute record for all

: that Hoe Presses Constitute the Best Investment in Running and Economy of Operation.

& CO.,

NEW YORK

, MASS.

109-112 Borough Rd., LONDON, S. E. 1., ENG.

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S

Space-Buyers' Chart and Market Survey of the

CITY OF WASHINGTON

PAGES 26 TO 32 INCLUSIVE

WASHINGTON OFFERS ATTRACTIVE MARKET FOR NATIONALLY ADVERTISED GOODS

Capital of the Nation, Political Nerve-Center of the World, this Regal City Has Its Share of Industrial Enterprises and Supports an Army of Wage-Earners

(Photo copyrighted by Underwood & Underwood)

AS THE CAPITAL CITY APPEARS TO AN AVIATOR

Remarkable View of Washington Made by a "Birdman." The Capitol Is Rarely Pictured so impressively. The Senate Office Building Is Shown in the Right Foreground

WASHINGTON is unique among the world's capitals. It was created by mandate to serve as the capital of a new federation of states—to stand as the symbol and enduring sign to the world of a nation founded on the rule of the people.

Washington was predestined to grow as the republic grew—to expand as the nation expanded, registering always the tides of life in the new world. It has fulfilled that destiny. It has reflected the measure of our political and economic progress. It has taken its place among the great capitals of the world—a city of real beauty, a city in which is centered the hopes of free peoples.

We are all accustomed to think of Washington in these aspects—to cherish it as the custodian of our liberties to feel a solemn pride in the vital part it has recently played in the grimmest drama of history.

But we are not accustomed to think of Washington as a city with industries whose activities afford employment to hosts of men and women a-

(Continued on Page 28)

Digitized by Google

MAP SHOWING RETAIL TRADING TERRITORY OF THE CITY OF WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON OFFERS ATTRACTIVE MARKET

(Continued from Page 26)

whose products add materially to the wealth of the nation.

Yet Washington has its industrial life and plays its part in the creation of new wealth. It has a large population of wage earners, aside from those employed in Government work, and these men and women are sharing fully in the fruits of our present era of prosperity.

The city—which is coextensive with the District of Columbia, named in honor of the great discoverer—contains 1 square miles, of which 60 square miles represent land surface.

The present population of Washington is estimated at 450,000, as compared with 331,069 shown by the 1910 census. The city outranks any one of perhaps a half dozen states in the number of its inhabitants. Its present density of population is 7,500 inhabitants to the square mile.

Washington's Largest Industry

The United States Government, with its many departments, is of course Washington's largest industry. It is estimated that there are at present in Washington about 75,000 war workers. These represent every part of the country, and include executives, specialists, skilled workers of every kind. They help to make the city national.

Records of leading hotels show that an average of 9,000 people a day visit Washington. Generally speaking these are people of means. They buy goods at Washington stores—for the average American likes to take back home with him something which he has purchased in the capital city.

Washington stores have, in a very real sense, a sort of national distribution. They have customers from Alaska, and from Porto Rico, from Maine and Texas—in addition to the normal volume of local trade.

In considering Washington as a market the manufacturer, or the space-buyer, must take into consideration many factors which do not enter into the situation in other cities. He is dealing here with a complex population, entirely urban and suburban, and in part cosmopolitan; with thousands of people who live in this splendid city because they have the means to choose their mode and place of living and deliberately elect to abide near the great nerve-center of the nation; with other thousands who are employed in the conduct of the affairs of the Government, and to whom Washington means "the home town," with all that is meant by the term, and with still other thousands who find here, in the private industries, their best opportunities for earning a living and the best surroundings in which to live.

Attracts People of Wealth

To illustrate the diversity of interests of the population—the city boasts a greater number of schools and seminaries for girls and young women than are found in any other American city. This may seem to be a fact of merely incidental interest to advertisers. But it must be considered that these young women are, in almost every instance, from homes of wealth. They come to the center of American culture from every part of the land. One may be the daughter, the niece or the cousin of a congressman; another a banker's daughter from the far West. All are women of culture, and naturally customers of Washington stores and shops, buying without stint everything appealing to the feminine taste.

Washington is the home of thousands of people of great wealth, the center of the official life of the nation, having a society on a par in every particular with that of the most exclusive capitals of the old world. Diplomatic life in Washington is a factor of great importance in the general social scheme of things. Here the courts of the world view with each other in the magnificence of their representation and of the social functions which they sponsor. Thus Washington assumes a special importance as a market for high class merchandise, appealing to people of exacting tastes and requirements.

Value of Manufactured Products

But if the wealthy classes of the capital city afford an exceptional market opportunity for high grade products, what may be said of the wage-earning classes? A glance at the statistics of manufacture for the city will afford a clue.

The latest figures of the Department of Commerce cover the calendar year of 1914; but, as these relate to private industries, which have of course shown a normal growth in the intervening time, they will throw valuable light on the industrial importance of the city.

The manufactured products in 1914—and these mean only the products of privately owned industries, not Government enterprises—amounted to $28,978,241. The average number of wage earners employed in these private industries was 8,867. The number of establishments was 514; the total number of persons engaged, including salaried employees, was 13,323. The amount of capital invested was $40,810,200. Salaries and wages paid totaled $8,605,693. The value added to the cost of raw materials by manufacture in that year was $16,720,118. This was the sum of created wealth due to the privately owned manufacturing industries of the city.

It is an interesting fact that printing and publishing stands first among the private industries of Washington. If the gigantic printing and publishing operations of the Government were to be included this industry would take on large proportions. Without considering the Government's great plants, the value of the products of the printing and publishing industry of Washington for 1914 was $6,241,578, and the number of employees engaged was 1,671. The value added by manufacture was $4,593,389. The number of establishments was 156.

The dominant private industry of the city, therefore, includes nearly a third of the total establishments engaged in manufacture, and the value of products represented 21.5 per cent. of the total for all industries. Included under this classification are newspaper and job offices, book publishers and binders, steel and copper plate engravers, etc.

(Continued on Page 28)

Digitized by Google

WASHINGTON OFFERS AN ATTRACTIVE MARKET

(Continued from Page 27)

Ranking second among Washington's private industries are bakery products. 58 establishments being devoted to this line, employing 1,161 wage earners, with an annual product valued at $3,916,169.

Foundry and machine shop products totaled in value $1,230,244, and 562 people were employed in these lines.

Variety of Manufactured Products

Other lines of industry whose annual products were valued from a million dollars down the scale to $300,000 were: Confectionery, patent medicines, lumber and planing mill products, coffee roasting and grinding, copper, tin and sheet iron work, marble and stone work.

VIEW OF A PRESS ROOM IN GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE
Uncle Sam's Printery Is the Most Complete Establishment of the Kind in the World. In Normal Times the Employees Number About Four Thousand.

One hundred and ninety-five plants, which the Department of Commerce does not classify separately, and in which 4,246 wage earners were employed, yielded an annual product valued at $12,897,497. Of this total, the value added by manufacture was $7,246,015.

Of the wage earners employed in these private industries, nearly nine-tenths were males.

Washington industries, even before the advent of the national child labor law, never employed children under sixteen in any considerable numbers. In 1914 but 43 children were employed.

The Basis of Home Life

The buying power of wage earners is naturally affected by the stability of their employment, and in this respect Washington industries rank very high. Very slight fluctuation in the average number of employees month by month is shown. In the month of December, 1914, the peak of demand for labor during that year, 9,227 wage earners were regularly employed; in March, the low tide of labor demand for the year was reached, when 8,658 were employed. The other ten months of the year showed but slight variation in the number of employees.

These figures would indicate that the great majority of Washington wage earners have steady employment throughout the year—and this is the only basis upon which home life prospers and the ability to buy is assured.

As elsewhere during the last ten years, there has been in Washington a marked trend toward the shortening of the working day. In 1914, 4,839 wage earners worked eight hours or less each day.

The Government as a Manufacturer

The larger industrial establishments of Washington, of course, are under corporate ownership. The tendency toward expansion always leads to such control.

The Federal Government, in 1914, conducted 11 distinctive manufacturing establishments whose products were exclusively for governmental use, and no statistics as to the value of the output are available.

However, 11,639 persons were employed in these industries, of whom 1,025 were officials and clerks and 10,614 were wage earners.

In the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and establishments operated in various departments, 4,146 persons were employed.

In the Naval Gun Factory 3,239 persons were employed.

In the Government Printing Office 4,051 persons were employed. In other industries, 202.

Thus it will be seen that, in industries similar to those under private ownership, the Government in 1914 was a larger employer of labor than the combined manufacturers of the city. Of course, when the United States entered the war, these industries were enormously expanded and numerous others created. The fact that, according to a recent estimate, there are now in Washington about 75,000 war workers would indicate that this enormous increase of governmental activities during the war was not entirely transitory, but must be taken into consideration as a major factor in any analysis of Washington today as a market for merchandise.

Stability of Employment

Governmental employees, forming so large a part of the wage-earning population of Washington, enjoy for the most part stability of employment. Those under Civil Service regulations have lifetime positions, assuming their own fitness and dependability. While salaries and wages are not as high as in some branches of private enterprise, these workers are enabled to order their lives very much according to their tastes and desires, and they are able to buy the things they need quite as freely as professional and salaried people anywhere.

The Government has aimed, of course, to regulate the earnings of this vast army of workers according to the prevailing economic conditions, taking into account the increased costs of living.

Washington's Daily Newspapers

Washington has four daily newspapers. These rank with the best metropolitan dailies of the country. Indeed, it is said, not more than two thousand copies of outside newspapers are sold in Washington each day. This estimate is made by an executive of one of the Washington newspapers. Even if the figures should be ultra-conservative it is evident that the people of Washington, outside certain official circles, depend for the news of the day upon their own newspapers.

It must be remembered that, like all metropolitan cities, Washington dominates a considerable trade territory outside its own geographical limits. To the north this trade territory is somewhat circumscribed owing to the proximity of Baltimore, yet it is safe to assume that there is here an "even break" between the two cities. To the south and west the zone of Washington's trade is far more extensive. A large part of populous north-east Virginia is naturally tributary, in a trade way, to Washington. The capital newspapers reach and influence this trade, as a matter of course, so that advertising in them has the usual wide appeal carried by important city newspapers.

There is a general—but erroneous—impression that Washington has a vast negro population. The census figures of 1910 show 28.5 per cent. negroes. There are certain sections of the city in which the negro population runs as high as 41 per cent, but this is the natural result of segregation. Many colored people, of a distinctly high class are employed by the Government. In fact, a large proportion of the Washington negroes are salaried employes or prosperous wage earners, and not by any means to be overlooked as buying prospects.

Vital Statistics

Native whites of native parentage constitute 50.4 per cent. of the total population, while native whites of foreign parentage represent only 13.6 per cent. Foreign born whites total but 7.4 per cent. of the population.

Washington has more women than men. There are 91.3 males to 100 females.

The illiterates—those over ten years of age who cannot write—constituted, in 1910, but 4.9 per cent. of the total population.

Of the male population of Washington 53.8 per cent. are married.

The largest number of foreign born residents of the city, of the different countries represented, are Irish, who numbered 5,343 in 1910.

In the last census year the number of dwellings in the city was 58,313, while the families numbered 71,339. These figures, of course, do not apply to the greatly larger Washington of today, but do afford evidence that the capital is distinctly a city of homes.

(Copyright by Underwood & Underwood)

LOOKING UP PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE TO THE CAPITOL
On the left are the Hotels Willard and Raleigh and on the right the Southern Railway Building, and the tower of the Post Office Department. The Exhibit of Motor Cars, Parked and in Action, Is Impressive.

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SPACE BUYERS CHART

PART I

Washington, D. C

Population

1910 Census	331,069
A. B. C. (date, Sept., 1919) City	415,000
A. B. C. City and Suburbs	550,000
Chamber of Commerce Estimate, City	401,681
Chamber of Commerce, City and Suburban	525,000

Native Whites	64%	Industrial Workers	15%
Negroes	28.5%	English Reading	90%
Foreign Born	7.5%	Home Owners	55%

Suburban and Farm Residents

Floriculture, truck growing and dairying are the chief agricultural industries. The area of farms is declining as the city grows. Practically everything grown in the District of Columbia is consumed in Washington.

Many suburban homes are show places, not run for profit. Residents of Georgetown and the adjacent country in Virginia trade in Washington.

City Classed as

Political and residential. Seat of government of the United States.

Location

On Potomac River, 30 miles from Baltimore, 136 miles from Philadelphia, 228 miles from New York.

Seven railroads—Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac; Washington and Southern; Chesapeake and Ohio; Baltimore and Ohio; Pennsylvania; Washington and Old Dominion; Southern.

Banks

Savings	24	Resources	$24,562,000
Trust Companies	6	Resources	73,057,000
National	14	Resources	112,668,000

There are no state banks in the District of Columbia. There are 44 banks, the total resources are $210,587,000 on June 30, 1919, an increase of $77,314,000 since June 29, 1918.

Theatres

66 Moving Picture Theatres, 2 Vaudeville and Moving Pictures, 4 Legitimate Theatres, 2 Burlesque. Largest, 2,700 seats; average, 1,300 seats.

Churches

Episcopal, 47; Methodist Episcopal, 35; Roman Catholic, 27; Baptist, 27; Lutheran Evangelical, 13; Methodist Protestant, 8; Methodist Episcopal South, 6; Disciples of Christ, 5; Seventh Day Adventist, 5; Hebrew, 5; Congregational, 4; Christian Science, 4; Presbyterian, 12; Universalists, 1; Unitarian, 1.

Schools

Public Grade	101	No. Pupils	46,761
High	8	No. Pupils	7,337
Catholic Schools	16	No. Pupils	3,915

There are more seminaries in Washington than in any other city in the United States.

The historical advantages, together with the social advantages, attract students from all over the country. There are 161 miscellaneous schools.

Principal Industries

Being the seat of government, Washington is the home of some 15,000 government employees.

There are 514 manufacturing establishments, employing 11,323 operatives, and with an annual payroll of $8,605,893. The value of their output is $28,978,241.

Ice, pottery, brick and clay products, flour, structural iron work, castings, lumber and planing mill products are the principal products.

Special Information

There are 69.245 square miles or 44,800 acres of land in the District of Columbia, and 8 square miles of water.

Washington is the best shaded city in the world, there being 12,000 more trees in Washington than in Paris.

There are 87 hotels in Washington, and the tourist travel is from all over the world.

It is safe to estimate that at all times there are fully 75,000 temporary residents in Washington.

Note: This information was obtained from The Heskins Service, Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, Merchants and Manufacturers' Association and other sources.

Should You Want to Know
More About Washington

The number of dealers who handle a similar product.
The proportionate demand for competitive articles.
Suggestions for covering local dealers.
Plans of local co-operation.

The TRADE-AID Department of The Washington TIMES offers co-operation of a calibre that —The representative of Palmolive Soap says is "the best ever."

—The Troco Nut Butter people say "goes further and accomplishes more."
—George C. Krusen, proprietor of The Josephine Le Fevre Co., says is "the greatest he ever saw."
—The Corn Products Co. representative says is "splendid."
—The C. F. Blanke Tea & Coffee Co. representative says is "just what we wanted."
—And the Royal Baking Powder people say "your co-operation is very much appreciated."

The Washington TIMES was one of the very first newspapers to realize the value of co-operation and establish a TRADE-AID Department. Like most beginnings, the TRADE-AID Department of the Washington "TIMES" was small, and at first had more to learn than to impart. But the work of The TIMES TRADE-AID Department has grown with the years that have passed; from it have "graduated" an assistant publisher, several advertising managers of "nationally known" products, and a couple of heads of advertising agencies. Each of these men played a part in the building of this Department of The TIMES; and each left behind unerasable evidence of his value that has stood as sign posts to success for those who followed in this work of co-operation. Best of all, one of the mainstays of this Department throughout its years of service is with it to-day and, to quote a big national advertiser, "presides over a department prepared to give a fellow the kind of co-operation to fit his particular needs instead of one plan for everything."

Digitized by Google

The Heart of the Nation is Washington, D. C., the Capital of the United States

Presidents of the United States are inaugurated here
National Judgments are rendered here
National laws are enacted here

Washington's prosperous population of over 400,000 represents the most genuinely cosmopolitan citizenry of the United States—representative of every state, with home ties binding to each community in the country.

It is the logical city in which to inaugurate a national advertising campaign, for the voice of the Washington public finds attentive ears in every city and hamlet throughout the United States.

There is undeniable prestige attached to Washington's indorsement. The way to enter the Washington market is easy—simple—economical.

One medium—The Washington Star—not only covers the entire field, but its news and advertising columns are read with confidence by its readers.

Sell Washington and you will soon have the United States for a customer.

The Evening Star

With Sunday Morning Edition

The Evening Star
102,235

Facts About Circulation

(Taken from the last American Audit Bureau of Circulations statement for the six months ending March 31, 1919)

The Sunday Star
82,577

The circulation of The Evening Star is believed to be between two and one-half and three times that of the corresponding edition of its afternoon contemporary.

The circulation of The Sunday Star is more than ten thousand greater in Washington than its nearest competitor.

The Star is received in nine out of ten homes in Washington and is read by the entire family.

It is read by all classes—cabinet officers, Supreme Court judges, senators, congressmen, bankers, executives, clerks, laborers.

In fact, practically everybody in Washington who reads at all reads The Star—Washington has The Star habit.

Facts About Advertising

The Evening Star stood Number Five among all the daily and Sunday newspapers of the United States for the volume of advertising carried for the six months ending June 30, 1919.

It frequently prints more local advertising than all three of the other Washington papers combined.

It does not print any advertising containing fraudulent or misleading statements.

New York Office:
Dan A. Carroll,
Tribune Building.

Let our statistical department investigate for you the possibilities of the Washington market as applied to your specific line. We are ready to co-operate with deserving products. Write direct to the Advertising Manager of The Evening Star, Washington, D. C., or through our New York or Chicago office.

Chicago Office:
J. E. Lutz,
First National Bank Building

Digitized by Google

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
SPACE BUYERS CHART

PART 2

Washington, D. C.

Wholesale Houses

Beef and Provision Dealers	10
Tobacconists	11
Confectioners	11
Druggists	4
Flour Dealers	5
Fruit Dealers	9
Grocers	7
Commission Merchants	29

The wholesale business is confined largely to Washington and adjacent territory. Considerable trade is conducted with the adjacent towns of Virginia, but not much north of Washington.

Retail Section

Pennsylvania Avenue is the principal retail street of Washington, but side streets as well as parallel streets contain large establishments.

The trading area is almost solid for over a mile west and north from the Capitol, and is closely built up.

Many suburban and neighborhood stores all over the city do a thriving business and carry merchandise into all parts of the city.

Residential Features

Washington has many fine residences, many of them historical. The modern houses are pretentious, fully in keeping with the social prominence of the city.

A great many boarding houses are maintained throughout the city.

The northwest section of Washington is the fashionable district.

Trading Area

The immediate trading area of Washington, particularly as to retail business, includes the most aristocratic, the oldest and richest part of the country. Mt. Vernon, Fairfax, Culpeper, Fredericksburg, Manassas, Spotsylvania, Stafford, Calverton, Leesburg, Alexandria, Winchester, King George and other small towns shop in Washington.

Every state, territory and possession in the United States have Senators and representatives in Washington.

Every civilized recognized nation in the world has representatives in Washington.

The Washington hotels have on an average of some 9,000 guests every day, and tourists from all over the world visit Washington.

These conditions make Washington an unique and far-reaching market.

The social activities of Washington make it a splendid market for high grade merchandise of all kinds.

Retail Outlet for Nationally Advertised Product

Automobile (Passenger) Agencies	72	Delicatessen	103	Garages	156	Millinery	93
Automobile (Truck) Agencies	33	Dressmakers	61	Grocers	927	Opticians	40
Automobile (Tire) Agencies	50	Druggists	220	Hardware	93	Photographers	27
Automobile (Parts) Agencies	142	Dry Goods	90	Hats and Caps	36	Pianos	73
Bakers	86	Department Stores	7	Jewelers	116	Plumbers	102
Cigar Stores	1,727	Electrical Supplies	68	Ladies' Tailors	73	Restaurants and Lunch Rooms	686
Cloaks and Suits	17	Florists	70	Meat Markets	356	Shoe Dealers	84
Clothiers	96	Furniture and Carpets	93	Men's Furnishings	81	Sporting Goods	15
Confectioners	183	Furriers	31	Merchant Tailors	300	Stationers	83

Morning Newspapers	Evening Newspapers	Sunday Newspapers	Weeklies
Post. Herald.	Star. Times.	Herald. Post.	Star. Times.	24 Weekly—1 Semi-Monthly. 30 Monthly Publications.

THE WASHINGTON HERALD

The Only Newspaper in Washington Whose Circulation Has Increased Since the Armistice Was Signed

The Largest Percentage of Home Served Circulation

Nearly 1,000,000 Lines of Advertising Gained in Nine Months of 1919

More Than 40,000 Circulation And Growing Steadily Every Day

RATES — 10c Open — 5,000 Lines 9c — 10,000 Lines 8c

THE ONLY PAPER IN WASHINGTON THAT HAS MAINTAINED ITS PENNY PRICE

Digitized by Google

JEWELERS CONSIDER BIG ADVERTISING

Plan Outlined Before National Associations Calls for Purchasing $300,000 Space Within Three Years to Link Retailers

"Advertising that will keep before the minds of the masses, the beauty and permanent value of jewelry, the sentiment that lives with the jewels, is the best means to build a greater prosperity upon the present promising foundations," declared Harry Freund, manager of the National Jewelers' Publicity Association, in speaking before the American National Retail Jewelers' Association.

Mr. Freund proposed starting at once a $300,000 campaign of national advertising providing for the expenditure of this money in direct advertising in daily newspapers, weekly publications and the media of national circulation. The campaign will cover the entire country for a period of three years. The object will be to prove the intrinsic worth and lasting value of jewelry, watches, diamonds and silverware, and to direct the reader of this advertising to his or her local jeweler to make the purchase.

Retailer Most Important Link

"For the financial success of the nation-wide educational advertising campaign the whole industry must be organized quickly, for we have to rely on the industry to back up the improvement with all its strength," urged Mr. Freund. "The retail jeweler is the most important link in the chain of this national advertising, for he is brought in personal contact with the ultimate purchaser.

"Co-operative or group advertising has proven the biggest and greatest factor in selling the service of the products of leading industries to the American people; some of the united business interests that have launched advertising campaigns on a co-operative plan are:

"The National Florists Association, $300,000; National Dairy Council, $750,000; California Fruit Growers, $400,000; coffee growers, $250,000 a year for a period of four years; custom tailors, $250,000; Southern Pine Association, $300,000; Irish Linen Industry, $650,000; Society of Electrical Development, $200,000.

"American toy manufacturers have started a big national advertising campaign, as have the athletic goods manufacturers, the raisin growers, walnut growers, Florida citrus association, cranberry growers and paint and varnish manufacturers.

"Important group advertising campaigns have also been initiated in the automotive industry.

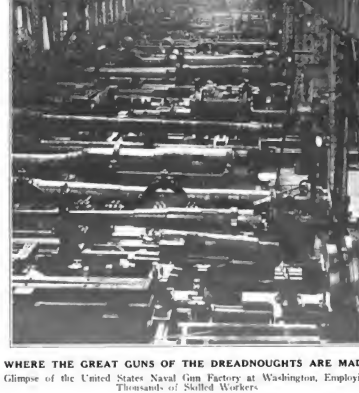
Value of Advertising Proved

"These associations of business men have proved that advertising an industry, as a unit, advances the prosperity of every individual firm in that industry. The phenomenal increase in trade which the California Fruit Growers developed through their advertising in the interest of 'Sunkist' oranges, furnishes a fine illustration of the wonderful advantages of co-operative advertising.

"'Hand advertising,' says Roger W. Babson, director of the educational service department of the U. S. Department of Labor, 'is a cure for all the ills real or imagined prevailing in the business world during this critical period of reconstruction. Prosperity ultimately depends upon the consumer. My advice to the merchant is this: for your own interest, and the good of the country, increase the advertising appropriation you have made this year. Let us make our present prosperity permanent by advertising.'

"That last line is the keynote of the whole present situation in your business; for the proposed national publicity campaign of $300,000 for the jewelry and allied industries is—prosperity insurance. With your co-operation and support it will eventually make the American people regard the purchase of jewelry, watches, diamonds and silverware as a necessity and living essentials."

American Firm Sets Records with Cabled Advertisement



552-Word Message Carries Fur Auction Announcement to Japan Advertiser

A record breaking advertisement for the Orient was carried in the Japan Advertiser of September 5, according to the publishers, on the last page for that day, 14-inches deep and 2-columns wide.

One of the most unusual things about this advertisement was the fact that it was placed by an American firm, Funston Bros. & Co., of St. Louis. The text matter and instructions for display and space were cabled from St. Louis to Tokyo in a single message of 552 words, which is believed to be the longest commercial message ever sent under the Pacific. The cost per word was 2.26 Yen.

The regular rate of the Japan Advertiser for the space occupied is 70 Yen, but the cable tolls added brought the cost to 1538.32 Yen. The advertisement was an announcement of an auction fur sale held in St. Louis from September 10 to September 20, inclusive.

Harry G. Jacobs resigned as secretary-treasurer and manager of Motorcycle and Bicycle Illustrated to become sales manager for the bicycle and motorcycle division of the Kokono Rubber Company, Kokomo, Ind.

WHERE THE GREAT GUNS OF THE DREADNOUGHTS ARE MADE
Glimpse of the United States Naval Gun Factory at Washington, Employing Thousands of Skilled Workers

WIDE-WIDE-WORLD STILL GIBBS' TERRITORY

It has been remarked, many times, that if there was any branch of the art of advertising as it relates to results that E. D. Gibbs is not thoroughly acquainted with, the man who announces it is going to have the time of his life "showing" those who dwell in the world of "Truth." That will no doubt explain the new happy feeling in the Goodrich organization.

E. D. Gibbs

Mr. Gibbs is not a one-country man. He helped to prove the National Cash Register to be an international necessity. If you have ever heard of the National Cash Register you already know something about Mr. Gibbs. During the twelve years he was advertising director of that company his messages of higher business efficiency were carried into every country in the world. His activities included direction of the second largest printing plant in the country owned by a private corporation and one publication with a distribution 1,200,000 a month.

Mr. Gibbs' reputation as a lecturer and writer on topics of advertising and merchandising is international and other advertising men have heaped many honors on him, including the presidency of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, presidency of the Sphinx Club of New York, and also of the New York Sales Managers Club. He is a charter member of the Sphinx Club of London.

Following his resignation from the National Cash Register Company, Mr. Gibbs was associated with Robert Patterson as advertising and sales counselors, with offices in Chicago. Later, he was with the Bush Terminal Company, and resigned from his position there to join the Goodrich Company.

In his new position, as advertising director of the Goodrich organization, Mr. Gibbs relieves W. O. Rutherford, second vice-president in charge of sales, of his advertising duties, but he will continue to lend time to spread the good humor which helped win him fame.

PRINTED WORD BUILDS GOOD WILL

W. F. Sheen, Scranton Dealer, Explains Importance of This Often-Unappreciated Service in Ad Club Address.

SCRANTON, PA., Oct. 12.—An important factor in advertising, often overlooked, is its power to increase good will, W. F. Sheen, president of the Scranton Commercial Association and manager of the Thomas F. Leonard Company, hardware dealers, declared in an address before the Scranton Advertising Club.

"The average merchant estimates the good will of his business to be at least 5 per cent of the total volume of his annual sales," he said. "When he undertakes an advertising campaign and is satisfied that by advertising he has increased his business, say 20 per cent, I think he should be justified in estimating the value of his advertising at 2½ per cent plus the increased value of his good will."

Illustrating Its Value

"For example, a $100,000 business is worth $5,000 in good will. If it be increased by advertising to $120,000 that additional $20,000 business at 2½ cost $500, but it is worth $5000 00 plus $1,000 for increased good will.

"There are other items of value in advertising to the merchant which usually escape attention. It is customary to send out copy of advertisements in all departments, the preparing and making of such copies for a year would be no small items of expense if as in the jobbing trade they were prepared by department heads, typewritten and distributed.

"Prince of Pinch-Hitters"

"My belief in advertising has been greatly strengthened by a careful study of the various items of cost in conducting business. Interest on investment, rent, light and heat, delivery service, insurance and most other help and expenses, other than the buying, sales force and advertising are what might be called inert forces when we wish to produce sales. Sales are the vital force of a store.

"We can ginger up the advertising and the sales people and buyers, but the balance of the overhead expense cannot respond to our efforts to produce sales, and the prince of all for a pinch hitter is the advertising, because it is the most promising and amounts to but two and one-half per cent of the volume of sales."

Mayor Gets $8,000 Damages

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO, Oct. 14.—C. S. Westover, mayor of Alliance, was awarded a verdict of $8,000 damages against the Review Publishing Company of Alliance. An appeal will be taken by the publishing company, it is understood.

Davis Moves to Denver

CHEYENNE, WYO., Oct. 13.—Meredith Davis, formerly editor of the State Leader, is now copy editor on the Denver Post.

Digitized by Google

PENNSYLVANIA —the Market

Pennsylvania has 147 cities of over 5,000 population. Collectively they have 4,669,074 people. Nearly 55 per cent. of the population of the state—8,522,017.

26 wholesale and 3,519 retail druggists.

133 wholesale and 3,013 retail dry goods stores.

105 wholesale and 4,590 retail shoe dealers.

148 wholesale and 2,878 retail hardware dealers.

228 wholesale and 24,420 retail grocery dealers.

398 sporting goods dealers.

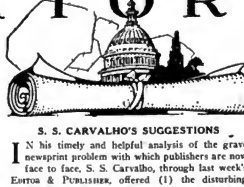
457 department stores.

2,854 auto and accessory dealers.

3,169 garages and repair shops.

32,159 tobacconists.

Pretty good territory—pretty good sources of distribution. Hard to beat anywhere. Intensive cultivation of this territory—co-operation with local dealers and local daily newspapers will open big trade for merchandise of all kinds.



These daily newspapers co-operate.

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Allentown Call (M)	22,175	.04	.04
*Altoona Mirror (E)	23,676	.05	.05
Altoona Times (M)	14,940	.025	.025
Bethlehem Globe (E)	6,766	.025	.025
*Chester Times & Republican(M & E)	14,177	.05	.04
Connellsville Courier (E)	6,888	.015	.025
*Easton Express (E)	11,096	.02	.02
Easton Free Press (E)	15,455	.0285	.0285
Erie Herald (E)	8,632	.02	.02
Erie Herald (S)	8,491	.02	.02
Harrisburg Telegraph (E)	28,910	.045	.045
Johnstown Democrat (M)	9,841	.03	.025
Johnstown Leader (E)	8,039	.015	.015
Lancaster Intelligencer & News-Journal (M & E)	22,018	.05	.05
Lebanon Daily News	8,349	.0179	.0179
New Castle News (E)	13,411	.025	.025
Oil City Derrick (M)	6,125	.023	.018
Philadelphia Record (M)	123,277	.25	.25
Philadelphia Record (S)	133,680	.25	.25
Pittsburgh Dispatch (M)	54,810	.12	.08
Pittsburgh Dispatch (S)		.19	.14
Pottsville Republican (E)	10,797	.04	.03
Scranton Republican (M)	27,130	.08	.07
Scranton Times (E)	36,861	.08	.07
West Chester Local News (E)	11,926	.03	.03
Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader (E)	19,376	.05	.035
*Williamsport Sun (E)	16,110	.05	.035
York Gazette (M)	14,555	.03	.03
Total	678,331	1.0423	1.4518

Government statement April 1st, 1919.
*A. B. C. statement April 1st, 1919.

Digitized by Google

EDITORIAL

PRESERVING OUR INHERITANCE

THAT "Government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth" has again become the direct and personal concern of all who are loyal to the democratic ideal.

When its adherents and beneficiaries cease to safeguard it from the assaults of its enemies, democracy —as a governmental system and a social ideal— ceases to properly function.

When the will of law-defying minorities—such as the I. W. W.—can be enforced in sinister disregard of the rights of majorities, and the industrial life of the country paralyzed, little or greatly, it is time for plain speaking.

The marine workers, organized as a branch of the I. W. W., tie up the commerce of the harbor of New York. That their arbitrary action means the endangering of the food supply of six millions of people does not interest these strikers. They issue a statement attacking organized labor and its leaders and calling for "one big union" to replace all existing craft unions. They see in this plan a promise of autocratic power for their own leaders—power which would menace the life of the people far more gravely than would the triumph of political autocracy. For this hoped-for power would carry with it no responsibility—only the weapon of force, to be exercised at the sweet will of some "leader" of the Foster type, who has played so great a role in the steel strike.

This man Foster, however, followed what he conceived to be a more clever policy for the attainment of radical ends. He chose to work from within the unions, introducing into their ranks a vociferous element opposed to all law and forms of law, and advocating rrime as a legitimate weapon in labor fights.

The labor unions as a whole are sound and sane. They represent patriotic American citizenship. The rank and file of their members believe in arbitration, in the integrity of contracts, in law and order, in Lincoln's immortal definition of democracy. It beromes highly important for them to purge their ranks of Bolsheviists, I. W. W. followers and radical elements who disregard human rights and the principle of liberty under law. The poison of the Soviet madness has infected some of their members, as has been clearly shown by recent events. The remedy must be found, and quickly, if the patriotic workers of America would aid in protecting our free institutions from those who would destroy them.

Americans as a whole believe in our labor unions, and support in a moral way every legitimate effort they make to better working and wage conditions. It is up to the unions themselves to steer a clear-cut course in the present period of unrest and radical activity—to stand, as they have always stood, for free government and the rights of man.

HOW ADVERTISING HELPED

A STORY carrying a timely point is related in the Howland Homily, an interesting little house organ issued for advertising Howland and Howland, publishers' representatives, of New York.

A candy manufacturer (and retailer) tells how he succeeded in keeping his profits intact, in this period of increasing costs, without increasing the selling price of his candies.

He figured that increased production and sales would solve the matter. So he proceeded to increase his output, with little additional overhead, and to open branch stores. For the first time he advertised adequately, using all of the daily papers in his city. His sales kept pace with his larger production, and volume of sales enabled him to earn satisfactory profits. He thus demonstrated once more the economic status of advertising—how, by speeding up volume and quirkening turnovers of capital, profits are earned on very small per-sale margins.

THAT newspaper which carries a large volume of classified is, actually, "the voice of the people."

S. S. CARVALHO'S SUGGESTIONS

IN his timely and helpful analysis of the grave newsprint problem with which publishers are now face to face, S. S. Carvalho, through last week's EDITOR & PUBLISHER, offered (1) the disturbing facts of the present situation and (2) some concrete suggestions to publishers as to how to best meet the crisis.

He shows how the squeeze predicted for the late fall began in September and is growing more serious every day. The prices prevailing to-day for spot paper, he shows, are practically prohibitive—yet publishers, with a great volume of advertising to print, must secure additional supplies somehow, or cripple their operations.

Among the constructive suggestions made by Mr. Carvalho perhaps that of most urgent importance is for the increase of the selling prire of daily papers to three cents and of Sunday papers to ten cents.

He also points out that paper will have to be saved by condensing the reading matter from ten to twenty-five per cent. Much rewriting will have to be done. This method of condensation does not contemplate the exclusion of any vital news but the telling of news without waste of words or non-essential details. Men on the news staffs must be trained to "cut to the bone," while retaining the vital spark of every story. The waste basket, Mr. Carvalho believes, should play a more important role in editorial rooms.

He urges "no returns, free papers or samples." And he remarks that some metropolitan papers still take returns.

Mr. Carvalho believes that publishers should, at once, put into effect every possible paper economy—not only because of the present shortage of supply, but because the outlook for 1920, as he views it, is dubious indeed. Manufacturers will make only tentative contracts, leaving the matter of price to be determined earh quarter and the matter of supply to be controlled by output and demand. The publisher will be able to buy such quantities of paper as the manufacturer decides that he can sell to him. Contract prices, he thinks, at the beginning of the year, will range from $4 to $4.10, with increases for each succeeding quarter.

Drastic curtailment of consumption, he points out, would automatically redure the price of paper.

Higher rates for advertising, Mr. Carvalho states, are imperative. This may reduce the volume of space used, but not the revenues—so that this policy would be in the nature of newsprint conservation.

Through this clear-cut analysis of the present situation and of logical remedies, Mr. Carvalho has rendered a valuable service to American publishers.

RELATIONS between advertising agencies and newspapers are growing better all the time— due to the better recognition of mutual interests.

October 16, 1919. Volume 52, No. 20.
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
Published weekly by
THE EDITOR & PUBLISHER CO.
1117 World Building, Park Row, New York.
W. D. Showalter, editor; John F. Redmond, managing editor; Ben Wilson, Features.

James Wright Brown, publisher,
J. W. Ferguson, advertising; Fenton Dowling, circulation.

London: Herbert C. Rideut, 42 Kimberly Gardens, N. 4.
Paris: F. H. Grundy.
Toronto: W. A. Craick.
Chicago: D. F. Cass.
San Francisco: H. C. Bornstein.
Boston: M. J. Staples.
Washington: Robert T. Barry.
10 cents a copy; $3 a year; foreign postage, $1.00; Canadian, 50c.

THE "LIFE" OF AN ADVERTISEMENT

THE periodicals and magazines, through their promotion work in selling their advertising spare, place strong emphasis on one argument, and have found it effective with many national advertisers who neglect to subject it to common-sense analysis. It is one of those arguments which carries an impressive face-value, but which loses its force under examination.

This argument is to the effect that the "life" of an advertisement in a daily newspaper is but one day, while the life of the same advertisement in a weekly periodical is one week, and in a monthly magazine it is lengthened out to a full month. This assumes, of course, that an advertisement in a weekly has seven times as many chances of being read as in a daily; and that an ad in a monthly has four times as many chances of being read as it would have had in a weekly, and thirty times as many as it would have had in a single issue of a daily.

This proposition, to win any sort of credence, must be based upon the assumption that the average reader devotes seven times as much time to reading his weekly periodical and thirty times as much to reading his magazine as he devotes to reading his daily newspaper. The mere statement of the thing is sufficient answer to it.

